Next Tuesday's Opera Briefly Described
By PERCY A. SCHOLES.

"KITESH" is sometimes called "The Russian Parsifal." Well, "Parsifal" is a great work and "Kitesh" is a great work, and they have this in common—that their subjects are both legendary and both spiritual, and that the operatic treatment is in both cases very spectacular and musically very beautiful. The spectacular side of "Kitesh" will be hidden from us on Tuesday—hidden from our eyes that is, though no doubt those of us who possess an active imagination will (by means of the hints the programme book has taken from the score and the stimulus of the music itself) be able to picture the quiet forest glades, the banks of the lake, the quaint half-Oriental streets of Little Kitesh, the strong walls and rugged, towering cathedral of Great Kitesh, the vividly coloured dresses of the peasants, huntsmen, and Russian and Tartar warriors, and the white robes of the saints, all of which decorate the stage when the sacred legend is enacted with full operatic panoply.

There are six scenes in "Kitesh," and they are as follows:—

I.—IN THE FOREST.

The maiden Fevronia, reared amidst the solitude of the great forest, an innocent, beautiful girl, a lover of the birds and beasts, which flock round her at her call—a child of nature and of God, this simple-minded Christian-Pantheist, is suddenly confronted with a young huntsman from the city, who marvels at her beauty of form and of character, and (like any other young man in any other fairy story) at once falls in love with her, as she with him.

A few short pages of the score, a little dialogue and duet, and the young people are betrothed.

Just as the handsome and sympathetic young huntsman has taken leave of the maiden to seek his companions, they themselves come seeking him, and from them the peasant girl learns with amazement to whom she has promised herself—Prince Vsevolod, joint ruler and heir of King Yury, of the sacred City of Great Kitesh.

(Thus ends Act. I.)

II.—THE STREETS OF LITTLE KITESH.

The Wedding Day has arrived, and the bride is on her way, grandly escorted, to the ceremony in the cathedral of Great Kitesh. The procession has still far to go, for it must pass through the streets of Little Kitesh, and twenty miles separate the two cities.

In Little Kitesh is much preparation to honour the bride. A fair is in progress, there are decorations, street performances, dancing bears, and dulcimer players.

The town drunkard is there, and he has been celebrating. Grisha is that typical Russian peasant character, the weak-will-with-the-heart-of-gold: like St. Paul he could say, "The good that I would I do not, but the evil that I would not, that I do."

Soon he is in altercation with the crowd, but the disturbance does not last long, for distant music is heard and all are at once agog to welcome the bride.

The quarrelsome Grisha is now quickly pushed aside, but Fevronia notices him and speaks kindly to him. All is happiness!

Suddenly there is a wild cry. Unobserved by anyone, the Tartars, hereditary enemies of Christian Russia, have entered the town. In a moment they are amongst the crowd, hacking and thrusting. Men, women, and children rush hither and thither, quickly to be cut down as they vainly try to find safety. Joy is turned to mourning.

The Tartar chiefs, Bedyai and Burundai, catch sight of Fevronia and order that she shall be kept alive. Each intends to possess her. Grisha, too, is saved—that he may lead the army through the forests and marshes to the capital city itself.

(So ends Act II.)

III.—IN GREAT KITESH.

In the sacred city of Great Kitesh, in the square before the cathedral, the inhabitants are assembled. At the top of the steps, under the high portal, stand King Yury and Prince Vsevolod.

In such wise they were to have welcomed the Prince's bride, but instead of the happy sounds of her approach, they have been hearing dreadful rumours of disaster.

There comes at last Poyarok, Chief Huntsman of Prince Vsevolod. We have seen him twice before; it was he to whom it fell to answer the peasant maiden's question as to the name of her betrothed, and it was he who, through the streets of Little Kitesh, led her escort, and in those streets vainly attempted her defence.

This time Poyarok stumbles and has to be led, and the crowd, with horror, realize that he has been blinded by the savage enemy. Questioned by the King, he tells of subjects slaughtered, of men-at-arms defeated, of the bride captured.

Worst news of all (and he believes in its truth) is that which rumours that the bride herself is the guide of her captors in their approach on the city.

The Prince is broken-hearted. He calls around him his companions, takes leave of the King, and goes forth from the city to the plains to do battle with the heathen invader.

And now are left in Great Kitesh old men, women, children and the aged King. They fall to prayer, and as they pray for themselves and their army and their city and their faith—A MIRACLE! A mist surges around cathedral and squares and streets and walls, and, wrapped in golden cloud, Great Kitesh rises slowly from earth, leaving only over the place where it had stood the sacred emblem—a Cross of Flame.

(So ends Act III., Scene 1.)

IV.—BESIDE THE LAKE.

In battle with the Tartars Prince Vsevolod and his men are killed—martyrs, as the legend regards them, for the Holy Faith. (The heroism and disaster of the battle are in the opera score pictured for us in a long and finely worked out orchestral piece which we shall hear on Tuesday.)

Great Kitesh had been built beside a lake, and on the further side of this the Tartars, led by the drunkard Grisha, encamp for the night, prepared on the morrow to attack.

The two chiefs come to blows over the possession of the captive Fevronia, and Bedyai is killed.

Grisha, guide under threat of torture to the enemies of his race and faith, has been tied to a tree, with arms outstretched in the fashion of a cross. He is tormented by his conscience, and his imagination is haunted by the sound of Bells—the Bells of the Sacred City. He hears these unceasingly, and they batter upon his brain until he begins to go mad. He calls to Fevronia and, coming at his call, she reproaches him for his betrayal. He appeals to her sympathy, and wins it, and at length she cuts his bonds, and he dashes away.

On the banks of the lake he is pulled up in astonishment. For the opposite shore, where should be the walls and towers of the Sacred City is now—open country! Yet in the lake those very walls and towers are reflected and from the sky peal Bells—Bells—Bells!

He dashes back to Fevronia, seizes her hand, and drags her off into the forest.

The Tartars are aroused. They rub their eyes, look about, see the reflection of the invisible city, hear its bells pealing from the clouds, and in terror they scatter, and the countryside knows them no more.

(So ends Act III., Scene 2.)

V.—IN THE FOREST.

Fevronia and Grisha, worn out by their fears and their flight, are in the forest. Grisha's evil conscience sees everywhere pursuing spirits. At last, in mental collapse, he falls at Fevronia's feet and begs her to teach him to pray. She says a prayer, which he repeats after her.

But Grisha's spirit is only momentarily quietened. In a new access of madness, he jumps to his feet and vanishes.

Fevronia, utterly wearied in body and spirit, sinks unconscious. She slumbers peacefully. Around her spring up Flowers of Paradise, and in her dreams she hears the songs of the Birds of Paradise (legendary sacred figures in Russian mythology, these, with the plumage of birds and the faces and voices of women).

Then, silently advancing through the forest-glade, she sees her Prince. He takes her hand and leads her away to the Sacred City on high.

(So ends Act IV., Scene 1.)

VI.—IN GREAT KITESH.

In Great Kitesh, now lifted above the strife and sorrow of the world, live King Yury and his people. Again they are assembled before their cathedral. And to them, at last, enter the Prince and his Princess, whom the Priest-King blesses, whilst all around join in anthems of joy and praise.

(And so ends the Opera.)

Official News and Radio Gossip.

Summer Time and Evening Programmes.

WITH Summer Time coming into operation during the next few weeks, it is felt that the majority of listeners would like a re-arrangement of the evening broadcast programme hours so as to enable them better to enjoy the main part of the transmissions. It has therefore been decided that as from Monday, April 26th, the Weather Forecast, Second News Bulletin and the following Talk shall be put forward from 10 p.m. to 9.30 p.m. This will enable an hour's programme to be given between 10 and 11 p.m., except on those nights which are set aside for dance music, of which there will be neither more nor less than at present, under the new arrangement. The ordinary evening programme will continue to begin at 8 p.m. This applies to all stations and does not affect the Sunday transmissions, in which there will be no alterations, either afternoon or evening, from the present practice.

John Henry's Opera.

Everybody knows that there is more than one kind of opera, but John Henry's ideas on the subject are more likely than not to be what other people would consider somewhat extraordinary. The famous broadcast star has decided that he will sing in opera, and he will do so when he visits the Cardiff Station on Saturday, April 17th. He has written his own opera for the occasion, and this is entitled It's All Wrong. In the course of its performance, listeners will hear the story of many terrible and unaccountable happenings and how John Henry escapes some horrible deaths. Listeners may not be able to understand what it is all about because, as John Henry himself says, "It's all Wrong!"

From Chester Cathedral.

The first service to be broadcast from Chester Cathedral will be relayed through the Manchester Station on the afternoon of Sunday, April 11th. Permission has been given by the Dean and Chapter for the complete afternoon service to be transmitted, and this will be preceded by the ringing of the Cathedral bells from 3.20 to 3.30, when the service begins. The service is expected to finish about 4.40 p.m., after which a Studio concert will complete the programme. The artists taking part in the concert will be Miss Ethel Bartlett (pianist), Mr. Bernard Ross (baritone), and Mr. John Barbirolli (cellist).

A New Radio Play.

The Manchester Station Dramatic Company brings its third season to a close on Thursday, April 15th, with a new play entitled The Web, by T. Stirling Boyd, and presented by Mr. Victor Smythe. This play, in three acts, was first performed in public by the Play Actors at the Shaftesbury Theatre, London, on February 16th, 1923, when it was voted to be a fine production. In the opinion of those most competent to judge, the play is one of the most suitable for broadcasting among the many good plays that the Manchester Station has given to its listeners. The subject of The Web is the interesting question of circumstantial evidence, and, naturally, it is full of dramatic situations. Unlike many stage "court scenes," however, it is true to legal traditions, the tense atmosphere created at the beginning being maintained throughout. The Manchester Station has been fortunate in securing Miss Beryl Nixon for the part of Nancy Holland. Miss Nixon recently gave some notable performances with the Manchester Repertory Company. The Web will also be broadcast from Daventry, this being the first occasion that a full two-hour drama will be transmitted through the High-Power Station. It is interesting to record that 1,400 congratulatory letters were received relating to the second broadcast performance of The Third Degree from the Manchester Station on March 2nd.

Beethoven at Newcastle.

The feature of the evening programme from the Newcastle Station on Sunday, April 11th, will be Beethoven's Symphony No. 9 in D Minor, Op. 125. The artists engaged for the occasion are Miss Hilda Vincent (soprano), Miss Rosa Burn (contralto), Mr. Arthur Sykes (tenor), and Mr. William Hendry (baritone). The Station Symphony Orchestra will be conducted by Mr. Edward Clark, and the "5NO" Choral Society by Mr. Richard C. Pratt.

speech, and the various drills and exercises will be explained by Commander Colville.

Tennis Topics.

Among listeners to the Plymouth Station must be many who are enthusiastic tennis players. For the benefit of all those who are interested in the great summer game, a series of talks on tennis topics will be given by Mr. P. J. Dart. The first will take place on Monday, April 5th.

An Enjoyable Concert.

The local programme from Plymouth Station on Wednesday, April 7th, will consist of a concert at which Miss Alice Vaughan, the well-known contralto, will take the leading part. Other artists will be Mr. Hubert Grant (bass), Miss Jocelyn Boundy (solo violin), and Miss Margaret Kettlewell (cello), all of whom are well-known to West Country listeners. The instrumental items will be contributed by the Station Trio, and Miss Jeanne Paulo and Miss Leonie Lascelles will again entertain Plymouth listeners during the programme. Half an hour of the concert will be provided by the Versatile Concert Party.

Listeners as Programme Makers.

The Liverpool Station, which was opened on June 11th, 1924, will transmit its hundredth local programme on Wednesday, April 14th. It is a happy idea that listeners to the station should themselves choose the programme on this occasion, when the artists will be Miss Hilda Roberts (soprano), and Mr. Albert E. Batten (tenor), who will be assisted by the Station Orchestra. Listeners are asked to send in items from which suitable selections can be made to build up what is hoped will be an enjoyable two hours' programme.

For Listeners to "Kitesh."

Pianoforte arrangements of some of the main themes in the opera Kitesh, which is to be broadcast from all stations on Tuesday, March 30th, will be played by Miss Cecile Dixon in the London Studio prior to the beginning of the opera itself at Covent Garden.

This it is hoped will enable listeners to familiarise themselves with some of the musical features of this Russian masterpiece and to follow its transmission with all the greater enjoyment.

Operatic Items and Songs.

Mr. Norman Allin, the famous bass, whose visit to the Aberdeen Station at one of the first Community Singing Concerts is still so pleasantly remembered by Aberdeen listeners, will again take part in a programme from that station on Tuesday, April 6th, when he is to sing several operatic items with orchestral accompaniment and some of his best songs, the latter being accompanied by the piano.

An Innovation.

The Nottingham Station has already introduced several innovations in its Children's Hour, all of which have materially contributed to the success and healthy membership of the local Radio Circle. Yet another is to be attempted on April 9th, when a Fancy Dress Dance and another Outside Broadcast of the Children's Corner programme will be given at the Palais de Danse, Nottingham. The price of tickets has been fixed at 1s. 6d. for members of the Radio Circle, and 2s. for non-members, which will entitle the holders not only to dance, but to witness a broadcast performance. Tea will be provided without extra charge.

WHICH IS THE WINNER?

In the above picture members of the B.B.C. Staff are seen busily sorting a portion of the huge number of entries received for our recent competition in connection with the radio play entitled "Which?" The result will be announced shortly.

The Sailor's Life.

Two members of the staff of the Edinburgh Station recently spent a bewildering, but fascinating, evening on board H.M.S. Claverhouse, which has now retired from active business, but continues to lead a useful existence moored in the old dock at Leith. There was the tramp of marching feet, the sounds of bugles and the slamming of the breech at loader drill, and many strange orders being shouted up and down the ship. The occasion was a rehearsal of a transmission which will be relayed from the vessel through the Edinburgh Station on Monday, April 5th, when an endeavour will be made to give listeners an impression of life on board one of His Majesty's ships.

H.M.S. Claverhouse is the headquarters and training-centre of the Edinburgh Division of the Royal Naval Volunteer Reserve, a section of the Forces which played a distinguished part in the late war, both on land and at sea. The officers and petty officers of the Claverhouse have arranged a special series of drills, exercises, and other items (including the rescue of a man who has fallen overboard), all of which sounds will be caught by the microphone. A brass band of twenty-five members will also take part in the programme. Commodore the Duke of Montrose, C.B., the Commanding Officer of the Scottish Division, will make a short

How To Be Happy Though Civilized.

By Sidney Dark.

ACCORDING to the Oxford Dictionary, to be civilized implies to be brought out of barbarism, to be enlightened, to be refined. I do not think that man has ever wanted particularly to be brought out of barbarism. Even now, it is only with infinite proddings that he consents to be enlightened, and refinement is unquestionably unnatural and frequently resented. It was a remarkable fact, of noteworthy sociological importance, that a large number of men found the horrors of war endurable because, while they were at the front, their boots could be muddy, their hair unbrushed, and their chins unshaven without protest or criticism.

Back to Nature.

It has indeed been suggested by certain philosophers that civilization and happiness are incompatible. It was Rousseau who urged us to go back to Nature, back, I presume, to the tree top of our alleged ancestors, and I am myself, when wearied with the endless small obligations of civilization, inclined to look back with envy to the days recalled by the poet:—

When wild in wood the noble savage ran.

The trouble is, of course, that the savage was not really very noble and, in all probability, not even very happy. None the less, he had far less things to bother about than you and I.

It would be a tremendous task to schedule all the obligations of civilization. To recall a few of them is sufficient, and it is to be noted that the laws of civilization are much more concerned with the negative than with the positive. They tell us what we are not to do with more insistence than what we are to do.

No one would think of denouncing Mr. Mandragon, the Millionaire, as an unenlightened barbarian because he declined to give his third best fur coat to a shivering match-seller. But Mr. Mandragon, the Millionaire, would be barred in suburban dining-rooms if he behaved like Mr. Chesterton's hero who confessed:—

For I stuff away for life
Shoving peas in with a knife.

Happy and Neat.

A banquet should be a time for vociferous rejoicing, but if at a dinner party I were suddenly to show my joy by bursting into song, an obviously natural proceeding, I should certainly be regarded as uncivilized, if I were lucky enough to escape incarceration among the insane. Civilization forbids me to laugh at my own jokes (personally, I habitually disobey this law), never to wear brown boots if I wear a top hat, never to start conversations with strangers before I have been introduced, never in any circumstances to be seen in public before I have shaved or without a crease in my trousers.

These are some of the obligations of civilization. Perhaps they are not the most important, but they suggest how wearing a thing is civilized life and how difficult it must be to be thoroughly happy and content when every day brings such a heavy round of duty. Still, such is the resourcefulness and persistence of man that he has found it possible to be both happy and neat.

Our individual happiness must be our own creation. There is a certain truth in the popular song which is included in the gramophone repertoire of all my neighbours: "I want to be happy; but I can't be happy. If I don't make you happy too," and, anyhow, it is what an aunt of mine would call "a nice thought." It does, however, suggest a fallacy. No one can really make us happy. That is our own job, and it depends on the cultivation of a mood and the acquisition of a particular point of view.

A large part of the world suffers from a disease of the eye. They see things out of proportion, so that the little things seem large and the large things seem little, and the very little thing that often seems very large is the individual who possesses the diseased eye. When we have learned what funny little fellows we really all are, we are saved from exaggerating our grievances, and over-colouring our misfortunes, taking ourselves too seriously.

We spend a great deal of our lives by ourselves, and while it is right and proper that we should be civilized in company, so to speak, it is foolish to be too civilized when we are alone. If we are forbidden to burst into song during dinner, we are still able to sing in our baths.

The Saving Sense of Humour.

Man, as has been said, is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward, but a sense of proportion which carries with it a sense of humour will save us from making a good many troubles for ourselves, and this same sense of proportion will help us to remember that there is a to-morrow as well as a to-day, that while trouble endureth for the night, joy cometh in the morning. This applies to the really serious problems and to the trivialities, those little foxes that eat the grapes of content. When we have taught ourselves to laugh at ourselves and the rest of the world, we can even endure the slings and arrows of outrageous civilization in a mood of philosophic calm.

We shall not, of course, risk losing our job and the good opinion of our neighbours by wearing brown boots with a top hat, but we shall see the fun of the prohibition and we shall be led, maybe, to a pleasant speculation as to who it was made the law which we all obey.

I do not cavil at such laws. I am myself a civilized person. I have not the least desire to return to the tree tops, because I am quite certain that I should very quickly be sprawling with a broken neck somewhere near the roots. If I belong to a club, I obey its rules. As I am the citizen of a civilized State and accept its conventions, I shall continue to have a conspicuous and attractive crease in my trousers. When the dessert is brought to me, I shall carefully refrain from cracking nuts with my teeth. I shall continue to be both neat and refined. I shall not shout with joy on the top of an omnibus, however joyful I may really be. I shall not wear a scarlet feather in my hat, however I may yearn to do so. But I shall see the joke of it all and shall, therefore, continue to be tolerably happy. And I shall not really believe that a trouser crease is necessary to salvation, or that cracking nuts with my teeth would have the sad consequence of sons in Purgatory.

And while girding at civilization, I shall listen, not without gratitude, to the broadcast programmes.

"THE RADIO TIMES" OPERA LIBRETTO No. 1, "La Traviata," will be published shortly in connection with the performance of this opera on April 16th. Copies can be obtained from "The Radio Times" office (Savoy Hill, London, W.C.2) on application, accompanied by 1d. stamp to cover postage.

Applications for advertisement rates in this publication can be obtained from H. A. Hannay, 53, Victoria Street, London, S.W.1.

B.B.C. Spring Concerts

Chamber Music at Chelsea.

THE B.B.C. has arranged to give in the New Chenil Galleries, Chelsea, a series of six Chamber Music concerts after Easter on the following dates: April 12th, 26th, May 3rd, 17th, 31st, and June 14th; on each occasion at 8.30 p.m.

They will be relayed by wireless as well as being open to the public.

The object of the series is two-fold. The B.B.C. has always endeavoured to provide opportunities for the performance of new or unfamiliar works of merit. The programmes of these concerts will include a number of interesting new works by British composers, including Vaughan-Williams, John Ireland, John Foulds, Eric Fogg, Lennox Berkeley, Patrick Hadley, and H. E. Randerson. In addition, two important works by present-day Continental composers will be heard for the first time in this country, namely, Louis Gruenberg's "Daniel Jazz" (Op. 21), as given at the Venice Festival with Steuart Wilson in 1925, and the Concerto Grosso for Piano and Strings by Ernest Bloch. The much-discussed "Sonata Vocalise," by Medtner, will be included, and Pergolesi's beautiful Stabat Mater, written for soprano, contralto, ladies' chorus, and small orchestra.

The artists include the Virtuoso String Quartet, Mr. Anthony Bernard and his London Chamber Orchestra, the Chenil Chamber Orchestra under Mr. John Barbirolli, Mrs. Anne Thursfield, Miss Vivienne Chatterton, Miss Dorothy Helmrich, Mr. Dale Smith, Mr. Steuart Wilson, Mr. Tom Goodey, Mr. Arthur Catterall, Mr. John Wills, the Music Society String Quartet, Mr. Leon Goossens, and the Æolian Players.

The Performers' Point of View.

Another purpose which we have in view in relaying the series is to take advantage of the admirable acoustic properties of the Chenil Galleries. The concerts will thus have a technical as well as a musical interest. From the performers' point of view, the advantage of singing or playing to a visible audience is one which it would not be easy to over-estimate.

It is hoped that music-loving listeners able to attend these concerts at the Chenil Galleries will give them their warmest support, and that those unable to attend will find the series of broadcasts of more than usual interest. A full prospectus of the concerts will be available in a few days for applicants who write to the Editor, The Radio Times, 2, Savoy Hill, W.C.2, marking their envelopes "Chenil Galleries Concerts," or call in person at the New Chenil Galleries, Chelsea.

Tickets for either the series or single concerts will be available shortly at the Box Office, New Chenil Galleries, by the Town Hall, Chelsea, and seats may be booked either by telephone or letter.

The series season ticket costs £2 8s., including Tax, and single reserved seats 8s. 6d.; while, as accommodation admits, unreserved tickets will be available for the concerts on the evening of performance at 3s. 6d., including Tax.

The attention of listeners is called to a talk on "Budgets," which, as will be seen from the programme pages in this issue of The Radio Times, is to be given at 10.10 p.m. on April 1st by the Rt. Hon. William Graham, M.P., who was Financial Secretary to the Treasury during the Labour Government's term of office. The talk, which will be broadcast from all stations, should be of particular interest in view of the fact that Mr. Winston Churchill will be presenting next year's Budget to Parliament within a few days of the talk.

DUETS for two pianos are not heard often nowadays, so a little time has been set aside for such an item in the Dundee local programme, when Messrs. David Nelson and H. Follett Walker, of Perth, are visiting that station on April 7th. Mr. Nelson has frequently played for Mr. Plunket Greene.

PEOPLE YOU WILL HEAR THIS WEEK.

[Vaughan & Freeman.
Miss KATHLEEN LAFLA (Mezzo-Soprano) will sing songs by Arnold Bax at London on Thursday, April 1st.

[John Hill.
Signor EMILIO COLOMBO (Solo Violin) will be heard by London and Daventry listeners on Sunday, March 28th.

[Maurice Beck & Macgregor.
Miss GWLADYS NAISH (Soprano) will broadcast from Manchester, Birmingham and Cardiff this week.

[Vaughan & Freeman.
Mr. ARNOLD BAX, the noted Composer, will accompany some of his own songs at London on Thursday, April 1st.

[Elliot & Fry.
Mr. CONAL O'RIORDAN will give a reading from John Galsworthy at London on Sunday, March 28th.

[Elliot & Fry.
Mr. DAN ROLYAT, the popular Comedian, will broadcast from London on Thursday, April 1st.

[Frost.
Miss MAUDIE VERA will be heard in "Listening Time" by Belfast, Manchester, and Bournemouth listeners on Saturday, April 3rd.

[Maul & Fox.
Mr. J. C. SQUIRE will talk on "Poetry in Songs," from London and Daventry on Wednesday, March 31st.

[Claude Harris.
Mr. JOHN COATES, the famous Tenor, will sing at London on Sunday, March 28th (S.B. to other Stations).

Mr. R. A. ROBERTS, the well-known Actor, will be heard in his sketch, "Dick Turpin," from London and other Stations on Saturday, April 3rd.

London's Future Events.

Mr. Lloyd George to Broadcast.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE will be heard by listeners when he speaks at the tenth Annual Dinner of the London Head Teachers, on April 7th. Part of the proceedings of this function will be broadcast from London and other stations. Mr. Lloyd George is no stranger to the microphone, having made some extensive use of it and a number of loud speakers during a tour of the constituencies prior to the last General Election. It is certain, however, that his audience on April 7th will be the largest in his long and wonderful career.

"Wireless Willie."

It is hoped to arrange for a special Music Hall programme for London and Daventry listeners at 9 p.m. on Thursday, April 22nd, with "Wireless Willie" (Mr. Willie Rouse). Listeners will remember his many previous successes as Chairman at Variety Programmes.

"Bluebeard."

Excerpts from Offenbach's opera Bluebeard are to be included in the London programme on Wednesday, April 21st. This composition is in three acts and was written in 1866.

"The Influence of the Press."

Dame Henrietta Barnett, D.B.E., and Lord Burnham, Chairman of the Empire Press Union, will discuss "The Influence of the Press" at the London Studio on April 20th. The discussion, which will also be broadcast from other stations, is timed to begin at 7.40 p.m.

A Popular Feature.

After Easter, M. Stéphan will continue his weekly French readings on Tuesday evenings, but in order that this popular feature can be sent out to all stations, the time has been altered from 7.40 to 7.10 p.m. M. Stéphan will continue with L'Étui de Nacre until its conclusion, and afterwards take up Alphonse Daudet's Lettres de Mon Moulin, which can be obtained in the Nelson Edition, at 2s. Listeners will be notified the date when this letter feature will begin.

"The Blue Kitten."

Excerpts from The Blue Kitten, now being performed at the Gaiety Theatre, which it was found impossible to broadcast on February 12th, as originally arranged, will now be transmitted through London and other stations on St. George's Day, April 23rd.

On the same day, which is also the anniversary of Shakespeare's birthday, some special features have been arranged, details of which have already been given in The Radio Times. In addition, an appeal will be made on behalf of the funds of St. George's Hospital, Hyde Park Corner.

Miss Yvonne Arnaud.

The well-known musical comedy actress, Miss Yvonne Arnaud, will contribute harpsichord and pianoforte items as well as monologues to the programme from London, Daventry, and other stations on Sunday afternoon, April 11th.

Miss Ena Grossmith and the "Beans."

The "Beans" Concert Party, which gave its first performance from the London Studio to all stations on Wednesday, March 10th, will again be heard by listeners to the High-Power Station on Tuesday, April 13th, when, as before, it will be under the direction of Miss Ena Grossmith.

Noted Conductors.

A special symphony concert, relayed from the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth, will constitute the main part of the London and Bournemouth programmes on Thursday, April 8th. Sir Dan Godfrey will, as usual, conduct, but he will share the duties with Dame Ethel Smyth and Dr. Brewer, organist of Gloucester Cathedral, who will be in charge of the orchestra while works by these composers are being performed.

Bugbears in Broadcasting.

Wordy Traps to Catch Announcers.

"I HAVE to thank the British Broadcasting Company for many things," said a friend of mine, recently; "but chiefly do I thank the Announcers for having given me the English pronunciation of the names of the many German, French, Italian, and other Continental composers, and also the equivalent English rendering of the titles of their compositions."

His words, probably, will be echoed by many other listeners.

The paean of praise, indeed, might be supplemented to include all foreign words, and even all proper names, for they are the bugbears of our lives, and undoubtedly the Announcers do give us something to go on and a supposed authority to quote if we are questioned. It's so convenient and easy to say: "Wrong, am I? Well, that's how they say it on the wireless!"

A Source of Vexation.

Whether Announcers are always right, is another matter. They may even disagree among themselves, or, worse still, prove inconsistent individually, as did an Announcer at "2LO" recently, when after speaking of St. Moritz as "Sanmorreece," he went on to speak about Paris as "Paris" and not "Paree."

Foreign names, unfortunately, are a source of vexation to even the best educated, so perhaps we ought to be lenient with those who upset our theories as to how certain foreign names and words are pronounced.

But are we always prepared to forgive those who tread on our corns in the matter of not giving correct names in England?

Our personal names, we know, are very confusing. "You take a name like Cholmondeley," grumbled an American who was mixing that name up with Marjoribanks, "and you pronounce it Marshbanks, and Marshbanks you call Chumley!"

Of course, Announcers do not offend in this manner, but I am afraid they do make slips occasionally when it comes to mentioning towns like Kirkcubright, which everybody in the know calls "Kikobri," and Almondesbury, which in the vernacular is "Amesbury."

Occasionally, an Announcer will be able to descend to ponderous humour in giving us the name of a town in its local parlance, but often listeners are unaware that their town is being mentioned because the Announcer has pronounced the name in a manner totally unknown to its people. Consequently, maledictions upon that Announcer's head when the calamity is discovered!

The list of traps is well-nigh endless. Everybody knows that "Cizzester," means Cirencester, but only a few knowledgeable folk know about "Balsbry" for Baltonsborough, "Feriton" for Fiddington, "Arrerslee" for Alderwasley, "Stan'ell" for Whatstandwell, "Posset" for Portishead, "Toosy" for St. Osyth, "Pomfret" for Pontefract, and "Chimston" for Chelmondiston.

We may, perhaps conveniently, leave out all other Scottish and Irish names. I imagine, however, that we should all feel a deep debt of gratitude to the Announcer of the Cardiff Station if he would once kindly oblige us with the correct pronunciation of that dear old Welsh place name of Llanfairpwngyllgogerychndrobwllantysiliogogeh!

If Cardiff would only oblige, this should fill their programme for one evening at least!

LEONARD TRAVERS.

The Broadcast Pulpit.

The Secret of Efficiency.

NO man can do his work really well unless his heart is in it; and for a man to put his heart into it he must enjoy it; and to enjoy it, he must feel that it is congenial; that is to say, the three essential elements of successful service are fitness, enjoyment and enthusiasm. God has a work for all that is in harmony with the best powers of each, which, therefore, we can do with all our might.

There is, no doubt, an element of truth in George Eliot's words, "Many a good piece of work is done with a sad heart"; but as a general rule, it will be found that nothing is more unfavourable to efficient or successful work than despondency or sadness. A joyless workman is seldom a good workman; he does not work vigorously; he has no pleasure in his work and, consequently, he is very likely to tire of it. Joy is the source of strength, gladness is the secret of efficiency; light-heartedness makes work easy.—The Rev. C. O. Rockett, Bournemouth.

"Earth's Crammed with Heaven."

MEMORY ministers to faith as it unveils the past, and it is a pity that we so often forget to avail ourselves of its services. But it cannot strengthen faith in the hearts of men unless they know that God is the God of things that are, as well as of the things that once were. The illusion that heaven is nearer earth at the horizon than it is immediately overhead has its counterpart in the curious conceit, common enough among the devout, that God was nearer man in the past and will be again in the future than He is at the present.

If one tells them that "earth's crammed with heaven, and every common bush afire with God," their reply is, "That's poetry and not to be taken seriously." Happily for them and for their fellow-sojourners on earth, they are mistaken; and all who are in trouble or depressed can cast themselves on a present God.—The Rev. W. F. Riddell, Manchester.

Where Does the Church Come In?

IT is fashionable to run down the Church; but I remember that there is not a single movement for the uplift of life which did not get its original heart-beat from Christianity. Men may not believe this because they do not read history, or because they do not want to believe it; but that does not alter the fact.

Sometimes men are arrested by the nobility of life of those who are beyond the walls of the Church, and they say, What do you want a Church for when you can get that sort of thing without it? Suppose you are sitting in a room on a cold winter's day with a nice fire blazing and someone were to say, "This room is very warm; what do you want a fire for?" we should smile at the absurdity of it; we should know that the fire is responsible for the warmth of the room. So is the fire of the Church responsible for the warmth of noble service outside her own hearth.

Some of us may be rather uncertain in our attachment to the Church, not agreeing with all she says and does. That is no ground for deserting her.—The Rev. Canon J. Trevor Lewis, Truro.

The Medicine of Merriment.

A MERRY heart is a good medicine. Robert Louis Stevenson was right when he said: "To be happy is the first step to being pious." We need courage to let ourselves go, to give expression to the mighty gladness that often stirs our hearts. We need to add another virtue to the grand old virtues of faith, hope and love, the virtue of joy.

Joy is the weapon with which to face the difficulties of life, to win its battles and to conquer the world. Every doctor will tell you that there is medicinal value in cheerfulness; a merry heart will do more for you than a gallon of doctor's physic. Our cheerfulness not only brings good to ourselves, but it has a wonderful influence upon everybody we meet.—The Rev. George H. McNeal, London.

What I Think of the Report.

By GEORGE BERNARD SHAW.

In response to our invitation, Mr. Shaw has sent us a characteristic comment on the Report of the Broadcasting Committee. Though we may not agree with Mr. Shaw's point of view, we are sure that our readers will enjoy, as we have, this pungent and stimulating criticism from one of the most distinguished members of the B.B.C.'s radio audience.

THE Report is a very nice report. Its uninterrupted flow of amiable obscurities, its hopes for the best, its cheerful solutions of difficulties by referring them to hypothetical ideal Englishmen completely isolated from all practical interests, and its delicate reticences with regard to all the most obvious unpleasantnesses, make it very agreeable reading indeed. One feels that England is safe whilst she can produce such reports, and that persons of less fortunate nationalities would have made a comparative mess of the business.

Still, there is the definite proposal to substitute a public department for a controlled company. The decisive reason the Committee gives for this change is that it thinks that profiteering in broadcasting should be eliminated. Unfortunately, as it did not seek the advice of a competent economist, its proposal simply substitutes unlimited for limited profiteering. The existing company is limited to a dividend of 7½ per cent., which, in view of the novelty of the enterprise and the present state of the money market, is very reasonable. Under the Commission scheme, the surplus is to be retained by the State (p. 8, No. 3). That is to say, the Postmaster-General will hand it over to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who will cover himself with glory by using it to reduce the Super-tax, thereby putting it straight into the pockets of the arch-profiteers of the whole country.

I note that the list of witnesses does not include a single representative of my own profession. This is rather amusing. In America, the business of play writing is rapidly approaching a point at which the playwright will no longer deal with the theatrical manager, but will issue his licences direct to a Film Corporation, with clauses obliging the Corporation to provide for the necessary exploitation, on the stage as well as on the screen. In England it is equally clear that the national broadcasting organ, whatever form it may take, will not only employ composers and writers of invisible entertainments of all sorts, as the Astronomer Royal employs mathematicians, but that it will take over so much of the present music publishing and concert giving businesses, that most of them will survive only as agents of the B.B.C. Of these glaring prospects the Committee has succeeded in preserving a bland unconsciousness.

Mr. GEORGE BERNARD SHAW.

I note, further, that neither the Speaker of the House of Commons nor any of his staff were examined with a view to applying the very useful code which we call the order of public meeting to the public debates, which must inevitably enter largely into broadcasting. The Committee merely remarks insinuatingly that it thinks that a moderate amount of controversial matter might be admitted. It overlooks the fact that outside bare news and statistics obtainable from Whitaker's Almanack and other works of reference, nothing that is uncontroversial is of the slightest interest. As a listener, I often hear gentlemen, professing to be scientific, broadcasting the most staggeringly questionable statements without a word of remonstrance.

Finally, no lawyer has been examined as to the possibility of applying the rules of evidence to statements broadcast as matters of fact, or the law of libel to statements concerning persons. If newspapers libel me, as they very commonly do with the most cheerful impudence and the most flattering reliance on my forbearance, I have my legal remedy against author, publisher, and printer. If the proposed Broadcasting Commission libels me, and the worm at last turns, am I to be told by the Postmaster-General that the King can do no wrong?

However, as the Committee says, let us hope for the best.—G. BERNARD SHAW.

Listeners' Letters.

Jazz—For and Against.

[Listeners are reminded that we do not consider anonymous letters for publication. Preference is given to letters which combine interest with brevity. The Editorial address is 2, Savoy Hill, Strand, London, W.C.2.]

The Popularity of Jazz.

EVERY day, thousands of people dance to syncopated music, all the important hotels have their dance bands, and if a dance band appears at any public performance, it is sure of a good reception. There is no doubt that hundreds of musicians would not be earning a living to-day if it were not for the attraction this type of music has for the masses.

The condemnation of syncopated music has been going on for at least ten years, but its popularity shows no signs of abating—on the contrary. I do not grudge the "high-brow" his music, but I think he should be more tolerant of the "low-brows," who surely are entitled to their share in your programmes of the music which pleases them, without having to listen to this constant depreciation of it.—O. E. BRENNER, 29, Compton Road, Addiscombe, Surrey.

As only one humble listener in a provincial town of relatively small dimensions, I could undertake to name at least thirty listeners that I know of whose views coincide with my own, and our plea is: not so much Jazz! If it must be given, in response to the clamour of the younger generation, either start it after, say, 11 p.m., or do not make it S.B. Give us at least an alternative! We are too old to dance, and the everlasting strumming of a dance band, however good it may be for its particular purpose, is not music in the true sense of the word, and it is anathema to us after a long day's mental and physical work.—H. HOW, Woodbridge Road, Guildford.

Foreign Language Teaching.

I MUCH enjoy M. Stéphan's French Readings and would like to know if it would be possible, now that the war is over and peace at last seems to be nearly an accomplished fact, for us to have German Readings on the same lines?—B. A. R., London, N.W.8.

I SHOULD like to point out (before it is lost sight of) that the wireless was primarily intended as an entertainment. Surely, if one wishes to study languages, or any other subject, there are ample facilities provided in this country without imposing these subjects on the ninety-nine per cent. of listeners who want programmes of music and entertainment.—JOHN HARWOOD, Grange Avenue, Stretford, Manchester.

PLEASE let us have Spanish talks, not only through Daventry, but through London. My reason for this appeal is that hundreds of persons interested, commercially and otherwise, in Spanish are not in possession of a wireless set tuned to cover Daventry, whereas all, including crystal-set owners, would have the pleasure and privilege of listening to Spanish talks coming via London, through their nearest relay station.

As foreign correspondent for a firm with an important and ever-growing trade with Latin America, it would afford me much pleasure to listen to that important and beautiful language, Spanish.—LINGUIST No. 2, Hull.

LIKE a recent correspondent, I should greatly appreciate a weekly, or even fortnightly, Spanish talk. I am one of a class of about twenty-eight boys who are taking Spanish in the General School Examination in June. There are schoolboys all over the country who are doing the same thing, and a few Spanish talks from Daventry would be of great value and would be much appreciated.—ESPANOL, Walthamstow, E.17.

Organ Music by Radio.

IN a recent issue of The Radio Times it was stated that the pedal notes of the organ are transmitted as effectively as the other notes. I should like to know the opinion of listeners who are organists as to whether this is correct or not. On my set (four valve), with which I operate a loud speaker, the 16 and 32ft. pedal tone is missing, reproduction being in every other way satisfactory.—F. T. STOUT, 17, North Parade, Bootham, York.

I CANNOT agree with your correspondent who complains of the transmissions of organ solos. Here on a four-valve set it is quite excellent.—GEOFFREY N. PARSONS, Manor House, Froyle, Alton.

The Children's Corner.

Sir Harry and Lady Lauder.

RECRUITS to the Radio Circle at Manchester include Sir Harry and Lady Lauder, who are, of course, unofficial uncle and aunt to all the kiddies on both sides of the Tweed.

The Aunts and Uncles at Manchester thank the kiddies very, very much for the magnificent response to their request for cigarette cards to give to the hospitals. Thousands and thousands have come in from all parts of the kingdom, and our room is now full to overflowing, so please don't send any more at present.

Glasgow's New Uncle.

On a recent Monday afternoon, a mysterious individual turned up at the Children's Corner in Glasgow, causing considerable excitement among the various Aunts and Uncles, not to speak of a number of kiddies who were assembled in the Studio at the time. Whispered questioning as to the stranger's identity might have been observed, but wonderment turned to downright consternation when the newcomer stepped gaily up to the microphone and slapped Uncle Alec on the back.

An indignant chorus of voices demanded a full explanation from the intruder on pain of instant expulsion from the Studio. Pulling himself together with quiet dignity, and transfixing his inquirers with a stare of mingled surprise and admiration, the stranger replied: "I am your new Uncle, don't you know me?" The scene that followed baffles description. The new arrival (whose name, by the way, was afterwards ascertained to be Uncle Leslie) was surrounded by dozens of youngsters who, in their efforts to welcome him, pulled his coat nearly off, ruffled his hair, ruined his collar and tie, and eventually nearly smothered him in their ardour to make him feel quite at home. What a welcome!

A Successful Competition.

As many West Country listeners know, the Musical Consequences Competition held by the Aunts and Uncles at the Plymouth Studio was a tremendous success. The efforts of the prize-winners were remarkably successful and ran each other very close, and even those who failed were most ingenious. Many requests have been received for another similar competition and next time there will probably be no mistakes at all. However, the Aunts and Uncles are going to think out some really difficult numbers next time.

Edinburgh's Request Day.

The Aunts and Uncles at the Edinburgh Station are being kept hard at work hunting out, rehearsing and performing the various musical items, poems, plays, etc., which are called for by members of the Radio Circle to be performed on Request Day. One small listener has invited Uncle Jim to play "Madame Butterfly as quickly as possible," and in view of this, Uncle Jim is taking a special course of lessons to enable him to use two fingers at a time instead of one, thereby more than doubling his speed of execution on the piano.

Auntie Molly has consulted all the musical encyclopedias without success in her efforts to trace the authorship of a ballad song which was popular when little Hephzibah's grandmother was a girl. Uncle Dick is proving himself a very versatile and accomplished performer on the ocarina, and his duets with Auntie Maymie, who is a highly skilled banjulelist, are likely to bring the Studio down when they are let loose on the ether in the near future. The Children's Trio are turning green with envy.

Perhaps the most striking item which has been performed on Request Day of late was the "Angel's Serenade," in which Uncle Dick performed the vocal and all the instrumental parts simultaneously with enormous success. The result had to be heard to be believed.

Stoke's Children's Choir.

The members of the Stoke-on-Trent Radio Circle Choir are as enthusiastic as ever! The red light had no sooner gone out the other day (after The Fairies' Quest) than Auntie Kate was mobbed by a request for "another Operetta." Many applications have been received from children who wish to join the Choir; but Auntie Kate must—very regretfully—refuse these: because she has ideas about the capacity of the Studio and the best results to be obtained from the Choir.

GIVING HER DOLLY A TREAT.

This little girl is so fond of listening that she cannot resist letting her dolly enjoy the Children's Corner.

Can You Write Stories?

The Liverpool Radio Circle Magazine, The Kiddies' Corner, price 2d., comes out on the first of every month and it has had so far an amazingly successful sale (proceeds to be devoted to the hospitals). It has reached its third appearance and is full of interesting little stories and articles by children from all towns. Kiddies who would like to contribute further stories, etc., should send them to the Editor, 85, Lord Street, Liverpool.

Musical Uncles.

All the Aberdeen Children's Cornerites are interested in the violin and cello solos that are played for them by Uncle Max, Uncle Andrew, Uncle Jim, and Uncle Alec. Each of the Uncles has his special favourites. Uncle Max gives us charming minuets from his favourite sonatas, Uncle Andrew plays, very often, his own arrangements for cello of favourite Scottish airs, and Uncle Jim some of the most famous cello solos.

The Souvenir Programme Booklet of "Kitesh"—a simply-written "Listeners' Guide" to the Opera, with musical notes and illustrations in colour and black-and-white—is now on sale. (Price 6d. or 7½d. post free.) Application should be made at once to the British Broadcasting Company, Ltd., 2, Savoy Hill, W.C.2, marking the envelope "Kitesh" Programme. The Opera is to be sung by Russians in Russian, but with this booklet before him, every listener will be able to follow from moment to moment the whole course of every incident in the plot. It will be equally valuable to those who intend to be present at Covent Garden and those who will listen at home.

LISZT'S "LES PRELUDES."

(BIRMINGHAM, SUNDAY.)

LISZT had great ideas as to the power of music to interpret a poem or a plot. He felt it necessary, in order to do that, to get away from the more or less conventional plan of a symphony, in separate, contrasted movements. In his "Symphonic Poems" he uses the large proportions of the symphony, adapting the form to suit the dramatic or poetic demands of his subject.

The basis of Les Préludes, the third of his series of symphonic poems, is taken from a work by Lamartine, the French poet and statesman, whose gentle muse is something akin to that of Wordsworth. Lamartine, in this extract, asks if life is anything else than "a series of Preludes to that unknown song of which Death sounds the first and solemn note." He pictures love as "the enchanted dawn of all life," and speaks of the tempests that shatter love's bliss and dispel its illusions. Then the wounded soul seeks a refuge in a pastoral life; but when the trumpet calls him to arms, he seeks the post of danger, to find in battle full consciousness of himself and his powers.

Liszt follows his "programme" quite closely, while keeping to the main lines of "Sonata" form. He makes one movement only of the work.

He uses the two main themes that we are accustomed to meet in a symphonic movement, but when he has "Exposed" and "Developed" them, he brings in an Episode—a Slow section—and then, when the delayed "Recapitulation" of the original material comes, its themes are still further developed.

His FIRST MAIN TUNE, heard at the beginning, is broken in upon by wind chords, hinting, perhaps, of the mysteries beyond life.

An apparently new melody is really the First Tune in one of those changed aspects the use of which allows the composer to do what the dramatist can do—show us the modifying influence of fate or circumstance on his characters.

A third form of the same Melody (Strings) is smooth and flowing.

The real SECOND MAIN TUNE (MUTED VIOLAS and HORNS, over arpeggios for Violin and Harp) has a hymn-tune-like character. This is the Love Motive.

The music works up to a climax, and then the "Development" suggests the storms of life, the First Tune being largely in evidence.

The Episode that precedes the return of the Main Themes depicts the pastoral peace to which the pilgrim retires. HORN and WOOD WIND have a gently-flowing subject here. (It combines later with the Second Main Tune.)

The last section represents the call to arms, and here the third form of the First Main Tune (the suave String melody) is transformed into a Quiet, martial Tune, that rings out on the Trumpets.

The Love Theme is worked in—perhaps to symbolize Love as the inspiring force of man, in war as in peace—and so the work ends, in a blaze of glory.

HAYDN'S "LONDON" SYMPHONY.

(CARDIFF, WEDNESDAY.)

Haydn was a great favourite in London. He came over, on the invitation of Salomon, a concert director, on two occasions, and each time contracted to compose and conduct six symphonies. That, perhaps, seems rather a large order, but Haydn worked so quickly and was so prolific that he had no difficulty in carrying out the agreement, and enjoying himself at the same time, attending Lord Mayor's Banquets, singing his songs to the Prince of Wales, paying country-house visits, and so on.

This "London" Symphony is one of his second "Salomon Set." In style and force it looks forward to Beethoven.

Programme Pieces.

I. Like so many Symphonies by Haydn, this opens with a Slow Introduction, which, most effectively, is in the minor key.

The Quick movement has for its FIRST MAIN TUNE (in the major key), a dapper, cheery theme, which Haydn apparently liked so well that he used it as the SECOND MAIN TUNE also—a very unusual thing to do.

II. The SLOW MOVEMENT is an Air with two Variations, one in the minor and the other in the major. The graceful ornamentation enhances the charm of the tune, as a costume perfectly suited in cut and colour enhances a young girl's beauty.

The Flute, near the end, has a specially gay time almost "on its own," for a few bars.

III. MINUET AND TRIO. A typical Haydn dance-movement. In the Minuet Haydn gets a neat effect by stressing unusually the third beat of his tune in the opening bars.

The TRIO is a capital contrast to the solidly-harmonized Minuet. OBOE and BASSOON, with VIOLINS supporting, share the tune, at first. We have a twelve-bar idea instead of the usual eight-bar theme. The Minuet is duly repeated after the Trio.

IV. The FINALE (Quick and Spirited) prances off in the VIOLINS with the FIRST MAIN TUNE, while Horns and Bass Strings have a pair of "pedal notes," like the drone of a shepherd's pipe. Here, then, is a recollection of the peasant music Haydn loved.

Listen for the Tune that the Second Violins play after the First Main Tune has been given out, and the Oboe at once takes up that Tune. This under-theme is actually the SECOND MAIN TUNE. It appears on top of the harmony very soon.

There are still two other ideas to be heard—the quiet passage, moving in notes of even length, that succeeds the Second Tune; and a Third Tune that winds up the "Exposition" part of the Movement. After the Development, in which all this matter is woven together most ingeniously, without putting a damper on the gaiety at all, the First Main Tune returns in a way that at that time (1792 or so) was quite unusual. It is not repeated exactly as at first (which was the custom) but comes in an octave higher, and is more fully orchestrated than before.

Mr. ALBERT COATES.

Mr. Coates will conduct "Kitesh" at Covent Garden, on Tuesday, March 30th.

Our Point of View.

A Challenge to Young Composers.

COMMITTEES may come and Committees may go, but broadcasting goes on for ever. Though the B.B.C., as we have known it during the past three years, is in the melting pot just now, it is clear that listeners need have no fear that the quality, vitality and interest of the programmes that will be offered during the coming months, until the new broadcasting authority takes over, will fall below the high standard that has been maintained in the past. The staff of the B.B.C. will carry on as usual, and we may be sure that there will be no slackening in the zeal, resourcefulness and good judgment that has characterized the management of British broadcasting from the beginning, and to which the Government Committee pay such a handsome tribute at the outset of their Report.

Indeed, the signs point to some notable developments in programme making in the near future. Readers of The Radio Times could not have failed to notice the significance of two striking announcements that appeared in last week's issue of this paper.

First, came the details of the first concert-performance in this country of Rimsky-Korsakov's great work, The Invisible City of Kitesh, which is to be simultaneously broadcast from all B.B.C. stations on Tuesday evening, March 30th. This event is unquestionably an achievement of the first importance, and music lovers everywhere are in debt to the B.B.C. for its courage and enterprise in undertaking this great task.

The other important announcement appearing in these pages last week, gave the details of a great competition which the B.B.C. is organizing for the benefit of the younger and lesser-known composers of British birth. Prizes amounting to £1,000 are to be given for original compositions in several classes, but more than that—and perhaps to be desired far more than a mere money prize—there is a promise of a first performance at a great Musical Festival to be held in London in the autumn of this year, a performance which will be broadcast throughout the British Isles. Yet more than that, too, is promised. Not only will the prize-winning works be heard by the vast radio audience, but through the co-operation of the Oxford University Press, the prize-winning works will be assured of a worthy publication under the best possible auspices. What more could a young composer desire—a substantial monetary reward, a worthy performance before a great audience and a guarantee of the immediate publication of his work? Here indeed is a chance for budding genius.

On this page we set forth a brief statement showing what the prizes will be given for. All those who intend to enter this competition, or who know of anyone who is likely to be interested, are cordially invited to write to the B.B.C. at 2, Savoy Hill, W.C.2, for a copy of the entry form, in which full terms and conditions are set forth.

There can be no question but that the B.B.C. in organizing the competition and in offering these rewards is giving a wonderful opportunity to younger British musicians. We appeal to all our readers to make this competition widely known. It is a challenge to the younger generation of musicians of British birth. Let us see what they can do. The lists are open. Who will bear away the palm?

FOR COMPOSERS OF BRITISH BIRTH.

It is proposed to hold in London in the autumn of this year a great Musical Festival under the auspices of the B.B.C. Prizes amounting to £1,000 will be awarded for original musical compositions by the younger and lesser-known composers of British birth. These works will be performed at the Festival and afterwards, it is hoped, take their place in regular broadcast and concert-hall repertory. Furthermore, the winning compositions will afterwards be published by the Oxford University Press. Thus, successful competitors will secure not only a worthy first performance before the vast radio audience, but also publication under the most favourable auspices. Entry forms giving full particulars as to rules and conditions may be obtained on application to the B.B.C., 2, Savoy Hill, London, W.C.2.

The Prizes Will Be Awarded For:

- (a) A work in Symphonic form—Symphony, Poem (in 3 or 4 movements), or a Symphonic Suite—lasting not less than 25 or more than 45 minutes ... Prize £300
- (b) A short work for Chorus and Orchestra (solo voices optional), lasting not less than 20 or more than 45 minutes ... Prize £250
- (c) A Symphonic Poem or a work in Overture form (one movement), lasting from 10 to 20 minutes ... Prize £150
- (d) A poem for Voice and Orchestra (with or without words) lasting from 8 to 15 minutes ... Prize £150
- (e) A work for Military Band in one or more movements, suitable for performance by the ordinary Military Band ... Prize £100
- (f) A Song-Cycle for one or more voices with not less than 3 solo numbers... Prize £50

THE JUDGES.

Among the Judges will be Sir Hugh Allen, Mr. Albert Coates, Sir Edward Elgar, Mr. Hubert Foss, Sir Hamilton Harty, Mr. J. B. McEwen, Lieut. B. Walton O'Donnell, Mr. Percy Pitt, Sir Landon Ronald and Colonel Somerville.

LONDON NEWS.

THE central feature of the programme on Sunday afternoon is a song recital at 4.30 by Mr. John Coates, who has just returned from a most successful tour in the United States. This is his first broadcast, and almost his first public appearance in England since his return. It will be remembered that on the eve of his departure for the States last December he broadcast a farewell recital. One may say without fear of contradiction that John Coates is the greatest living British singer of set songs. He has attained to this position not only by his power of interpretation and strong dramatic sense, but also by many years of hard work which show in the perfection of his vocal technique.

At 5 p.m. an organ recital will be relayed from Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford, by Dr. John Henry Ley, one of the finest of our British organists. He began his musical career as a chorister of St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle. He passed on to Uppingham School, and thence as an exhibitioner to the Royal College of Music, London, where he studied under Sir Charles Stanford and others. He is soon to go as organist to Eton College.

Bach's Pass on Music.

Daventry will broadcast an entirely different programme this afternoon, beginning at 3.0 with the first half of the Passion according to St. Matthew, by Bach, relayed from the annual performance at York Minster, under the direction of Dr. Edward Bairstow. This work was first produced in 1729, and it was here that Bach first introduced the beautiful and effective contrast between the quotation of our Lord's words and those of the Apostles, or other personages portrayed, by accompanying them on the orchestra, instead of with the continuo or keyboard instrument. The Passion falls into two halves, and the first of these will be broadcast.

A Stanford song recital, in which Mr. Plunket Greene will be assisted by Miss Sybil Eaton (solo violin) will be given at 8.20 p.m. on Monday. Singers have long realised that Sir Charles Stanford was one of the greatest song writers that England has known since the days of Purcell and the Elizabethans. Nevertheless, the general public has been slow to recognize Stanford's genius and it is not until now, two years after his death, that one can see the growth of universal admiration for his work. It is peculiarly appropriate that a recital of his songs should be given by Mr. Plunket Greene, to whom many of the songs were dedicated.

A Famous Band.

The Kneller Hall Band will provide a programme later in the evening. The Kneller Hall, Twickenham, is the main military school of music, and it is through this training school that the Army's future bandmasters must pass. All the pupils play several instruments, specialising in one particular one, and attached to the school there is a finely rehearsed military band consisting of the best pupils. This band has broadcast on several previous occasions, but recently has increased its scope considerably by adding what is virtually a form of symphonic syncopated orchestra, so that its programmes, built on popular lines, are partly of serious music played in the normal way and partly of music of the lighter kind.

At 9.30 p.m. on Wednesday listeners will hear a half-hour feature, entitled "Poetry in Song," which will be devoted to the poetry of Walter De La Mare. Much of Mr. De La Mare's work is concerned with that fairyland which, for many of us, exists beyond the confines of material things. His poetry will always have a special appeal to the young of all ages, and is full of a delightful whimsicality, characteristically English.

Mr. J. C. Squire, the poet, will read some of his lyrics beginning with—"When music sounds, gone is the Earth I know. And all her lovely things e'en lovelier grow," and Mr. Dale Smith (baritone) will sing settings of De La Mare's poems by various modern composers, including a group of little children's songs, by Victor Hely Hutchinson, one of the official accompanists at the London Station.

The Good Friday broadcast will begin at 4 p.m. with Evensong relayed from Canterbury Cathedral. From 5.0 to 7.0 will be given a programme of Orchestral Chamber Music, with piano solos and soprano songs.

Chenil Chamber Orchestra.

Music lovers will welcome the first appearance in wireless programmes of that able body of chamber music players, the Chenil Chamber Orchestra, with their young and talented conductor, Mr. John Barbirolli. This orchestra consists of thirteen players. Mr. Rae Robertson, the pianist, will take part in this programme, and will play a Concerto in F Minor for piano and stringed orchestra by Bach, as well as a number of delightful old English piano solos.

Mr. John Barbirolli has been known to listeners a long time as a cellist, both for his work with the Kutcher Quartet in the earlier days and with the Music Society String Quartet. He played "The Swan" for Pavlova on her reappearance at Drury Lane after the War, and has specialised in Sonata playing with Miss Ethel Bartlett.

From 5.0 to 7.0 on Saturday afternoon a Thé Dansant will be given by Jack Payne's Hotel Cecil Dance Band and the London Radio Dance Band, directed by Mr. Sidney Firman.

At 8.0 Miss Elsie Carlisle will sing some syncopated songs accompanied by Mr. Ronald Munro.

On Saturday at 8.30 p.m. the world famous protean actor, Mr. R. A. Roberts, will give an adaption by himself of his sketch on the famous highwayman, Dick Turpin. This will be a broadcast version of the same play in which Mr. Roberts has thrilled audiences so many hundreds of times, playing every part himself with only seconds for complete changes.

it was his custom to publish explanatory articles dealing with musical novelties and thus whetting the public interest in forthcoming works. Many of Liszt's essays are numbered among the classics of musical criticism, and the beginning which he gave to a valuable practice did a great deal to establish, for example, the fame of Wagner and his Lohengrin.

Birmingham's programme will conclude somewhat earlier than usual, since at 9.30 p.m. the ordinary 10.0
news bulletin will be given, followed at 9.55 by the relay of the boxing match which had to be postponed on February 22nd owing to the illness of one of the protagonists.

Orchestral Items.

The evening programme on Wednesday will consist mainly of orchestral items. At 8.0, when the first portion begins, there will be given the Rosamund Overture of Schubert and the Nutcracker Suite of Tchaikovsky, while Miss Margaret Lewys (contralto) will contribute two groups of songs, the first popular numbers, and the second appertaining to the more classical order. Several attractive compositions are to be found in the second portion of the programme. There will be the Slavonic Dances of Dvorak, who was among the first to define Hungary's place in music for posterity, and also the famous Peer Gynt suite of Grieg. Two groups of items will be given by M.
Pitsch, the well-known solo cellist.

Masefield's "Good Friday."

From 7.0 to 9.0 p.m. on Good Friday the programme will be relayed from London, and at 9.15 there will be a special Easter attraction in the broadcasting of John Masefield's play in verse, Good Friday. The performance will be given by the Birmingham Community Players, who are never named, but who are doing a valuable work for the drama.

BIRMINGHAM NEWS.

Liszt.
IT is so seldom that Liszt's works provide a considerable part of a broadcast programme, that the arrangements for Sunday afternoon possess a certain air of novelty. Liszt probably originated the idea of the noon, March 28th, when listeners will hear an organ recital by Mr. Leonard A. Marsh, Mus. Bac., F.R.C.O., and a concert. Among items particularly worthy of note are Mendelssohn's Sonata No. 6 for organ, the Third Movement from Cesar Franck's Violin Sonata, to be played by Miss Aileen St. George, and the organ solo by Saint-Saens, Fantasia in E Flat. Mr. Marsh is a blind organist, and has charge of the musical section of the Brighton Boys (Blind) Academy. The evening concert on Sunday will be characteristic of light symphony. Miss Beatrice Eveline, who will play cello solos with orchestra, had a distinguished career at the Royal Academy of Music and has appeared at London promenade and ballad concerts. She toured with Miss Carrie Tubb and Miss Margaret Cooper, and during the war, joined Miss Lena Ashwell's concert party in France and Malta. Listeners will look forward to the transmission of The Sacred City of Kitesh on Tuesday evening, which is being relayed. Full details of this are contained elsewhere in The Radio Times.

PLYMOUTH NEWS.
TWO interesting talks have been arranged for Plymouth listeners on Tuesday, March 30th, when, in the afternoon, Mr. J. Leighton Fouracre, F.R.I.B.A., will give a paper on English Cabinet Makers of the 18th Century. Later, Mr. H. J. Draper will give his "Impressions of Sweden." The feature from 6.0 to 6.30 p.m. on March 31st, will be contributed by Miss Amy Bath (soprano), in half-an-hour with Feathered Friends. The second of a new series of French talks will also be given by Monsieur A. Briais on the same evening. The local concert on Wednesday will include solos, duets, and quartets. Mr. Harold Kimberley (baritone), well known to London listeners, is coming to the West Country for the occasion, and other artists will include Miss Samina Farish (soprano), who was much appreciated in her previous broadcast from this Station, Miss Gladys Harris (contralto), and Mr. Stanley Hosking (tenor), and the Lyric Male Voice Quartet are appearing at the request of a large number of listeners.

CARDIFF NEWS.

"HALCYON Memories," the title of the programme from Cardiff on Monday, March 29th, offers an evening of pleasant recollections of popular music. Although not a Request Programme, many favourites will be found amongst the items. The programme is followed by the broadcast of part of a boxing contest at the National Sporting Club, suggesting the thought that "Halcyon Memories" might be a welcome prospect for the principals.

A Gypsy programme on Thursday, April 1st, strikes a new note. Suggested by the quotation from Wordsworth shown at the head of the programme, the performance will attempt to portray something of the spirit and atmosphere of a gypsy encampment at night, the sounds of Nature forming a background to the crackling of the camp fire. A fiddle, or maybe a harp if Welsh gypsies are there, tells a tale in the dale—a sound unmusical and melancholy, for gypsy music is of the strangest form. Such is the scene that will serve as a mind picture for listeners. The performance would be lacking if it contained no reference to George Borrow, the friend of the gypsies. The inclusion of a reading from "The Romany Rye" will also be of interest. The programme will give listeners an intimate glimpse of gypsies—a unique people, whose future is as vague as their past, wanderers as restless as the sea.

Pass on Side Music.

The outstanding musical event of the week is undoubtedly the concert of Passiontide Music given by the Cardiff Station and the Cardiff Musical Society on Good Friday, in the Park Hall, Cardiff. With the exception of Wagner's "Good Friday Music" from Parsifal, the entire programme is devoted to the works of Brahms, and the opportunity will be taken to give some important items which are not often performed. Brahms' Requiem is included, and although not such a difficult work as the Triumphlied, which has already been performed at Cardiff, it is a more popular work. Other items include the Tragic Overture, one of the finest ever written and suggesting Greek tragedy rather than tragedy as we know it to-day, and the Alto Rhapsody for Male Voice Choir and Orchestra, in which Miss Rispah Goodacre will be heard. Other artists include Miss Florence Holding (soprano) and Mr. Herbert Heyner, whose fame as a baritone is widely recognized.

Interest in radio drama is strong amongst Cardiff listeners, and an effort to assist development competitions for playwrights and radio actors (including amateur dramatic societies) is shortly to be launched. Playwrights are invited to submit suitable work for microphone performances.

MANCHESTER NEWS.

The Tuesday Midday Society.

CONTINUING their relays of the popular Manchester weekly feature, a lunch-time concert for city men, the Manchester Station is transmitting a special programme given at the Houldsworth Hall, Manchester, by the famous Brodsky Quartet on Tuesday. Their leader, Dr. Adolph Brodsky, Principal of the Royal Manchester College of Music, has fathered the early struggles of many young musicians and is a well-known figure to all music-lovers.

Some thirty years ago Dr. Brodsky was invited by Sir Charles Hallé to come to the Manchester College of Music as professor of violin and, on the death of Sir Charles, he became principal of the College, which position he still occupies.

This was started during the war, about ten years ago, and its concerts became so popular a feature that they were continued after the Armistice. The society is now approaching its five hundredth concert, which will take place on June 1st.

The originator of the idea of mid-day concerts was Mr. Sidney H. Nicholson, the then organist of the Manchester Cathedral, but on his appointment as organist at Westminster Abbey, he was succeeded by Mr. William Eller. Upon the retirement of Mr. Eller, Mr. Edward Isaacs became the director, and he has helped to bring many world-famous artists and quartets within reach of the average business man.

NEWCASTLE PROGRAMMES.

Week Beginning
March 28th.

NEWCASTLE NEWS.

JOHN IRELAND is one of the most distinguished of our British composers of to-day. He was born in Bowden, Cheshire, in 1879. He is to broadcast from Newcastle on Monday night, March 29th, when the Station will, from 8.30 to 9.30, feature a programme of his works. Miss Daisy Kennedy, the famous violinist, will also take part in this programme. At 8.30, Mr. Ireland will play two of his own entirely new piano pieces. Then, the next item will be his Second Violin Sonata, played by Miss Daisy Kennedy, who will be accompanied by the composer.

Mr. Albert Sammons and Mr. William Murdoch gave the first performance of this Second Violin Sonata, which had the immediate effect of establishing Ireland's reputation. The sequel to this was remarkable for the times in which it occurred. Whereas, formerly violinists had fought shy of English works, most of them now felt it incumbent upon them to play this Sonata, and even the conviction of publishers that sonatas were white elephants was shaken, for the first edition of this was sold out before it left the press.

Following upon this Sonata, Mr. Kenneth Ellis (Bass) will sing three songs which are settings to three of John Masefield's poems. The third of these items is set to the following of Masefield's words:—

"I must go down to the seas again,
To the lonely sea and the sky,
And all I ask is a tall ship, and a Star to steer her by."

Praise from Kubelik.

At 10.30, Miss Daisy Kennedy will give a violin recital. Her magical playing is always a great delight to hear. She was born at Burra-Burra (near Adelaide), of Scotch and Irish parents, and early won a scholarship at the Elder Conservatoire. Whilst there, she succeeded in getting Kubelik to hear her play, and he said that during the whole of the eight years in which he had toured the world, he had never come across such rare talent. Fired by his words, she travelled to Prague and called on Sevcik and asked for lessons. "Have you an appointment?" he enquired. "No!" "What will you do if I don't teach you?" "Go back to Australia at once!" However, on hearing her play, Sevcik was as enthusiastic as Kubelik had been, and soon, as a result of an open competition, she entered the famous Neisterschule, which is restricted to ten pupils. So rapid was her progress that the Austrian Government granted her six months' free tuition. First playing in London, in 1911, her career since then has been one of amazing brilliancy. She was one of the first of artists to broadcast. She confesses that she finds the work very heavy, the damping effect of the studio and the absence of vibration making her playing sound strange to her.

Mr. John Clinto (tenor), who will take part in this programme, studied under Signor Coli, Milan, and was engaged to sing principal tenor in Donizetti's La Favorita. His career was interrupted through the outbreak of war, and in 1915 he returned to England to enlist, and remained in the Royal Engineers until 1918. Mr. Clinto is well-known in London, where he has sung at the Chappell Ballad Concerts and in Opera.

EDINBURGH NEWS.

ON March 31st, 1732, was born Joseph Haydn, the father of the Symphony, as he has been called, and, to mark the anniversary, an hour of music devoted to his compositions will be broadcast from the Edinburgh Station on that day, 1926. Haydn's musical output was enormous, and, despite the fact that he had lived for 77 years, it is almost incredible that he wrote so much and so carefully. Actually, 125 symphonies stand to his name, 77 quartets and a host of other compositions for instruments of various sorts and combinations. In addition, he wrote a great mass of vocal works, the best known of which is The Creation, which ranks with the greatest oratorios ever composed. He visited England on several occasions, and was very popular in London and elsewhere. He received an honorary degree from the University of Oxford, and composed a special symphony entitled The Oxford which, unfortunately, proved too difficult for the players. The Edinburgh Station String Quartet will play the Emperor Quartet, which contains the famous tune now universally known as the Austrian National Anthem.

Variety of small and large knobs with both hands. A complacent smile is on his face, and from time to time he turns excitedly to a couple of friends who are sitting near him, also listening intently. The friends consist of a lady and gentleman, Mr. and Mrs. Fandango, who have been invited by Mr. X to hear what he can do in the way of "reaching out," and getting distant Stations, while the local Station, which we shall not name, is ON. GLASGOW NEWS.

LISTENERS who enjoyed the broadcast in January of the Highland play, Stepping Westward, by the Scottish National Players, will be interested to note they appear again on Monday night in a Lowland comedy entitled
The Woin' o't, by W. D. Cocker, and another programme worthy of their attention is the special one arranged for Thursday night.

The musical event of the week is the inclusion in one programme on Wednesday evening of Miss Daisy Kennedy, the famous violinist, and Professor Donald Francis Tovey, who,
it will be remembered, on his last visit to the Glasgow Station, played his own concerto with the Orchestra.
This time, he has arranged to play the Brahms D Minor Concerto, which is one not often heard. Miss Daisy Kennedy is to play the Scottish Fantasia, by Max Bruch. With regard to this particular Fantasia, the perfected Scot, jealous of the hallowed beauty of his native folk music, should forget that there is supposed to be anything Scottish about it, but it is a brilliant and eminently effective Fantasia. The Introduction, in E Flat Minor, begins with a series of big chords, played pianissimo by the orchestra; the solo violin enters with a recitative, in the same key, and alternations of these furnish the basis of the whole Introduction. It leads without break into the Adagio, in the tonic major; an orchestral tutti begins this also, and then the solo instrument announces the plaintive tune which is the principal subject of the movement. Played first on the lower strings, this melody has quite a characteristic Scottish note, but in the course of the movement it is apt to forget its origin and to wander a long way from home.

In the Allegro the key and the rhythm change with a vivacious dance-melody as foundation. It suggests a pentatonic tune which has accidentally co-opted the fourth of the scale into membership. The Andante, in F Minor common time, is typical of the melodoly which pervades so many of our national folk-songs. The melody which serves as principal subject is the most distinctively Scottish theme in the Fantasia, in spite of the fact that the Finale makes use of an actual Scots tune—"Scots wha hae." The composer has transformed it to suit his own ends, and gives us something very like a burlesque of our old national anthem—the "Scots Hymn of Hate," as Englishmen have been known to call it. The movement which he makes of it, however, is so brilliantly effective, and forms so robust and stirring a close to a piece which is throughout eminently melodious and attractive, that it is easy to condone the liberty which he has taken.

Let us close our eyes, lie back in our chairs, allow our minds to travel to the distant parts of Bonnie Scotland. We will leave the dusty roads to motor-cars and to those who have no imagination. In our flight we skim across green fields and waving corn, clear streams and drowsy woods. We allow ourselves to drift to a lovely village, clean, quiet, and restful in the sunshine. The people do not see us, but we see them moving about at their usual tasks. Surely everything must be pure, sweet, and without bitterness in this place at the Back of Beyond. Let us pass into a quaint old house, for here the village banker trans-acts business. An old man is in conversation with him. What say they?

ABERDEEN NEWS.

PROBABLY no organization has done more to foster the love of the old Scottish Psalm tunes than the Aberdeen and District Association of Precentors and Ex-Precentors, under its President, Mr. W. Milne Gibson. This body is not content merely to talk of the beauty of these tunes, but shows its enthusiasm by arranging recitals, thus giving the people of Aberdeen and district a chance of hearing them. In this way, the Association carries its ideals into practice. At the present moment, the tendency is to turn to orchestral music, and very often after so much of the latter, especially in its most modern form, it is a relief to go back to the simple tunes of our forefathers, with their quiet dignity, grandeur and depth.

Although the Precentors' Choir is in existence to keep alive traditional music, we are glad to see that it does not scorn the aid of modern science. Under its auspices, on Sunday night, March 28th, a well-trained choir, conducted by Mr. W. Milne Gibson, is to broadcast a recital of some of the old Scottish Psalm tunes. There will be two orchestral interludes of a suitable nature.

Handel's "Messiah."

The Aberdeen Choral Union is a flourishing body, as shown by the fact that it is to perform in the Music Hall, Aberdeen, The Messiah, Handel's most famous Oratorio. This will be relayed from the Aberdeen Station on Wednesday, March 31st. We look forward to a successful performance under the able baton of Mr. Irvine S. Cooper.

The Passing of the Years.

So crowded and bustling has modern life become that often we forget that the years are really passing. On Thursday night, the programme from the Aberdeen Station will try to depict in music this passing of years. Mr. John Van Zyl will be the vocalist.

BELFAST NEWS.

BELFAST Station offers an attractive programme of Concert
Music during the evening transmission on Monday, March 29th, when the soloists will be Mr. William Primrose (violin), and Mr. Rae Robertson (piano), both of whom are well-known on the concert platform and with radio listeners. The return of these artists to Belfast will be welcomed and each will be heard in a concert with orchestra, as well as in a group of solo pieces. They will also play on the following afternoon, Tuesday.

Mr. Kenneth Ellis, the vocalist on Wednesday, March 31st, has already established himself as a great favourite in Belfast, and his singing in The Messiah at the concerts of the Philharmonic Society is still fresh in the minds of local music lovers.

On Thursday, April 1st, from 8.0 to 10.0 p.m., listeners to this station will have another opportunity of hearing what is going on at other stations of the B.B.C.

A "Good Friday" Programme.

A fine programme has been arranged for Good Friday. At 8.0 p.m. the orchestra will open with the Egmont
Overture of Beethoven; then Bach's Cantata, "God's time is the best,"
will be given by contralto, tenor, and baritone soloists and by chorus and orchestra. At 8.30, the Belfast Radio Players present Good Friday, a play in verse by John Massfield. This work gives a dignified and restrained picture of the events that occurred in Jerusalem on the First Good Friday
as they might have been overheard by one standing in the courtyard outside the Roman Citadel, high up above Jerusalem, where Pontius Pilate dwelt as Roman Governor of Judea.
The programme will close with part of the Good Friday music from Wagner's Parsifal.

The reward of Victory

“VICTORY,” said Napoleon, “belongs to the most persevering.” Clement Ader in 1890 built a machine which successfully flew several hundred feet. But, discouraged by his lack of progress, he left the real conquest of the air to the brothers Wright thirteen years later.

It was Edison who sacrificed a fortune to achieve finally the miracle of the electric lamp. Graham Bell faced starvation and poverty to give the world the telephone. In fact, almost every important contribution to Science has been the result of sheer perseverance. It has been the dogged persistence of these pioneers which has won for them the crown of Victory and silenced for ever the tongues of the sceptics.

The same unconquerable spirit of determination was responsible for the evolution of the Cossor Valve. For years the R-type Valve—with its tubular anode and long slender filament had been accepted as the ultimate in valves. But a man with unusual vision sensed the wastefulness of this design. He realised that the efficiency of any valve depended upon the use of the all-important electron stream emitted by the heated filament. His experiments proved that in any valve with straight filament and tubular anode a considerable proportion of the electron stream escaped from each end of the anode. He knew that if he could but solve the problem of retaining the bulk of these electrons, an astonishing increase in sensitivity and volume would be inevitable.

Five years and a small fortune were spent upon the development of the unique electron retaining principles employed in the Cossor Valve. But even to the inexpert—to the man who knows little or nothing of the technique of Wireless —its masterly qualities are at once apparent. He appreciates that no other valve can give him such rare mellowness of tone, such extreme sensitiveness and such lasting satisfaction.

Gilbert Ltd. 4480.

Tungstone uses ONLY PURE LEAD for GRID and PASTE with Plates manufactured and pasted entirely by machinery, and this is the SECRET OF THE SUCCESS OF TUNGSTONE HIGH AND LOW TENSION.

Tungstone (patented) British Made Accumulator is practically Foolproof. Standardization, Interchangeability, Simplicity and Accessibility are applied to all individual parts and plates.

Tungstone Car Battery can always be regularly Overcharged to give an output of excess current for a continuous and generous use of Self-starter without previous cranking. Plates cannot be Buckled or Short-circuited in Service. No Wood or Celluloid used, results in NEGLIGIBLE internal resistance and heat, giving "lively current," and ensuring the longest Plate Life of any Accumulator made. No adulterants used in Paste or Plates to set up electro-chemical corrosion or the deadly disease of sulphation which reduces the capacity of the Plate and shortens the life of the Battery.

Present-day Accumulators—the Mystery Box of the Car, with Secrets Sealed—is solved by Tungstone.

Owner Driver can quickly take out any working parts for inspection on roadside or elsewhere.

No Wood Separators used between Plates or in Cells. No Celluloid or Ebonite Containers used.

Each Plate fixed firmly and independently in the Acid resisting Metal Container.

High Pressure Die Cast Plates cannot be buckled or short-circuited in service.

Entirely of British Origin and Workmanship.

The Paste by Machinery is Riveted in and through the Lead Grid or Plate.

No sediment space is required or provided in the Acid Proof Metal Container.

Metal Container Lids not sealed. No outside creeping, sweating or spraying of Acid.

The Expert Engineer of the "DAILY NEWS" London, writes on Tungstone Car Battery in issue of February 16th, 1925:

BRITISH MADE AND DESIGNED.

Near the end of last year, after a demonstration on the makers' experimental car, during which the battery was short-circuited many times, and the car which I judged to weigh $1\frac{1}{2}$ tons, was driven on low gear by the self-starter for distances roughly 80 and 50 yards, I gave some details of the claims of a new lead-acid accumulator called the Tungstone, a British-made and British-designed product.

Fully to test the standard product I had the battery of a 6-volt lighting and starting set on a 10 h.p. car replaced by one of them, and to give it as much intensified vibration as possible, apart from testing its efficiency of input and output electrically, I had it placed on the running board and held in position by two quarter-inch bolts.

After the accumulator was filled with B.A.A. pure brimstone acid of 1.285 s.g. and the acid allowed to soak into the plates, the accumulator was tested, and showed that it had automatically become active electrically. It was then placed on the car, and after the dynamo was adjusted to give a minimum charge of 10 ampères at low road speed, it was connected up with the dynamo. Charging with the car stationary was then begun, the minimum charging rate being 6 ampères and the maximum 12, with the rate for an hour being varied each five minutes—6, 12, 8, 10 ampères. Three times the engine was stopped and the self-starter switch pushed to give a heavy discharge.

SHORTS WITHOUT DAMAGE.

The battery was then given a full charge on the bench, the hydrometer showing 1.300 s.g. at the finish. It was replaced on the car. This was in the intense cold at the end of the year. Each morning the car, which was left in an unheated garage every night without a radiator cover, was started up with the self-starter without any easing of gummed cylinders by hand cranking or flooding of carburetter or injection of petrol. Run without radiator muff, the car was left for periods of four, five, and six hours outside the house in the cold. Starting from cold each time, the battery gave a fine heavy current. The starter-motor overcame the stiffness of the cylinders, and turned the engine at a brisk rate.

In its first days, 13 times the battery was momentarily short-circuited with copper wire. Later it was short-circuited for appreciable periods five times in three days. Two runs of 100 miles were done at a minimum charging rate of 10 ampères, with only the electric horn making a call on output. An inspection of the plates and all parts (a work which takes the minimum of time, for the battery is supremely accessible for dismantling and inspection) showed the plates and other parts to have been utterly undamaged by the rough usage.

UNBUCKLED TUNGSTONE PLATES.

Following this, the engine was started (the first start from cold) 15 times by the self-starter without rest, followed by four successive spinnings of the engine with the switches off for periods of 7, 7,

10 and 8 secs., the battery was short-circuited with copper wire, and, after a rest, 10 more successive starts of the engine made with the self-starter.

The car was then used for a few days in making London calls (the starter always being used to start the engine), and later was taken to a garage, and the staff electrician asked to inspect the battery. In taking it off I purposely shorted it again, in his presence. He "O.K.'ed" the plates as showing not the slightest sign of buckling, loss of paste, or loosening of paste in the grids, but burning signs through short-circuiting.

The battery was left to a mechanic to replace on the car. The careless replacement of a connection and terminal nut caused a short which I (also careless) did not notice for a long time. Again the plates and parts, on examination, showed not the slightest damage, but the "burning" through the short circuiting was bad.

TUNGSTONE CLAIMS JUSTIFIED.

After all this the battery did give a higher electrical efficiency than when first used, and the way it has stood up to mishandling more than justifies the makers' claims of dependability, high efficiency, a maximum output for a stated input, plates (lead grids and pure oxide of lead as paste) strong beyond the common with the risk of disintegration under electrical misuse and intensified road shocks and vibration practically negligible, low resistance which gives a lively current, and no creeping of acid on to the outside top of the metal die-cast container.

PERFECTLY MADE FROM CHOICE OLD VIRGINIA TOBACCO.

After its long service you simply reload it with fresh "Lissen" cells. That's why it is so economical.

Nothing could be more simple or more practical than the "Lissen" Renewable H.T. Battery. You pay for the container once only. This will hold your cells for ever, and when the time comes to renew your H.T. supply you only need to replace the exhausted cells with fresh "Lissen" cells. These have a large discharge capacity, and they come to you fresh and full of life because of the special methods we adopt in marketing them.

There are three ways of buying the "Lissen" H.T. Renewable Battery:

Showing the container that you can buy or easily build for yourself.

- (1) Complete battery fully assembled (and renewable) including special container and 45 "Lissen" cells, giving 67½ volts and ready for use - 11/6
- (2) 45 "Lissen" Cells with the nine necessary springs and instructions and full size diagrams showing how to make a container and assemble the battery yourself - 9/4
- (3) The container with contacts and tapping point for those who do not wish to make one (only needing the addition of cells and springs to make it a complete renewable H.T. Battery) - 2/-

Extra cells (1½ volts) 2d. each and extra springs 2d. each, can be purchased separately. You can thus add extra H.T. whenever you need it, enjoying the advantages of a power valve or resistance coupling, both of which need extra H.T., in the simplest and cheapest possible manner.

The cells are held firmly in contact by means of the special springs.

The

The purchase of every 45 lot of "Lissen" Cells entitles the purchaser to a limited license to use the "Lissen" method of construction—for which patent application has been made—and also to the exclusive use of the drawings.

Lay the cells in the rows this way. Full instructions are given with every 45 lot. You cannot go wrong.

Nine tapping points are provided. Five at one end of the container—four at the other.

Remember, once you have the container, the only thing that ever needs renewing are the "Lissen" Cells, and these are the only things you pay for when you renew.

CHARGE YOUR ACCUMULATOR AT HOME.

Have you alternating current electric light in your home?

Please state carefully the voltage and frequency of your mains. This information can be obtained from your meter.

If so, write to us to-day and order a Fellow's Accumulator Charger. You simply plug it into any lamp-holder, give a twist to the spindle, connect up your accumulator and leave it until charged.

This charger will save its own cost in a few weeks. To begin with, you need only have one accumulator, because it can be charging when not in use.

Secondly, you will be saved all journeys to the charging station and you will always have a fully-charged battery on hand. Finally, the charging cost is extremely low, working out at about 1d. for 10 hours' charging at 2 to 3 amps.

Send for our 44-page illustrated catalogue free, and for descriptive leaflet of this charger.

This charger is perfectly safe; it avoids all mess; it is entirely automatic and has no expensive parts to renew. It is designed to charge 4 or 6 volt L.T. accumulators, but two 2 volt L.T. accumulators can be charged if connected in series to the terminals delivering 4 volts. Sent packing free, carriage forward on SEVEN DAYS' APPROVAL against cash.

Figures to Remember

The Crossing Sweeper

A figure that never failed to attract the attention of the passers-by. Every day the figures 660 are attracting more and more attention, because wireless enthusiasts are realising that the new Six Sixty range includes valves specially designed to suit their individual requirements.

The S.S.7—a wonderful Dull Emitter Power Amplifier—has evoked widespread enthusiasm. This Valve is entirely non-microphonic and is capable of handling output sufficient to work the largest Loud Speaker with entire absence of distortion. It works at such a low temperature that even in the dark there is absolutely no glow from the filament when operating at the correct voltage. And this is not all; despite the remarkably low temperature attained the unique design of the S.S.7. ensures that there is no decrease whatever in electron emission, in short the S.S.7. combines unequalled volume with a wonderful purity of tone.

There is no valve that can boast of a longer life than the Six Sixty S.S.7., because there is no valve that operates at a lower temperature. Test it for yourself or get your Dealer to demonstrate it to you.

The S.S.7. is a 3.7-volt Valve and its current consumption is so low—only 1 amp.—that it can be satisfactorily operated from dry cells or a 4-volt accumulator.

For long life, real economy and perfect tone insist on Six Sixty Valves.

THE fame of BROWN Wireless Instruments is by no means confined to Great Britain and the Continent. From far-away Java a customer sends us this interesting little snapshot.

The wireless enthusiast abroad necessarily chooses his apparatus with the greatest discrimination—he cannot afford to take risks. Seven Ratios

YOU CAN'T GO WRONG

YOU are certain to find the correct ratio for your set if you use the new R.I. Multi-Ratio Transformer, for the range of ratios and impedance values available in this instrument is sufficiently wide to make it suitable for every Valve and every Circuit.

Although this Transformer has only been on the market some days, the demand has exceeded our highest expectations. We have received large numbers of letters from enthusiastic users, who find it to be just what they have been waiting for, as it has given an additional purity to their circuits which they have been unable to obtain with combinations of other Transformers.

With the new R.I. Multi-Ratio Transformer, a winding of an impedance suitable for any valve or any circuit can be selected at will, and the tapping points of both windings have been chosen so as to provide the best ratios for the various circuits and valves now in general use.

In the main ratio it is possible to obtain three alternative values of impedance, so that actually nine different values of impedance are available.

The new model is totally enclosed in a steel shroud, treated with the new cellulose var enamel, which is practically rust-proof. The coil itself is treated in such a way that it is suitable for any climate in the world. The terminal block is a bakelite moulding of cellular design, so as to completely isolate the terminal connections, thereby increasing the insulation path.

A year's guarantee is given with each instrument, and, in addition, a book of circuits showing the best method of using the Transformer as a standard coupling. This new "R.I." product is the best investment you can make. It will decidedly improve the quality of your reception.

If your Set distorts, the remedy lies with you.

THE R.I. PERMANENT MINERAL DETECTOR.

This detector is absolutely permanent and unaffected by vibration. A small selected piece of a rare mineral is mounted in a metal cup embedded in Wood's Metal. No catwhisker is employed; contact for rectifying purposes being made with another crystal mounted on a spring plunger which maintains the correct pressure against the special mineral. Searching for sensitive spots is unnecessary, since the contact surfaces of both crystals are sensitive throughout their area. Manufactured in two different forms. Standard pattern, with supporting clips for mounting either above or below the panel, and one hole fixing pattern with detachable ebonite cover which protects the adjusting knob when in position.

H.T. FROM YOUR MAINS

Even the most efficient High Tension Batteries require constant replacements, and the money spent in this way is, for a multi-valve set, considerable.

Overcome this difficulty by writing to-day for a Fellophone H.T. Supply Unit—try it for 7 days and, if it fails to give complete satisfaction, return it undamaged to us and your money will be refunded.

The Fellophone H.T. Supply Unit is made in two types (1) For Alternating Current, and (2) For Direct Current. Please state when ordering the voltage of your mains and (if alternating) the frequency. Note.—You can obtain this information from your meter.

These units are simplicity itself to operate: merely plug the adaptor into a Lamp Holder and connect up the appropriate terminals to your set exactly as you would an H.T. Battery.

These Units have NO MOVING PARTS, there are NO CHEMICALS, consequently NO MESS, and they will last indefinitely. They are ABSOLUTELY SAFE in use and they give PERFECT SILENT RECEPTION. Further the current consumed is LESS than that of a 10-candle-power lamp.

SPECIAL OFFER.

To popularise these Units we are making the following exceptional offer:

The FIRST 20,000 Units will be sold for £3 - 10 - 0 for the A.C. Type and £2 - 10 - 0 for the D.C. Type.

Send in your order to-day, accompanied by remittance and state (a) the voltage and frequency of your mains,

(b) the voltage of H.T. you require for your set. H.T. Units, whether A.C. or D.C., are made to supply either 50 or 100 volts at 10 to 15 milliamps in every case.

For further information write for our illustrated leaflet H.T.S.

Perfect RECEPTION AT 60 MILES AN HOUR

On a Great Western Train Travelling from Plymouth to London

The 'Ethodyne' seven valve super heterodyne Receiver once again demonstrated its extraordinary capacity for long distance reception on this occasion.

Its wonderful achievement is largely attributable to the exclusive use of Burndept Super Valves. Although carried along at an average speed of 60 miles per hour for 450 miles, they gave no trouble whatever and microphonic noises were entirely absent.

Burndept Super-Valves will give wonderful results on your set. Ask any Burndept dealer to demonstrate them.

CHARACTER

CHARACTER peeps out at you in many ways. The head, and the line of a man's jaw will generally tell you his character. And most things have character written on them for all to see. Look at the monolith standing on London's Embankment—the quaintly etched cuneiform will immediately carry your mind to Cleopatra and the glories of old Egypt. Just character. Cleartron valves have a character all their own. You cannot class them as ordinary; there is no valve which quite comes up to the Cleartron standard. You know that their manifold advantages are definitely guaranteed. Cleartron are all dull emitters sold at standard prices.

Perfect reproduction
over a wide range of frequencies

IF your loud speaker does not give uniformly good reproduction of all notes, tones, instruments and voices, the trouble can probably be eliminated by the use of the B.T.H. Transformer. Its chief characteristics are:

HIGH AND CONSTANT AMPLIFICATION over a wide range of frequencies (see curve below).

PERFECT REPRODUCTION, free from distortion, with maximum volume and absolute purity of tone.

TOTALLY ENCLOSED and thus protected from moisture, dirt, and mechanical damage.

UNIFORM RESULTS ensured by the use of a single spool of moulded composition to contain all windings. Separate spacers not employed.

NEGLIGIBLE LOSSES—the result of careful design and workmanship.

LARGE CORE perfectly jointed, eliminates stray fields and renders screening unnecessary.

Louden Valves

TWO NEW LOUDEN VALVES

The fact that Louden Valves have to-day become one of the most popular valves in the Kingdom is the most convincing proof possible of their sterling merit and value.

And the fact that they have achieved this popularity in spite of every obstacle thrown in their path proves conclusively that the Public will invariably have what it wants in the long run.

The Fellows policy has always been to give the Public what it wants and at the price it wants, and the enormous support which we have received proves finally that that policy has met with entire approval.

Following this policy we have now introduced two new types of Louden Valve having all the qualities of Silver Clear reception, low current consumption and low cost which have made the Louden so famous. These are the type LER, a 2 volt Dull Emitter Valve and the type PER, a Dull Emitter Power Valve. Details of these new types are given in the list below which also shows the complete Louden range.

You can only get Louden Valves direct from us or our branches—send for yours at once.

The BIG BROTHER

The big brother of the Cable O.V. Aerials may be seen at any Naval or Government Wireless Station. Both are built on the same lines—for efficiency. The Cable O.V. Aerials are not nearly so obtrusive as their big brother. That is their great advantage. Slung just below the ceiling from two hooks fixed in any odd corners of the room, they are right out of everybody's way. They give you selective tuning also, and the comparative results of the big commercial aerials.

WIRELESS FROM ELECTRIC LIGHT!

With the Ducon—you just plug it in

If you have electric light, you already have an aerial in every room.

Buy a Ducon (it costs only 10/-) and when you plug it into a lamp holder it at once acts as an aerial. You simply connect it to your set.

The Ducon uses no current, is absolutely safe, and does not interfere with your electric light in any way.

By using a Ducon, you can have wireless in any room simply by moving your set.

The Ducon can be bought from all good wireless shops.

YOUR HOLIDAY

THIS year try the holiday that is different. Explore new country and enjoy healthy, restful change, free from irksome routine.

THE NORFOLK BROADS, with their natural beauties and quiet old-world villages, will enchant you. They are 120 miles from London, and consist of 200 miles of safe inland rivers and lakes, situated between Cromer, Lowestoft, and Norwich. You hire from us for a week or longer a fully furnished wherry, yacht, or motor-boat, which becomes your floating home, moving when and where you wish inland, not on the sea. We can supply an attendant to manage the boat and do all cooking. You only have to enjoy yourself. The cost, including boat, food, etc., averages £4 per head per week.

Send to-day 2d. postage only for 204-page booklet, "How to Enjoy a Broads Holiday," containing details of 300 yachts, wherries, motor-boats, houseboats, bungalows we have for hire, also cottages at Wisbech and Oxford. All owners' craft are included in this booklet.

Exide

THE LONG-LIFE BATTERY

When the airship R 33 was torn from her mooring mast and blown, stern first, across the North Sea, in the gale of April 16th, 1925, her successful return was made possible by Wireless Communication with land stations.

Exide Batteries were used with all the wireless equipment on board.

The Wireless operator, Keeley, had his earphones on during the whole of the 30 hours' breakaway journey, and was in constant touch with the Air Ministry, sending frequent reports of the airship's progress and receiving flying directions, etc.

Major Scott stated: "I consider this one of the greatest achievements in Airships."

The reliability of Exide Batteries, so vitally important to the safety of the R 33 and her crew, is the result of careful design, sound workmanship and first-class materials.

You can get the same reliability by using Exide Batteries for your wireless:

THE VALVE IN THE PURPLE BOX

Marconiphone "Straight Eight"

AS its name suggests, this is an 8-valve Wireless Receiver designed to ensure the highest possible performance obtainable by any means whatsoever. It combines maximum range and extreme selectivity with simplicity of control. Reaction has been entirely avoided in order to obtain perfection in the quality of reception. The Bournemouth Station, for instance, can be tuned in clear of 2LO at a distance of one mile from the latter, and at three or four miles Manchester is easily separated from London.

All B.B.C. stations, and most Continental stations, can be received on a Loud Speaker in daylight. At night the range covers practically all Continental stations, while American stations can usually be heard under favourable conditions.
