The Manna of Daventry.

By EXFORD HUNT.

WHICH owes the other most—the British Broadcasting Company to its vast Daventry constituency, or Daventry listeners to the B.B.C.? It is rather a nice point. But, be that as it may, the policy of the High-Power Station must have brought hundreds of thousands of eager disciples into the fold that has its headquarters on the hill of Savoy. And they have come to stay.

Until Chelmsford came into being, large areas of England and Wales (to say nothing of Scotland) were outside what Mr. Gladstone used to call "the sphere of influence." These areas were dependent on local broadcasting stations which meant, in other words, very little reception, even in the case of expensive three-valve sets, and in regard to crystals, nothing at all. Two-thirds of Wales at least might have been in the Andaman Isles as far as broadcasting was concerned, and the erection of the Cardiff Station proved useless to dwellers in the hills and valleys beyond, until the Swansea studio was in being. Even this step left much to be desired.

And still the whole of the south-west remained in outer darkness—Somerset and Cornwall and Devon could get practically no response even with valve sets of intermediate power. Crystal sets in those coun-

We heard much of this new "miracle of wireless," but it was a sealed book to us down in "Glorious Devon" and in still more remote Cornwall. Then came Chelmsford and, behold, a transformation. No more whispering reception, no more of that maddening Morse, but music of the best, laughter, and speech, and the world at the elbow of the man who had his habitat nearly two hundred miles from London.

And then, at last, as a boon and a blessing to men, came Daventry. Daventry bringing the world to one's fireside. The eloquence of statesmen, the clear voice of the most popular prince in the world, the latest news from all parts of the globe, music so clear that it is possible to hear the faintest touch of a grand piano or the expiring wail of a violin in the hands of a master.

This, then, is the miracle of Daventry. She stretched out her arms hundreds of miles in every direction (have we not it on record that a certain patriotic appeal by a famous admiral was heard as far away as Newfoundland?), and the people ties were a sheer waste of money. There were other districts, of course, in the silent zone, but for the moment we are dealing only with the west and south-west country.

Hubert Parry, the Man.

By Percy A. Scholes.

Hoppé.

*From my memory
Hubert A. Parry*

WE are often broadcasting Parry's music and listeners are learning to love it. Please tell us something about Parry—and with that, the Editor of The Radio Times puts into my hands two large volumes fresh from the press, and asks me to compress into two columns an impression of the contents of the eight hundred pages which Mr. Charles L. Graves has written and compiled, and Messrs. Macmillan have recently published (30s.).

The best way of putting a picture of Parry into a paragraph seems to be to call him "Pepys." Our seventeenth-century Pepys was by profession a builder and controller of ships—and in his leisure cultivated music and studied every other subject under the sun. Our nineteenth-twentieth-century Pepys was a musician by profession—and in his leisure built and controlled ships and studied every other subject under the sun. Both possessed (or were possessed by) a thousand absorbing interests, so that the line between what they did professionally and what they did "for fun" was a thin one, and would have been a wavering one had not a stronger sense of duty towards all that lay on the business side of the line fixed it between the hours of ten to six on the one side, and six to bed-time on the other.

Chapters of Accidents.

One whole series of occupations engaged the activities of our later Pepys which would hardly have interested our earlier one—athletics. Right through the first volume of the new Parry life the reader is alarmed by the fear that his hero cannot possibly live to enter with him the second volume. This first volume gives not one "chapter of accidents," but eight such chapters. Parry collected breaks and bruises as Pepys collected loose piles of broadsheets and ballads that now form one of the treasures of his old Cambridge college.

At Eton, Parry is repeatedly injured in the cricket field, and is carried off the football field "on a sheep hurdle in an unconscious condition." Skating in the holidays, he "fell in twice, and on his way home sprained his leg, cut his hand and had to be revived with hot negus." Snowballing against the Windsor town boys, he "got hit in both eyes and was completely blinded and had to feel his way home." Then, from football he makes another hurdle exit and has a week out of school; then he is "badly shinned" and sprains his ankle and has another week out of school. Then he is "smashed" again; then he is "badly pooped"; then his ankle is injured again and for six days he stays out, tending it with bran poultices.

That is one side of Parry's life which has hitherto remained unknown to many who love his music—the side of open-air activities. Another such side, which would admit of almost as cataloguey a statement, is the side of scientific interest, the study of geology and botany, the microscopic observation of diatoms, the spending of hours trying to set the eyes of flies, the seaside passion for seaweeds, the landward passion for fungi (leading, by the way, to some curious experiments into their edible qualities, for Parry loved to try any new dish), the study of astronomy, the constant inquiries into anthropology.

And, too, we have Parry's art interests, his reverent study of architecture, his love of painting (which led sometimes to strong expressions after visiting the annual Academy exhibition), and his literary interests, which have constant witness in the record in his diary of the reading of all manner of books, new and old, in the prose style of his several splendid volumes on musical subjects, and in the invariable fine taste shown in the choice of poems for musical setting.

Finally, we have Parry's political interests (he was a strong democrat and continually in opposition to the people amongst whom his birth and education threw him), and his religious interests—which must not be understood as meaning any ecclesiastical bias, since, though a close student of the Bible, a man of the highest Christian ideals and a Puritan in life, his regular attendance at the church of the Gloucestershire village of which first his father, then he, was squire, and his twenty-years' singing in its choir were prompted by a recognition of the communal value of such practice, rather than by subscription to the dogmas implied in the liturgy or taught in the pulpit.

Philosopher and Friend.

Parry the Musician many know. Until this book appeared, Parry the Man was known to fewer. He was, as I have said, a very Pepys in the eagerness and the multiplicity of his pursuits. But if you ask any of his friends for a description of his character their first reply will be that Parry was the friendliest, the most generous-hearted, the most sympathetic and the most straightforward man they ever met.

The Hoppé picture which Mr. Graves includes amongst his many illustrations (and which appears on this page), was taken in 1916 for a special Parry issue of a musical paper I then edited. It caused me some trouble to get Parry into a photographer's studio, but I did it at last, and I am glad, for it brought into existence perhaps the best representation of the essential Parry that exists—the noble face, serious yet humorous, kindly yet sincere. When in this new book I saw that photograph, I hunted up Parry's letter, thanking me for the copy I sent him, and I have placed its signature beneath the reproduction, knowing the pleasure it will give Parry's many correspondents (not one of whom, I believe, can say he ever received from him a typewritten or dictated letter) to see again that clear, firm hand.

If not that, at any rate they did the next best thing. With one accord they began to gather unto themselves wireless sets of sorts, mostly three-valve cabinets, with here and there self-made installations, generally with perfect success. So that very soon the time came when we, under the shadow of Exmoor, with its towering tors and high wastes, could listen to all that a beneficent B.B.C. had to offer us. And we are more than grateful.

We are being liberally educated. The good seed has not fallen on stony ground. At first the shopkeeper and the farmer and the intelligent motor mechanic were mightily intrigued with the cacophony of dance "bands," but they soon reached out further than that. They began to take an interest in "they talks." After the first relay from Manchester they want more of that wonderful Hallé Orchestra and chorus. The broadcasting of Mr. Sandler's band from Eastbourne fills them with delight. These country folk often do not know one note of music from another, but they have an almost uncanny sense of what is best, and now they want the best and nothing but the best. This deponent has heard, in a village street under Exmoor, a group of intelligent artisans discussing the merits of the Squire Octet!

That is what Daventry has done for our remote hamlet. It has brought in hundreds of thousands of new licence-holders, and has given the purest delight and a liberal education to the folk dwelling down here on the Celtic Fringe. And the movement grows daily. It is going to become a big factor in the problem of keeping the people on the land. It makes for peace and contentment.

* * * *

Before the advent of the B.B.C., we were wont to hibernate. It was the habit of the ultra-rural population. Little to do after the sun went down, few books to read, neighbours more or less remote. In winter the shadow of Exmoor lies heavy on us, and so sleep was the best substitute for a pleasant evening's amusement. Those long nights!

But not now. In the village and on the farm the voice of far-off Daventry comes to us with song and dance and drama and laughter, so that we are back in the world again, and that at the trifling outlay of something like twopence per week. To thousands, nay, tens of thousands of us, the Announcer is a personal friend who opens the magic door and introduces us to great musicians and statesmen alike. Through him we have always something fresh to talk about, which means so much in a rural community. We foregather more freely, we have new ideas to exchange, and as the day's work draws to a close, something fine to look forward to.

Draw the curtains, pile on the old oak billets, switch on the loud-speaker, for Daventry is calling with the best that England has to offer.

Hats off to Daventry, with full musical honours!

Official News and Radio Gossip.

The Prince of Wales.

THE speech by the Prince of Wales at the Dinner to the African Society at the Savoy Hotel on June 9th is to be broadcast.

The First Train to Morden.

Listeners to the London Station will look forward to a novel broadcast which is being arranged in connection with the opening of the extension of the City and South London Railway from Clapham Common to Morden, early in June. Details are not yet settled, but in addition to speeches, it may be possible to broadcast sounds attendant to the switching on of the current, perhaps the starting-up of the first train, its passage from point to point, or its arrival at Morden, and maybe the starting-up of the escalators.

"Stars" at Savoy Hill.

Several "stars" of the variety stage will visit the London Studio on May 31st, when listeners will hear some distinctly novel turns by artists who have not yet appeared before the microphone. One of these is Carlton, or, as he is otherwise known, "The Human Hairpin." During his long career, Carlton has probably appeared at every music hall in London and the Provinces, and most people have seen his successful conjuring turn. When he appears at the London Studio, Carlton is going to perform a number of conjuring tricks and then explain to listeners how he does them—quite a new idea in broadcast entertainment. Listeners are asked to provide themselves with a pack of cards, pencil and paper. The tricks will be intercepted with Carlton's usual clever patter. Then there will be items by the Two Bobs, who are also well-known at the present time as syncopated duettists. Mr. Will Hay, the schoolmaster comedian, will also take part in this programme instead of on May 14th as previously announced in The Radio Times, which date has been found impracticable owing to unforeseen circumstances. Mr. Lawrence Bascob is to sing some of his original compositions at the piano, and the Fayre Sisters, who are a quartet of concertina artists equally well known throughout the country, will contribute. Other artists in this programme are Mr. C. W. Thwaite, the "Whistler," and Miss Ann Stevens and Mr. Allen Macbeth, who will present a light humorous sketch.

In Memory of the Wesleys.

Wesley's Day, May 24th, is an occasion widely observed by Methodists the world over to commemorate the life and work not only of John Wesley, the founder of their church, but also of that of Charles Wesley, his brother, who achieved fame as a prodigious writer of hymns. The occasion will be marked on Whit-Sunday, May 23rd, by a short memorial service to take place in the London Studio in the early evening, when two or three of Charles Wesley's hymns will be sung and some prayers used by John Wesley will be read by Dr. George Eayres, Hon. Sec. of the International Methodist Historical Union. A short address on John and Charles Wesley will also be given by the Rev. J. Alfred Sharp, D.D., Chairman of the Eastern Section of the Union.

The Supernatural at "2LO."

Some real thrills, but not of the nerve-racking type, have already been promised to listeners during a ghost programme which is to be transmitted from London on Wednesday, May 26th, when the main part will consist of a play dealing with the supernatural which, even at its finish, will leave listeners still undecided as to whether ghosts really exist! The programme will also include a reading from Bram Stoker's story, "The Judge's House"—a particularly "creepy" yarn.

Organ Recitals.

A series of organ recitals by Mr. Francis Sutton, F.R.C.O., will be relayed from St. Stephen's Church, Wallbrook, E.C., through the Daventry Station every Friday in May, between 12.30 and 1 p.m.

Broadcasting from Verrey's.

An interesting development in broadcasting is to be noted in connection with the concert which was given by Arthur Salisbury's Orchestra on May 1st. The orchestra on this occasion was playing in Verrey's new restaurant in Regent Street, London, where the enterprising Management, in the process of rebuilding, has arranged for permanent wiring to be installed, so that a microphone may be brought into use at any time. With an amplifier in an adjoining room, the restaurant is thus converted for the time being into what is, in effect, an outside broadcasting studio. This notable innovation was carried out in co-operation with B.B.C. officials, after careful preliminary tests had shown the excellent acoustic qualities of the restaurant.

Forthcoming Talks from London.

An interesting talk on her collection of Theatre Programmes—Playbills as they used to be called in bygone days—will be given from London at 7.40 p.m. on Wednesday, May 26th, by Mrs. Gabrielle Enthoven, who is an authority on this fascinating subject. Mrs. Enthoven has got together a wonderful collection of specimens, which she has presented to the Victoria and Albert Museum, where anyone can see them. On the following evening, at the same time, Mr. Christmas Humphreys will give a short talk on the Historic Aspects of the Buddhist Wesak Festival. At 10.10 the same evening Professor Robert McElroy, Professor of American History at the University of Oxford, will talk on Anglo-American Friendship. This latter talk will be S.B. to all Stations.

Tate on the Tests.

Mr. Maurice Tate, the cricketer, will have an enormous audience on Saturday, May 22nd, when he speaks from the London Studio through all British Stations on Cricket, and the Test Matches in particular. By that date the Test Matches will be appreciably closer and all cricket enthusiasts with receiving sets will wear the headphones or switch on the loud-speaker that evening.

Manchester's Orchestral Concert.

A Grand orchestral afternoon concert will be given from Manchester Station on Sunday, May 16th, when the pieces chosen include Lalo's Rhapsodie Norvegienne, his last important concert work, written before his Grand Ballet Namouna, and two movements from the Symphonie Espagnole, played by Sarasate in 1875, and first heard at the Crystal Palace in 1878. Two of the better-known works of Rimsky-Korsakov will also be interpreted, Capriccio Espagnol (which has always met with the greatest appreciation in England), and the dances from Prince Igor, orchestrated by Rimsky-Korsakov for his fellow-worker, Borodin.

"Peer Gynt" at Manchester.

A special performance of a condensed version of Ibsen's Peer Gynt, the music for which will be taken from Grieg's famous suite, will be given at the Manchester Studio on Sunday afternoon, June 6th, and relayed through London, Daventry, and other Stations.

Styles of Famous Composers.

The various styles of Purcell, Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Chopin, Brahms, and Rachmaninoff will be illustrated in a lecture-recital to be given by Miss Ethel Walker (pianist) from the Manchester Station on Tuesday, May 18th.

An Irish Programme at Manchester.

The rich brogue of the Emerald Isle will be heard by listeners to the Manchester Station on Saturday, May 22nd, during a special Irish programme, when Mr. Parker Lynch, the well-known Irish actor, will take a leading rôle. Mr. Parker Lynch, who is the creator of the part of "The Whiteheaded Boy," specializes in Irish character studies, though his repertoire as an actor ranges from Melville to Maeterlinck, and from Shaw to Shakespeare. On this occasion he will give some rhymes of "Ould Oireland," and an interlude called "A Taste of the Rele Brogue."

Music in the Birmingham Parks.

Birmingham listeners will hear the first Parks Concert of the season on Saturday, May 22nd, when a programme by the City of Birmingham Police Band will be relayed from Cannon Hill Park. There are sixty performers in this Band, which

Music and the Young Musician.

By Ignace Jan Paderewski.

[That great Polish pianist and statesman, Ignace Paderewski, whose brilliant playing was broadcast from London some time ago, recently gave, in an interview with Mr. Francis Oppenheimer, some helpful and inspiring advice to those who are taking up music as a career. In the following statement the great artist sets forth his views with characteristic vigour and enthusiasm.]

IGNACE JAN PADEREWSKI.

MUSIC is the only art that actually lives. The elements, vibrations, palpitations of music are the elements of life itself! Wherever there is life, there is also music, stealthy, inaudible, unrecognized, yet mighty! Music is mingled with the flow of rushing waters, with the breath of the winds, with the murmur of the forest; music lives in the earth's seismic heavings, in the mighty motions of the planets, in the hidden conflicts of inflexible atoms.

Music is in all the lights, in all the colours that dazzle or soothe our eyes. Music is in the blood of our arteries, in every pain and every passion and ecstasy that shakes our hearts. Music is everywhere, soaring above and beyond the range of human speech into unearthly spheres of divine emotion.

The energy of the universe knows no respite. It resounds through Time and Space unceasingly. Its manifestations—rhythm, by the law of God—keep order in all worlds, maintaining the cosmic harmony.

Peoples and nations, worlds and suns, arise that they may give forth tone and sound. When silence falls upon them, then life ceases also. Everything utters music, sings, speaks, yet always in its own voice, using its own gesture, according to its particular need.

The soul of a nation, too, speaks, sings, utters music. But how? Human music is but a fragment of universal music. Its forms, created by the mind and hand of man, are subject to frequent transformations. Times change. People change. Thought and feeling take on new shapes, put on fresh garments, so to speak. Sons bow their heads unwillingly to that which had moved and enraptured their fathers.

The Dreams of Youth.

Every new generation in its hour of dawn, filled with the dreams of youth, its thirst, its intoxication and enthusiasm, thinks itself called upon to impel humanity toward heights unmeasured, believes itself an appointed pathfinder, a thinker of thoughts, a doer of deeds greater than any of those which came before.

Every new generation desires Beauty, but a Beauty all its own. In this spirit are begotten works of Art, which serve the needs of the moment, and which sometimes endure a shorter time than their creators. Others live longer, bear the stamp not merely of one generation, but of a whole period, whose lights and ideals they still reveal after long years. But there are works of Art of yet another order—these are strong with undying youth, luminous with unchanging truth; in them speak the voice of all generations—the voice of a whole race—the voice of the very Earth that brought them forth.

Politics have taught me one thing, if nothing else, and that is to banish the words "always" and "never" from my vocabulary! I am a firm believer in God and destiny, and the ways of destiny, which God shapes for us, are inscrutable.

To those young men and women who are planning to enter upon a musical career, I suggest that, before they make their début, they purge their æsthetic souls and come before their public with what I call a clear conscience. This will relieve them from a good deal of nervousness and drive away any fear of "failure." Platform fright frequently occurs from the fact that on their programmes there is a number containing some passages which they have not yet completely mastered.

To all such, I say: "Conquer absolutely, crystallize clearly in your memory all troublesome passages; do not be too eager to create in public. Then you are not so apt to be troubled by a guilty conscience that might mar your other efforts on the programme."

Some Practical Advice.

I recommend as technical studies, Czerny's Opus 740 and Tausig's edition of Clementi's Gradus and Parnassum—the Czerny being pure technique, while Clementi is extensive and brilliant. These, together with some special finger exercises by the teacher adapted to individual need, will at first be quite sufficient in the way of technical studies. Afterwards, the Wohltemperirte Klavier of Bach, indispensable in training the independence of the fingers and the cultivation of tone production, should be taken up and in due course followed by the Etudes of Chopin.

It is only by playing the scales with a strong accent, the slower the better, that precision and independence of fingers are secured. First, play the scale through, accenting the notes according to natural rhythm. Then, as in speech, let the accent fall upon the weak, rather than the strong note, and play the scale, accenting every second note; afterwards, place the accent upon every third note, then upon every fourth, and so on.

I advise, first, Mozart, because it teaches us to play with calm and simplicity, qualities which are required in Mozart; secondly, I advise Mendelssohn, whose "Songs Without Words" are of such valuable use in acquiring a singing quality of tone. For brilliancy of technique, I should advise Weber, and for advanced pianists I recommend the playing of pieces by Moszkowski, among modern composers.

And always work—hard work! If my own life has been a success, I owe that achievement to two very simple facts. One, my perseverance, the other my hard work.

A New Definition of Genius.

Americans have a saying which has always amused me, and it is one with which I am in hearty agreement. Genius, according to it, is made up of ten per cent. inspiration and ninety per cent. perspiration, for, to my way of thinking, talent is but an instinctive attraction for the thing we are doing—a sort of feeling Nature has given us for selecting our careers and choosing that for which we are best fitted to accomplish.

Less matter of fact, but no more true, is Goethe's definition of genius. To him, "Genius is zeal," while Emerson says it is the application to an idea, and that no one who has not long laid siege to the throne of truth or beauty will ever reach it.

We must keep everlastingly at it. (I believe that is another Americanism!) Nothing of real importance to art or science has ever been accomplished with or by one single effort. It may seem to us as if it had, but if you examine closely the history of those successes, you will find behind them all patient plodding, long undeviating preparation.

Devotion may even be a better word. No matter how much energy, how much determination, you put into your work, without devotion to the Ideal itself, you can never make a lasting name for yourself. You might become a hero. Never a great artist, or a great scientist, or a great philosopher.

rehearses every morning between 8 and 9.30, after which the members proceed to police duties in the ordinary way.

The Cyclists' Memorial Service.

The pretty country village of Meriden, in Warwickshire, held by many to be the centre of England, will be the scene of an unusual broadcast on Sunday, May 16th, when between 10 and 11 a.m., the Cyclists' Memorial Service will be relayed through the Birmingham Station. This service, which usually attracts a great number of cyclists from all over the Midlands and even further afield, will be conducted by the Right Rev. the Bishop of Coventry.

A Chinese Drama from Birmingham.

A drama entitled The Justice of Creong Foo, the scene of which takes place in a vast hall at a secluded castle in China in the twelfth century, will be included in the Birmingham programme at 10 o'clock on Tuesday, May 18th. The play, which is in two acts, is by Lester Bidston, and produced by Sidney Russell.

Plymouth's Talks for Holiday-makers.

In these days, when so many holiday makers include portable receiving sets in their equipment, an innovation which provides not only broadcast entertainment, but instruction as to how to get the best from your holiday, is a thoughtful, as well as a novel, idea. Such an arrangement is being made by the Plymouth Station in a series of talks by Mr. F. J. Johns, who will tell listeners in the West Country where to find and how to reach some of the beauty spots of Devon and Cornwall. The talk is primarily intended for those who are on holiday in the district.

"Hip, Hip, Hooradio!"

The third edition of the revue, Hip, Hip, Hooradio! will be presented by the Belfast Radio Players during the evening programme from that station on Monday, May 17th. The leading players will be the same as before, and the entertainment will run for an hour.

Famous Composers.

A lecture-recital on famous composers from 1600 to 1900 will be given from the Newcastle Station by Miss Ethel Walker on Monday, May 17th. Miss Walker is a skilful and discerning pianist, and her sympathetic playing always reveals the spirit of the composer.

Offenbach's "The Rose of Auvergne."

Offenbach's one-act comic opera, The Rose of Auvergne, will be given from the Leeds-Bradford Station on Thursday, May 20th. The principal artists are Miss Bertha Armstrong (soprano), Mr. Albert Underwood and Mr. Sam Hempshall (tenors), who will be supported by the Station Orchestra. The opera is being produced under the direction of Mr. Cecil Moon.

Newcastle's Tchaikovsky Programme.

A programme of works by Tchaikovsky will be given from Newcastle on Tuesday evening, May 18th, the first part consisting of his Symphony No. 6 in B Minor, better known as The Pathetic Symphony. Later in the evening, listeners will hear Miss Rosa Burn, A.R.C.M. (contralto), who has done a great deal of work with the Newcastle and Gateshead Choral Union and the Newcastle Philharmonic Concerts.

R.A.F. Band at Newcastle.

An attractive programme has been arranged by the Royal Air Force Band when, under the conductorship of Flight-Lieut. J. Amers, it visits the Newcastle Station on Wednesday, May 19th. The programme, which begins at 10 p.m., includes Oberon, which listeners will remember was the test piece set by the Newcastle Station at their recent Brass Band Contest.

A Weekly Feature Conducted by Percy A. Scholes.

RAVEL'S "SPANISH RHAPSODY."

(GLASGOW, SUNDAY.)

RAVEL has long been in the forefront of living French composers. He was born in the Lower Pyrenees, and must have absorbed, in his early days, something of the atmosphere of the Spanish countryside. This Rhapsody, in four sections, gives us glimpses of Spanish life and scenes.

I.—Prelude to Night. A little four-note rhythmic figure is begun by Muted Violins and Violas. It persists all through the Movement, typifying, one may imagine, the dreamy stillness of night. The only notable Theme is that heard on Clarinets in octaves, soon after the opening (beginning with repeated descending notes on adjacent degrees of the scale).

String tremolos and harmonics, and glides from the Harp, help to enrich the picture.

II.—Malaguena. This is a graceful dance from Southern Malaga. Double Basses start a rhythmical phrase of three bars, which gives the key to the general character of the Dance. A Muted Trumpet has the chief Tune (beginning with six repetitions of one note, in the three-time rhythm of Tum tatata tum).

Castanets, extra Drums, Cymbals, and Tambourine give point to the dance, which has many sudden changes of spirit.

One of these striking contrasts is provided by the little solo for Cor Anglais, which sounds quite sad. The repeated four-note figure of the Prelude is heard again immediately after this solo bit.

III.—Habanera. This is an earlier piece, written when Ravel was twenty, and later on brought into the Rhapsody. The Dance has a rather lazy, gliding, swaying movement.

The FIRST MAIN TUNE is played by Oboe and Cor Anglais. It is marked Very slow, and with weary rhythm. Its alternation of two-note and three-note beats (both being of equal length) will be noticed.

Solo Violins and Violas have a SECOND TUNE, that skips gracefully up and down.

IV.—The Fair. This is made of a multitude of little themes, as varied and diversely coloured as are the costumes of the crowd at a fair.

One of the most important of the themes is a brilliant fanfare-like one, using the Tum tatata tum rhythm that was prominent in the Malaguena.

The working up of all the fragments is exciting. We get a remarkably vivid impression of the scene.

SMETANA'S "VLTAVA."

(BOURNEMOUTH, TUESDAY.)

Smetana (1824-1884) was the first Bohemian composer to achieve distinction. After him came Dvorak, his disciple, whose music is now more widely played. But Smetana, with his operas on native stories, laid the foundations in his country of artistic music on a national basis.

Vltava is the second of a set of eight orchestral pieces entitled My Country, only six of which are generally known. Vltava is the Bohemian (now Czecho-Slovakian) name for the chief river that flows through the land. We know it as the Moldau.

In a preface to the score Smetana thus gives his "programme" for the music:—

"In the depths of the Bohemian forest two fountains arise, the one warm and eager, the other cool and quiet. Rushing down from the rock, the two streamlets unite and flow on together in the rays of the morning sun.

The swift mountain brook in time grows into a stream—the river Vltava. It flows through the meadows of Bohemia, and at last becomes a mighty river; flows through dense forests where the merry bustle of the hunt and the horns of the huntsmen are heard; flows through rich pastures and plains, resounding with the song and dance of village weddings.

"Night comes, and then the nymphs of the woods and water sport on its shining waves in the moonlight. The castles and towers of the ancient nobles and warriors are mirrored on its breast. Rocks strive to hem it in, but it bursts in torrents through them, and in broad, majestic cataract sweeps past Prague, and the ancient and noble fortress of Vysehrad, and there disappears from the mind's eye of the poet."

In the score are seven headings which may be quoted, with a word as to the nature of the music with which Smetana illustrates each of his scenes, thus forming a tiny "Listeners' Guide."

1. The Two Sources of the Vltava. Two Flutes blend in a stream of sound that spreads through the orchestra. A basic tune of the work, a folk melody, is soon heard.

2. A Chase in the Forest. Horns have a hunting call.

3. A Peasant's Wedding. A change of time brings in a dance-theme, probably well-known to Smetana's countrymen.

4. Moonlight, and Dance of Nymphs. Muted Strings, in six or more parts, conjure up the moonlight glades by the river, while Clarinets and Flutes have the dance. The river themes are resumed and we come to

5. The St. Johann Rapids, where the whole orchestra depicts the tumbling, foaming waters.

6. The Broadest Stream. The rapids have given place to the wide, rolling river. The folk-tune heard early in the work is given out majestically.

7. The Vysehrad Fortress. Here is employed a leading melody (in the Wind instruments) from the first symphonic poem of the My Country set, which is entitled Vysehrad.

MOZART'S "HAFFNER" SYMPHONY.

(CARDIFF, THURSDAY.)

When Mozart was in the service of the ill-natured Archbishop of Salzburg, he found a good deal of consolation in the friendship of the Haffner family.

For the wedding of one daughter of Herr Haffner he composed (when he was only eighteen) some short pieces which form the Haffner Serenade.

The Haffner Symphony was written eight years later, for the marriage of another daughter of the same family. It has the usual four Movements.

I.—Quick, spirited. The FIRST MAIN TUNE strikes off immediately with bold octave jumps. It is soon followed by a SECOND TUNE, but side by side with this appears the First Tune again. The Second Tune is really only a running accompaniment (on Bass Strings and Bassoon) to the First: that opening motive, indeed, dominates the Movement.

II.—Here is the greatest contrast to the bustling ardour of the First Movement. This slow Movement is all gentle grace and charm. Only Oboes, Bassoons, and Horns, with Strings, are used.

First Violins have the FIRST MAIN TUNE. The SECOND MAIN TUNE daintily trips from Second Violins and Violas, while the First Violin repeats one note, aloft. After a very short interlude, this matter is "recapitulated."

III.—For the Minuet the Trumpets and Drums are added to the instruments that played the Second Movement.

In the First Section, all the instruments play. In the Middle Section (or Trio) the Oboes and Bassoons have the melody in duet—a delightful change of colour and weight of tone.

The First Section, repeated, ends the Movement.

IV.—This is a sprightly affair, a Rondo that runs on velvet. Three Chief Tunes appear.

The FIRST MAIN TUNE is heard, softly, from the Strings. So is the SECOND TUNE (Bassoon strengthening the Bass this time).

The THIRD TUNE is in a minor key. Its distinguishing mark is the group of three rising notes in the bass, with one scale-note omitted between each.

North of the Tweed.

Gossip from Our Scottish Stations.

"Dips" at Glasgow.

GLASGOW listeners will have an opportunity, between 8 and 9.30 p.m., on Tuesday, May 18th, of hearing what is being transmitted by a number of stations South of the Tweed. Between these times, "dips" will be made into the programmes of London, Birmingham, Manchester, and Newcastle, and something entirely different in character will be "stolen" from each.

As an interlude, Mr. Alexander McCredie will sing some songs and, at 10 p.m., Glasgow will again switch over to London for a recital of sea shanties.

A Musical Comedy Evening.

An evening of familiar musical comedy excerpts will be broadcast from Glasgow on Saturday, May 22nd, when the vocalists will be Miss Edith Brass (soprano) and Mr. Sydney Northcote (tenor). The Station Orchestra will play selections from The Arcadians, The Court of Luzeburg, Havana, Becky, Mr. Manhattan and Irene.

A Radio Church Service.

The broadcast service from Edinburgh Station on Sunday, May 16th, will be conducted by the Rev. Millar Patrick, D.D., of Craigmillar Park United Free Church, Edinburgh.

Sports Talks at Edinburgh.

The prospects of the England v. Scotland Golf Match will be discussed by Mr. G. C. Manford in a talk from the Edinburgh Station on Thursday, May 20th, to be followed on Saturday, May 22nd, by another talk of sporting interest, when Mr. R. Wood Hawks will give the first of two chats on "Lawn Tennis." Meanwhile, the series of talks to schools by Mr. W. Forbes Gray on "Peeps at Edinburgh's Past," and by Mr. T. R. Tait on the "Romance of Lighthouses," are being continued from this station.

"The Heart of Midlothian."

Two scenes based on Scott's novel, The Heart of Midlothian, will be presented by Miss Miriam Wood and Miss Anna Donald during an all-Scottish programme from the Edinburgh Station on Thursday, May 20th.

Items will also be given by Miss Carma Linn (soprano) and the Edinburgh Gaelic Quartet, while selections on the bagpipes—without which no Scottish programme would seem to be complete—will be given by Pipe-Major Ross, of the Edinburgh School of Piping.

"The May Queen."

The Aberdeen Station has always prided itself on its successful production of the lighter kind of operas and cantatas, and listeners can look forward to an enjoyable programme on Saturday, May 29th, when the Lyric Opera Chorus, under the conductorship of Mr. Irvine S. Cooper, is to give a performance of The May Queen, a pastoral, written by Harry F. Chorley and composed by Sterndale Bennett. The scene of the story is set on the banks of the Thames in the time of Robin Hood, when May Day revels were ascribed an importance which they have now lost.

Varied Fare at Aberdeen.

In a programme consisting mainly of instrumental items from the Aberdeen Station on Sunday evening, May 16th, Miss Margaret Ludwig and Miss Constance Hook will play, among other pieces, the Sonata in B Flat Major, by Mozart. On the following Tuesday, May 18th, the programme will be provided by the Band of the Royal Air Force, with Miss Esther Coleman as vocalist. An entertaining half-hour is to be given from the same Station on Thursday, May 20th, under the very intriguing title of "A Piano, Some Songs, and Edith Jones."

This Tyranny of Clothes.

By Dr. C. W. Saleeby, F.R.S.E.

[Many listeners have asked that the Talk which Dr. Saleeby gave recently in the London Studio on the subject of our clothes and our lives should be published in these pages. We are very glad to give space to Dr. Saleeby's views on this vital matter.—Editor, The Radio Times.]

WE dress for decoration, defence, and decency—not to mention fashion and ostentation. Whatever our purpose, often we signally fail. The natural clothing of many a mammal, with a more or less hairy skin, like our own, puts our best efforts to shame. Our ideas of what is decent vary at different times of day, and from decade to decade. They are not based upon eternal principles of right and wrong, and should not be forced upon other people. Women to-day dress in a fashion which their grandmothers would have thought unbecoming and objectionable; but the diseases which decimated their grandmothers are now almost unknown, and no one is a penny the worse for modern fashions except the doctors and the undertakers.

The ancient Greeks laughed at other peoples—barbarians, as the Greeks called them—because they wore so many clothes. To-day, all over the civilized world, doctors are returning to the practice of Hippocrates, the Father of Medicine, that noble Greek who used to make his patients do exercises in the pure air and sunlight of the Temple of Æsculapius, where he was a priest. The Greeks called this excellent practice gymnastics, which literally means, as we should remember, getting one's clothes off.

Fewer Clothes and Longer Lives.

To-day, children at least can and do begin to wear fewer clothes; but even now much of our time at Infant Welfare Centres is spent in removing the incredibly numerous layers of clothes in which so many of the babies are imprisoned, starved of light and air, and prevented from breathing freely.

After infancy, girls and young women nowadays do splendidly. We are rid of the horrible notion that dragging skirts, infected with tubercle and other bacilli, were decent, but clean ankles indecent. We are rid of the "chest protector," which was a chest betrayer, and, instead, we see the falsely so-called "pneumonia blouse," which is really an enemy of pneumonia, for it helps the ventilation of the skin, and permits it to perform its proper functions.

Contrast with it the bodily ventilation of the average middle-aged man in his cosy, centrally-heated club-room, windows closed, air humid and warm and stagnant. He feels very snug in his "winter woollies," but he is paralysing his skin, and slowing down the flow of good blood through his lungs. If now microbes attack him—and they seem to be ubiquitous—perhaps aided by the sudden change to the cold night air, plus the whisky which he has taken to "keep out the cold," he is in no condition to resist them. What he needs, and what we all need, is the free, full, rapid circulation through the lungs which goes with active, open-air exercise in a minimum of clothing.

"The blood is the life," as we say: the blood carries the fighting cells, and the chemical antidotes which defend the lungs, when they are attacked. But the over-clothed, congested lung, with a slow supply of blood through it, falls a victim and often pneumonia is the result.

What a delight to observe the incomparably improved physique and beauty and resistance to disease of our young women to-day, because they have been restored to the light and the breath of life, thanks to the abolition of the disgusting clothing of the nineteenth century, when it was the elegant and admirable thing for a young girl to go into a "decline" after years of anæmia and frequent fainting fits.

Since we must wear clothes, here are some rules for getting all the good and no harm from them. First, all clothing must be loose. All tight clothing anywhere is an abomination. Tight shoes cause corns and bunions and hammer toes; tight shoes and gloves, by interfering with the circulation, cause chilblains in cold weather; tight collars and neckbands interfere with the return of blood through the surface veins from the scalp and have been accused, and probably with justice, of contributing to baldness, which tight hard hats probably favour for the same reason. Tight garters help to cause varicose veins, especially if the wearer spends much time in standing.

Dr. Saleeby in the London Studio exhorting his invisible audience to remember the importance of clothing in relation to health.

The old-fashioned whalebone corset was an entirely odious garment. Its tightness interfered with respiration and with the healthy vigour of the muscular wall of the abdomen. At points where it exercised local pressure, it may have contributed to the development of malignant disease. Its pressure served also to displace internal organs. It was an utterly abominable article, yet this corset, which has no defender to-day, was accepted almost universally much less than a generation ago.

I rejoice that nowadays women wear scarcely any tight clothing. In freeing the neck, they serve themselves in many ways. It is good to let in the sunlight upon the neck, where the thyroid gland, so important and active in women, is benefited. To supply that gland with iodine, its natural food, is a policy now of proven value, but all good foods are better absorbed and utilized in the presence of sunlight.

If the tissue next the skin be absorbent, the particular stuff of which it is composed does not matter. "Wool next the skin" has a kind of semi-sacred significance in this country. But the question is not the origin of the material, but the type of texture. A dense, non-absorbent flannel chest protector, so-called, is a perfect example of the worst possible kind of clothing, even though it is made of wool. Shetland wool, on the other hand, conforms as nearly as possible to the ideal—which we actually see in the woollen coat of the sheep. Next the skin we may wear silk, artificial silk, cotton, linen, or wool if we please, provided that the texture be loose, absorbent and washable. A loose texture is always a warm one for its weight, as we see in the natural clothing of hairy and furry animals; for such a texture holds air in its meshes, and the air is a poor conductor of heat, and thus helps us to retain our warmth.

Recently, having learnt the value of light, we have studied clothing in respect of its power to transmit the precious ultra-violet rays, and learn that white clothing is best in this respect. A baby can be cured of rickets by light, acting through clothing of cheap, white mercerised cotton, but if the same stuff be dyed black, the cure is not achieved. If a fabric be very loose, as we might use for, say, the arms of a child, the light may pass between the fibres. But some stuffs really let the light penetrate, in large degree. Artificial silk, for instance, is found to be much superior to real silk in this respect; which is fortunate, for artificial silk is cheap. This discovery commends it for stockings and blouses and shirts for tennis and cricket.

The Good Days Coming.

I look forward to coming days, really worth calling days, when we shall have cleaned our skies, as I have urged for more than twenty-three years, and when we shall be able to wear white and delicate fabrics without finding them soiled in ten minutes by the worse than wasted wealth of our country, poured into the air in the form of soot.

One last word about my unfortunate sex. Young girls, as we have seen, are becoming free. Perhaps in a few years they may even play tennis in gymnastic costume. At Stamford Bridge, last summer, during the Women's International Athletic meeting, we saw young girls, in whose grace and beauty Phidias and Praxiteles would have rejoiced, wearing simple athletic costume. But no man, unless he be a hero, and on his own court, dare play tennis in shorts.

The Boy Scout alone, in this as in so many other respects, would seem to be the hope of the future. His bare knees and unchained neck have long been, for me, the living symbol of youthful freedom and reason in a mostly fettered, smothered, light-starved, middle-aged and hide-bound world.

I hope that, ere very long, we may be succeeded by a wiser and freer generation, enlightened in body and mind. What becomes of all the beautiful children? Were we, you and I, once beautiful children, and, if so, what has happened to us? We must get back to Nature, in our ways of eating and clothing, and the final justification of our civilization, if it is to be justified at all, can only be in happy homes, and as Ruskin said, the producing of as many as possible full-breathed, bright-eyed and happy-hearted human creatures.

MR. ALBERT SANDLER, assisted by Mr. J. A. Byfield (pianist), and Mr. J. de Rouette (cellist), will make his first concert appearance in London in the National Sunday League Concert at the Palladium on Sunday evening, May 16th.

The Children's Corner

News From London.

ALL the nieces and nephews who are industriously gathering and sending in silver paper will be glad to know that the third collection has now been sold and that it brought in £4 1s. 4d. for the Children's Hospital Wireless Fund. One small piece of lead or silver paper seems a useless thing, doesn't it? But all the odd pieces contributed to the store which is collected at "2LO" have together been the means of handing over nearly £14 to the Fund in the last few months. We can do with as much as you can send us, and we hope that everybody will help.

Are You "Bird-Watching"?

The children's programme for next week has several interesting things in it. On Wednesday, Mr. William Jewel's second talk on "Nature Month by Month" will be given. Most of you know that his first Talk on "Bird-Watching" has been printed in The Radio Times, and in connection with it a competition has been started. We hope that everybody is competing, and that there will be lots of splendid entries. The closing date for the competition is May 31st, instead of May 15th, as was arranged at first. This is so that competitors may have a longer time.

Nature Talks at Birmingham.

All the children who listen regularly to the Children's Corner from Birmingham will be glad to hear that the adventures in "Wild Folk Land," which were written by G. Bernard Hughes and told in the Corner by Cousin Joyce, are to be continued for some little time ahead.

Yet further good news is in store. Beginning on Monday, May 31st, and running consecutively for six weeks, there will be a very interesting series of Nature Talks. These are to be given by Mr. G. Handley, F.E.S., and the titles are: (1) Inset Paper Makers; (2) The Wonderful Beetle; (3) Something About Tommy Tiddlers; (4) Marvellous Insect Wax Workers; (5) The Story of the Butterfly; and (6) Ants and Their Antics.

Playlets at Plymouth.

Playlets seem to be the thing of the day at the Studio. The children have been especially interested and have sent many letters of appreciation of these efforts. It is expected that, in the near future, the Aunts and Uncles will broadcast some which will directly appeal to the children of the Plymouth Circle.

A Successful Dance.

Nottingham's winter season's work ended in a blaze of glory at the Fancy Dress Dance given on April 9th at the Palais de Danse, Nottingham. Over 750 tickets were sold and many applicants were turned away. Much to everyone's regret, the Naughty Boy was not able to be present, owing to a cold.

MORE BACH AND SCHUMANN.

ON Saturday, May 15th, we shall have the third and last of our Bach and Schumann programmes in the London Children's Corner, and our purpose has been served if we have discovered something of the simple beauty and human feeling in the music of that great ancestor of musicians, whether composers or performers, John Sebastian Bach.

The Italian Concerto for pianoforte has nothing to do with Italy, for Bach never left his native Germany. In Bach's day, Italy was looked upon as the home of the best music, and Bach, in using the Italian form in this work, paid Italy a compliment in describing it thus.

The Quintet by Schumann, two movements of which finish our concert, is one of the greatest favourites among Chamber compositions. This is a style of music which is thought to be less easy to understand than Orchestral music. The general feeling of the Quintet is one of joy and happiness, with its bold and splendid themes of the first and last movements and the merriment and "go" of the Scherzo.

Willow Dell Station Calling.

I.

Imptown wished to listen to far off Willow Dell,

Where at bidding of the Spring
Winds would sigh and harebells ring,
Shadows dance and brooklets sing
And babbling stories tell.

II.

Every Imp then bundled out to see what he could get—

Some went dusting off the stars
All round Jupiter and Mars,
Shook the star-dust into jars
And made a crystal set.

III.

Others to the meadows went. One wee impish seeker,

Dodging all the noise and fuss
Took the queerest pixie bus
Plucked a wild convolvulus
And fixed him a loud speaker.

IV.

Darkness fell, the Imps tuned in, and, though the miles were many—

Heard the fairy wood-winds sigh,
Harebells pealing faint and high,
Dainty music followed by
The Local News, "if any."

V.

Then a Ballet of the Hours was cheered as it deserved

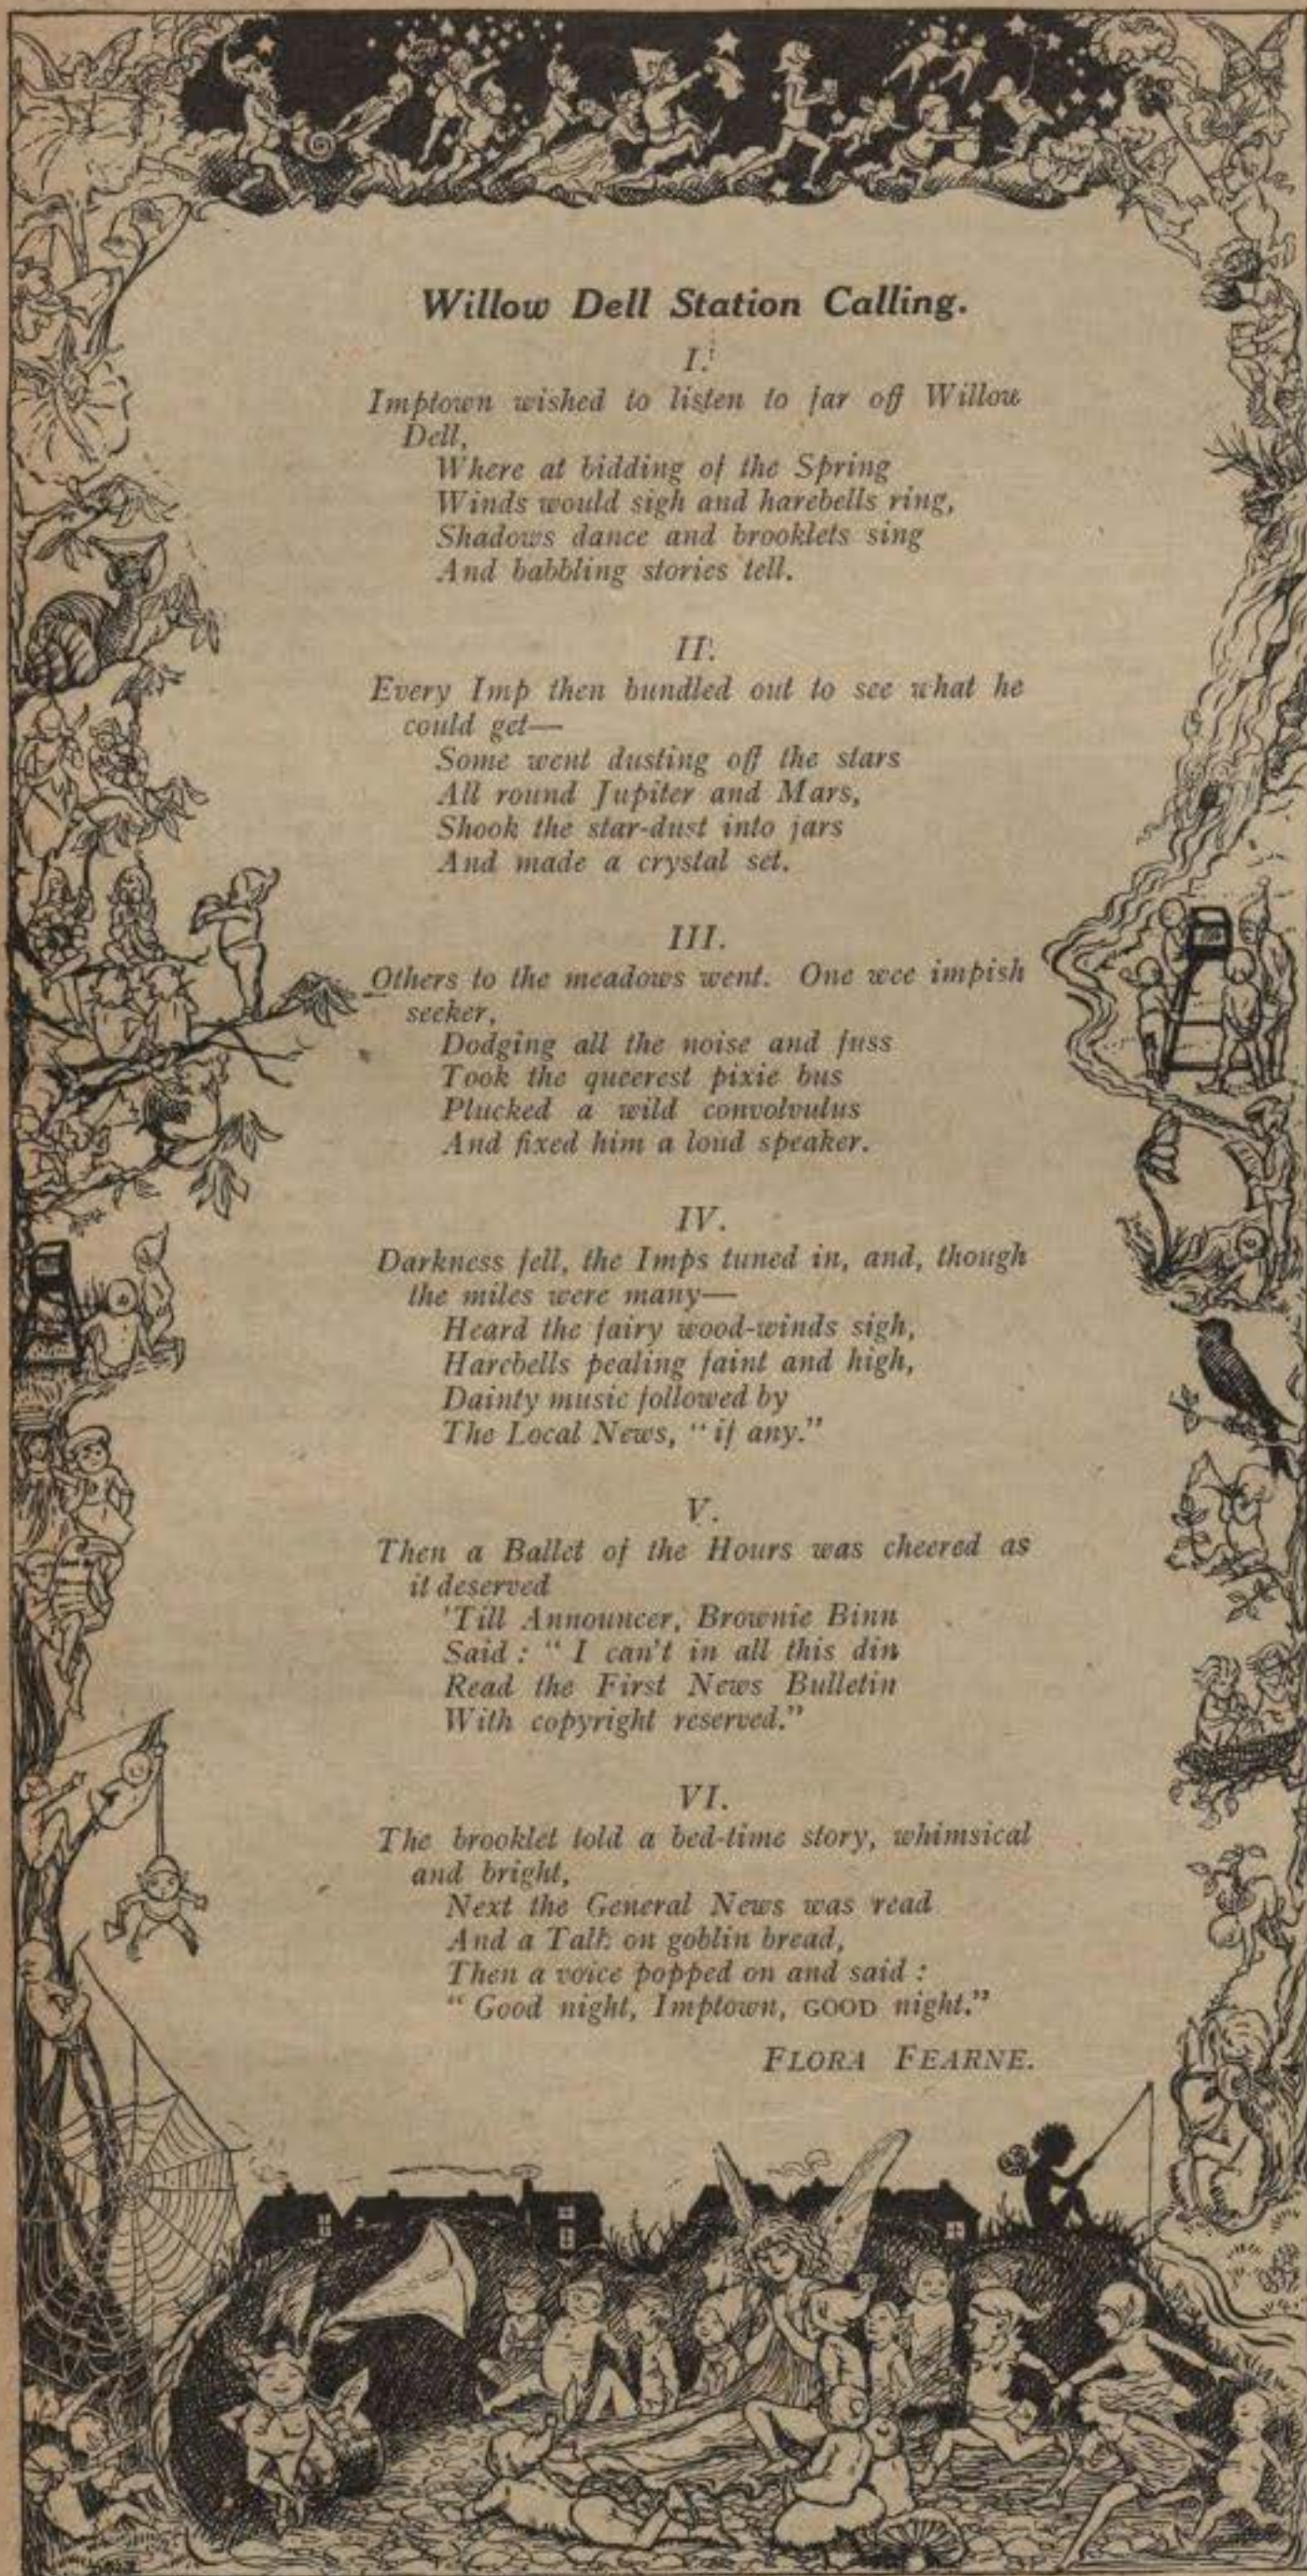

'Till Announcer, Brownie Binn
Said: "I can't in all this din
Read the First News Bulletin
With copyright reserved."

VI.

The brooklet told a bed-time story, whimsical and bright,

Next the General News was read
And a Talk on goblin bread,
Then a voice popped on and said:
"Good night, Imptown, GOOD night."

FLORA FEARNE.

The Broadcast Pulpit.

The Flower-Strewn Path.

THERE is a saying, "May your path be strewn with flowers." That may mean one of two things. It may mean a wish that you may be called to tread a flowery path, that your lot may be a happy one. Or it may be the wish that when you tread the thorny way, you may leave flowers where you have passed, that you may make the lot of others happier. The latter was the Psalmist's aspiration when he said, "Goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life."—The Rev. C. J. Griffith, Cardiff.

A Life of Beauty.

THAT God is beautiful is an article of the Christian faith which is often forgotten. That beauty has many ample and soul-inspiring revelations, for all God's works are full of Him. We must always remember that beauty and ministry go together, and we must learn that beauty has a supreme place in Christian character. The highest ideal of life is an exquisite blend of beauty and strength, beauty to fascinate, and strength to minister. It is not enough that we are righteous, pure, and true. Like Christ's, our virtues must scintillate with touches of gentleness, tenderness and sympathy.—The Rev. A. T. Kinnings, Stoke-on-Trent.

Life, and More Abundantly.

HOW many people we see in whom the finer qualities of humanity are almost entirely lacking, who have little or no appreciation of art or music, no sense of the beauty of wild nature, no real grasp of the meaning of love, loyalty, self-sacrifice! Yet these are things which really matter, which alone give value and poignancy to our existence. Without them, what is life but mere animal pleasure and pain? Of the man whose spiritual nature is undeveloped or dormant, or, worse still, choked and strangled by neglect or misuse, it may be said that he is only half alive, or else half dead. Our problem is, whence comes the vital inward force which can stimulate and nourish the growth of our true selves? The Christian gospel comes to our aid. The fact that Christ came, not to bring gloom and apathy, but that we might have life and have it more abundantly was the great fact that transformed the whole life of the first disciples.—The Rev. F. P. Cheetham, Manchester.

The Road to Failure.

WE long for this thing or that, but our longing is only a royal road to our discomfort, unless we will by patient industry to realize what we desire. This is the magic of the transfiguring power of the Gospel. If a man would upbuild his soul unto salvation, he will find that it can only be compassed so far as he wills to put himself in harmony with the will of God. To this there is no alternative, and only as man is constant in willing things good and true can the work of salvation be accomplished. What is true of the individual is equally true of society. To trust in new conditions merely or in fresh legislation, to place assurance in anything that overlooks the purification of the mind or the strengthening of the will is to court failure.—The Rev. M. Watkins, Belfast.

"BROADCASTING."

In the hushed, curtained room I stood alone
And read my rhymes out to the microphone.
Yet scarce could I believe that every word
I breathed, perhaps a thousand listeners heard.
Rather I felt like some poor ghost behind Death's down-dropped curtain, shut out from his kind,
Desperate to make yet-living loved ones hear
Some fond last message that would make all clear.

A Daily Service for the Sick.

[Listeners are reminded that we do not consider anonymous letters for publication. Preference is given to letters which combine interest with brevity. The Editorial address is Savoy Hill, Strand, London, W.C.2.]

IN The Radio Times of April 9th we read the story of the inception of the splendid scheme to supply every hospital in the Kingdom with wireless sets, and we rejoiced. It is especially interesting to know that a Children's Sunday service, which drew Mr. Keble Howard from his bed in spite of influenza, was the direct source of his inspiration.

Do those who have contributed so generously to bring the benefits of wireless within reach of the pillows of the sick realize the feelings and thoughts of those who lie there suffering? Life is a very real affair, and often a terribly grim affair to a large proportion of those lying in our hospitals, as well as to many others among the B.B.C.'s vast audience, so that secular music and entertainment (however helpful and inspiring some of it is, and desirable as a distraction and pastime, as are the other items of the excellent programmes) fail to satisfy the deep need of the soul in the hours of sickness.

Has not the time come for this great need to be met? Surely, very few, if any, of those who own wireless sets would grudge half-an-hour daily, say, just after the children's hour, for a service consisting of a little sacred music, hymns, a brief reading or address to comfort the sick and suffering and the lonely. The Sunday service is welcomed by us all, but it is not enough.

Over fourteen hundred listeners have already written to the writer expressing their deep desire for such a daily service as is here suggested. Among them are matrons and nurses of hospitals and nursing homes; blind, bed-ridden and incurable and aged folk, as well as many clergy and ministers of all denominations.

It is certain that if their pleading is heard, no item on the broadcast programme will be welcomed with half so much joy and gratitude as this half-hour every day.—K. M. Cordeux, Bushey Grove Road, Watford.

[We welcome our correspondent's suggestion, as we welcome all suggestions that make for the enlargement of the B.B.C.'s field of service. We invite our readers to send us an expression of their views on the suggestion so earnestly and eloquently brought forward by our correspondent.—EDITOR.]

Beware of Radio in Your Bath!

IN your issue for April 16th, you show an illustration of a youthful enthusiast occupying a bath and clad principally in headphones, coupled to what is, apparently, a multivalve set in the background. I don't suppose this is a common practice among children, but possibly a number of your younger readers may be tempted by your illustration to follow suit. But this is a very dangerous practice, as high-tension voltages up to 120 are fairly common and the dangers of shock when the body is wet are very much accentuated. H. T. accumulators of quite high capacities are used nowadays and a shock to a child under these circumstances might have very unpleasant consequences.—H. L. Dewsbury.

The Quality of Organ Transmissions.

IN answer to your correspondents who have written to you on the subject of organ music, I should like to state that I find that the sixteen-foot pedal notes on an organ transmission are invariably present. Of the thirty-two foot pedal I have my doubts, but I believe that these are also transmitted. A change of receiver has proved this, and I suggest to your correspondents who complain of unsatisfactory reception that they change their circuit for one that is more aperiodic. Also I suggest that a cone or paper diaphragm loud speaker is essential, in addition to a horn loud speaker. I write as an old original amateur in radio and also as an organist.—ARTHUR F. BARTLE, Coleraine Road, Blackheath, S.E.3

Listeners' Letters.

I FIND that organ transmissions are very good indeed, the pedal notes (diapason) and trombone stops being particularly fine. The only small trouble is a tendency to distort on the swell organ. My outfit is a two-valve with indoor aerial and large size loud speaker.—E. WESLEY, St. James's Mansions, Muswell Hill, N.10.

RECENTLY, I heard the full beauty of an organ, with the blend of the pedal stops. The organ was in Cologne Cathedral and was broadcast from Hamburg. I listened from 7.15 p.m. until about 7.28 p.m., and then Dublin started up and the resulting heterodyne whistle spoiled it, but whilst it lasted it was really good.—A. L. FIRTH, Linton, Burton-on-Trent.

THOUGH I am not a professional organist, I understand organ music and play the king of instruments, and I find that the sixteen and thirty-two foot pedal stops do not "come through" well when used alone. When, however, a pedal reed is added, or manual reeds are coupled to pedals, they come through well.—M. P. S.

[We have received a large number of letters on the subject of the transmission of organ music. We can assure our correspondents that the pedal notes of the organ are transmitted by the microphone just as faithfully as are the other notes of the scale, but the majority of receiving sets are unable to reproduce them. With a receiving set and a loud speaker that are capable of faithfully reproducing all the frequencies of the musical scale, organ transmissions can be heard very effectively, and the sixteen foot stops of the pedal organ are reproduced in proper proportion. For reasons of space this correspondence must now cease.—Editor, The Radio Times.]

How Loud Are Loud Speakers?

ARE the comments of your correspondent, L.R.C.P., M.R.C.S., concerning the noise made by loud speakers in upper rooms founded on actual experience or on theory? I have never heard anybody complain. Wireless music is not as penetrating in tone as that from a powerful gramophone, and the melody of any song heard through a brick wall would, I imagine, sound so soft and soothing that it would induce sleep, rather than prevent it. Should anyone have neighbours who complain, it is simple enough to reduce volume by manipulating H.T. or cutting out a valve. Separate H.T. leads for each valve are now almost general. Loud speakers in upper rooms can also be turned to face an outside wall about a yard away, and then, though the music can be heard equally well in any part of the room, the volume penetrating to next door is negligible—certainly not "a public nuisance."—GIDEON, Belfast.

POINTS FROM LETTERS.

AN inaccuracy occurs in the well-merited appreciation of Mr. Edward Isaacs in a recent issue of your paper. It is stated that he studied chiefly abroad, and made his debut at a Hallé concert upon his return. Mr. Isaacs owes his early training, at any rate, to the Royal Manchester College of Music, where for, I believe, quite ten years, he studied composition with Dr. Walter Carroll, and pianoforte with Miss Olga Neruda. He was still there when he first appeared at a Hallé concert.—A. R. M. C. M., Tarporley, Cheshire.

PROFESSIONAL singers of both sexes should pay more attention to the pronunciation of such words as "blue," "true," and "you." Most of those who broadcast persist in singing these words as if they were spelt "blēw," "trēw," and "yēw."—G. S. C., Sandgate.

Our Point of View.

The Record of London's S.O.S.

WE print on this page a diagram which will be studied with the keenest interest by our readers everywhere. It tells the story of a unique achievement of which the B.B.C. may well be proud. It shows at a glance the splendid results that have attended the S.O.S.'s broadcast from the London Station during the past year. Who can guess the full significance of the mounting line that indicates the number of successful calls? It tells of many a desperate and tragic appeal going out through the ether, of the miraculous discovery of lost friends, of last reunions and farewells, of the triumph of Love over Death. Here, surely, is one of the noblest services that broadcasting can render to lonely and suffering humanity.

FROM FAR-OFF RHODESIA.

AN interesting letter came to Savoy Hill the other day from far-off Southern Rhodesia. It was addressed to the B.B.C. by the Prime Minister of the Colony, Sir Charles P. J. Coghlan, K.C.M.G., and was couched in these terms:—

With reference to the broadcasting of the Rhodesian Farmers' Talk which the B.B.C. was good enough to arrange, I desire on behalf of the Government of Southern Rhodesia to express to you our thanks for your action, which is highly appreciated by us. The broadcasting in question has resulted in many inquiries being made by prospective settlers regarding the possibilities of this Colony, and the publicity given by your Company to the Talks referred to has been the means of directing much useful attention to the youngest British Self-Governing Colony.

Here is gratifying evidence of the wide-ranging influence of our Talks, and of the increasingly important part that broadcasting is coming to play in the life of the nation and of the Empire. And perhaps the day is not far distant when these same prospective settlers, now prosperous Rhodesians, will be able in their new home still to hear the Announcer at 2LO and to share with their kith and kin in the Old Country the good things of the Daventry programmes.

BROADCASTING AND THE LIBRARIES.

CONTRARY to the fears expressed by some librarians in the earlier days of broadcasting, the latest reports from public libraries all over the country show that in the last twelve months there has been an appreciable increase in the number of books issued, especially in those of a more serious character. We observe that the Nottingham Librarian, in a recent interview, said that in the early stage of the wireless boom an immediate falling off in the demand for light literature was noticed, but the reading of more serious books was in no way affected. Since then interest in scientific subjects has been stimulated among all classes of the community by broadcast talks, such as those given by Sir Oliver Lodge and other authorities, and the natural result has been a steady increase in the demand for books offering wider knowledge than a fifteen-minute lecture can hope to give.

At Hull the books issued during the past year showed an increase of 27,000 over the previous year. The Huddersfield and Sheffield librarians have also testified recently to the educative value of broadcasting, the former reporting an additional twenty to twenty-five per cent. on the books issued a year ago.

In London, too, the evidence runs in the same direction. In Stepney, the Librarian provides a room for a weekly meeting of the local Radio Society. In Croydon, it has been noticed that broadcasting has definitely affected the demand for books dealing with science and other matters dealt with in broadcast talks. And in Woolwich, the librarian reports a new zest for knowledge inspired by broadcasting, in proof whereof, he points to the growing demand for books on scientific, historical and geographical subjects. Plays, too, are being more frequently asked for, and this, in the Woolwich Librarian's opinion, is directly due to broadcast performances and readings.

Thus, another ill-founded reproach against broadcasting is completely disproved by stubborn facts and figures, and those who feared that the coming of wireless would result in a widespread illiteracy and the financial ruin of authors and publishers may rejoice to know that their fears are groundless.

If you oscillate you are spoiling someone else's pleasure.

PLEASE DON'T DO IT.

The B.B.C. issues free pamphlets telling how to avoid oscillation.

Send to Savoy Hill for a copy to-day.

My Oscillating Neighbour.

What Shall We Do With Him?

TRY as I may, I simply can't love my neighbour as myself—when he is oscillating. In fact, I hate him because he is nearly always oscillating.

My neighbour is a broadcasting station in himself. He perpetrates a programme of his very own—superimposed, one might say, upon that of the B.B.C. The squeals and howls that he forces through my loud speaker are superior to all others in the vicinity for volume, stridency and general frightfulness.

Before he selected the particular "receiver" by which he converts my home into a Chamber of Horrors, I used to like him. So did my wife. She held him up as all that a husband should be—home-loving and so forth. He still may be all that, but to the other homes that exist near his own, he does not appear to extend his affection. As far as my home is concerned, he challenges it nightly with a Hymn of Hate.

Argument, reason, tears and threats, all fail to bring home to him the remotest shade of remorse.

Once, I submitted to the torture of listening on his hearthstone. Evidently I arrived too early, for I witnessed a prolonged preparation which he deemed necessary for the enjoyment that was to follow. He twiddled knobs of which he had an infinite number and variety. He "ran over" his accumulator and made as many interchanges of valves as were possible before replacing them in their original positions again. Bullet-like cracks were given off from his High Tension plugs with the frequency of shots on military target practice.

Then, after a final adjustment of the loud-speaker, I admit we heard music. He "tuned in" numerous stations and was clearly of the opinion that none of them knew how to broadcast a programme properly. He treated me to a distorted phantasmagoria of a dozen programmes, two at a time.

Then he turned his destructive attention to long distance stations. Continental and, I imagine, infernal. Every musical item appeared in the same setting, that is to say, an abominable continuity of screams and hisses like boa constrictors at a tea party.

At the end of ten minutes, I was prepared to be rude to my neighbour. In a quarter of an hour I was desperate and chose as my basis of argument his reaction coil. Anything would have done, but that coil made a good battleground. It was of massive proportions and almost over-balanced his "set." As a labour of love (for it was home-made) it was unique, and worthy of the highest praise. I commented on its unusual size. He smilingly deprecated the idea. My longer experience in radio he pooh-poohed as negligible. I remonstrated strongly, wound up by openly cursing the coil as a ponderous cart-wheel and my neighbour showed me the door.

Since then, radio has been a hideous nightmare to me, and I often wish I had bought cigars instead of renewing my licence.

What am I to do with my neighbour? Henry VIII. could have settled the problem decisively, by arranging a short, sharp, ceremony on Tower Hill. Everyone present, with one exception, would have witnessed the affair with real enjoyment. But I haven't the power of Henry VIII., and yet I shall have great pleasure in felling my neighbour with his own reaction coil one evening at eight o'clock prompt, just as the best of the evening programme is beginning. It will be a good deed.

L. HAYES.

Week Beginning
May 9th.

- 8.50. Opening Night. Covent Garden Grand Opera Season. "THE MARRIAGE OF FIGARO." ("Le Nozze di Figaro.") Act II. of the Opera. Relayed from the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden. The Act begins with the famous Boudoir Scene. The Countess (Soprano) sings a little cavatina in praise of love. Then she and her maid, Suzanna (Soprano), discuss the Count's attentions to the maid. Cherubino (Soprano) the Countess's love-sick Page, overhears, and a merry scene follows, at the end of which Cherubino serenades the Countess in one of Mozart's loveliest airs. Suzanna begins to dress the lad in her clothes, so that he may go to meet the amorous Count in her stead. The Count (Baritone) returns unexpectedly, and there is a stormy scene, in which concealments, escapes and the rest contribute to the general confusion; the Act closes with a great septet in which Figaro (Bass), Basilio (Tenor), and the Music Master, Dr. Bartolo (Bass), and his Housekeeper, Marcellina, join Suzanna and the Count and Countess. 9.30.—WEATHER FORECAST AND 2ND GENERAL NEWS BULLETIN. Kreisleriana, Op. 16 (composed 1838): Eight Fantastic Pieces dedicated to Frederic Chopin.
These pieces were inspired by Theodore Amadeus Hoffman's Work, "Kater Murr"—the autobiography of a refined and poetical tom-cat, who, having torn up another's manuscript for pad and blotter, carelessly leaves the two commingled. The clever confusion was a biography of the half-crazed Kapellmeister Kreisler, depicted as a young and impetuous law student who abandons his profession for music; who dreams of ending his life of unrecognized genius by stabbing himself with an "Augmented Fifth," of beheading a "Major Triad" with a "Minor Seventh" and similar "Queer conceits." In his thus inspired "Kreisleriana" Schumann gave us one of his most perfect works.

LONDON NEWS.

LISTENERS will remember the excellent playing, some weeks ago, of the String Band of the Royal Regiment of Artillery, conducted by Captain E. C. Stretton. This Orchestra will again take part in the programme on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Herbert Heyner (baritone) is so well known that it is superfluous to remind listeners of his success in all branches of his art. Then there is Miss Martha Baird, a young pianist from California, who has already won considerable fame in her own country. She adds to imaginative interpretation of the great works written for the piano a wonderfully disciplined technique. At 5.30 p.m., Mrs. Patrick Campbell will appear in the second of the series of Shakespeare's Heroines, playing the part of Lady Macbeth in five scenes. In her last broadcast, Mrs. Campbell was able to convey that moving quality of immediate appeal which is so peculiarly her own. The light symphony programme during the evening will be conducted by Mr. Edward Clark, Musical Director of the Newcastle Station. The music is of a popular, lively type, and includes the well-known "Song of the Indian Guest," from Rimsky-Korsakov's opera Sadko, which will be sung by Miss Janet Hemsley (soprano). From 8 to 8.50 p.m., on Monday, there will be a competition organized by Pearson's Weekly, entitled "What Would You Do?" The competition involves the giving of correct solutions of four dramatic sketches, each of which will end in an ambiguous situation. Prizes to the value of £100 are offered. At 8.50 the second act of Mozart's opera, The Marriage of Figaro, will be relayed from the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden. This is the first night of this year's Grand Opera Season. Explanatory notes on the opera are printed with the programme in this issue. The Chamber Music to-night at 10.0

p.m. will be given by the Virtuoso String Quartet, under the leadership of Miss Marjory Hayward, with the assistance of the pianist, Miss Kathleen Long, who some weeks ago gave some attractive Debussy programmes in the 7.25 p.m. recitals.

The big work of the evening will be the Quintet in F Minor, for piano and strings, by César Franck, one of the greatest composers of the last century. This Quintet is one of the most lovely Chamber Music works ever written.

The variety programme between 8 and 8.30, on Tuesday, will include the fourth episode of That Child, syncopated vocal duets by Johnson and Grenop, who will broadcast for the first time from "2LO," and an unusual entertainment by Datas, who is known as "The Man of Memory."

Later in the evening, the programme is connected with the special Recruiting Campaign in the London Area for the Ground Defences and the Auxiliary Air Force. The popular R.A.F. Band will be relayed from Hyde Park, and at 10.0 p.m. will begin the broadcast entertainment of John Henry, from an aeroplane.

Wednesday's programme from 8 to 8.45 p.m. marks the first broadcast of the Radio Follies Concert Party, composed of artists who have had considerable experience of the technique of broadcast.

The pre-eminently English composer, Sullivan, was born on May 13th, 1842, and it is very fitting that his birthday anniversary on Thursday should be marked by a programme chosen from his many varied and delightful works. The least known of these to be included is his one and only Symphony, known as the Irish Symphony. Other items will be Three Dances taken from the incidental music to The Tempest, the Overture to Di Ballo, and songs such as "Where the Bee Sucks," from The Tempest music, and "Woo Thou Thy Snowflake," from Ivanhoe.

At 10.0 Miss Ivy St. Helier will give the week's feature, assisted by the London Radio Dance Band. Miss St. Helier is the composer of the music of the song which, for many months, was whistled, sung or played throughout the length of England—"Coal Black Mammy." On this occasion Miss St. Helier will give more impersonations of famous stage celebrities and will sing a few songs of her own composition.

The programme on Saturday opens with three quarters of an hour of Humour and Harmony by the Novelty Minstrels, who are appearing for the second time in the London Studio. From 8.45 to 9.30, will be broadcast excerpts from the Brighton Competitive Musical Festival. The feature at 10.0 will take the form of a humorous entertainment by Mr. Percy Edgar, the popular Director of the Birmingham Station of the B.B.C.

The pianoforte recitals during the week will be devoted to further works by Schumann, played by Miss Isabel Gray, and will include (in its complete form) the Kreisleriana, Op. 16 (of which an interesting explanatory note is given in the actual programme), the eighteen characteristic pieces known as the Davidbandler, and Papillons, one of the most popular piano works of the composer. On Saturday evening, Miss Isabel Gray will play the whole of the G Minor Sonata.

"THE MARRIAGE OF FIGARO."
("Le Nozze di Figaro").

Act II. of the Opera.
Relayed from The Royal Opera House, Covent Garden.
The Act begins with the famous Boudoir Scene. The Countess (Soprano) sings a little cavatina in praise of love. Then she and her Maid, Suzanna (Soprano), discuss the Count's attentions to the Maid. Cherubino (Soprano), the Countess's love-sick Page, overhears, and a merry scene follows, at the end of which Cherubino serenades the Countess in one of Mozart's love-iest airs. Suzanna begins to dress the lad in her clothes, so that he may go to meet the amorous Count in her stead. The Count (Baritone) returns unexpectedly, and there is a stormy scene in which concealments, escapes and the rest contribute to the general confusion; the Act closes with a great septet in which Figaro (Bass), Basilio (Tenor), and the Music Master, Dr. Bartolo (Bass), and

- his Housekeeper, Marcellina, join Suzanna and the Count and Countess.

BIRMINGHAM NEWS.

Cathedral Service.

A PART from the relaying of a programme from London, Birmingham's first broadcast on Sunday will be a service at the Cathedral from which, in the past, several effective broadcasts have taken place. Although the services heard by listeners are specially conducted, the transmissions from such a fine building, with its distinctive atmosphere, possess a special quality of solemnity. The special preacher will be the Rev. Canon Guy Rogers, Rector of Birmingham, well-known as a fine orator.

Light Classics.

Following the church service is a programme of "Light Classics" from the Studio. The artists are Miss Norah Tarrant (contralto), and Mr. Adolphe Hallis (solo pianist). Delibes, the famous French composer, will be represented by the Overture from Lakmé, his most popular opera, which, though written comparatively late in his career, eclipsed most of his other work. MacKenzie's Benedictus, written for strings only, to be played by the Orchestra, is interesting in a Birmingham programme, since the composer frequently played as a violinist in the Birmingham Festivals, while several of his most important works were first heard in the city. Gluck and Mozart will also be represented by two arias sung by Miss Norah Tarrant.

Comic Opera.

Offenbach's operetta, The Marriage by Lantern Light, to be given on Tuesday, is but one of the long series of comic operas which that famous composer wrote during his strenuous life. In twenty-five years he produced no fewer than sixty-nine complete dramatic works, many of which were in three, or even in four, acts. Offenbach's career was a constant search after popularity, and he gained it. With his first complete work, Pepito, he challenged the dramatic taste of the Paris audiences of 1852, and in his subsequent pieces he revolutionized the popular taste of the day. He established the Bouffes Parisiennes, and the new form of opéra bouffe found imitators everywhere, while his works won their way into every theatre and still remain successes.

The Birmingham production of this operetta is also interesting from the fact that the production is under the direction of Mr. Sydney Russell, of the British National Opera Company, and will be given by the students of the Three Counties School of Opera. This institution has been only recently formed, and this particular broadcast will be the first public performance by pupils of the school. The operetta is of a rollicking nature and will last some thirty-five minutes. Following it, there will be a new play, The Sweep, written by A. W. Bird.

Mr. Harold Baker.

Probably, at no time has local history been more interesting with so many people as at the present time, and the inclusion in the broadcast programme of a series of talks by Mr. Harold Baker, a well-known broadcaster, on Midland antiquarian matters, has aroused anticipatory pleasure. In this series Mr. Baker will deal with "Old English Features of the Midlands," and his opening contribution will describe the history of the road. Why roads twist and turn and why they rise and fall are among the quaint lore of the past, and it is by study of this lore that the antiquarian proves that the old track ways were developed by means of sights or landmarks such as hills or great stones or sometimes by a churchyard cross.

The overture from The Bronze Horse, a typical opera by Auber (1782-1871), selections from Liza Lehmann's In a Persian Garden, and a dance suite from Phillips' Rebel Maid figure in the evening programme on Thursday, the vocalist being Miss Isabel Tebbs. Mr. Edgar Wheatley will also contribute two violin solos.

BOURNEMOUTH NEWS.

A "Sussex Evening."

ONE of the most important programmes for Bournemouth listeners this week is the "Sussex Evening" which will be given on Thursday. This programme has been arranged in collaboration with the Sussex County Herald and Worthing Herald, and in addition to being transmitted from Bournemouth, will be relayed to the High Power Station. The greater part of this concert will be taken from the Mansfield Hall, Worthing, but Miss Gretta Don will be heard from the Studio, where Captain W. A. Featherstone will also conduct the Bournemouth Wireless Orchestra. The institution of a concert of this nature will, it is hoped, encourage other Southern Counties to follow the lead of Sussex. This type of concert may become so popular that a friendly inter-County rivalry will develop for representation in the programmes: though, of course, it is a matter for county listeners to decide.

Schumann.

Sunday evening's music will be drawn from the works of Robert Schumann, who flourished from 1810-1856. Like so many of those whose brilliance was pre-eminent in the world of Art, he was short-lived; but he composed much that is immortal. Miss Juliette Folville (pianoforte) will play, with the Orchestra, Opus 54, which is the celebrated Concerto in A Minor, and four of the more well-known pieces for piano alone. Miss Diana Webster (contralto) will be heard in six of Schumann's songs, including the wonderful number, "I Grieve Not." The Station Symphony Orchestra will, as usual, be conducted by Capt. W. A. Featherstone.

The Winter Gardens.

On Tuesday night, a Winter Gardens programme of symphony works should appeal to a large number of listeners, the outstanding item being the Symphony No. 4 in A Minor, more commonly known as The Italian Symphony, by Mendelssohn. Sir Dan Godfrey will conduct.

CARDIFF NEWS.

ON Thursday evening, a programme of a distinctly popular type will be given from the Cardiff Station, all the numbers being jolly tunes which will just need the reminder of the opening bars to set listeners humming them. It is not quite summer yet, but, in optimistic anticipation, the programme will have a "summery" flavour. The evening is divided into three portions, the first suggesting some happy sunny summer days of the past, even though at the time a secondary depression over Iceland may be doing its worst! Then the mind-picture fades into "Darkies' Dreams," an excuse, if an excuse be needed, for including "Everything is Peaches Down in Georgia," "Down Home in Tennessee," and a few other popular numbers of the same type. Miss Grace Daniels, who will sing these songs, has often been heard by Cardiff listeners. Later in the evening, "Darkies' Dreams" will dissolve and listeners will be guided to a picture of war-time days. "Tipperary," "There's a Long, Long Trail a-Winding," and other popular songs of the period will find a place here. To each of them there are choruses which everyone can sing.

Another popular evening will be given on Saturday, when Mr. Billy Leonard, the well-known comedian, will join the radio favourite, Mr. Sterndale Bennett, in a joint entertainment. Mr. Billy Leonard has played the lead in comedy for a number of years, among his notable successes being The Gipsy Princess and Patricia. He has also been a "star" on the music halls. This will be his first studio broadcast.

Few cricketers are better known in Wales and the West than Mr. Norman Riches who, on several occasions, has played for the "Gentlemen" in the classic game at Lord's. On Monday, Mr. Riches will begin a fortnightly series of topical talks on cricket, under the title of "Cricket and Cricketers."

NEWCASTLE NEWS.

"Gems of Opera."
A PROGRAMME of "Gems of Opera" to be given from the Newcastle Station on Thursday evening will open with Mozart's The Marriage of Figaro. This work had its first performance in Vienna in 1786, and it was characteristic of the composer that the score is dated as completed on April 29th, and that the performance took place on May 1st. The whole composition had taken only six weeks.

Later in the evening, the Station Orchestra will play selections from Der Rosenkavalier, by Richard Strauss. The scene is laid in Vienna in the eighteenth century, and is in three acts. It opens with a passionate orchestral introduction, about which a good deal has been written.

Subsequently, listeners will hear the Prologue and the Balatella Duet from Act I, Scene 2, of I Pagliacci, by Leoncavallo, the duet being sung by Miss Doris Lemon (soprano) and Mr. William Michael (baritone). The latter will also give the Prologue. Mr. Michael was born in the Swansea valley thirty-three years ago, and began singing at an early age. He was successful in South Wales competitive concerts, and deciding to come to London, entered the Royal Academy of Music in 1912. Here he carried all honours and scholarships, and finished as a Gold Medallist. He joined Sir Thomas Beecham in 1916 and has sung in a great number of operas, and also with the British National Opera Company, of which he is now a member.

The Farmer, Mr. George Henderson (Auld Geordie) and his Wife are engaged in conversation with Mr. D. Crombie-Crabbe, Factor on Sir Eric's estate. Mr. Henderson is in shirt sleeves as if just come in from some outdoor occupation.
"Geordie," a canny-goer, while content to leave business matters largely in his wife's hands, is by reason of his imperturbable good nature saved from any danger of becoming subservient. Mrs. Henderson and Mr. Crabbe are engaged in conversation, while Geordie is scanning a newspaper and smoking a wooden pipe.
Second Mind Picture: John and Tibby's cottage at Little Dun-naird. John Forsythe is a handsome fellow, aged 30. He is just in after his day's work, and is musing and smoking in an armchair by the fire. Tibby, seated opposite, is engaged in
some needlework.

Third Mind Picture: Interior of Estate Office in Langburgh.
The Factor is seen seated at desk. The room is furnished in usual office style. The Factor rises and paces the room uneasily, glancing at his watch. A tap is heard at door on left.

ABERDEEN NEWS.

MUSIC lovers will look forward to hearing the Sonata in D Minor, Op. 108, by Brahms, which is to be played by Miss Dorothy Chalmers (violin) and Mr. Julien Rosetti at the Aberdeen Studio on Tuesday evening. Brahms' writing for the orchestra has often been unfavourably criticized; he is said to have sacrificed too little to effect, because he thought more of what he had to say than of how he said it, but when we come to Chamber Music, it is generally admitted that he is without a rival, especially in giving to each instrument
the passages that seem to be suggested by the instrument itself. His first Sonata for Piano and Violin, Opus 78, shows Brahms in his most mature and congenial mood. The one to be performed on Tuesday is the third of his Sonatas for Piano and Violin, and listeners should be able to pick out the wonderful treatment of a long pedal point in the first movement, the work being also distinguished by a fairy-like intermezzo, full of tender melancholy.

Another interesting programme will be given on Wednesday, when Wieniawski's Concerto in D Minor for violin and orchestra will be played by Mr. Louis Godowsky and the Station Orchestra. Wieniawski was a composer of whose work we do not hear very much and he excelled as a player rather than as a composer.
Born in 1835, he was nominated, at the early age of 25, solo violinist to the Emperor of Russia. He preferred, however, a wandering life of travel,
and an interesting story is told in connection with his last tour. During a concert in Berlin, he was suddenly seized by a spasm and compelled to stop in the middle of a concerto.
Joachim, who happened to be among the audience, without hesitation, stepped on to the platform, took up the violin, and finished the programme, to the delight of the audience.

BELFAST NEWS.

WEDNESDAY'S Augmented Orchestra programme opens with the Overture, Ali-Baba, of Cherubini.
This charmingly fresh eighteenth century music is particularly suitable for broadcasting, as it reproduces better than music that is more heavily scored and more complex in harmony.
The soloist at this concert is Miss Margaret Huxley, who will be heard in *Max Bruch's Concerto No. 1 in G
Minor* for violin and orchestra. Miss Huxley is a young violinist of remarkable promise and she has had striking success in competition festivals all over the North of Ireland. At 8.30 p.m., the London Radio Repertory Players present The Wizard of Wireless, and at 9.0 the orchestral programme will be resumed with half-an-hour of Russian music—including Liadov's arrangement of Eight Russian Folk Songs. These beautiful melodies, enriched by the gorgeous orchestral colouring which Russian composers can command, are typical of the Russia half-barbaric, half-childlike with whose art the West of Europe is gradually becoming more familiar.

Ascension Day.

Thursday, May 13th, is Ascension
Day, and the Station Choir Orchestra will be heard in a brief programme of appropriate music; Lift Up Your Heads, O Ye Gates! from Handel's Messiah, and Bach's beautiful *Ascensiontide Cantata, Praise Our God
Who Reigns In Heaven*. At 8.40
there will be a complete contrast—light orchestral music and two short plays.
The players will be Mr. Halbert
Tatlock and Miss Madge Mackenzie, who come from Glasgow, where they have made a success in radio dramatic work. After the News, there is again a contrasting type of entertainment offered by the Mayfair Glee Singers and Mr. Harry Dyson, who will play flute solos.

Piano and 'Cello Recital

Musical listeners will hear a piano and 'cello recital on Tuesday, May 11th, by Mr. Gordon Bryan and Miss May Mukle. The greater part of their programme is Russian music, but also includes the Sonata in G for piano and 'cello, of Bach, and two movements from a Sonata by Hurlstone, which has not previously been broadcast from Belfast. Additional interest attaches to this performance in that the Sonata
has been dedicated by the composer to Miss Mukle.

Making History

The development in 1923 of the B.T.H. B.5. Valve was an epoch-making event in radio history. It was the first '06 ampere valve produced in this country, and although it has been imitated, it is still supreme in its class

This valve, at one stroke, solved the battery-charging problem for all listeners who could not, or would not, use accumulators. Owing to the extremely small amount of energy consumed by the filament (about $\frac{1}{10}$ of an ampere) ordinary dry cells can be used. Alternatively, a small 4-volt accumulator may be used at an almost negligible cost for charging. For example, a 4-valve set fitted with B.5. valves only takes 0.24 amperes, and can be operated by a 20 ampere hour accumulator for over 80 hours on a single charge.

Apart from its economy, the B.5. valve was found to be extraordinarily responsive to the minute aerial signals and to reproduce them with a purity of tone and fulness of volume never before achieved.

The B.5. valve solved the vexed problem of the portable receiver, by making possible, for the first time, the design of complete multi-valve sets with self-contained batteries.

Equip your set to-day with B.T.H. B.5. valves. They are better and cheaper than in 1923.

Filament Volts, 2.8 volts.
 Filament Current, 0.06 amps.

You'll find the Brown in Holland, too.

HAVE you ever thought, while listening to the evening's broadcast, that millions of people throughout the five continents of the world are listening too? It is natural, though, that wherever Radio is known you will find that people of every nationality are listening with a Brown.

The first Loud Speaker ever to be used in this country for Wireless purposes was a Brown. Now its fame has spread and the broadcasting of countless tongues is being continually and faithfully rendered by Brown Loud Speakers and Headphones. For, Dutchman, African, Indian and Italian—all appreciate the unusual purity of its tone and its remarkable volume. There is naturally a very sound reason for such world-wide popularity; the years that have been spent in evolving the Brown now bear fruit in its universal demand, and Englishman and foreigner alike prefer an Instrument upon which they can rely. The unique Brown principles of construction and the rigid standard of workmanship insisted upon in the manufacture of each individual instrument are not in vain; for only by such scrupulous and conscientious principles in manufacture does the Brown retain the leadership it gained. Wherever you are, if you want to know the pleasures of Radio to the full—hear the Brown Loud Speaker.

CHARGE YOUR ACCUMULATOR AT HOME.

Please state carefully the voltage and frequency of your mains. This information can be obtained from your meter.

Send for our 48-page illustrated catalogue No. 10 free, and for descriptive leaflet of this charger.

Have you alternating current electric light in your home?

If so, write to us to-day and order a Fellow's Accumulator Charger. You simply plug it into any lamp-holder, give a twist to the spindle, connect up your accumulator and leave it until charged.

This charger will save its own cost in a few weeks. To begin with, you need only have one accumulator, because it can be charging when not in use.

Secondly, you will be saved all journeys to the charging station and you will always have a fully-charged battery on hand. Finally, the charging cost is extremely low, working out at about 1d. for 10 hours' charging at 2 to 3 amps.

This charger is perfectly safe; it avoids all mess; it is entirely automatic and has no expensive parts to renew. It is designed to charge 4 or 6 volt L.T. accumulators. But 2 volt L.T. accumulators can be charged if two are connected in series to the terminals delivering 4 volts. Sent packing free, carriage forward on SEVEN DAYS' APPROVAL against cash. It can also be obtained on the C.O.D. system.

THE TABLE-TALKER

YOU and I can't sport a fiver. But for thirty shillings there is nothing within a mile of the Table-Talker. There's enough volume to fill any room in the house, the goose neck horn rounds off the level tones with a smoothness which is surprising, and the special non-resonant material prevents metallic harshness. It's altogether a neat little business. A lever in the base controls the diaphragm, it is 18ins. high and has a felt-padded base. And your dealer will tell you it is the best he has at Hullo Australia!

If further proof were needed of the outstanding qualities of the C.A.V. H.T. Wireless Accumulator, it has been given strikingly and indisputably by the famous Experimenter, Mr. E. J. Simmonds, who successfully—

“Carried out on March 28th undistorted two-way communication—London to Sydney—12,000 miles, the H.T. supply being 1,500 volts of C.A.V. standard type H.T.3 Accumulators in series.”

The report from Sydney emphasises:

“Your crystal-like D.C. note received here 25% stronger on your H.T. Accumulators than when using A.C. main supply.”

CAV H.T. RADIO ACCUMULATORS

This not only goes to prove the wonderful efficiency of the C.A.V. Accumulators, which perfectly maintained their insulation at a considerably increased voltage, but in addition creates a record, for never before had H.T. Accumulators been used for such long-distance transmission.

Although these batteries were not intended for this purpose, this proves the wonderful absence of intercell leakage, combined with considerable INCREASE OF POWER AND PURITY, which is being more and more desired by the average radio user, whether for transmission or reception.

Why not have the best for YOUR set? Decide to get one to-day—and really enjoy your radio.

Do you burn Money?

YOU DO—every time you inadvertently try to put a valve into its holder the wrong way round. An accident that can easily happen, it can be permanently prevented by using the Dubilier Dubrescon.

You just insert it in one of the H.T. leads, and it acts as a permanent safeguard against a sudden rush of H.T. current.

The Dubrescon is not a fuse, but a permanent valve protector, and it only costs 6/-. It does not interfere in any way with the passage of the H.F. currents.

The Fellophone High Tension Unit
For Alternating Current,
Price £3-10-0

For Direct Current,
Price £2-10-0

If you have Electric Light

you should send to-day for a Fellophone High Tension Unit. It is a safe and perfectly simple device which you fit to any lamp holder exactly as you would an electric bulb. Having connected it to the High Tension Battery terminals of your set, you switch on and an inexhaustible supply of High Tension current is at your service. The current consumed is less than that of the smallest lamp in your house, and these units are as safe to handle as a High Tension Battery.

If you are at present using a High Tension Battery of approximately 50 volts, order a 50-volt H.T. Unit; if your H.T. Battery is 80 to 100 volts send for a 100-volt H.T. Unit.

If you have Alternating Current please state the Voltage and Frequency (you can obtain this information from your meter or from your local electrician). If you have Direct Current please state the voltage.

Remember that these Units are guaranteed to give Perfect Silent reception (provided that the correct type is ordered) and that you can have them on SEVEN DAYS' APPROVAL, packing free, carriage forward against cash. You can also obtain them on the C.O.D. system.

They are fully described in our new 48-pp. Free Catalogue No. 10. Have you your copy?

How quickly could you build a 99 volt
H.T. Battery?

In less than 90 seconds if you use the new Lissen 4½ volt units. There never has been a quicker method of making your own H.T. Battery. Each unit is made standard to the dimensions of the ordinary flash lamp, and each one has special clips on the contact springs. Into these clips you just slip short pieces of wire (16 gauge is convenient) linking up as many batteries as you need in next to no time. That's all you do. No container is needed—no soldering is necessary. And the large discharge capacity of these Lissen Units will give you trouble-free service for an extraordinarily long time. Remember, too, that without the slightest alteration each unit can be put straight into a flash lamp for lighting purposes.

Louden Valves

“My Loudon gave at least 30% greater volume, and I was able to make a big reduction in the H.T. supply a welcome economy.”

There must be some very good reason why, week after week, delighted users of Loudon Valves sit down and write us these spontaneous letters of appreciation. If you inspected these letters at our offices, which you can do at any time, you would be struck by one fact which is apparent in nearly every one of them, and that is the delight and surprise of the writers at finding Loudon Valves not only better than they had expected them to be, but even better than any other valves they had tried. When they find that Loudons, besides giving them greater volume, clarity and current economy, actually cost, as the result of our direct through-the-post policy, one third to one half the price of other valves, it is then that they feel they must write us a letter like the one shown below, which comes to us from Clapton.

“The FER Dull Emitter purchased from you in July last is working excellently. I must admit I was a bit sceptical about its being better than the valve then in use, which was a bright valve of very well known make. To my surprise, however, it gave at least 30% greater volume, and I was able to make a big reduction in the H.T. Supply also, a further welcome economy. You can rest assured therefore that it will be ‘Loudon’s’ every time in future for—Yours faithfully, HARRY S. ASHTON.”

There is a Loudon Valve for your every need: Bright Emitters, Dull Emitters, Detectors, Power Valves.

You will find them fully described in our new 46 page illustrated Catalogue No. 10, which we will gladly send free on request.

We give below prices and voltages of the various types.

Remember that Loudon Valves are British in material, are backed by British capital and are made throughout in London by British Labour.

All you have to do is to send us a Postal Order (or you can, of course, order by the C.O.D. System), for the valves required and they will be posted to you fully guaranteed in sealed cartons.

Give lightning an easy way down to a good earth and he will never trouble you.

The easy way down for lightning is by the Climax Multi-Gap Lightning Arrester.

Provides a straight path to earth of very low reluctance. No switches. No shunt effects. Maximum signals. Protected from dirt, damp and other interferences.

THE CLIMAX LIGHTNING ARRESTER - - - Price 7/6

THE BEST EARTH FOR LIGHTNING is an independent direct earth. A gas pipe earth is dangerous, a water pipe is a risk. ANY inside earth is asking for trouble; get a Climax direct earth to-day and be safe. You can use the same earth for lightning as you use for your set, but a separate independent earth is better.

There is no better earth for lightning or for your receiver set than the Climax Earth. But it must be a genuine Climax Earth.

The genuine Climax Earth is easy to instal. Just drive it in. The exclusive plough point and watercourse forming projections are an essential feature. An ordinary tube is a poor earth because it fits loosely in the ground. Insist on the genuine Climax and ensure perfect earth contact. Now available in two models.

CLIMAX GALLOY EARTH for the economist, full size 2/6

THE CLIMAX LOW-LOSS INSULATOR

stands four times the flash over voltage of the ordinary insulator with far less capacity to earth. It will stand a pull of over two cwts., is entirely non-hygroscopic, unaffected by rain, and is self cleaning. The small extra cost is well justified by the decidedly improved reception. Price 1/- per pair.

THE CLIMAX FOLDING FRAME AERIAL.

Ingeniously constructed to open or fold in a few seconds with the greatest ease. The two flat coils mechanically and electrically balanced combine the advantages of both the pancake and solenoid types of windings. A centre tapping is provided for use with special circuits.

The CLIMAX Folding Frame Aerial is very attractive in appearance, extremely efficient and conveniently portable. The stand also folds. Undoubtedly the best folding frame aerial and very reasonable in price.

WHAT would YOU do?

That is the question you will be asked next Monday when a series of short, tense, keenly interesting problem plays will be broadcast from London.

These plays—there will be four in all—have been chosen by the Editor of PEARSON'S WEEKLY. Each leaves the chief character confronted with a problem. Listeners are invited to suggest a line of action and give their reasons.

Four prizes of £25 will be awarded to the listeners from whom the Editor of PEARSON'S WEEKLY receives what he considers the best solution in each case. You may win one, two, three, or all four prizes.

Make a note of the day and time of the broadcast.

- No Trouble

TAKE IT AWAY WITH YOU!

Why not have a wireless set that you can use at home on your own aerial (where it will give all the results that a first-class three-valve set should) and at the same time one that you can pack up at a moment's notice and take with you to the seaside, out in the country, or merely to your neighbour's house. The Fellows Portable Three is such a set. It has an aerial in the lid and can be used either as it stands, when it will give good telephone reception in any part of the country (on several pairs of phones), or it can be attached to an outside aerial (no earth connection needed in either case), when both range and volume will be greatly increased.

The set is supplied complete in black leatherette case with H.T. Battery, 4 volt non-spillable accumulator, one pair of Fellows Lightweight Headphones and three Louden Dull Emitter Valves for £12 0s. 0d. (Marconi Royalty included). Or it can be had on the DEFERRED PAYMENT System for £3 7s. 0d. down and six monthly payments of £1 13s. 8d.

When shut the set resembles a small handsome suitcase, and it can be as easily carried.

Ask to have this set demonstrated at one of our Branches, or send to us to-day and have one on SEVEN DAYS' APPROVAL against cash.

THE LITTLE GIANT; TWO-VALVE SET complete still represents the finest value for money that has ever been offered on the wireless market. For £6 15s. 0d. cash, or 38/4 down and 6 monthly payments of 19/3, you get a 2-valve receiver which will give you most B.B.C. stations and probably several Foreign ones ON THE LOUD SPEAKER, a 6-volt 20 amp. accumulator, a Fellows 54 volt H.T. Battery, 2 Louden Valves, aerial, insulators, wiring, and instructions AND a Fellows Junior Loud Speaker (18ins. high) with adjustable diaphragm. This set also is sent packing free, carriage forward on SEVEN DAYS' APPROVAL. It can also be obtained on the C.O.D. System. Send for yours to-day.

can now also be obtained fitted with a base suitable for Receivers in which American Type Valve Holders are incorporated. They replace the 201a, and the limits of manufacture are such that they can be used without special selection.

TYPE L.525 is a Power Valve. Owing to its low impedance and high emission, it gives absolutely distortionless loud speaker reproduction up to two stages of low frequency amplification. A 30 ampere hour battery will last 100-120 hours, using one valve. The size of the valve is 3½ ins. in height, and 1¼ ins. maximum bulb diameter.

All Burndept Super-Valves are guaranteed. Write for folder which gives full particulars of the complete range.

Accumulator ruined?—more accumulators are ruined by standing idle during the summer than by any other cause.

TROUBLE-free accumulator charging is something to be desired. It can now be realised, if your house is wired for A.C. current, in the Rectalloy Charger—the cheapest, cleanest and simplest Accumulator charger ever invented. Connect the Rectalloy Charger permanently to your Set and Accumulator, and plug-in to a convenient electric light socket. The Charger is thrown out of circuit when reception is desired, and when the set is not in use is switched over so that a gentle trickle charge will keep the accumulator up to concert pitch silently and at a cost of only 1d. per day.

Can you afford to continue paying regularly for charging, with its consequent trouble, when at a cost of only 65/- you can solve your Accumulator problems definitely and permanently?

Another man who had never known really good Broadcasting

"NOW that's what I call a good Set" exclaimed Simpson enthusiastically, after he had heard Chopin's beautiful Mazurka in A Minor. "And yet"—here a note of doubt crept into his voice, "it seems very much like the Set you were using before Christmas." "It is the same Set," I conceded, "but with different valves. You'll remember Clarke who was with our crowd in Mesopotamia?" "Yes, rather, good old Nobby!" "Well, I dropped across him in the City the other day, and as he mentioned that he now had a job with a wireless firm, I asked him to come over and look at my Set. He said the Set was fine but that I was using the wrong valves."

"But I thought all valves were very much alike," cut in Simpson. "And so did I until Clarke enlightened me," I replied. "First of all he gave me an explanation as to how my Set worked. He showed me how the first valve had to act as a high frequency amplifier, the second as a detector, whilst the third valve, he explained, was responsible for obtaining good volume and pure tone from the Loud Speaker. And then he proved to me why these three different jobs required three different types of valve. He had brought with him three Cossor Wuncell Dull Emitters. Taking out the first two valves from my Set and inserting in their places a Wuncell W2 and a W1, he asked me to compare the difference. It was startling. But the most amazing thing was still to come. He substituted a Cossor W3 for the third valve, increased the H.T. voltage, and literally the Loud Speaker leapt into life. I remember a piece called "In a Monastery garden" was being broadcast at the time."

"Oh, Yes, I know it," interrupted Simpson, "it has lots of little trills among the high notes to imitate the birds in the garden." "That's the piece," said I, going on with my story, "the moment he put in that third valve I realised that I had never really known how good Broadcasting could be. All the time I had been blaming the makers of my Set when it was the valves which had been at fault."

"There certainly is a tremendous difference," admitted Simpson, "turn the Set round and let's have a look at these remarkable valves." I did so. "Why," he cried in amazement, "you can't see any glow from them!" "No," I answered, "that is another advantage. They consume so little current and work at so low a temperature that Clarke swears that they will last longer than any other valve on the market. He says that the filament which the Cossor people use is quite different—being made of wire having a very thick coating of some special substance which produces lots of electrons at a very low temperature."

"That must be an advantage," suggested Simpson, "for the extra coating must make the filament stronger and thicker." "Yes," I agreed, "even when one rolled off the table last night it came to no harm. Quite frankly I'm very much indebted to Nobby Clarke for the good advice he gave me." "You can include me in that," said Simpson with a smile, "for it is a long time since I spent such an enjoyable evening."
