Quality, Not Quantity.

By P. P. ECKERSLEY.

[It seems a long time since the Strike. But we have had such a deal of correspondence on the subject of "Why was the transmission louder during the Strike?" that I should like to take this opportunity of explaining to readers of The Radio Times the reasons for their improved reception.

These are facts:—

1.—The mechanism of broadcasting relies upon the fact that we can increase and decrease the intensity of ether waves by "modulating" the very high frequency currents in the aerial of the transmitter.

2.—There is a limit to the extent we can vary these waves without introducing some distortion.

3.—If we admit distortion, we can modulate the waves to a very much greater extent, and so produce louder signals, than if we rigidly refuse to have any more distortion than is necessary, having regard to our present knowledge of technique.

4.—The better the quality of reproduction in receiving-sets, the more distortion shows up.

Thus, for a moderate receiving-set the distortion incident to introducing deeper modulation may be almost unnoticeable. For a very good receiving set, distortion on overstepping the limit is immediately apparent.

In brief, there are two aspects of our transmissions; firstly quality, and secondly quantity. We can have only a given quantity (i.e., loudness of received signal) for a good quality (judged on first-class sets). If be perfectly introduced in the receiver. Once we sacrifice at our end quality for quantity, then the former desirable attribute can never be obtained by the pioneers of faithful quality reception. We look to the listener to have a real factor of safety, so that when, in the interests of quality, quantity must be reduced in the transmission, then the lack of signal strength is not noticeable by the model listener; he merely makes some slight adjustment to introduce more volume at his end.

But the Strike called for special measures. We knew that the one thing of paramount importance was that the news should reach everyone. We knew that a sacrifice of quality in speech would not mean so severe a sacrifice in intelligibility as to defeat its own ends. We knew that there was the possibility of organised interference, not by serious people, but by the hooligans, of the ether; just as there was, to a limited extent, interference with other liberties, not by serious people, but by irresponsible youths and fanatics.

So it was, during the Strike, we felt that the emergency called for special measures, and we definitely sacrificed quality of reproduction of speech for quantity; we admitted "blasting," as this form of distortion is called, and we gave listeners generally

THIRTEEN DON'TS FOR LISTENERS.

1. DON'T OSCILLATE.
2. Don't forget that when you oscillate, you are spoiling the pleasure of hundreds of other people.
3. Don't forget that when your receiver is oscillating, you cannot get the best results from it.
4. Don't sacrifice quality of reproduction for volume of noise.
5. Don't attempt to get on two valves all that your neighbours say they get on three.
6. Don't deliberately oscillate your receiver in order to revenge yourself upon a neighbour who is oscillating; it only makes it worse for others.
7. Don't try to improve your tuning if your results are satisfactory.
8. Don't try to work a loud speaker from a single valve.
9. Don't search for distant stations by their carrier waves.
10. Don't forget that the B.B.C. issues an anti-oscillation pamphlet free on application.
11. Don't forget that when you oscillate, you are disobeying the regulations printed on your licence.
12. Don't forget that reaction should be the last adjustment and not the first.
13. DON'T DO IT!

we sacrifice perfection of reproduction, we can get more quantity.

The policy of the B.B.C. has always been to concentrate upon quality, and to let quantity take its proper place in the scheme of things. Quantity is a factor which can

The Intimacy of the Loud Speaker.

By "Philemon."

IT must not be a very loud speaker. The wise man's advice is that we should tune in for clearness, rather than for strength; and, when you get clearness with just sufficient strength to make listening easy, there is an intimacy about the loud-speaker which is really very alluring.

We, I admit, are lucky; for our loud-speaker is not one of those which is shaped like a huge convolulus, and gives you the impression of a giant opening his huge mouth and shouting to the universe over the top of a wall; but it is a disc of brown paper made taut like a drum. Furthermore, it stands in a dim corner of our sitting-room, which—lucky again!—is lined with old greyish-brown oak panelling; so that, by a kind of protective colour mimicry, the brown disc is extremely inconspicuous.

It was rather amusing the other morning when the parlourmaid, Jane, a priceless treasure of the old-fashioned sort, who had just come to us, happened to be in the room attending to the fire or something, when, at ten of the clock, a pleasant voice and obviously of the male gender, said: "Good morning, everybody!"

Jane, taken somewhat by surprise, turned, and before she quite realized who had greeted her, "And good morning to you, sir!" she said. She had got the intimacy of the thing, you see, right from the start.

A Distinguished Visitor.

In the evenings, when our little room is lit only by firelight or by a shaded lamp, beneath which someone is sitting reading or busy at embroidery, the loud-speaker in its dim corner is invisible. If you looked round to see it, you would not know that it was there. The room is very quiet; faint shadows cast by the firelight quiver on the oaken walls; the cat is asleep on the hearth, and Mr. Cland Biggs has promised to come and play Bach to us.

On the very point of time, a voice which with a little imagination might easily be that of a very superior butler, supposing we had one, announces Mr. Biggs, and the door closes softly. There is no need for us to indicate to Mr. Biggs the baby-grand piano which is open and waiting for him, because he has been here before and knows his way about. He does not even require to adjust the stool. He plays to us—to us two sitting there among the cosy shadows—the A Flat Minor and the A Major, and then, barely allowing us time to thank him, goes out as quietly as he came in. The firelight still flickers; the cat still sleeps on the hearth; but the echoes of great music are about the room. . . .

The intimacy of it! The quiet, homely, friendly intimacy of it!

The Mythical Eight Million.

A few nights ago, Lord Grey of Fallodon paid us a personal visit, came all the way down from the heights of his lordship and from his fishing in Scotland, to give us—us!—his view on the industrial crisis.

The graciousness of it!

It is useless for you to tell us that he was speaking at the same time to probably eight million others. That is one of your fancies! You are pulling our leg! We do not believe in those eight million! They were not there. Nobody was there except just our two selves. We were there, and we ought to know! Our awareness was not that of being one of a crowd of eight million, but of having the great man all to ourselves.

We call it a miracle, and never cease to wonder at it; that the immense organization of the B.B.C. with its studios and offices, its intricate corridors, its terrible closed doors with "Danger" painted on them, should have come into existence for no other purpose than to make appointments on our behalf, down here in the wilds of the country, with Mrs. Patrick Campbell to recite to us, and with the Archbishop of Canterbury to preach to us!

Jane, who is getting on in years and clings to her religion, loves the church services. A chair is set for her near to the loud-speaker in the shadowed corner of the room. She sits enrapt. In a whisper scarcely audible she follows the familiar hymns and prayers, and when, the other Sunday night, the Archbishop had spoken for a quarter of an hour quietly and impressively into her very ear, as if he and she were alone together, and had told her to walk worthily of the vocation wherewith she had been called, she said to her mistress: "Isn't it wonderful, madam? He might have been speaking here in this very room, and to nobody but me! Fancy! The Archbishop—and me!"

Headphones, I imagine, make the machinery of the thing too instant, and emphasize the sense of listening to what is at a distance; but a loud-speaker, tuned for clearness, and at not more than vox humana strength, gives an extraordinary illusion of intimacy.

But the setting must be prepared; the instrument should be conveniently and cunningly concealed, and not set blatantly upon a table, like a voice crying from the house-tops, or like a precocious infant set up aloft to recite "Casabianca" to a family party!

SHAKESPEARE'S HEROINES.

WE are glad to announce that Mr. Charles Ricketts, R.A., has generously contributed a series of original black-and-white drawings to the booklet of Shakespeare's Heroines which the B.B.C. will publish shortly for the benefit of the Stratford-on-Avon Shakespeare Memorial Fund. The following characters will be depicted: Rosalind, Lady Macbeth, Juliet, Portia, Desdemona, Beatrice, Viola, Ophelia, Cleopatra, Katharine the Shrew, Hermione, Katharine of Aragon. These twelve plates in black and white with one colour plate will be published, each with a short descriptive article, in an attractive little volume, and a number of distinguished authorities on the drama will contribute introductory notes.

The volume will be on sale shortly at the price of 2s. net, and the entire profits will be devoted to the Memorial Theatre Fund.

a louder signal. A louder signal, it is repeated, but a distorted signal.

"Why?" asks the disgruntled listener, who for the first time had a factor of safety automatically given to his set. "Why do you not continue? Why should I be deprived of a signal you can demonstrably give me?"

The reply is that we must play for the future when the listener, too, will have a real factor of safety in his set; when his set will be the first to protest, in the bad quality it will give, against a foolish policy of worshipping quantity before quality.

We will not budge from the position, even though it may be in some measure unpopular, of asking people to be thankful when circumstances permit of a louder signal rather than being angry when circumstances compel a weaker. We take up our stand upon quality of reproduction, and ask listeners to have a set which will not worry about quantity, which it is up to them to obtain.

* * * *

The above forms a basis on which to appeal to all to have a factor of safety—a set which takes the rough with the smooth, which on its piano passages still gives a signal. If you go to a concert, you do not complain that the composer has written bars 45 to 86 ppp—your ear has got a factor of safety, and when suddenly ppp becomes fff, you don't say: "Why shouldn't it all be fff?" If you are deaf, yes! But no wireless set need be deaf.

For all sets, let there be this golden rule—let there be a good aerial. The more inadequate the aerial, then, for a given set the more "deaf" it will be, and you will have to add expensive aids to hearing, when all might be done so inexpensively with a good aerial.

If we do a transmission from an "echoey" hall of a piece with little light and shade, we can make it ever so much louder than one from a damped room in which the edges will become harsh unless the general volume is cut down. The differences between light and shade of a musical piece must be maintained, if we are to give an artistic effect.

Listeners must trust us to keep that correct balance between quantity and quality. Have a set which never worries about the power, and you will be helping us as much as we want to help you. The Strike was a time of exceptional emergency, when exceptional steps had to be taken; but we should be prejudicing the future were we to take any but the long view, which sacrifices volume for faithfulness of reproduction.

We ask you, the listener, to remember that you are responsible for quantity, we for quality. We are doing our very best—won't you help us at your end?

LIVERPOOL STATION will broadcast another concert from the Crane Hall on Monday, July 5th. Besides the station's Symphony Orchestra (conducted by Mr. Frederick Brown), two popular Liverpool artists will appear: Mr. Stephen Wearing (pianist) and Mr. Lewys James (baritone). An attractive programme has been arranged which includes Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 5 ("The Emperor") and Saint-Saëns's delightful and seldom-heard Carnival of Animals.

Official News and Radio Gossip.

The Prince of Wales at the Albert Hall.
 THE meeting at the Royal Albert Hall arranged in connection with the National Savings Movement, which was postponed owing to the strike, has now been fixed to take place on Friday, July 9th, when some of the speeches, including that of the Prince of Wales, will be broadcast from London and other stations. The proceedings start at 7 p.m.

The Seaside in Your Home.
 Over a dozen concert parties relayed from various seaside and holiday resorts will be broadcast from London and other stations during the summer months. Those which can so far be mentioned are Ramsgate, Wednesday, June 30th; and Felixstowe, Friday, July 9th. On Saturday, July 10th, band music will be given from Clacton.

Music in the Park.
 Another relay of park band music will be given from Hyde Park between 8 and 9.30 p.m. on Thursday, July 8th, with vocal interludes from the Studio. This will be followed by variety items at 10 p.m.

A New Radio Revue.
 Arrangements are in hand to produce a new revue, somewhat varied in type from its predecessors, for inclusion in the London programme on Saturday, July 3rd.

"Winners."
 A new edition of "Winners," in which will be introduced numerous melodious recollections from revue and variety entertainments, will be given from London and other stations between 8 and 9.50 p.m. on Saturday, June 26th.

Magna Charta Day.
 A service to commemorate the signing of Magna Charta, which is to be held on Runnymede, Egham, opposite Magna Charta Island, on Sunday afternoon, June 27th, is to be relayed through the London and Daventry Stations. The proceedings begin at 3.15 p.m. The Lord Chief Justice, Lord Hewart, will deliver an address. The service will be attended by representatives of the various religious, scholastic, political, municipal, and other parochial bodies and societies in the district. Music will be provided by the Egham and District Prize Band and the massed choirs of the local churches.

A "Double" Play.
 Included in the London programme on Tuesday, June 22nd, will be an item by Mr. Reg. Palmer and Miss Mamie Watson, two well-known comedy artists, who will give an interesting patter and vocal turn. On the same evening an experiment is to be made in broadcasting what is described as a "double" play. First, listeners will hear a little drama, followed by a comedy sketch, after which the two plays will be given together. The result promises to be really humorous.

Opera and Variety.
 Excerpts from the opera Manon, relayed from Covent Garden, will be broadcast from London and other stations between 10.15 and 10.35 p.m. on Friday, June 25th. In a variety programme which will follow, Messrs. Layton and Johnstone (syncopated duettists), who have already made several successful appearances before the microphone, will be heard. Mr. Sidney Firman, conductor of the London Radio Dance Band, will contribute some favourite melodies on the violin, and Miss Mabel France is giving some of her quaint "Aunt Maria" impersonations.

Another Variety Programme.
 Scala, the celebrated banjoist, has been engaged to appear in a variety programme to be broadcast from London on Monday, June 28th. In the same programme, Mr. Lawrence Baskcomb will contribute some more of his original songs at the piano, when Mr. Frank Shield, an ex-naval diver, will descend from the parapet of the County Hall, Westminster, into the Thames and describe to listeners a little trip of exploration on the bed of the river. Some special diving apparatus has been provided by Messrs. Siebe Gorman and Co., Ltd., Marine Engineers, of Westminster Bridge Road, London, and Mr. Shield will have a microphone fitted in the helmet of his diving-suit. Before the actual diving, a talk prepared by Mr. Shield on the subject will be broadcast, so that listeners will be able to follow the subsequent experiment with greater appreciation.

The Mothers' Union.
 Part of the proceedings of the fiftieth anniversary of the foundation of the Mothers' Union, which will be held at 2.30 p.m. on Thursday, June 24th, at the Royal Albert Hall, will be broadcast from the London Station. It will include an address by Mrs. Hubert Barclay on the aims and objects of that well-known movement.

"The Vicar of Mirth."
 The Village Concert, presided over by Vivian Foster, "the Vicar of Mirth," will be broadcast from Daventry between 8.45 and 9.30 p.m. on Tuesday, July 6th, as promised to listeners to the High-Power Station who were not allowed to hear when it was given from London some weeks before.

Verdi's "Rigoletto."
 The whole of Verdi's opera Rigoletto will be broadcast from London and other stations on Wednesday, July 7th, beginning at 8.30, when Acts I. and II. will be given before the second General News Bulletin, followed by Acts III. and IV. between 10 and 11 p.m. Although final details have not yet been decided, the opera will probably be given at the Chenil Galleries.

Last Chenil Galleries Concert.
 The sixth and last of the B.B.C. Spring Series of Chamber Concerts at the Chenil Galleries, Chelsea, which have given much pleasure to many listeners, both in the hall and in their own homes, will be given on Monday, June 21st, by the Virtuoso String Quartet, Mr. Dale Smith (baritone), and Miss Sidonie Goossens (harpist). Novelties of the evening include Eric Fogg's setting of Keats's "Ode to a Nightingale" for baritone with string quartet and harp. This will be its first London concert performance, although it has been broadcast from "2LO" before. It was originally given by Mr. Dale Smith at Manchester, and he is a unique interpreter of its qualities. Another novelty is a Suite of three Water-colours for string quartet by another British composer, John Foulds, chiefly known for his World Requiem and incidental music to at least twenty-one plays, including the recent production of Henry VIII. in London. An early Beethoven quartet, a group of songs by Dowland, whose tercentenary we celebrate this year, and Arnold Bax's Harp Quintet are also included. The last two items, however, will not be broadcast, as they will be performed after 9.30 p.m. It is hoped that music lovers will support the Series once again by coming to this concert.

LONDON'S GIANT AERIALS.
 From these steel-lattice, self-supporting aerials "2LO'S" transmissions are sent out into the ether. They tower 130 feet above the roofs of Oxford Street, and each weigh about ten tons.

and Miss Alma Barnes, an artist who has just arrived in this country from America, will be heard, with her partner, in some fresh syncopated and straight numbers and will give some vocal imitations of the mandoline and violin. There will also be items by Messrs. Clapham and Dwyer, cross-talk comedians.

"Remnant Acre."
 The London programme between 8 and 9 p.m. on Thursday, June 24th, will consist of music by the St. Hilda's Colliery Band and a play entitled Remnant Acre, by Dion Titheradge. The play is a story of a bargain driven by a clever woman who taught a grasping employer that the price and value of a thing may differ considerably.

A Broadcast from Under the Thames.
 A novel item will be included in the London programme at 10.10 p.m. on Monday, July 5th, Pieces in the Programmes.

A Weekly Feature Conducted by Percy A. Scholes.

LISZT'S "MAZEPPA."

(CARDIFF, SUNDAY.)

MAZEPPA was a seventeenth-century Russian who became a page at the Court of the King of Poland. Being found in an intrigue with a nobleman's wife, he was bound naked upon a horse, which was turned loose into the wilds of the Ukraine.

Subsequently, he became a great man among the Cossacks, and a favourite of Peter the Great. His ambition and treachery later brought him low, and he died in poverty.

Liszt's Tone Poem (which he expanded from a pianoforte piece) is built upon a poem in Les Orientales, by Victor Hugo, who took Byron's Mazeppa as the basis for his work.

The furious ride is vividly depicted in the opening of the work. Then a note of heroic pathos is sounded in the chief theme (with its short upward rushes to prominent notes of the melody), given out by String Basses and Trombones. It is metamorphosed, according to Liszt's method, appearing several times in varied settings, and so creating different emotional impressions.

A section in slower time, made up of little motives from the dominating melody and beginning on Bassoon and Clarinet, depicts the miserable plight of the hero when, his horse having fallen dead, he lies "prostrate, wretched, all spotted with blood. The cloud of birds circles round him and stops; many an eager beak longs to gnaw his eyes, burning with tears."

A brief passage leads to a martial epilogue, illustrating the promise in the poem of Mazeppa's future glory. The March has as its middle section a Cossack tune of the Ukraine, that centres largely, at its start, about one or two notes. In the March we have still another appearance of the principal theme.

HANDEL'S "FIREWORKS" MUSIC.

(NEWCASTLE, SUNDAY.)

In the autumn of 1748 the Peace of Aix-la-Chapelle brought to an end the war that ensued on the accession of Maria Theresa to the Austrian dominions.

Six months later, a great public celebration was held in the Green Park. A magnificent firework display was the main delight of the twelve thousand people who paid half-a-crown a head for admission. For this event Handel wrote an Overture and some incidental music to accompany the fireworks.

For an open-air occasion, of course, sonority was more to be sought than subtlety, and the effects in the original score (largely for wind instruments) are accordingly very broad.

Three of the four Movements which Sir Hamilton Harty has arranged for the modern Orchestra are being played on this occasion.

I. The Overture which opened the ceremony begins, in the customary way, with a long Slow Introduction, leading into the main body of the Movement, in which a fanfare of Trumpets and Drums is followed by gay strains from the Strings, Oboes, and Bassoons. Strings and Woodwind answer each other most of the way, the Trumpets throwing in a frequent flourish.

II. In the Sicilian Style. Here the Muted Strings alone present a smoothly-flowing tune in the style of those country dances, popular in Sicily, that Handel got to like so well when he lived in Italy in his young days.

Each of the parts is divided up (Violas and Cellos, for instance, playing the opening phrases in four parts), so that we have a rich web of sound, a monochrome with a great variety of shades.

III. Minuet and Trio. This is a solid, dignified piece in the older, slower Minuet style. Horns, Trumpets, and Drums impart a majestic tone to it.

The Minuet proper is in two sections, each repeated. The contrasting minor-key Trio succeeds, with its two sections, each first given by Woodwind and repeated by Strings.

The Minuet, in still greater pomp, returns to wind up the Suite.

GRIEG'S STRING QUARTET, Op. 27.

(MANCHESTER, SUNDAY.)

Grieg said that he wrote this Quartet when he was seeking peace and refreshment in the country, after a time of spiritual restlessness and sorrow.

I. After a short Introductory section in slow time, the First Main Theme comes, agitatedly. This is a phrase from one of his songs, the melancholy Minstrel's Song.

The Second Main Theme, soft and tranquil, will be recognized as the basis of the slow Introduction.

These themes, in contrasted moods, are discussed and developed, the Movement being rounded off by a Coda that brings in, first, a 'Cello's statement of the theme of the Introduction, and then a swift concluding passage based on the Second Main Tune.

II. This is a Romance, graceful, tender, and intimate. It opens with a 'Cello melody in a major key, in two sections, each repeated.

Now comes a contrast—an agitated section in a minor key, in Variation form. The First Violin has the theme first, and then successively the Viola, First Violin again, and Viola with 'Cello in octaves, take it up and deal with it, using a certain amount of varied detail.

The slower opening section returns, and the Movement weaves to its end with various references again to its two chief tunes.

III. Intermezzo. This is in the rhythm of the Norwegian Halling dance, that is allied to the Scottish Reel and Strathspey. Its chief theme, after a rough Introduction, is in graceful waltz style.

This is developed, and then a contrasting episode of some violence brings us to the middle section, or Trio, in lively two-time. The repetition of the waltz portion concludes the Movement.

IV. Here, again, the theme which introduced the first Movement is heard, but only for a few bars. It is pushed aside by a gay dance in the Saltarello style, in which a hopping step is prominent (three bits in a beat, the middle bit often being skipped over silently). A middle section still keeps up the sprightly progress, but goes along in steadier time, two bits to a beat instead of three.

References to the Minstrel's Song theme will be found, for Grieg seems in this last Movement to have aimed at binding his quartet together.

MACCUNN'S "LAND OF THE MOUNTAIN AND THE FLOOD."

(BIRMINGHAM, SUNDAY.)

Hamish MacCunn's untimely death during the war years, at the age of forty-eight, deprived us of a composer who responded finely to the influences of nationality. His Tone Poems based on Scots subjects, and his Operas, Jeanie Deans and Diarmid, show delicacy, insight, and a power of graphic expression. His Concert Overture, Land of the Mountain and the Flood, written while MacCunn was a student at the Royal College of Music, has as a motto the familiar passage from Scott's Lady of the Lake, beginning "O Caledonia, stern and wild, meet nurse for a poetic child!"

The typically Scots First Main Tune comes at once, on the Cellos.

A new Clarinet phrase leads, through various keys, to the Second Main Tune, like an old love-ballad (Second Violins).

These subjects are worked up into a romantic and exhilarating celebration in music of the beauties of the composer's native land.

A Sussex Programme.

Daventry will on Thursday, June 24th, transmit a "Sussex Programme," relayed from the Bournemouth Station and taken from the Mansfield Hall, Worthing. This was originally arranged for May 13th, but was postponed owing to the strike. It has been arranged by the Bournemouth Station, in conjunction with the Worthing Herald and Sussex County Herald, which newspapers are offering substantial cash prizes to listeners who succeed in placing in correct order six most popular items according to ballot. Coupons appear in all editions of these papers, but entries may be made on a plain sheet of paper if accompanied by three penny stamps which will include postage. They should be addressed to Herald Offices at either Eastbourne, Lewes, or Worthing, and a copy of the paper will be forwarded in due course.

From Bournemouth to Daventry.

A concert from the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth, is to be broadcast through Daventry Station between 8 and 9.30 p.m. on Thursday, July 8th. This is in response to numerous requests.

T.T. Motor Races.

A Fantasia on the T.T. motor races, which has been specially arranged by Major Vernon Brook, will be broadcast from the Birmingham Station at 8 p.m. on Monday, June 21st. The history, aim, and objects of the famous Isle of Man races will be given in a descriptive talk, followed by a scene depicting the senior event of the competitions, including the start of the competitors. An attempt will also be made to broadcast incidents of the race and the arrival of the winner at the grand-stand. Announcements regarding these incidents will be made by the Clerk of the Course during its progress. Appropriate music will be furnished by the Station Orchestra.

Another "Request" Programme.

Birmingham listeners are asked to forward the names of pieces they would like to hear played during a request programme to be broadcast from their local station on Tuesday, June 22nd, but their selections must reach the Studio by the first post on Monday, June 21st. As many as possible of the items sent will be played between 8.40 and 9.30 p.m., and for the most correct entry of the titles of these—incidentally, they will be given unannounced—a prize of one guinea will be awarded.

A Birmingham Pupils' Concert.

An interesting outside broadcast takes place from Birmingham at 7.30 p.m. on Wednesday, June 23rd, when a String Orchestral Concert by the pupils of the Birmingham and Midland Institute, directed by Messrs. Percy Hall and T. Henry Smith, will be relayed from the Institute.

"THE RADIO SUPPLEMENT" CHANGES ITS NAME.

AS most of our readers are aware, the British Broadcasting Company, in its desire to extend its service to listeners, decided last year to produce a weekly journal dealing especially with the international aspects of Radio. While the title chosen for the new journal, "The Radio Supplement," seemed to express well enough the original scope of the journal—an addendum to The Radio Times—giving Dominion and Foreign programmes and news, it is now generally felt that the time has arrived when a change of title is desirable. With the issue of June 18th, therefore, "The Radio Supplement" will become "WORLD RADIO." It will continue to embrace in its interests broadcasting the world over, with the exception of this country, which is, of course, the special field of The Radio Times.

PEOPLE YOU WILL HEAR THIS WEEK.

[Vaughan & Freeman.
Miss ELSA MACFARLANE, who will sing at London on Friday, June 18th.

[Dorothy Widdie.
Miss LAURA COWIE, the popular actress, will be heard as Viola in "Twelfth Night" from London and other Stations on Sunday, June 13th.

YVETTE, "the Quaint Comedienne," will broadcast from Cardiff on Thursday, June 17th, and from Birmingham on Friday, June 18th.

[Norman Mack.
Mr. EDWARD MITCHELL (Pianist) will contribute the 7.25 p.m. Week's Musical Feature, when he will play works by Scriabin.

[Vaughan & Freeman.
Miss HELENE CHAPPY, who will take part in the English Cabaret programme on Saturday, June 19th (London, Daventry, and other Stations).

Mr. FRANK WEBSTER (Tenor) will sing at Belfast on Monday, June 14th.

Miss ADELINA LEON (Cellist) will be heard by London and other listeners on Friday, June 18th.

Miss VIOLET GODFREY (Contralto) will broadcast from London on Tuesday, June 15th (S.B. to other Stations).

Mr. ALBERT SANDLER, whose playing with the Grand Hotel Orchestra, Eastbourne, will be S.B. to various Stations on Friday, June 18th.

Listeners' Letters.

What is Popular Music?

[Listeners are reminded that we do not consider anonymous letters for publication. Preference is given to letters which combine interest with brevity. The Editorial address is Savoy Hill, Strand, London, W.C.2.]

IN his article "In Defence of Popular Music" in a recent issue of your paper, Mr. A. W. Ketelbey preaches a doctrine that is dangerous to music. No sensible lover of the art would deny that much of what Mr. Ketelbey includes under the term "popular music" is good. But there is a kind of music which is better than this, because it is not only good, but great. There is an indefinable quality about great art which eludes analysis. That it is real, however, is evident from the experience of those thousands of us who have won our way through from good popular music to the appreciation of great music. In the latter, we have found a treasure with which the other is quite unable to compare. Since, however, good popular music is the road by which the great must, in most cases, be approached, I trust that Mr. Ketelbey and others will continue to compose it and the B.B.C. to perform it. The critics who dismiss all this music as bad are no less foolish, though, perhaps, less dangerous than those who would have the public believe that there is nothing higher or greater to be aimed at.—"X.Y.Z.," Waterloo, Liverpool.

* * * *

THE mere fact that the popular classics have survived the test of time is proof that they differ in some way from ordinary popular music. I believe that fifty years hence it will be useless to ask for any of the popular music of to-day. Most of the music that is considered high-brow to-day will be popular then, and no small thanks will be due to wireless. The ordinary man is now able for the first time to hear good music cheaply and frequently. He will, ere long, be a high-brow critic himself, and then goodbye to the popular composer. I drink to "The Day!"—LEONARD PEARCE, Victoria Mansions, London, N.7.

* * * *

I AGREE with Mr. Ketelbey. Why should we listeners have so much heavy classical music forced on us just because a few critics see in wireless a chance to try to make us understand it? Once in a week is enough for classical music. What we want is more light music.—P. CONNOLLY, Chapel Street, Cheadle, Cheshire.

* * * *

THE simplest test of the merit of music is its lasting quality. The ephemeral ear-tickers which Mr. Ketelbey extols generally enjoy a popularity of a month or so and then become wearisome and die a natural and unlamented death, while the works of the great masters are immortal. Good music may not be fully appreciated when first heard, but each renewal of its acquaintance reveals fresh beauties, while bad or indifferent music may please the ear at first, but quickly grows stale.—W. H. MERRIMAN, Hartington Road, Chiswick, W.4.

* * * *

MR. KETELBEY has, I believe, put into words the thoughts of literally millions of listeners in the British Isles. I suggest that his article be set up (every word of it) in large type and hung before the desk of every compiler of the B.B.C. programmes.—ARNOLD D. SYKES, Waterloo Road, Nottingham.

* * * *

MR. KETELBEY has correctly voiced the opinion of about ninety-five per cent. of the listening public.—CHARLES E. GULLY, Osborne Avenue, Ashley Down, Bristol.

* * * *

WHY popular music should need to be defended, I do not know. Possibly it is because its life is bound to be shortened as a result of broadcasting. People will get tired of it quicker.—DENNIS LAUGHTON, Heworth Green, York.

The Misuse of Charging Apparatus.

MANY people are purchasing battery charging apparatus. If this apparatus is not correctly adjusted a large amount of interference is caused to broadcasting, especially from Daventry. In most cases, however, the interference stops at about seven o'clock for the evening transmission, but as Daventry transmits during the day, this interference is annoying. Listeners who have charging apparatus should switch on and listen to Daventry at the same time.—J. T. THORNTON, A.M.I.R.E., Fartown, Huddersfield.

The Popularity of Brass Bands.

AS one who has championed brass band music for years, I believe that these bands are at last coming into their own. I have taken particular notice when I have been visiting friends. They have always expressed their pleasure when they have come to an item by a brass band in any of your programmes.

In giving consideration to brass band music, you are assisting in a very large degree a section of listeners, and bandsmen too, who are trying hard to bring brass bands into the position they deserve in popular favour.—THOS. SHARPLES, Rawcliffe Hall, nr. Blackpool.

A Note from "Kirkoobri."

RECENTLY in The Radio Times the pronunciation of Kirkcudbright was given as "Kikoobri." As an old Kirkcudbright boy, will you permit me to say that I never once heard "Kikoobri" except in London, but I put the London style of pronunciation down to the usual neglect of the "r" by the Londoner in such words. The Londoner (whom I love) generally makes up for his neglect, however, by adding an "r" at the end of words where there is none.—"KIRKOOBRI."

[We are indebted to our correspondent for pointing out a regrettable misprint. The word, as he points out, should have been spelled "Kirkkoobri."—EDITOR, The Radio Times.]

GRIEG FOR THE CHILDREN.

EVERYBODY knows Grieg and his favourite Peer Gynt Suite; for this is a case of a composer's name becoming known all the world over through one piece of music. These pieces were written to illustrate the episodes of Ibsen's drama, and so cleverly has Grieg depicted Peer Gynt's life that the story has become more widely known in its musical version than in its dramatic form. The two movements included in the children's programme from London on June 18th make a strong appeal to us all, the first describing the scene when Peer Gynt returns home to find his mother, Ase, on her deathbed, and the second, the performance of Anitra, the Eastern dancing girl whom Peer Gynt meets on his later travels.

In modern times, a Concerto is a work for a solo instrument, with orchestral accompaniment, in three or four movements like the Symphony, and composers usually contrive to show both the possibilities of the solo instrument and the skill of the performer to the best advantage. In the early Concertos of Handel and Bach, however, there is much less prominence given to the solo instruments, and two or three are often used, instead of one, as in later Concertos. In the Handel Concerto which we hear this week there are solo parts for three instruments, two violins and a cello; but these are merged into the general scheme, rather than being the principal characters in the piece.

The Wireless Boy.

By His Teacher.

IT would be interesting to record the number of homes which owe the installation of wireless to the initiative of a schoolboy member of the family. Long after handwork sets and the like have been forgotten, wireless still retains its fascination for the average schoolboy.

Quite recently, a young enthusiast told me he had sold his pet dog in order to obtain the money with which to purchase certain parts that were necessary for the construction of a radio set. It was then that I discovered that the fascination of wireless for the boy does not lie so much in listening as in the actual construction of the set.

The building of his own set has demanded much more than mere slavish imitation from the boy. In facing the problem and succeeding, he has shown a resourcefulness and a grasp of intricate detail which no one would have credited him with. He has studied and mastered complicated diagrams with a pertinacity and skill that leave us wondering where the secret of it all lies. We have not far to seek for the answer. The boy has become interested through self-directed activity.

Wireless has afforded the boy a natural way of learning. He discovers his mistakes for himself, instead of having them pointed out by someone else. Where instructions have been misread or misinterpreted, the errors are pointed out in a very plain and practical fashion; the set simply does not "speak"; something must be wrong. This process of trial and error until a correct solution of the problem is found appeals to the mind of the average boy in a way that no other method can.

The Stimulus of Broadcasting.

People who come into daily contact with boys are amazed to hear them talk on wireless in a new and highly technical language. But this development is not confined only to the scientific vocabulary of radio. Every day, boys and girls throughout the length and breadth of the land hear the English language spoken correctly over the sets which they themselves have made. This has, without doubt, stimulated them to improve their own pronunciation of the mother tongue.

Often when a boy in a class pronounces a word incorrectly, eager hands are thrust forward to correct him. "Who told you that?" asks the teacher.

"I heard it over the wireless, sir," is frequently the answer.

Information picked up in this way "sticks" far better than knowledge gleaned from books.

Even the dull boy has had his interest stimulated by wireless and can nowadays often divulge information with the best in the class. More often than not he displays greater aptitude in the construction of a set than does his clever classmate.

There is, I believe, practically no limit to the extent to which the lives of our boys are being influenced by wireless.

A boy who came to me a few days ago and inquired about the best way to get to Australia affords a typical example. He had heard a talk on emigration, and was fired with an enthusiasm to emigrate.

The B.B.C. has a grave responsibility in this matter. Its influence on the citizens of to-morrow is second only to the influence of our schools and homes.

OSBORNE B. PASK.

BELFAST listeners will be introduced to a new humorist during the programme on Tuesday, June 22nd, when Mr. Harry O'Donovan will contribute a number of items. Mr. O'Donovan comes from Dublin, where he has given many popular broadcast performances.

Holiday-Making With Dickens.

By Ernest Rhys.

DICKENS is speaking, and he is on holiday at Broadstairs.

"It is the brightest day you ever saw. The sun is sparkling on the water so that I can hardly bear to look on it. The tide is in and the fishing-boats are dancing like mad."

That was at the seaside, when the sun was shining. Now, take for contrast Dickens on a Highland holiday, with rain everywhere.

"I was not at all ill pleased to have to come again through that awful Glencoe. It had been tremendous on the previous day, yesterday it was perfectly terrific. It had rained all night, and was raining then, as it only does in these parts. Through the whole glen, which is ten miles long, torrents were boiling and foaming, and sending up in every direction spray like the smoke of great fires. They were rushing down every hill and mountain side, and tearing like devils across the path, and down into the depths of the rocks. Some of the hills looked as if they were full of silver, and had cracked in a hundred places. Others as if they were frightened, and had broken out into a deadly sweat. In others there was no compromise or division of streams, but one great torrent came roaring down with a deafening noise, and a rushing of water that was quite appalling. Such a spate, in short (that's the word), has not been known for many years, and the sights and sounds were beyond description. The post-boy was not at all at his ease, and the horses were very much frightened (as well they might be) by the perpetual raging and roaring; one of them started as we came down a steep place, and we were within that much—of tumbling over a precipice."

Notice the holiday zest, the sheer enjoyment, with which Dickens enters into both these adventures. He was a terrific worker, but when his work was over, he liked what his biographer, Forster, calls the "luxury of laziness," and if he had to get wet through in the Highlands, as he did with a vengeance in the Pass of Glencoe, he managed to knock a lot of fun out of that, too.

The Youthful Boz.

Try to picture him now as he was when in holiday mood and in the flush of his first success. Those were the days when he was writing "Pickwick." At that time he had a great look of youth, a very spirited, open expression, a head of rich brown hair with flowing locks, a joyous, keen glance, and eyes as bright as those of Burns, the poet. "What a face is his," said Leigh Hunt, after first meeting him. "It has the life and soul in it of fifty human beings!"

As for his clothes, he was very fond of dress; liked to sport a velvet jacket, and a smart neckcloth in the fashion of those days, and no doubt when he started out for a day's holiday, as he was fond of doing, he made himself smarter than usual. In fact, just the companion for one's holiday-making, full of good humour and high spirits and with a great feeling for what all delight in—a Saturday escape from town.

I went the other day to see the house in Doughty Street, off Bloomsbury, where Dickens lived for two or three years not long after his marriage. No. 48 is a nice, demure, old-fashioned-looking house which is very much in the state it was in when Dickens lived there. It has many relics of the novelist, every imaginable edition of his books, many manuscripts, and no end of portraits showing him in every phase from a handsome young man to a rather worn, but very expressive middle-aged one, or one still older whose hair is getting thin and who has lost the smooth chin that gave him an almost girlish look in some of the early portraits. Perhaps the most striking relic of all is a small, square, four-paned attic window which used to light the attic he slept in as a boy.

As you stand at the door of No. 48 (and, by the way, you can get in to see it any weekday by paying a shilling), you can still imagine that you can see, as he often did, a horse being brought round from the nearest livery stable, and this handsome young hero, got up in character for the occasion, mounting it and riding off to Hampstead Heath or some point up the River.

[From an original drawing by Sata.]

the well-known author and literary critic and editor of the famous "Everyman Library." Mr. Rhys is numbered among the great host of Dickens lovers, and we are glad to publish on this page a Talk he gave recently from the London Station on Dickens as a holiday-maker.

No doubt, it was his experiences on these horse-back excursions, while he was still a rather inexperienced rider, which helped him when he came to writing the famous account in "The Pickwick Papers" of Mr. Winkle's ride to Dingley Dell. "Pickwick" is a sort of holiday encyclopaedia in itself, with almost every absurd adventure and comic catastrophe in it that could befall a man in those days before the railways came, and when the coaching roads and the coaching inns were the delight and torment of travellers.

Dickens's letters are full of holiday glimpses. He describes a journey north to Greta Bridge, Yorkshire, when he went so far in the Glasgow Mail. At eleven at night he tells how they reach a lonely inn in the midst of a dreary moor, with no lights visible in the house.

"It was fearfully cold and there were no signs of anybody being up. But, to our great joy, we discovered a comfortable room, with drawn curtains and a most blazing fire. In half an hour they gave us a smoking supper."

He had with him on this Yorkshire journey "Phiz"—Hablot K. Brown, the artist who illustrated so many of his books. Dickens describes with great relish how they found in their bedrooms rousing fires half-way up the chimney. He does not forget to describe their breakfast next morning: toast, cakes, a Yorkshire pie, a piece of beef the size of his portmanteau, tea, coffee, etc.

Dickens always had a huge feeling for food. It has been calculated that in "The Pickwick Papers" there is more eating and drinking than in any other English novel. But you must remember what a pinched and starved boyhood he had, when his father was in the Marshalsea Prison, and he went as a poor little ten-year-old to work in a blacking factory and often had only a penny roll for his dinner. It seemed that for the rest of his life he was trying to make up for that small boy's purgatory. So you find in his novels and in his letters he constantly rings the changes on the subject of food in plenty, and I suspect he created the Fat Boy in "Pickwick" as a sort of symbolic contrast and set-off to his own lean and underfed boyhood.

You will remember, too, in the "Old Curiosity Shop," with what relish he describes Dick Swiveller's house-mate, the little starveling Marchioness. Surely, the scene where Dick brings her a heaped-up plate of bread and beef and a pot of fragrant purl, so that her hunger is satisfied almost for the first time in her life, is one of the great moments in fiction.

The Spirit of Fun.

It may seem that I am getting away from the holiday idea in Dickens, but, in fact, Dick Swiveller is, in some sort, an incarnation of that spirit of fun and merriment which counted to Dickens as one of the essential things in life.

I have not said anything about Dickens's holidays abroad, because he was in his best form when he was on the soil of his own country. But he did go to Italy several times and he was very fond of Paris, and you know with what effect he has worked the Paris scenes into his "Tale of Two Cities." In Italy it was Venice that struck him more than any other city. "The Wonder of the World," he called it:

"Dreamy, beautiful, inconsistent, impossible, wicked shadowy, damnable old place. I entered it by night and the sensation of that night, and the bright morning that followed, is a part of me for the rest of my life."

In Dickens's philosophy of holiday-making, he makes a great deal of that everlasting pleasure which remains in the memory of places seen and adventures joyously gone through—which, as he put it, became a part of him for the rest of his life. So it was that for him places had as much individuality as people themselves.

What I find about Dickens in reading his books and his life and letters, is that he is still so alive and so companionable a creature. He was the great Broadcaster of Human Nature, before broadcasting, as we know it, was invented. And he was a master holiday-maker, and the next time you want to whip up your holiday appetite, throw criticism to the dogs and go holiday-making with Dick Swiveller, Mr. Pickwick, and Sam Weller.

How to Make a Book of Flowers.

By William Jewell.

IN this article I am going to do exactly as I did when I talked to you about birds and bird watching in The Radio Times of April 30th. That is to say, I shall try to tell you the sort of thing to look for and where to look. I shall also explain how to get specimens, how to carry them home and what to do when you get them there. Lastly, I am going to give you hints about making your own story book of what you do.

Before you can get very far, you must know something about the different parts of flowers. If you go out into the fields, you can quite easily find some common flower that will help you to understand many others. A buttercup will do very well. Pull it gently out of the ground, and examine its roots very carefully. You will find that some of them are big and some are little. The two sorts are not only different to look at; they do different work. The big roots are the older ones, and their job is to act as anchors, keeping the plant firmly in the ground—especially when the weather is wet and stormy. The little roots are younger. If you look closely at them, you will see that they are white or light yellow at the tips, and that they are covered with what look like whiskers. These roots are very important because it is by means of them that the plant gets its food out of the ground. With the help of the tiny whiskers, they suck up a good many things into their white tips.

When you have examined the roots, you should look at the stem of the plant. You will find that it is very strong for its size, and that it has a thick skin to stop small insects from biting their way in. The stem is very important, because not only does it form a channel for the food, but it also holds the flowers up above whatever is round about, and so helps them to get the light and the air which they must have.

Now we come to the leaves. If you were to pull off a piece of the surface of a leaf and examine it under a microscope, you would find that the whole thing is made up of a lot of little holes, or cells, exactly like a honey-comb made by bees for storing their honey. The cells in the leaf are in pairs—just like a tiny mouth, every pair of cells forming lips, as it were. Through all these little mouths the plant breathes.

Consider the Wild Rose.

Now I'm going to take two or three common wild flowers that I want you to go out and find for yourselves, so that you can begin your flower study. Let us take first of all the wild rose—which is interesting and a great favourite. You will find it growing on a fairly large bush, at the end of long, curving branches which are covered with sharp prickles. The flowers nearly always grow singly, and not in groups. If you look at the leaves, you will find that there's one big leaf divided into five small ones with notched edges. If you count the flower leaves, you'll find that there are five of them, and that they are a delicate pink colour. The best place in which to find the wild rose bush is in an ordinary hedge or a small wood.

While you are walking along the hedgerows looking for a wild rose, you may quite likely come across the honey-suckle, which is sometimes called the woodbine. This is a climbing plant which twines itself round the trunk of some strong bush in the hedge, and pokes its head out of the top to get lots of sunlight. The leaves are pretty much the same shape as an egg, and they are pointed. If you look at them carefully, you will find that those that grow low down the stem near the foot of the plant are on short stalks. Higher up, the leaves have no stalks, but begin quite close to the stem. They are always in pairs, one on either side. The flowers are like a lot of long drinking-horns such as a fairy might use, and they are often brimming full of sweet-smelling honey. Out of them grow little stems with tiny round crimson parts at the end. You can find the honey-suckle almost anywhere nowadays, on top of a hedge, in lanes and in woods.

There is one more common flower for you to go out and find in order that you may begin to study flowers properly. This time we'll have a plant from the meadows—a golden buttercup, which is a very easy thing to find.

The proper botany name of the buttercup is "crowfoot" and the sort that grows in meadows is known as the Bulbous Crowfoot. You all probably know what a bulb is. If you look at the meadow buttercup you will see that it is called bulbous because just below the ground it has a little bulb, or swelling, shaped like a small turnip. The meadow buttercup has yellow petals which form a cup. The plant grows to a height of somewhere between six inches and a foot.

A Collector's Outfit.

I have given you descriptions of three common flowers which will show you the kind of thing to look for. Now I'm going to tell you what you ought to carry in your pocket. First of all, you want a rough note-book and a pencil. Even if you are not able to collect specimens, you can at all events write down exactly what you see. Whenever you find a plant that you would like to study, write down the date when you first found it. Later on, put in the dates when you see the first bud, when the bud opens, when the plant is in full bloom, and when the flowers die away. Opposite each date give a short description of what has happened. Somewhere or other in your notes there should also be a full description of the plant.

If you are really interested, you'll want to get specimens and bring them home and mount them. You will certainly want something to carry them in, so as to keep them from drying or being injured. A good big tin does best for this, because its sides don't crush the flowers, if you happen to fall on it or bump it against a tree or a wall. You should sprinkle water over the specimens to keep them fresh when they're in the tin.

When getting specimens, you will find a pen-knife, a pair of pocket scissors and a small pair of tweezers very useful. A knife is needed for cutting thick branches, but for thin, delicate stems which would be torn by the knife, you should use the scissors. Be sure never to handle delicate plants or flowers any more than you can help. The small tweezers are very useful, both when you are out collecting and when you are at home, because they help you to hold the plant and do things with it more neatly than you can do them with your own fingers.

Mounting Your Specimens.

When you get your specimens home, you will probably want to press and mount them, so that they can be kept. This has to be done very carefully, or they won't last. The great thing is to get rid of every single drop of moisture. To do this, you should put the specimens between pieces of thick blotting paper in a dry room where there is no fire. The pressing has to be done gradually, so you mustn't put something heavy on the blotting-paper at first. Try to find several books about the same size. Put one on the top of the blotting-paper the first day, and add another each day for five or six days. Every time you add another book, you should change the blotting-paper. Before you start to press the specimen at all, you should spread the various parts of it so that you get the most complete and the most pleasing arrangement.

When your specimens are dry and pressed, they should be mounted in a book. Put all the specimens on the left-hand pages, fastening them in position with narrow strips of sticky paper or linen. Opposite, you should write the complete description of all that happens in the life history of that particular flower, as you have found it out by your own efforts.

The Children's Corner

Uncle Pongo's Aeroplane.

THE other day, Uncle Pongo turned up at the Bournemouth Studio in his aeroplane. This was the first time this year. It has been undergoing a thorough overhaul during the winter months, and has been fitted with a new engine of the latest type—something between a sewing machine and the kind that drives a steam roller.

Uncle Allan was greatly excited, and they at once decided to take a trip. Of course, there was a tremendous roar when the new engine was started up, and away they went. The direction they should take was soon decided by the wind, which was blowing from the west, so they were at once carried towards the Isle of Wight.

Uncle Allan got quite agitated when they were passing over the Needles, and expressed his feeling of having no desire to land on a point like that. Various other well-known places were sighted. When Uncle Pongo pointed out Cowes to Uncle Allan, it caused a lot of trouble; the latter suddenly remembered that he was thirsty, and wanted nothing better than a glass of fresh milk. Anyhow, having circled round Carisbrooke Castle once or twice, they passed over Yarmouth and followed the coast back to Bournemouth and the Studio.

Both the Uncles enjoyed the trip, which was certainly done in record time, and they are looking forward to many more during the summer.

"Egg Week" at Swansea.

The Radio Sunbeams in Swansea and district have been hard at work collecting eggs for the Swansea Hospital. A special "Egg Week" was organized and everyone was invited to help.

"Chick, Chick, Chicken" was sung every evening during the Children's Corner, and a real live chicken paid a visit to the Studio and was broadcast. The hens in the area rose, or rather laid, to the occasion splendidly, and the Radio Sunbeams were able to send 1,430 eggs as their contribution to "Egg Week."

There were one or two tragedies behind the scenes. Aunt Mary is still in disgrace for breaking two big brown eggs, and one egg exploded at the Studio with terrible results to the office-boy's new brown suit. The casualties, however, were light, and we hear that very few of the eggs failed to pass the electric test at the hospital.

One family of Radio Sunbeams in Gowerton were particularly successful and collected 200 eggs during the week.

A Picnic at Monikie.

The Dundee Radio Circle members were in real holiday mood on a recent Saturday, when the first annual picnic took place to Monikie. Over 200 wee folks were present, and the fun waxed fast and furious. There were races and games of all kinds, and also competitions galore. It would take this whole page to tell of the numerous incidents and funny episodes which occurred during the day, but that it was a huge success was the verdict of all. Returning from Monikie in the train, the members were eagerly discussing next year's picnic!

Aberdeen at the Seashore.

We all like gathering shells by the seashore, and sometimes, when we pick up these wonderful purple and pink and white houses, we wonder what the owners of them were like. Well, Auntie Dorothy is going to tell us all about shells and their inhabitants when she comes to the Children's Corner at Aberdeen on June 21st.

Uncle Harry whispers that he has overheard the Orchestra saying that they are going to the seashore, too! But not for shells. Oh, no! Uncle Jim, of course, is going to fish for kippers with his piece of hat elastic, while Uncle Andrew is going to try to find out from Father Neptune what he uses to make his beard grow such a beautiful bright green!

North of the Tweed.

Gossip from our Scottish Stations.

Miss Daisy Kennedy at Glasgow.

GLASGOW listeners will have an opportunity of again hearing Miss Daisy Kennedy, the famous violinist, on Monday, June 28th, when she will play the Poem for pianoforte and string quartet, by Ernest Chausson, the French composer, who was killed in a bicycle accident in 1899.

A Bach Concerto.

The performance of a Bach concerto for oboe d'amore and orchestra will be a unique feature of the Glasgow programme on Wednesday, June 30th. The oboe d'amore is one of the least known of the large family of reed instruments, and was practically obsolete till quite recently. Bach made considerable use of the instrument, but at the present time there is only one in existence in Scotland, which is in the possession of Mr. Thomas Greig, who will perform upon it on June 30th.

An interesting point about this concerto by Bach is that it has been known for many years, but as a concerto for the clavier, and not for the oboe d'amore, and it was only recently that Professor D. F. Tovey, of the University of Edinburgh, discovered that the composition, which is known to pianists, was really an arrangement, probably by Bach himself, of the work for the oboe d'amore.

Dr. Millar Patrick at the Edinburgh Studio.

The Studio service from Edinburgh Station on Sunday, June 27th, will be conducted by the Rev. Millar Patrick, D.D., of Craigmillar Park United Free Church, assisted by the choir, under the direction of Mr. R. G. Gray.

Edinburgh's Local Programme.

The local programme from the Edinburgh Station on Wednesday, June 30th, will include cello sonatas by Saint-Saëns and Boëllmann, played by Mr. Chester Henderson (cello), and Mr. L. Shepherd Munn (pianoforte). Songs will also be sung by Miss Marion Richardson (mezzo-soprano), and the lighter side of the programme will be contributed by Mr. R. M. Weatherstone, who will entertain at the piano.

Scenes From Operas.

Scenes from three famous operas will be included in a programme of an essentially choral character from the Aberdeen Station on Monday, June 28th. The lesser-known Faust of Berlioz will be described, instead of Gounod's more popular opera, while the others to be treated are Mignon, by Thomas, and Rossini's William Tell. A purely operatic programme will be completed by orchestral interludes, each consisting of an overture.

"The Grandfather Clock."

A programme illustrative of the march of Time, built round a play entitled, The Grandfather Clock, and presented by the London Radio Players, will be broadcast from Aberdeen [on Wednesday, June 30th. The vocalists will be Miss Alice Moxon and Mr. Stuart Robertson.

Aberdeen's Ballad Concert.

Miss Constance Willis, whose visit to Aberdeen was postponed owing to transport difficulties in May, will be heard from that station on Friday, July 2nd, in a Ballad Concert. Later on the same evening an hour of light entertainment will be provided by Miss Ida Sargent and the Station Dance Quartet.

Talks at Dundee.

The talks by Dr. A. H. Millar, LL.D., City Librarian of Dundee, which are being given from Dundee to all Scottish Stations, have proved to be exceedingly interesting. Dr. Millar will give his next talk on Monday, June 21st, when he will deal with that famous figure in literature, Sir Walter Scott. This will be followed by another talk on Monday, June 28th, on Sir Henry Raeburn, the Scottish artist.

Our Autumn Festival Competition.

THE number of applications for entry forms that have showered down upon Savoy Hill in connection with the Autumn Musical Festival Competition announced in a recent issue of The Radio Times suggests that all over the British Isles, and in far corners of the earth to which composers of British birth have made their way, musical compositions are in an active state of preparation. If all the entry forms that have been applied for are used, the Judges will indeed be busily employed when they undertake the formidable task of awarding the prizes.

Nearly every applicant for an entry form has asked at least one question, and the rules as set forth in the original announcement in The Radio Times have had to be amplified and explained many times over. Although the time for preparing new works is now very short, it may be well once more to make clear the points which have most often arisen in our correspondence.

First of all, it should be made clear that composers of British birth are eligible, in whatever part of the world they may now be living, or even if they have now been accepted as citizens of some other country.

The Judges have had to insist on a strict application of Rule 2, which declared that "prizes will be awarded only to those works which shall not yet have been performed publicly or published." One or two rather hard cases have had to be decided, and there are, no doubt, a few would-be competitors who feel that in some respect they have been unlucky. One work, for instance, had been performed in public to an audience so small as to be almost non-existent. None the less, since the performance had been advertised, and the public invited, it was held to have been publicly performed.

In compiling Rule 5, it was not anticipated that composers would have any difficulty in finding suitable poems or libretti for their music. It had been supposed that the supply of these was far in excess of the demand. Nevertheless, more than one composer has asked us where he, or she, can find suitable poetry to set to music. The value of poetry and of a familiarity with the best literature, as part of the musician's equipment, is apparently not generally realized, and we like to think that this Festival Competition has led more than one would-be composer to strengthen this weak spot in his armour.

The phrase, "younger and lesser-known," has produced numerous enquiries, and to all these the answer has been made that the question will be left in each case to the discretion of the Adjudicators. No hard and fast limits will be laid down in these two directions.

In regard to the probable date of the awards, this will depend obviously on the number of entries. No time will be lost, and the Judges are preparing themselves for a very busy time in the weeks succeeding July 15th.

A NEW PROGRAMME SERVICE.

LISTENERS will remember that in connection with the studio performance of Verdi's opera, La Traviata, broadcast on April 16th, free copies of the libretto were provided by the B.B.C. The vast number of applications for copies of this libretto which poured in from listeners all over the country, and the many appreciative letters that were addressed to us after the broadcast, clearly indicate the popularity of this new service. It has been decided, therefore, to expand it. Plans have been made for the broadcasting of a series of twelve well-known operas during the next twelve to eighteen months, and, for each of these, a libretto is being prepared. Listeners who wish to be provided with these libretti are asked to fill up the application form which is attached below and forward it to the address given therein.

The exact date of performance of each opera cannot now be given, but the first will be Rigoletto, which will be broadcast on July 7th. The other operas in the series are: The Bohemian Girl, Barber of Seville, Carmen, Romeo and Juliet, Il Trovatore, Faust, Così Fan Tutte, The Daughter of the Regiment, Martha, Orpheus (Gluck), and Les Cloches de Corneville.

Each libretto will be forwarded to subscribers in time to reach them at least two days before the performance.

To BROADCAST OPERA, SUBSCRIPTION LIST, 53, VICTORIA STREET, LONDON, S.W.1.

Please forward to the undermentioned address ^{copy} of each Opera Libretto _{copies} as published. I enclose P.O. No. value for the series of twelve Libretti.

PLEASE WRITE IN BLOCK LETTERS.

Mr., Mrs., Miss or Title.....

Address.....

Additional names and addresses may be written on a separate sheet of paper, but P.O. for the subscription in each case must be sent.

The following rates of subscription will apply for the series of twelve Libretti:—
One copy of each as published, 2/- post free. Two copies of each as published, 4/- post free.
And pro rata for any additional number of copies.

BIRMINGHAM NEWS.

Sunday Evening Concert.

THE programme at 9.30 p.m. on Sunday, provides an interesting series of examples of various British composers' work. The Station Orchestra will play items which include the Overture, Land of the Mountain and the Flood, by McGunn; a Suite of Four English Dances, by Sir Frederick Cowen (whose first Festival work, it is interesting to note, was produced at Birmingham), and Slumber Song, by Squire.

Famous Comedies.

The programme from 8 o'clock on Monday should be popular, since it comprises three scenes from famous comedies, presented by Mr. Sydney Russell. Scenes will be taken from London Assurance, The School for Scandal, and The Rivals.

Two Old Favourites.

In the short programme from the Studio from 8 o'clock to 8.45 on Tuesday evening, listeners will hear an old favourite with the Birmingham public, Mr. Arthur Cranmer (baritone), who will be remembered for his many appearances at the Repertory Theatre.

There will also be heard another favourite Birmingham artist and entertainer, Mr. Ronald Gourley.

The Lighter Operas.

The evening programme on Thursday constitutes the tit-bit of the week. There is the Overture from Mignon, that most popular opera of the French composer, Thomas, which, produced in Paris in 1886, became almost instantaneously popular all over the Continent and still remains a first favourite. Another of his compositions, the Raymond Overture, is also well in public favour at the present time. There will also be given the Intermezzo from Cavalleria Rusticana, a Gavotte from Mignon, and also the Waltz Sylphes from Berlioz's Faust. Arias and duets will be sung by Miss Gertrude Johnson (soprano), Mr. Herbert Thorpe (tenor), and Mr. Harry Brindle (bass). The vocal programme includes the Finale
Trio from Faust.

Waterloo.

The anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo, which falls on Friday, finds its recognition in the programme.
Martial music will be in evidence, and among the items to be played by the orchestra may be mentioned
Elgar's Empire March, Mendelssohn's
Military Overture, and, on the lighter side, a Pot-Pourri of Martial Music
by Winter, and the Light Cavalry
Overture by Suppé.

A Park Concert.

The usual relay of the Cannon Hill Park Concert by the City of Birmingham Police Band will be at 8.0 on Saturday, and, from 9 to 9.30 p.m., there will be an interlude of old music from the Studio by Mr. Leonard
Dennis (solo 'cellist).

CARDIFF NEWS.

INCLUDED in the Sunday evening symphony concert at Cardiff, when Miss Rispa Goodacre and Mr. Herbert Heyner will be the soloists, is a work by a young composer, Miss Eva Pain, who has fulfilled the great promise she showed while she was a student at the Royal Academy of Music. This work, Cinderella at the Ball, is a student work, but shows an unusual gift for orchestration and originality. On the same evening, listeners will hear Brahms's Second Symphony, one of the greatest works for orchestra ever written.

One of the most popular of the regular outside broadcasts included in the Cardiff programmes is the music by Jack Hylton's Carlton Band, playing at the Carlton Restaurant, Cardiff. There will be a performance by this band in the Cardiff Studio on Tuesday.

On a recent Saturday evening, the "Merrymakers" Concert Party gave its first performance before the microphone at Cardiff, and scored an instantaneous success. There will be many listeners, therefore, who will look forward keenly to another performance by this party on Thursday. Yvette, "the Quaint Comedienne," will also take part in the evening programme.

On Saturday, the Cardiff Station is giving a Cornish night, a programme arranged in co-operation with the Bristol and District Cornish Association. A party from the Bristol Association will visit the Cardiff Studio for the occasion, and a feature of the evening will be the inclusion of a number of items contributed by various members. The real Cornish spirit will be in evidence to gladden the hearts of Cornishmen everywhere within range of "5WA."

Listeners who are interested in Nature will have an opportunity of hearing Dr. O. V. Darbishire again on Monday, when he will continue his series of talks on "Coal and Starch." Dr. Darbishire, who is the Professor of Botany in the University of Bristol, is well known in several parts of England by his lectures on Popular Botany.

in "Albert's Way Out."
A Comedy of South Pembrokeshire, in One Act,
By Muriel S. M. Evans.
Presented by LL. G. JONES.

Cast:

Albert Warlow (a Bachelor of forty-five)
R. J. DAVIES
Tilly Harries (a Girl of nineteen)
K. F. ROBERTS
Maria Codd (a Woman of fifty-six)...LL. G. JONES
Emma-Jane (Albert's Servant) NANCY MILLS
Time: Early Evening in August—about 6 o'clock.
Mind Picture: A kitchen in the house of a prosperous working farmer. On the right is a fireplace; on one side of the fireplace is a settle with cushions; in the corner, a table; on the left a door leading to the other part of the house; in the centre, a dresser and a table with unwashed tea things; there are a few chairs in convenient positions and a small stool.

Albert Warlow, who is sitting on the settle, reading the newspaper, is a bachelor of forty-five, who has got on and made money. He is thrifty and hard-working, but not intelligent except where his own interests are concerned. Shy and nervous in manner, he is heavy and bovine in appearance, slow and taciturn of speech.

Chelsea. Curtains conceal it from the ballroom within: it is about 3.0 a.m. on a fine June morning, and the dancing is still in progress. A girl in a black domino appears through the curtains at the back; she pauses and glances over her shoulder. Then, after letting the curtains fall she advances on to the balcony, sinks into a chair, and with studied artlessness pretends to be asleep. . . . Muriel SAL STURGEONClarence Reed is a "high-brow" author who is suffering from a very severe attack of "temperament." His wife, pretty, fragile, and only twenty-eight, is rather a depressed-looking woman.
Clarence Reed has been persuaded to go into a nursing home for a rest cure.The scene is a small, unoccupied bedroom of the nursing home, with distempered walls where Muriel, the servant, a healthy-looking girl with fuzzy light hair, is sweeping. The two nurses of the establishment are called by Muriel "the dark cat" and "the fair cat." Alice Palmer, "the dark cat," though rather pretty, is pale and dismal, with a sharp and snappy voice, and she has just entered the

Hans Christian Andersen all his life loved the theatre. As a youth he was an actor, singer and dancer by turns. During his whole literary career his ambition was to write a famous five-act tragedy, but to-day everyone knows and loves Andersen as the supreme writer of fairy stories and not as the great novelist and dramatist he hoped posterity would acclaim him. The Operetta, "The Nightingale," is a version of his Chinese Tale of the Nightingale.9.30.—WEATHER FORECAST AND ABERDEEN NEWS.

THE orchestral programme, with two vocal interludes by Mr. Laurence Hepworth, which will be broadcast from the Aberdeen Station on Sunday, will include Beethoven's Overture, Namensfeier, Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsody No. 1, and a selection from Wagner's Rienzi. The libretto of Rienzi was completed by the composer in 1838, and the opera itself is interesting as being his first operatic work to gain any popularity. Of the music, Wagner himself has said: "When in the autumn I began the music to Rienzi, my sole care was to do justice to the subject. I had so laid it out that a first performance would be impossible at a second-rate theatre. I had Paris in view. The thought of conscious triviality, even for a single bar, was intolerable. The character of Rienzi, ardent, aspiring, amid barbarous surroundings, interested me. I approached it by way of the grand opera; still my first care was to depict it in accordance with my feelings." Rienzi shows Wagner in his first period and the strong Italian influence affecting him at the time. The programme on Monday night is varied without containing what is popularly known as "variety." Preceding and following a play by the London Radio Players, listeners will hear some good ballads by Mr. John Van Zyl. Mr. Van Zyl's first public appearance was in Kimberley at the age of eighteen. At the age of twenty he won the "Eisteddfod" open to all Africa. Towards the end of 1918, after having served with the East African Forces, Mr. Van Zyl came over to England, where he studied at the Royal Academy of Music, since when, he has appeared at many of the principal concerts in England. Appropriately enough, his first broadcast performance was in an "Empire Day" programme. "If music be the food of love, play on." We wonder if any of our listeners will recall this well-known line on Monday night while following the old story of love and courtship, as it is told in music by the Station Orchestra.

BELFAST NEWS.

Musical Comedy.

THE first half of the Musical Comedy programme from Belfast on Monday will be devoted to old favourites, followed by items from modern comedy and revue, the soloists being Mr. Frank Webster and Miss Marion Bowers. Mr. Webster is a tenor who possesses not only a fine voice but interpretative power and versatility. Miss Bowers is a native of Belfast, and has achieved success on the light operatic stage in England, where she has been recently playing the leading part in Lilac Time.

The Augmented Orchestra.

Wednesday's concert by the augmented orchestra, conducted by Mr. G. O'Connor Morris, offers an interesting programme. The singer, Mr. William Heselstine, may be remembered for his fine singing in the London production of operas by Rutland Boughton. The chief feature of the orchestral programme is reserved for 10 o'clock, when Dvorak's New World Symphony will be given. This great work, like most of Dvorak's music, is based on folk tunes, and its melodic ideas are drawn largely from Negro spirituals.

Gounod.

Thursday is the anniversary of Gounod's birth, and the programme for that evening has been chosen from his orchestral works.

Two Short Sketches.

On the same evening, the Belfast Radio Players appear in two brief sketches, and there will be two groups of songs by Miss Maude Hunter, a mezzo-soprano who recently appeared at the important Dublin Feis Ceoil.

8.0. WATERLOO—JUNE 18th, 1815.
"There was a sound of revelry by night."

A Radio Picture of the Period.
The drama of Waterloo is pictured as Lord Byron felt it,—not the battle itself, but the events at Brussels which preceded it: the lighthearted revels, with the note of anxiety sounding through them all, and the bustle, noise, music and hurry of war. Then the counting of the cost, and the dirge for the fallen.
Then the Comedy, the engaging insincerities of Becky Sharp. To end, the farce—for Bill Adams and not Sir Arthur was the Conqueror.

Adapted and arranged from the works of LORD BYRON and WILLIAM MAKEPEACE THACKERAY by L. B. RAMSDEN and A. R. B. MUNRO. Incidental Music arranged by Dr. HERBERT THOMPSON.

Drums and Bugles of the 7th BATT. WEST YORKSHIRE REGIMENT.

CHARGE YOUR ACCUMULATOR AT HOME.

Have you alternating current electric light in your home?

Please state carefully the voltage and frequency of your mains. This information can be obtained from your meter.

If so, write to us to-day and order a Fellow's Accumulator Charger. You simply plug it into any lamp-holder, give a twist to the spindle, connect up your accumulator and leave it until charged.

This charger will save its own cost in a few weeks. To begin with, you need only have one accumulator, because it can be charging when not in use. Secondly, you will be saved all journeys to the charging station and you will always have a fully-charged battery on hand. Finally, the charging cost is extremely low, working out at about 1d. for 10 hours' charging at 2 to 3 amps.

Send for our 48-page illustrated catalogue No. 10 free, and for descriptive leaflet of this charger.

This charger is perfectly safe; it avoids all mess; it is entirely automatic and has no expensive parts to renew. It is designed to charge 4 or 6 volt L.T. accumulators, but 2 volt L.T. accumulators can be charged if two are connected in series to the terminals delivering 4 volts. Sent packing free, carriage forward on SEVEN DAYS' APPROVAL against cash. It can also be obtained on the C.O.D. system.

Louden Valves

"I have been getting foreign stations..... with the FER1 better than I used to get any of the B.B.C. stations with my old valves.

"I would willingly pay 15/- for your valve, which only cost me 9/-."

Every post that arrives brings us in letters from those who decide in the first place to try Loudon Valves on account of their reasonable price. When they receive them they are delighted to find that, quite apart from price, Loudens are actually better in every respect than other valves.

There is no secret about this.

Louden Valves are scientifically designed; they are made of the best British materials by British labour in our London Factory. They cost as much to make as other valves; but they cost you less than other valves simply because we sell them direct to you through the Post and through our own Branches.

This week we reproduce a letter which comes from far Moray. The original of this, as of all letters published, may be inspected at our offices.

"DEAR SIRS,—In the course of my experience I have used many different kinds of valves, but I have never had such an efficient detector as your FER1.

"I have been getting foreign stations every night with the FER1 better than I used to get any of the B.B.C. stations with my old valves."

"I would willingly pay 15/- for your valve, which only cost me 9/-."

"I have now had it in constant use for six months, and it still continues to give excellent service."

"You are at liberty to make what use of this letter you like.—Yours faithfully, W. B. M. FRASER."

There is a Loudon Valve for your every need: Bright Emitters, Dull Emitters, Detectors, Power Valves.

You will find them fully described in our new 48-page illustrated Catalogue No. 10, which we will gladly send free on request.

We give below prices and voltages of the various types.

All you have to do is to send us a Postal Order for you can, of course, order by the C.O.D. System for the valves required and they will be posted to you fully guaranteed in sealed cartons.

High Tension Unit
For Alternating Current,
Price £3-10-0

For Direct Current,
Price £2-10-0

If you have Electric Light

you should send to-day for a Fellophone High Tension Unit. It is a safe and perfectly simple device which you fit to any lamp holder exactly as you would an electric bulb. Having connected it to the High Tension Battery terminals of your set, you switch on and an inexhaustible supply of High-Tension current is at your service. The current consumed is less than that of the smallest lamp in your house, and these units are as safe to handle as a High Tension Battery.

If you are at present using a High Tension Battery of approximately 50 volts, order a 50-volt H.T. Unit; if your H.T. Battery is 80 to 100 volts send for a 100-volt H.T. Unit.

If you have Alternating Current please state the Voltage and Frequency (you can obtain this information from your meter or from your local electrician). If you have Direct Current please state the voltage.

Remember that these Units are guaranteed to give Perfect Silent reception (provided that the correct type is ordered) and that you can have them on SEVEN DAYS' APPROVAL, packing free, carriage forward against cash. You can also obtain them on the C.O.D. system.

They are fully described in our new 48-pp. Free Catalogue No. 10. Have you your copy?

Brown success is no accident—
it is based on solid facts

IF Brown Instruments could recount their experiences they would tell of unstinted effort and considerable labour. They would speak of the elaborate care and minute detail with which every part is constructed and assembled;

Headphones. Because of this, when you buy a Brown Instrument you can be sure you are purchasing an instrument that is perfect in tone and volume.

The success the Brown has enjoyed—ever since the pioneer days when the only Loud Speaker on the market bore the name "Brown"—has only been attained through such rigid principles in design and manufacture. When you choose a Brown you select an instrument which has proved its merit by its pure tone and perfect volume. No more eloquent testimony could be found than the world-wide use which the Brown enjoys. Hear Radio at its best—on the Brown.

Your requirements are met by one of these Brown Instruments.

of the many processes through which each unit goes before it is perfect, and of the strenuous tests it must pass before it is authorised for issue.

More care could not possibly be lavished upon any Instrument than there is upon the Brown Loud-Speakers and are priced from 30/- to £15 15s. The famous BROWN Headphones cost from 20/- to 60/-. See and hear them at your nearest Dealers.

Brown Loud Speakers

The Fellophone Portable Three

TAKE IT AWAY WITH YOU!

Why not have a wireless set that you can use at home on your own aerial (where it will give all the results that a first-class three-valve set should) and at the same time one that you can pack up at a moment's notice and take with you to the seaside, out in the country, or merely to your neighbour's house.

The Fellows Portable Three is such a set. It has an aerial in the lid and can be used either as it stands, when it will give good telephone reception in any part of the country (on several pairs of phones), or it can be attached to an outside aerial (no earth connection needed in either case), when both range and volume will be greatly increased, loud speaker reception being comfortably obtained. The set is supplied complete in black leatherette case with H.T. Battery, 4 volt non-spillable accumulator, one pair of Fellows Lightweight Headphones and three Louden Dull Emitter Valves for £12 0s. 0d. (Marconi Royalty included). Or it can be had on the DEFERRED PAYMENT System for £3 7s. 0d. down and six monthly payments of £1 13s. 8d.

When shut the set resembles a small handsome suitcase, and it can be as easily carried.

Ask to have this set demonstrated at one of our Branches, or send to us to-day and have one on SEVEN DAYS' APPROVAL against cash.

THE LITTLE GIANT TWO-VALVE SET complete still represents the finest value for money that has ever been offered on the wireless market. For £6 15s. 0d. cash, or 38/4 down and 6 monthly payments of 19/3, you get a 2-valve receiver which will give you most B.B.C. stations and probably several Foreign ones ON THE LOUD SPEAKER, a 6-volt 20 amp. accumulator, a Fellows 54 volt H.T. Battery, 2 Louden Valves, aerial, insulators, wiring, and instructions AND a Fellows Junior Loud Speaker (18ins. high) with adjustable diaphragm. This set also is sent packing free, carriage forward on SEVEN DAYS' APPROVAL. It can also be obtained on the C.O.D. System. Send for yours to-day.

BURNDEPT TRICKLE CHARGER

THE Burndept Trickle Charger is a thoroughly efficient though inexpensive instrument which will save you all the trouble and expense of sending your accumulators away for recharging.

The instrument is 'fool-proof' and cannot go wrong. As soon as your set is switched off it comes into operation and charges the accumulator from the ordinary lighting mains. There is no special fixing required and the current consumption is less than the smallest electric lamp made.

Any Burndept Dealer will be pleased to demonstrate the simplicity, efficiency and sturdiness of the Trickle Charger.

Extract from TEST REPORT in "POPULAR WIRELESS" May 29, 1926.

MODEL 2A
"Very satisfactory results indeed were obtained, and the "hum" usually associated with such devices was so faint as to be unnoticeable on a loud speaker. A voltmeter test showed that the marked voltages were substantially accurate and the consumption of current as indicated by a milliammeter was but 7 milliamperes. Thus the cost of running the Unit constantly for a whole year would amount to but a penny or two and even dull emitters could not be burnt out were H.T. and L.T. connections deliberately reversed. The "EKCO" is the most satisfactory H.T. Unit we have yet had brought to our notice, and can be fully recommended to the attention of all readers."

Trouble-free Radio

Here is a set that will give you perfect broadcast reception without any trouble or untidiness. Behind the case is a neat multiple cable, with indicating tags for battery connections. The only panel connections are for aerial and earth. The circuit is extremely simple, but the method of operating is even more simple. In the hands of the veriest novice, perfect results are easily obtained. Good loud speaker strength is given from any main B.B.C. station up to a distance of 20 to 25 miles with corresponding greater range from the high power station. The valves are mounted on a special anti-vibration device, and are sunk into the panel to minimize the risk of accidental breakage. The filament control is arranged to permit the use of either bright or dull-emitter valves.

The great simplicity of this receiver is combined with a high degree of selectivity.

BETTER THAN THE SEASIDE

THIS year try the holiday that is different. Explore new country and enjoy healthy, restful change, free from irksome routine.

THE NORFOLK BROADS, with their natural beauties and quiet old-world villages, will enchant you. They are 120 miles from London, and consist of 200 miles of safe inland rivers and lakes, situated between Cromer, Lowestoft, and Norwich. You hire from us for a week or longer a fully furnished wherry, yacht, or motor-boat, which becomes your floating home, moving when and where you wish, inland, not on the sea. We can supply an attendant to manage the boat and do all cooking. You only have to enjoy yourself. The cost, including boat, food, etc., averages £4 per head per week.

Send to-day 2d. postage only for 204-page booklet, "How to Enjoy a Broads Holiday," containing details of 300 yachts, wherries, motor-boats, houseboats, bungalows we have for hire, also caravans at Winchester and Oxford. All owners' craft are included in this booklet.

DEAF

You can AT ONCE free yourself from the nervous strain imposed by Deafness

Do you remember the time before you were deaf? How free from nervous strain you were? How easily you joined in all social intercourse? How unknown that "shut-out" feeling was to you? Why not return to that ideal condition? There's no room for any doubt that the new 1926 model Acousticon Hearing Aid will make you hear—and hear far better than any other device you have ever tried. For twenty-five years Ear Specialists, great Hospitals, Family Doctors, and the deaf public have placed their faith in the Acousticon. Churches fitted with Acousticon installations include many of the largest and best known places of worship throughout the British Isles. All the evidence joins in saying—"Come to our demonstrating rooms for free test and fitting without obligation." Remember the number 77 and look for the ground-floor windows.

Aerials ALWAYS Necessary

—with Crystal Sets and all Valve Sets if long distance is required. But elaborate Aerials with all their hideous fittings are not necessary. A simple indoor (ELECTRON or SUPERIAL) Aerial may be looped in the loft out of sight, without masts; one end tied to the rafters and looped back again, the other end brought under the eaves direct to the set through the nearest window (with no insulator or lead-in tube). The window may be closed tightly on the ELECTRON or SUPERIAL.

ELECTRON AERIALS ARE USED BY MILLIONS all over the world, giving better results, purer reception, clearer tone, and what is most important—greater selectivity.

If you have not yet tried one, if you do not believe our claim, if you have the slightest doubt TRY ONE AT OUR EXPENSE. Go to your Dealer, make your purchase of an ELECTRON AERIAL, at 1/8 everywhere, and if you are not satisfied with the result return it to us and your money will be refunded in full WITHOUT QUESTION.

ELECTRON MAT

CHEAP, SIMPLE AND PERFECT

EXTRA-HEAVY INSULATION

SUPERIAL
THE KING OF AERIALS

The ELECTRON EARTH MAT is supremely efficient. Its very simplicity compels it. The enormous surface offered by the innumerable strands of fine mesh of which it is composed affords unusual freedom of release to the high-frequency currents. The ELECTRON EARTH MAT is made of the most expensive phosphor bronze fine-grained gauze, mounted on a strong metal rim. The price includes 25 feet of EARTH WIRE.

FOR LONG-DISTANCE RECEPTION

The mathematical combination of heavily tinned strands with a plated copper core in SUPERIAL greatly improves the reception, both of voice and instrumental music. Superial will increase the long-distance range of your set.

from the set in one room to the loud speaker in another, (25ft. double) 300ft. (150ft. double), 5/- or even outdoors! Furthermore, you actually get improved reception because the EXTENSION WIRE considerably 1/- 500ft. (250ft. double), 8/- enhances the musical tone. No further insulation required. Postage 3d. Any length obtainable.

No Aerials Necessary

—with some receiving apparatus. But these are usually expensive and the range limited. Our contention has always been that elaborate Aerials are absolutely unnecessary, with all the hideous paraphernalia of Masts, Guy Ropes, Pulleys, China-insulators, etc., etc.

GREATER EMISSION SURFACE

WIDENS THE CIRCLE OF YOUR RECEPTION

FOR real long-distance reception be assured of an ample reserve of power by securing the valves that have up to 5½ times greater emission surface.

The signals of distant stations come through clear and strong with P.M. Valves because no microphonic disturbances spoil the effective background of silence that accentuates perfect reception.

The wonderful filaments of Mullard P.M. Valves require ONLY ONE-TENTH AMPERE, a considerable saving of your accumulator energy, and these filaments are so economical of heating power that NO SIGN OF GLOW can be discerned.
