If Shakespeare Came to Savoy Hill!

By Sir WALFORD DAVIES.

IF Shakespeare were living now, he could stroll down Fleet Street and turn into Savoy Hill almost any afternoon about three o'clock. He would be received with infinite courtesy and probably shown to Studio No. 3. There he could take his place at the microphone and speak to a few thousand listening schools who would await him.

This is wonderful enough. But if only warning were given probably every school Authority in the land would make effort to arrange that he should be heard in the schools. He could then tell every boy in Britain how to read the part of Cassius in the Quarrel Scene, or how to admire both his great quarrellers at one and the same time.

Yet even Shakespeare would need to learn how to do this new thing. I rather imagine he would be quite human enough to sit at the feet of Harry Lauder for five minutes to get a few hints as to how to begin—not as to how to go on, only his genius and the Grace of God would do that.

And for success on the auspicious occasion the schools would need to take ever so many pains on their side. For there is also a brand new technique of reception to be learnt. How would the schools do it? It is easy to imagine them all assembling at 2.45 and tuning in for Shakespeare himself, in more senses than one. The master or mistress

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

When a note is clear enough to have a name, it means three things: (1) It means that it has a vibration-speed rapid enough and regular enough for us to recognize it when we hear it. (2) It means that it is distinct from other notes with other names. (3) It means that our minds can think it into relation with other notes with other names.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

By the name of a note we can tell—

1. Its NATURE
2. Its DISTINCTION from other notes
3. Its RELATION with other notes responsible for having given them their literature lesson would try to tune their minds, and one of the assistants would tune the loud-speaker. Each school would probably arrange on that day that a couple of boys should speak the Quarrel Scene just before Shakespeare's own voice was to reach them. Perhaps the poet himself would have arranged to bring along a fellow-actor to give them a sample of the scene. How thrilling it all might be! And how many millions of grown-ups would manage to listen that day, including countless bedridden folk! But Shakespeare is not living in that sense; and if he were, he might not be a successful teacher. As Tammas Haggart said, to make a joke and see it 'is twa men's wark.' So we ordinary teachers must wake up to find ourselves at the amazing beginning of it all.

Music-lessons are but one section of the far-reaching educational effort being instituted. But they are an alive and very interesting section. We feel like tentative explorers amongst permanent certainties; we certainly are the merest beginners. As the reader may imagine, it is both exciting and anxious work to be a beginner amongst beginners in anything so great as this. Neither the schools nor those of us who are Radio and the Modern Child.

By Dame Katharine Furse, G.B.E.
Assistant Chief Commissioner of the Girl Guides.

Dame K. FURSE

'WHEN I think how much more my children know than I did at their age, I feel quite small and unimportant,' remarked a clever and observant mother to me some time ago. 'They have been radio enthusiasts for years now,' she continued, 'and wireless seems to have broadened their outlook in the most astonishing way.' Until recently, this lady was a scornful critic of broadcasting, and I was surprised at her sudden change of opinion. Can it be that radio is really influencing the modern child to the extent she believes?

Not long ago a poor woman confided to an official of the Girl Guide Movement that she had noticed a distinct change in the behaviour of her two little girls. They seemed to her to be growing less selfish and less hard to please. In her opinion, wireless was directly responsible for this improvement, for, by providing an entertainment which the whole family could enjoy together, it had gradually created a spirit of comradeship between parents and children which had not existed previously.

That broadcasting has already proved itself an agent for incalculable good to children is constantly impressed upon me and, indeed, upon all those whose work is connected with the training of Girl Guides. In the slums of our great cities, for example, wireless is working a striking change. Lured by the fascinating mystery of broadcast concerts and entertainments, innumerable children now spend their evenings in profitable amusement, instead of running wild in the streets.

Although many people have written about the educative value of wireless, few have drawn attention to the 'atmosphere' derived from broadcast entertainments which subtly enriches a child's mind. Listening to a broadcast programme is a wonderful stimulus to the imagination, for child and adult alike. When told by a gentle, friendly voice which flies mysteriously through the air, even fairy stories take on an added glamour which stimulates the childish imagination.

How many people, I wonder, realize the extent of the influence that radio is having upon children's games and pastimes? When visiting a Scottish Guide Company a few weeks ago, I was astonished at the speed with which the children learned their country dances. Since the advent of radio, their sense of rhythm had improved beyond recognition, and to-day they learn both songs and dances twice as fast and twice as well.

But, perhaps, the beneficent influence of radio is most apparent amongst those small unfortunates who, through physical disability, are sadly handicapped in the struggle of life.

'Wireless is fine for people like me who can't get out to see the shows,' said a brave little cripple to me not long ago. 'Somehow, it makes me feel more like ordinary people.' Many such little ones are enthusiastic members of the Girl Guides, and whether sick, crippled, or blind, they are unanimous in their praise of wireless. It brings them a hitherto unknown contentment and a fresh courage to face the handicaps with which their lives are burdened.

Even when they have forsaken childhood and are beginning to shoulder the responsibilities of men and women, radio still gives them a helping hand.

'Do you take an interest in wireless?' was the novel question asked by a well-known employer recently when examining a young man who had applied for a post in his firm. Later, this employer explained to me that he considered that people who were enthusiastic listeners possessed a broader outlook upon life than those who expressed no interest in this enthralling invention. In his opinion, such people were more receptive to new ideas and were apt to display greater initiative.

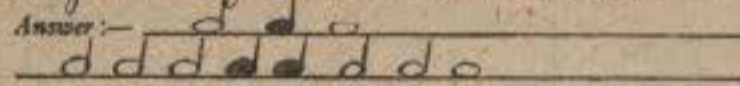

With the invention of machinery at the beginning of last century a tremendous impetus was given to

FINAL EXAMINATION

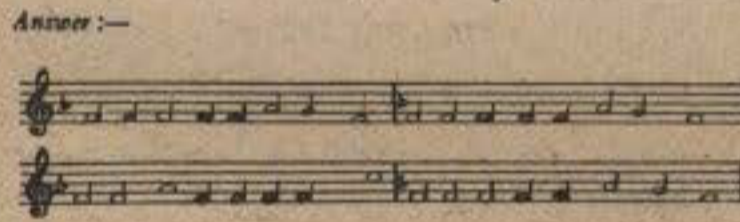

December 14th, 1926.

Neatly write in the question as dictated through the microphone, and then add your answers in the spaces provided below:—

Question 1:— Write down 3 notes:— a long, a short, a hold; then write this rhythm of 8 notes: L L S S L L H.

Answer:—

Question 2:— Use the first rhythm for A and the second rhythm for B and write this A.B.A. tune, starting on F.

Answer:—

Question 3:— Write out 8 more notes in this rhythm:— L L H S S S S H.

Answer:—

Say in this space what you would most like to hear again next term of all that you have heard during the past term:—

(NOTE.—Do not fill this in until after December 7th.)

'I should like to hear next term Schuman's Pieces for the Young'

the march of modern civilization, but the effect of broadcasting is likely to be revolutionary and far-reaching for many years to come. Some time must still elapse, of course, before the full force of radio's influence can be generally realized.

The radio children of to-day are the peace-makers of the future. By training children to a wider outlook, and to think internationally rather than nationally, broadcasting is helping to promote a spirit of international brotherhood—a brotherhood which, in the past, was too often regarded as a figment of the imaginations of impractical idealists.

momentarily teaching them can do more than press on step by step together with as much careful enthusiasm as we may be blessed with, in what is a first adventure of learning over educational territory bafflingly new, alarmingly vast and open for good and all to the world.

The listening schools up to date are truly pioneers over unexplored ways. Very often they listen handicapped. Some have made their own receiving sets under a good schoolmaster's guidance—surely the normal way, at least for a county school. Here is an extract from one boy's letter from a Council School in the Midlands:—

'We listen . . . each Tuesday afternoon in the Parish Room, a room adjoining our school. It is 35 feet long by 23 feet wide and we use it also for singing and Country Dancing classes. It is also very high and so your talking sounds as though you were in the room with us. At one end of the room are two tables. On one of these is placed a three-valve set which our Schoolmaster made, while on the other is a large Amplion Loud-speaker. Desks are ranged one behind another, facing the speaker. Girls sit on the left of these, and we boys occupy the right side. . . . Our Schoolmaster has a black-board, a rubber and some chalk, in front of the class, ready to write down any important note you make. He generally has five lines drawn, ready to copy any tune you talk about. Of course, we are equipped with books, pencils and manuscript paper, ready to do as you bid us, for we do exactly as you say, so that it is something like drill instruction. . . . I think it would be hard to find a more joyful class than ours anywhere on Tuesday afternoon listening over the wireless. . . . Most of us think that the best lesson of all was "Notes at play," for it gave us the idea of making tunes.'

Pioneers deserve encouragement, and certainly the larger public shows ready interest in, and gives generous encouragement to, all pioneers when once they can see their steps. For this reason it seems well to show the general reader of The Radio Times even at this early stage the above excellent letter, which shows the pioneers at their best, and to add the two facsimile fragments which accompany this article taken from the very first batch of musical Scholars' Manuals sent in last month. One is by an Elementary school-boy, age nine, the other by a girl of twelve from the same school.

One child from a Surrey School writes: 'The lesson I liked best was the first time that we had the Echo Game.' This echo game is a part of the music-lesson, which seems to hold great promise. It is a surprising fact that one singer in London can with ease in one minute set the rhythmic pace (as well as the melodic or mental pace) of countless children, and when once the momentum is established, can induce vital, lithe, and supple phrasing. It is also easy to get new phrases and new tunes through each week to every school that has etheric ears to hear. More of this, I hope, in a future article.

London and Daventry News and Notes.

IT can be said without contradiction that the broadcast description of the England v. Wales match at Twickenham constituted one of the most important events since the inception of broadcasting in this country, marking as it did the beginning of a new era in wireless, at all events on this side of the Atlantic. Time and experience will show how the scheme can best be developed; none know better than the B.B.C. that there is still much to be learned before transmissions of this kind are brought to a state approaching perfection. We can, however, outline our policy of what it is hoped to do in the future to make these descriptive accounts an integral part of the broadcast service. This will be done by giving, simultaneously from all stations, all the important sporting and other events such as International Rugby and Association games, the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race, the big racing classics (starting with the Derby), no matter in what part of the country they may occur. At the same time, other events of purely local interest will be broadcast from the station or stations concerned, so that it is quite possible that several events may be broadcast in different parts of the country at the same time. Full details of all arrangements will be given periodically in The Radio Times, which will also publish official plans and diagrams, and any other information necessary to a complete understanding of the broadcast commentaries.

The speech of the Prime Minister at the dinner of the Worcestershire Association at the Hotel Victoria on Tuesday, February 22, will be broadcast from Daventry. Mr. Baldwin is expected to speak between 9.15 and 9.50 p.m.

Miss Violet Loraine, the famous revue actress, is giving a number of excerpts from some of her stage successes between 7.45 and 8 p.m. on Friday, February 18. On the following evening, between 6 and 6.30, and 6.45 and 7 p.m., the London Radio Dance Band programme will be enlivened with vocal syncopation.

The next opera in the series for which libretti have been prepared, and which are being given under the direction of Mr. Percy Pitt, takes place on Friday, February 25, when Gluck's Orpheus will be produced. The programme will last from 8.15 to 10.20 p.m., with an interval for the broadcast of the News Bulletin at 9 o'clock. This opera was first produced at Vienna in 1762, with Gluck himself conducting. Soon afterwards it was given in Paris, when Queen Marie Antoinette immediately granted the composer a pension of 6,000 francs to encourage him to produce more operatic works for the French stage. As is the usual custom, the part of Orpheus will be sung by a contralto—Miss Phyllis Archibald; Eurydice will be taken by Miss Kathleen Hilliard, who sang Gretel in Hansel and Gretel at Christmas, and the part of Amor will be taken by Miss Alice Moxon. Both the last-named artists are, of course, sopranos.

The Wireless Military Band, which consists of some of the finest players of wind instruments in London, and whose programmes are undoubtedly popular with the vast majority of listeners, is to be still further developed in the near future. The importance of these forthcoming changes will be more apparent when the contemplated scheme is nearer fruition, but further details will be published in these pages immediately they are available for listeners.

The controversy on the respective merits of classical and jazz music has given listeners several specially arranged programmes, each of which has elucidated some new point, some hitherto unexpressed opinion, and provided opportunities for listeners to say how interesting and, indeed, fascinating the whole subject really is. Now Captain P. P. Eckersley has something to say about the matter, not as Chief Engineer of the B.B.C., nor as a technician, but only because he feels that there are still several additional angles from which the topic can be approached. Captain Eckersley is prepared to argue that a programme of all types of music—whether by Bach, Beethoven, Berlioz or Berlin—should appeal to the maximum number of listeners, because he holds that the maximum number of listeners appreciate music even though they may not be musicians. The date of this programme is Wednesday, February 16, and the time 9.45 to 11 p.m. Mr. Filson Young, who is widely known as an author and editor, will help with the framing of the programme.

BROADCASTING THE RUGGER INTERNATIONAL.

This picture, showing the broadcaster's hut on the ground, connected with a motor-van containing the complicated apparatus required for the transmission, was taken just before play began.

As from the week beginning Monday, January 31, the 8.45 p.m. pianoforte or song recital is being abolished as such, but for the time being its character is retained in alternate weeks with the present 7.15 p.m. pianoforte interlude. This change will enable the programme to run through uninterruptedly from 7.45 to 9 p.m., and permit of a better balance in the periods of the first and second evening concerts, which will in future be 1½ and 1¼ hours, respectively, on evenings when there is no dance music.

Lieut.-Colonel John Somerville, late Commandant of the Royal Military School of Music, Kneller Hall, in collaboration with Lieut. B. Walter O'Donnell, has undertaken to provide and sponsor a military band feature which will occupy the London programme from 9.30 to 10.30 p.m. on Thursday, February 24. Further details will be announced later.

Paul Jones, a comic opera from the French by H. B. Farnic, with music by R. Planquette, is to be given from London Station on Monday, February 14.

A programme of musical comedy reminiscences, presented in a novel fashion, has been arranged as part of the evening programme on Monday, February 21. Further details of this concert will be announced in our next issue.

The service and ceremonies associated with the Hallowing of the Diocese of Leicester and of the Parish Church of St. Martin, Leicester, as its cathedral church, by the Bishop of Leicester, takes place in the afternoon of Monday, February 21, and arrangements have been made to broadcast the event through London Station between 3.30 and 5.15 p.m. It is interesting to record that the restored diocese of Leicester contains the ancient Archdeaconry of Leicester, which, not six years ago, was divided into the Archdeaconries of Leicester and Loughborough, sundry parishes being added and withdrawn. The former diocese of Leicester came into being in the year 680 through the division of the diocese of Mercia, and ended about the year 870 during the invasion of the Danes. For the next two centuries Leicestershire was included in the diocese of Dorchester, till in 1072 it became part of the newly-established diocese of Lincoln, in which it remained for more than 750 years; it was transferred to the diocese of Peterborough in 1839.

News From the Provinces.

MANCHESTER.

SO much appreciated was the last organ recital by Dr. A. W. Wilson from the Manchester Cathedral, that another has been arranged to take place on Sunday evening, February 6. The organ music will be interspersed with studio items by the Lansdowne Vocal Quartet.

The second of Brahms's two violoncello sonatas will be given on Monday, February 7, by Mr. Frank Merrick (pianoforte) and Mr. Carl Fuchs (cello). Although Mr. Merrick is well known in Manchester—a concert in which he took part was relayed during Manchester's Civic Week in October—this will be the first occasion on which he has broadcast from a studio. A pupil of Leschetitzky, Mr. Merrick has been Professor of Pianoforte at the Royal Manchester College of Music since 1911. It is interesting to record that he will conduct the first performance of his Symphony in D Minor in Bournemouth on February 24. His colleague, Mr. Carl Fuchs, is also a prominent figure in the musical world of Manchester, having been for many years a Professor at the Royal Manchester College of Music.

A programme of Dvorak chamber music will be broadcast on Tuesday, February 8. Although Dvorak wrote eight string quartets, not many are played in England, the most popular probably being the so-called 'Nigger,' which will be included in this programme to be given by the Don Hyden String Quartet, with Mr. Newton Lees (baritone).

The programme of school broadcasts available in the north-western counties issued by the Manchester Station for the present term includes, as before, details of the transmissions from Daventry, Manchester, and Liverpool. The syllabus is a great advance on its predecessors and contains twenty-four pages of interesting material, giving very full précis of the various series of lectures, and a large number of maps, charts, and sketches which can be reproduced on the blackboard to illustrate the talks. The booklet is free, and can be obtained from the Station Directors at Manchester or Liverpool, by post, or by personal application.

An analysis of the Manchester Station's correspondence for the last quarter of 1926 offers some rather interesting figures, 885 of the 925 letters received, or twenty-two to one, containing appreciative references to the programmes. During the corresponding quarter of 1925 the total number of letters from listeners was 1,179, of which 1,001 were appreciations and 178 criticisms. Complaints of oscillation numbered 104, and letters containing appreciations of transmissions twenty-nine. The number of children's letters received during this quarter was 5,124.

PLYMOUTH.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made to broadcast the Popular Evening Service from the Plymouth Guildhall on Sunday, February 6, at 8.15 p.m. The address will be given by the Rev. Phillip Rogers, Pastor of the Sherwell Congregational Church.

An interesting variety of pianoforte music will be given by Mr. Albert Fullbrook on Friday, February 11. On the following evening, at 6 p.m., Mr. Stanton Wicks will be heard in a short instrumental programme.

'The History of Dock'—'Dock' as most local listeners are aware being the old name for Devonport—will be described in a talk by Mr. C. W. Bracken on Wednesday, February 9. Mr. Bracken has devoted much time to the study of matters of local antiquarian interest.

BIRMINGHAM.

A PERFORMANCE of Purcell's opera King Arthur, by the Station Chorus and Orchestra, will be broadcast from the Birmingham and Midland Institute on Saturday, February 12. This concert, in which all the artists are well known, and which will also be relayed through Daventry, is the third of a series of concerts promoted by the Birmingham Station. The soloists are Miss Doris Vane, Miss Gladys Palmer, Mr. John Adams and Mr. Herbert Heyner. The prices of admission are 1s, 2d. and 2s. 4d., and tickets may be obtained from Messrs. Priestley and Sons, of Colmore Row.

The fourth concert of the Beethoven centenary series takes place on Sunday afternoon, February 6. The programme includes two vocal trios by Miss Emily Broughton, Mr. Geoffrey Dams, and Mr. James Howell, and also Beethoven's Concerto No. 4 in C Major for pianoforte and orchestra, in which the solo part, as in the previous concerts of the series, will be played by Mr. Nigel Dullaway. The list of soloists is completed by Miss Alice Vaughan, and listeners will be interested to see so many who have broadcast from quite early in the station's life appearing together during the same performance.

The City of Birmingham Police Band will again be heard on Wednesday, February 9, when, as before, Mr. Richard Wassell will conduct his municipal combination of veteran players, some sixty strong. Another band which listeners will hear during the same week is the Metropolitan Works Band, conducted by Mr. George Wilson, who are giving an afternoon programme on Saturday, February 12. This band numbers twenty-eight players, and their practice is a spare time occupation, rehearsals being held three times a week outside work hours. The band has won over fifty prizes.

BOURNEMOUTH.

SOME months back, three or four admirable papers were broadcast by Mr. Risdon Bennett on the literary giants of the early eighteenth century—Pope and Swift, Addison and Steele. Mr. Bennett now proposes to fill in the social background of this interesting period by following up his earlier talks with some studies of a few of the minora sidera of the Augustan Age, men who, if not quite in the front rank as writers, had an important influence on the social and literary life of the day as the intimates and friends of their greater contemporaries. The first of these talks, which will be given on Thursday, February 10, will be on John Gay, author of The Beggar's Opera. His career is of special interest to those living in the South-West of England. Not only was he born at Barnstaple, but he is usually supposed to have written the book of The Beggar's Opera while on one of his prolonged visits to Amesbury Park, the Wiltshire seat of the famous Duchess of Queensberry, Prior's Kitty.

The address at the Studio Service on Sunday February 6, will be given by the Archdeacon of Portsmouth, the Ven. E. Neville Lovett, who, besides being an Honorary Canon of Winchester, is one of the King's Chaplains and Proctor in Convocation. The musical portions of the service will be sung by the choir of Holy Trinity Church, Millbrook, near Southampton, under the direction of the choirmaster, Dr. Cecil Williams. Two anthems chosen for the service afford an effective contrast between Church music of the sixteenth and eighteenth centuries.

CARDIFF.

'THE Man, The Maid, and The Muddlehead' is the title of a programme which will be broadcast on Tuesday, February 8. It is a novel type of short concert—a blend of song, story and light comedy, written by Gordon McConnell, the leading parts being played by Miss Wynne Ajello and Mr. Herbert Simmonds.

Last year, Cardiff Station gave a Beethoven programme, in which scenes from the life of the Master were presented in a setting of music from his compositions. The writer of the scenes, Mr. R. W. Hobbs, has prepared a similar 'biography' of Goldsmith, and this will be broadcast on Tuesday, February 15. Interesting glimpses from the life of one who wrote like an angel and spoke like 'Poor Poll' will be presented with a background of music and songs by Mr. Kenneth Ellis.

By a curious coincidence, two authors, entirely unknown to each other, submitted to Cardiff Station plays on the Jazz v. Classical Music controversy, with just this difference, that the one upholds jazz and the other favours classical music. They are to act as 'Jack Sprat and his wife' and to be given the opportunity on Saturday, February 19, of 'making the platter clean' between them. The writer of the first play is Andrew Harding, of Gateshead-on-Tyne, and the second has been written by Edward P. Green and W. Huntley Adams, in collaboration.

Miss Dorothea Johnston, who gave her first broadcast performance in England from London some weeks ago, will give a Red Indian Song Recital on Thursday, February 10. Miss Johnston has made a minute study of the Red Indian, and her programme will include items representative of many tribes, including the Omahas, the Navahos and the Sioux. Miss Johnston has also done dramatic work in New York and San Francisco. She hails from California, but is proud of the fact that she is partly of Welsh descent.

On the same evening, Cardiff listeners will hear a Community Singing Concert from Newport, to which the Station Orchestra and three Newport Choral Societies will lend their aid. It is hoped that Mr. Gibson Young will conduct and that Mr. John Goss and Miss Caroline Hatchard will be among the artists. Community Singing had not struck Wales as a revival of an old custom, as has been the case in England. The habit had not died in the Principality, and the present wave of enthusiasm throughout the country finds Wales going strong.

HULL.

CELLO solos by Miss Kathleen Moorhouse, and two groups of songs by Mr. Frank Foxon, the humorous baritone, will form the local concert on Wednesday, February 9. Mr. Foxon will include some North Country folk songs and some old English songs in his groups.

Mental Tuning In.

Some Hints on How to Listen to a Wireless Play. By AMYAS YOUNG.

THERE is an old saying that 'Beauty lies in the eye of the beholder.' How far this is true may be a matter for debate: but it is beyond question that much of the success of a wireless play reposes in the ear and mind of the listener. It may be useful therefore to offer some suggestions as to the adjustment of one's mental apparatus before listening to a wireless play and during its performance, since it is evident that this must be quite as important as the adjustment of the receiving set itself.

First. The listener must really and truly listen. It is possible to hear musical programmes of certain kinds while at the same time maintaining a mild interest in a general conversation, and yet have a moderately good idea of the programme and its merits. This is not possible in the case of wireless plays. Of all forms of broadcast entertainment, the play is the one that demands the closest attention and concentration. This, of course, is a circumstance common to all the best forms of art. One cannot read certain books, nor follow certain musical compositions, nor view certain paintings without a similar mental effort: but the gain to those who make the effort is unquestionable.

Second. When listening to a broadcast play it is always better to turn out the lights. The fireside, with its mantel and ornaments (including possibly a final notice from the Income Tax authorities or, more happily, a receipt for one's wireless licence fee) is very difficult to forget. This may not matter so much if the scene of the play to which one is listening is laid in an ordinary drawing-room, but when the play is being enacted on board a liner in mid-ocean, a street in New York or a forest clearing in the Congo, then it matters a good deal. Your clock will obtrude itself into the picture; the tail of your eye will catch that crooked picture which you meant to straighten before dinner, and so on. On the whole, then, it is desirable to listen to broadcast plays in darkness.

Third. The wireless drama makes a large demand upon the imagination of the listener, and in so doing it acts as a stimulant to his memory. When he finds that happening, he need not consider it a sign of wavering attention but rather the reverse. I know a listener who never hears a palace scene announced without at once recalling a certain room in Windsor Castle; while another, as soon as he hears that he is supposed to be on the deck of a liner in mid-ocean at once thinks of a picture of an old-time steamship which used to hang in his bedroom in his boyhood days.

Here are two cases in which memory helps the mind-picture. The play probably has nothing to do with Windsor, but the recollection of that room gives a perfectly satisfactory mental palace to that particular listener. In the other case the dialogue and sound effects are unmistakably related to 1927, yet for some reason the Guion liner of 1870 paints the mental picture for that particular listener—who in later years has travelled thousands of miles in modern the players and acclaim your favourites—but do it after the play, not before it.

Fifth. Do not pay so much attention to the sound effects that you miss the dialogue and so lose the thread of the play. Sounds are to wireless plays what scenery is to the stage play—a background, a useful aid: but one does not go to the theatre to look at useful aids alone. And just as the scenery may not be exactly like the 'real thing' so certain sounds, for various reasons—mostly technical—may not seem exactly as they did when you heard them in life.

As a painter conveys impressions by the blending of colours, so the wireless play is designed to create pictures in the listener's mind by the blending of sounds.

The Town and Country Mice.

MR. BONNET LAIRD, well known to the broadcasting community, has written a brisk and affectionate little book on the countryside, what with some vehemence he is disposed to call his countryside ('This Way to Arcady,' Herbert Jenkins, 5s. net). There is also a good deal about London and Londoners, and one understands from Mr. Laird that the people of the city are by no means his people.

I am the last person to cavil at Mr. Laird's happy little snapshots of the amenities and simple joys of rural life. But I have a shrewd suspicion that there are darker shadows under the sunshine than he is disposed to admit, and, as for the Londoners, of whom I happen to be one, I feel disposed to take up the cudgels in their defence.

Mr. Laird may regard me as a dangerous heretic, but to my mind the Londoner, or, shall we say, the more sensitive type of Londoner, appreciates the countryside far more intimately than the countryman himself.

I once stayed in a very remote country village in Dorset for some months, and I was astonished at the ignorance displayed by the village folk upon the most familiar occurrences and what the learned call 'phenomena' of the natural life about them. They were simply not interested in what they were used to. The things you see every day you end by not seeing at all.

It is exactly the same with the Londoner. What Englishman is more ignorant of London than the Londoner? It is the rarest exception for the Cockney to know the historical monuments, the old churches, the strange nooks and beautiful oddments of his own city. But when it comes to the birds and trees and flowers of the parks and open green spaces, it is a different matter. The grass may be shingled and the bushes spruced up, but the willow-wren in Kensington Gardens is the genuine thing, the spirit and emblem of copse and meadowland. The Londoner knows more about him than he does about the most imposing memorial in Westminster Abbey.

liners. So when you feel that your imagination and memory are getting to work, you need not worry—let them go on working.

Fourth. Do not think of the names of the players in the cast until afterwards. Lately, the B.B.C. has deferred announcing the names of the players until the end of the play, and for a very good reason. If one happens to know Mr. John Jones or Miss Mary Brown, or to have seen their photographs in The Radio Times or elsewhere, the mention of the name will call to mind a more or less vivid picture of their appearance.

But in the play it is desired to suggest that you see in your mind's eye the heroic Arthur, the faithful Alice, or the wicked Sir Jasper. Those who produce these plays know that the voices of the players will suggest these characters—if given a fair chance. By all means, take an interest in Listeners' Letters.

A Radio Class in the Channel Islands.

HAVING seen with much interest in The Radio Times recently a photo of the wireless class at the Elstow School, Bedford, we of the St. Lawrence Central School, Jersey, hope that you will find the accompanying photograph of sufficient interest to publish in your journal, coming as it does from the most southerly wireless class in the British Isles which regularly avails itself of the systematic lectures given by the B.B.C. During the past year the school has gained several certificates, and one of our scholars has been awarded a second prize in connection with Mr. E. K. Robinson's broadcast lectures. The morning weather forecast is made good use of, and incidentally it provides valuable exercises in dictation and geography, whilst at 11 a.m. Big Ben tells the children that they may put aside their books and go out to play. The wireless lessons have also been the means of finding the children pen-friends in Elstow and other schools. It can be imagined how much the youngsters enjoy this correspondence, as some of them have never before received a letter.—F. H. WHISTLER, Head Master, St. Lawrence Central School, Jersey.

From a German Listener.

FOR one who is learning English entirely through books and radio, and owing therefore so much to Daventry, the preponderance of music over speech in that Station's programme is very regrettable.

Opponents of broadcasting may perhaps fairly criticize the quality of radio-music from an artistic standpoint; but from an educational standpoint, nothing, I think, can be said against radio-speech.

Compared with the programmes of German stations, I notice a lack of first-class English literature in Daventry's programme. Though from that station we hear concerts of the very first order, we rarely get a treat of fine English literature. I cannot understand why this is so. Music is, of course, more appealing to the senses and of a more international character; but the knowledge—and moreover the enjoyment—of first-class English literature does not seem to me to be so widespread in Great Britain as to justify the B.B.C.'s neglect to cultivate that most glorious part of English culture.

That a larger share of Daventry's programmes should be given to first-class English literature should therefore not appear to be an unreasonable demand, both from a national and from an artistic point of view.

What do English listeners say to this? It is, of course, from sheer selfishness, as a lover of your language, that I dare to intrude in this matter. I am not averse to music, being myself an amateur musician. If, then, I am asked why do I speak against music, I would answer: Not that I love your radio music less, but that I love your literature more.—OTTO MULLER (an elementary school teacher), Geesthacht, near Hamburg.

The First School Wireless.

As so many of your readers have discussed in your columns the question as to which hospital was first equipped with a wireless receiving set, I have thought that it would be equally interesting to know which school in this country was the first to install a wireless outfit. The following facts gleaned from The Sheaf, the journal of the Sheffield Central Secondary Boys' School, tell of what I think will prove to be the first school wireless in the kingdom: The Wireless Club of the Sheffield

Central School was formed in March, 1921. It was decided to ask permission of the Headmaster and the Governors to install a receiving station in the school, and this was granted, and a Post Office licence obtained. At first the results obtained were poor, but early in July, 1921, the set was working very satisfactorily. All the apparatus is 'home-made' excepting the valve, the telephones, and a transformer.—M. B. B., Sheffield.

'Prophetic Ariel.'

In a recent issue of The Radio Times Miss Clemence Dane quotes from The Tempest the words put into the mouth of Caliban, 'The isle is full of noises,' etc. As is well known, Bacon in his 'New Atlantis' predicts some wonderful inventions, many of which

THE RADIO TEACHER—FARTHEST SOUTH?

This class in the St. Lawrence Central School, Jersey, is following the wireless lessons until Big Ben sounds the time for play. In his letter on this page, Mr. Whistler, the Head Master, claims that this is the most southerly radio class in the British Isles.

modern science has since verified. Posing as the great magician in 'Solomon's House,' he says: 'We have also sound houses, where we practise all sounds and their generation. We have also means to convey sounds in trunks along strange lines and distances.' This is a remarkable anticipation of the telephone and wireless.—M. STONEY, Percy Terrace, Gosforth, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The f s. d. Test.

THE vexed question of 'Which does the public prefer, jazz or classical music?' seems to be answering itself. During the past year a famous orchestra has been disbanded through lack of support, whereas on the other hand the newspapers report that a member of a London dance band was summoned recently for non-payment of income tax, and it was disclosed that his weekly earnings averaged £27. Further comment seems superfluous.—J. T. BULL, Brixworth, Northampton.

A Breath of Fresh Air.

In this column A. Bonnet Laird comments upon some of the many letters he has lately received from nature lovers.

Thief of the World.

Have you ever seen the thief of the world—the stoat, I mean, not the fox—actually at his mischievous work?

Listen, then, to a farm labourer friend of mine, in Worcestershire, who has.

In our rickyard (he says) was an old hovel, in a corner, and a stoat lived in there, well 'dug in.' We could never catch him. In the middle of the rickyard was a large fowl hut on wheels.

One day, at dinner-time, I stood looking out of the barn door, and I heard a soft noise in the hen-roost. In a moment, an egg fell out of the entrance-hole, down on to the ground, which was soft with straw litter.

At once the stoat sprang down after it, reared up on hind legs and ran merrily off, bowling the egg before him with his fore-paws. He ran at a good speed, trundling the egg, and looked so smart and funny.

Having no gun, I could not shoot him, so I shouted. He ran away and I rescued the egg. He must have lifted it out of the egg-box inside the hut, carried it to the hole and dropped it to the ground.

This same listener—what a lot he must have seen, since he started work at eleven years old, for half-a-crown a week, thirty-three years ago!—witnessed, going out to the farm one morning, that incident which I regretfully said some time ago I have never had the luck to see—a mother rabbit, in defence of its young one, knock a stoat flying.

Yet when there are no young to defend, how helpless the rabbit seems against its enemies!

An Autumn Tragedy.

I have news of an autumn tragedy on a North Berwick shore (C. M. M.)—the scream of a rabbit, dragging itself slowly out of the undergrowth, and around it, looking more like a dead leaf being blown about, a weasel was playing.

He seemed so sure of his prey. First, he would attack, then skip and bound away—at one time to a distance of ten yards. Back then he would come, in graceful bounds—and again that awful scream.

I kept perfectly still and the rabbit dragged itself to my feet. Now, I thought, I am going to learn it, when the weasel is after its kill, it becomes oblivious to its own enemies.

Half shutting my eyes, in case they attracted attention, I awaited the weasel's return to the attack. Sure enough, he came, and the two of them rolled at my feet, and at one time, actually touching my toes.

I made a sudden grab at the rabbit, and in swinging it clear from the ground, actually lifted the weasel into the air as well. It seemed several seconds before he grasped what was really happening, and then—he went!

The rabbit, as I found after examination, was more dead from fright than anything else.

THE WIRELESS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA, conducted by GEOFFREY TOYN

Brigg Fair

Concerto for Violin and Orchestra

Soloist, ALBERT SAMMONS

In a Summer Garden

Dance Rhapsody, No. 1

BRIGG FAIR is an English folk-song which Delius has made the basis of an orchestral Rhapsody. He has prefaced his score with the words of the ballad. This is the first verse:—

It was on the lift' of August,
The weather fine and fair,
Unto Brigg Fair I did repair,
For love I was inclined.

The Rhapsody is scored for a large Orchestra. The Introduction (Slow, Pastoral) consists mainly of little arabesques on Flutes and Clarinets, suggestive of bird songs.

The Tune is then given out as an Oboe Solo, with light chordal accompaniment of Woodwind and pizzicato (plucked) Strings.

The rest of the work consists of almost continuous variations on the Tune.

INSTEAD of the normal three Movements of the Concerto, Delius here condenses into one Movement the whole of his discourse.

Building on many small, germinal motifs, he contrives to balance his sections and to give them independent life, while maintaining the unity of this one-piece work.

Two bars lead us straight into the Solo Violin's chief theme, with, in the middle, its little quick lift of four short notes, that makes it easy to recognize. In a few more bars we are in a new time, with three divisions to each beat instead of four, and with a slightly slower swing the Violin gives out its rising and falling second tune. These and one or two other motifs supply the material for the first part of the work, and then we pass into a slower section (Strings muted), built up on two singing themes, one three-to-the-beat, and the other, in four-time, beginning with the 'snap'—a short note followed by a longer one.

The Soloist has a short 'cadenza,' by himself, and then the themes of the opening section receive fresh treatment.

A new part begins with a dancing tune (Woodwind and plucked Strings), which the Soloist decorates. A more sober theme follows.

Finally the opening ideas recur, and the work ends in a characteristically striking and elusive way.

NO one has pictured the calm and tranquil moods of nature more beautifully than Delius. In a Summer Garden is one such impression, which is dedicated to the Composer's wife. It is headed by a quotation from D. G. Rossetti that gives us the thought behind the music:—

All are my blooms; and all sweet blooms of love
To thee I gave while Spring and Summer sang.

THE First Dance Rhapsody was brought out at the Hereford Festival of 1909. A large Orchestra is used, including the rarely heard Heckelphone (an improved Bass Oboe).

At the outset a short Introduction brings forth some of the tunes to be worked upon. Two of these appear successively on Oboe and Flute. Another motif of which use is made is the little dance that the Horns have.

In the next section the time quickens considerably, and Bassoons and lower Strings give out a new tune. Violins, in octaves, have another. The treatment of these is free, and charmingly coloured.

After more development, the Oboe's first dance-theme comes back, on Flute and Clarinet in octaves.

After a climax, a slow section ensues, in which a Solo Violin has a beautiful version of the first Tune, accompanied only by Strings.

The last clear division is that in which the 'very lively' pace is resumed. The end is loud and most energetic.

Reading the Description of the Death of Socrates in Plato's Dialogue, 'Phaedo'

THE first of the great philosophers whose teaching has influenced the whole current of European thought is Socrates, the Athenian, the master of Plato, through whose writings the Socratic philosophy and the Socratic method have come down to us. Like the majority of philosophers, Socrates did not fit very easily into the society of his time, and the passage from the 'Phaedo' that Mr. Squire (the essayist, critic, poet, and editor of the London Mercury) is to read to-night describes the tragic termination of his career in the year 399 B.C., when, in consequence of a decree of the Athenians, he was condemned to drink poison for 'corrupting their youth.'

HERE is a cheery work of Beethoven's early manhood. He wrote it when he was thirty-three. It represents a big step forward, in breadth of style and freedom of individuality, from the First Symphony, fresh and striking as that was. There are four Movements, of which we are to hear the Second and Third.

SECOND MOVEMENT. (Slow with breadth.) This Movement foreshadows, in its style and general thought, much of Beethoven's later music. It is mainly lyrical, and is in 'Sonata' form. There is in it much delicate and charming Woodwind work.

THIRD MOVEMENT. This is a Scherzo, the successor to the Minuet. Beethoven took this old dance, which had until his time been a fixture in the Symphony, and made it into a skittish Movement, in which all sorts of lively and surprising things might happen. ('Scherzo' means, literally, 'a joke'.)

WE are always hearing of 'the musical temperament,' by which is usually meant a certain sensitiveness, waywardness and excitability. Tchaikovsky, at any rate, had it.

Probably few men, even amongst artistic folk, have been as sensitive as he, or had their feelings, at times, less under control. We see this in some of his music, the emotions of which range from wild exuberance to black despair.

None but the Weary Heart is one of his most tragic songs. Its combination of depth of emotion, simplicity and beauty have earned it an honourable place in the repertory of song.

TO MUSIC is an appeal to the 'divine voice' to enlighten the darkness of the heart, to give strength that grief may be conquered, and to fill the soul with the love of noble things; then Death itself shall not still the music of the soul.

10. Final Duet (Ina and Sir Galahad) and Chorus, 'O Wonderful! She lives'

THIS Cantata, first heard at the Norwich Festival of 1893, is founded on the story told by Wordsworth, in The Egyptian Maid, or The Water Lily. In its full form (it may, on this occasion, be somewhat shortened) Cowen's 'Romantic Legend' consists of a PROLOGUE ('A Forest near Caerleon'), and four SCENES, entitled respectively 'Morning on the Cornish Coast,' 'On a Scilly Islet,' 'On the Cornish Coast,' and 'At Caerleon (Lists are prepared for a Tournament).'

In the PROLOGUE, after an Orchestral Introduction, Sir Galahad (Tenor), wandering in the forest near King Arthur's Court, is greeted by a rustic band of men and maids, who sing of the joyous coming together of lovers. This reminds him of a dream in which he saw a lovely face in the heart of a water-lily. 'Come from glade, or bow, or stream, Lovely lady of my dream!' he begs, and in answer airy spirits appear, sent by the goddess Norna (Contralto) to bring him a vision of her whom he would fain see again.

He falls asleep, and in a dream sees a ship, whereon is seated an Egyptian Princess, Ina (Soprano). She sings that she is journeying to where her lover waits for her—'at Britain's Court.' Sir Galahad awakes.

SCENE 1. The magician Merlin (Bass), seeing Ina's ship approaching, causes a storm to break upon it. It sinks, and Merlin is beginning to lament his rashness, when Norna appears, and tells him how grave is his act, since Ina is awaited at the Court of King Arthur. Norna summons a magic boat, and sets forth to seek Ina.

SCENE 2. Ina has been cast up, alone, on one of the Scilly islands. She laments her fate. Norna arrives and rescues her.

SCENE 3. On the coast of Cornwall Merlin awaits them, with a swift car drawn by swans, which transports Ina to Caerleon.

SCENE 4. At Arthur's Court, a tournament is about to begin. The arrival of Merlin's car creates great excitement. Ina is presumed to be dead, and flowers are strewn upon the car. Merlin suggests that the King's knights shall try by touch to revive her, 'For so may pass to her the kindred life of him, her destined lord.' Many knights do so without success, but at Galahad's touch she revives, and joins her lover in a joyous duet.

2.55 Reading, 'Sailing Round the World,' by Captain SLOCUM

3.0 BROADCAST TO SCHOOLS: Mr. PHILIP GRAVES,
'The Holy Land'

THIS is the third of a weekly series of Travel Talks at this time, in the first of which Mr. H. G. Ponting described the South Pole, and in the second Mrs. Mansfield spoke of North-West Spain. Now Mr. Graves will tell of the Holy Land as it is to-day—still, even apart from its tremendous associations, one of the most romantic, wild, and fascinating of the countries of the Near East.

4.0 TIME SIGNAL, GREENWICH. THE R.A.C. DANCE BAND, from the Royal Automobile Club

4.15 Prof. G. ELLIOT SMITH, 'The Movements of Living Creatures'

THIS is the third of Professor Elliot Smith's Talks, and this week he will deal with the development of muscles as a means of movement, and what the cultivation of their skill has entailed, especially in the growth of the nervous system and the development of mind. He will start with the amoeba, the most primitive of living creatures, which has no muscles nor any constant shape, but moves by the streaming of its substance. Drawings of the amoeba, and of the next stage in evolution, the medusa, which moves by the contraction of its muscles, appear on this page.

4.30 THE R.A.C. DANCE BAND, from the Royal Automobile Club

5.0 Household Talk: Mrs. NOBLE, 'The Making of Lampshades'

5.15 THE CHILDREN'S HOUR: Piano Solos by C. E. DIXON. Songs by R. F. PALMER. A Talk about Stars by Captain MAURICE AINSLIE. 'How Hereward the Wake Turned Potter' (Roland Walker)

MOVEMENT AND MUSCLE.

This afternoon Professor G. Elliot Smith gives the second of his Talks on 'The Movements of Living Creatures.' (London 4.15.) This time he will deal with the development of muscle and its consequences. Of these two illustrations, the top one shows the amoeba, the most primitive of living creatures, which has no muscle and moves by the streaming of its substance; and the lower one the medusa, which moves by the contraction of its muscles.

QUARTET
Quartet in D Flat, Op. 15 Dohnanyi

THE Hungarian Pianist-Composer-Conductor Dohnanyi began to compose when he was not much over six. He is best known to us as a much-travelled Concert Pianist and as a Composer of some sprightly and piquant Orchestral Variations. He has a fine sense of colour, and his harmonies often take unexpected turns.

We are to hear his second String Quartet, in four well-contrasted Movements, the first of which is really in two sections—a slow Introduction leading to the vigorous quick Movement proper.

IN TO-NIGHT'S VARIETY PROGRAMME.

An hour of variety will be broadcast from London Station between 7.45 and 8.45 to-night. Here are three of the popular artists who will take part; (from left to right) Miss Wish Wynne, Mr. Tom Clare, and Mr. Will Kings.

SOME of the sincerest and most delicate compositions of this century were left by George Butterworth, who was killed in the war. Folk-song colours all his thought, and his music tells plainly that he had deep within him the rapture and peace of the English countryside. Come, My Own One is a Sussex folk-song—one among several that he collected and arranged.

WERE you there when they crucified my Lord? is one of the most poignant of the religious songs of the American Negro. Though cast in a familiar idiom, the words of these have as their moving force a deep and simple piety.

Frederick Delius at Home

By Beatrice Harrison

[Miss Beatrice Harrison, the famous cellist, is well known to listeners for her successful attempts to lure the shy Surrey nightingales to the microphone. In the following article Miss Harrison gives an intimate and colourful picture of a visit she recently paid to the home of Frederick Delius, one of the greatest of contemporary English composers, a programme of whose works is to be broadcast from London at 3.30 p.m. on Sunday, January 30.]

I HAVE just had the privilege and happiness of visiting Mr. Delius and his charming wife in their lovely old French home at Grez-sur-Loing. We found Delius seated in an arm-chair, ready to welcome us, and though he is in such delicate health he had insisted on waiting lunch for us, although we were very late. He is the most charming host imaginable, and immediately sent for a bottle of the finest wine from his famous cellar.

Delius bought this little property in 1899. Grez was the place that Robert Louis Stevenson loved so dearly in the 'seventies, and he has thus described it: 'It lies out of the forest—a cluster of houses, with an old bridge, an old castle in ruins, and a quaint old church.' Delius's house lies in the shadow of the church, with a lovely old garden, with a fish pond and tiny orchard, leading down to the river. In the spring and summer time Delius goes down to the river and sits in a boat in the midst of just such a scene as Corot loved to paint. Even at this time of the year he often goes out twice a day, and sometimes also after tea, the air being so soft and warm. The outside of the house is white with the window-shutters painted a vivid blue-green.

After lunch we went through many passages to Delius's beautiful studio, where he has composed most of his music. It gave me an intense thrill to play his concerto to him in that wonderful atmosphere, and I confess I felt very nervous and excited. Mr. Gerald Moore accompanied me on the piano.

Afterwards my sister Margaret played Delius's violin concerto, and he was delighted with her interpretation of the work.

It is a wonderful thing to look at Delius when he is listening to music; his face is lighted up in a state of spiritual rapture, and although he is helpless and partially blind his whole soul shines out of his face like a living lamp. It is extraordinary what odds he fights against and yet still takes such an interest in life generally. I believe it is his imagination and his love of music that keep him alive.

It was very interesting to hear him talk about broadcasting. He has a fine wireless set, and recently the Amplion Company have presented him with one of their loud speakers, so that he can now hear the best music with ease and delight. Living, as he does, so far away from all music, the value of wireless to him is inestimable.

I have always insisted that Delius's music would be most popular if the public could have a chance of hearing it. On one occasion, when I played his cello concerto on a Sunday evening to a popular audience, the enthusiasm was so intense that a second rendering was demanded, but, alas! time did not permit. I like to think now that wireless and the gramophone will do this glorious work of making Delius's music known to millions of listeners.

Some people say that Delius has no humour, but I know that no one is wittier than he. During my visit we had such fun with him talking over old times and about the wee pup who was born on the day the concerto was begun in our garden in Surrey, where the daffodils and spring flowers were in full blossom and the birds singing.

In conclusion, let me quote what Delius says about music: 'Music is a cry of the Soul. It is a revelation, a thing to be revered.' And again: 'Performances of a great musical work are for us what the rites and festivals of religion were for the ancients—an initiation into the mysteries of the human Soul.'

This interesting photograph, which was taken some years ago, shows Miss Beatrice Harrison with Mr. Delius in the beautiful grounds of her house in Surrey.

NOVELS of the South Seas are as plentiful as the flowers that bloom in the Spring, and only too often they have equally little to do with the case. Miss Grimshaw, however, is one of the few writers who really know the South Seas. She has travelled not only over most of Europe, Australia, and North America, but amongst those islands of the Pacific that look so near together, and so alike, on the map, and really spread over thousands of miles and contain dozens of widely differing races and tongues. Her present home is in Papua, and she is returning there later in the month, so listeners are fortunate in being able to hear her before she goes.

7.25 Prof. P. J. NOEL BAKER, 'Foreign Affairs and How They Affect Us'

THE delusion that foreign affairs do not affect us—'us' standing for the ordinary person, the man in the street—is primarily what has made it possible for diplomats to make so many stupid wars in the course of history. It is only since the last war that the need for 'open diplomacy' has been fully realized. Professor Noel Baker, who before taking up the Chair of International Relations in the University of London, worked for some momentous years on the Secretariat of the League of Nations, is endeavouring in this series to make clear to the ordinary man what diplomacy is, how it works, and how important the whole obscure business of foreign affairs really is.

ERWIN SCHULHOFF

Five Jazz Concert Studies (1926) Schulhoff
Charleston; Blues; Song; Tango; Toccata on the Shimmy—The Kitten on the Keys

ERWIN SCHULHOFF, Pianist and Composer, was born in Prague thirty-three years ago. His academic career at the Conservatoires of Prague, Leipzig and Cologne, and at the Berlin High School for Music, was a distinguished one. He has since made known a great deal of modern music, with which he is keenly in sympathy. His own style in composition has been described by one of his fellow-countrymen as between those of Schönberg and Stravinsky.

QUARTET

Quartet in D Minor, Op. 34 Dvorak

IN almost everything Dvorak wrote we find the national element peeping out. The Composer was brought up among peasant folk, and learned to love the songs and dances that he heard in the alchouse or on the village green.

His first String Quartet (in D Minor, known as 'Opus 34') contains several traces of these happy influences. It is in four Movements.

The FIRST MOVEMENT is a cheery, care-free affair, with a touch of Southern grace in it.

The SECOND MOVEMENT is a Polka, a native Bohemian dance that about a hundred years ago began to be popular in almost all European ballrooms. In Dvorak's example we get the essence of the dance's spirit, with an added lightness and daintiness now and again, and occasionally, as a contrast, an almost furious battering of the rhythm. To the first part of this Movement a quieter 'Trio' succeeds, in different time (three beats in the bar in place of two), and then the Polka returns.

The THIRD MOVEMENT is played with mutes, and some rich effects are obtained by the instruments playing, at times, chords of two notes each, so that at certain moments there are eight parts going.

The LAST MOVEMENT skips along in dance fashion, with occasional changes of mood, when a more flowing, undulating style is used. At such times the 'Cello frequently keeps up the little 'postman's knock' rhythm of three notes that was observable at the start.

Glyn Powys (His Son) J. MALDWYN THOMAS
Gwynneth Powys (His Daughter) MARY MACDONALD TAYLOR
Patty Pritchard (A Neighbouring Farmer) JACQUE THOMAS

THE action takes place in the kitchen of the Powys's farm, up in the Welsh hills. Elias Powys, a sandy-haired, vehement little man in the fifties, is busily stirring a pot that hangs over the fire in the spacious kitchen of his farm. His mother, Mary Powys, whose age is so great that many have left off trying to remember what it is, sits in a chair beside him. She is knitting a long and amazingly thick stocking. Elias speaks.

- 9.35 HAYMAN AND FRANKLIN
JOE HAYMAN, the Jewish Entertainer (assisted by MILDRED FRANKLIN) in Comedy Sketches
HAYMAN and Franklin are perhaps the cleverest Hebrew pair now appearing on the music-hall stage. Without casting ridicule on the Jewish faith or in any way straining after effect, they produce an act worthy of the reputation that Joe Hayman has made for himself with his famous 'Cohen' records. They have quite recently broadcast from London, but this week's tour—in the course of which they visited Glasgow yesterday and will be heard from Manchester to-morrow, Birmingham on Thursday, Belfast on Friday, and Aberdeen on Saturday—will be their first introduction to many listeners, although they are established favourites with the broadcast public of the United States.

2.55 Reading, 'Pickwick Papers,' by Charles Dickens

3.0 BROADCAST TO SCHOOLS: MR. A. LLOYD JAMES, 'Our Native Tongue'

3.20 Mr. J. C. STOBART and Miss MARY SOMERVILLE, 'Some Books Worth Reading—'The Last of the Mohicans,' by J. Fenimore Cooper'

THIS afternoon Mr. Stobart and Miss Somerville are to talk of one of the most dearly-loved of boyhood's classics of the past generation. James Fenimore Cooper was the first, the most authentic, and, from the literary point of view, incomparably the best of the long roll of novelists who have written of the noble Red Man of the American prairies; and 'The Last of the Mohicans' is his most famous work. There can be few middle-aged men whose blood will not thrill at the very mention of Hawk-eye, the scout, his inseparable companion Chingachgook, the Sagamore, and Uncas, the last of the Mohicans; and many a blameless father of a family will even now mutter imprecations as he thinks of the false villainy of Magua, Le Subtil, 'the dog of the Wyandots.' Fenimore Cooper may, for all one knows, seem old-fashioned to the modern boy, but no characters were ever more real than these four, a generation ago.

3.45 Miss RHODA POWER, 'Village Life in Queen Elizabeth's Days'

IN her two preceding Talks, Miss Power has dealt with village life 700 years ago, and again 500 years ago, when already the village as a social unit was breaking up. To-day she comes on to Elizabeth's time, the dawn of modern England, an age in which we can trace the roots of many problems that we are still grappling with to-day. The growth of sheep-farming, instead of agriculture, had lessened the demand for rural labour, at the same time as the attraction of the towns became stronger; and the dissolution of the monasteries, by taking away the only organization for relieving poverty, had led to a measure that gives sinister forebodings of a problem still unsolved: the first Poor Law was passed in 1601. It is of the village, then, in the era when it was ceasing to be a healthy social unit, and beginning to become more and more often either a survival or a problem, that Miss Power will speak to-day.

7.0 Talk by the Ministry of Health: Dr. S. MONCKTON COPEMAN, 'Stephen Hales: Pioneer in Public Health'

P. A. Squire

Mr. P. G. WODEHOUSE,

the popular humorist, has chosen and arranged the special programme to be broadcast from London between 9.30 and 11.0 to-night.

DR. MONCKTON COPEMAN is a particularly distinguished authority on matters relating to the public health. He has been Senior Medical Inspector to the Local Government Board, Lieutenant-Colonel in charge of the Hygiene Department, R.A.M. College, 1916-7, and lecturer and examiner to the Universities of London and Leeds, the Royal College of Physicians and the Royal College of Surgeons.

7.15 THE FOUNDATIONS OF MUSIC

The Sonatas of Mozart played through consecutively at this hour daily throughout the week

7.25 Prof. V. H. MOTTRAM, 'Present-Day Problems of Food: Body Building and Body Warming'

PROFESSOR MOTTRAM is Professor of Physiology in the University of London, and the author of 'Food and the Family'—one of the most important books in the short history of popular dietetics. In this series of Talks on present-day problems of food, he has already dealt with 'Modern Food Difficulties' and 'What Food Is and What Is Food'; and to-day he discusses the questions of 'Body Building and Body Warming.' A diagram, showing the relative food-values of various articles of diet, appears below.

HOW MUCH OF WHAT WE EAT IS FOOD?

This evening, at 7.25, Professor Mottram gives the third of his Talks from London on 'Present-Day Problems of Food,' dealing this time with 'Body Building and Body Warming.' This diagram shows the proportions of nutritive elements and of water in some articles of our modern diet, and the relative food-values that it reveals will probably surprise most people who have not made a scientific study of what they eat.

9.30-11.0 MY PROGRAMME

By P. G. WODEHOUSE

LISTENERS have, in the course of this series, had opportunities of hearing typical broadcast programmes compiled according to the ideas of such different types of celebrity as, for instance, Mr. George Grossmith, Mr. Patry Hendren, Mr. Phil Scott and Mr. J. C. Squire. To-night they will get yet another angle on 'the ideal programme,' when they hear what one of our most original humorists thinks it should be. Mr. Wodehouse is the creator of 'Archie,' the well-dressed young man whose self-assurance is rivalled only by his incompetence, but who is endowed with the most unwarranted good luck; of 'Jeeves,' the manservant in a million; of 'Ukridge,' the unexpected; of 'Mike' and 'Psmith,' and many more, and of a style of humorous writing that his many imitators have never been able to do quite so successfully as he does it himself.

Specially written for broadcasting by D. G. COUZENS
Played by the LONDON RADIO REPERTORY PLAYERS

Characters:
The Skipper
Jan
Donald
Angus

THE Gaelic legends afford many interesting, not to say thrilling, examples of the weird and mysterious. This play is founded upon one of these, and illustrated in an emphatic manner the strong belief in such legends that survives to this day in the more remote parts of our own country.

The Action opens in a small fishing boat in heavy weather off one of the Islands of the Hebrides. The crew join in a traditional shanty while shortening sail because of the storm which is about to break. In this wild setting, Donald, Angus and Jan discuss the ancient legend with its curious application to Jan's family, and during the course of the play its remarkable fulfilment is shown.

A SIXTEENTH-CENTURY BEE FARM.

This afternoon, in the third of her series of Talks on 'Village Life in Olden Times,' Miss Rhoda Power will describe the English countryside in the time of Queen Elizabeth. This picture (which is taken from a contemporary print reproduced in 'The Life and Work of the People of England in the Sixteenth Century,' by Dorothy Hartley and Margaret M. Elliot) shows one of the village industries of the period—bee-farming. It is doubtful, however, if even in the days of good Queen Bess bees ever grew to quite that size.

Variations on a Theme by Haydn

THE Tune out of which the whole piece is made was taken by Brahms from an unpublished Brass Band piece of Haydn, where it is called a 'Hymn of St. Anthony.' The reason for the name is unknown.

Brahms' plan is to give out the Hymn in its plain form, and then to follow it with eight Variations and a Finale. A word or two as to each of the Variations will make clear their styles.

The HYMN moves steadily, at a gentle pace.
VARIATION I. (A little more lively.) This is made out of two phrases, heard at the opening, where the Upper Strings have a rising phrase four-in-a-bar, and the Lower Strings have a falling phrase, six-in-a-bar.

VARIATION II. (Livelier.) The music goes into the minor, and at the opening, Clarinets and Bassoons carry on a version of the Hymn, the Violins, etc., weaving a phrase against it.

VARIATION III. (With speed.) Oboes and Bassoons first, and Strings later, have the main melody, a pleasantly flowing one.

VARIATION IV. (Going steadily, at a moderate speed.) Three-in-a-bar time. Oboe and Horn sing a simple little tune, soon taken over by Strings. So the Variation goes on, with varied and charming orchestration.

VARIATION V. (Very lively.) Now the music goes into six-in-a-bar. This Variation is a sort of 'Scherzo,' with some gay exchanges between Strings and Woodwind.

VARIATION VI. (Very lively.) The time changes back to two-in-a-bar. At the opening Horns, Bassoons and Double Bassoon carry the Cardiff, relayed to Daventry, to-night.

main theme of the Variation, Strings plucking an accompaniment which is itself a version of the Hymn.

VARIATION VII. (Gracefully.) This is a sort of pastoral dance—six-in-a-bar.

VARIATION VIII. (Quick, but not too much so.) Three-in-a-bar again. Strings are muted throughout, and the whole Variation is delicate.

FINALE. (Steadily moving along at a gentle pace.) Four beats in a bar. This is rather lengthy in comparison with the Variation just described. Of the opening tune (Strings alone) a good deal is made. Near the end the original HYMN is heard in the Strings, with a mighty rushing Wind against it.

ORCHESTRA
First Symphony

BRAHMS began to write symphonies only in middle life. His first (Op. 68) appeared in 1876 (he was born in 1833, six years after Beethoven's death), and at Cambridge, in March of the following year, it was heard for the first time in this country. The University Musical Society (then under Stanford's charge) played it, conducted for the occasion by Brahms' great friend, Joachim, the Violinist, on whom the degree of Doctor of Music was being conferred.

The Symphony in C Minor follows the usual
'classical' forms, and is in four Movements.

The FIRST MOVEMENT is very weighty and unusually serious, even for Brahms.

The vein of seriousness affects also the SECOND MOVEMENT, a gently flowing piece, partly song-like, partly rhapsodic.

Then comes a more light-spirited THIRD MOVEMENT, of a more seizable rhythm, but one that is far from introducing the spirit of gaiety that we often find in one of the middle pieces of a Symphony.

The LAST MOVEMENT opens with a short, solemn Introduction that keeps the Violins in soaring flight for a few bars. Then after a change from the prevailing minor to a major key and a short pause, the urgent Finale (still in the major) starts on its long, exulting course.

Dear Mr. Macdonald Smith,

I take this opportunity of letting you know that I am continuing to use your System with the finest results, and as my professional work keeps me so busy that there is little opportunity to practise, I find it of the greatest value. The exercises alone save many weary hours of keyboard work, enabling one to get flexibility and finger-control far more easily and efficiently than by the out-of-date method of scales, arpeggios, etc. I recommend your System to beginners and advanced players alike whenever occasion arises.

Yours sincerely,

It gives one a slight shock to discover a close, though possibly bloody parallel, in some fierce nature-rite of New Guinea or the Society Isles, for such pleasant old customs of our own as Hallowe'en celebrations or Jack-in-the-Green. NATIONAL CONCERT PROGRAMME (February 3)

Programme Notes.

THE CONDUCTOR.

HERMANN SCHERCHEN, Conductor of the Frankfurt Museum Concerts, is a self-taught musician, now thirty-six, who, after playing the Viola in Berlin's leading Orchestra, became leader of the Symphony Orchestra at Riga when he was only twenty-three. He was imprisoned in Russia during the war, and on his return founded and conducted the New Musical Society in Berlin, published a musical journal, Melos, devoted to the latest ideas in composition, and became Lecturer in modern Music at the State High School for Music. After a short period as Conductor of an Orchestra in Leipzig, he accepted his present post at Frankfurt. He has composed songs and chamber music.

THE PIANIST

SINCE Pouchkoff first played in London, just six years ago, he has become very widely known, not only in the Concert room, but through his performances for the B.B.C.

He was born in Russia thirty-six years ago, and had a brilliant career at the Petrograd Conservatoire, finally winning a prize which gave him a voyage to Europe. He worked under distinguished masters, not only at the Pianoforte, under Madame Essipof, but at Composition, under Rimsky-Korsakov, Liadov and Glazunov, and at Conducting, under Teberpniu.

OVERTURE TO 'OBERON.'

OBERON was Weber's last Opera. He wrote it for Covent Garden, and it is just over a hundred years old, for it had its first performance in 1826. The Composer himself came over to direct the performance. When he entered the theatre he found it, as he told his wife in a letter, 'crammed to the roof,' with an audience that, seeing him, at once 'burst into a frenzy of applause,' and waved hats and handkerchiefs. The Overture aroused such enthusiasm that it had to be played twice before the people would let the opera proper begin.

That was a glorious success for the Composer, but it was his last great triumph, for he came here a sick man, with little expectation of ever seeing his home again, and within a few weeks London musical people, who had shown such pleasure in his Opera, were attending the last rites in the Roman Catholic Chapel at Moorfields.

At the beginning of the Overture we hear the magic horn of Oberon, King of the Fairies, who immediately make their tripping entry. The rest of the Overture is built upon leading Airs from the Opera, and conjures up its atmosphere of fairyland, of chivalry, adventure and the triumph of love after many vicissitudes.

VERKLÄRTE NACHT (RESPLENDENT NIGHT).

ARNOLD SCHÖNBERG was born in Vienna in 1874. Resplendent Night (Verklärte Nacht) is one of his earlier works. It first appeared some years ago as a Sextet for Violins, Violas and Cellos (two of each). To-day's version is for String Orchestra. It is identical with the original, except that there are, of course, several instruments to each part, and the bass (the second Cello part) is frequently reinforced by the Double Basses.

The music is based on a poem by Richard Dehmel, which is prefixed to the score of the work. It embodies a fantastic, highly imaginative conception, telling of a man and a woman walking over a barren heath on a cloudless, moonlight night. The woman has betrayed the faith which she owed to the man. He reassures her, telling her that this glorious night transfigures all things. The two pass on through the night.

The music of this work, however 'modern' it may at first sound to some hearers, is in reality distinctly descended from the German nineteenth-century style, and actually follows the general lines of statement, development, and recapitulation of tunes. But there are so many tunes, and their treatment is so complex, that the most experienced musician could hardly hope immediately to follow the music in detail without the score. One should, rather, try to appreciate it as a tone-picture, and as an expression of the spirit of the poem, dominated 9.30 PART II.

Third Symphony (The 'Heroic') Beethoven

by the atmosphere of the resplendent, moonlit night.

LISZT'S FIRST PIANOFORTE CONCERTO.

WHAT a wonderfully attractive figure Liszt must have been in his day! Pianist, Composer, Conductor, and Priest, he fascinated everybody as much by the air of romance with which sentimental folk had surrounded him, as by his amazing technique. Musicians appreciated that too, and valued still more his innovations in the methods of musical structure, some of which are to be noted in this work. Its three movements, for instance, are played without break, and the chief themes appear in more than one of the Movements.

FIRST MOVEMENT (Quick, with majesty). The First Main Tune is given out by the Full Orchestra. After a quieter section for the Piano, the slow Second Main Tune is heard in the Strings, gently rising and falling, before being given out by the Solo instrument. The Flute, and immediately after it the Clarinet, have a Third Tune (which is to be heard again in the Last Movement).

SECOND MOVEMENT (Fairly quick, vivacious). The Triangle is much used here. It introduces a new Main Tune, which Strings expound. This Movement, in a gay and capricious spirit, leads again without interruption into the THIRD MOVEMENT (Quick, martial, animated). Beginning with the Slow melody we heard before, we have next the Flute's Third Tune, and changed but quite recognizable versions of the melody of the vivacious Movement. This last part sums up and re-presents the foregoing material.

BEETHOVEN'S THIRD ('HEROIC') SYMPHONY.

BEETHOVEN'S love of the fine and heroic and, too, of the rebellious, led him to dedicate this Symphony (the title is his own) to Napoleon. When in 1804 Napoleon proved himself after all a man of selfish ambition, Beethoven tore off the original title-page of his Symphony, and inscribed it instead 'To the memory of a great man.'

With this Symphony he felt that he was, as he said, taking a new path.

The FIRST MOVEMENT is one of elemental force. Nothing could be more simple and direct than its First Main Tune—merely a kind of short Bugle-call (though first heard on Cellos). And a large part of this great Movement is made out of another Tune which consists of a mere three-note drooping phrase. There is a Third Main Tune of wonderful contrast and beauty (tender repeated Woodwind chords).

The SECOND MOVEMENT, headed Funeral March, falls into three sections.

The First Section opens with a Tune played at a low pitch by First Violins. This, with a little other material, is treated at some length. This First Section has a definite close.

The Second Section is elaborate, but rather shorter than the First Section. Its chief material is heard at the outset—a sustained melody starting fairly high on the Oboe.

The Third Section is, of course, in the nature of a return to the First, but it is greatly extended and elaborated.

THIRD MOVEMENT. This Movement is a striking example of Beethoven's 'new road.' Instead of a short, more or less formal Minuet and Trio, we have a long piece which, in point of emotional force, is on a level with the other three Movements, yet answers well to its title of Scherzo, or 'jest.' The form is, however, simply that of the usual Minuet and Trio, which is played thus: Minuet—Trio—Minuet.

The Trio is easily recognized by the fact that its tune is a typical Horn-call.

The FINALE (Very quick) is one of the biggest sets of Variations ever written. It is also one of the most organic: that is, the listener is conscious of a continuous growth.

After an introductory rushing phrase there is given out an oddly fragmentary Tune. It is in two halves, each repeated unadorned, played chiefly by plucked Strings.

Two Variations on this fragmentary tune follow, for Strings alone. At last the real Tune of the Movement comes—and we discover that the other tune to which we have been listening is in reality the bass of this one.

The two sections of this new Tune with an old Bass, as one may call it, are each played first by Woodwind (especially the Oboe) and repeated by Full Orchestra (especially Violins).

From this double Tune a great set of Variations is made, sometimes very free indeed, but always connected with some part of the original.

7.15 Prof. C. H. REILLY, 'Some Modern Buildings: The Office Block.' S.B. from Liverpool

FIFTY years ago, nobody starting a series of lectures on contemporary architecture would have thought of including 'The Office Block.' To-day, however, the office building has become almost as much the normal test and opportunity for the aspiring architect as the gentleman's country house was then. If one thinks of the most important buildings of the last few years, one finds that, along with Liverpool Cathedral and the London County Hall, there come Bush House and Adelaide House, and the new buildings on the Devonshire House site (for one of which, by the way, Professor Reilly was jointly responsible), and the new Lloyd's, and the new buildings in Finsbury Circus and St. Martin's-le-Grand, a striking photograph of one of which appears on this page. With the banks, the offices are providing the most impressive and the most conspicuous portion of the body of modern architecture, and Professor Reilly will discuss how far the problem of the office block, which had certainly not been satisfactorily dealt with before the war, has now been solved.

9.45 'FOR FRANCE'
 An Episode of the Franco-Prussian War
 By JOHN OSWALD FRANCIS

Cast:
 Henri Loujanne (An Old Frenchman)
 Marie (His Wife)
 Louis (Loujanne's Nephew)
 Hélène (Louis' Sweetheart)
 Bepler (A Prussian Sergeant)

THE poignant sorrows which assail the civil population of a country which is involved in a great war are vividly illustrated by the above play, founded upon an incident of the Franco-Prussian War of 1870-1.

The sacrifice of youth in its fateful struggle is well remembered, but here is unfolded the story of how ago also suffered that France might live, and the ill success of the French armies of the North is reflected in the action of the play.

In a small cottage in rural France lived Henri Loujanne and his wife, their nephew, Louis, being a soldier in General Michel's army.

Besides these, we are also introduced to Hélène, a young peasant girl, and Sergeant Bepler, a Prussian.

How Twickenham Came to the West.

By Fred. M. White.

[Mr. White, well known as the author of popular novels, tells how he listened to the Rugby International broadcast on January 15. To judge from the many letters received from listeners, his opinion of the success of the broadcast is shared by football enthusiasts in the West Country who were unable to make the journey to Twickenham.]

WHEN the B.B.C. without flourish of trumpets or tuck o' drum announced the broadcast of the first International Rugby match from Twickenham, countless hordes of enthusiasts of the finest winter game in the world sat up and took notice. And none more than we in the Western counties, where in the lean years following the boom in professional 'soccer' the older game was practically kept alive. All this without detracting from the great work Blackheath has done for four decades. Or the efforts of 'gallant little Wales'—which must be accounted in the West, too.

What would such a broadcast be like? we asked ourselves. And how would the plan of the ground that the B.B.C. was supplying free of charge help us? Would it all turn out to be something mildly interesting like the broadcast of the Lord Mayor's Show, for instance? Anyway, we sent for that ground plan and girt up our loins, prepared to be mildly intrigued, never dreaming for a moment that the B.B.C. was going to give us yet another miracle.

Touch-line to Fireside.

And it was a miracle. For nearly an hour and a half we in the West (and everywhere else, for that matter) sat thrilled to the marrow and tingling with excitement, thanks to that ground plan and the clear, ringing voice of the Announcer, who followed each movement of the game so that this listener, at any rate, seated in an armchair with a cigarette, could actually see the progress of the play.

Following the Game.

We could follow every pass and forward rush, see Corbett at work, and the fair-haired Windsor Lewis like some slippery shadow behind the pack. We could feel that there was not much to choose between him and the thrusting Laird. We knew that England's Captain was playing the game of his life, and that Stanbury's place kicking verged on the uncanny side.

The Announcer was beautifully impartial. Not one scrap of fine play did he miss. We knew when this or that player had stopped a dangerous rush and exactly where one full-back or another had found touch and saved his charge. And behind all this clarity came in a minor key the other voice from the hut telling us just how the game moved from section to section on the plan, so that all the time we knew even which side of the ground the ball was on. Short of being actually on the ground itself, we had nothing to learn about the progress of the game.

Above it all, that wild glorious cheering from 40,000 throats. The yell that went up when Corbett scored the great try of the match, the Welsh counter-defiance when Rowe Harding made his magnificent effort.

Climax.

Truly, a crowded hour of glorious life! One long thrill from start to finish. And the last few minutes the most breathless of them all. What an afternoon for those who live far away from the scene of that finest of gladiatorial contests!

All honour to the B.B.C.! May there be many such afternoons, including the final of the Association Cup.

A Broadcast Revue by L. DU G., of Punch

IN this novel revue the Professor of History As It Might Have Been, arguing that historians never agree as to how anything happened, or whether it actually happened at all, takes the liberty of building up new versions of important episodes in our history. The instances dealt with cover what may have happened in connection with such notable topics as the following:—

1. Caesar's Attempt to Land in Britain.
2. King Alfred and the Cakes.
3. Edgar and the Danes.
4. King Canute on the Seashore.

A Cat CHARLES NESBITT

Miss Marjorie Ingham, mezzo-soprano, who is giving a song-recital from the Bournemouth Studio to-night at 6.0, with Mr. Ernest Lush, the pianist, who will accompany her.

IN this short play we take you to Upper Egypt in the days of the 20th Dynasty. The gods of Thebes are still worshipped as they have been for many previous centuries, and we would ask you to imagine yourself a spectator of a procession wending its way through the avenue of mighty statues that stretches northwards to the main temple of Thebes, surrounded by the tombs of the Kings of the 18th Dynasty. In its wake follows a young maiden, carrying a large wicker basket inscribed with hieroglyphs, and from the opposite direction a youth approaches. As they meet, a large bracelet drops from the maiden's arm, and the youth stoops down and restores it to its owner.

THE action takes place in the Browns' kitchen, about 7.30 p.m. The curtains cut off our vision of Colliery Row, but it is there, and you feel its influence in the room itself. Imagine Colliery Row, place the inhabitants in Brown's kitchen, and clothe them in their everyday attire. Sarah is ironing away peacefully. Herbert, her son, enters as the story opens.

MARCONIPHONE

A REMARKABLE

ACHIEVEMENT

THE MARCONIPHONE EIGHT-VALVE RECEIVER

MAXIMUM range and selectivity, finest possible tone and ease of manipulation under all conditions, minutely accurate construction and handsome appearance—such is the Marconiphone "Straight Eight." To ensure absolute perfection of quality, the use of reaction has been avoided, sensitivity and selectivity having been obtained by increasing the number of valves. The first five valves are High Frequency Amplifiers, the sixth a Detector and the last two Low Frequency Amplifiers. Even from distant stations the volume is more than sufficient for any ordinary type of loudspeaker. The instrument is contained in a lock-up cabinet with space for housing the H.T. Batteries. Complete, including valves, batteries and royalty, £66 11s.

STERLING TYPE "33"

STERLING

"TYPE 33" LOUDSPEAKER

A new loudspeaker of great volume and capacity which satisfies the most exacting requirements. Music is reproduced with unusual beauty and charm owing to the exceptionally accurate rendering of all tones and over tones. Both tone-channel and horn are entirely non-resonant. In Mahogany or Walnut finish - £5 : 5 : 0

Write for booklet describing the full range of Marconiphones and Sterling Receivers, Loudspeakers, Valves, etc. Marconiphones and Sterling apparatus may be purchased on deferred terms. Particulars on request.

Applications must be marked 'Libretti' on the envelope and sent, together with the remittance, to Broadcast Opera Subscription List, c/o B.B.C., Savoy Hill, London, W.C. 2.
Additional names and addresses may be written on a separate sheet of paper, but payment for the additional subscribers must, of course, be sent with the order. The Libretti will be sent singly as published to reach subscribers a few days before each Opera is broadcast.

The World's greatest Valve Test

THE most remarkable valve test ever conceived has just taken place at Stag Lane Aerodrome, London, when twelve Cossor Valves were hurled from an aeroplane 500 feet up to prove the strength of the wonderful new Cossor Kalenised filament.

In view of the almost incredible severity of this test we sought the co-operation of the Wireless press and requested the presence of qualified technical men to supervise it and to remove every element of doubt or suspicion.

The Valves—selected at random from stock by Mr. Sissons Relf (Amateur Wireless), Mr. Wheatley (Popular Wireless) and Mr. Thomson (Wireless World)—were inserted into ordinary cartons without corrugated paper, cotton wool or other absorbent material. All cartons were sealed, numbered, and taken to the Aerodrome in the custody of Mr. Thompson.

Cossor Kalenised filaments unharmed after 500 feet drop from aeroplane

At the Aerodrome the valves were handed to the pilot, Capt. Barnard, with instructions that they should be dropped overboard at a height of 500 feet.

Of the twelve Cossor Valves thrown overboard, eleven only were actually retrieved—one being lost. And these were the astounding results:—Five valves were in perfect condition, five others suffered from an internal derangement of the electrode system and one valve was smashed through hitting the tail plane in flight. But in all valves the Kalenised filament was absolutely intact and unharmed.

Several valves fell on a concrete road, and one bounced from a corrugated roof on to the ground, but even these tremendous impacts failed to shatter the Kalenised filaments. Never before has such a daring test been carried out—its results prove conclusively that the new Cossor Kalenised filament is practically unbreakable. But only Cossor has it—do not accept a substitute.

MORE THAN MONEY'S WORTH—

IF LISSEN offers you a FULL SIZE LISSENOLA LOUD SPEAKER, GUARANTEED FULL POWER PERFORMANCE, challenging comparison with any loud speaker costing anything up to £20, with 7 DAYS GIVEN TO YOU TO PROVE THESE CLAIMS FOR YOURSELF ON MONEY BACK TERMS, you can depend it is a loud speaker worth having. And not only does LISSEN definitely make you this offer, but does so at a remarkably low price.

No limit is imposed as to the power you should put through this LISSENOLA Loud Speaker—its sound reproducing unit (the LISSENOLA unit) declared by 250,000 users to be the finest natural tone reproducer known, will carry tremendous power with fine tone.

After long and hard use you will find this LISSENOLA Loud Speaker as fine in tone and as powerful in volume as on the day it left the factory.

Made as LISSEN only know how to make—produced in a factory where men and machines jump to their work—where you see fine manufacturing at its very finest—marketed by a new direct-to-dealer policy of distribution which cuts out all wholesale profits for your benefit—TRULY A MAGNIFICENT SPEAKER HAS ARISEN FROM THESE THINGS, VALUE FOR MONEY IN THE FULLEST SENSE.

LISSENOLA LOUD SPEAKING UNIT,

the essential sound reproducing base which has no equal, which can be put into every kind of loud speaker you want to try. Suggestions for many uses are shown at foot.

13'6

No other sound reproducing unit has such splendid magnets, such absolutely clean design, or bears the impress of such fine making as LISSEN is renowned for—to such things as these is due the permanency of the delightful tone qualities and powerful reproduction of the LISSENOLA.

NO OTHER SPEAKER HAS THE UNIQUE LISSENOLA REED. Remember, too, the 7 days test offer.

Made golden-toned for your enjoyment.

Full directions and full-sized patterns for making this horn are given with every LISSENOLA Loud Speaking Unit.

A cone diaphragm loud speaker can easily be constructed. The illustration shows one method of mounting.

The LISSENOLA Loud Speaking Unit instantly converts any gramophone into a loud speaker.

This is the complete LISSENOLA LOUD SPEAKER

Price 34/-

The LISSENOLA Loud Speaking Unit is inside the LISSENOLA Stand.

Or you can buy the three component parts for it as and when you wish. Here are the Horn and Stand.

LISSENOLA UPRIGHT HORN,

big and powerful with 14 in. flare only. The LISSENOLA Loud Speaking Unit with this new upright horn and new stand is the only British made Loud Speaker of FULL POWER SIZE, AND ACTUAL FULL POWER PERFORMANCE of high grade manufacture selling to-day complete for 34/-. Price of LISSENOLA Upright Horn, 14 in. flare 17/6

LISSENOLA STAND,

for those who have already made an upright horn themselves from the full size patterns and clear instructions enclosed with each LISSENOLA Unit, or who, having the LISSENOLA Unit, desire to buy the LISSENOLA Upright Horn, price - 3/-

Many worthless imitations:

Success always attracts imitators. But you do not want a unit which will lose its magnetism—which will easily overload—which becomes noisy and loses tone—which is made heavier than need be to give an impression of bulk which is easier to produce than finely chiselled lines. You can avoid all these risks by asking for and insisting upon being given the LISSENOLA Loud Speaking Unit, or the LISSENOLA Loud Speaker complete.

YES—

WE GET MANY
TESTIMONIALS
DAILY ABOUT THIS NEW TRANSFORMER

YOU may wonder whether we receive many testimonials bearing out the claims we make in our advertisements for the new LISSEN Transformer. The answer is—yes, we do. This is a typical specimen:—

Ref. 5150.

From Norwich.
November 13th, 1926.

"Having recently purchased one of your new Lissen Transformers and met with such enormous success I feel bound to express my admiration of such a unit. I find that either as a first or second stage transformer it gives results unequalled by transformer costing three times the price.

"I have since purchased a LISSEN H.T. Battery, Condensers, Variable Grid Leaks, Change-Over Switches and other of your components and wonder how such high grade units can be sold for such modest prices. I have no difficulty in receiving America KDKA any night, using three valves, the transformer, battery and other components, giving a perfectly silent background. I have since induced other people to try LISSEN components who also express their utmost satisfaction with the LISSEN goods."

But LISSEN have paid the new LISSEN Transformer a more convincing compliment still by withdrawing all the previous expensive LISSEN Transformers in favour of the new LISSEN.

YOU WILL FIND IT FULLY AMPLIFIES EVERY TONE, EVERY NOTE, EVERY HARMONIC, EVERY OVERTONE, AGAINST A BACKGROUND OF SILENCE.

Not only can it be used as a fine transformer but it is also A GREAT CHOKE. By the simple act of connecting two or its four terminals as instructed on the box it becomes one of the finest Chokes that can be obtained.

7 DAYS' TEST

Test this new LISSEN against the most expensive transformer, and against the most expensive choke you can. If you do not prefer the LISSEN for tone and power to any other transformer and choke irrespective of price, return it within 7 days and your money will be willingly refunded.

8'6

GUARANTEED FOR 12 MONTHS.

URNS RATIO 3 to 1
RESISTANCE RATIO 4 to 1

Use it for 1, 2 or 3 stages L.F. It is suitable for all circuits and all valves you will want to use.

There are many advertising manufacturers and all expect a share of the use of mention of their products. The best transformer is not necessarily used in the circuit of the periodical you may be building from. But you are free to choose your own transformer and your own parts. AND NO MATTER WHAT TRANSFORMER MAY BE SPECIFIED IN ANY CIRCUIT IT CAN BE REPLACED BY THE NEW LISSEN WITH IMPROVEMENT IN VOLUME AND POWER—

Remember the 7 days' test offer.

Your dealer uses a new LISSEN himself—he has one in stock ready for you to use too.

WHEREVER RADIO PARTS ARE WANTED—USE LISSEN—

NO matter what may be mentioned or used in any circuit of any booklet or periodical you may be building from, remember that the best parts have not necessarily been used. There are many advertising manufacturers—all expect a share in the use and mention of their products, and they usually get it. LISSEN gets a share, too, but obviously it is not possible for the periodical to use all one maker's parts, although they may be known to be the best. Remind yourself of that when building—remember, too, that the best parts are LISSEN, and that if you build with them you will use all the energy available, and get louder, clearer signals from near and far in consequence.

FACTS OF IMPORTANCE ABOUT LISSEN PARTS—

LISSEN FIXED CONDENSERS.

Fixed condensers should be leak-proof, and if they are LISSEN, which DELIVER ALL THEIR STORED UP ENERGY ALL THE TIME, nothing is lost. Note the case in the LISSEN condenser, how it can be clipped into the LISSEN COMBINATOR in resistance circuits, how it can easily be used upright or flat. Then the price of LISSEN FIXED CONDENSERS is half what it was a year ago. The plates are properly laid in a LISSEN—they are homogenous with each other, and cannot move or come apart. Capacities .0001 to .001, 1/- each (much reduced). Capacities .002 to .005, 1/6 each (much reduced). DEMAND LISSEN FIXED CONDENSERS.

LISSEN FIXED GRID LEAKS.

They do not alter—they are perfectly silent. You can put a LISSEN half-megohm leak in circuit direct on to a 220-volt supply and leave it on indefinitely—it will not alter. It can then be put straight into a critical radio circuit—it will be absolutely silent. LISSEN grid leaks have been further tested by exposure to rain and sun on the roof of the LISSEN factory. They never altered, never varied. Patented. All resistances—Previously 1/8, NOW 1/- each.

LISSEN COMBINATOR.

Into it fixed condensers and resistances can be clipped in a moment and a complete resistance capacity unit quickly formed. Useful for mounting condenser and grid leak in the ordinary way without soldering, although soldering tags are also provided. Price 1/-.

LISSEN VALVE HOLDER

Has both low losses and also low capacity, twin virtues found in few valve holders. Sent out ready for baseboard mounting, but can also be used for panel mounting by bending springs straight.

Patented, previously 1/8, NOW 1/- each.

LISSEN SWITCHES.

LISSEN 2-way Switch.

There is one for every switching need in radio. Designed for radio work where currents are small—they will not waste current. They fit easily—take up little room. LISSEN ONE HOLE FIXING, OF COURSE.

HOW TO MAKE H.T. BATTERIES LAST LONGER.

Every ordinary H.T. battery can be made to yield more energy if a LISSEN 2 mfd. (or 1 mfd., but the larger capacity is the better) is put across it. It will absorb all the noises when the battery gets old. Your dealer will be pleased to show you how to connect it easily.

FOR RELIABILITY

Exide

THE LONG-LIFE BATTERY

Alike for the highest possible quality of tone, and for tuning-in weak signals from distant stations, the batteries, both High and Low Tension, must be capable of supplying absolutely steady unfluctuating current.

Further, the High Tension batteries should be capable of lasting for long periods on one charge and should take no harm from standing in a partially run-down condition.

This means that the batteries must be constructed of first-class material to sound and up-to-date designs.

Exide Batteries, in the opinion of those most qualified to judge, occupy the leading position throughout the world. They are made at the largest battery works in the British Empire by people who have been manufacturing batteries and nothing else for 35 years.

Price 4/6 Price 8/6

Type WJ.

These batteries are the most satisfactory source of high tension in existence. They will hold their charge when standing, and even if partially run down, for six months at least with no injury or detriment. They give a steady, even discharge, free from fluctuations, ensuring purity of reception against a dead silent background that is a revelation. Exide H.T. Batteries are standardised by The Marconiphone Company.

Type HZ.

Combines the advantages of the DTG and the CZ—a De Luxe battery suitable for all types of receiving sets.

In addition to the H3Q, there are eight other Brown Loud Speakers—a type for everyone from 30/- to £15 15 0.

THE history of the Loud Speaker is the history of the Brown. It is yet another page added to the romance of industry; the story of years of unflagging, unremitting endeavour to reach an ideal. S. G. Brown, Ltd., it was who, in the days before Broadcasting began, produced the first Loud Speaker ever used in this country for Wireless purposes. The firm which then led the way in making Loud Speaker reproduction possible has ever since set the pace in Loud Speaker design.

The Brown H3Q Loud Speaker 2000 ohms £3:5:0

The Brown H3Q Loud Speaker marks yet another forward step. For the first time, at the remarkably low price of 65/-, there is available an instrument whose appearance will enhance the setting of any room. All that is best in acoustical design gives to the H3Q, a remarkable fidelity of reproduction. All that is artistic in design gives it a distinctive and pleasing appearance. For a little over three pounds you can buy a Loud Speaker which will look well in your home and fill it with a faithful rendering of the evening's broadcast. Ask your Dealer.

This new valve has been expressly designed to work in conjunction with the famous B.5. Valve. It is intended primarily for the high frequency stages, using a tuned anode coil or high resistance of low self capacity. The B.5.H. has a very much higher amplification factor than the B.5. It can also be employed in the detector and low-frequency stages, with high resistance or low ratio transformer coupling. The B.5.H. will solve your high frequency problems. Buy one now.

R.C. THREESOME

Modification of the normal circuit to increase range and selectivity

CONSTRUCTORS have acclaimed the R.C. THREESOME as the leader of receiving sets for pure reception of the local station. In some cases, however, additional range and selectivity are required, and not solely a receiver for pure reception of the local station.

To meet this need a method of introducing reaction into the circuit has been devised, and in addition to providing increased range and selectivity to the constructor with a really efficient aerial, it also enables the Threesome to be used on an inefficient aerial with first-rate results.

There are certain districts in the country which are known as "blind spots," and others where reception conditions are not good. In all these cases the modification will satisfactorily overcome the difficulties.

FREE BLUE PRINT & INSTRUCTIONS

In order that the R.C. THREESOME will give satisfaction even in these cases, an additional blue print (which can be laid over the original blue print) has been prepared, together with a leaflet of instructions giving details of the necessary alterations. There is no trouble whatever in carrying out the instructions.

For 4 or 6 volt Accumulators 45/-
For H.T. Accumulators 50/-

10 hours for 1d.!

If you have Alternating Current (A.C.) Electric Light you can charge your Accumulator at home for an absurdly low cost by using the Fellows Accumulator Charger.

This charger is simplicity itself, there are no expensive parts to require renewal, it cannot harm your electric light in any way, and it is as safe to handle as your loud speaker.

Simply plug it into an electric lamp holder (see above), switch on, give a twist to the knurled knob, and, when the little motor is running connect up your 4 or 6 volt accumulator and leave it on charge until the bubbles rise freely in the acid inside. The charger will automatically give the correct charging current.

You need only have one accumulator because you can charge it up when your set is not in use.

Your present accumulators probably cost from 9d. to 1/6 per charge; you cannot be certain that they get fair treatment while away; and there are frequently delays and disappointments.

The Fellows charger eliminates all these troubles. It will charge up a large accumulator (e.g. 6V. 30 ah) for a cost of about ONE PENNY for 10 hours, even in districts where lighting is as high as 5d. per unit.

There is also a special model designed to charge up H.T. Accumulators in batches of 60 volts at a time. Output 1/2 ampere.

You can, by remitting full cash value, have one of these chargers on SEVEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL. If you are not more than satisfied we will take it back and return your money in full.

N.B. When ordering please state carefully voltage and frequency (cycles) of your mains. You will find this information on your meter.

The Last L.F. Stage Of Your Set Has Something to tell You ★

★ You can make your set give better results than your loud speaker gives it credit for by using the right valve in the last L.F. stage.

Volume is by no means the final word in the achievement of better reception, for it can so easily be secured by overloading the L.F. valves with the immediate result that distortion destroys the texture of both music and speech. The secret of perfect purity is to use valves that are able to handle strong signals under normal working conditions.

LOUND signals are particularly evident when the receiver is situated close to a broadcasting station or when several stages of L.F. amplification are being used.

It is therefore obvious that with an ordinary L.F. valve in the last stage you are either faced with loud, harsh reception with your receiver properly tuned, or faint, but clear reproduction by the use of slight de-tuning. In the main, the loudspeaker comes in for a great deal of unjustified criticism, due to the incorrect use of one of the best virtues of your set, namely—to give strong signals.

Super Power Valves

The immediate enquiry following the above facts is readily answered by the recommendation to use super power valves.

These valves have been specially designed to handle powerful signals without any trace of distortion.

This ability is due to the fact that they are able to give, as a result of the large grid swing, all the fluctuations in anode current that may be required throughout the whole frequency range of broadcasting. This means that the low, sonorous vibrations of the double bass may roll unharmed from your loud-speaker, and the highest trills of a prima donna retain all the pleasure of their original rendering.

Couple these Qualities with those of the Wonderful P.M. Filament

The remarkable merits of the wonderful P.M. filament when embodied in the design of Mullard P.M. Super Power valves result in valves that are absolutely without equal for operation in the last L.F. stage of a receiver. The quality of reproduction that can be secured from even the very largest loud-speaker is a revelation of lifelike reality. This ability is the natural result of the gigantic emission surface available in the Mullard P.M. Filament. No comparison can be made with an ordinary filament without revealing the increased value offered by the unique P.M. Filament.

All the advantages of long, useful life, low current consumption, and majestic volume possessed by Mullard P.M. Valves are available to the highest degree in Mullard P.M. Super Power Valves. Fit your receiver with Mullard P.M. Valves with the wonderful P.M. Filament and enjoy the best results from your loudspeaker.

Type B. Unit for Alternating Current
£4 : 10 : 0

HIGH TENSION FROM YOUR ELECTRIC LIGHT

If you have Electric Light, send for a Fellophone H.T. Mains Unit and do away with the expense of renewing exhausted Batteries.

All you have to do is to plug the adaptor of the Mains Unit into a lamp holder, switch on, and an inexhaustible supply of H.T. current is at your disposal.

Fellophone Mains Units possess, among others, the following advantages.

- 1. ABSOLUTE SAFETY. An ample margin of safety is provided in these Units which completely safeguards them against breakdown. They are as safe to fit as an electric light globe and as safe to handle when working as an H.T. Battery.
- 2. LOW COST. The current consumed by these Units is no more than that taken by a "night light" electric lamp. They are thus extremely economical and they rapidly save the cost of renewing Batteries.
- 3. PERFECT RECEPTION. When ordering state the voltage of your lighting mains and (if current is alternating) the frequency. Your Mains Unit will then give you perfect reception free from all "ripple" or "hum."
- 4. A.C. or D.C. Fellows Mains Units are made either for Alternating Current or Direct Current and for all voltages commonly in use for lighting.
- 5. SINGLE OR MULTI VOLTAGE. These units, whether for A.C. or D.C., are made in two TYPES. Type A. delivers a single value only of H.T. Voltage. Type B. delivers three separate values, two of which are variable over twelve tapings, thus enabling the exact required voltages to be applied to several valves at once. (For further description see pages 28 and 29 of our Catalogue No. 10.)
- 6. SEVEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL. You can have a Fellows Mains Unit on seven days' trial by remitting full value. If you are not more than pleased with it, return it to us in good condition and we will promptly refund your full remittance.

"Ham-handed Henry" at the Garage down
the road cannot easily ruin this Accumulator

WE have all had painful experiences with "Ham-handed Henry." He is the man who takes our accumulators and puts them on charge without worrying over-much about the charging rate. Sometimes they are charged too quickly, and sometimes they are taken off the mains before they are fully charged. In any case such rough-and-ready treatment is very bad for any Accumulator. That is to say, any accumulator except an Oldham O.V.D. This new Accumulator is exceptionally sturdy and built for long service. Although a slow discharge Accumulator it can be recharged within eight hours.

The ordinary slow discharge Accumulator however requires a slow charge of not less than 30 hours. It takes a long time for the electro-latic action to percolate through to the centre of its thick plates. In the Oldham O.V.D., however, all the advantages of the slow discharge—its freedom for sulphation and its ability to hold a charge over long periods—are obtained by the use of a special laminated plate (patent applied for). The acid can act upon its several surfaces immediately. And because a girder-like construction is employed buckling is quite impossible.

An Oldham O.V.D. will save you money because it holds its charge longer than any other type of Accumulator. Call in for one this evening on your way home. Fill it up with acid and it is ready for immediate use.

Used with the new '1 amp. Dull Emitter Valves an Oldham O.V.D. will give the following hours of continuous service without re-charging: 1-valve Set, 180 hours; 2-valve, 70 hours; 3-valve, 40 hours; 4-valve, 30 hours.

AT Sea. A ship is in distress, storm-tossed in the grip of a gale. Alone at his post, the Wireless operator taps out his tragic message—S.O.S. Will it be heard? On the sensitivity of an operator's headphones depends the answer . . . The Merchant Services of many countries use Brown Headphones.

The field of war. Telephone wires cut. The important order must be got through. The only means is—Wireless. Only the most sensitive and reliable headphones are used when the safety, perhaps, of a hundred thousand depends upon the reception of a vital message . . . The British Army pinned their faith to Brown Headphones during the war. A cable station. One link in a world chain. Inter-communication between countries is vital for world trade. No risks must be taken which might for one moment prejudice the safe conveyance of messages . . . The World's Cable Companies standardize on Brown Headphones.

War at sea. Here, more than anywhere, the success of operations depends upon concerted action. Only radio can keep ships in touch. It would be fatal if an unsensitive headphone prevented reception from the flagship . . . the Admiralty, knowing this, use Brown Headphones.

A hospital ward. The sick and the maimed look to Wireless to ease their suffering. Sensitivity is essential in a sufferer's headphone . . . In the hospitals throughout the Country are thousands of Brown Headphones.

In your home. You want your Headphone, above all, to be sensitive and reliable. You then, like the Army, the British, Chilian and other Navies, the R.A.F., the Merchant Services, the World's Cable Companies, the Hospitals and thousands of fellow listeners will choose Brown super-sensitive Headphones.

On Sea and on Land Brown Headphones are doing their daily duty

Louden Valves

"At last I have found the finest valve on the market."

Every day they come, these friendly enthusiastic letters from every part of the kingdom, and every one of them is voluntary!

What do you think of Loudon Valves?

Here's Mr. Shade's opinion.

"Dear Sirs,

"I should like to write a letter of appreciation for your Loudon Dull Emitter Valves, which I have been using for the last four months. They are really all you advertise and I have recommended them to my wireless colleagues. I was constantly buying valves of various makes which were unsatisfactory, not getting good results at all. But at last I have found the finest valve on the market and I hope they will keep up their reputation in the future and satisfy others as they have satisfied me. You can use this letter as a testimonial if you please.

"Yours Truly,

"A.C.S. (Stanford-le-Hope)."

Louden Valves are made by British labour in a British factory with British capital and can be depended upon for the finest volume, range and silver clearness. They can only be offered at such low prices because of our well-known policy of selling direct to the public and cutting out the middleman's profits. Order your Loudon Valves by post to-day.

A NEW AND MOMENTOUS STEP BY LISSEN

—unparalleled in the annals of British Battery Making

LISSEN has always known that if the price of the LISSEN New Process Battery could be reduced it would result in enormously increased sales. AND LISSEN HAS NOW DECIDED TO GIVE THE USER THE ADVANTAGE OF PRICE AS WELL AS A QUALITY IN BATTERIES WHICH NOTICEABLY IMPROVES LOUD SPEAKER REPRODUCTION, and to sell the LISSEN New Process Battery at a price which places it within the reach of all. Unfortunately this has only been possible by drastically reducing the profit to the retail trader as well as taking much less ourselves. It is only by the co-operation of our retail friends that we can make LISSEN Batteries available to you at so many thousands of shops throughout the country, and we feel that it is only fair that it should be known that the sacrifice in profit which makes the new price possible is being made by our retail friends as well as by ourselves. We shall consider it well justified, however, by knowing that every user can now obtain a battery better than he has ever had before.

PREVIOUSLY 10'6

NOW 7'11

A WORD ABOUT THE LISSEN BATTERY:

Do not limit the use of the LISSEN New Process Battery to 1 or 2 valve sets. Use it on a 4-valve set or more if you like. At the new price the LISSEN Battery is identical in every way with the battery previously sold by LISSEN at the higher price. Each battery has at one end 4 1/2 volt tappings for grid bias use.

THE HISTORY OF THE BATTERY:

This LISSEN battery is made by a process with chemical combination known to no other battery maker. The success of this process is now a definitely established fact. The battery would have been sold for 13/- but for a new direct-to-dealer policy of distribution instituted by LISSEN which cuts out wholesale profits. It saved the user 2/6 when LISSEN made the price 10/6. Now this fine battery is obtainable at your dealer's for 7/11.

Be sure to ask for "LISSEN New Process." Let it be your next battery. Get one for the next five programmes if you want to hear it at its best. Take nothing else. Then notice the smoothness of your loud speaker reproduction—the fine lastingly clear utterance.

TO OUR RETAIL FRIENDS:

We were loth to lower the discount, but we think the new price is going to be justified. Full credits on existing stock will be made to stockists who have obtained supplies direct from us, whose claims are in our hands by January 31st, 1927, for any LISSEN New Process Batteries in stock on January 18th which were invoiced in January. Invoice numbers should be quoted when claiming. Since January 18th batteries have been invoiced to the trade at the new trade price.

TO THE USER:

There is no substitute for a LISSEN New Process Battery. Ask for "LISSEN New Process" and see you get it. There is a LISSEN dealer close to you who will be glad to sell it to you, but if any difficulty send direct to factory, no postage charged but please mention dealer's name and address, or can be sent C.O.D. Connect two batteries in series when more than 66 volts required. Rated at 60 volts this LISSEN New Process Battery goes considerably over. Its size is 9 1/2 in. by 4 1/2 in.—IT IS PACKED FULL OF NEW ENERGY.
