An Experiment in Mass Telepathy.

By Dr. V. J. WOOLLEY.

BY the word telepathy, I mean the communication of impressions from one mind to another independently of the recognized channels of sense. That such communications sometimes occur spontaneously is, in my opinion, made certain by the numerous recorded cases that have been examined and published by the Society for Psychical Research. But in nearly all these spontaneous cases the telepathic impulse (however unconscious) seems generally to be associated with an intense desire or emotion felt by the so-called 'Agent,' or with some great crisis in his life.

Is it possible to detect with equal clearness the occurrence of telepathy as an outcome of a deliberately planned experiment where there is no emotional 'drive' to whatever brain-centre it may be that reaches or stimulates or affects the mind of the other person, the 'percipient'?

I, myself, think that the results of such attempts are positive, though the difficulty of excluding all possible faint indications through any of the ordinary senses is considerable.

Hitherto also such conscious experimenting has been only possible between a small number of people, usually known to one another, and generally at no great distances apart. The advent of broadcasting makes possible an experiment on larger lines.

Briefly, we aim at ascertaining whether, among the millions of listeners, a few may be capable of receiving a mental impression of any kind from objects or ideas presented to a group of distant strangers who will concentrate on those ideas or objects at a definite fixed time. A small group of willing Agents has been chosen from among those who have shown in other ways that they may have the sort of mind that is capable of forming clear impressions and possibly of transmitting them.

Dr. V. J. Woolley and Sir Oliver Lodge, who, on behalf of the Society for Psychical Research, will conduct an important experiment in mass telepathy which will be broadcast from the London and Daventry Stations on Wednesday, February 16. In the accompanying article Dr. Woolley, who is Honorary Research Officer of the Society for Psychical Research, tells listeners how they may assist in this unique experiment.

Our plan is this: At 11 p.m. on Wednesday, February 16, these Agents will be in the office of the Society for Psychical Research, in Tavistock Square. Sir Oliver Lodge will be in the broadcasting studio at Savoy Hill, and will give to London and Daventry listeners a brief account of the proposed experiment, and describe what they are asked to do. I, as Research Officer of the Society, having sole control of the articles to be used, shall be with the group, and at 11.15 I shall show them the first object. Sir Oliver will, at the same time, tell the listeners that some object is now being shown; and the group will view it for three minutes. The listeners are asked to record on paper, during the next two minutes, their impressions, if any; so that afterwards it will be possible to determine whether or not those impressions are at all related to the object shown.

There will be in all five such objects, and these will be exhibited to the Agents at 11.15, 11.20, 11.25, 11.30 and 11.35 respectively (watches being synchronized by the previous time-signal that evening), and when they have all been shown we want any listener who may have recorded any idea respecting each or any of them to write out, either on a postcard or in an envelope, what impressions they had, and their name and address, and post it at once to the Society for Psychical Research, 31, Tavistock Square, London, W.C.1. Listeners are asked to post their missives at the earliest possible moment, and, if possible, to have their signatures and times of posting witnessed by a friend.

The experiment will then be over as far as the listeners are concerned. But for us it is essential to ensure that no knowledge as to the objects shown shall leak out before the cards are posted. For that reason the

The Choice of Broadcast Music.

By Sir HENRY HADOW.

[In this article, the first part of which appeared in last week's RADIO TIMES, Sir Henry Hadow concludes his investigation into the meaning of the terms, 'good' and 'bad' music.]

WHAT is it that people chiefly enjoy in music? At first, no doubt, sheer pleasantness of sound, attractive melody, interesting movement, and emotion which, whether grave or gay or romantic, touches in the listener a sympathetic chord. As experience advances, all these elements grow and develop and merge into one another; the range of melody becomes wider, more complicated, textures become intelligible, not only does the ear gain by training but, even more than this, the musical intelligence. Then follows the appeal of structure and plot, and of all those architectonic values which are commonly included under the name of composition.

More important than any of these, the emotional nature becomes enlarged and ennobled, not as distinguished from the intellect, but as bathing and permeating it; sooner or later we rise to a gradual appreciation of that astonishing mystery which is at the very height and climax of musical art, and to which all the rest is but a preparation and an ascent.

And it must be remembered that each degree of appreciation involves and includes its predecessors. The simplest and most artless melodies, if they are good of their kind, become not less but more attractive to the man who can hear them with an ear trained by discipline and experience. They speak to each of us, in short, according to the measure of our understanding, and as our understanding deepens so does their content.

And this means on the other side that at every stage, from the simplest music to the most complex, we have all grades of music from the best to the most worthless. It is a disputed question whether there can be anything in music which is wholly foul and demoralizing. If so, we can put that out of account here, for it would very soon carry its own condemnation.

AT any rate, much of what is called 'bad music' is merely stupid music. It tries to do something good, and fails either because it has not the skill or because it lacks invention, or because, as often happens in musical hackwork, it confuses the boundaries of memory and imagination. And it sometimes happens that listeners of little musical experience do not detect the blunders or the plagiarisms or the self-conscious attitudes. They admire because they have given insufficient attention, and if it be answered that so long as they admire they are happy and may be left undisturbed, the answer to this is that I agree, if it means not vexing them with prescriptions and injunctions as to what they ought to like, but that it is only common humanity to show them that there is plenty of accessible music which, when they hear it, they will like very much better. It is not a mark of toleration to let a hungry man starve on turnips when there is a good dinner within his reach.

All this has been borne out already by the experience of the B.B.C. When it first started people were afraid of the classics. They thought they were going to be dragooned (a favourite word of theirs) or at least instructed against their will, and there were many letters of protest against the inclusion of works which were supposed to imply some intellectual superiority. In the course of years, as is abundantly evident from the programme lists, this feeling has been almost entirely altered. It is now the stupidities and trivialities which are dropping out of popular favour: the great music is coming into the welcome which some of us always expected for it. 'Your new quartet does not please,' said an officious friend of Beethoven in his old age. 'It will some day,' was the rejoinder. And in that security all good art may put its trust.

ANOTHER word should be said of the differences of genre to which selectors of programmes should pay regard. Some hearers have special preference for the old music; others have a natural inclination for the fuller palette and more complex construction of recent composers; some are specially attracted by opera, and particularly by comic opera. Others more fortunate can let their fancy stray over a wider area and enjoy any or all of these in turn.

To such varieties of taste the broadcasting programmes are well adapted, since the choice obviously rests to a great degree in the hands of the listener, who can select from the various lists those for which he has special sympathy or predilection.

But when all this is said, the most interesting fact which remains is that public enjoyment in good music is becoming more evident and more articulate. The programmes published in The Radio Times, and especially those in its more recent numbers, are evidence that our national taste, which is always sound when not deceived or misled, is expressing itself unmistakably in favour of beauty and sincerity.

To the same advance witness is borne in every part of the country. Children who used to sing little nonsense-tunes 'in sorrow and dismay,' are now singing Handel and Schubert with obvious pleasure. Our Competition Festivals up and down the country are making each meeting a treasury of beauty and delight.

In all this advance—and it is a real advance—greater appreciation of beauty means greater happiness. The growth of broadcasting has an important part to play, and it is encouraging to observe that under the wise advice of its counsellors it is exercising prudently and judiciously its power of selection. There is still some weeding to be done before the glory of the garden is completed; but already the beds are cleaner and the blossoms more abundant than ever they have been in the past.

An Experiment in Mass Telepathy.

group of 'Agents' will remain in the office all night, and no telephone calls in either direction will be allowed.

Our enquiry is directed towards testing the possibility of telepathy between persons who are strangers to each other, and whose only link is the knowledge that such an experiment is being tried. Speaking for myself, I shall be surprised if there is evidence of any telepathy under such conditions, and a negative result to this experiment must not be taken as an argument against the occurrence of telepathy when the conditions are more favourable. We are not attempting the absurd task of proving a negative.

If, however, it should happen that we do find even one person in Great Britain who shows knowledge of the objects exhibited, we shall then be aware that telepathy, under such conditions, is possible, and we shall hope in the future to experiment further with that person in the hope of finding out more of the method and conditions of the process. Results may take time to analyse, but they will be published in due course in the Proceedings of the Society, and also in abbreviated form in the columns of this journal.

I am sorry that I have no great inducement to offer to those listeners who are kind enough to follow our suggestion and send us a record of their impressions. They will have the satisfaction, however, of helping in what I hope may be a carefully-carried-out experiment in a little-known field of inquiry. That the test is taken seriously by us is shown by the fact that the group of 'Agents' are willing to remain 'in custody' throughout the night, in order to give time to the listeners to post their cards, so as to ensure that no information has leaked out and thus invalidated the results. Belated postings will not be counted. If any of those who send us their records wish their names and addresses to be treated as confidential, and mark their cards to that effect, their wishes will be respected.

Lastly, I must emphasize, for those of my readers who are not familiar with the work of the Society for Psychical Research, that that work consists in the investigation of all those doubtful and obscure happenings that seem at present to be outside the processes known to science, or even apparently inconsistent with them. Among those objects of enquiry are included all the alleged phenomena of spiritualism; but those who collaborate in this purely telepathic experiment need not fear becoming involved with upholders of spiritualistic theory or with their opponents. While we earnestly desire opportunities of investigating prima facie cases of mysterious noises, movements, and apparitions, we are equally anxious to extend our knowledge and gradually ascertain the laws of telepathy; and we feel especially grateful to the B.B.C. for giving us an opportunity of making this experiment.

London and Daventry News and Notes.

THE PRINCE OF WALES'S SPEECH at the banquet of the British Industries Fair on Monday, February 21, is to be relayed from the Mansion House, London, and broadcast through London, Daventry and other stations. The Prince is expected to speak for about 20 minutes.

Another concert in the series of 'My Programme' is being compiled by Capt. P. P. Eekersley, Chief Engineer to the B.B.C., for presentation between 9.30 and 11 p.m. on Friday, March 4. Further details will be published in these columns in due course.

The ninth of the series of National Concerts which takes place at the Royal Albert Hall on Thursday, March 3, will be conducted by Sir Landon Ronald, and has a popular programme, which will include the E Minor Symphony by Tchaikovsky, Debussy's Nuages and Fêtes from the three Nocturnes, and Dvorak's Carnival Overture, as well as arias sung by the tenor, Kiepura, who will be making his first appearance in this country.

Jan Kiepura, who has been hailed on the Continent as 'the second Caruso,' is a young Polish tenor who has suddenly sprung into world-wide fame. He made his début as recently as 1924 with the Warsaw Opera, and in a huge competition held in a circus in that city, in which 3,000 people took part, he easily won first prize, and earned the title of 'King of Polish Tenors.' Since then he sang at the Vienna Opera the rôle of Cavaradossi in Puccini's last opera, Turandot. Although knowing only Polish, he mastered the Italian for this opera in three days. He has toured the Continent extensively, and his visit to England will be anticipated with the keenest interest.

Sir Hamilton Harty's concert, by the Wireless Symphony Orchestra, devoted to the most popular Wagner excerpts, to be broadcast on Sunday afternoon, February 27, is designed to show the composer in his most mature style. Excerpts from Siegfried (The Forest Murmurs, Forging Song, Siegfried's Journey to the Rhine, and the Gigantic Funeral March) form the last part of the programme. Other items will be the Overture to the Mastersingers, the Prize Song from the same opera, the Venusberg music from Tannhäuser, Siegmund's Love Song from the first act of The Valkyrie, and the Overture to the Flying Dutchman. The tenor soloist will be Mr. Walter Widdop.

There is good news for those numerous listeners who like musical comedy, no fewer than three first-rate and well-known pieces having been arranged for the programmes during the next few weeks. They are The Lilac Domino, which is to be given on Monday, February 28, Irene on Saturday, March 12, and Going Up on a date in March which has not yet been definitely decided.

That particularly arresting little play, The Death of Tintagiles, by Maurice Maeterlinck, will be broadcast on Monday evening, February 28. This will be a repeat performance, but as three years have elapsed since it was done by radio, most listeners will look forward to it as a new item.

The second instalment of the Saturday Night Revue, one of the most successful 'shows' of its kind ever broadcast, the lyrics of which are by Graham John and the music by Vivian Ellis, A. M. Tennant and Max Darewski, will be put in the programme on Saturday evening, March 5. This instalment, of course, contains entirely new numbers, and will be performed by an all-star cast. The comedian will be Tommy Handley.

Miss Phyllis Neilson-Terry, regarded by many critics as one of our greatest actresses, has been engaged to take the name part in the famous play, Trilby, in which she will be supported by an all-star cast, when it is broadcast on Wednesday, February 23. Trilby, as is generally known, is founded on the novel by George du

The afternoon programme on Sunday, March 6, will be devoted to a concert of popular chamber music, including the Arensky Piano Trio in D Minor, which may well be described as one of the most tuneful works in existence. A number of Hebridean songs will be sung by Mr. Hugh McKay, a vocalist well known in the North, often associated at concerts with Mrs. Kennedy-Fraser, whose arrangements of Hebridean tunes are now sung the world over.

Two years ago there died in Paris, in penury, a Polish pianist and composer, who but a few years before had been among the most popular composers of his day. Moritz Moszkowski was a clever pianist, and his characteristic pieces for the piano are brilliant. His orchestral works are light and pleasing, and a programme of these to be broadcast on Sunday afternoon, March 6, will include many of his best-known pieces. His Piano Concerto in E Minor will also be given, the soloist being Mr. Maurice Cole.

The Children's Service on Sunday, February 20, will again be from St. John's Church, Smith Square, conducted by the Rev. Canon C. S. Woodward. The studio service the same evening, arranged by the Salvation Army, will be addressed by General Bramwell Booth, who will afterwards make an appeal on behalf of the Salvation Army funds.

Of all Grieg's music, probably the most popular is the incidental music to Ibsen's drama Peer Gynt, which he arranged as two suites. The first contains 'Morning,' 'The Death of Ase,' 'Anitra's Dance,' and 'In the Hall of the Mountain Kings.' The drama is to be produced at the Liverpool Station studio, from where it will be relayed to London listeners on Wednesday, March 9, and the music to be given with it will be excerpts from the suite, not in the original sequence of the incidental music. It will be followed by a performance of Elgar's oratorio, The Apostles, relayed from Newport (Mon.), via the Cardiff Station. This oratorio, part of which was broadcast last year from a Hallé Concert at Manchester, is one of Elgar's greatest works, the first in a trilogy of which the second is The Kingdom, but of which the third is not yet finished. Subsequently, between 9.30 and 10.30 the same evening, Our Mr. Lohengrin, a skit on grand opera by Fred Bowyer, well known as the author of The Windmill Man, with music by Cuthbert Clarke, will be broadcast.

The evening concert on Sunday, February 20, relayed from the Hotel Metropole, will be given by Colombo and his Orchestra, with vocal items by Miss Winifred Coombes (soprano) and Mr. John Patterson (tenor). The programme will also include two violin solos by Colombo.

Some people, subjects and dates for those who like talks:—

TUESDAY, FEB. 22.—Mr. Louis Golding: 'Castles and Caverns in Spain.'

THURSDAY, FEB. 24.—Mr. Seton Gordon: 'Winter in a Highland Deer Forest.'

SATURDAY, FEB. 26.—Mr. Herbert Chapman: 'Football League Worries.'

Mr. Santos Casani: Dancing Talk.

STATESMEN AT THE MICROPHONE.

It is not often that you will find Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Baldwin doing the same thing, but all roads nowadays lead to the microphone, and London listeners will hear both these eminent statesmen this week—on non-political occasions, of course. On Monday evening (Feb. 14) the Liberal leader's speech to the Women Advertisers will be relayed from the Piccadilly Hotel, and on Wednesday the Prime Minister's speech at the Chamber of Shipping Dinner will be broadcast from the Hotel Victoria.

Maurier, father of Sir Gerald du Maurier, and was the play which Sir Herbert Tree revived at His Majesty's Theatre in 1912, with Miss Phyllis Neilson Terry in the rôle she will again play in the broadcast performance. Such is the outstanding nature of the transmission that it will be given simultaneously from all stations.

Forthcoming variety items:—

MONDAY, FEB. 21.—Marie Dainton, in impersonations.

Leslie Weston, entertainer.

Keyboard Kitty, in syncopated items.

TUESDAY, FEB. 22.—The Whispering Sopranos.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 23.—Scovell and Wheldon, syncopated numbers.

Marco de Pietro, banjoist.

Janet Joy, impersonator.

Sylvester Leon, the Jamaican actor, in character studies.

THURSDAY, FEB. 24.—Layton and Johnstone, Ivy St. Helier.

FRIDAY, FEB. 25.—The Saxophone Octet.

Archibald Forbes, in anecdotes.

Estelle Brodie, syncopated numbers.

Cyril Liddington, selections from his repertoire.

SATURDAY, FEB. 26.—The Ramblers, harmonized syncopation.

Tom Clare.

Ethel Baird and Rex Evans.

Lottie Venn, in a sketch.

As this programme will be introduced by Clapham and Dwyer it will be subject to certain interruptions.

News From the Provinces.

CARDIFF.

ST. DAVID OF WALES is usually bracketed with King Henry by those who believe in their histories. But whether St. David was an historical character or only, as a schoolboy had it, 'another fellow of the same name,' St. David's Day is important to sons of Wales throughout the world. Speeches and music from the St. David's Day banquet at Cardiff—Cymrodorion Caerdydd—which will be held at the City Hall on Tuesday, March 1, will be broadcast from Cardiff Station. The Prime Minister will be present and will speak at 9.30 p.m. The toasts will include Dewi Sant. The musical programme will provide examples of famous Choral Welsh pennillion-singing.

A concert by the Taunton Madrigal Society will be broadcast on Tuesday, March 1. Lord St. Audries, who takes a keen and practical interest in the revival of folk dancing and in the production of plays in rural districts, is president of the Society, the Conductor being Mr. Reginald Ward. The Society, founded in 1855, holds a 'Ladies Night' on, or about, Shrove Tuesday. Mr. John Goss will lead the solo parts.

To those people, numerous among Welsh listeners, who like radio plays, let us mention that the enthusiastic reception of General Post, broadcast on December 30, was so emphatic that the play will be repeated when a favourable opportunity occurs. French Leave, the popular war-time comedy, by Reginald Berkeley, also stands high on the Dramatic Producer's waiting list.

A programme entitled 'A Russian Night,' the centre-piece of which will be Tchekov's Farce of the Proposal, will be given on Friday, March 4. Tchekov's careful individualization of each character makes it excellent material for radio. The orchestral music at this performance will be drawn from the works of the composers known as 'the Great Russian Five'—Borodine, Moussorgsky, Rimsky-Korsakov, Liadov and Balakireff.

LIVERPOOL.

AN eye-witness description of the Association football match between Liverpool and Newcastle United, given by Ernest Edwards ('Bee'), whose weekly sports talks from the Liverpool Studio are so widely appreciated, will be relayed from the Anfield Football Ground, Liverpool, between 3.0 and 4.35 p.m. on Saturday, February 26.

A Shakespearean programme which will include German's Overture to Richard III, Ballet Suite Henry VIII, by Saint-Saëns, and Roger Quilter's Incidental Music to You Like It, will be given on Monday, February 28. Miss Muriel Herbert will be the vocalist and among her items will be two 'Ariel' songs by Frederick Nicholls, the Liverpool composer. The programme will also include a Shakespearean recital by Mr. Robert Speaight, a member of the Liverpool Playhouse Company, who did good work with the Oxford University Dramatic Society.

HULL.

THE local concert on Tuesday, February 22, will consist of popular vocal and instrumental music given by artists who are well known to local listeners. Humorous items will also be given by Mr. George Wilby, and half an hour will be occupied by a performance of Reynold's Song Cycle, The Policeman's Serenade.

MANCHESTER.

SO popular have been the various performances of the Station Orchestra in its interpretation of waltzes and other dances that on Tuesday, February 22, it will take listeners, metaphorically speaking, for a tour round Europe in a programme of dances characteristic of various countries, including Spain, Italy, Bohemia, Russia and the British Isles.

To be able to play a number of instruments simultaneously, as does Mr. Tom Rogers, Preston's Musical Postman, is something of an achievement. While he is imitating anything, from the skirl of the bagpipes to a performance of grand opera, on his mouth organ, Mr. Rogers can accompany himself on the auto-harp and beat time on the big drum with his feet. He will take part in a variety programme on the evening of Monday, February 21, when the announcer will be our old friend, John Henry. On the same evening, listeners will have yet another programme of sea shanties and Army songs from George Hill and his male voice chorus.

A good deal has already been said about the 'Voice and Personality' tests at the Manchester Station which took place on January 17, 20 and 21. The station usually has a very large mail, but it may be of interest to know that no fewer than 4,600 letters and coupons had to be sorted out during the few days following the tests, and hundreds of letters were still streaming in each day.

Leo Morgan's Honolulu Quartet, the only combination of its kind in this country, the members of which are Americans and native Hawaiians, and who play the ukulele and steel guitar, are to give a concert on Saturday, February 26. The ukulele, though commonly believed to be a Hawaiian instrument, was originally introduced into the island by Portuguese sailors some sixty years ago. The steel guitar, too, generally accepted as an instrument peculiar to Hawaii, owes its origin to a method of playing an ordinary guitar with the blade of a pocket-knife (instead of the fingers) which was used by German sailors. The present method of playing it with a piece of smooth steel to produce the plaintive shurring notes was developed by two Hawaiians, Kamoku and T. Rogers, members of the quartet to be heard from the Manchester Station, are among the foremost exponents of this steel guitar in the world. Together, they will give a performance of the Hawaiian traditional March, Kohala, to the accompaniment of ukuleles, played by Mr. Leo Morgan and Mr. J. Hendricks.

PLYMOUTH.

THE service from the George Street Baptist Church, at which the address will be given by the Rev. F. W. Norwood, of the City Temple, London, is to be broadcast on Sunday, February 20. The service begins at 8 p.m., and will be followed by an appeal on behalf of the University of the South-West.

The well-known Exeter Cathedral baritone soloist, Mr. Walter Belgrove, will give a short song recital from the studio at 6 p.m. on Friday, February 25.

A dialect story entitled 'Mrs. Madder's Visit to the London Cornish Association's Dinner,' will be told by Mr. C. C. Symons at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, February 23.

BIRMINGHAM.

ANOTHER Military Band Concert in the series being given by the City of Birmingham Police Band will be broadcast on Tuesday, February 22. The band will be conducted by Mr. Richard Wassell, their director of music, who, in 1913, founded the Wassell Male Voice Choir, which has gained many successes in competitions. During intervals between the band pieces, songs will be sung by Mr. Charles Dean and humorous items given by Mr. Percy Owens.

An Organ Recital by Mr. Frank Newman will be relayed from the Lozells Picture House on Wednesday, February 23, between 9.45 and 10 p.m. This will be followed by a play presented by the London Radio Repertory Players, entitled For France, in which listeners are taken back in imagination to the Franco-Prussian War of 1870. From 10.25 to 11 p.m. Dance Music will be provided by Jack Venables and his Band.

Among the lighter items in next week's programmes is an interlude of humour by Mason and Arnes and a Piano, on Friday, February 25, followed by items by Miss Doris Palmer, comedienne. On Saturday, an hour of Revue takes place from 7.45 to 8.45 p.m., the second half of the programme being devoted to popular music and songs.

The sixth of the series of talks arranged in conjunction with the Birmingham Library, will be given in the Afternoon Topics on Tuesday, February 22, when Mr. B. J. Fletcher will describe the work and activities of the Birmingham School of Art.

BOURNEMOUTH.

THE first of a number of evening services to be broadcast during the course of the year from the Punshon Memorial Church, on Richmond Hill, Bournemouth, will be relayed on Sunday, February 20. The Punshon Memorial Church, has, after careful consideration, been selected as the representative Free Church in the Bournemouth district for wireless services. The acoustic properties of the building are excellent, and as there is a large and enthusiastic choir, a high standard of singing should be attained. The pulpit will be available for preachers of various churches in turn. A feature of these broadcasts will be a short organ recital which will, as a general rule, precede or follow the service itself.

It is appropriate that the address at the first of these services on February 20, should be given by the Rev. S. W. Allen, since Mr. Allen's work, until a few months ago, when pressure of other duties obliged him to resign the position as representative of the Free Churches on the Bournemouth Religious Advisory Committee for Broadcasting, has been of the greatest value in organizing the wireless religious services.

The Mayor of Bournemouth, Alderman Harry J. Thwaites, will speak for a few minutes before the first news bulletin on Friday, February 25, on 'Citizen Sunday,' which is to be observed in Bournemouth this year on February 27.

What the League is Doing for European Peace.

By Professor GILBERT MURRAY.

[Professor Gilbert Murray is Chairman of the League of Nations Union, and his recent broadcast Talk on the work of the League during 1926 attracted widespread attention. In response to many requests we are glad to publish Professor Murray's address in our columns this week.—
EDITOR.]

THE tenth of January, the day on which the Covenant was ratified, is counted as the birthday of the League of Nations, and I have been asked to broadcast a brief statement, as I did last year, about the progress which the League has made.

The year 1926 has not been sensational. The one important step forward, the admission of Germany to membership of the League and to a permanent seat on the Council—was a very great step indeed, but it came with no shock of excitement; it came as something long overdue, a natural result of the Locarno Treaties, which had been promised for the Assembly before last. This has been, so to speak, a quiet year. Let us take this time, when the League seems almost to be standing still, so as to appreciate the extraordinary rate of its advances.

Cast your minds back to the year 1919, the year immediately following the war. Do you remember how at that time a continuance of European peace seemed almost impossible? Old wars were still going on, and new wars breaking out, between Greece and Turkey, between Russia and Poland, between Poland and Lithuania, Hungary and Rumania, to say nothing of all the fighting in the East. I remember that Sir Henry Wilson, the British Chief-of-Staff, used to say that he saw thirteen wars in Europe inevitably approaching. And, of course, the centre of them all was to be the War of Revenge between France and Germany.

Do you remember how in 1919 several nations seemed on the verge of economic ruin? There was widespread famine and widespread pestilence. And wise people shook their heads and tried to estimate how many years it would take for Germany and Austria to go the way of Russia, and how many more for Great Britain to do the same or worse.

Well, those prophets reckoned without counting all the factors, and especially without counting the League. The Medical Commissions of the League attacked and conquered the epidemics. The Nansen Commissions relieved the famine. They could never have been conquered otherwise. Then came the economic troubles. Austria was on the very verge of collapse when she applied to the League. She did not look to the League till she had looked in every other conceivable direction, because people then did not realize what the League could do. But at last she did apply; and by the League and by the self-denial of her own people, Austria was saved. And after Austria came other countries—Hungary, Bulgaria, Greece, and at last, with the help of the United States, Germany herself. It is whereby, instead of hampering one another's trade, the nations may all unite in making trade generally prosperous. An American manufacturer starts off with a market of over 100 million possible customers. We are asking the experts why we in Europe cannot do the same. And when the experts have prescribed the medicine they think best, the Governments will meet and see how much of it they can persuade themselves to accept.

I have spoken of what the League has done and is doing to save its members from epidemics and from economic ruin. I took that first because it comes first; a sick and starving nation can never be a nation at peace. But consider next what the League has done for making peace permanent. All those little wars in the East of Europe and in Turkey, where are they? They have simmered out. The nations are no longer attacking each other. And why? Because, first, a nation which believes that it is suffering from some flagrant injustice, such as makes people ready to fight and die rather than submit, knows that it can always bring up its case before the Council or the International Court, and can depend on getting a fair hearing. The first great motive for war is taken away. And, secondly, they know that if they do attack their neighbours—as one or two nations have attempted to do in the last few years—they will have the organized authority of the world against them. The League will not need to send an army: it will speak, and they will have to obey.

And the great central feud, the enmity of ages between France and Germany—which, we were told, was bound to break out again and to carry with it, willing or unwilling, most of the nations of the world—what of that? Why, it has been moved off the map. Instead we have a treaty of permanent Peace and Arbitration between France and Germany, covering the settlement of all differences whatever, and absolutely ruling out war. As far as human foresight can see, there will never again be war between France and Germany. Do you think that too good to be true? Our fathers would have thought so. But no. It is only the slow, irresistible victory of common sense over passion.

It was not an easy victory. It was hard to make the bitter and suffering minds in Germany and in France accept the policy of reconciliation. Three German statesmen,

As Professor Gilbert Murray points out, the great achievement of the League of Nations in 1926 was the admission of Germany to membership with a permanent seat on the Council. This photograph, taken at Geneva on September 8, 1926, shows Dr. Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, making his inaugural speech, not only to the people in the hall but, through the microphones in front of him, to a vast radio audience all over Europe.

not a bad sign for the peace of the world that the first great public achievement of the League was to save our defeated enemies from ruin.

Of course, we are not yet quite out of the wood. All the nations of Europe have their economic troubles, and it sometimes looks as if our own country had more difficulties and burdens than most, as it has also more strength to meet them. There is only one way of successfully meeting those troubles, or rather only two, which are branches of the same: a League of Nations spirit between all classes at home; and an abolition by means of the League of all tariff wars and needless obstacles to commerce abroad. It may be a long business; but the League has at last convoked a great Economic Conference of experts drawn from the various countries, to devise the means

A Breath of Fresh Air.

[In this column A. Bonnet Laird, well known for his nature talks, comments upon an interesting letter he has received from a listener.]

Vipers in Love.

ALL good adders are still abed in their winter sleep, so the story of their love affairs is out of season till spring comes again; but I cannot help quoting some notes I have just received from 'Farmer John,' of Durham.

First of all, a note or two of my own. I said good adders, because, you know, they are seldom as bad as they are painted, and will only attack man when they are in desperate fear of their lives—when, for instance, they are trodden on, or caught unawares with no way of escape. (When they do attack man, it is generally pretty bad—though seldom fatal—for the man.)

One other point. Do you realize that 'an adder' is only a piece of wrong-headed pedantry that custom has sanctioned? It should be (and was, in Saxon days) 'a nadder'—just as it sho ld be 'a napron' (a word akin to napkin and napery), not 'an apron.'

Now to business. My North Country friend has been photographing them—often at a yard's distance—so gently as not to provoke any sign of anger. For several weeks he observed the courtship of a pair—a most uninteresting affair, he says, from the human point of view.

They would lie curled up in intricate convolutions for hours together, always in sight of each other, usually not more than a yard apart. Should one get rather out of sight in the grass, or be screened by some inequality of the ground, its mate quickly shifted so as to command the situation. Occasionally they would intertwine their coils in snaky embraces; but the normal proceeding appeared to be, to lie basking in the sun, a foot or two apart, and exchange loving glances.

On being disturbed, they vanished rapidly into a series of mouse-holes, but generally used one entrance, although emerging from various outlets. In this departure neither chivalry nor protection was given or asked. If they got to the hole together, it was a wriggling struggle which could get in first.

A rather astonishing performance was the power of creeping backwards. This, however, was only when some portion of the body—even if only the tip of the tail—was within the hole.

I had hopes to see the remainder of the cycle—the eggs and the young—but one morning two cast skins, newly sloughed, were found, and the reptiles in their new clothes had disappeared.

We will all hope that 'Farmer John' has the good fortune to find the viper family again next spring, and tell us more about them.

Cameos.

Here are two glimpses of wild England from my postbag:—

Four peewits furiously attacking a cock pheasant, driving him to the shelter of a spinney; and, in the same district—Wolverhampton—two rooks fighting a hawk.

A sprig of apple-blossom 'that smelt like spring' picked, late in October, from the very top of an apple-tree (and many thanks to the little Northamptonshire girl who kindly sent the bloom on to me).

What the League is Doing for European Peace.

one after another, preached it; and three, one after another, were murdered—Ebert, Erzberger, Rathenau. And, no doubt, the old hatreds and fears and prejudices are still seething below the surface; but at last they know that they are beaten. They only grumble and murmur.

From henceforth France and Germany are bound by treaty to settle all their differences without war. And the treaty was not made by advanced or pacifist parties, liable to be overthrown by a change of government. And more, Germany is now on the Council of the League; that is, from henceforth the Foreign Ministers of Great Britain, France, and Germany, instead of remaining apart in their Foreign Offices and shooting diplomatic documents at each other across the sea, will meet about once every six weeks round a table, to discuss, as colleagues and intimates, all the interests they have in common—and the few matters on which their interests differ.

If peace is assured between France and Germany, what is the next feud in Europe for the League to allay? The next is between Germany and Poland; and it is being tackled in the right way. First, there is a treaty of arbitration between the two countries; and an undertaking by Germany not to try to correct her Polish frontier by war. Next, Poland has been made a member—though not a permanent member—of the Council of the League. Some people imagined that putting Poland on the Council was a sort of intrigue, a sort of stab in the back to Germany. People are always imagining things like that. Why, it was simply the necessary step for getting friendly relations between the two countries.

I WILL mention shortly several other great works which the League has either done or is now doing. It has set up, for the first time in the history of the world, a Permanent International Court. The Court is working without a hitch. It has pronounced some eighteen or nineteen judgments or opinions; every one of its judgments has been obeyed, and I have never yet heard doubt thrown on its competence or its impartiality. It is a disappointment to all that the United States Senate, for reasons which it itself can best appreciate, prefers to have no dealings with the International Court; but after all, the loss is more theirs than ours. We are building strenuously the great Cathedral of World Peace and Understanding, and do not envy those who, whatever reason they may give to their own conscience, are unwilling to lift a stone.

The Slavery Convention has at last passed the Assembly. The Commission on the codification of international law is making slow progress at its difficult task. The Commission on Opium and dangerous drugs is doing better than last year, especially owing to the progressive policy of the Government of India, and to a happy and generous suggestion from the Rockefeller Institute.

LASTLY, the great crucial test of the League, the work on Disarmament, is progressing. Disarmament will never come without security; and the measure in which armaments are reduced is a fair test of the degree to which peace is really assured. It is significant that after the Locarno Treaties the French army was reduced from something over 600,000 to something over 300,000. One must remember that France has lately been engaged in difficult colonial wars, and those dangers remain. The League Conference on Disarmament, so long promised, will probably not meet till 1928 at earliest. It would be a great mistake to let it meet unless there were strong prospects of success, and for that purpose it is well to have every part of the subject thoroughly examined first by preparatory commissions. That work is going on steadily.

Of course, Disarmament—by which I mean the agreed and simultaneous reduction of armaments to a prearranged limit—can never be complete while there are still great and formidable nations outside the League. We trust that in course of time both America and Russia may become members of the League, and that in the meantime they may at least be able to co-operate on friendly terms with it. Let us remember that in public policy the greatest of all qualities is patience, and that in the policy of the League there is no victory except the turning of enemies into friends.

An eye-witness account of this match will be broadcast from London, Daventry and other stations between about 2.50 and 4.30 p.m. This is the plan of the ground to which the broadcaster will refer.

ON Saturday, February 12—the day after this paper is published—the Irish XV will visit the Rugby Union ground at Twickenham, to make a tremendous attack on the ‘Twickenham tradition,’ which Scotland alone of the countries taking part in the Championship has yet managed to break.

Last year Ireland beat England by 19 points to 15, after a tremendous game, but that was at Dublin; the year before, at Twickenham, the two countries played a thrilling draw. This year’s Irish team is practically identical with the one that beat England last year (when Ireland shared the Championship honours with Scotland), so there is every prospect of an exciting match, and the personalities of the teams alone—including, as they do, some of the most famous veterans and some of the most brilliant rising stars of International Rugby—are certain to grip the imagination of listeners.

Verse and Prose Competitions.

A New Feature of the Programmes.

SINCE broadcasting, in its organized form, began in this country, many experiments have been made, and many innovations introduced into the programmes, which have first startled and then impressed those people who thought that the radio would be a vehicle for nothing but music and light entertainment of the variety type. The new feature now about to appear in the London and Daventry programmes is one of the most remarkable attempts to widen the range covered by the radio, and everybody will hope for its success.

On Friday, February 18, there will be broadcast from London and Daventry the first of a series of literary competitions open to all listeners. A full announcement of the competition will appear also in the issue of The Radio Times which is published on that day. The report on this competition will be broadcast from London and Daventry a fortnight later, and the prizewinning entry will also appear in The Radio Times.

These competitions are doubly important as an innovation in the broadcast programmes. In the first place they are an attempt to do over the air, for a wide and popular audience, what has hitherto been done only in print and for that quite select circle that reads the more literary periodicals. And in so doing radio is taking up yet another of the historic features of literary journalism.

For Miss Royde-Smith, the dramatic critic, novelist, and playwright, who is conducting these competitions—choosing the subjects, judging them, the novelist and critic, who is to introduce an interesting new feature into the London and Daventry programmes when, on February 18, she broadcasts the first of her Verse and Prose Competitions.

and broadcasting the report—brings with her all the prestige of the ‘Problems and Prizes’ that made the old green Saturday Westminster famous. Every week for twelve years she set her competitions, and all that time she remained equally fertile in invention, and her judgments were marked by the same precision of taste, the same astringent criticism and keen wit. Naturally, therefore, she built up in those years an enthusiastic body of competitors, amongst whom were many whose names are now well known in the literary world, for many writers of distinction began their schooling in the Problems Page. And always outside the circle of competitors, successful and unsuccessful, there was a larger circle of readers who never ventured to try their skill, but to whom, nevertheless, the Problems Page was the most welcome reading of the week.

The green Westminster is dead, and the Problems have died too. In the meantime Miss Royde-Smith has won fresh distinction with her novels, ‘The Tortoise-Shell Cat’ and ‘The Housemaid’ (her latest, ‘Skin Deep,’ came out only last month), and her play, The Balcony. But one feels that she will be nearly as glad to return to the literary competitions for which she has such an ideal faculty as her old competitors will be to welcome her return, or as her new acquaintances will be to discover how much fun these competitions can be.

(The announcement of the first competition, giving the subject and details of prizes and rules, will be published in next week’s RADIO TIMES.)

The pleasures of foreign Travel are multiplied tenfold when you have learnt, by the New Pelman Method, to speak the language of the country.

HOW EVERYONE CAN LEARN A FOREIGN LANGUAGE.

PELMAN INSTITUTE'S AMAZING DISCOVERY.

Can you read Spanish?
No.
Do you know any German?
No.
Here are two books, one printed in Spanish, the other in German.
Yes.
Can you read them?
Of course not.
Well, try and see.
An Hour later.
Miraculous! I can read and understand every word.

THE above conversation is typical of the experiences of the thousands of men and women who are now learning French, German, Spanish and Italian by the New Pelman Method.

A Business Man, for example, visits the Foreign Languages Department of the famous Pelman Institute. He is a very poor linguist. He knows a little French, but not much. He doesn't know a single word of Spanish, German or Italian. Yet, when handed a book printed entirely in Spanish and another printed in German (neither containing a word of English), he is able to read them through correctly and to understand every word.

Needless to say, such a visitor is immensely impressed and at once enrolls for the Pelman Course in the particular language in which he is interested.

Still more numerous are those who write to the Institute for particulars of the method and receive in return a free first lesson in Italian, Spanish, German or French. There are no English words in this lesson, yet to their surprise they are able to read it through without a mistake. They, too, decide to enrol and soon become enthusiastic admirers and advocates of the New Pelman Method.

Revolutionising Language Teaching.

This method is revolutionising the teaching of Foreign Languages.

It enables you to learn French in French, German in German, Italian in Italian, and Spanish in Spanish, thus avoiding all translation from one language into another.

It enables you to think in the particular language you are learning.

It enables you to learn a Foreign Language without spending months in a preliminary struggle with a mass of dull and difficult grammatical rules and exceptions. It introduces you to the language itself straight away and you pick up the grammar almost unconsciously as you go along.

It enables you to dispense with the labour of memorising by heart (parrot-fashion) long vocabularies of foreign words. By this method you learn the words you need by actually using them, so that they stay in your mind without effort.

Reading Foreign Literature.

It enables you to write and converse in a Foreign tongue, to read Foreign newspapers and magazines, and to enjoy the masterpieces of French, German, Italian and Spanish literature, many of which have never been translated and all of which (especially in the case of Poetry) lose much of their charm in an English version.

There are no classes to attend. The new method enables you to learn a Foreign Language in your spare time, and in from one-third to one-half the usual time.

General Sir Aylmer Haldane, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., D.S.O., writes:—

"The Pelman method is the best way of learning French without a teacher."

And others write in the same strain of the Pelman Courses in German, Italian, and Spanish. Here are a few typical examples of letters received from readers who have adopted this new method:—

"It would have taken me as many years to learn by any ordinary method as much (French) as I have learnt in months by yours." (P. 145.)

"I have obtained a remunerative post in the City, solely on the merits of my Italian. I was absolutely ignorant of the language before I began your course eight months ago." (IF. 121.)

"I have recently returned from Spain, where I have been doing Consular work. With only the knowledge of Spanish gained from your Course I was able within a month to tackle any sort of correspondence and conversation." (SC. 279.)

"Your system of learning German cannot be beaten." (GC. 112.)

"I have started the Course (Spanish) and find it the best and most interesting I have ever tried." (S.P. 106.)

"It is a wonderful system you have for teaching languages. So extremely interesting, and the old-fashioned rules and regulations eliminated! I have learnt more (Italian) in these few short weeks than I ever learnt of French (by the old System) in several years. It is perfectly splendid and I have very much enjoyed the Course." (I.L. 108.)

"Your system of teaching French is the best that I have yet encountered. According to the old custom of translation I used to memorise pages of vocabulary which proved to be of no practical use; but under your system the words seem to be indelibly written in my mind, and I am able to recall them at any time without the slightest effort, using them intelligently in question or answer." (R. 256.)

"I should like to offer you my heartiest congratulations. The way in which it has been planned and (above all) the admirable judgment which is apparent in the progressive introduction of new matter has impressed me more than anything of the kind I have met before, either in teaching languages or any other subject. It almost brought tears to my eyes to think what I might have saved myself when I first learnt German, if only I had had your method." (G.W. 196.)

"I have just returned from a visit to Spain, never having previously heard Spanish spoken. It says much for the perfection of your Guide to Pronunciation that I have not had to alter my ideas on Pronunciation in any particular, finding everything spoken just as I had imagined. My accent was also praised, in one case by a lawyer, who should be qualified to judge, and who impressed on me that he was not flattering me." (S.W. 372.)

In fact, everyone who has followed it is delighted with the ease, simplicity, interesting nature, and masterly character of the New Pelman Method.

SCHUMANN'S only Opera, Genoveva, ran for exactly three nights when first produced, and since then has rarely been staged. The Overture alone has survived as, by common consent, being one of Schumann's most masterly creations.

The story of the Opera is that of Genoveva and her warrior husband, who has to leave her alone whilst he is away fighting. A friend, acting through motives of jealousy, falsely persuades the husband that Genoveva has been unfaithful, and she and her child are driven out into the woods. When the husband comes back he meets Genoveva while he is hunting, and there follows reconciliation.

The Overture starts with a slow, gloomy Introduction, in which the continual winding figure in the Violins seems to depict the wife's lonely wanderings in the forest.

The passionate, agitated First Main Tune of the Overture proper seems expressive of Genoveva's grief, whereas the happier, more gracious Second Main Tune calls to one's mind the reconciliation.

SOME of the most charming light dances of our time are the work of Edward German. This Suite, first performed at a Crystal Palace Saturday Concert in 1892, contains four Movements illustrating different sides of gipsy life, as seen through the eyes of the Composer.

The First is entitled Valse melancholique; the Second is a quick, flamboyant dance, beginning with a stamping rhythm; the Third, light and graceful, is again in Waltz style; the Fourth is a Tarantella, a descendant of that wild dance which, in a simpler age, was esteemed a cure for the bite of the tarantula spider.

THE Agincourt Song is a celebration of the battle of that name, in 1415, when the English, under Henry V., defeated an army that outnumbered them by three or four to one.

The first verse runs:—

Our King went forth to Normandy

With grace and might of chivalry;

There God for him wrought marvellously,

Wherefor England may call and cry,

'Deo gratias Anglia redde pro victoria!'

THE words 'Caleno custure me' (they are spelt in a variety of ways) are generally considered to be a corruption of Irish words of endearment describing a young girl as 'dearest sweetheart,' and the song tells of her charms. Shakespeare mentions the song in Henry V., Act IV, Scene 4.

TUDOR and Elizabethan singers used to sing to the accompaniment of the lute, love songs, often of a rather plaintive or mournful cast. The best Composers of the day spent their art upon such songs, and never have expressive words been set more beautifully—with finer care for the just accentuation and proportion of the words.

Dowland and Morley, two of our finest musicians in that day, both wrote a good many such 'ayres.' Dowland's song will serve as a typical example of the 'lovelorn' song. It is an appeal to a fickle maid to comfort her lover, who finally bids Love draw forth his wounding dart, for he cannot pierce her heart. Sighs and tears, 'more hot than are thy shafts,' have been poured out in vain; for she only laughs mockingly at all such weapons, and remains unmoved.

MORLEY'S piece (for five voices) is a 'Ballet,' the lightest kind of Madrigal, that had a gay 'fa la la' refrain.

VAUGHAN WILLIAMS recently arranged for unaccompanied singing a sheaf of five folk songs, two of which conclude the Oriana Singers' programme.

The Springtime of the Year is the first two verses of a long ballad called Lovely on the Water. It is just a miniature of a sailor and his maid. In a tiny introduction and in a closing portion use is made of an effective choral device—singing with half-closed lips.

The lusty Wassail Song comes from Gloucestershire. The jolly wassailers go all over the town, drinking healths to the gentry, and giving a sly hint that their good wishes are only for those who draw them 'a bowl of the best.' Distributors of small beer will get no blessings!

'Carnival' Overture..... Dvorak

DVORAK'S Carnival is the second of three Overtures which the Composer originally planned as Symphonic Movements, to illustrate three phases of life—Childhood, Youth, and Manhood (or, as another interpretation of the scheme has it, Nature, Life, and Love).

We may regard Carnival as a picture of lusty youth, rejoicing in the exciting fullness of life. The dashing style of the opening work conveys that idea vividly. In the middle is a happily contrasted slow section, for Violin, Cor Anglais, and Flutes.

THOMAS JONES and Orchestra

First Concerto ..... Max Bruch

VERY few of Max Bruch's compositions remain in the current repertory of concerts, but those that do remain are firmly fixed. One can prophesy a long and healthy life for this Concerto of his for Violin and Orchestra (Op. 6, in G Minor). It is one of the five favourite Violin Concertos of the nineteenth century (the other four were written by Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Brahms and Tchaikovsky), and by the warmth and vigour of its melodies and the interesting richness of its Solo Violin part it is likely to retain its place for many years to come in the affections of players and their audiences.

Bruch, who lived from 1833 to 1920, was Conductor of the Liverpool Philharmonic Society from 1880 to 1883.

THE FIRST MOVEMENT (Moderately quick) is called by its Composer a 'Prelude.' Certainly it has the effect of a rhapsodical introduction, though it is a fairly extended and organic piece with one definite, complete tune. It is chiefly remarkable for its combination (especially in the solo part) of brilliance and emotional intensity, even depth.

THE ADAGIO (Slow Movement) is a long-drawn, romantic long built upon three melodies.

THE FINALE runs a brilliant course. Its melodies are full of fire and rhythmic strength. The First Main Tune is played in thirds, high up, by the Solo Violin. The Second Main Tune is a broad, forceful melody played on the Soloist's lowest string. These, and their recurrence, are the landmarks in a vigorous and effective movement.

ORCHESTRA

The 'London' Symphony ..... Haydn

HAYDN was fond of London, and twice came over to conduct some of his works—and incidentally to be feted and have a thoroughly good time.

This Symphony, Haydn's 104th, was first heard in 1795, when he (then aged sixty-three) had a benefit concert. In style and power the music looks forward to Beethoven.

THE FIRST MOVEMENT opens with a slow Introduction, which, very effectively, is in the minor key, the quick main body of the Movement being in the major. Its First Main Tune is a natty, lively one, which Haydn apparently liked so well that he used it as the Second Main Tune also—quite an unusual thing to do. There is a brief new tune, but it can scarcely be called a main one.

THE SECOND MOVEMENT, the slow one, is an Air with two Variations.

THE USUAL MINUET follows—a typical Haydn dance Movement.

THE FINALE is quick and spirited. In its opening drone bass, like the tune of a shepherd's pipe, it recalls Haydn's love of peasant music.

Overture, 'A Russian Easter Festival'
Rimsky-Korsakov

THE Composer said that in this Overture he intended to suggest the atmosphere of religious merry-making on Easter Sunday morning. The influence of old pagan customs was, in Russia, mingled with the more solemn Easter celebrations. Rimsky-Korsakov had in mind also 'reminiscences of ancient prophecy and of the gospel narrative,' prefixing to his piece two Scriptural quotations. One is from Psalm lxviii., beginning 'Let God arise, and let His enemies be scattered...' and the other, from the 16th chapter of Mark, describes Mary Magdalene and the others coming to the sepulchre of Jesus, finding the stone rolled away, and hearing the wonderful tidings from the angel: 'He is risen!'

with the movements of living organisms—the delicate mechanism by which equilibrium of posture is maintained, or corrected when disturbed. This is done by means of little sacs, called statocysts, the contents of which, under the influence of gravity, stimulate certain nerve-endings and transmit their message to the muscles that regulate the posture. In animals with a backbone this system is called the labyrinth, or 'internal ear.' A drawing of MR. LAURENCE BINYON is one of those fortunate poets who have another interest besides poetry; this being, according to many authorities, the only way in which a poet can keep sane. He is Deputy-Keeper in the British Museum, where he is in charge of Oriental Prints and Drawings, and his expert knowledge of Oriental art has found expression in several books, besides probably helping his appreciation of the genius of William Blake, on whom he is one of the best commentators. His own poems and plays include 'Atila,' 'Sakuntala,' 'The New World,' 'The Four Years,' and 'Boadicea.'

Arabesque, No. 1 ..... Debussy
Gopak ..... Moussorgsky
THE Arabesque of Debussy was originally a Piano piece belonging to his earlier period (1891, when he was still under thirty).
The word 'Arabesque' refers to the fantastic intertwining of lines and alternations of colour in Arab architectural decoration, and Schumann,
Debussy, and others have, in a fanciful way, applied the term to a certain light-fingered and delicately shaded type of music.
THE last piece of the group is an exciting
Russian national dance by Moussorgsky, the ex-army officer, one of the 'Five' who gave a new trend to Russian music after the middle of last century.

PLANQUETTE (1848-1903) was a clever business man-musician who made it his business to find out what sort of music people wanted, and to serve them with it faithfully, as long as they would have it. Graduating from the Paris Conservatoire, he began by composing songs and tit-bits for café concerts, and soon took to operettas. Perhaps his two greatest successes were Les Cloches de Corneville (recently broadcast) and the work which we are now to hear. Written for production in London nearly forty years ago, it deals in lively fashion with the exploits of the Scottish-born Paul Jones (he was originally John Paul, changing his name in America), one of those daring free-lances of the sea who had more scope for their activities in the eighteenth century than they would have to-day.

YOU are asked to visualize a loggia leading from the lounge of a large mansion overlooking the Thames Valley; the lights in the rooms shine redly into the night; a nightingale is singing intermittently in the distance. The master of the house, Col. John Nicholson, a retired Indian Officer, is talking confidentially of the present and the past to his butler, Barnes, a very old and valued servant. His granddaughter, Margaret, is the comfort of a life left lonely through the early death of his wife and daughter.

Laughter and occasional music mingle with the sound of the river. After a time the Colonel falls asleep to re-live in dreams some of his happiest—and saddest—memories.

ROSSINI had wonderful success with his Operas, but after the production of William Tell in 1829, he composed no Opera and only one important work of any kind, his Stabat Mater.

For nearly forty years he lived as a retired gentleman, occupying himself in social diversions. In all this time he wrote only some light pieces, mostly for Piano, and it was largely out of these that Respighi, an Italian Composer of to-day (born 1870) made the music for the toyshop Ballet known as La Boutique Fantasque. The Ballet Music is that danced by the various dolls in the shop, who come to life and take a hand in the love-romance of two of their number. In this Selection the items are a Cosseck dance, a Nocturne, a Polish Mazurka, an Italian Tarantella, a slow Waltz, a Can-can, and a concluding Galop.

UNTIL nearly the close of the nineteenth century, the custom of sending Valentines was fairly general and very popular in Wales. They were sent on St. Valentine's Day, because of the old idea that the birds began to mate on that day, hence the practice of young people choosing their Valentines on the same day.

 A Joke or Two, by A Bob or Two

Bob Adams and Bob Alden, who are prominent among the originators and demonstrators of the present craze for syncopation, begin a week's engagement with the B.B.C. to-day.

Seventeen years ago, when they first came to this country, their particular form of entertainment was practically unknown. Before they came together, the two Bobs were both song writers. At Atlantic City (the Black-pool of the U.S.A.), where songs are made famous overnight, these two artists met. They were both engaged in demonstrating their own particular songs and there sprang up an intimate acquaintance. One night they appeared together in one of the popular cabarets—and they have been together ever since, with ever-increasing success.

DIBDIN is chiefly remembered by his sea-songs, such as Tom Bowling. He was an actor and singer as well as a composer, and produced for the stage one work after another, of many of which he wrote both words and music.

Lionel and Clarissa, recently revived in London, contains both original tunes of Diddin's and some he adapted from other sources.

THE air of Mozart is sung by the love-sick page Cherubino, who, though he is enamoured of the Countess, is flirting with her maid. He steals from her one of the Countess' ribbons, and placates the maid by giving her a song he has written about her mistress.

S.O.S. CALLS.

In view of the greatly increasing number of S.O.S. messages that the British Broadcasting Corporation is asked to broadcast, listeners are reminded of the rules and procedure which must be adhered to, careful attention to which will save a great deal of time and trouble to all concerned.

The B.B.C. will broadcast messages requesting relatives or friends to go to a sick person only when the Hospital Authority or the Medical Attendant certifies that the patient is dangerously ill, and if all other means of communication have failed.

In no case can an S.O.S. be broadcast requesting the attendance of relatives, etc., after death has occurred.

Originators of S.O.S. calls would help considerably if they would let their nearest Station know if the S.O.S. has been successful or not.

S.O.S. calls for 'missing' people cannot be broadcast unless the B.B.C. is directly requested to do so, in the case of London or Daventry, by New Scotland Yard, and, in the case of provincial Stations, by the Chief Constable of the district in which the Station is situated.

At any period in history between the fall of the old Roman Empire and the present century, there was only one answer to the question, 'How do nations settle their quarrels?' It was by war or the threat of war. Now, in the League of Nations, the world has a tribunal before which such quarrels can be judged from the point of view of right rather than might. It would be useless to pretend that the Council of the League is a purely judicial body untouched by political considerations, but at least it contains in every case enough disinterested opinion to ensure that the moral view gets representation, and the sanction behind its decisions is international opinion, and not merely the big battalions of any one Power or group of Powers. Professor Noel Baker was one of the British delegation in Paris when the League was established, and he worked for several years subsequently in the League Secretariat, so he is qualified to speak with knowledge of both the ideal and the actual character of the League.

THE STATION ORCHESTRA
Overture, 'Nature'... Dvorak

DVORAK once wrote three Movements which he designed for a Symphony. Later he issued them as three Overtures, entitled respectively Nature, Carnival and Othello. Carnival was played on Sunday (3.30) by the Birmingham Station Orchestra. Nature opens with an introduction, and then the First Main Theme is heard on the Clarinets, beginning with a repeated motive of two notes. This subject is found again prominently in the Othello Overture, and momentarily in Carnival. Two or three other tunes appear, nearly all in the original key, before the dance-like Second Main Tune appears in a fresh key on the Strings, with a continuation, more serious in style, played by Violins in octaves, accompanied by Trombone chords. The last piece of material is one that the composer uses a good deal during the piece—a Woodwind phrase that trips lightly down the scale. All the main ideas are worked up in the course of the Overture, and just when we are coming to a peaceful ending there is a very loud outburst. The quiet mood is quickly resumed, and the work dies away with a reminiscence of its first melody.

 SCENE 1.

Characters:
 Goldsmith; The Landlady; Jimmy Parsons
 (The Bailiff's Man); Dr. Johnson
GOLDSMITH'S indifferently-furnished lodgings; articles of clothing, books and sheets of paper litter the floor and furniture. He is sitting alone in this shabby room, vaguely playing some lugubrious tune on his flute. Every now and then he stops to mutter savage objurga-tions against his landlady. This sorely-tried woman enters, accompanied by the bailiff's man, who points at Goldsmith and speaks.

ELABORATE chambers in Brick Court. Goldsmith, now forty years old, has at last achieved success. His comedy, The Good-Natured Man, has been well received by the public, while the 'Vicar of Wakefield' and 'The Traveller' are both working their way among the most discriminating readers. Consequently, the author has Five Hundred Pounds in his pocket—at least for a few days. He quickly changes his mode of living for something more luxurious, and promptly puts out Four Hundred in this suite of rooms in the Middle Temple. Here he entertains freely and becomes a ready prey to all manner of spongers, one of whom, a Mr. O'Donovan, is pouring forth congratulations upon the successful author's rise in the world as the scene opens.

QUINTET
 Two Irish Dances ..... Finucane
 SCENE 3.
Characters:
 A Flower Girl; Goldsmith; Reynolds; Dr.
 Johnson
RANELAGH Gardens. A warm friendship has grown up between Goldsmith and Reynolds, and the two are often to be seen together at Ranelagh and Vauxhall, where they listen to the music, meet friends and enjoy the general gaiety of the scene. Flower girls are crying their wares as the two men enter the grounds.

9.35 TWO SHORT COMEDIES

'WHITEMAIL'

Andrew Carrol (an Elderly Dramatist)

E. H. BRIDGSTOCK

Elsie Carrol (His Daughter) ... ELLA FORSYTH

Agnes (a Maid) ..... EMILY GAVINGTON

James H. Bennett (a Novelist) TOM WILSON

THE scene is laid in Carrol's study, a somewhat dreary apartment in which the most important articles of furniture appear to be a large desk covered with papers and books and a small bamboo table, upon which stands a typewriter. The untidiness which pervades the room seems strangely at variance with the immaculate appearance of Andrew Carrol.

Entr'acte by THE STATION ORCHESTRA

'THIS FILM BUSINESS'

A Farce in One Act by EDWIN LEWIS

Performed by THE STATION REPERTORY PLAYERS

Characters:

Sarah Brown (a Miner's Wife about fifty)

MARY EASTWOOD

struck Girl) ..... HYLDA METCALF Herbert Brown (a Practical Young Miner, but in love) ..... CHARLES NESBITT

Two Gun Job (a Filmy Friend) A. G. MITCHESON

IMAGINE yourself in Mrs. Entwistle's kitchen about that time of night when the hero and heroine on the films are kissing in their final 'close-up,' and the audience is searching for mislaid gloves, hats and handkerchiefs.

Sarah and Hannah are discussing the destinies of the young folk. These two ladies have witnessed that electric phenomenon, the transfer of attention from late-Victorian melodrama to the modern film super-melodrama, but Sarah remains unimpressed. She is very practical, and knows that the way to make things happen is not to hope so much as to pull the strings. Just now, like the writer of film melodrama, she is arranging her scenario for the entertainment.

7.45 THE CITY POLICE BAND AT PLAY
THE BAND OF THE LIVERPOOL CITY POLICE
 (By kind permission of the Watch Committee and the Chief Constable, Mr. Lionel D. L. Everitt, O.B.E.)
 Conductor: Chief Inspector CHARLES R. BICKS, Bandmaster
 Overture, 'The Merry Wives of Windsor' Niccolai
 Intermezzo, 'In the Night' ..... Gilbert
 Humoresque, 'Miss Lucy Long' ..... Douglas
 *MISS LUCY LONG—our domestic help—slumbers; it is time to rise, however, and efforts are made to induce her to do so. She yawns, and (Allegretto) gets up. She is heard coming downstairs, where she proclaims herself loudly (Moderato). The next movement 'Lucy' is discovered at her work; and while she works, she sings her favourite melodies in her own particular style. Becoming more than usually frivolous, she indulges in some eccentricities which bring about an appalling disaster to the crockery! The Adagio, which follows, depicts her remorse; she soon recovers her spirits, however, and tells all and sundry that 'Charlie is my darling.' We next meet her on Hampstead Heath; it is Bank Holiday, and 'Lucy' enjoys the fun—and a waltz. Later, they drop into 'ragtime.' Now we are interested listeners to a bit of love-making between 'Charlie' (Trumpet) and 'Lucy' (Bassoon), and after a suggestion of 'Haste to the Wedding,' 'Lucy' gets married, and will have the Wedding March—in 'ragtime,' too!
 Selection of English Melodies:
 The Rose ..... arr. Myddleton
 Humorous Fantasia, 'D'ye Ken John Peel?'
Douglas

DOES BUSINESS WANT THE 'VARSITY MAN'?

A discussion on this intriguing subject is to be broadcast from London Station to-night at 10.15. Above are shown the three distinguished men who will take part in the discussion: on the left, Sir Ernest Benn, the publisher; in the centre, Mr. J. Maynard Keynes, the economist; and on the right, Mr. Ernest Walls, the Managing Director of Lever Brothers.

LIKE Fenimore Cooper, Jules Verne is one of the authors dearest to the hearts of the boys of a generation or two ago. Amazingly prolific, one of the first authors to realize the fascination of science, gifted with an imagination that forestalled—in some respects with strange precision—the submarine and the helicopter, and a natural story-teller, he was an ideal author for boys. In 'Round the World in Eighty Days' he did not use his scientific imagination so freely as in, for instance, 'From the Earth to the Moon' or 'Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea,' but he wrote a rattling good story that still makes good reading when eighty days is time enough to make quite a leisurely journey round the world.

3.45 Miss RHODA POWER, 'Village Life in England 200 Years Ago'

MISS RHODA POWER has now advanced to within two centuries of our own time, and in her Talk to-day she will describe features of village life, some of which have survived within the memory of many of us—the activities of the midwife, the 'dame' who kept the dame's school in her kitchen, the transport of livestock, and even poultry, to London on their own feet, and the real importance of the village fair.

4.0 TIME SIGNAL, GREENWICH. THE DAVENTRY QUARTET and BELLA REDFORD (Mezzo Soprano); LEE THISTLETHWAITE (Baritone)

5.15 THE CHILDREN'S HOUR: Songs by DALE SMITH: 'The House at Pooh Corner' (A. A. Milne)

THIS is the fifth of Professor Mottram's series of talks on the scientific aspect of food. To-day he will discuss the selection of the daily ration with a view to food values, and it is interesting to know that one can get a hundred calories by eating one medium-sized potato, half an ounce of butter, four-fifths of an ounce of cheese, half a glass of milk, one banana, six humps of sugar, two small slices of white bread, half an-inch thick, or no fewer than a dozen oysters, if one's taste tends that way.

7.45 ELSA MACFARLANE

8.45 ORCHESTRAL SELECTIONS
 9.0 Speech by
THE PRIME MINISTER
 at the
 ANNUAL DINNER OF THE CHAMBER OF SHIPPING OF THE UNITED KINGDOM
 Relayed from The Hotel Victoria, London

9.30 WEATHER FORECAST, SECOND GENERAL NEWS BULLETIN; Local Announcements

THE subject of this discussion is one of real importance at the present day, when University men are invading the domains even of retail trade, and all those taking part are particularly qualified to discuss it. Sir Ernest Benn, who himself was never at a University, has built up a great publishing business by methods that he has described in that interesting book, 'The Confessions of a Capitalist.' Mr. Ernest Walls, who is now Managing Director of the enormous firm of Lever Brothers, was at Oxford, and Mr. Maynard Keynes is, of course, a complete University man; ex-President of the Union at Cambridge and a Fellow of King's College there. Besides being one of the leading economists of the world (his book, 'The Economic Consequences of the Peace,' had a real political influence on both sides of the Atlantic), and the chief proprietor of the Nation, he can speak with authority on the modern business world, as he is Chairman of the National Mutual Life Assurance Society.

10.45 ORCHESTRAL PROGRAMME (Continued), S.B. from Manchester
 Ballet Music from 'Faust' ..... Gounod

11.0 AN EXPERIMENT IN TELEPATHY
THIS interesting experiment in thought-transference has been arranged by the Society for Psychical Research, and will be conducted by that eminent scientist and prominent psychiatrist, Sir Oliver Lodge, and by the Research Officer of the Society, Dr. V. J. Woolley. An article by Dr. Woolley on the experiment appears on page 305.

7.10 Sir MICHAEL SADLER: 'The Centenary of Pestalozzi'

JOHANN HEINRICH PESTALOZZI (1746-1827) was, in a sense, the Montessori of a hundred years ago. He wrote much on education, demanding a simpler and more logical method of teaching children, and exemplified his beliefs in his own school. A committee has been formed to celebrate the centenary of his death, with Sir Michael Sadler as its chairman.

NEITHER of the two great topics with which Mr. Marett (who is University Reader in Social Anthropology at Oxford) has dealt in this series is more important in the history of man's development into a civilized creature than that of marriage. And most lay students of anthropology will agree that the strange marriage customs of primitive races were the part of their reading that interested them most.

NATIONAL CONCERT PROGRAMME (February 17)

Programme Notes.

The Conductor.

BERNARDINO MOLINARI, the Director and Conductor of Italy's most famous concert-hall, the Augusteo in Rome, is forty-seven, and has occupied his post since 1912. He is known to us in another capacity—that of transcriber of old music for the modern Orchestra. His treatment of a 'Sonata' of his great countryman of an earlier age, Monteverdi, was heard at a Promenade Concert a few years ago, and to-night's first piece is another example of his work in that direction.

Fragments from Concerto of the Seasons.

VIVALDI was a great Violin virtuoso of the eighteenth century who was also an orchestral Conductor. Most people imagine that an orchestra for ladies only is a modern idea. But Vivaldi conducted such an orchestra—at a founding hospital for girls in Venice. He was a priest as well as a musician, officiating in both capacities at St. Mark's, Venice.

Vivaldi gave titles to one or two of his Concertos, thus to some extent producing early examples of 'programme music'—music that has some literary basis, or that endeavours to suggest definite named scenes and moods.

The title of the set of Concertos in which Vivaldi gives his impressions of the year's changing periods is, literally, 'The Four Seasons, or the Hazard (Trial) of Harmony and Invention.'

The pieces we are to hear are those representing 'Summer' and 'Winter' (a Slow Movement subtitled 'Rain'), and an appropriately gay concluding piece depicting 'Spring.'

The word 'Cembalo,' used in our programme, meant (at the time Vivaldi was at work) simply Harpsichord. The part for such an instrument is, of course, nowadays usually played on the Piano.

Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

THIS is the most popular of all Symphonies. After a hundred and twenty years (during which it has had temporary rivals, such as Tchaikovsky's 'Pathetic') it remains the most admired and the most played of all orchestral works.

The FIRST MOVEMENT is troubled, nervous music—the disordered sentiments which overthrow a great soul, a prey to despair, said Berlioz. Its first four gruff notes, known as 'Fate knocking at the door,' are famous among musicians as a concentrated, significant, and entirely unique idea.

The SECOND MOVEMENT is a series of connected Variations on a long-drawn Theme that has two distinct sections, the first a sinuous melody and the second suggestive of a fanfare.

The THIRD MOVEMENT is a Scherzo, a word which means a 'jest,' and became attached, as a formal term, to the light-styled, quick Movement that was usually found in the middle of a Symphony. Here, however, it is grim jesting, and there is no feeling of relaxed tension. It was by such Movements as this that Beethoven raised the Scherzo from the air of triviality with which it first entered into the Symphonic scheme and brought it to full rank as a musical composition.

At the end of it comes a mysterious, whispered passage that gradually takes the music out of C Minor into C Major and leads into the blaze of the FOURTH MOVEMENT, a triumphal prelude that sustains the note of exhilaration from beginning to end, except for a moment where Beethoven brings in a few bars of the Scherzo. The ending is a rattling and a pounding of C Major chords without a parallel in music.

Ballet Suite, 'La Giara' ('The Jar').

CASELLA (born 1883) is already well known to concert-goers, several of his works having been heard in this country, notably his impressions entitled Pages of War. He is a versatile musician—a Concert Pianist and Music Critic, and author of a book on The Evolution of Music. His 'modernist' tendencies go hand in hand with a keen appreciation of the classics; his edition of Beethoven's Piano Sonatas is admirable.

The Jar, written in 1924, is described as a 'Choreographic Comedy'—a Ballet in one Act, based on a novel by Pirandello. The plot concerns a very large and handsome jar of oil owned by a rich and crusty farmer. By an accident it is broken. An old hump-backed artist in the mending of broken pottery comes along and undertakes to repair it. To fix the broken piece in place he has to get inside the jar. When it is fixed he cannot get out through the neck, because of his hump! The owner of the jar will not break it to release the poor hunchback, who is left disconsolate inside it, puffing his pipe.

Night comes on. Encouraged by Nela, the farmer's daughter, peasants come in to drink the hunchback's health. They become lively, and dance round the jar. The farmer appears, angry at the noise, and vents his annoyance in a kick at the jar. It breaks, freeing its inhabitant, and in a final dance the peasants celebrate his release, while the discomfited farmer retires fuming.

We are to have seven scenes from the Ballet, as follows:—

- (1) Prelude, introducing the rich farmer.
- (2) Sicilian Dance (the Chiòvu, a popular dance to which the peasants also sing).
- (3) 'The Kidnapping'. This, a popular Sicilian folk-song about a little girl who was carried off by pirates, is sung by the peasants who come on the scene towards the end of the Ballet, when the hunchback is snoring in the jar.
- (4) Nela's Dance, on her first appearance.
- (5) Drinking Song (Brindisi). The peasants tumultuously drink the health of the imprisoned man.
- (6) General Dance.
- (7) Finale. The excited peasants cheer the hunchback, and the curtain descends.

The Pines of Rome.

FOR the first time on record the Gramophone has been placed in the ranks of the orchestra. Its debut as an orchestral instrument is in Respighi's Pines of Rome, which in this country was first heard at the Leeds Festival of 1925.

Ottorino Respighi, who is one of Italy's leading composers, conforms to his national instinct for outward beauty; but we may count him among those who aim at greater depth and refinement than their fathers and grandfathers, and of orchestration he is an admitted master.

In The Pines of Rome he uses a large force, which includes Harp, Piano, Organ, Gramophone, Bells, Celesta, six instruments of (very roughly speaking) the Euphonium type, which he calls 'Buccine,' and an array of Percussion instruments.

The Pines of Rome is a Symphonic Poem in four distinct Movements, though they are merged in a continuous whole.

I. THE PINES OF THE BORGHESE VILLA.

This Movement (we translate the official description, prefixed to the Miniature Score, published by Ricordi) suggests the children playing amongst the pines in the grounds of the Villa. They dance round-dances, carry out military marchings, and excite themselves with their own cries, like swallows at eventide—and then run off.

This boisterous scene is depicted by brilliant, high Woodwind, Strings, Piano, and Harp. All the heaviest, lowest instruments are silent throughout. The fun is at its highest, when the scene changes.

II. THE PINES BESIDE ONE OF THE CATACOMBS.

We are suddenly transported into the shadow of the pines surrounding the entrance of a Catacomb, from the depths of which issues a sorrowful song. It rises to a solemn hymn and then ceases.

III. THE PINES ON THE JANICULUM HILL.

A tremor passes through the air. In the clear moonlight the pines of the Janiculum softly stir their topmost branches. In the surrounding silence sings a nightingale.

A faint, sustained String chord and a delicate flourish on the Piano lead to florid scraps of song in various Woodwind. At the end there is a very soft tremolo in Violins, and a gramophone record of a Nightingale's song is played.

IV. THE PINES OF THE APPIAN WAY.

Morning mist over the Appian Way. Solitary pines keep watch amid the tragic memories of the Roman Campagna. Faintly, but repeatedly, one seems to hear the rhythm of countless steps. The poet sees in imagination age-old Rome live again. With the ring of trumpets there approaches a Consul with his army, proceeding along the Via Sacra to his triumph on the Capitol as the new-born sun rises in its brilliance.

MISS VIOLET LORAINÉ had a varied and successful career in musical comedy, variety and pantomime—she was an ideal 'principal boy'; but probably she will be best remembered for her acting in the war-time revues at the London Hippodrome and the Alhambra. 'Business as Usual,' 'Push and Go,' and 'The Bing Boys' are names that, to many listeners, will recall the rare joys of a London leave, and there are thousands in whom the memory will awaken a sincere gratitude to Miss

Fashion and Beauty

one of the brightest stars that ever twinkled amongst the high lights of London's theatrical firmament, will broadcast from London to-night at 7.45.

Violet Loraine. After the war she acted in three more London shows, and then, on the conclusion of the run of 'London, Paris and New York,' retired from the stage on the occasion of her marriage. That was six years ago, and, in spite of offers of the most alluring character—how many of us could resist £800 a week?—she has so far resisted the temptation to return to the stage.

8.0 THE GLOUCESTER ORPHEUS SOCIETY CONCERT

Relayed from Shire Hall, Gloucester

THE Gloucester Orpheus Society, which consists of some sixty male voice singers, was established in 1899 by Sir A. Herbert Brewer, organist of Gloucester Cathedral. Its first president was Sir C. Hubert H. Parry, who held that office until his death. The society appeared with great success at a Three Choirs Festival some years ago, and in March, 1924, it gave a concert at the Central Hall, Westminster, London, when its performance received the most favourable recognition from the London critics, Mr. Percy Scholes describing it as 'one of the finest Male Voice Choirs he had heard.' It has been invited to take part in the forthcoming Concert to be given in honour of Gustav Holst, at Cheltenham, the composer's native town.

The present Musical Director is Mr. S. W. Underwood, whose exceptional ability as a choral conductor is widely known.

'Lord Jim': A Romantic Radio Story-Play.

The Radio Story-Play.

By Cecil Lewis.

Mr. CECIL LEWIS.

WHAT is the main difficulty in Broadcast Drama? Obviously that inherent in the medium—Blindness. But a host of others arise from this. The difficulties of conveying action, of marking exits and entrances, of sustaining interest without action, of distinguishing between characters by voice alone, of indicating changes of time and space—all these limitations, and many others, beset those who try to produce dramatic work for the microphone.

Now there is plainly one key to many of these troubles, and that is Simplicity. Simple action can be conveyed: the listener can distinguish and memorize a few voices: a short simple plot will prevent the interest from flagging. If we carry this to a logical conclusion, it leads us to the ideal of a crude plot, three characters, and a play lasting ten minutes.

My broadcast version of Conrad's famous novel, 'Lord Jim,' lasts two hours. There are about twenty characters. Throughout the broadcast there will be no announcements as to change of time or scene. It will progress unaided, like an aural film with sub-titles.

How has this been done? It arises from a transmission arranged by Mr. R. E. Jeffrey and myself over two years ago. We tried to throw a series of progressive mind-pictures into the microphone. Though we considered the experiment highly successful, not a single comment upon it was received from the public! We may, therefore, have been wrong. To-night's attempt to carry the idea a stage further may help listeners to decide.

Conrad employs a style which is specially suitable for broadcasting, because in many of his books the tale is related at a later date by someone only partially connected with the story. In 'Lord Jim' it is Marlow, a retired sea captain, as he sits on a verandah with a few friends after dinner, who unfolds the marvellous and tragic romance.

For our purpose to-night Marlow still tells his story; but from time to time, it becomes so vivid that it breaks into life. Then, that moment over, the storyteller resumes his theme. By this means a continuous impression is created, and much of Conrad's own superb prose has been embodied in the work. It is because of its dual nature—half a narrative, half a drama—that it has been called a Story-Play.

'Lord Jim' is the study of a young man who failed and who stubbornly fought his way back to success. Its effect on the listener is cumulative. Therefore anyone who wishes fully to appreciate it must give it consecutive attention.

Personally I believe that radio drama must employ a photo-play technique: a large number of simple scenes, short in duration, linked together and carried forward by a storyteller. All manner of variety and ingenuity is possible with such a method.

The three essentials of a good radio dramatist would seem to be: first, the ability to tell a good plain story; secondly, the power of writing dialogue with real character; thirdly, a fine sense of vivid descriptive prose. These three characteristics Joseph Conrad possessed in a high degree, and it will certainly not be his fault if to-night's version of 'Lord Jim' is not a success.

'Lord Jim.'

By H. M. Tomlinson.

CONRAD himself has confessed that his novel 'Lord Jim' began as a short story. When he was a ship's master, and was trading between Malaya, Siam and Borneo, he heard the story of the abandonment of the pilgrim ship he calls the Patna. It was part of the stock of the gossip of the anchorages of those coasts. He had seen an English officer, it appears, who was concerned with that deplorable affair of long ago. He made a short story of it, and a problem of conduct, pushed it into a drawer, and forgot it, apparently, till Mr. William Blackwood, the publisher, reminded him that it was some time since he had favoured Blackwood's Magazine with anything.

Mr. H. M. TOMLINSON.

A writer of Conrad's quality never, at call, has anything ready for the market, of course, though he may be always at work. Conrad took out his story of the Patna, and, naturally, saw that it was but the foreshadowing of a much more portentous yarn; it was, as he has told us since, but a 'good starting point for a free and wandering tale.'

He began to write it again. He went on writing it till he had enough to run through thirteen numbers of Blackwood's Magazine. The original story grew into forty-five chapters. And a wandering tale it is, an Odyssey, if you like, not of a hero, but of one of us, we will say; a man able to face things, yet now and then, in a crisis, stricken by irresolution. For the trouble with a crisis is, very often, that we do not recognize it for a turning point, a place where Destiny stands aside for a moment—just for a moment—to allow us to make a choice.

If, as is just possible, you have not yet become acquainted with Joseph Conrad, then 'Lord Jim' would be a good book of his with which to get to know him. It has that noble writer's qualities and defects so well displayed that you may learn fairly soon where you are with him. Naturally you will find that Conrad is a strange writer. He happened to have an original mind. You cannot expect an original mind to work in the same way as that which presents us with easy novels and the news of the day. And there, perhaps, is the test of a reader, as well as of the quality of a writer. If a writer demands of you, and casually as though you were the very one to give it, an attention which, though at first it may be irksome, yet presently makes you feel that you are now a bit above yourself, then you may know that you have a good book in your hand, and that you have in you the makings of a good reader; and good readers are perhaps almost as rare as good writers.

Anyhow, once you are well into that story of 'Lord Jim,' it will cause you to forget where you yourself are. The book has a magic which plays tricks with time and space. It has in it the mysterious East which Conrad knew so well, ships and men, and unusual happenings in places where simple accidents may cause disaster, not to the body only but to the soul.

[Mr. H. M. Tomlinson, the noted critic, and author of 'The Sea and the Jungle,' 'Tidemarks,' and 'Gifts of Fortune,' was a personal friend of Joseph Conrad, the author of 'Lord Jim,' until his death in 1925.]

WHEN we speak of 'Johann Strauss' we usually mean 'the younger,' for this Johann, following in father's footsteps, eclipsed him, notable composer of dance music though he was, and became the most popular musician in Vienna in the middle of the last century.

The father did not wish his sons to go into his profession, so a Savings Bank was like to have swallowed up young Johann. But waltzes ran in the blood, and would come out. He had been writing them since he was six, and for over sixty years (till he died in 1899) he poured them forth, with enormous success. Altogether he wrote about 480 dances, and to-night we are to hear some of the best of the waltzes that in the old days took Europe by storm, and earned their Composer the proud title of 'The Waltz King.'

Here goes!

Kalenised filaments survive 500 ft. drop

Aeroplane test to prove that Cossor now has the world's strongest filament

A new Cossor
 with an amplification factor of 40

Every wireless expert agrees that choke or resistance capacity coupling is the ideal method of L.F. amplification. In the past the only drawback has been the lack of suitable valves. But now the new Cossor 2-volt R.C. meets every requirement. It has an impedance of 70,000 ohms with a record amplification factor of nearly 40. Absolute non-microphonic and consuming only 1 amp. 14/-

A wonderful Valve

EVER since the first valve was made its length of service has depended upon the durability of the filament; and in spite of tremendous efforts by scientists the filament remained weak and fragile. But now Cossor has invented a new kind of filament which is so intensely strong that it resists shocks with ease. So tough, in fact, that it was successfully subjected to the most daring test ever conceived.

On Dec. 20th last, in the presence of — and under the strict supervision of — Editorial representatives of the three chief weekly wireless papers, twelve Cossor valves were hurled from an aeroplane at a height of 500 feet. They were packed merely in standard cartons without cotton wool or corrugated paper.

Eleven valves were retrieved — one was lost — and in every valve the Kalenised filament was unbroken.

This dramatic test — but for the fact that it was authenticated by independent experts whose word is obviously above suspicion — would have been almost unbelievable. It proves beyond question that Cossor has the world's strongest filament.

When you are weary of the continual expense of valve replacement, choose the Cossor—the valve with the long life. Remember that the Kalenised filament gives off a terrific emission practically without heat. No matter which type of circuit you are using, there is a Cossor valve (for 2-volt or 4-volt accumulator) for every position—use them and get better results—improved tone and greater volume—with a current consumption that is well-nigh negligible.

TESTED AGAINST A 6-GUINEA LOUD SPEAKER

The result of an actual test—the Lissenola against a very well-known loud speaker.

The user writes:—

"A Lissenola unit I purchased at Xmas gave such good results on the cardboard horn that I made it a curved three-ply horn, which has still further improved reproduction, and last evening I tested this speaker against a 6-guinea * * * * (giving a very well-known make), both instruments being on a two-way switch to enable instantaneous comparison to be obtained. Even the owner of the * * * * had to admit, with a somewhat rueful air, that the Lissenola was infinitely the superior as regards quality whilst volume was very slightly less than that of the * * * * which is admittedly sensitive."

Now you can get a complete Lissenola Loud Speaker as illustrated for

AN EXPENSIVE TRANSFORMER BURNS OUT —BUT A NEW LISSEN STANDS!

Letters like the following come in to us by every post. They speak for themselves:—

Ref. 6,150

Dorking, Surrey.
14.12.26.

"I beg to send you an appreciation of your new L.F. transformer. I am using the original S.T.100 circuit, which, as you know, must have the best transformers. I have had this set working for two years and have burnt out two transformers, one costing 21/- and the other 13/6. I had one re-wound, but it only lasted a month, then went again.

"I was recommended by my wireless dealer to try your 8/6 one. I was loth to do so because I thought it was too cheap, but he prevailed on me, and since putting it in the second L.F. stage I have had louder signals and less distortion than I have experienced before. I have also been able to get much more distant stations since inserting it.

"I think it is the best value for money in wireless components, and my next H.T. battery will be a LISSEN to see if this is as good as the transformer."

The new LISSEN Transformer fully amplifies every tone, every note, every harmonic, every overtone, in a background free from noise. Every previous expensive LISSEN transformer has been withdrawn in favour of this new LISSEN.

Not only can it be used as a fine transformer, but it is also a GREAT CHOKE. By the simple act of connecting two of its four terminals together as instructed on the box it becomes one of the finest chokes that can be obtained.

7 DAYS' TEST.

Try the new LISSEN at home—if within seven days of purchase you can find a better transformer at any price, return the LISSEN and your money will be willingly refunded.

This battery provides the most satisfactory source of H.T. in existence.

It will stand for six months at least, without detriment or loss of charge even when partially run down, so that its full capacity is available though the discharge be spread over such periods. It can be recharged, and, reasonably cared for, will last for years.

The discharge is steady, free from fluctuations, and ensures pure reception against a silent background that is a revelation.

Working four valves on 0.3 amps.

THE development of the B.5.H. Valve completes the B.T.H. 4 volt range. With the famous B.5 Valve for detector and first stage of L.F., the B.6 for the final stage of L.F., and the new B.5.H. for H.F. amplification, you have a valve combination of unexampled efficiency and economy. A 4 valve set, for example, using one B.5.H., two B.5.'s and one B.6 valve, would require a total L.T. current of only 0.3 ampere (less than half the consumption of a single bright valve) and could be run for 100 hours on a 30 amp-hour 4 volt accumulator.

THE MOST ECONOMICAL 4v. COMBINATION

Valve	Fl. Volts	Fl. Current	Anode Volts	Anode Resistance	Proc.
B.5H.	2.8	0.06 amp	40-120	55,000 ohms	14s 0d
B.5	2.8	0.06 amp	20-80	17,000 ohms	14s 0d
B.6	2.8	0.12 amp	40-120	12,000 ohms	18s 6d

Whether your set is a Neutrodyne, Super-heterodyne or Any-other-dyne; whether it has three or "umpteen" valves, you will, by using the range of valves listed above, obtain the very finest results of which your set is capable, with a lower current consumption than is possible with any other combination of valves.

R.C. THREESOME

Modification of the normal circuit to increase range and selectivity

CONSTRUCTORS have acclaimed the R.C. THREESOME as the leader of receiving sets for pure reception of the local station. In some cases, however, additional range and selectivity are required, and not solely a receiver for pure reception of the local station.

To meet this need a method of introducing reaction into the circuit has been devised, and in addition to providing increased range and selectivity to the constructor with a really efficient aerial, it also enables the Three-some to be used on an inefficient aerial with first-rate results.

There are certain districts in the country which are known as "blind spots," and others where reception conditions are not good. In all these cases the modification will satisfactorily overcome the difficulties.

FREE BLUE PRINT & INSTRUCTIONS

In order that the R.C. THREESOME will give satisfaction even in these cases, an additional blue print (which can be laid over the original blue print) has been prepared, together with a leaflet of instructions giving details of the necessary alterations. There is no trouble whatever in carrying out the instructions.

Hope's Free—Why buy it?

When you see a capacity in amp-hours printed upon a P. & R. Battery, then you know it's the capacity. It isn't what somebody thought it might be: it isn't optimism: it isn't an oh-so-hopeful "intermittent" rating: it's capacity: honest-to-goodness valve burning capacity.

Here are a few more points about P. & R. Batteries. First of all the "Dagenite" is a material the invention and secret of P. & R. It is absolutely acid-proof and leak-proof and it is practically unbreakable even if dropped from a height. Corrosion of terminals is stopped by petroleum-jelly glands: paste is "keyed" in place by a special section of grid: NO MESSY, EXPENSIVE, EVER-LASTINGLY-ROTTING CRATE IS REQUIRED. The battery is complete.

And, other things being equal, it costs no more than the other kind of battery. For interesting free booklet and catalogue write Peto & Radford, 50, Grosvenor Gardens, London, S.W.1.

Charge it 4 times only during 1927

BECAUSE its plates are made under the Special Activation Process the Oldham H.T. Accumulator need be charged only 4 times a year. And now another big improvement has been effected. The first charge is given before the Accumulator leaves the factory. Merely add acid when you buy it and within an hour it is ready for use.

Gives new life and power to any Receiver

Ample H.T. current is vital to your Set. The ordinary dry battery cannot give it. Almost as soon as it is made it begins to run down. Dull emitter valves quickly drain away its vitality and—imperceptibly—your Receiver loses range and volume. The Oldham H.T. is dead silent in operation and gives a continuous flood of unvarying energy

Cheaper than Dry Batteries —it lasts for years

The Oldham is built on the unit system. You can have 40—60—80—or, in fact, any voltage by assembling sufficient 20-volt units. It will last for years. The whole assembly in its neat polished oak cabinet is fit to take its place in any room.

Louden Valves

Lord Rothschild's Museum,
Tring

" . . . . in future Loudens for me."

Mr. Vbranch, of Tring, writes expressing the good qualities of Loudon Valves which so many people have already experienced and which, no doubt, you will experience sooner or later. He writes:—

" Dear Sirs,
" Just a word in appreciation of your Loudon Valves. They are everything that you say and I am more than pleased with them.
" Some people think that by using Dull Emitters they must lose a good deal of volume; but not with Loudens. I have used all sorts of valves during the last few years, but in future Loudens for me.
" My accumulator, 6 V. 20 amp., using Bright Emitters, lasted 8 hours. Now with Loudens, starting with the accumulator fully charged, I have had 40 hours of 'Silver Clear' reception and even now the battery is nowhere near finished.
" You may use this letter if you wish, as the public, if they only knew more of these valves, would certainly use no others.
" Yours faithfully,
" C. V. (Tring)."

Louden Valves are made by British labour in a British factory with British capital and can be depended upon for the finest volume, range and silver clearness. They can only be offered at such low prices because of our well-known policy of selling direct to the public and cutting out the middleman's profits. Order your Loudon Valves by post to-day.

A Loud Speaker bearing a world-famed name for three ten shilling notes

DO you know that to have pure, accurate loud speaker reproduction from your Set, it is not necessary to pay a lot of money? For only three ten shilling notes your Dealer can supply you with a loud speaker which will give you really reliable reproduction. It is the Brown H4 Loud Speaker. This famous little instrument is triumph of manufacturing skill. Incredible as it may seem, here is a loud speaker which stands only ten inches high, costs but thirty-shillings and yet in appearance and performance is fully in keeping with the proverbially high Brown standards. A perfect replica of its larger brothers. As any who have heard it will tell you, wonderfully faithful in reproduction. Life-like to a degree, in fact, which is almost uncanny. Ask your Wireless Dealer to let you hear it. However sceptical you may be now, a demonstration will convince you that loud speaker reproduction on such a low-priced instrument, is really very good. Call in at your Dealer's to-day and ask him to let you hear the H4. It comes in 2,000 ohms. resistance only . . . . at the price of a pair of Headphones. Thirty shillings.

THE COMMONPLACE MADE BEAUTIFUL

THE early car was an ugly brute. When they had perfected it mechanically, though, motor manufacturers turned their attention to its appearance. Changing something here, adding something there, it was gradually evolved until to-day, the graceful beauty of many cars is fair to see.

There is an exact parallel in the Loud Speaker. The appearance of the original loud speaking instrument was far from attractive. Distasteful, almost. But, little by little the reproducing qualities of the loud speaker were improved. But the old horn remained. Then the demand arose for the 'loud speaker beautiful.' To S. G. Brown, Ltd., however, it was left to produce the really beautiful loud speaker. They did it in the Disc you see here.

Black and Gold, Brown and Gold, White and Gold £7 7s.
Oxydised Silver - - £8 8s.

The graceful limousine of to-day is a far cry from the "boneshaker" of twenty years back. The aristocratic Brown Disc Loud Speaker is just as great an advancement upon the loud speaker of pre-broadcasting days.

If you have watched the development of the loud speaker you'll appreciate just what tremendous forward strides the Disc marks. Hear it at your Dealers and appreciate this for yourself. You'll covet the Disc.

FELLOWS WIRELESS

Type B. Unit for Alternating Current
£4 : 10 : 0

HIGH TENSION FROM YOUR ELECTRIC LIGHT

If you have Electric Light, send for a Fellophone H.T. Mains Unit and do away with the expense of renewing exhausted Batteries.

All you have to do is to plug the adaptor of the Mains Unit into a lamp holder, switch on, and an inexhaustible supply of H.T. current is at your disposal.

Fellophone Mains Units possess, among others, the following advantages.

1. ABSOLUTE SAFETY. An ample margin of safety is provided in these Units which completely safeguards them against breakdown. They are as safe to fit as an electric light globe and as safe to handle when working as an H.T. Battery.
2. LOW COST. The current consumed by these Units is no more than that taken by a "night light" electric lamp. They are thus extremely economical and they rapidly save the cost of renewing Batteries.
3. PERFECT RECEPTION. When ordering state the voltage of your lighting mains and (if current is alternating) the frequency. Your Mains Unit will then give you perfect reception free from all "ripple" or "hum."
4. A.C. or D.C. Fellows Mains Units are made either for Alternating Current or Direct Current and for all voltages commonly in use for lighting.
5. SINGLE OR MULTI VOLTAGE. These units, whether for A.C. or D.C., are made in two TYPES. Type A. delivers a single value only of H.T. Voltage. Type B. delivers three separate values, two of which are variable over twelve tapings, thus enabling the exact required voltages to be applied to several valves at once. (For further description see pages 28 and 29 of our Catalogue No. 10.)
6. SEVEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL. You can have a Fellows Mains Unit on seven days' trial by remitting full value. If you are not more than pleased with it, return it to us in good condition and we will promptly refund your full remittance.

AN AMAZING NEW LOUDSPEAKER

astonishing realism of voice and instrument from the highest note to the lowest

TILL now, loudspeaker reception has only been half as good as it might be. However good the reproduction in the "middle registers" of vocal or instrumental music, the deep notes and the very highest notes have always suffered distortion. Drums have caused a toneless rattle, high soprano notes have simply squealed.

Now, with the introduction of the M.P.A. "Sprung-diaphragm" Loudspeaker, it is possible to secure absolutely flawless music.

Listeners who have already heard this remarkable instrument are positively amazed by the sense of "reality" it gives. With eyes closed it is almost impossible to believe that the artist is not actually present.

Come and hear for yourself, any day during broadcast hours at our showroom, or, if you cannot call, send for the fully-descriptive leaflet.

SEVEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL

You can test this wonderful loudspeaker on your own set for a week without any charge or obligation. Write or phone your application at once!

In handsome oak or mahogany cabinet. Guaranteed for twelve months.

INSULATION!

You would not use a leaky Ebonite Panel for your wireless set! Then why use H.T. dry batteries with insufficient internal insulation? They may look very nice externally, but it's the internal design, combined with the care in the selection of the materials and in manufacture, that really count. In Siemens Radio H.T. Dry Batteries you have the best of materials and the accumulative results of over 40 years of battery manufacturing experience.

If you can secure an old one from a friend, just cut it open and see for yourself the effectiveness of the paraffin wax insulation. Each individual cell is solidly embedded in this substance which provides the most efficient insulation possible in a commercial article. It is not cheap, but you gain in the end by reason of the Steady Persistent Service which is such a remarkable characteristic of Siemens Radio Batteries.

SEE THAT THEY BEAR THIS TRADE MARK.

Send for our Catalogue 650, which contains full particulars of the correct size and type of battery to use for any radio purpose, besides useful information on the CARE and MAINTENANCE of batteries.

For H.T. Accumulators 50/-

10 hours for 1d.!

If you have Alternating Current (A.C.) Electric Light you can charge your Accumulator at home for an absurdly low cost by using the Fellow's Accumulator Charger.

This charger is simplicity itself, there are no expensive parts to require renewal, it cannot harm your electric light in any way, and it is as safe to handle as your loud speaker.

Simply plug it into an electric lamp holder (see above), switch on, give a twist to the knurled knob, and, when the little motor is running connect up your 4 or 6 volt accumulator and leave it on charge until the bubbles rise freely in the acid inside. The charger will automatically give the correct charging current.

You need only have one accumulator because you can charge it up when your set is not in use.

Your present accumulators probably cost from 9d. to 1/6 per charge; you cannot be certain that they get fair treatment while away; and there are frequently delays and disappointments.

The Fellow's charger eliminates all these troubles. It will charge up a large accumulator (e.g. 6V, 30 ah) for a cost of about ONE PENNY for 10 hours, even in districts where lighting is as high as 5d. per unit.

There is also a special model designed to charge up H.T. Accumulators in batches of 60 volts at a time. Output 1/2 ampere.

You can, by remitting full cash value, have one of these chargers on SEVEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL. If you are not more than satisfied we will take it back and return your money in full.

N.B. When ordering please state carefully voltage and frequency (cycles) of your mains. You will find this information on your meter.

THE RISKS THAT LISSEN RUN TO SAVE YOU THIS 5/1 ON EVERY BATTERY!

—and a day for all Battery buyers to remember—Monday, Jan. 24, 1927.

On that day the reduced price for the LISSEN New Process Battery first came into operation. Before that, however, LISSEN had had to take a big risk. Prior to August 16th, 1926, LISSEN had been distributing through wholesale factors, but on that day a new policy of direct-from-factory-to-dealer distribution was put into operation by LISSEN which eliminated all wholesaler's profits. Intended first for sale at 13s. it was only possible to sell the LISSEN New Process Battery at 10s. 6d. by drastically altering the previous method of distribution, and the decision to do this was fraught with serious possibilities, for LISSEN at once had to do business with some thousands of retailers instead of a smaller number of wholesalers. There was a great risk that the wholesalers would use their influence with their retail customers to block the new LISSEN policy; at any rate no wholesaler could be expected to uphold it. BUT LISSEN HAS WON THROUGH. That step alone saves users 2s. 6d. on every LISSEN New Process Battery purchase, 1s. on many other LISSEN parts, and made LISSEN mean to the user the best value for money in radio.

NOW LISSEN HAS TAKEN STILL ANOTHER BOLD STEP. To make the new reduced price for the LISSEN New Process Battery possible, a price actually less than many inferior foreign batteries are sold at, LISSEN have had to reduce the profit previously allowed to the retail trade and have had to make a big sacrifice in profits themselves as well.

No user of H. T. batteries can remain unattracted by the thought of being able to obtain a LISSEN New Process Battery for 7s. 11d.—and the justification of the new step will come through largely increased sales.

It is through the co-operation of our retail friends that LISSEN batteries will be made available to you at thousands of shops throughout the country and we therefore want users to know that it is due to the sacrifice of our retail distributors as well as ourselves that this new low price is made possible.

With high price no longer a reason for being without the LISSEN New Process Battery your loud speaker reproduction will be better, volume bigger, and utterance clearer than ever before. The new price now places fine battery characteristics within the reach of all.

TO OUR RETAIL FRIENDS.

We are loth to lower the discount, but we think the new price is going to be justified. Full credits on existing stock have been made to stockists who obtained supplies direct from us and whose claims were in our hands by January 31st, 1927, for any LISSEN New Process Batteries in stock on January 18th which were invoiced in January. Since January 18th batteries have been invoiced to the trade at the new trade price.

TO THE USER.

There is no substitute for a LISSEN New Process Battery. Ask for "LISSEN New Process" and see you get it. There is a LISSEN dealer close to you who will be glad to sell it to you, but if any difficulty send direct to factory. No postage charged but please mention dealer's name and address. Or can be sent C.O.D. Connect two batteries in series when more than 65 volts required. Rated at 69 volts, this LISSEN New Process Battery goes considerably over. Its size is 9½ in. x 4½ in.—IT IS PACKED FULL OF NEW ENERGY.
