When All the World Speaks English.

By Sir ISRAEL GOLLANCZ.

BROADCASTING has become firmly established as a vital factor of our modern life, and the incredulous surprise that hailed its arrival has given way to a general acceptance and appreciation. Possessing as we do a clearer understanding of the facts, it is now possible to consider the many problems to which broadcasting has given birth.

In attempting to estimate the part that wireless will play in the life of the world a hundred years hence, one's thought is inevitably affected by one's own immediate interests. The actor speculates as to the future effect of wireless on his profession; the journalist sees in it a possible menace to the newspaper; the engineer regards it chiefly as a means of speedy communication and a destroyer of distance; while I, with my own particular interest in mind, try to gauge its effect on the growth and development of the English language.

Even to the casual thinker it is obvious that broadcasting is destined to have a powerful effect on language; but if one troubles to consider the question more closely, it will be seen that a strong case can be made for the theory that, through the medium of wireless, the world of the future will have imposed upon it a universal language, and that language will most probably be our own mother-tongue—English.

The main fact in support of this arresting idea is that the race for supremacy of the ether rests unquestionably between Great grammes, with the inevitable consequence that a new and insistent demand for a knowledge of English will be created among the people of other nations.

In bringing this about, wireless will merely accelerate a movement that already exists; for it is safe to assert that even now English is more widely spoken than any other language. It is true that the English that is spoken may not be in all cases the tongue of polite society in the West End of London, and doubtless it would often be quite unintelligible if spoken at the Court of St. James, but the fact remains that, allowing for foreign modifications, one may to-day hear English spoken in every corner of the earth. This is a legacy left by the flow of British pioneers to other countries; explorers, adventurers, missionaries, traders—each of them has unwittingly founded an outpost of the English tongue.

But where this haphazard system of spreading English speech has been slow and imperfect, the effect of broadcasting will be rapid and as nearly perfect as a choice of efficient speakers can make it. The early ambassadors of our tongue in foreign lands were men whose vocabulary was often limited to a score of rich oaths, and perhaps from a fourteenth-century painting by Brueghel, where, according to the Bible story, began the 'confusion of tongues.' In the accompanying article Sir Israel Gollancz, one of the greatest living authorities on the English language, prophesies that the slender towers of Daventry and of the other broadcasting stations of the English-speaking world will make our English speech the language of mankind.

Britain and America—and whichever wins, the effect upon the English language will be substantially the same.

The Drama of Sound.

By Constance Smedley.

WHAT is the medium of radio doing for the drama of sound?

The cinema brought to us the drama of sight. Now comes the drama of sound. Sound has an appeal of even wider range. Sight brings to view unfamiliar habits and environments: the language of melody and rhythm is beyond geographical or racial limitations.

Moreover, this drama of sound penetrates not only into houses, but wherever there is air; it is literally a universal medium of communication.

How is sound expressed? Through pitch, pace, tone, accent, rhythm. The drama of sound will make more and more conscious use of these instruments of expression. At present, listeners often find it somewhat difficult to distinguish between the characters in radio-drama. The choosing of distinctive voices, as positively differentiated as tenor, baritone, bass, soprano, alto, or contralto, greatly aids the invisible audience. Differing qualities of tone should be sought for: a good example of this was Mrs. Patrick Campbell's performance of scenes from Pelleas and Melisande; the quality of her voice as Melisande was limpid and clear like a crystal spring: as Pelleas, pulsing with muffled vibration, velvety and deep; as Goland, sonorous and ringing, a deep-toned bell; as Arkel, remote and colourless, reminding one of wintry mists. There was no difficulty in following: the general effect of sound was as interesting as a music tone-picture.

Then comes the problem of inflections. Nothing is more fatiguing and confusing than a radio-drama where the players run up and down the whole scale all the time. Successful radio acting is a model of controlled and contrasted inflections. Mabel Constanduros is invariably restful and easy to follow because of her controlled notation. She reserves changes of pitch for definite purposes: emotion never causes her to race up and down the entire scale with monotonous repetition.

Another point in radio-drama is the regulation of accent. Some radio acting loses all effectiveness in forcing its effects. A group of actors at consistent high pressure from start to finish of a tragedy, become as exhausting and meaningless as would a group of instrumentalists who force their parts, singly and individually, irrespective of their fellow performers, without any attention to general light and shade.

Sybil Thorndike and Lewis Casson's Henry VIII can be cited as an example of the right sort of team work. Not only were their words articulated clearly: there was a genuine pattern of accent, with deliberate crescendos and as deliberate suppression of differing parts of the entire scene.

Finally comes rhythm. The many speakers of poetry, alas, too often demonstrate the Anglo-Saxon tendency to drop the pitch on the last word of the line. They yield to the trap of emphasising the metre, and fall into a deadening sing-song, instead of transcending the metrical form by bringing out the undertones and the overtones, the story, characterization, atmosphere, and, above all, the underlying idea, by intelligent emphasis and clear analysis of the phrasing that

With apologies to Sir William Orcheston

IF RADIO HAD BEEN INVENTED BEFORE—1.

St. Helena would not have seemed such a bad prospect.

constitutes the fundamental rhythm of the poem.

To recite a poem in strict accordance with its metre is analogous to playing a piece of music to the metronome. One ought not to be conscious of the metrical beat any more than of the conductor's beat. Phrasing is the secret of rhythm. The drama of sound includes poems in the form of speech-music compositions: a vastly different affair from poems recited to instrumental music, or poems recited according to the actor's emotional impulses, irrespective of sound-pattern.

The drama of sound will use the laws of sound: it will bring about the art and science of speech-music, which will be as clearly understood as the art and science of song-music or instrumental music. And here we are back at Greek Drama, when a false quantity was hissed as loudly as a false note would be to-day by an Italian audience at their beloved opera, and when actors and audience alike recognized that the fundamental basis of the Art of Sound, as of Movement, is Rhythm.

two or three hundred oft-repeated words of special significance to their respective callings; so that the foreigners who heard them could scarcely be blamed for failing to speak more of the language than could their teachers.

But the foreigner who to-day learns his English from his headphones or loud speaker can hear the highest standard of elocution, and the purest speech that the broadcasting authorities can command. Already much that is finest in our spoken word is regular fare for listeners to our British stations, and, no doubt, both in this country and abroad, this influence is bearing fruit.

There are, perhaps, many who will declare that the vision of an English-speaking world is neither an agreeable nor a desirable one; that such a state of things would outrage international susceptibilities; and that Esperanto or some similar language would be more readily accepted as an international language than one that had been imposed by a country largely on account of the fact that it had achieved radio supremacy. The obvious objection to Esperanto is its artificiality. English, on the other hand, is a living tongue, and has been proved to possess all the qualities that are desirable in a universal language. In the first place it possesses a wealth of vocabulary and phrases such as would compare favourably with that of any other language. It was no accident that caused the genius of Conrad to be given to the world in English; it was the great writer's deliberate choice of the best medium for his purpose. Our language is, besides, a workaday instrument that can be adapted with equal success to the rapier play of the satirist and to the heavy bludgeonings of the pamphleteer. It has breadth and depth and flexibility; it can incorporate new ideas and absorb the words of daily fashion without ever yielding its dignity or debasing its finer elements.

Great as are now the responsibilities of the British Broadcasting Corporation, they will increase tenfold with the coming years. For many more millions than they reach at present, wireless speakers will become the recognized authorities on all that is finest in the speech and thought of the English-speaking peoples. In them will be vested the interests of the English language throughout the world.

A Glance At Future Programmes.

ERNEST ANSERMET, who is to conduct the eleventh of the series of National Concerts at the Royal Albert Hall on Thursday, March 31, on one occasion played piano accompaniments to the Prince of Wales's ukulele. This was at Buenos Ayres during the Prince's visit to South America, and where for the past three summers Ansermet has conducted the State Orchestra. Ansermet is, of course, one of the most famous conductors of the present time, but like so many other musicians, he trod a stony path to achieve success. As a young man he showed outstanding ability, but in those days practically no opportunities came to young musicians, in his native town of Vevey, in Switzerland, and Ansermet, for a time, was compelled to depend on the teaching of mathematics. During his vacations he paid several visits to the Conservatoire in Paris and after many small engagements, founded the Orchestra de la Suisse Romande in Geneva, of which he is still conductor. Subsequently he became an intimate friend of Stravinsky, which led to his being appointed conductor of the Diaghilef Russian Ballet, with which he toured the world, and first became known in England. It will be recalled that Ansermet specially visited London to conduct one of the B.B.C. Symphony Concerts at Covent Garden Opera House in November, 1925. The National Concert on March 31 will consist entirely of orchestral music, among the items of which will be Schumann's Second Symphony, one of Handel's Concerti Grossi, the second suite from the music of Ravel's ballet, Daphnis and Chloe, the prelude by the English composer Dame Ethel Smyth, On the Cliffs of Cornwall, and Balakiref's Symphonic poem, Tamar.

THE Society for Psychical Research, which carried through the recent experiment in Mass Telepathy broadcast from London and Daventry on February 16, has received such a vast number of letters from listeners all over the country that some time must elapse before a considered report on the experiment can be issued. The report when it is ready will appear first in The Radio Times.

LIEUT.-COL. SIR ALFRED RAWLINSON, C.M.G., has had many interesting experiences in the Near East, some of which he will relate to listeners during a talk from LONDON and other stations on Thursday, March 17.

MAJOR JOHN HAY BEITH, better known as Ian Hay, the well-known novelist and playwright, is to read one of his own short stories for broadcasting from LONDON and other stations on Saturday, April 2. The title has not yet been selected. The story will be preceded by a popular orchestral concert relayed from the Kingsway Hall, and followed by a programme given by the B.B.C. Concert Party.

IAN HAY.

THE 'Empire' in Leicester Square has closed its doors as a theatre, but it will be a long time before we forget its historic associations over those thirty years or so before the war. Its name and fame were spread throughout the world wherever Englishmen travelled. Broadcasting will pay its tribute to the passing of this London landmark on Monday, March 14, when for one and a quarter hours a programme of vocal and instrumental music taken from some of the best-known revues—Hullo London, Everybody's Doing It, and All the Winners, among them—will be given from LONDON and other stations, with, possibly, excerpts from other shows of earlier days. A feature of this programme will be an attempt to recall the old time atmosphere.

MR. HAROLD M. ABRAHAMS, the well-known Cambridge and Olympic athlete, will give a broadcast description of the Inter-Varsity Sports which take place at Queen's Club, London, on Saturday, March 26. The nature of this event does not permit of the treatment with which listeners are now familiar in the case of other sporting fixtures, and Mr. Abrahams will give groups of ten minute talks, which will be interspersed with musical items from the studio. This will be followed at 4 p.m. by an hour's description of one of the semi-final ties in the F.A. Cup Competition. Another broadcast narrative of a sporting event to which all enthusiasts of the Rugby game will look forward is the International match between England and Scotland, to be played at Edinburgh on Saturday, March 19.

Mr. H. M. ABRAHAMS.

SOME OF Rimsky-Korsakov's best-known orchestral works, including the famous symphonic suite Scheherazade will be heard during a concert from MANCHESTER which has been specially arranged to celebrate the anniversary of the Russian composer's birth, on Friday, March 18. Mr. Herbert Heyner (baritone) will sing two groups of songs.

THE tentative arrangements outlined in the last issue of The Radio Times, to broadcast a description of the Oxford and Cambridge Boat Race on Saturday, April 2, can now be taken as definite. Thanks to the co-operation of the authorities, one of the launches which will follow the crews is being fitted with the necessary short-wave transmitting apparatus, so that the progress of the race, as told by an expert, will be sent by wireless to a point on the bank where it will be received and sent by land line to the Control Room of the LONDON Station. For this reason alone the race will be one of the most interesting of the long series of sporting struggles between the great Universities. Further interest will be evoked among listeners by a talk on the event which Sir Theodore Cook is giving from LONDON and other stations on Wednesday, March 30. Sir Theodore is one of the greatest living authorities on rowing. He gained his Blue at Oxford in 1889, is the author of several well-known rowing publications, and editor-in-chief of the Field.

Sir THEODORE COOK.

FEW parts of the programmes are more popular with listeners just now than those devoted to the vaudeville type of entertainment, which has been considerably developed since the beginning of the year. Every week brings its attractive lists of variety artists, and practically all the stars of the music-hall stage whose 'turns' can be utilized for broadcasting, have appeared before the microphone. Looking ahead, there are several evenings which many listeners to LONDON and other stations will take good care not to miss, including Monday, March 14, when Blanche Tomlin will sing some of those numbers for which she is so well known. The remainder of the hour that has been set apart on that occasion will be filled by Hebe Haworth and Adele Wesseley, Ann Penn, Graham Doncaster and Jack Sayes (the Smilesmith). Another fine 'bill' is fixed for the following evening, when the artists are Josephine Trix, one of the most famous singers of syncopated songs, Sandy Rowan, Mabel Constanduros, Margaret Rawson, and Claude Gardener, the boxing comedian. Then Clapham and Dwyer, the cross-talk comedians, are bringing another concert party to the studio on Friday, March 18.

THE Cardiff Irish Dramatic Society, members of which are taking part in a special 'Irish Night' programme at that Station on St. Patrick's Eve, is an offshoot of the Cardiff Irish Fellowship, and consisted originally of five women. Men were rather shy of joining at first, so the male parts in some of their early productions were taken by women. The Society produces one-act plays every month for performance at the general meeting of the Fellowship. All the plays undertaken by the Society were originally produced at the Abbey Theatre, Dublin.

MISS NORAH BLANEY, the popular West-end revue artist who has already given several broadcast performances, will be heard from all MAIN STATIONS during a week's tour, which starts on Monday, March 28. A similar series of programmes will be given during the following week by Muriel George and Ernest Butcher, folk-song duettists.

BOTH CARDIFF and DAVENTRY Stations will broadcast a programme from Bath, on Thursday, March 24. Bath is one of the most romantic towns in Britain, and in this concert an attempt will be made to recapture some of the spirit of its bygone days, when Beau Nash was the dictator of fashion to some of his contemporaries. The link between the Bath of his days, with the Roman centre on the one hand, and with the popular resort on the other hand, is 'The Spring,' the story which will be told to the sound of flowing water. The famous chimes of the Abbey will be broadcast at 9 o'clock, and later Madame Sarah Grand, the Mayoress, will speak a Good-Night message.

Madame SARAH GRAND.

Dancing Fashions, 1927.

By W. F. de Mornys, Manager of the Savoy Bands.

W. F. de MORNYS.

DANCING is now a matter of such general interest that it is not surprising that when a famous dance orchestra introduces some new development, the attention of some thousands — perhaps millions — of people should be instantly aroused. This widespread popularity of dancing is, of course, due in large measure to the advent of broadcasting.

At the moment a good deal of interest is being shown in the recent changes which have been inaugurated by the bands of the Savoy Hotel. This is not to be wondered at, for these famous bands exercise an influence in the world of dancing beyond that of any other dance orchestra in the world.

It is not generally realized, perhaps, that the style of dance music changes nearly as often as fashion changes in ladies' clothes. One particular style of music will be the vogue perhaps for as long as three years, but certainly not longer.

There have been many Savoy Hotel Bands to keep pace with these changes. I have myself produced well over twenty-five, and each band was specially composed to suit the particular fashion of the period, and also to suit the style of dancing.

Starting from the Dixie-Land Jazz Band of the post-war period, there followed another type of band which cannot be forgotten—the band in which the drummer was king, banging and clanging kitchen utensils. After that came the Saxophone Band, this was followed by the Melody Band, which held sway until the first Savoy Orpheans came into existence, this being the first symphonic syncopated band to play in this country.

This type of music suited the new fashion, and was undoubtedly widely appreciated, for everyone enjoyed the experience of hearing for the first time a dance band produced in a musical way with tone, colour and expression in its music.

WHEN the Savoy Orpheans were formed, a new fashion was introduced in the dancing of the fox-trot. The old side 'chasses' steps were discarded, and in their place came the walk step. The musical production of the Savoy Orpheans was specially suited to this type of dancing, which became universal.

Now, after three years, the Savoy Orpheans have introduced something entirely new. The dancing public seems to be getting tired of hearing the brass effects that were so popular until recently; the popular taste seems to demand more originality and variety of rhythm.

The speed of dance music has, moreover, increased to fifty-six bars since the coming of the Charleston, which requires a more lively and accentuated rhythm.

A band of the symphonic syncopated type does not meet these new requirements, and for that reason the new Savoy Orpheans have been entirely re-organized. Their present composition is as follows—two pianos, banjo, drums.

These instruments form the rhythmic section, which practically leads the band. The string section is composed of three violins, which give a more mellow and lighter character to the band. A special selection has been made of the fiddle players, upon whom we especially depend to put expression into the new music.

Three saxophones have been retained, these instrumentalists doubling, of course, on instruments such as clarinets, oboes, etc., etc. There is one trumpet only, and one trombone, these instruments forming the brass section of the band.

AS I have pointed out, the heavy symphonic fortissimos and ensemble are no longer appreciated, and are, therefore, no more. Instead, the brass players (namely, the trumpeters) are frequently featured as solo players, and are required to put individuality and style into their playing.

The trombone player will follow on the same lines. These two instruments, therefore, will star in the new orchestra, although their manner of playing will be totally different from hitherto. The brass player, however, will be retained, and he will return to the old-fashioned string bass playing which was enjoyed so much a decade ago.

I hope these few notes will prove to be of interest to that vast multitude of happy folk in both the visible and invisible audiences who dance to the music of the Savoy Orpheans.

Some Dates for Your Radio Diary.

AN 'American' programme is promised BOURNEMOUTH listeners for Friday, March 18.

A LIGHT programme of orchestral and vocal music under the heading of 'An Irish Concert,' will be given from BIRMINGHAM on Wednesday, March 16.

MANCHESTER Station is celebrating St. Patrick's Day by giving some Irish cameos during the afternoon programme. Mr. Percival Graves will give a talk on Irish wit and humour.

'VOICES,' a light comedy in one act, by Bernard Newman, which was successfully broadcast from Cardiff last August (when many listeners were away on holiday), is to be repeated on Monday, March 21.

Two local concerts, instead of the usual one, will be given from SHEFFIELD next week. The first, on Monday, March 14, is an hour of Chamber Music at 10 p.m.; the other, on Friday, is a variety entertainment and a sketch.

A POPULAR Celebrity Concert will be relayed from the Central Hall, BIRMINGHAM, on Saturday, March 19, the artists being Miss Beatrice Harrison (cello), Miss Vera Gilman (soprano), Mr. Karl Melebe (baritone), and Mr. Appleby Matthews (pianoforte).

MR. ORRY CORJEAG, the Manx violinist and conductor who is to be one of the soloists at the afternoon concert from BOURNEMOUTH on Wednesday, March 16, had the distinction of being the first holder of the Manx Scholarship at the Royal Academy of Music in 1904.

Prose and Verse Competitions.

ON Friday, March 4—the day this paper is published—at 6 p.m., Miss Royde-Smith will broadcast from London and Daventry the second of this new series of competitions. The subject and rules are printed herewith.

The B.B.C. offers a prize of Two Guineas for the best new and original ghost story told in English prose in not more than 300 words of one syllable.

RULES.

(1) All entries must be written on one side of the paper only, and the name and address of the competitor must appear at the top left-hand corner of each page. Where more than one page is used the pages must be numbered and pinned together.

(2) Entries need not be typewritten, but if they are written by hand, neatness and legibility will be taken into account in awarding the prize.

(3) Competitors may, if they choose, use a pseudonym or pen-name. This must be written in block letters at the top left-hand corner of each page of the entry.

(4) Entries must reach the B.B.C. office in envelopes marked in the top left-hand corner 'Prose and Verse Competition,' and addressed to the B.B.C., Savoy Hill, London, W.C.2, on and not before Friday, March 11. All entries must be delivered by noon.

(5) A full report of the competition will be broadcast from London and Daventry at 5 p.m. on Friday, March 18, and the prize-winning entry will appear in The Radio Times for March 25.

(6) Copies of the report will be sent on receipt of 3s. and a stamped addressed envelope.

(7) The Competition Judge's decision will be final, and no correspondence can be entered into respecting the award of any prize.

Ordeal by Microphone.

Words and Fever-Charts by Francis Hackett.

[Many listeners will remember a personal impression of Signor Mussolini which was broadcast recently from the London Studio by Mr. Francis Hackett, the Irish novelist and journalist. This was Mr. Hackett's first appearance before the microphone, and he has written for 'THE RADIO TIMES' a characteristic account of his emotions on that occasion.]

IT is a lonely experience. They are extraordinarily kind to you as they lead you to your cell, but no cheery words disguise the fact that the moment approaches. The Announcers, who broadcast every evening of their lives, are subtly aware that you are self-centred, and they talk to you in easy, matter-of-fact tones. At the microphone, as you enter, is a speaker who makes music of the price of pigs, and whose 'Good night' is a lullaby. He is exquisitely like what you supposed he would be like—tall, pallid, slender. And you are soon to follow him!

In the condemned cell you see gay lights, bright wall-panelling, and pleasant faces.

But above them all, milk-white and ironic, is the face of the clock. The clock says, 'At seven sharp, my good man, you'll begin to spout, and I'll have my eye on you. If you go too slow, I'll prod you. If you go too fast, I'll trip you up. If you stop too soon, I'll open a gulf before you. If you keep on too long, I'll tread on your heels. I am the genius of this place, and don't you forget it. You have trifled with me all your life, but you can't trifle here. You can't make five beginnings, as you do when you write an article. This isn't oil-painting, where you can wipe out your mistakes. This is tempera, this is an etching. Every blur and scratch is going to count. Make no mistakes, and step lively. I am the Angel of Time and I walk behind you with a red-hot poker. Don't stumble. Don't sneeze, or I'll blast you. Remember, SEVEN O'CLOCK!'

YOU sit in the centre of the room, and your head buzzes with common sense. 'Now you are about to speak to several million people, so be perfectly natural. You'll be heard in Woking, in the Isle of Dogs, in the glens of Scotland, among the goats of Connemara, on trains, in boats, in pubs, in rectories. So don't raise your voice. Be simple for the simple, subtle for the subtle, honest and not too painfully honest, serious and not too serious. Someone to whom you owe money will be glad to hear your voice again. Don't be frightened. Breathe up. The doctor will tell you when the operation is over.'

A moment before the fatal hour, the man with the best-known voice in England lightly lays his hand on your shoulder so that, without disturbing you, he may lean forward to say who you are. He is sensitively simple and casual. No more formal than his dinner-jacket, he speaks as naturally to the invisible public as to an old friend. He has imagination, and he can feel the people who are listening to him; what greets him is not a hollow void into which his voice must roll like a pebble into the Grand Canyon, but a peopled attention, a real audience, a Someone.

Then, suddenly, his hand has gone. He has abandoned you. They are waiting for you to speak. You sit there, with the little box-like receiver dangling a yard away from you, and what you are going to say will be heard afar.

In the studio there is perfect silence. You must begin. And for two instants you are struck by a dumb futility. How do you know that anyone is listening? This audience is a blank. It is inanimate. It cannot clap or boo or say 'Hear, hear.' For all you know, everyone has gone away to dinner and you are about to chatter to the void. This thick suspicion is so unbearable that you brace yourself to believe in something totally outside your experience.

IT is like a dive. In the way that a diver must say good-bye to his springboard and launch his body into the air, so must you pass from the sure footing of silence and launch into speech. With a rushing and breathless celerity you give your words to space, and what you are saying flicks by you unrecognized, like telegraph poles from a train window. This is a strange confusion. You know you have actually begun to speak, but what exactly you are expressing, what the words are conveying, is not in your grasp. In the first moments you have more sensations than you can deal with. This plunge is headlong, dizzying, and obliterating. You have broken with the habit of a lifetime, the habit of speaking to a definite auditor, and all you know is that your voice is running on, and on.

It is, in a way, a horrible sensation. You have lost the earth. Whenever before you have spoken in public you have had your victims before you. They looked at you, you looked at them; they coughed if you bored them, and when they fell asleep you could enjoy their peaceful expression. In this new predicament you have no footing. You are out of your depth. You must take the world for granted, you must assume it is interested, you must buoy yourself in confidence.

The word does not exist to describe this experience. It is not torture and it is not pleasure. You lose yourself to find yourself: one of those blessed adventures toward which the psychologists are slowly lumbering with their polysyllables. When I was a child I used to go into the garden to catch a bird by sprinkling salt on its tail. Here I am talking through space, and my father-in-law in Copenhagen is hearing me at the same instant that my sister in Wexford is hearing me. Sweet, bitter, strong, confused, lulling, alarming, this experience of talking to the air.

After the first five minutes what you want to say really takes possession of your mind, and you definitely want to communicate to these invisible listeners exactly what you have felt. As this conviction mounts, the act of speaking becomes more natural and more amusing. You are not courageous enough to look at the clock, which is glaring at you from the right, and you dare not glance away from the microphone lest it should turn its back on you.

THE dive is over, you are no longer gulping the water and gasping, you begin to time your strokes, to find a rhythm, to swim. And as you do this, the futility of your own ideas gradually becomes less apparent, you actually convince yourself that what you are saying is not so idiotic. You breathe again.

Then the pleasure of speaking to invisible listeners begins to gain on you. Can they escape from you? You don't believe it. The disease which attacks all speakers seizes on you—verbal elephantiasis. Your words begin to swell. You feel you have a great deal more to say, and you turn away so that the ugly, sour-faced clock can no longer see you. You try to climb into the microphone.

Several athletic young men loom up at this point and make formidable gestures. You plead. They threaten.

They drag you away.

—F. H., MANCHESTER

"I have recently built one of your famous R.C. THREESOME Sets and am absolutely delighted with it. I have listened to several expensive sets, but none of them come anywhere near the Threesome for clearness and absence of distortion. This is my first attempt at building a set so I am naturally very proud of it."

—E. G. B., BRISTOL

"I have heard some good valve sets, but nothing to touch the Threesome."

—P. E. T., BIRMINGHAM

"The volume obtainable is simply amazing, and for purity of reproduction it cannot be beaten. I have only one complaint to make and it is that you did not bring this set out three years ago."

—A. C. B., HIGHBURY, N.

"... how highly appreciable and pleasure giving your most excellent 'Threesome Circuit Receiver' is, for purity, volume and sweet resonance it is unparalleled. I am speaking from practical knowledge and experience, having tested and made many so-called Wonderful Valve Receivers now on the market." T. C. W., ANOR PARK, E

"For purity and volume I know not its equal, and had it cost me double the price I would have been well satisfied."

—F. H. C., HARLESDEN, N.W.

R.C. Threesome enthusiasts now comprise a large army. ("One man tells another.") The demand for the Instruction Book (with Blue-print) steadily continues; soon nearly a half-million will have been issued, in response to requests.

Great national newspapers have severely tested the merits of the R.C. Threesome and all are unanimous in their praise for its brilliant, mellow tonal qualities . . . its blare-free abundance of volume . . . its irreducible economy in current consumption; and for the Ediswan Quarter-Watt Point One Economy Valves which the Receiver employs.

If you haven't built the R.C. Threesome, you have yet to experience the joy of listening to music and speech as pure and natural as it enters the microphone. It is simple and cheap to construct—you can do it in an evening, and at a cost of £3, or less.

"The results I received were wonderful. The volume was terrific, and every sound was clear. Plymouth came in the clearest I have ever heard."

—E. T. R., PLYMOUTH

"I may say that previous to starting the set I didn't know the difference between a terminal and a condenser, but found your instructions and blue print very easy to follow."

—J. S. E., IRMINGHAM

"... excellent results from the local station—really too good with H.T. and L.T. cut down. D'centry very good full out, and San Sebastian lady announcer and French station good phone strength."

—T. H., FENTON, STAFFS

"I must say for Loud Speaker work it surpasses anything I have tried for quality of tone, musical range of octaves, and freedom from distortion."

—A. C. B., BIRMINGHAM

"I am very pleased indeed with my 'Threesome' and all my friends comment on the purity of the Speaker; since constructing it I have washed my hands of transformer L. F. stages, and I consider the P.V. 2 one of the best valves I have ever tried; in fact I could almost 'pur' at the moment as I listen to the Savoy."

—D.H.S., PAPWORTH OVERARD, CAMBS.

"I have mine working wonders . . . I have never heard better or clearer reception. I have also introduced it to several others that are now enthusiasts after hearing my own at work."

—W.R., WALTHAMSTOW.

"I can briefly express my opinion of the set I have made in these words: 'It takes you into the Studio.' Accept my congratulations for having given the public a set which renders such splendid reception possible at so small a cost and which renders obsolete those sets which annoy one's neighbours."

—E. J. C., SUTTON

"... would like to say how very pleased my friends and myself have been with the results obtained."

Radio the Healer—A Message from Frederick Delius.

'With Healing in Its Wings.'

YOUR readers may care to hear how radio is received in a mental hospital. I was for over a year at Bethlem Royal Hospital, London, with slight delusions due to toxic causes. I shall never forget when the loud speakers were installed there. Ours was a splendid instrument, giving speech and song in a manner as limpid and crystal-clear as a stream. Patients gazed amazed at it as the first sounds came forth, and a deep hush fell around the circle, which included ex-officers, University men, musicians, and writers; every listener was still. A woman sang something in French, indolently, like a blackbird. The song stole through the room, a magic stream of sound, and 'Taffy,' our little Welshman, gazed at the loud speaker with enraptured eyes. Then a speech, easy and sonorous. Next came the New Gallery organ, with deep notes shuddering like a forest of pines in a tempest, and the vox humana singing fit to break hearts. Then the Children's Hour, and a ruddy-faced man near me almost wept, saying: 'To think that we are listening with thousands of sweet young children.' After that came a speech; and I remember that I made a remark which perhaps sums up the whole value of radio to mental hospitals—'We are at last listening with sane people to sane talk by sane people, for sane people.' Wireless certainly speeded up our convalescence. I can assure you that our midday lunch in the great dining hall was the more enjoyable because of the lunch-time music we heard.

And now as I hear Big Ben toll eight, I am carried back in fancy to the spotlessly white beds of Bethlem, where, as the chimes from Westminster pulsate through the silence of the great hospital, the tired patients are lying all safely tucked in their beds.

In conclusion, let me ask those who read these lines not to think 'Bethlem' a terrible place. It is in truth a comfortable home; where good food, rest, fresh air, and a firm kindness, all combine to set many run-down people on their legs again. It was the first to introduce the 'voluntary-boarder' system, which I recommend to any readers suffering unduly from depression or 'fancies.' Those professional musicians who attack and condemn wireless (as coach drivers did our railways a hundred years ago), should certainly 'sign up' as voluntary patients at Bethlem and get sensible again.—RECOVERED, Broadstairs.

The Pronunciation of Place Names.

I SHOULD like to thank in your columns those of your readers who have responded to my request for information concerning the pronunciation of English place-names. It would have given me pleasure to thank each one personally, but this would have been a task beyond my power. I should like also to thank the hundreds of correspondents who have replied to my recent broadcast appeal for similar information. Thanks to the combined contribution of listeners and readers, I have now a valuable list of place-names which may form the nucleus of a valuable work on the subject.—A. LLOYD JAMES (Secretary of B.B.C. Advisory Committee on Spoken English), London Institution, Finsbury Circus, London, E.C.2.

Bridging the Years by Radio.

THE play by Allan Ramsay, The Gentle Shepherd (broadcast recently from the Glasgow Station) was listened to with much appreciation by an aged lady of over eighty years, Mrs. Anderson, of Break-Plough, Stevenston. She declares that she heard this play performed by a group of amateurs over seventy years ago in a barn in New Cumnock. Her husband, who is over seventy, is a keen wireless enthusiast. He had heard his wife refer to The Gentle Shepherd so often that when he knew it was to be broadcast he made sure that his wife should hear it. Mrs. Anderson, who is unwell just now and confined to bed, is usually asleep at 9.30 p.m., but she promised to keep awake on this occasion in order to hear this old play of her childhood. A switch was run from the set to her bed, and she was propped up with the headphones on and listened till 11 p.m. Mr. Anderson told me she had repeated nearly every word of the play, and that it has done her 'the world o' guid, faur better than medicine.'—JOHN S. G. POLSON, Lundholm Road, Stevenston.

From Frederick Delius.

IN my home here in France I greatly enjoyed listening to the concert of my works which was broadcast from the London and Daventry Stations on January 30. Some of the pieces I had not heard for quite a long time, and I was very much pleased with Geoffrey Tovey's sensitive conducting. The violin playing of Sammons came out beautifully. I want also to thank the B.B.C. for the kind words that were spoken to me at the beginning of the concert, and which gave such an intimate touch to the performance. Radio is indeed a marvellous invention, and holds great possibilities for the future.—FREDERICK DELIUS, Grez-sur-Loign, Bourron, France.

Voices That are Better Unheard.

WHEN I read in a recent issue of The Radio Times the letters of several listeners anent the Mournful School of poetry-readers who broadcast occasionally, I was reminded of the old lady's remark to the expressively voluble sailor who had closely followed her to the ground, both having slipped upon the same piece of orange peel: 'Thank you, sir; those words of yours were a great relief to me.' I felt sure that there were others besides myself who had suffered and to whom the doleful poetry reader and the unnatural intonation of many of our clergy were distasteful and unhelpful. I would add what may be called the 'Archibald' voice to the collection as my own particular l'êtes noires.—N. S. CRAWSHAW, Charles Street, Halifax.

An Earlier Weather Forecast.

I SHOULD like to suggest that the 7 p.m. weather forecast be broadcast earlier in the day, at about 3 p.m., or as soon as ever the Daventry and London Stations open each afternoon. The 7 p.m. forecast is based on 13 hr. Greenwich Mean Time observations, and this is generally issued by the Air Ministry at about 3 p.m., so that if it could be broadcast at that time there would be a gain of about four hours. As the changes that take place in this unstable climate of ours are frequently so rapid, the earliest possible dissemination of weather forecasts is a matter of some importance, especially to agriculturists. The forecast might well be repeated at 7 p.m., so that those who are unable to listen at 3 p.m. may hear it then.—F. ERIC LEE, Tetchill, Ellesmere, Shropshire.

HOW DO YOU PRONOUNCE—?

The Advisory Committee on Spoken English will be glad to receive from readers of 'The Radio Times' any words of doubtful pronunciation, in order that the Committee may have the opportunity of discussing at its next meeting the pronunciation to be recommended for use in the Studios of the B.B.C. All communications should be addressed to the Secretary of the Advisory Committee on Spoken English, B.B.C., Savoy Hill, London, W.C.

A Breath of Fresh Air.

[Mr. A. Bonnet Laird, well known to listeners for his nature talks, comments below on some of the many letters he has received.]

Fire Cure for Pigs.

I HAVE often told, here and in my talks, of the queer country legends which every country trumper must come across now and then.

'A. A.' recalls an old couple—small Norfolk farmers—who used, when their pigs were ill, to light a fire and solemnly drive the afflicted animals seven times round it.

'They were good old people, very constant at church; but surely there was some far-off echo of Devil-worship here.'

I remember reading, in a charming little book of old-world memories, of a sturdy West Countryman, gathered to his fathers only a few years back, who could well remember a farmer, hauling grain, who had a load topple over three times at the gate of a field. Confident that an old woman leasing (gleaning) in the field had put the evil eye on his cart, he threatened her with a pitchfork till she agreed to say, 'May God in heaven bless you, and all belonging to you.' Only then did his load pass out safe and sound.

Still, in out-of-the-way corners, many queer old superstitions must survive. I wonder, if you come across them, whether you will send me a note of them?

Mid-Air Mimicry.

Starlings, we all know, are the most imitative of birds, mimicking the songs of many other kinds. I do not recall, though, hearing of their copying other birds' flight.

A Somerset reader (L. C.) recalls, however, watching starlings circling overhead on a calm evening, imitating every motion of a flock of martins, as if they, too, were catching insects in mid-air.

I should like to know if any more of you have noticed this particular trick.

Taps at the Window.

Quite a number of letters lately have told of birds tapping—deliberately, persistently—at the windows of various readers' houses, and I am asked for an explanation.

The latest letter on the subject comes from Surrey, where 'A. E. C.' hospitably providing a bird table during the recent cold spell, had among his visitors a great tit, whose taps on the window have been so regular and determined as to convince him that the bird had a very definite object in view.

Years ago, I read an ancient country legend explaining this; but for the life of me I cannot recall it. Can any listener remind me?

800 Blooms in a Year.

Gardening, as you know, is not my province; but I must pass on the triumphant challenge of A. C., another London listener, who, in her suburban garden, has an evening primrose which has borne 800 blooms this season, and has still, when she wrote, thirty buds to open. 'Have any of your listeners,' she asks, 'had more?'

[A. Bonnet Laird dispatches one of his broadcast books this week to the sender of the most interesting item of Nature news—H. F. Hemmings, Sunnydale, Beesands, Torcross, Kingsbridge, S. Devon.]

The "Pelman Touch"

By ANTHONY SOMERS

MANY years ago, when I was a boy at Plymouth, I found in an old scrap-book a letter from Lord Nelson. It was addressed, if I remember rightly, to a certain Lieut. Somerville, then commanding a sloop off Brest. And it directed the commander of this small vessel to cruise to and fro outside the harbour and to prevent the French fleet coming out.

I do not know what the strength was of the French fleet at Brest at that time, but I vividly recall the emotion with which I read that dispatch, with its audacity, its daring and its supreme self-confidence. The ink was faded. The paper was discoloured with age. But across the years I still felt the thrill of the authentic "Nelson touch" as it has been called—that marked every act and deed of the greatest seaman in our History.

Nelson, of course, was not only daring—he was expert. His Self-Confidence was based upon Knowledge and Conscious Power. I suspect that somewhere behind the Lieutenant's small vessel, invisible but within striking distance, were the frigates and the three-deckers. The great Admiral was no rash and hot-headed incompetent. He knew what he was about. He was decisive because he was Efficient. He planned before he struck. And his victories were artistic masterpieces.

The Adventure of Life

The great adventure and business of Life requires the exercise of the same qualities as those which mark the great commander. The men and women who rise to positions of authority and responsibility in the Professions, in Commerce and in Industry are, in 99 cases out of 100, those who possess Confidence as well as Competence. They Win because they Prepare, and because, when they have prepared, they Act. They pick out the right Opportunity from amidst a throng of Incidents and the convincing Argument from amongst a crowd of specious but weak-kneed Fallacies. They are undaunted by Difficulties. They overcome doubts by an Optimism based upon Reason. They unite Enthusiasm with Efficiency. They display Initiative and Originality when others are mired knee-deep in the rut of Custom and Routine.

These are the men and women who drive through and past all Opposition. They master and control circumstances instead of feebly giving in to events. They win Promotion. They rise to a higher level of Working-Power and Earning-Power. They make the most of Life and of the Opportunities that Life brings. They are successful in the things they undertake and they are happy in their Success. These are the men and women who know what they are about. These are the men and women who possess what I call the "Pelman touch."

Psychology Made Practical

Pelmanism trains your mind just as scientific physical exercise trains your muscles. It places the results of the latest discoveries in Psychology at the service of every reader. It eliminates Nervousness, Fear, Boredom, Lassitude, Forgetfulness, Slackness, Lost Confidence, Weakness of Will and other harmful and depressing moods, tendencies and states of mind. It develops your Brain-Power. It increases your Mental Energy. It strengthens and steels your Will. It gives you Initiative, Forcefulness and Determination. It improves your Memory and enables you to cultivate the art of Concentration. It enables you to take an Optimistic outlook on life. It develops Self-Confidence and Organising Power. It makes your mind keen, alert and resourceful. It doubles your Efficiency. It gives you the Courage to strike out for yourself on new lines. It fits you for Promotion and enables you to earn a higher income.

Remarkable Reports

I have been going through some of the correspondence received by the Pelman Institute from all parts of the world and from men and women engaged in almost every known Profession, Business, Trade and Occupation. Here are a few examples testifying to the remarkable benefits the writers have gained as a result of taking the Pelman Course:—

A Business Man writes: "I have been promoted to the position of General Manager. When I took up the Pelman Course I knew I had the abilities to succeed, but truly you showed me how." (F. 32,210.)

A Doctor writes: "I have changed from an easy-going, take-it-for-granted sort to a man with a purpose and joy of achievement; and I can see that others are observing the change to my gain." (K. 30,108.)

A Telegraphist reports that he has secured an appointment simply and solely through Pelmanism. (H. 26,743.)

A Shorthand-Typist writes: "In the last two months I have had two advances in salary." (M. 24,807.)

A Clerk writes: "Since taking Pelmanism I have been transferred to a more responsible position in the Head Office of the firm." (M. 27,213.)

A Lady Student states that she has passed an examination with great success, and attributes this to the Pelman Course. (F. 21,201.)

An Engineer writes that he has experienced "a general toning-up"—"especially with respect to general alertness and increased power of concentration." (C. 32,480.)

A Manager writes: "While I have been working through the 'Little Grey Books' I have doubled my income." (M. 21,738.)

A Metal Refiner reports that he has increased his Self-Confidence as a result of Pelmanism. (M. 32,797.)

An Assistant Cashier writes: "Since starting your Course my salary has been increased by 50 per cent." (H. 25,351.)

A Clerk writes: "I have obtained a very definite and delightful aim and a super-abundant supply of enthusiasm to carry me through with it." (S. 32,418.)

A Shop-keeper reports the following results from Pelmanism: "Great improvement in Memory, Observation, Attention, Classification of Knowledge, Imagination and Ideas, Concentration, Aim or Purpose, Self-Confidence, Trained Senses, Accuracy, Perception, Will-Power and Effort." (T. 32,244.)

A Pilot writes: "I have greatly developed my conversational abilities and lack of Self-Confidence seems to have totally disappeared. Will Power has been appreciably strengthened." (A. 32,147.)

A Fitter writes: "Since taking up Pelmanism I am able to Concentrate my mind on almost any subject. I am now very Self-Confident, which previously was my very weakest point. It has made a wonderful difference to me since I started to systematise my spare time." (M. 32,100.)

A Shop Assistant writes: "I had an increase last week in my salary and a very good one at that. My sales have trebled and are still 'looking upwards.' It has acted like magic in my case. A few months ago I lacked Self-Confidence, whereas now I feel capable of 'tackling' all comers. To repeat another student's statement: 'Pelmanism was the best investment I ever made.'" (P. 31,238.)

8.55 THE WEEK'S GOOD CAUSE: Queen Mary's Hospital for the East End. Appeal by Sir LEONARD LYLE, M.P.

THIS Hospital is situated in the poorest part of London, and serves a population of two millions. It has the fourth largest Out-Patient Department in the Metropolis, the attendances last year numbering 145,780, and the casualties dealt with in that Department totalled 26,676. Its Maternity Wing is the fourth largest in England. Founded in 1861 as a dispensary, it has since grown into a great General Hospital, and it was incorporated by Royal Charter in 1917. During the last four years three new wings have been erected and paid for at a cost of £120,000. A further new wing which is being built will contain 24 beds for casualties, a new Children's Medical Ward, a Solarium for Sunlight treatment (probably the only one in London), and a very much enlarged X-Ray Department.

TO-DAY'S CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERT.

The Primrose-Krish Trio, who will be heard from London at 3.30. From left to right, Serge Krish (pianoforte), William Primrose (violin), and Manucci (violoncello).

MAURICE COLE (Pianoforte)

THE WIRELESS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA, conducted by PERCY PITT

Movements from Second Orchestral Suite

MOSZKOWSKI, whose graceful music has been so widely played, died a poor man owing to losses brought about through the war.

He was a Pole, born in 1854, who was for long equally popular as Concert Pianist and Composer.

His Second Orchestral Suite (Op. 47) was first heard in this country in 1890; when the Composer conducted it at a Philharmonic concert. It includes a part for the Organ, an instrument, of course, not often available in the concert room. There are altogether six Movements, four of which we are now to hear.

MOSZKOWSKI, on his concert tours, used to play the solo part in this work a good deal. In it he made his first appearance as a Pianist in England, in 1898. Concertos usually have three Movements, but this one has four.

8.55 THE WEEK'S GOOD CAUSE: Appeal on behalf of the Royal Association in Aid of the Deaf and Dumb, by the Rev. W. G. PENNYMAN

THERE is little need to stress the importance of work amongst the deaf and dumb, those unfortunates who are doubly cut off from the ordinary interests of their kind. The Association exists to help and protect them in every way, from the early training of children before their admission into educational institutions to their employment and relief later in life.

The Rev. W. G. Pennyman, who makes the appeal, is Chairman of the Association, with which he came into contact as Vicar of St. Mark's, North Audley Street, as the old church in Oxford Street was in his parish. He has done very valuable work for its objects, and the foundation of the Ladies' Association was due to him.

The address to which donations should be sent is the Royal Association in Aid of the Deaf and Dumb, 413, Oxford Street, London, W.1.

9.15-10.30 BEETHOVEN CENTENARY SERIES

FIFTH CONCERT

THE STATION ORCHESTRA, conducted by
 JOSEPH LEWIS

Overture to 'Fidelio'

BEETHOVEN wrote four Overtures for his solitary Opera, Fidelio. Three of them are known by the name of the heroine, Leonora, and are numbered for identification purposes,
 1, 2, and 3. Only the last of the four is called by the Opera's title. It is simpler and of somewhat smaller scope than the three Leonoras.

The Introduction has two themes, an opening lively one, and a continuing slow, sad one. The quick section returns, and then there is another slow portion.

After this we come to the body of the Overture, which has a First Main Tune built upon the opening phrases of the Introduction.

A gentler Second Main Tune then appears,
 and both these subjects are developed very briefly, and duly recapitulated. Afterwards we have another slow section bringing in again the sad theme of the Introduction, and a triumphant Coda, typifying the happy re-union of husband and wife at the end of the Opera.

NIGEL DALLAWAY (Pianoforte) and Orchestra
 Fifth Concerto ('The Emperor')

'EMPEROR' is a title bestowed on this work, not by Beethoven, but by the rest of the world, as a tribute of admiration for its splendours. It is one of the most spacious utterances of the epic poet in Beethoven. The three great prelude chords at the beginning are like the solemn opening of doors to the temple of sound.

There are three Movements. The First is long and of heroic cast in its tunes and in its fine rhetorical periods. The Second is quiet and suggestive of things celestial. The Third is an expression of joy, with many buoyant tunes and rhythms.

Selections from the Incidental Music to 'Egmont',
 Op. 84

BEETHOVEN'S fine Overture to Goethe's drama, Egmont, is often played, the incidental pieces less frequently. These consist of four entr'actes, two songs, and three other portions, entitled respectively Clärchen's Death,

Melita (His Daughter, a Girl of Eighteen)

St. David (The Missionary Saint of Wales)

RICHARD BARRON
 HOPE KEER
 PERCIVAL THOMPSON

THE interior of a lonely hut in a wild forest.
 Maldwyn has been treacherously overthrown by his enemies. He is badly wounded, but has managed to escape to this secret hiding place where he is awaiting succour. His sole companion in his flight is his daughter Melita.
 When the play opens Maldwyn is alone in the hut, and is lying upon a rough couch of bracken and skins. Melita has gone to find food. Maldwyn is expecting her return; and—though in considerable pain from his wound—is chanting slowly to himself in the gathering dusk.

2.55 Reading, 'Sailing Alone Round the World'
(Captain Slocum)

3.0 Mr. GRANVILLE SQUIERS: 'The Mangrove Swamps of the Rufiji Delta'

ON the swampy coast of Tanganyika Territory, where the Rufiji flows into the Indian Ocean, some hundred miles south of Zanzibar, Asia and Africa seem to meet. For centuries the dhows of the Arab slavers came here to collect their sinister cargo, and the sailing ships of India came to trade. Mr. Squiers, who knows East Africa as a settler, soldier, hunter and trader, will tell of the adventures that befall the traveller in the Delta, the river and the sea around it—and they are plentiful enough, even in these law-abiding days.

3.45 Musical Interlude

4.0 THE ROYAL AUTOMOBILE CLUB DANCE BAND from the R.A.C.

(Time Signal from Greenwich)

4.15 Prof. G. ELLIOT SMITH: 'The Movements of Living Creatures'

TWO-DAY Professor Elliot Smith will talk about the way in which animals use senses other than sight to find their way about, for many animals, such as dogs, depend more upon smell than upon sight for recognizing people, places and food. He will discuss, too, the competition, at an early stage of evolution, between sight and smell as the chief means of guidance, which ended, of course, in the case of man in the triumph of vision as our chief means of knowing the world in which we live.

5.0 Household Talk: 'Housekeeping in the West Indies,' by Miss E. M. HEWITT

THIS series of talks on housekeeping in foreign parts should be of great interest to everybody who runs a house—or pays the household bills. Domestic arrangements in the West Indies are, obviously, very different from anything most of us are used to, and Miss Hewitt will tell of some curious customs and some strange recipes.

friend quietly shares with another who understands him.

This week's selection from Bach is designed to show him, for the most part, in his most affable moods.

The title of to-night's work is a little unusual. Bach used the general title 'Overture' (as the BBROADCASTING has given us so many opportunities of hearing Bach's music that there is happily now no need to stress the truth that Bach is one of the merriest-hearted of all Composers. His mirth can be gay and sparkling, or of that more quiet and intimate kind that a custom then was) for a set of dance-like Movements preceded by a Prelude in the French style (this movement comprising a slow introduction, a lively fugal section, and a repetition of the slow portion). Here he writes such a set of pieces, not for the Orchestra, but for the keyboard (the Harpsichord, in his day—preferably, for this work, one with two rows of keys), and he shows that he is conceiving the whole in the style of an Orchestral 'Overture' by putting in more numerous and more varied Movements than those contained in the normal keyboard Suite. He does not, of course, try to imitate Orchestral style.

FROM THE NOSE TO THE BRAIN.

The Movements of the 'Overture' which we are to hear are four in number—the Prelude proper, a Gavotte, two Passepieds (originally a lively old French, possibly Breton, round dance), and the dainty little concluding piece of the set, called Echo.

7.25 Mr. W. F. BLETCHER: Spanish Talk. S.B. from Manchester

7.45 REQUEST PROGRAMME OF FOX-TROTS Played by THE LONDON RADIO DANCE BAND, directed by SIDNEY FIRMAN
With SIDNEY NESBITT

TTANGOS and Bostons, Blues and Charlestons come and go, but the fox-trot remains, always the backbone of every dance-band's programme. The more it changes, the more it remains the same. Fox-trot fans will to-night hear some of their favourite melodies perfectly rendered by one of London's most expert dance bands.

Polovtsian Dances from 'Prince Igor' Borodin

THE Opera, Prince Igor, glitters with Oriental colour and military splendour. It is a story drawn from Russian history, of the struggles of a Russian Prince with a wandering tribe of Eastern raiders, and of the loves of the Prince and his son.

The Dances now to be heard occur in the Second Act, when Igor, a prisoner in the camp of a nomad tribe, the 'Polovtsy,' is, as a tribute to his courage, invited to be present at a Festival.

- 7.0 Prof. P. J. NOEL BAKER, 'The Olympic Games'

LISTENERS will remember Professor Baker as the giver of an exceptionally interesting series of talks on foreign affairs, but there is another topic on which he is specially qualified to speak. He was President of the Athletic Club at Cambridge, and won the Half-Mile three years in succession in the Varsity Sports. In 1920 and 1924 he captained the British team in the Olympic Games at Antwerp and Paris. In to-night's talk he will discuss what preparations can be made for next year's contest, and how much chance there is of the British team's doing any better than it has done of recent years, and not being so heavily overwhelmed by the Scandinavian countries and the United States.

- 7.15 BACH
Some of his Jolliest Keyboard Music
Played by JAMES CHING
Partita in B Flat Major

IN the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries German town bands used to play dance tunes in sets, such a set being called a 'Partie,' and 'Partita' is the Italian form of the word. Composers for the Keyboard took this name for their suites of pieces in dance styles. The four cornerstone dances of the suite were (in the order of their appearance in the set) the Allemande, Courante, Sarabande, and Gigue. The Allemande (the word shows that this was originally a native German dance) flows along with continuous, easy, graceful swing. The Courante, as may be gathered from its name, is in 'running' style with continuous, lively, six-notes-to-a-bar movement. The Sarabande was the slow dance of the set, and the Gigue the liveliest of all.

Other Movements could be added to these four. In this First Partita, for instance, we have altogether six, standing thus: Prelude, Allemande, Courante, Sarabande, two Minuets, and the Gigue.

- 7.25 Mr. EDWARD CRESSY, 'The Growth of Industry—The Iron Trade.' S.B. from Manchester

IN the first of this series of talks, last week, Mr. Cressy described the rise of the textile industry. To-day he goes on to the iron trade, which again is, in its large-scale form, a product of the nineteenth century. It was with the discovery of steam power that the manufacture of iron in enormous quantities became necessary, in order to supply machinery to all the new factories that were springing up all over England, and, from being a local industry of secondary importance, the iron trade took its place amongst the leading industries of the country.

PRUDENTIAL BONUS INCREASED

The Directors of The Prudential Assurance Company Ltd. have declared, in respect of the year 1926, an increased Reversionary Bonus payable on all participating Policies in the Ordinary (Life) Branch of the Company. The new rate of Bonus is

£2-4-0
PER CENT.

This represents an addition of £22 to the amount of every £1,000 (with profit) Prudential life policy.

To young men who assure their lives before age 28, this represents more than the amount of the annual premium for a whole life with-profit policy. Or, put in another way, the representatives of the man who assures in the Prudential before age 28 will, assuming this rate of bonus be maintained, receive £1,000 in addition to the amount paid by way of premium.

- AGAINST a background of blue lake and snowy Alps is told this story of the love of a monk for a nun. He was once a hunter and a maker of songs. She was the daughter of a count, who came to take her vows reluctantly and in tears.
- In the first two songs the monk tells of his discontent and of her coming. He then sings about their love and their poor little stolen greetings; rose-leaves carried by the wind, a glance in church, her voice singing under the lindens. Then, the secret discovered, in the ninth song, the Abbot condemns him and bids him bury his songs in the forest.

A CONCERT BY THE UNIVERSITY OF SHEFFIELD MUSICAL SOCIETY

Relayed to London and Daventry Arranged and Conducted by Mr. G. E. LINFOOT (Lecturer in Music in the University) Relayed from the University

Serenade for String Orchestra, 'Eine Kleine Nachtmusik' Mozart

AN Orchestral 'Serenade' in Mozart's day was a collection of light pieces such as might be played at intervals in an evening's entertainment. This favourite Serenade of Mozart consists of four delightful little pieces—a kind of miniature Symphony, but light as air and fragrant as the summer evenings for which such music was written.

The FIRST of its four pieces is a lively, dainty one.

The SECOND is a thoughtful Romance.

The THIRD is a rhythmical Minuet and Trio.

The FINALE is a wing-footed Rondo.

Two Numbers from Part I of 'Semele' Handel Chorus: 'Lucky Omens'

Air and Chorus, 'Endless Pleasure, Endless Love' (Soloist: Miss IDA BLOOR)

THE libretto of Semele, by Congreve, had been prepared for an Opera, but Handel wrote the music for concert performance, and the work was produced just over a hundred and eighty years ago, at Covent Garden. Lately, it has been revived in Operatic form, both in Germany and England—notably at Cambridge, by members of the university.

The Chorus 'Lucky Omens,' is the first Chorus in the work. Priests in the Temple of Juno are celebrating a sacrifice to the goddess in honour of the betrothal of Semele and Athamas. The other extract concludes the First Part of the work.

Scherzo from String Sextet in B Flat Brahms Part Songs John Dowland

Awake, Sweet Love; Say, Love, If Ever Thou Did'st Find

Two Melodies for String Orchestra Grieg

IN his later years Grieg composed little, but he occupied himself in arranging some of his piano pieces and songs for Orchestra.

The two pieces we are now to hear are songs, thus re-presented. Their titles are Love Sickness and Last Spring. Both are in a mood of sadness, as of one recollecting with a sigh the days that are no more.

Air and Chorus: 'Or let the merry bells' (L'Allegro) Air and Chorus: 'Haste thee, nymph' Handel

(Soloist, Miss IDA BLOOR)

WHEN Handel wanted to make a choral work out of Milton's two great poems in praise of Jollity and Meditation, L'Allegro and Il Penseroso, he seems to have applied for help to a would-be literary man, one Jennens. This Jennens was responsible for the libretto of

You will want to hear the jovial Kenyon this week, so make a note of these dates:—

Monday, Belfast; Tuesday, Cardiff; Wednesday, Glasgow; Thursday, Manchester; Friday, Birmingham; Saturday, London.

Messiah, and that must be regarded as his recommendation to mercy. Otherwise, one might be tempted to use harsh words about him, for he cut L'Allegro and Il Penseroso ruthlessly, and, instead of using them as two whole poems, he took bits of one and sandwiched them with bits of the other. He even managed to get in a bit of his own versification, winding up the work with Il Moderato in praise of moderation.

Still, even when Jennens had done his worst, there was enough left of Milton's inspired verse to incite Handel to write some fine music.

The first of the extracts we are to hear, 'Or let the merry bells ring round,' with the following Chorus,

Young and old come forth to play On a sunshine holiday, is taken from the end of Part I. It contains some of the best and most typically happy lines of L'Allegro.

The other Air and Chorus have lines of Milton that are often quoted—

Haste thee, Nymph, and bring with thee Jest and youthful jollity;

Quips and cranks and wanton wiles,

Nods and becks and wreathed smiles,

2LO LONDON. 361.4 M.

(1.0 Time Signal, Big Ben.)

1.0-2.0 CAMILLE COUTURIER'S ORCHESTRA from Restaurant Frascati

2.55 Reading: 'Pickwick Papers'

3.0 Mr. A. LLOYD JAMES, 'Our Native Tongue'

3.20 Mr. J. C. STOBART and Miss MARY SOMERVILLE, 'Some Books Worth Reading: "Sailing Alone Round the World"'

IN the spring of 1895 Captain Joshua Slocum set sail from Boston, U.S.A., in a thirty-six-foot boat built, or at least entirely rebuilt, by himself. Rather more than three years later he tied up at Newport, after a voyage of 46,000 miles, by way of Gibraltar, the Horn (for crossing the Atlantic twice was nothing in his way), Samoa, where he met R. L. Stevenson, the Cape (where he broke his journey to visit Kruger), and St. Helena, and after many adventures with Moorish pirates, Fuegian savages, and storms. These he recounts simply, in a terse, humorous Yankee style, in the book (published by Messrs. Sampson Low) from which Mr. Stobart and Miss Somerville will read to-day.

3.45 Mrs. K. WADHOPE MACIVER, 'Citizenship in Practice—National Housekeeping'

IN the first talk in her series, last week, Mrs. MacIver explained what 'Economics' is, and how it affects us in our ordinary lives. To-day she will investigate where the rates and taxes go, and what benefits and services are given in return for the public money. She will illustrate the difference between wise and wasteful expenditure, and show the parallel between housekeeping for the nation and housekeeping for the family and the function of Economics in either case.

7.0 A Talk on International Affairs by Mr. WICKHAM STEED

FEW publicists have had such opportunities of following the under-currents of the world politics of our time as Mr. Wickham Steed. After being foreign correspondent to The Times in Berlin, Rome, and Vienna, he was its foreign editor throughout the war, and editor from 1919 to 1922. Since 1923 he has been editor and proprietor of the Review of Reviews. Within the last few months he has completed a tour of Central Europe, investigating the movements of opinion amongst the nations.

7.15 BACH
Some of his Jolliest Keyboard Music
Played by JAMES CHING
Toccatina and Fugue in C Minor
Fantasia in C Minor

THE Toccatina and Fugue fall into sections, as follows:—

(a) A short, quick, rushing movement of the brilliant Toccatina style, but with bits of imitation—one part starting a motif and another catching up the idea.

(b) A four-voice 'woven' Adagio, a sermon on a text given out in the treble of the first two bars, and afterwards taken up by the other voices.

(c) A fairly quick three-voice Fugue upon a rhythmic, dancing subject. After a time, a few bars reminiscent of the style of the opening movement intervene, and then the Fugue begins again, now, however, become a double Fugue, for the old subject is given out with a new one as companion, and the two run in double harness henceforth (a good long henceforth it is, too), closed finally by a few effective bars in the character of the opening section.

THE MAN AT THE MANUALS.

Every listener who has enjoyed Mr. Foort's organ-playing, relayed from the New Gallery Kinema in Regent Street, will be interested to see this unusual picture of him actually playing. One of his recitals will be broadcast from London to-day at 6.0.

The Fantasia is influenced by the bold harpsichord style of Bach's contemporary, Domenico Scarlatti, a player-composer who used a good deal of hand-crossing to obtain his effects.

Bach began a Fugue to follow the Fantasia, but never completed it.

7.25 Principal C. GRANT ROBERTSON, 'Empire Builders—Marlborough.' S.B. from Birmingham

THERE are not many figures in the list of those who helped, consciously or unconsciously, to build up the British Empire, so unattractive as the one that the Principal of Birmingham University has chosen for the second of his series of talks. Cold, proud, selfish, and undeniably avaricious, Marlborough had few friends in his lifetime and has found few among historians. Yet it was his genius, both as a general and as a statesman, that broke the menace of a complete French predominance in the Europe of his time—a time when the foundations of modern history were being laid.

'PEER GYNT'

(Relayed from Liverpool, Wednesday, March 9)

HENRIK IBSEN.

THERE are many plays that can quite possibly be broadcast in the performance or which broadcasting is avowedly offering a second-best for those who live outside the range of the theatres. Peer Gynt is not one of these. Admittedly a masterpiece, one of the most important works of a dramatist whose influence on the modern stage it is difficult to over-estimate, it is a play that the most assiduous theatre-goer may never see on the stage. It was first published in 1867, and produced in Christiania, with the incidental music by Grieg that will be heard to-night, in 1876. Paris saw it twenty years later, and it was as long again before the first English version was produced by Richard Mansfield at Chicago (1906). Whilst most of Ibsen's works—Ghosts, A Doll's House, The Wild Duck, and the rest—have passed into the repertoire of the intellectual theatre, and can be seen periodically in every city where the theatre thrives, Peer Gynt is a theatrical rarity—almost a curiosity. It was produced at the Old Vic, London's most adventurous permanent theatre, in March, 1922, with Mr. Russell Thorndike playing the title-rôle, and such prominent actors as Mr. Andrew Leigh and Mr. Hay Petrie in the cast. On that occasion

The Wedding-feast at Hegstad.

Mr. Robert Atkins was the producer. The Oxford University Dramatic Society gave it for a week in 1925, with Mr. Reginald Denham as producer, and two of the impressive settings that they used are reproduced on this page. But in general Peer Gynt is outside the scope of the ordinary theatre, and broadcasting is doing a service to the drama in giving it twice—as it has done—within a year.

Henrik Ibsen (1828-1906) stands out amongst the great figures in the aesthetic and intellectual history of the nineteenth century. Not merely is he himself the author of plays, both prose and verse, that will always rank as masterpieces, but unlike many great and original minds, he had a profound influence on his contemporaries—and on his successors, for to take only one instance, where can one find a more ardent and practising Ibsenite than George Bernard Shaw?

The first part of Ibsen's career, which was marked by a constant and depressing struggle with poverty, produced such great dramatic poems as The Pretenders, Brand, and Peer Gynt. The two latter began his controversial career. In both he attacked the slack, shallow, tepid quality of Norwegian national life in his time; in Brand the central figure was the man of God who was rejected by his unworthy nation; in Peer Gynt it is Peer himself, the braggart and drunkard, reeling in and out of strange, fantastic adventures without profit to body or soul. Then, too, just before a 'poet's pension' from his country ended his material struggle, he published The League of Youth—the first of those satirical prose comedies by which he is best known to-day in the commercial theatres of the world.

After The League of Youth came his last historical play, Emperor and Galilean; and then came the stream of fierce onslaughts on the meanness and cruelty, the stupidity and hypocrisy of Demos—the soulless majority, the mass of respectable mediocrity that goes to make up Society, as Ibsen saw it then. Pillars of Society, A Doll's House, Ghosts—Ibsen was the storm-centre of intellectual Europe. Towards the end of his career his bent changed again, and Hedda Gabler and The Master-Builders recall the mysticism of an earlier phase. Ibsen had passed out of the storm into the calm beyond; all Europe recognized his attainment, and ever since the majorities that he scourged have been gradually swelling the public for his plays.

Peer Gynt itself is one of those vast and varied, rich and abundant works that defy definition and almost elude description. It is founded on folk-tale and full of satire against the world—and especially the Norway—of Ibsen's own day; it is polemical, propagandist and symbolical, and yet it is designed to be enjoyed as a story apart from all else. It is comic to the verge of the grotesque and beyond, and yet it is moving, in the way of great art. Ibsen was a genius, and he put so much of his genius into Peer Gynt that ever since its first appearance critics of the eminence of William Archer and Georg Brandes have been getting different things out of it. The philosopher can see in it Ibsen's criticism of life on a wider scale than is to be found in his more openly controversial plays; the uninitiated can enjoy it as a picaresque romance. Beyond that there is little that can usefully be said of it, from the point of view of listeners to to-night's broadcast. The only sound advice is to take it as it is: great literature, great drama, fine satire.

A Welsh Miners' Night

Arranged by HYWEL PRECELLY

'This was my native land, the mother queen
 Who suckled me, and fairer there is none,
 She's wronged no soul—her history is clean;
 Her language is the sweetest 'neath the sun—
 Dear Wales is loved and worshipped by her every son.' (Huw Menai)

IT is not generally known that a quarter of a million men are employed in the Coal Mining Industry of Wales, and that, in normal times, the annual output exceeds fifty million tons.
 Out of every ton of coal produced in the world,
 one hundredweight represents the contribution from Wales—a contribution which has been described by Mr. Lloyd George as 'the life blood of the nation.' Welsh miners are famous for their musical qualities, and they invariably sing at their work. In to-night's programme will be found the most popular of their songs, whilst an occasional background will be provided by the noises of the pits.

DAI AND IANTO AT WORK

In the 2ft. 9in. Seam

YNYSWEN, a typical Welsh mining village in the heart of the Rhondda Valley, with its long rows of dwelling-houses closely hugging the mountain side. It was at one time one of Nature's beauty spots, but the hand of toil and industry has altered its appearance. In the valley below runs the River Taff, alongside of which nestles Penlan Colliery, with its tall scaffolding and winding machinery standing out conspicuously. Near at hand, like a long, straggling pyramid, stands the tip, which at any moment threatens to overwhelm the several houses and school at its foot.

Dai and Ianto are Welsh colliers, who have worked at Penlan since their early boyhood days. Dai is aged about fifty, and Ianto is in the early twenties. They are both of medium height but of slight build, with very pronounced Celtic features—their faces and hands bear the honoured blue coal marks of their calling. We will follow them in a few moments of their day's 'shift.'

WHIRLWIND

NOT Electric.

Consumes nothing but dirt

THE fact that most of the leading Stores, Ironmongers and Furnishing Houses throughout the country stock 'WHIRLWIND'S' and 'WHIRLWIND'S' only is convincing evidence of the efficiency of this machine over all others.

There's no dust in the house that has a 'WHIRLWIND.' No dust on, in or beneath the carpets: no dust to settle on the furniture.

Simple easy wheeling over all the carpets in the house, a few minutes' enjoyment in each room and every speck of dust is sucked up into the dust-proof bag.

Simple, Efficient, Reliable

Truly BRITISH manufacture throughout, strongly and beautifully made with absolutely nothing to go wrong—that's the 'WHIRLWIND.'

7.15 BACH

Some of His Jolliest Keyboard Music
Played by JAMES CHING
Italian Concerto

THIS important piece dates from 1735, when its composer was fifty years of age. It represents him, then, in his maturity.

This so-called Concerto is an attempt to apply to one instrument the principles of alternation and of contrast observed in the writing of music for a solo instrument or group of instruments used with some form of orchestra. It is in spirit a Concerto, but it is a one-man Concerto. The instrument for which it was intended was a double-keyboard Harpsichord, in which contrasts of tone unavailable in the single-keyboard form could be taken into account by the composer. Bach's use of the one keyboard or the other is indicated by the words forte (loud) and piano (soft), and sometimes one direction is applied to the right hand part and the other to the left, so prescribing an effect which would have been impossible upon a single keyboard Harpsichord, but is possible on the modern pianoforte.

There are three Movements:—

I The Movement is a charmingly flowing one. It will easily be realised in what way the player's performance on a one-keyboard pianoforte imitates the original manner performance on a two-keyboard Harpsichord, which, in its turn, imitated the playing of an orchestra divided into a small group of instruments contrasted with a large group.

II This is really, in effect, a violin tune with keyboard accompaniment, and in the original edition the melody is throughout given to one keyboard and the accompaniment to another.

III A very happy, well worked-out movement, which, typically Bachian as it is in its counterpoint, nevertheless, in its clear use of expert and the author of many books on birds and beasts. To-day he will introduce the subject generally, discussing the question whether the coloration of animals serves any useful purpose, and if so, whether we can see any evidence of this in our own countryside.

A MASTER OF CAMOUFLAGE.

Seeing him in the Zoo, one would think that the giraffe would be visible miles off in any surroundings. Yet, notice above how the shadow of the leaves blends with the markings of the giraffe on the left, and how like the trunk of a tree the neck of the right-hand one looks. These are instances of the 'natural camouflage' of which Mr. Pycraft will talk to-night [London 7.25].

extended subjects, and in its plain, diatonic harmony, looks forward a little perhaps towards the coming Sonata style of Haydn.

7.25 Mr. W. H. PYCRAFT, 'Nature's Camouflage—The Coloration of Animals: Introductory'

MOST of us remember, from the natural history that we learnt as children, fascinating scraps of information about how the chameleon assumes the colour of its surroundings, the tiger's stripes make him invisible in the shadows of the jungle, and so on. Mr. Pycraft, who is Assistant Keeper in the Natural History Museum, will talk about such matters with all the authority of an

to Wearers

Post free in British Isles.
Extra abroad.

A careful comparison with other Coats will prove that style and quality to equal the "KELVINGTON" standard cannot ordinarily be bought for less than 57/6. The reduced price of the "KELVINGTON," showing a value-advantage to the buyer of, roughly, 22/6, is made possible by the changed Policy of selling Direct to the Public only, with a corresponding lessening of selling costs.

SENT ON 7 DAYS' FREE APPROVAL
To order a "KELVINGTON": send chest measurement over waistcoat, full height, and remittance for 35/- with your name & address, clearly written, to: PEARSON Bros., 45 Conduit St. London, W. 1. If you are not thoroughly satisfied with the "KELVINGTON" and return it within 7 days of receipt, Pearson Bros. hereby undertake to refund the full price paid.

BOOKLET AND PATTERN POST FREE
You can inspect and try on the "KELVINGTON" in the "Mattamac" Showrooms at London and Birmingham, or you can safely send your order by post, under the 7 days' free approval plan. If preferred, however, we will send you the Booklet, order form and a sample of "KELVINGTON" fabric first. Write for the "KELVINGTON Booklet F206"

'THE APOSTLES' by Sir Edward Elgar (March 10)

The Oratorio.

ELGAR'S desire to write an Oratorio treating of the calling, teaching and mission of the Apostles, goes back to his very schooldays. But he was well over forty before he actually wrote the work, and it was his third Oratorio. It was produced the year that it was finished (1903), at the Birmingham Festival.

The Apostles tells of Christ's life, from His first intimate association with those who were His closest followers, until the Ascension.

The words are Scriptural. The Gospel story has continuously woven into it commentary made of material from both Old and New Testaments.

A programme of the various Solos, Choruses, etc., in the work is appended.

Partita in G

SOMETHING was said about the Partitas on Tuesday. This one (the Fifth) consists of the following Movements:—

I PRÉAMBULE. The title is unusual with Bach, and the style is not that common in the preludes to his Suites, being light and fanciful.

II ALLEMANDE. A piece of serious and interestingly-worked counterpoint, mostly in two voices, but sometimes in three.

III COURANTE. There are two types of Courante, the French and Italian; this is of the latter type—rapid, clear and flowing.

IV SARABANDE. Lighter-minded than most of Bach's Sarabandes.

V TEMPO DI MENUETTO. Not a Minuet for dancing—the cross rhythms (two beats in right hand against three in the left) make this clear.

V PASSEPIED. A delicate little thing.

VI GIGUE. One of the most mature in style of all the Movements of this Partita. The very distinctive and rhythmically strong Subject, given out at the opening and taken up by three 'Voices,' fugue-wise, supplies material for the first half of the piece.

In the second half another Subject is similarly introduced and similarly taken up. Then, after a time, the first Subject appears again, in ingenious combination with the second.

7.25 Prof. H. B. CHARLTON, 'Poetry and the Plain Man'—I. S.B. from Manchester

9.30-11.0 MY PROGRAMME

by

CAPTAIN HARRY GRAHAM

CAPTAIN HARRY GRAHAM has already figured in the series of 'Modern Humorists,' when he read some verses from his latest book, 'Strained Relations.' Most listeners, however, will have been already familiar with his characteristic humour in one or other of its manifestations, for, besides his books, he was part author of such well-known plays as Madame Pompadour and Katja the Dancer, and lyricist of Betty in Mayfair, The Maid of the Mountains and The Lady of the Rose. Captain Graham's programme for to-night is, as is customary with 'My Programmes,' veiled in mystery, but we print below his own reply to our demand for enlightenment.

You ask me to give you some idea of the lines upon which my Programme for March 11 is to be drawn up. I confess that the matter is causing me many sleepless days of earnest thought. It would be easy enough to design something that would be appreciated by the High-brow intelligentsia—something with a dash of Proust, Holst, Scriabin, Miss Sitwell and Marinetti. Again, it would not be impossible to devise an ideal programme suitable for the groundlings, in which memories of the earliest excesses of our more red-nosed comedians would predominate. It will be my object, however, to avoid these two extremes, to steer a middle course and try to provide something that shall be acceptable to the normal medium-browed Englishman (like myself). And, since I am only human (though you may not have noticed this), it is quite natural for me to feel that the perfect programme must be one which consists almost exclusively of my own works. I shall enjoy it, anyhow, and after all, I take it, this is the most important thing.'

A WISE man once said that of the making of books there is no end. If that was true in Solomon's day, how much more is it true in these latter days, when the bookstalls groan under the weight of new books and magazines of all kinds? It is to help us to discover the best things in the flood of weeklies and monthlies and quarterlies that Mr. J. W. Robertson Scott, himself a famous veteran journalist, comes to the microphone and rapidly surveys some of the leading periodicals that have issued from the press during the past month.

7.15 BACH

Some of his Jolliest Keyboard Music
Interpreted by JAMES CHING

Sixth French Suite

BACH'S Suites are much like his Partitas in general style. The 'French' Suites (the name was not given to them by the Composer) are written in the light style that the French then favoured in their music; the dances are all short, and in general alighter than those in the Partitas and 'English' Suites.

The Sixth French Suite has eight Movements, as follows:—

ALLEMANDE. (Moderately quick.) The right and left hand open with a semiquaver tune and a quaver tune respectively, and out of these two the piece develops—in two voices throughout.

COURANTE. The Italian type of Courante—continuously 'running' throughout.

SARABANDE. (Fairly slow and sustained.) The two very expressive little motifs given out by right hand (bar 1) and left hand (bar 2), briefly developed, make up the whole thing.

GAVOTTE. (Pretty lively.) Gay, but courtly. In three voices throughout.

POLONAISE. (Fairly quick and graceful.) Two voices only—the upper one with a tune and the lower one with a steady accompaniment.

BOURRÉE. (Lively.) A simple dance in two voices.

MENUET. (At a moderate speed.) Light and innocent-minded, and quite short.

GIGUE. (Very quick.) The downward arpeggio motif, which supplies material for the first part, becomes an upward arpeggio motif in the second part.

My Sweet Sweeting Keel

Sweet Nymph, Come to Thy Lover

Morley, arr Keel

PURCELL'S song comes from a play by Shadwell, The Libertine, one of many for which he wrote incidental music. The words are a jolly invitation to lads and lasses to come away to sport and play, 'for this is Flora's holiday.'

FREDERICK KEEL is a well-known arranger of old songs and Composer of new ones, many of which have something of the spirit of the Elizabethan age.

THE last song was, in its original form, a duet for two Sopranos. Its gay invitation runs:—

Sweet nymph, come to thy lover,
Lo, here alone our loves we may discover,
Where the sweet nightingale with wanton glosses,
Hark, her love too discloses.

JOSEPH SLATER

Sonata in F Handel

Adagio Quantz

THE Flute was held in greater respect during Handel's days than it is now, when it seldom emerges from the Orchestra except for the playing of show-pieces or bird-music. Some of the most refined and dignified Concerted works of the eighteenth century were composed for groups of players in which the Flautist was a partner, and Sonatas were also written for the instrument. 'Sonata' in those days had not the meaning it took on later, when Haydn built up the form into a homogeneous whole. In Handel's time alternating slow and quick Movements, one or more of them in dance rhythms, made up the Sonata.

Quantz was a celebrated Flute player of the eighteenth century who began as an Oboeist. He taught Frederick the Great to play the flute, and the Emperor made him Court Composer.

SCHUBERT'S power of evoking a mood in a few bars of music is brought out time and again in his songs. Such a song as The Organ Man, for instance, is one of those subtle tone-pictures in which he makes us see a picture as vividly as he must have done when he was writing the music.
We stand with the poet, and watch the poor old hurdy-gurdy man, patiently turning the handle, rain or shine. 'Let us go together, you and I,' impetuously cries the poet. 'I will make the songs and you shall play them.'
In My Dwelling Place is no repose for the mind. We share the sadness of the speaker, who cries 'Wearying stream, restless wood, chill rock—all these are my home, and all are witness of my woes.'
- 5.15 THE CHILDREN'S HOUR: Spring Flowers: 'The Violet' (Kreuz), sung by Harry Hopewell. 'Narcissus' (Nevin), played by Eric Fogg. 'The Shepherd's Purse' and 'Jack-in-the-Hedge,' poems by Eleanor Farjeon

The "telepathy test" succeeded!

—in introducing to you the new "ARPAK" Cards.

Unknown to anyone associated with their manufacture, two standard "ARPAK" Cards were shown to the "imprisoned" agents who transmitted thought waves to the world. You may not have been able to see them telepathically, but now you can handle and use them actually. Every card player should have a pack of "ARPAK" Cards. All pips and court cards are printed on a BLACK background—restful to the eyes and unsoilable—with distinctive colours for each suit, making revoking impossible.

Broadcasting Today's Football.

To-day—Saturday, March 12—a Rugby League match will be broadcast for the first time, when Manchester transmits a running commentary on a League Cup-Tie. Plymouth listeners, too, should use this plan when following the match between Plymouth Albion and Bart's.

The Grand-stand at the Fireside.

IF you had been in the North Country on the day the Cup-Tie match between Newcastle United and the Corinthians was broadcast from the Crystal Palace, you would have found that the possession of a wireless set made you an extremely popular member of the community. Quite a number of old friends paid me a visit on the morning to see if there was room for another listener. The aerial on the roof seemed to act like a magnet.

The first visitors arrived right after lunch, by two-thirty the party was complete. The valves glowed faintly, and the loud speaker thrust its gaping mouth into the circle by the fireside.

Then, suddenly the voice of the London Announcer came through. A few preliminary remarks, then the roar of the crowd.

The room was forgotten. In spirit every one of us was standing on the terraces of that great arena.

A roar—'The teams are coming out,' said the Voice. A pause; then, 'The Captains are tossing up. Newcastle has won the toss.'

A sigh of relief comes from the circle. 'They are kicking towards the south end of the ground—the left on your plan.' A glance at The Radio Times diagram pinned to the mantelpiece, and we readily visualize the position of the teams.

Then came the opening incidents of the match. 'Gallacher has got the ball. He is going to shoot. Baker has saved!' and in the background a voice says, 'Square three,' or 'Square five,' and we closely follow the progress of the game from one end of the field to the other.

Half-time. The spell is broken. Agitatedly we discuss the situation.

'The teams are coming out.' Once more we are back on the Sydenham slopes. Time and again our hopes rise, only to be dashed to the ground.

Time passes. 'Corinthians, one; Newcastle, none,' says the Voice. 'Newcastle are pressing strongly. The Corinthians have cleared. Twenty minutes to go!—United are attacking. Free kick for Newcastle. The kick is being taken. The ball has hit a defender—yes—it's in the net!' and a roar from the circle by the fireside drowns the loud speaker. 'Corinthians, one; Newcastle, one.'

'Ten minutes to go. The Corinthians are striving to hold off Newcastle.' Then the Voice and the roar of the crowd simultaneously proclaim another goal. 'Newcastle, two; Corinthians, one!'

Another goal for Newcastle and the game is over. The Voice ceases and a happy party rises from the fireside. I think we shall have to take the Village Hall for the Cup Final.

W. D. SMITH.

This afternoon's broadcast Soccer—Saturday, March 12—includes matches at Birmingham (where West Bromwich Albion play the Villa), Liverpool, Swansea and Stoke. This is the plan the Announcers will use.

FOR LISTENERS TO OPERA BROADCASTS.

On March 22 will be broadcast the eighth of the series of Operas for which libretti are being published. Beethoven's only Opera 'FIDELIO' has been chosen, and forms part of the Beethoven Centenary Broadcast Week. The advantages of having the book of words in front of you when listening to the opera are now appreciated by 100,000 listeners, and those who have not yet sent for a copy of this libretto, or are not on our list of regular subscribers, are advised to make immediate application on the form below. The price of the booklet is 2d. post free.

Please send me

copy (copies) of the libretto of 'FIDELIO.' In payment I enclose at the rate of 2d. per copy.

PLEASE WRITE IN BLOCK LETTERS.

NAME

ADDRESS

Applications must be marked 'Libretti' on the envelope, and sent, together with the remittance, to Broadcast Opera Subscription List, c/o B.B.C., Savoy Hill, London, W.C.2.

Additional names and addresses may be written on a separate sheet of paper, but payment for these must, of course, be sent with the order.

The Operas which have already been broadcast are 'Rigoletto,' 'The Bohemian Girl,' 'Faust,' 'The Barber of Seville,' 'Martha,' 'The Red Pen,' and 'Orpheus,' and copies of these may also be had on application at the same price, i.e., 2d. per copy.

The new Cossor R. C. Valve

brings you the realism of the Living Artiste

RADIO is now entering upon a new phase. Quality of reproduction is rightly being given pride of place. The chief responsibility for this has been the growing popularity of Choke or Resistance capacity amplification. Experts agree that Radio can now give a more truthful rendering of every note in the harmonic scale—from the deep fascinating rhythm of the lower octaves to the surprisingly sweet high notes. Until recently Choke or Resistance capacity coupling has been handicapped by the lack of suitable valves. But Cossor—by the introduction of wonderful new R.C. valves for 2 or 4 volt accumulators—is now supplying this vital need. The Cossor R.C. with an impedance of only 70,000 ohms., has the amazing amplification factor of 40—considerably higher than any other valve of similar type. This remarkable efficiency is due to its Kalenised filament and its patented method of Co-axial mounting.

Although only on the market a few weeks we have received many letters from users expressing astonishment at the rare beauty and mellowness of their reproduction. They say that they are now hearing instruments in the orchestra which they have never heard before. That from end to end of the scale the chords peal forth with a grandeur which is a revelation. Why not try out these new valves without delay—at one stroke you can abolish distortion and microphonic noises.

Without equal for richness of tone

Next Week!

Look out for our announcement of a remarkable series of Cossor 6-volt Valves. A type for every purpose. Every one fitted with a Kalenised filament & embodying Co-axial Mounting.

34'.

THE LISSENOLA is the only full-size, full-powered Loud Speaker selling to-day complete for 34'-. In tone and volume it is unsurpassed by any loud speaker costing up to £20. It is very handsome in appearance and stands 21½ ins. high, having a flare measuring 14 ins.

The sound-reproducing unit of this remarkable loud speaker is the LISSENOLA Loud Speaking Unit, whose golden tones and realistic rendering have delighted tens of thousands. No other unit has such splendid magnets. No other unit has such a clean design or embodies such fine manufacture. No other unit will stand up to the power the LISSENOLA will—220 volts and more can be used without the least dithering or resonating.

LISSEN is only able to sell the LISSENOLA at the unheard-of price of 34'-. by dealing direct with the retailer (so eliminating wholesalers' profits) and concentrating on the production of this one type.

7 DAYS' FREE TEST.

Test the LISSENOLA Loud Speaker against the most expensive loud speaker you can find—anything up to £20. If you do not definitely prefer the LISSENOLA for tone-purity and power to any loud speaker you test it against, irrespective of price, take it back to your dealer or send it back to the manufacturers and your money will be willingly refunded in full. This offer also applies to the LISSENOLA Loud Speaking Unit.

These parts can be purchased separately.

WHY IS THIS TRANSFORMER USED MORE THAN ANY OTHER?

There is bound to be merit in a Transformer which has won such widespread appreciation from so many users, trade and amateur alike.

Another trader writes:—

Ref. 5163.

Guernsey.

18-11-1926.

"Allow me to state that I have not found any L.F. Transformer to equal the Lissen for purity and volume without distortion."

We withdrew every previously expensive Lissen Transformer in favour of this new Lissen and we ask you to compare the new Lissen against any transformer, three or four times its price—we give you a to try and find a better transformer. If within that time you can find one—no matter how high priced—return the Lissen and your money will be refunded.

7 DAYS' TEST

Not only a great Transformer but a great choke also—used either way it fully amplifies every tone, every harmonic, every overtone IN A BACKGROUND FREE FROM NOISE.

YOUR AMPLIFIER NOW COSTS YOU LESS AND IS BETTER. Use all LISSEN parts for it and it will be better still. Your dealer will show you how to build.

¶ There are many advertising manufacturers and all expect a share of the use and mention of their products in the sets published by the papers they advertise in. The best transformer is therefore not necessarily always used. NO MATTER WHAT TRANSFORMER MAY BE SPECIFIED IN ANY CIRCUIT, IT CAN BE REPLACED BY THE NEW LISSEN WITH AN IMPROVEMENT IN TONE AND VOLUME. REMEMBER THE 7 DAYS' TEST OFFER.

LOUDER, CLEARER SIGNALS IF YOU USE LISSEN PARTS

THE radio constructional journals and other papers tell you to use certain makes of parts for the circuits or receivers described in their articles. Why? Are the specified parts the best you can get for their particular object? No—it doesn't follow. Radio advertisers each expect a certain share of editorial use and mention—and they get it. Lissen gets it too, but the periodicals obviously cannot use only one make of parts even though they may be known to be the best. A new enlightenment has come to users at last—users now know that they can replace every part named in any published circuit with the corresponding part in the Lissen range. You will use all the energy available if you build with Lissen parts and get louder, clearer signals from near and far in consequence.

FACTS OF IMPORTANCE ABOUT LISSEN PARTS—

LISSEN FIXED CONDENSERS.

Fixed condensers should be leak-proof, and if they are LISSEN, which DELIVER ALL THEIR STORED UP ENERGY ALL THE TIME, nothing is lost. Note the case in the LISSEN condenser, how it can be clipped into the LISSEN COMBINATOR in resistance circuits, how it can easily be used upright or flat. Then the price of LISSEN FIXED CONDENSERS is half what it was a year ago! The plates are properly laid in a LISSEN—they are homogeneous with each other, and cannot move or come apart.
Capacities .0001 to .001, 1/- each (much reduced).
Capacities .002 to .006, 1/6 each (much reduced).
DEMAND LISSEN FIXED CONDENSERS.

LISSEN FIXED GRID LEAKS

They do not alter—they are perfectly silent. You can put a LISSEN half-megohm leak in circuit direct on to a 220-volt supply and leave it on indefinitely—it will not alter. It can then be put straight into a critical radio circuit—it will be absolutely silent. LISSEN grid leaks have been further tested by exposure to rain and sun on the roof of the LISSEN factory. They never altered, never varied. Patented.
All resistances—Previously 1/8, NOW 1/- each.

LISSEN COMBINATOR.

Into it fixed condensers and resistances can be clipped in a moment and a complete resistance capacity unit quickly formed. Useful for mounting condenser and grid leak in the ordinary way without soldering, although soldering tags are also provided. Price 1/-.

LISSEN VALVE HOLDER

Has both low losses and also low capacity, twin virtues found in few valve holders. Sent out ready for baseboard mounting, but can also be used for panel mounting by bending springs straight.
Patented, previously 1/8, NOW 1/- each.

LISSEN SWITCHES

There is one for every switching need in radio. Designed for radio work where currents are small—they will not waste current. They fit easily—take up little room. LISSEN ONE HOLE FIXING, OF COURSE.

HOW TO MAKE H.T. BATTERIES LAST LONGER.

Every ordinary H.T. battery can be made to yield more energy if a LISSEN 2 mfd. (or 1 mfd., but the larger capacity is the better) is put across it. It will absorb all the noises when the battery gets old. Your dealer will be pleased to show you how to connect it easily.

A N entirely new type of Accumulator specially designed for Dull Emitters. Requires no first charge—your wireless dealer merely adds acid and within an hour it is ready for use. When exhausted it can be fully recharged within eight hours—instead of the 30 to 40 hours usually required by other slow-discharge Accumulators. Its special laminated plates—an exclusive Oldham feature—ensure perfect circulation of the electrolyte and prevent sulphation. 2 volts 20 amp. hours capacity (one cell will last a 2-valve Dull Emitter Set 72 hours without recharging).

The famous B4 valve
now has its complement

The B.4.H. Valve has been produced, after long research, as a companion to the B 4., the finest power amplifier ever designed. Both these valves take 6 volts, 0.25 ampere on the filament and can be used without resistance on a 6 volt accumulator. In a multi-valve set, the B.4.H. should be used in the H.F., detector and early L.F. stages, and the B.4 in the final L.F. stage. For those who use 6 volt accumulators, the B.4—B.4.H. is the most efficient combination of valves, giving a large volume of undistorted sound at a low current consumption. If you have a B.4. buy a B.4.H. If you haven't, buy both. Ask your dealer to-day.

SEARCHING for perfection, now this valve and now that, and still a feeling that the trouble is the valves and not the set.

And finally Optron, and the trouble over. No more strain to get the far-off station, no more harshness or distortion, no "background," no disappointments
—high notes clear as a bell, low notes deep and resonant.

*A far easier valve to

Strikes the right note

LLOUD SPEAKER designs have hovered in many directions to achieve perfection, until the advent of the MUSICOLA which "strikes the right note," not in performance alone, but also in price and appearance.
With a magnetic unit having a full size movement, and a scientifically designed vibrating cone, the best features of the ordinary cone type speaker on music and the horn type on speech are here embodied in one instrument. It has a mellow tone true to every audible frequency of sound.

The unique shape and antique brown leather finish has an engaging appearance, and its low price, based on large productions, puts this high grade article within the reach of everyone.

The MODERN WIRELESS COMBINE FIVE

A SUPER SET FOR HOME CONSTRUCTORS

The Special Double Number of MODERN WIRELESS, on sale to-day, contains a tully illustrated describing a receiver upon the construction of which practically all the leading wireless designers in the country have concentrated. Each designer has specialised on the particular section on which he is the recognised authority.

FREE BOOK

Reliability, purity of tone, ease of control and reasonable cost have been welded together to a remarkable degree. At the same time, the set can be constructed easily by the home constructor.

Build the Modern Wireless "Combine" Five and you can tune in to all wave lengths, cut out local stations, leave the set ready for anyone to switch on and off, select programmes easily from scores of stations and obtain perfect loud speaker reproduction. The book, each page measuring 10 ins. x 8 ins., is complete in every detail, is superbly printed on high quality art paper, and has a three-colour cover.

MARCONI 2-VOLT POWER VALVE D·E·P·215

THE BEST 2-VOLT LOUD SPEAKER
VALVE YET INTRODUCED—price 18/6

More than ever is it now possible to ensure perfect loud speaker reproduction, and again it is the genius of the Marconi Experts which first enables you to secure it. Type D.E.P. 215 is a Dull Emitter for the final stages of Low Frequency work, at the same time being suitable for the detector stage. It brings magnificently controlled volume and a fuller tone; consumes very little current—less than 1/2 watt is required to heat the filament, which is unusually large, has a great emission surface and is extremely robust. The advent of the new Marconi Power Valve marks a distinct forward step in radio achievement.

A simple, fascinating card game based on Broadcasting which anyone can enjoy. Limited number available at the special price of 1/- per pack, post free.

SAFETY SWITCH

Comprising: Switch, Lightning Arresor, Lead-in Tube and Weatherproof Cover.

The Eelex safety switch, the latest development in Safety First devices, enables the operator to turn inside to earth the aerial outside the home. By pushing the knob the set is at once reconnected to the aerial. A pull instantly disconnects the set from the aerial system, automatically earthing the aerial.

The spark gap provides ample means of by-passing any electrical discharge which may occur while set is in operation.

Mullard

Pure Music

Speaker

gives a new conception of music and speech reproduction. Its excellent tonal quality covers the whole range of musical frequencies and establishes the P.M. Speaker as pre-eminent.

The design of the electro-magnetic system and the ingenious conical diaphragm eliminate all resonant peaks on the performance curve. Constant in operation—no adjusting devices are fitted, and the connections are reversible without fear of injury to the instrument.

A choice of three connecting arrangements being provided by the triple lead you are able to match the Speaker impedance with the output impedance of your receiver, and at the same time satisfy your own individual taste for pitch and tone.

Every user of the wonderful Mullard P.M. Valves will know that the remarkable scientific research and precision in manufacture identified with the Mullard products is embodied in this beautiful instrument.
