How to Greet the Spring.

Dr. Saleeby Broadcasts Some Seasonable Advice on Health.

In October last Dr. C. W. Saleeby, the President of the Sunlight League, gave a broadcast address, which was published later in 'The Radio Times,' on 'How to Live Through the Winter.' We are glad to give here, in response to many requests, the sequel on 'How to Greet the Spring,' which Dr. Saleeby broadcast from the London Station on March 15.

NOW the spring is here; how shall we greet it?

Most of us are inevitably below par. For many long months we have been sun-starved. Our skins are pale, and if their contents could be examined, they would be found defective in precious ingredients which the sunlight can make in them. In other words, we are feeling the fully cumulated effects of our passage through the long dark winter tunnel to which our imperfect civilization condemns us.

Nothing could be more stupid than the popular misinterpretation which actually blames this blessed time of year and accuses the spring, which is about to come to our rescue, of causing the unwellness and defective and disordered vitality which are the final products of the winter. It is the winter that hurts us; it is the winter that has depleted our blood; it is the winter that has created the need for 'spring medicine,' as the term goes.

The spring is the medicine; and its exact name is the light of life. It is the stimulant

Thanks to the Public Health (Smoke Abatement) Act, which was passed into law only this last winter and therefore has not yet helped us, we may hope that the winter now past was smokier and darker than any that will ever be endured again in England's green and pleasant land. And now the better weather is coming, with more ultra-violet sunlight for our lives and fewer fires of the stupid, dirty, wasteful kind to eclipse it; and we must greet the spring by getting our needy bodies out into the light.

For evidently the light is of no use to us unless we allow it to reach us. Well, that is not quite true, for the light is antiseptic and may kill germs, and thus help us even though we do not value or use it directly. But use it we must; and this means that, the winter being gone, we must cease to hibernate, and must alter our habits accordingly.

We must open our windows and let in the light. If the wind is cold, and if we install the new 'vita-glass' in our windows, as at the Zoo, we may keep them shut, for through that glass the ultra-violet rays can penetrate. We must not worry about our carpets and

These two fortunate listeners have followed Dr. Saleeby's advice and, with their headphones to while away the hours, are basking in that sunshine which the President of the Sunlight League assures us is the source of life and health.

and incentive of all our vital processes. It has been hailed in all ages, with festival and song; for life has been buried, buried alive, for months, and now it will rise from the tomb.

at the Zoo, we may keep them shut, for through that glass the ultra-violet rays can penetrate. We must not worry about our carpets and curtains. The colour in our children's cheeks is much more valuable than in any carpet. We are indeed too fond altogether of carpets and curtains and hangings, which are collectors and distributors of dust, for dust is an enemy of life and a friend of the tubercle bacillus, as the death-rates in all dusty occupations most terribly prove.

I shall scarcely be believed, but it is true that, even after all these years of discussion, many people do not know how to take a sunbath.

In the first place, the sun must be shining; though Dr. Leonard Hill has shown that a by no means negligible quantity of sunlight reaches us from real blue sky or white cloud. Next, the skin must be released: otherwise we are merely bathing our clothes. Doubtless the outer clothes of men are all the better for the process. They are odiously dirty and germ-laden—just imagine the appearance of the edge of a man's sleeve, say, of his dress-coat, if it were made of white cloth instead of black.

It is, perhaps, worth while to remind women, and even men when, for once, they can appear in a shirt without a coat, that artificial silk, as for stockings, tennis shirts, and so forth, admits more ultra-violet light than any other material of which clothes can be made; but it must be white or as nearly so as possible.

Next, the rule is hasten slowly. The unaccustomed skin must learn to use its liberty. Blisters and long-lasting redness must be avoided. This redness is not like that due to heat, which appears at once, and rapidly goes. It appears after some hours and lasts a long time. There is nothing during the bath to tell us that we are getting too large a dose. So hasten slowly. But the more pigment in the skin the more we can probably stand.

Next remember that it is not the heat but the light of the sun that we want. The warning is not necessary yet, if, indeed, it is really necessary at all in our climate; but it is very important farther south. The heat of the sun is enervating and exhausting beyond a certain low point.

WHEN spring yields to summer, we should value the early morning. I know that that time of day is only a rumour to most of us, but it is the best of all, and we should always be grateful to the late Mr. William Willett, whose idea of 'daylight saving' has, in effect, made more morning light for us all. Directly one begins to perspire one has had more than enough.

Before we abuse our climate we should learn how to use it. In general, my formula for mothers runs thus:—

'Fear the heat and love the light,
Keep your children cool and bright.'

Some day we shall perceive that this means the school in the sun for all children and not merely for a very few of the weakly and already diseased. It costs more to run an open-air school than the ordinary barracks in which we imprison our children; but the saving in life and health abundantly compensates us thereafter.

Too many bricks, they will say of our civilization some day. One way in which to greet the spring is to pull down bricks and let the daylight in and ourselves out. I mean this literally, for improvements in the ugly and stupid and unhygienic houses which we inherit from past generations might be made in countless cases.

Some people, when they hear the motto, 'Back to Nature,' think it means back to mud and caves and 'pigging' it, and scrapping all the superb and glorious and life-giving achievements of civilization. Nothing of the sort. All that the mind and heart of man have achieved must be kept and valued and distributed and used: but we must establish the conditions under which alone our bodies can really live, and renew their youth for scores of springs. Bacon said the wise thing: 'Nature can be commanded only by obeying her.' Most of our troubles proceed from our folly in that we disobey her: we despise her and she destroys us.

DURING the winter we have largely fed upon food which is deprived of some of Nature's boons, principally because it has been produced or stored in shadow. If there is any other spring medicine worth naming beside sunlight, it is the 'kindly fruits of the earth'; they, of course, are transmuted sunlight. One good way in which to greet the spring is to consume plenty of green salads and fresh vegetables, which the spring sunlight affords us. As you know, they contain the precious vitamins which promote the growth of childhood and protect against disease at all ages. But treat these foods aright. They are best uncooked and as fresh as possible. If they are to be cooked, let it be with a minimum of water, and let that water be saved for soup, since it contains valuable salts and vitamins. And let us reform off the earth altogether our stupid way of cooking vegetables whereby everything volatile goes up the chimney and everything soluble down the sink.

When I was a youngster the spring meant getting out my bat and going to the nets to practise the king of games. Many youngsters will greet the spring that way, without any advice from me. There is another splendid game invented in old England which we call lawn tennis. We need more tennis courts everywhere. Watching the stars at Wimbledon is all very well—but it is better that we should all have abundant opportunities to play such games ourselves. It may seem a ridiculous occupation to a philosopher to hit a ball backwards and forwards across a net: but it is a very nice way of keeping the body in health, and even the philosopher needs a body, like ordinary people.

Thank Heaven for the spring, in which we may recreate ourselves in the air and light of life. As long as the sun shines, Nature's Spring will return and life will rise again from her wintry tomb.

A Breath of Fresh Air.

[Mr. A. Bonnet Laird, whose column has unfortunately been held over owing to pressure on our space, continues this week his comments on some of the letters he has received recently from Nature lovers.]

Mother-Lessons.

OF all the delights which Springtime is about to bring round again, there is none, I think, will reward a nature-lover more than to see the other birds training their young.

Here are two waterside pictures—reward of quiet, patient watching.

Sketching by a trout stream (writes F. R. H., Dorset) I saw a wild duck swimming round and round, quacking all the time.

Just over her head, stretching across the stream, was a branch of a tree covered with ivy. On this she had made a nest, about ten feet from the water, and she was calling to her young ones to make the great adventure and leave home.

In ones and twos and threes the tiny creatures launched themselves through the air with squeaks of fright. In all thirteen came down into the water, safe and unharmed.

Sketching over, she came upon the family again, upstream.

I heard a tiny squeaking and there, across the stream not more than a couple of yards from me, lay the speckled mother on her side, quite flat, where she matched the wet pebbles exactly. Her babies were all crouched round her.

I didn't move, but her bright eye met mine and she saw that she was discovered. Quite calmly she called her ducklings, stepped into the stream and paddled away.

A Norfolk farmer, J. H. S., pictures us an even more entrancing sight—nine black moorhens in a circle, on one of his ponds, with the mother bird in the middle.

She was diving: and each time she came up she had something in her bill which she gave to the little ones. After every dive, she came up absolutely in the centre of the ring, and each of her family got a piece of food in turn.

A Dinner in a Dinner.

Bearer of a name well-known in Forfarshire, J. D. P. sends me a fish story—a quite authentic one—from beside the North Esk.

One of my cousins shot a heron feeding in a still part of the river. He brought the bird home and gave it to the cook, as some parts, although rather fishy to the taste, are considered fairly good to eat, especially with stewed steak or in a pie.

After tea we all happened to pass close to the kitchen door, near to which was a pond. We saw cook standing by the pond with something in one of her hands, while she beckoned to us with the other.

We found she had three eels in her hand, two of which she dropped into the pond. They swam away, although their movements were rather languid.

The third eel seemed dead, but she also dropped it into the water. It remained quite motionless for a minute or two, but it gradually revived and ultimately wriggled into deep water.

Cook had found the eels in the heron while she was dressing it.

[A. Bonnet Laird dispatches one of his broadcast locks this week to the reader of the most interesting item of Nature news—Mr. J. H. Jones, Yew Tree Farm, Earney, Grist, Norfolk.]

Coming to the Microphone.

A Glance at Future Programmes.

MR. MICHAEL SADLEIR, whose recent book on Anthony Trollope was discussed by the B.B.C. literary critic, Mr. Desmond MacCarthy,

Mr. MICHAEL SADLEIR.

Yours to Hand, a humorous sketch, will be given from London on April 13, the cast including Donald Cathrop. The Starita Brothers and Norah Blaney are in the same programme.

WINNER of four World championships and many English cycling laurels, as well as the holder of the Grand Prix de Paris on four successive occasions, no one is able to speak about cycling with greater authority than Mr. W. J. Bailey who, as an amateur, has done so much for England in this arduous sport. Mr. Bailey has already spoken to listeners on the pleasures of the road, and on Saturday, April 16, he is talking in the LONDON Studio on the pleasures of the racing track. His talk is particularly topical, for on the previous day he is competing at Herne Hill with the Champions of Germany and Holland, and his remarks will undoubtedly include something about that event.

'The White Château', by Reginald Berkeley, one of the most successful broadcast plays, is shortly to be produced at the Everyman Theatre. The play will also create an interesting new record for 'ireble' success, as it is to be filmed.

AMONG the artists in some attractive LONDON variety programmes arranged for next week are the following: Thursday, April 14:—Muriel George and Ernest Butcher; Heydon and Nerard; Ronald Gourley; Sandy Rowan; Clarkson Rose. Saturday, April 16:—Hatch and Carpenter; Ed. Lowry; Tom Clare; Marie Dainton; Bransby Williams.

Dick Henderson, the comedian, is giving his first broadcast performance, London, April 11. It will also be his last appearance prior to a foreign tour.

HOLY WEEK will be marked at MANCHESTER by the broadcasting of Sir William Sterndale Bennett's sacred cantata The Woman of Samaria, on Wednesday, April 13, which will also commemorate the birthday of the composer on that day, 1867. The work was specially composed for, and first performed at the Birmingham Musical Festival. The artists taking part in the broadcast performance will be Miss Gwen Knight (soprano), Miss Esther Coleman (contralto), Miss GWEN KNIGHT.

Mr. Arthur Wilkes (tenor), Mr. Herbert Ruddock (bass), together with the Station Chorus and the Augmented Station Orchestra.

THE whole of the LONDON programmes for the week beginning Sunday, April 24, will be framed on the votes cast for the various programme items as enumerated in the recent ballot organized by the Daily Mail. It will be seen, when full details are published in due course, that little alteration in the character of the programmes as they exist at present has been occasioned in arranging this special week—a striking vindication of the policy of the B.B.C., showing it to be in accordance with the expressed desires of listeners. This is even more applicable when it is remembered that the Daily Mail ballot represents only the first choice of each voter. The main change in the programmes is that variety gains at the expense of talks and readings—a matter which can only be adjusted when a more adequate system of alternative programmes can be put into operation. The special programmes apply to Sunday afternoon and evening (after the reading of the news) and every weeknight after 7 p.m.

All who have enjoyed Mr. H. de Vere Sturpole's novels of the South Seas, will look forward to hearing him read one of his own short stories from LONDON on Saturday, April 16.

HOW the League of Nations protects women and children will be described by Dame Rachel Crowdy in a talk she is giving under the auspices of the League of Nations Union in the LONDON Studio on Wednesday, April 13. Dame Rachel, who is now Chief of the Social Questions and Opium Traffic Section of the Secretariat of the League of Nations at Geneva, was Principal Commandant of the V.A.D.'s in France and Belgium from 1914 to 1919. The same evening Prof. V. H. Mottram, who recently gave a series of talks on 'Present Day Problems of Food,' is to give a talk dealing with the very large correspondence which resulted from his talks, which probably caused more interest than any other series.

Dame RACHEL CROWDY.

The special appeal from Manchester on behalf of Shrove Tuesday's Students' Rag brought in over £130 from listeners. This year's total of £13,000 for local hospital charities was £2,000 more than last year.

EVERY Association football enthusiast—apart from the 100,000 who witness the game—will be present in spirit at Wembley's great stadium when the final tie in the F.A. Cup Competition is played there on Saturday, April 23. This year those who cannot see the match will be able to hear it described, minute by minute, from the moment the teams line up until the last kick. Arrangements are now complete to broadcast a running commentary of the play, the commentators being Mr. G. F. Allison and Mr. D. McCulloch. They will also give a ten-minute introductory talk prior to the start of play, and a five-minute summary at its conclusion. A feature of the broadcast will be community singing by the largest crowd ever available for this new form of musical expression. This side of the proceedings has been arranged by the Daily Express, and will be carried out under the direction of Mr. T. P. Ratcliff. In addition listeners will also hear music by the bands of the Grenadier and Irish Guards. The B.B.C. are erecting a special box at the top of one of the stands, from which play will be described.

NOT many people realize that it is now possible to spend a holiday in Canada and the United States for a total outlay of £50, through the inauguration of the new 'Tourist' class of ticket. Such a cheap trip across the Atlantic will appeal to many people, and Mr. Frank Bustard, traffic manager of one of the largest steamship companies, is certain of a large audience when he broadcasts a talk from LONDON about the scheme on Thursday, April 14. The title of the talk is 'See America—the New World for a New Holiday.' Later the same evening Lieut.-Col. P. T. Etherton will talk about the shrine of Ordan Padshah, second only to Mecca in the eyes of Mohammedans, which is hidden away in the heart of Asia. Lieut.-Col. Etherton, who at one time was Consul-General for Turkistan, is one of the five white men who in recent years have penetrated to this sacred spot.

Mr. FRANK BUSTARD.

The British Vocal Quartet—Miss Doro-hy Silk, Miss Esther Coleman, Mr. Eric Greene and Mr. Dale Smith—the formation of which was a happy idea of Mr. Dale Smith's during one of his visits to Bournemouth, is appearing in that station's programme on April 16.

THE new programme and syllabus of talks, specially intended for adult education, to be broadcast in May, June and July, will be outlined in a talk from ALL STATIONS on Wednesday, April 20. The syllabus includes the names of such specialists as Prof. D'Arcy Thompson, Prof. H. H. Turner, Prof. Winifred Cullis, Dr. Crighton-Millar, Prof. George Gordon, Prof. Lascelles Abercrombie, Mr. S. P. Ross and Prof. Barcroft, whose subjects and other interesting details will then be described.

Scenes from Shakespeare, by Mr. Murray Harrington, who has played a number of 'leads' at Stratford Festivals, will be broadcast from Cardiff on Thursday, April 14.

THOSE who are looking out their cameras or buying new ones for the Easter holidays will be well advised to listen for some useful hints which Mr. F. J. Mortimer, Editor of The Amateur Photographer, is giving from LONDON and OTHER STATIONS on Tuesday, April 12.

'The May Queen', a pastoral by Sir W. Sterndale Bennett, will be given by the Swansea Station Chorus and Orchestra on Thursday, April 28.

THE REV. STUDDERT KENNEDY, well known and beloved by many ex-Service men as 'Woodbine Willie,' is conducting the evening service—which is to be broadcast from the local station—at the Cathedral Church of St. Philip's, Birmingham, on Sunday, April 10. Another interesting forthcoming transmission from BIRMINGHAM will be a programme of Passion Music on Good Friday, when the soloists will be Miss Emily Broughton (soprano), Miss Rebe Hillier (contralto), and Mr. John Armstrong (tenor).

Miss Rebe Hillier (contralto), and Mr. John Armstrong (tenor).

Listeners' Letters.

For Twopence a Week—The 'Tympanites'—Mr. Baldwin at the Microphone.

The Unseen Congregation.

DEAR SIR,—I think that Sir Arthur Yapp, in his recent article in The Radio Times on 'Wireless and Modern Youth,' failed to grip the basic fact, which, I believe, explains the modern youth's enjoyment of the broadcast religious service. It is the absence of Sectarianism. Each service is conducted by an expert, and by the best exponent of religious thought, quite apart from sect. Anyone listening carefully to the broadcast addresses cannot fail to be impressed by two facts: (1) That there is a wonderful foundation for religious belief, demanding reverence, respect and contemplation, and (2) that all creeds—Anglican, Roman Catholic, Nonconformist, Salvation Army, etc.—have sufficient in common to make it possible for each to broadcast a sermon teaching Christian principles, without in any way compromising their own beliefs. These two facts alone must have a fine effect on the thoughtful youth of today.

Another aspect of the question lies in the fact that mediocrity is eliminated. Many sermons in churches and chapels are ineffective because they are so feeble and unconvincing. The broadcast sermon is never small or petty. It is the output of a fine individual, carefully selected, a powerful force intellectually and morally. To my mind, this alone raises the religious tone, and hence tends to make one impatient with what is so often called a discourse in many churches and chapels.—GERTRUDE WILLIAMS, Chilcote, Tintagel.

Value For Money.

DEAR SIR,—We hear a good deal just now from those who find fault with the programmes provided by the B.B.C. May there not be a word or two to be said on the other side? The listener's licence costs ten shillings per annum, i.e., about twopence per week. Let us see what the B.B.C. gives in exchange for these two penny pieces. Take a typical week's London programmes (January 23 to 29):

For the highbrows:—Six hours' symphony concert and classical music.

For the middle and lowbrows:—Twenty-nine hours' popular music, including Albert Sandler's Orchestra and 'The Beggars' Opera' (Not a bad twopennyworth!).

For organ lovers:—Three hours (Reginald Foort's recitals are not dear at twopence!).

For lovers of Opera:—The fine opera of 'Martha.'

For Church people:—Two services, one of them from the most famous Cathedral in England.

For lovers of dancing:—Twelve hours.

For lovers of the drama:—Four hours.

And, in addition, a debate by such celebrated literary folk as G.B.S. and G.K.C.

For my part, if I listen to nothing else besides Albert Sandler's Orchestra for an hour, or to Frederick Ranalow singing 'When the Heart of a Man'; or hear half-an-hour of Reginald Foort at the organ of the New Gallery Kinema; or listen to a chat by A. Bonnet Laird, I consider that the account between the B.B.C. and myself is squared for the week.

When it is remembered that this twopence gives entertainment not only to the licence-holder, but to many others of his family and friends, what room is there left for grumbling? What do some people want for twopence, anyway?—E. HATWAX, Dorchester Road, Weymouth, Dorset.

Are You a Tympanite?

DEAR SIR,—The aural tympanum brings the transmission of sounds to our conscious mind. Would not, therefore, the term 'Tympanite' be more expressive than that of 'Listener' or 'Listener-in'?—P. G. W. JACKSON, Bishop Road, Bournemouth.

Broadcasting the Prime Minister.

DEAR SIR,—I notice that a certain daily newspaper is criticizing the fact that the Prime Minister has broadcast on two occasions recently. I can only say that I am sorry for the person who could derive no pleasure from Mr. Baldwin's recent speech in Worcestershire. I for one should welcome the news that the Prime Minister is to be heard again in the near future. His recent address was a masterly display of scholarship and eloquence, and was worth much of the so-called 'light entertainment' for which, we are led to believe by the newspapers, large numbers of the public are clamouring.—SYDNEY R. GRAINGER, Greenway, Sedgley, Nr. Dudley, Worcester.

A Listening Record.

DEAR SIR,—I think my record for listening would be hard to beat. From 1 to 2 I am out most days, but from 3 p.m. until 11 at night I listen almost continuously. On Sunday afternoon I listen to the latter part of the concert, as I am out during the first part. On Sunday evenings I listen from 8 until closing time, 10.30. That is my daily wireless routine, unless I am interrupted by callers or have to go out.—G. W. BUCK, Thornlaw Road, S.E.27.

A Chance for Essayists.

ON Friday, April 1—the day this paper is published—at 5 p.m., Miss Royde-Smith will broadcast from London and Daventry the report on the third of her series of Verse and Prose Competitions, the 'Song for a Child,' which was set on March 18. The prize-winning entry will subsequently be published in The Radio Times.

At the same time Miss Royde-Smith will announce the fourth competition, the subject and rules of which appear below. Readers should notice that, owing to the intervention of Easter, the dates this time will be differently arranged.

THE FOURTH COMPETITION.

A prize of Two Guineas is offered for the best Essay on Eating, in not more than 500 words of English prose.

RULES.

(1) All entries must be written on one side of the paper only, and the name and address of the competitor must appear at the top left-hand corner of each page. Where more than one page is used the pages must be carefully numbered and pinned together.

(2) Every fifty words of the Essay must be clearly marked off in red.

(3) Entries need not be typewritten, but if written by hand, neatness and legibility will be taken into account in awarding the prize.

(4) Competitors may, if they choose, use a pseudonym or pen-name. This must be written in block letters at the top left-hand corner of each page of the entry.

(5) Entries must reach the B.B.C. office in envelopes marked in the top left-hand corner 'Prose and Verse Competition,' and addressed B.B.C., Savoy Hill, London, W.C.2, on and not before Friday, April 22. All entries must be delivered by noon.

(6) A full report of the competition will be broadcast from the London and Daventry Stations at 5 p.m. on April 29, and the prize-winning entry will subsequently be published in The Radio Times.

(7) Copies of the report will be sent on receipt of 3d. and a stamped addressed envelope. Applications for this report must not be sent with entries for the prize, but in separate envelopes marked 'Competitions Report.'

(8) The Competition Judge's decision will be final, and it should be noted that no correspondence can be entered into respecting the award of any prize.

A Look Ahead.

News and Notes from the Stations.

From Liverpool.

Two distinguished soloists—Miss Muriel Brunskill (contralto) and Mr. Archie Camden (bassoon)—are taking part in a Symphony Concert at the Crane Hall on Tuesday, April 19.

From Sheffield.

The Attercliffe Club and Institute Prize Band, Miss Elsie Chambers (contralto), and Mr. Hugh Macklin (tenor) are to occupy one-and-a-half hours of the local programme on April 13.

The anniversary of the birth of Sir William Sterndale Bennett, the Sheffield composer, will be celebrated on Wednesday, April 13, by a performance of his cantata The May Queen, given by the Pupil Teacher Centre Choral Society.

From Hull.

Violin solos by Mr. Betting de Boer, songs by Mr. Sydney Sanderson, and a one-act farce entitled Ao her Pair o' Spectacles will be included in the local programme on Tuesday, April 12.

An innovation in the form of lunch-time music between 1 and 2 p.m. on Tuesdays is to begin next week.

From Manchester.

A programme of coon songs and South Sea music occupies part of the programme on Monday, April 11.

Miss Daisy Kennedy, the famous violinist, is giving a short recital during the evening programme on Tuesday, April 12.

The Roosters Concert Party, always popular with Lancashire listeners, is visiting the Manchester studio on Wednesday, April 13.

From Birmingham.

Music and Songs of Europe is the title of a programme to be broadcast on Thursday, April 14.

The next broadcast Military Band programme by the City of Birmingham Police Band takes place in the studio on Wednesday, April 13.

A recital of eighteenth and nineteenth century songs from the works of Dowland, Grieg, Brahms, and others, with a programme of Chamber Music, is arranged for Tuesday, April 12.

From Bournemouth.

Poole Harbour, well known to the yachtsman for its curious double tides, is the subject of a talk to be given on April 12 by the Mayor of Poole, Alderman H. S. Carter.

Old English songs will be sung by the New Forest Vocal Trio during the evening programme on April 11.

Some Meditations on a Radio Theme.

By Albert Sandler.

Albert Sandler is, of course, the leader of the well-known orchestra at the Grand Hotel, Eastbourne, whose Sunday evening broadcast, from London and Daventry are among the most popular features of the B.B.C.'s programmes.

ONE of the many pleasures that broadcasting has brought me is reading the letters that I receive from listeners all over the country. After my first broadcasts the letters came in dozens, but soon they could be counted by the score, and now my postbag runs into several hundred letters a week.

I value these letters very highly, not only because of the kindness and generosity music that appeals to the heart as well as to the ear and intellect gives the peace and rest that we are all hungering for. Through my broadcast recitals I like to think that I have been able to lighten the hearts of millions.

The violin, I think, has done more than anything to popularize radio music, because it 'comes over' so well. The microphone—aided by a good receiver at the other end—dulls none of that brilliant richness of tone that is peculiar to the violin—indeed broadcasting seems to me in some cases actually to improve the tone.

Listeners are often curious about the make of instrument I use. I am sorry that I cannot truthfully state that it is a ten-is through melody. This gives the violin its opportunity, for it can produce a flowing melody with greater ease than any other instrument. It has been responsible, I am sure, for attracting many people to music.

The extraordinary thing about melody is that although it appeals to the untrained ear, it is also the chief appeal to the cultured listener. True, he hears it from a different standpoint and appreciates it in relation to its harmonies, but the appeal is none the less real for all that.

The appeal of melody accounts for the popularity of operatic selections and fantasies. The critics are sometimes inclined to laugh at these selections and speak scornfully about 'pulling the tune out of every-

of the writers, but also because they enable me to feel the pulse of my vast audience. They give me a first-hand knowledge of the likes and dislikes of listeners, and thus I am enabled to choose my programmes, feeling confident that they will please. These letters make me realize the heavy responsibility of the broadcaster—he is always expected to give of his best; and, of course, I always welcome genuine criticism.

Listeners often ask me to tell them something about myself, and I should like to take this opportunity to correct the popular idea that I am middle-aged, for I am only twenty-one. Whatever degree of success I may have achieved on the wireless is due to the fact that ever since, as a child, I first tucked a violin under my chin, my audience has always been first in my thoughts. I feel that it is my first duty to please them.

Music appeals generally in two ways—through the ear and through the intellect. I have always tried to add the appeal to the heart. Sentiment is necessary to happiness—never more so than at the present time, and thousand-guinea 'Strad,' but it is quite a valuable instrument, and its tone seems to be especially suited to broadcasting.

The violin owes its popularity as a broadcast instrument not only to the perfection with which its tone can be reproduced, but also to the fact that it is the solo instrument with the greatest range of expression. The piano, it is true, has a wonderful variety of tone colour, but I fancy most music-lovers agree that in the case of the piano something is lost in the course of transmission. The violin has at its command every emotion. The flute can be as brilliant and the 'cello as appealing, but no other instrument can command such infinite variety as the violin.

Again, melody is essential in violin music, and melody is the first appeal of music. A child or unmusical person is attracted most by rhythm, but as soon as any degree of musical sense is acquired, melody becomes the chief appeal. To the listener who 'has a good ear'—who is naturally musical—but untrained, the easiest method of approach thing.' I myself have no use for the selection that is just a series of scraps put together anyhow, but I think that a selection from a good opera, incorporating the whole of the suitable melodies, is a perfectly legitimate piece of music.

I know from the correspondence that reaches me that operatic selections are amongst the most popular pieces in my repertoire, and I am sure anyone taking a broad view of the question will come to the conclusion that broadcasting operatic selections is a step—however small—towards popularizing opera in England.

I always think myself fortunate in being able to broadcast on Sunday evening, for it is, I am sure, the ideal time for programmes such as mine. Listeners' minds are no longer worried with the cares of business, they are feeling rested and content, and in the mood for serious, but not heavy music. I am very happy in the thought that my music often enables listeners to look forward to a strenuous week with cheered and lightened hearts.

3.30 LIGHT ORCHESTRAL CONCERT

MARYAN ELMAR (Soprano). THE WIRELESS ORCHESTRA, conducted by JOHN ANSELL

ORCHESTRA

A Seaman's Overture Dr. Thomas Wood

THE Composer of this Overture spent much of his childhood at sea, and passed his youth among ships and seamen. We are told that the work 'deals with seamen rather than the sea, and is in some measure a tribute to one particular ship's company, of happy memory.' It 'owes something to their courage, good humour and love of sentiment'; and at the close there is a memory of their gallant death, in the war.

The Overture treats a number of sea songs—the halliards shanty Blow the man down (on the Horns, as the second tune of the piece), the fore-sheet shanty Haul away, Joe (Violins in octaves, soon after this), a traditional sea song, The Maid of Amsterdam (Oboe and other Woodwind, very softly), then Admiral Benbow (four Horns), and the well-known Shenandoah (Cellos). After the development of these ideas, the music takes on a note of foreboding and then rises to a menace. The last mood is that of a requiem, and the work ends with a last hint of Shenandoah.

Fantasy-Overture, 'Romeo and Juliet' Tchaikovsky

THIS is one of Tchaikovsky's early works (written in 1869, when he was twenty-nine years old). It is called a 'Fantasy-Overture,' but is really a 'Tone Poem,' an attempt to reproduce in music some of the emotions of Shakespeare's play.

The opening (Clarinet and Bassoon) is a sort of church chant, suggesting Friar Lawrence and the marriage solemnity in his cell. A little later comes some vigorous music suggestive of the fight between the Montagues and Capulets, and then a graceful, attractive tune (Cor Anglais, with accompaniment for muted Violas) that obviously represents the element of love.

These are three of the main tunes out of which the piece is made. The Composer did not label them, as has been done here, but the interpretations given are reasonable, and will probably be approved by most hearers.

Note that the work does not make any attempt to tell the story of the play, but merely strives to represent its spirit.

4.40 'FORTY SINGING SEAMEN'

Words taken from the Poem by Alfred Noyes

A Choral Work by Dr. THOMAS WOOD
ROY HENDERSON (Baritone) and THE CHORUS of THE OXFORD HARMONIC SOCIETY, conducted by REGINALD JACQUES

THIS is a setting of Alfred Noyes's jovial tale about the wild and wondrous adventures of 'forty singing seamen in an old black barque,' who voyaged 'across the seas of Wonderland to Mogadore,' and there fell in with all manner of marvels. They came upon a fountain 'not of water, but of jewels, like a spray of leaping fire,' and a crystal palace 'in an emerald glade, beneath a golden mountain.' Here a troop of ghosts gathered round them (the music, to the tune of What shall we do with a drunken sailor? delicately hints at a possible reason for the 'tars' seeing ghosts).

Then an awesome figure, wearing a golden crown, came upon them. It was Prester John, the owner of the palace, who received them royally in it; and told them that he had the secret of living for ever. (Prester John has a characteristic jaunty march, on Bassoons). His specific lay in drinking the water of 'a little silver river' in the forest. The seamen went to seek it, but leopards, lions and unicorns chased them away, and they made off on their old black barque, sailing home to London; and wondering if they had dreamt it all.

5.30-5.45 'From Bermondsey to Barotseland,' a Missionary Talk: Dr. MARTYN WATNEY

AFTER being at Eton, Cambridge, and St. Thomas's Hospital, Dr. Watney was for a time associated with the Cambridge Medical Mission in Bermondsey. He then went from darkest London to darkest Africa—the Mankoya district of Barotseland, where he has been doing pioneering, medical and educational work on behalf of the South Africa General Mission for several years. His station is situated in the great sandy tracks of country on the west of Northern Rhodesia, near the Angola border.

8.55 THE WEEK'S GOOD CAUSE: The Invalid Children's Aid Association. Appeal by the Marchioness of TITCHFIELD

FOUNDED in 1888 to give help and advice to parents, to arrange for the treatment of children and to provide surgical appliances beyond the means of poor parents, the Association now helps nearly 50,000 children every year. It runs nine Convalescent Homes, and this appeal is being made especially for the Pioneer Home for children suffering from rheumatic diseases of the heart, which is now being built at West Wickham. £15,000 is needed to provide the Open-Air Wards.

The address to which donations should be sent is: The Marchioness of Titchfield, Invalid Children's Aid Association, 117, Piccadilly, W.1.

9.20 THE VIRTUOSO STRING QUARTET

RELAYED FROM THE RUDOLF SEINER HALL

String Quartet in D Franck

THE music of César Franck, great musician and great mystic, made way very slowly. Just a little band of pupils and disciples believed in it. Then came the catastrophe—an omnibus knocked him down and injured him, and from this injury he died.

And now everybody reveres him, and the great Symphony, and this String Quartet, which we are about to hear (the only Quartet he wrote) are beloved of musicians everywhere.

The work, which he began to sketch out when he was sixty-seven (in the year before his death), is in four Movements.

THE FIRST MOVEMENT is built on somewhat uncommon lines. The opening slow theme is, as it were, a germ of the whole work. After the first section we have, in quick time, an exposition of the usual two Main Tunes, one in a minor key, and the other, in the major, beginning sweetly and softly in the First Violin, some little time afterwards. These ideas are joined together by a 'Cello' theme which is accompanied by the other Strings in a tremolo. This 'Cello' link comes again in the last Movement.

After these two Main Tunes have been thus expounded, the theme of the opening slow section reappears (on the Viola), and is treated in fugal style. Then the quicker speed is resumed for a time, and the two Main Tunes are developed a little, and re-stated; the opening slow theme of the Movement brings it to an end in perfect restfulness.

THE SECOND MOVEMENT is a Scherzo, of great delicacy and fine imagination, played on muted Strings.

THE THIRD MOVEMENT (Slowish) is in the Composer's favourite key of B, and has all his elevation and nobility of feeling.

THE FOURTH MOVEMENT brings in at the beginning, themes heard earlier in the work.

Of the two Main Tunes of the Movement one, heard on the Viola against a very soft accompaniment, is derived from the theme with which the Quartet began, and the Second is in several sections, one part of which has affinity with the 'Cello' link between the First Movement's two Tunes.

Near the end of the work Franck recalls first the rhythm of the Scherzo and then (in a broadened form on the First Violin) the lovely melody of the Slow Movement.

While that the Sun Byrd
Round about about a wood Morley
As matchless beauty Wilbye
Our country swains Weelkes
Fair Phyllis I saw Farmer

HERE is a group of Madrigals, beginning with one by the longest-lived of the Tudor composers, William Byrd, who in a life of over eighty years saw the budding, the flowering, and the decline of the Madrigal.

Byrd's song has a refrain supposed to be sung by a disappointed lover:—

Adieu love, adieu love, untrue love,
Your mind is light, soon lost for new love . . .
Three days endured your love to me,
And it was lost in other three.

Morley's madrigal is the quaint experience of one who, walking 'round about about a wood,' 'heard a pretty, merry maid that long before had walked.' She was lamenting 'Hey ho, truly

THE SAILING OF THE PILGRIM FATHERS.

This contemporary engraving shows the Puritan founders of New England embarking for that famous voyage of the 'Mayflower' that Plymouth is celebrating this week—starting with the special commemoration service that is to be broadcast this evening at 8.15.

loly lo, heavy heart, my lovely lover hath disclaimed me.

These are the words of Wilbye's madrigal:—
As matchless beauty thee a Phoenix proves Fair Leonilla, so thy sour-sweet loves.
For when young Acon's eye thy proud heart tames,
Thou diest in him, and livest in my flames.

Weelkes sings of the wooing of country swains in the morris dance, and contrasts with this pleasure the state of one who woos 'with tears and ne'er the nearer,' who 'dies in grief and lives in fear.'

Fair Phyllis is one of a set of Madrigals published in 1599 by John Farmer, who described himself on the title page of his volume as 'practitioner in the art of Musicque.'

4.15 Prof. G. ELLIOT SMITH, 'The Movements of Living Creatures'

IN the last of his series of talks Professor Elliot Smith will discuss the distinctive features of human beings, their infinitely greater aptitude, in comparison with other living creatures, for learning new kinds of skilled actions to meet the varied circumstances that arise in every individual's daily experience. Man's upright posture, his manual dexterity, the ability to speak, and all the varied powers of intelligence that result from learning by the experience of doing things and talking about them, can be attributed in the last resort to the high development of his control of his movements.

STUDIES OF TRANSCENDENTAL EXECUTIO
Played by EDWARD MITCHELL

Carillon

E. WARD MITCHELL

LIAPOUNOV (1859-1924) may be regarded as almost the last of the band of Russian composers who created 'nationalist' music on the basis of folk-song and legend. Liapounov himself made some fine collections of folk-song.

He was a pupil of Liszt, and dedicated 'to the venerated memory' of his master the set of twelve remarkable Studies, most of which we are to hear this week. These are much more than difficult problems in technique; they cover a wide emotional range, and contain some very beautiful and appealing music. Tonight Mr. Mitchell plays the third Study of the set—Carillon (Bells).

The Man MALCOLM KEEN

The Girl JEANNE DE CASALIS

(Pictures on page 11)

THE man comes into his sitting-room carrying the girl in his arms. He puts her unconscious form on the settee and mechanically fans her with her own hat. Suddenly he throws this impatiently on the table, takes off his own hat and coat and, putting them down on a chair, brings down a glass of water from the sideboard.

LAWRENCE OF ARABIA.

This is Augustus John's drawing of the amazing character of whom Mr. Robert Graves will talk from London tonight at 9.20. It is reproduced by kind permission of Mr.
Jonathan Cape, the publisher of 'Revolt in the Desert,' the newly-issued shorter version of Lawrence's remarkable book.

He flicks water into the girl's face and she rouses a little. Seeing this, he puts the glass back, grabs up a newspaper and seats himself in the chair with his back to her.

'LAWRENCE OF ARABIA'

NO book published in this century has a more remarkable record than that in which Major Lawrence tells the romantic story of the war in Arabia and the adventurous part that he himself played in it. The original edition, called 'The Seven Pillars of Wisdom,' was published at the price of £30 a copy; but the book about which Mr. Robert Graves will talk tonight is the comparatively cheap edition recently issued under the title of 'Revolt in the Desert,' which is itself one of the most valuable and interesting contributions to the literature of Arabia and of the war. Mr. Graves, the poet and literary critic, is a personal friend of Major Lawrence.

Produced by C. B. PURDOM

THIS is the actual production that was awarded the prize—by Miss Cathleen Nesbitt, Mr.
John Drinkwater, and Mr. W. A. Darlington—in the finals of the British Drama League's National Competition, held in the New Theatre, London, in February this year. This competition was planned in response to an invitation from America for a British team to take part in the New York Little Theatre Tournament which takes place every year, and in which, last year, the Huddersfield Thespians won a prize.
This year's competition was very highly organized, and the Welwyn-Garden City Theatre Society, who are to broadcast tonight, won the right to represent Great Britain in a final contest in which the six teams who had won their regional championships took part. This production may, therefore, fairly be taken as representing the best work now being done on the British amateur stage.

Cradle Song
Round Dance of Sylphs

THE Cradle Song, the first of the Studies, is a simple and charming piece. The melody is given twice, the second time accompanied in the right hand by an undercurrent of notes three to a beat, against the left hand's two.

The final cadence, with its hint of the exotic, is singularly beautiful and haunting.

The Sylphs' dance (No. 11 of the set) has all the airy and vivid impression of swift movement that we expect. It is a piece of salon music raised, so to speak, to a higher power.

- 7.25 Mr. EDWARD CRESSY, 'The Growth of Industry—VI, The Union of Science and Practice.' S.B. from Manchester

Mr. EDWARD CRESSY.

It is always recognized, in dealing with new inventions, that between what is done in the laboratory and what can be done in the factory there is often a vast gulf. The 'laboratory stage' and the 'practical stage' are clearly-marked phases in the application to industry of a new idea. This process of adaptation is often almost as fascinating as the original invention, and it is from it that large-scale industry has sprung; so this will not be the least interesting of Mr. Cressy's series of talks, of which it is the last.

THAT one man's meat is another man's poison is very clearly demonstrated in musical appreciation.

The item which is classified as old-fashioned and delightful by one man is modern and hateful to another.

This programme begins, where most of us began, with Nelly Bly. Listeners are asked to let us know if they follow the uphill road 'Yes, to the very end.'

Group I.

This group shows 'easy' music, but it does not follow that connoisseurs will listen to it disdainfully. Nearly everyone has a tender spot for the things of childhood, and we all passed that way once.

7.45 A CONCERT OF SIR HAMILTON HARTY'S WORKS

Conducted by the COMPOSER
Relayed to Daventry

BELLA BAILLIE (Soprano); ARTHUR CATTERALL (Violin); THE AUGMENTED STATION ORCHESTRA
Overture to a Comedy

SIR HAMILTON HARTY, who is only forty-seven, has distinguished himself in several departments of musical work.

He first attracted notice as a composer when he gained two composition prizes in the year 1904—one for a Piano Quintet and the other for an Irish Symphony.

Later, he became known as one of the finest of our accompanists, and more recently his post as Conductor of the Hallé Orchestra has brought him still wider fame.

His Comedy Overture, first brought forward at a Promenade Concert in 1907, draws some poetic inspiration from Browning, the composer has said, but what poem or poems inspired it we do not know.

BELLA BAILLIE

Ode to a Nightingale (With Orchestra)

ARTHUR CATTERALL

Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in D

FIRST heard in 1910, this work has since been rewritten. It is in three Movements, the first bold and full of emotion, the second slow, at first rather sombre, then impassioned, and the last sprightly, gay and intensely vital.

ORCHESTRA

Poem, 'With the Wild Geese'

THE WILD GEESE was the name given to the Irish Brigade in the service of France—a brigade that found its origin in the exiles of the end of the seventeenth century.

At Fontenoy, in 1745, the French (thanks to their Irish Brigade, it is said) beat the English, the Dutch and the Austrians. The legend says that during the night following the battle the bodies of the 'Wild Geese' rose and flew away, and by dawn the flock was seen on the coast of Ireland.

The course of the music is as follows: (a) A slow Introduction (sad thoughts of the exiles?); (b) A quick Irish tune by the Flutes and another by Flutes and Piccolo (the spirit of Irish adventure?); (c) A quieter passage with its peaceful Oboe tune broken here and there by a touch of military music; (d) Night music, very quiet, but with an undercurrent of anticipation of the strife of the morrow; (e) A trumpet call, and the Irish tune again, used this time with a suggestion of battle; (f) A final section which suggests the resurrection of the warriors, their flight to Ireland and their apotheosis.

Relayed to London

BELLA BAILLIE

Song Cycle, 'Antrim and Donegal'

The Two Houses; The Little Son; Hush Song; Herrin's in the Bay

ORCHESTRA

An Irish Symphony

SIR HAMILTON HARTY has brought into this work some reminiscences of his youthful days in the north of Ireland, and has used one or two native themes in it. He has given us a description of the scenes he had in mind in writing each of the four Movements of the Symphony.

The FIRST MOVEMENT is entitled On the Shores of Lough Neagh. The principal subject is adapted from the traditional song Avenging and bright. The second tune hints at an old ballad called The Croppy Boy.

SECOND MOVEMENT. The Fair Day. This Movement is in the shape of an Irish reel derived from a merry tune called Blackberry Blossom, with which alternates the marching tune An Spailpin Fanach (The Wandering Labourer), better known in this country as The Girl I Left Behind Me.

THIRD MOVEMENT. In the Antrim Hills. Here are memories of a 'wake' and the lament of the mourners for a dead girl.

The lament is based on a sad tune, Jemmy macella shor—a girl's 'sorrowful moan' for her absent lover. A second tune is more tranquil. The general mood of the Movement is not so much tragic as dreamy and wistful.

FOURTH MOVEMENT. The Twelfth of July. This is the day on which 'all the Protestant North celebrates the Battle of the Boyne.' We have a vivid depiction of the drums and flutes, of the quarrelling and fighting. A funeral procession passes bearing the body of the girl of whose 'wake' we had a remembrance in the third Movement. The chief tune is 'The Boyne Water.'

PRUDENTIAL BONUS INCREASED

The Directors of The Prudential Assurance Company Ltd. have declared, in respect of the year 1926, an increased Reversionary Bonus payable on all participating Policies in the Ordinary (Life) Branch of the Company. The new rate of Bonus is

£2-4-0
PER CENT.

This represents an addition of £22 to the amount of every £1,000 (with profit) Prudential life policy.

To young men who assure their lives before age 28, this represents more than the amount of the annual premium for a whole life with-profit policy. Or, put in another way, the representatives of the man who assures in the Prudential before age 28 will, assuming this rate of bonus be maintained, receive £1,000 in addition to the amount paid by way of premium.

LEEDS GIVES A SHOWING TO YOUNGER BRITISH ARTISTS.

The first of a new series of exhibitions designed to promote the recognition of the work of lesser-known British artists is now being held in the Leeds Art Gallery, and Mr. S. C. Kaines Smith, Director of the Gallery, will give a broadcast talk on it today at 7.0 at Leeds. Here are three notable pictures from the exhibition: 'The Old Mill, Tongebre, Brabant,' by Joseph Milner, 'Lady with a Book,' by K. F. Clausen, and 'West Ken,' a pastel by Frank Sully of a scene that many Londoners will recognize.

IT is typical of the haphazard way in which the British Empire grew up that the man who led the way in the exploration and settlement of Central Africa, which finally added so many thousands of square miles to the domains of the British Crown, should have gone to the country as a missionary. Livingstone arrived in Bechuanaland in 1841, and by the time of his death in 1874 he was world-famous for his exploration in the Zambesi and Tanganyika districts, and his work in arousing public opinion to the evils of the slave trade. In character, he is one of the noblest of the Empire-Builders of whom Principal Grant Robertson has told us in this series.

THE essential action of this play takes place in Frank Shaw's favourite setting—the sea—but in an interesting manner he shows how the medium of wireless may provide incidents which in another age would have been almost supernatural.

The scene opens in the Albert Hall at the close of a religious service, but in a flash the listener is transported to the deck of a vessel battling with storm off Ushant Light.

In the fight for life which follows, the ship's company have the audible encouragement of prayer and well-wishing from their fellow-men on land, and that which in other days might have been a vision becomes by modern science an actual fact.

 Scene: The interior of a cottage in the Hebrides.

ACCORDING to a Hebridean legend, the daughters of the King of Lochmann (Norway) were famous for their virtue, beauty and wisdom. Their stepmother, being jealous, cast a spell upon them, transforming them into seals, but ordained that they should return to their human form three times in the year, whether they wished to or no.

Above are Mr. Tom Tredinnick, the baritone, who is to sing five songs from Plymouth at 6.0, and 'Stainless Stephen', the entertainer already so popular with Manchester listeners, who is giving them his idea of a good broadcast programme tonight.

'ON TOUR' THIS WEEK

While they still have Muriel George and Ernest Butcher to sing to them, Britons never, never, never shall be slaves to Jazz and Syncopation. These two artists are celebrated on the music-hall stage, the concert platform and the ether, for their singing of British folk-songs, the songs which have grown out of our native soil and which, though other fashions may change, are always sure of an enthusiastic audience. When folk-songs are sung as Muriel George and Ernest Butcher sing them, it is time for the 'poppas' and the 'mommies' and the whole coal-black family to look to their laurels.

These artists are 'touring' the wavelengths this week in the following order:—

Monday, Cardiff; Tuesday, Glasgow; Wednesday, Manchester; Thursday, Birmingham; Friday, Bournemouth; Saturday, Belfast.

S.B. from London. 7.25—S.B. from Birmingham. 7.45—S.B. from Glasgow. 9.0—S.B. from London. 9.35-11.0—S.B. from Glasgow.

6.45 For Boy Scouts

7.0 Mr. HUBERT GRIFFITHS, 'The Amateur Actor'

THE amateur stage is more and more engrossing the attention of those seriously interested in the drama, who begin to despair of the West-end commercial theatre and its satellite, the touring company that does fifth-rate plays in a fifth-rate way. Mr. Hubert Griffiths, the well-known dramatic critic and author of that remarkable play Tunnel Trench, is well qualified to talk of this interesting symptom in the evolution of a real English drama.

Played by EDWARD MITCHELL

Summer Night

THE poetry of a balmy evening in June is in this, the Fifth Study. In one place the Composer writes, over a trill, the words 'like a flute.' The sentiment rises to real passion near the end. Then a cadenza brings back the calm mood, and a page of delicate soft music draws the piece to a richly-harmonized ending.

NATIONAL CONCERT PROGRAMME (April 7)

Programme Notes.

The Conductor.

TONIGHT'S Conductor is the son of Richard Wagner, and his Christian name is that of the great legendary hero of The Ring, upon which work his father was engaged when the child was born in 1869. He was first trained for the profession of architect, and later, under Humperdinck and Kniese, for music. He has been associated with the Opera House at Bayreuth, founded for the production of his father's Music Dramas, since 1894, and for thirty years he has been one of the Conductors of the Wagner Festivals there. In 1924 he toured in America.

His compositions include two Concertos and about a dozen Operas, in some of which he has taken his subjects from German fairy-tales and legends. One of the most recent of these Operas is The Peace Angel, which was produced at Karlsruhe last year.

Overture to 'Rienzi.'

IN 1837 Wagner, then a young man of twenty-four, read a German translation of Bulwer Lytton's 'Rienzi,' and determined to push ahead at once with an idea that he had had in mind for some time—that of writing an Opera on the subject of Rienzi, the Roman hero. With characteristic boldness and lofty imagination he conceived a work on a grandiose scale. He was at this time feeling out of sympathy with modern life, in which he saw much that was weak and, as he felt, socially harmful. The 'picture of a great historical and political event,' as he called the book, inspired him.

He had no other wish, at that time, than to outdo Grand Opera on its own ground—a very different aim from that he pursued during the greater part of his career; but he had not yet found his artistic mission in life.

After a few bars of Introduction, we hear, very softly, a well-shaped rather slow tune in the Violins (Rienzi's Prayer). This proceeds and is taken up, loudly, by the Full Orchestra.

After a time, the music comes to a period, and makes a fresh start (Quick and energetic); the Wind instruments have loud repeated chords, the Cellos and Double-Basses do rapid down-hill scales.

Soon after comes a very striking passage, in which the Brass alone thunder out the Call to Arms from the Opera.

Then comes the Rienzi's Prayer Tune again (but quicker this time than before), and after that the Call to Arms again, and then a stirring march-like Tune, at first in Strings and Woodwind softly, but soon afterwards by all the instruments of the Orchestra, as loudly as they can do it.

Out of these tunes the Overture is constructed.

A Faust Overture.

THIS Overture was written in Paris in 1840 (when Wagner was twenty-seven), in the midst of opposition and failure. It was re-written in 1853.

The Composer said in a letter to Liszt that the title of this Overture should be Faust in Solitude. It was originally intended as the first Movement of a 'Faust Symphony.'

The subject is, of course, the mediæval personage, Dr. Faust, known to us chiefly through Goethe's great Drama and Gounod's Opera, who is tempted to sell his soul for renewed youth.

There is a rather gloomy Introduction, and then the Overture proper opens, the First Violins giving out the First Main Tune. After a time the Flute gives out the Second Main Tune, which the com-the son of the immortal composer, will conduct the twelfth of the National Concerts, which, with the exception of a prelude of his own, is devoted entirely to his father's works.

SIEGFRIED WAGNER,

THE B.B.C. NATIONAL CONCERTS

TWELFTH CONCERT

Relayed from the Royal Albert Hall

THE NATIONAL ORCHESTRA OF 150 PLAYERS

A WAGNER CONCERT

Conducted by SIEGFRIED WAGNER

Part I.

- 8.0 Overture to 'Rienzi'
- A 'Faust' Overture
- Prelude, 'Die heilige Linde'
Siegfried Wagner
- Wotan's Farewell and Fire Music ('The Valkyrie')

9.15 Interlude from the Studio

Part II.

- 9.20 Siegfried Idyll
- Prelude } ('Parsifal')
- Good Friday Music }
- Overture to 'Mastersingers'

poser said represented the lines from Goethe's Faust which begin, 'A sweet uncomprehended yearning drives forth my feet from woods and meadows free.' Out of these two Tunes the Overture grows. The peace of its close may perhaps represent Faust's final-redemption. Note, in this connection, the similarity of this idea to that underlying The Flying Dutchman.

Wotan's Farewell and the Fire Music.

THE god Wotan, disobeyed by his daughter, the warrior-maiden Brünnhilde, sadly removes her divinity with a kiss, lays her to sleep upon a rock on the mountain-top, and, calling upon Loge, the god of fire, surrounds her with flame, that she may when the time comes, be won only by a hero. The curtain falls on the flicker and glow and smoke of the fire-clad mountain summit.

Thus ends the second Music-Drama of Wagner's great Cycle, The Ring

The Siegfried Idyll.

THIS exquisite piece was Wagner's birthday gift to his wife Cosima in the spring of 1869. It was written, and named, in honour of tonight's conductor, who, if he was awake, first heard its delicious strains from the cradle. The first performance took place in the villa at Tribschen, on the lake of Lucerno, where the parents were staying during this happy period of their lives. A small orchestra had been secretly got together by Hans Richter (afterwards to become one of the world's great Wagner conductors). The players came early in the morning, assembled where they could in and about the hall, and Wagner, sitting on the stairs, conducted.

Most of the music is built on the melodies in the opera Siegfried which are connected with the love scenes of Siegfried and Brünnhilde. At one point, towards the middle of the piece, an old German lullaby is quoted, and there is a quiet rushing passage that is meant to depict the wind playing over the infant's cradle. The whole Idyll is a picture of peace and happiness, and an art-work of the purest beauty.

Prelude and Good Friday Music from 'Parsifal.'

THE 'Sacred Festival Drama,' Parsifal, was Wagner's last work. In it he again treats of the legendary relic of the Eucharist, the Holy Grail (the cup in which the Saviour's blood was received at the Crucifixion), which he had brought into his earlier Opera, Lohengrin.

In Parsifal, Amfortas, the guardian of the Holy Grail, has sinned, and for this he has sustained a wound from the Sacred Spear which will not heal. Amfortas and his Knights are in distress. Blessing comes to them once more through Parsifal, an innocent youth, the 'Pure Fool,' who resists temptation.

In the Prelude the emotional scene of the whole Drama is set, and we hear many of the musical 'Leading Themes' that are used throughout the work. The passage of stressful 'chromatic' harmony that forms a middle section is taken from the music that is associated in the opera with Amfortas and his unhealing wound.

In the course of the Drama Parsifal undergoes trial and temptation. By his faith and purity he wrecks destruction on a magician who brings temptation to him in the form of a maid, Kundry. This occurs in the second act. In the third Parsifal returns, victorious over temptation and grown into a man. The Good Friday Music is a contemplative scene between Parsifal, the redeemed Kundry, and a veteran Knight of the Grail. It is a picture of quiet rejoicing and hallowed thoughts, all beautifully reflected in the music.

Overture to 'The Mastersingers of Nuremberg.'

THE Prelude to Wagner's Comedy Opera epitomises the spirit of one of the happiest and most tuneful works ever written.

The Overture is constructed out of passages from the Opera. First we hear the noble Mastersingers theme, weighted with the sense of high tradition and admitted authority.

Other themes which follow and will probably be easily recognised by their representative character are those which may be called (a) Declaration of Love—a tender Flute phrase, soon 'imitated' an octave lower by Oboe and then by Clarinet; (b) Procession of the Guilds, with Banners—Wind instruments; (c) Walter's Prize Song of Love—Strings; (d) The Cheeky Apprentices—a reproduction in quickened rhythm of the opening Mastersingers theme; (e) The Mocking of Beckmesser—rapid tune in Cellos.

At the great climax of the piece three themes (Prize Song, Procession, and Mastersingers) are heard simultaneously in combination.

What has happened:
THE scene of 'The Blue Mazurka' is in Poland. Prince Julian Olinski has married Blanca, a wealthy heiress with a fortune in oil-fields, the controlling interest in which has thereby passed into his hands from those of the rascally old General von Spatz. Von Spatz has arrived too late to prevent the wedding, but he has contrived that Blanca should see her husband in the arms of Gretl Unger, a dancer from Warsaw, with whom he had had a flirtation in his bachelor days. Blanca, angry and disillusioned, has left her husband on their wedding day and fled to the house of her guardian, Baron von Reigen. A ball is in progress which the Baron is giving in honour of his ward. General von Spatz is scheming for the marriage of Julian and Blanca to be annulled and for his protégé, Adolar von Sprinz, to marry Blanca. Adolar, however, has other ideas. He is in love with Gretl, the dancer.....

The Skipper WILLIAM MACREADY
Ian IAN FLEMING
Donald ERNEST G. COVE
Angus J. HUBERT LESLIE

THE Gaelic legends afford many interesting, not to say thrilling, examples of the weird and mysterious. This play is founded upon one of these, and illustrates in an emphatic manner the strong belief in such legends that survives to this day in the more remote parts of our own country. The action opens in a small fishing boat in heavy weather off one of the islands of the Hebrides. The crew join in a traditional shanty while shortening sail because of the storm which is about to break. In this wild setting, Donald, Angus and Ian discuss the ancient legend with its curious application to Ian's family, and during the course of the play its remarkable fulfilment is shown.

Written and Produced by the Rev. HUGH PARRY
 Relayed from the Guildhall

THIS week Plymouth is celebrating the tercentenary of the sailing of the Mayflower on her famous voyage to the New World, and Plymouth Station is doing its share. On Sunday there was a special service and an address by the Rev. Hugh Parry, the author of today's Pageant, and yesterday there was a broadcast talk by the Chairman of the Pageant Committee. The Pageant itself, of course, constitutes the most important feature of the week's celebrations.

 Elstree Radio News.

This magnificent new wireless journal, edited by John Scott-Taggart, F.Inst.P., A.M.I.E.E., is the product of the Elstree Laboratories and chronicles for the reader the doings and research work carried on there.

These Laboratories are now at the service of S.T. valve users, and all purchasers of these valves will receive free a year's subscription to the Elstree Radio News in return for the test certificate from an S.T. valve carton.

The contents of the first issue include full constructional details, working diagrams and free Blue Prints, etc., of the three-valve set of the year—"THE SOLODYNE THREE." No less than 28 stations have been logged on the Loud Speaker with this wonderful H.F. Detector and L.F. Set, which is the outcome of months of research work.

Many other practical and theoretical articles are included and two Blue Prints are given free with every copy. The contributors are well known to valve users and the articles are extremely interesting and valuable.

You should not miss this opportunity of keeping in touch with the research work being carried out at Elstree. The information supplied can not be obtained from any other source, and we strongly urge you to buy an S.T. valve now and secure your copy of this wonderful journal.

 Procession of the Magi
 (from 'Christmas Festivities,' Op. 41)

THE last of the Studies we are to hear is one of wonderful delicacy, suggesting the faint, sweet music of the wind as it passes over the strings stretched for its caresses.

The final piece comes from a later set of pieces, described as 'Four Pictures for Piano.'

In the Procession Liapounov, after setting the rhythm of the stately march, introduces an Arab melody of a hymn-like character, the march plodding steadily along beneath it. Towards the end the piece works up to a pitch of ecstasy, with the Arab tune sounded forth amid the jangle of bells, then dominating all in fine dignity.

LIGHT verse is one of the most genial and pleasant of literary forms, and, besides calling for a very expert technique, it can be the vehicle of a very pretty wit—as witness such exponents as Calverley, A. P. Herbert and Captain Harry Graham. Mr.

Salusbury—whose picture this is—is a worthy follower of the art, as regular readers of Punch and the Daily Express will readily agree.

OUR TRUE INTENT IS—ALL FOR YOUR DELIGHT

has been the motto of entertainers ever since Shakespeare wrote 'The Midsummer Night's Dream,' but between intention and achievement is a great gulf. Murray Ashford's Entertainers—whom you see above—know how to bridge it, as they will show tonight.

THE broadcasting of sporting events has come to stay. There can be no doubt of that. It has been welcomed with enthusiasm by listeners everywhere, and the technical difficulties in the way have been, one by one, tackled and overcome. Broadcasting football was only the beginning. After that had been successfully accomplished, the microphone was taken to an athletic ground for the Varsity sports. Then came the broadcast of the Grand National on March 25—a more ambitious effort than any yet made.

This is the plan you will need for today's Association matches

The Radio Times will continue to provide listeners with every possible aid to the understanding of the broadcast commentaries. Many correspondents have testified to the usefulness of the plans of the field or of the course that have been published since the beginning, and of which two appear on this page. Again, readers will remember an interesting article on the first sporting broadcast—the Rugby match between England and Wales at Twickenham. In the same way Mr. Meyrick Good, the racing expert, who broadcast the Grand National, will describe his experience in our issue of April 8, and Mr. J. C. Squire, who is one of the Boat Race commentators, will tell the story of the B.B.C. launch.

And finally the Boat Race broadcast—an achievement that would have seemed beyond the dreams of radio enthusiasts a year ago.

Technically, the B.B.C. now feels prepared to face almost any problem of this kind; and, though owing to other considerations it is too early to make any definite announcement as to future plans, it may be taken for granted that very few sporting events of first-class importance will not be described over the microphone this year. A case in point is the Cup Final at the Wembley Stadium, which is one of the most widely-discussed and fully-attended events of the sporting year.

These sporting broadcasts are, we believe, having the effect here that they have had in America; they are opening up all the interest of sport to thousands of people who would never have gone in person to a sports ground; and The Radio Times will make every effort to provide listeners to these features with a service as helpful and as ample as that which it endeavours to supply to listeners to music or to talks.

FOR LISTENERS TO OPERA BROADCASTS.

We are pleased to announce that the ninth of the series of Operas for which libretti are published is to be Coumou's 'ROMEO AND JULIET.' This is to be broadcast on April 29. The advantages of having the book of words in front of you when listening to the opera are now appreciated by 100,000 listeners, and those who have not yet sent for a copy of this libretto, or are not on our list of regular subscribers, are advised to make immediate application on the form below. The price of the booklet is 2d. post free.

Please send me _____ copy (copies) of the libretto of 'ROMEO AND JULIET.' in payment I enclose stamps value _____ at the rate of 2d. per copy.

Applications must be marked 'Libretti' on the envelope, and sent, together with the remittance, to Broadcast Opera Subscription List, c/o B.B.C., Savoy Hill, London, W.C.2.

Additional names and addresses may be written on a separate sheet of paper, but payment for these must, of course, be sent with the order.

The Operas which have already been broadcast are 'Rigoletto' (out of print), 'The Bohemian Girl,' 'Faust,' 'The Barber of Seville,' 'Martha,' 'The Red Pen,' 'Orpheus,' and 'Fidelio,' and copies of these may also be had on application, at the same price, i.e., 2d. per copy.

The music of the drums

—Let the new Cossor R.C. Valves bring out their full, mellow tones

EXPERTS in sound reproduction have always admitted the shortcomings of Radio. They have known that, owing to technical difficulties, the elusive low notes, more often than not, have been entirely lost. This is why wireless music is so frequently thin and colourless—the low registers are missing.

But now Cossor—by another stroke of genius—has evolved a far better valve for Resistance or Choke coupling which ensures an equal amplification of all notes—from the deep rolling chords of the organ to the shrill pipe of the flute.

These wonderful new Cossor R.C. Valves herald the dawn of a new era. With their aid it is now possible for wireless to be practically indistinguishable from the original. Every inflection of the voice and each varying shade of tone is faithfully recorded by the Loud speaker.

Get acquainted with these wonderful Valves to-day—there is a great musical treat awaiting you—such volume and grandeur of tone that you must be thrilled at the heights to which Radio has now risen.

Cossor Valves

Cossor R.C. Valves

THEIR outstanding success is, in great measure, due to their Kalenised filament. Although glowing almost without heat this filament emits such a torrent of electrons that Cossor R.C. Valves possess an amplification factor much higher than that of any other make of valve. Whilst—due to the patented method of construction—microphonic noises are definitely abolished.

LISSEN LIMITED, 300-320
MANAGING DIRECTOR

N.B.—To be fair to patentees, users before building any receiver should ascertain whether it is the subject of any circuit or other patent and if so should obtain the permission of the patentees to construct the receiver and pay any royalties that may be demanded.

MUCH ADVICE has been given you in the radio journals on the building of a resistance-capacity amplifier for your crystal set. But it has been left to LISSEN to tell you how to make the best type of r.c. amplifier and how to make certain of good results.

If you build a 2-valve resistance-capacity coupled amplifier to follow your crystal set you will probably be disappointed with its results. A 2-valve r.c. amplifier provides no greater amplification than a 1-valve transformer-coupled amplifier after a crystal set. The first stage in the r.c. amplifier gives no appreciable step-up no matter how high the amplification factor of the valve may be.

You should use a transformer in the first stage to get the full magnification from a valve possessing a high amplification factor. Then the second stage can be resistance-capacity coupled with good results. With a transformer in the first stage you may make certain of success with no chance of disappointment.

LISSEN make an excellent transformer for use in the first stage. For the second stage the LISSEN Combinator and Fixed condensers and Resistances should be used to provide the resistance-capacity coupled stage. With these any r.c. unit can be built in two minutes at a total cost of 5s. 6d. The filament current of the valves may be regulated by variable rheostats (you will find LISSEN most suitable) to suit the valves and the circuit used and the conditions of reception prevailing. This adds slightly to the cost but helps you to make sure of results. Any dealer selling LISSEN parts will give you further advice if you need it.

The LISSEN Transformer fully amplifies every note, every tone, every harmonic, and every over-tone against a background free from noise. The windings, etc., are protected from atmospheric conditions and damage by an ebonite moulding that totally encloses them. Soldering tags are fitted. This transformer can be used with equal success as an L.F. Choke by connecting the I.P. and O.S. terminals together.

Each LISSEN transformer is guaranteed for 12 months. We challenge comparison of it against the most expensive transformer or choke you can buy on money-back terms if you fail to prefer the LISSEN.

building an Amplifier

THE LISSEN COMBINATOR

The fixed condensers and resistances required for the r.c. circuit are simply clipped into this LISSEN Combinator, which is a convenient holder especially designed to take them quickly without soldering. Tags are fitted so that the condenser connections can be soldered if desired. The LISSEN Combinator can be used with the leak in parallel to form a unit for standard grid leak rectification without soldering. 1s. each.

A COMPLETE R.C. UNIT

This shows the LISSEN combinator, fixed condenser and fixed resistance linked up as a complete r.c. coupling unit for H.F. or L.F. amplification. Resistance on the right acts as a grid leak and can be 2 megohms; the resistance on the left acts as an anode resistance and can be 1 megohm.

TUNED ANODE COUPLING

Parts shown are linked up as a tuned anode coupling. The Condenser can be .0002, the grid leak can be 2 megohms. The tuned anode coil and its condenser are connected up between the three terminals of the condenser and high tension positive.

L.F. CHOKE OR 80,000 OHMS RESISTANCE COUPLING.
For these change the value of the condenser to .005.

SOME HINTS

The fixed condensers used in r.c. circuits should be absolutely leak proof, otherwise 50 per cent. of the volume will be lost. LISSEN mica condensers are guaranteed leak proof. In addition they never vary, and deliver all their stored-up energy. They are guaranteed accurate to within 5 per cent. of their marked capacities.

The illustration shows a LISSEN Fixed Resistance (or leak) as they are often called) mounted on a LISSEN Condenser by means of the pair of grid leak clips given free with every grid condenser. It is essential that the Fixed Resistances used in r.c. circuits are capable of standing a big voltage and that one in the grid circuit does not alter or vary and is silent. You can connect a 1 megohm LISSEN Fixed Resistance in circuit with a 120-volt main supply and leave it there indefinitely without any change taking place or noise developing. This test is equivalent to an 800-volt test on a 2-megohm resistance. LISSEN resistances have also been tested by exposing them to sun and rain on the factory roof. Their resistances never altered.

.002 to .008, 1/6 .. (much reduced).
Note the new improved case which enables condenser to be mounted upright or flat.
LISSEN Fixed Resistances.
All resistances previously 1/3, NOW 1/-.

TO REGULATE L.T.

As explained in the left-hand page it is advisable to regulate the filament current in r.c. circuits with variable rheostats. The baseboard type of LISSEN Rheostats now cost actually less than most fixed resistors and the panel type no more. These are the prices—

Baseboard Type.

7 and 35 ohms rheostat and 400 ohms potentiometer, 1/6 each (previously 2/6). These have, of course, no knob, dial and pointer, but are provided with 2 holes for baseboard fixing.

Panel Type.

7 and 35 ohms rheostat, 2/6 (previously 4/-).
400 ohms potentiometer, 2/6 (previously 4/6).
35 ohms dual rheostat, 4/6 (previously 6/-).

From all good dealers or direct if difficulty. (C.O.D. if desired.)

FRIARS LANE, RICHMOND, SURREY.
THOMAS. N. COLE.

LOW CAPACITY AND LOW LOSS

Valves in r.c. circuits should be mounted on LISSEN valve holders which have all superfluous ebonite cut away. This means low loss and low capacity and therefore stronger, clearer signals. The illustration shows valve holder ready for baseboard mounting; to use on panel the springs are bent straight. Patented. 1/- each (previously 1/3).

TO ECONOMISE H.T.

Put a LISSEN 2 mfd. Mansbridge Type condenser across the H.T. Battery—1 mfd. will do, but the larger size is preferable. The LISSEN Mansbridge Type condensers are wholly protected by a moulded solid insulation case. This is a great protection, especially when the condensers are of large capacity and are used in eliminator circuits. The condenser cannot short-circuit on to its case.

HOW DID YOU HEAR THE BOAT RACE?

COULD'N'T have heard it better, did you say? The announcer's voice sounded as clear and loud as if you were sitting next to him on the launch? And you only paid 34/- for your loud speaker?

Then you must have been one of the many thousands who listened in with the Lissenola, the full-toned, sweet-voiced loud speaker which has delighted enthusiasts in every town and village of England.

Yes. The Lissenola is an instrument to be proud of. No loud speaker, no matter if it costs £20, is more natural in its utterance, more pure in its tone, or more powerful in its volume. You can prove this for yourself at home for 7 days, and then, if within that time you do not definitely prefer the Lissenola to any other loud speaker which you may have tested it against, irrespective of price, return the Lissenola and your money will be refunded in full.

The Lissenola stands 21½" high and the flare measures 14" across. The base on which it stands is built wide and shallow to give a perfectly steady and not easily disturbed support to the gracefully-curved horn. You can obtain the Lissenola from all good dealers, or direct from manufacturers in case of difficulty. Sent C.O.D. if desired.

GET the "RESISTOR" Booklet and see for yourself how the new B.T.H. B.8 Valve has revolutionised the construction and efficiency of receivers. The B.8 Valve possessing the enormously high amplification factor of 50 has brought the tonal purity of the resistance coupling method within the reach of every listener, and has so simplified the construction of receivers that two and three valve sets can be made in a few hours at a fraction of the cost formerly involved.

The "Resistor" Booklet contains all necessary details for the construction of 2, 3, 4 and 5 valve resistance-coupled sets. Theoretical and working diagrams are given, together with photographs of the complete receivers, lists of components and point-to-point wiring schedules. The booklet also gives the circuit for a 2-valve amplifier for use with crystal receivers.

Any one of the "Resistor" sets will be a revelation to you in the matter of faithful reproduction. No transformers are used in the "Resistor" circuits, thus combining maximum purity with minimum cost. Nor is there any loss of volume in consequence.

It will be noted that the filament is rated at 1.8 to 2.8 v. The B.8 will function perfectly throughout this range. It can be used directly from a 2-volt accumulator or from a 4 or 6 volt accumulator with suitable resistance.

The record of a great endeavour

IN the days before Broadcasting began, England heard its first Wireless Loud Speaker. It was a Brown. What a story the years that have since past could tell! Years of unflagging endeavour to reach an ideal—a Loud Speaker which would reproduce the broadcast truthfully.

In those years the Brown factory has out-grown its original size many times. To-day the great building at Acton houses many hundred skilled workers—men and women who, with the pride of craftsmen in their work are almost as enthusiastic about the Brown as we, its sponsors.

See any Brown Loud Speaker . . . this very pride is reflected in its perfect finish. Hear any Brown—all reproduce the broadcast with the same utter truth. That is a fact proven by thousands, the world over, to whom the Brown is giving constant never-failing service.

One of the ten Brown models, the Disc, is shown below. In Black, Cream or Brown and Gold £7 7s., In Oxydised Silver, £8 8s.

A STEP FORWARD IN WIRELESS EFFICIENCY!

The new "LOTUS" Remote Control gives perfect reception and control from any distance and from any number of rooms simultaneously.

The "LOTUS" Relay is placed on or near to the Receiving Set in accordance with instructions shown on the "LOTUS" REMOTE CONTROL AND JACK CIRCUITS (free on application).

The first Relay Filament Control Wall Jack can be fitted to the wall in any convenient position in the same room as the Receiving Set and wired to the Relay and Set as shown. The Plug for use with the Wall Jack is connected to either the Loud Speaker or Phones. The second Relay Filament Control Wall Jack can be fitted in any room of the house or building in a similar manner, the four wires being continued from the first Wall Jack. There is no limit to the number of Wall Jacks that can be so fitted in different rooms. All the rooms can listen in simultaneously and it is not possible for one room to interfere with another. The last plug to be withdrawn breaks the Filament Circuit and cuts off the Set. The Receiving Set is actually controlled from any point where a Wall Jack is wired up and by inserting or withdrawing the Plug. This Remote Control makes it entirely unnecessary to go to the Set to switch it on or off.

You are musical you join with gusto 10,000 others in singing at a Community Concert; you are moved by the playing of a Military Band and a dozen times a day you whistle little snatches of classical music, more often than not.

You do enjoy good music when you hear it properly played or sung. And yet when you "listen-in" you switch off when Chamber Music begins. Why? Don't blame your musical taste, blame your receiver. If it gave you perfect reproduction, as Burndept does, you would thoroughly enjoy the classical music programmes.

BURNDEPT THREE
COMPLETE EQUIPMENT

Will give you in your home perfectly pure music just as it is played in the studio or concert hall. The set—the valves—the loud speaker—are individually designed, and manufactured throughout by Burndept to work harmoniously as a group, and the result is a perfectly balanced equipment which reproduces PERFECTLY PURE MUSIC and speech and is so extraordinarily simple to operate.

The equipment includes everything necessary. Royalties are included and the whole equipment is delivered to your door. THERE IS NOTHING ELSE TO BUY. £25 ALL IN

MAKE YOUR OWN H.T. ACCUMULATORS AND SAVE HALF THE COST.

Easily assembled in half an hour. Re-charge every 7-8 months. Capacity 3,500 milli-ampere hours. Compare Champion H.T. Accumulator Parts with any other H.T. Accumulator costing twice or three times as much. The plates are manufactured under an entirely new patent process, they retain the charge without deterioration or sulphating for seven to eight months, and with ordinary care will last for years. Already many thousands have expressed their surprise and delight with the improved reception and greater volume obtained with only one trailing in of outlay. If inconvenient to get a whole Battery at once buy a cell or two at a time.

DO YOU KNOW? that a "DOUBLETONE" 21/- will make your one valve set into a two valve set and give you full Loudspeaker strength, and it will make your two valve set into a three valve set and so on; you simply plug it into the last valveholder.

THE "TREBLETONE" 35/6 is so constructed that used on a one valve set its power is equal to any high-grade three valve set in volume and purity of tone. The Doubletone and Trebletone is not better than any other make, it is the only make of its kind and fully guaranteed.

SEVEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL. Champion H.T. parts samples, single parts or whole Batteries, also the "Doubletone" and "Trebletone" may be obtained on seven days' free trial from most leading dealers or post free direct from the Manufacturers. Accumulators

THE NEW VALVE WITH THE DOUBLE GRID

6-volt enthusiasts have accorded a great welcome to the new double grid valve. The ES5 is a 6-volt Dull Emitter made in H.F. and L.F. types. Filament current is only 0.1 amp. It has TWO Grids—each with a 2½-volt Thoriated Tungsten Filament—an outstanding feature in valve construction. This remarkable filament emits an intense flow of electrons, yet the current it consumes is almost negligible. The new ES5 has the essential feature of low impedance and the ability to handle great power without distortion.

Now, every note... every signal, from the softest whisper to the tremendous volume of a full orchestra can be reproduced with amazing realism. Greater volume... less consumption... absolute absence of fuzziness or glare. Write for fully descriptive folder "ES5."

AS ESSENTIAL AS THE VALVE

FOR the reception of distant stations World Radio is a necessity ; it enables the DX enthusiast to recognize stations as they are received, or alternatively to find distant stations which he wishes to receive.

Between the covers of this journal will be found complete programmes of the principal stations throughout the world, a list of stations in order of wavelengths, with notes on their power, times of operation, etc. etc.

Readers can also avail themselves of the services of the expert staff of the B.B.C., who, under the heading of 'Which Station Was That?' answer questions relative to the identification of distant stations.

NOW you may have all the advantages of the wonderful P.M. Filament in new special P.M. Valves for resistance capacity amplification *

NEW P.M. VALVES FOR PURE MUSIC COUPLING

The tremendous advantages given by the huge emission, consistent high service and long life of the wonderful Mullard P.M. Filament are obtainable in new P.M. Valves designed to give the very highest results with the Mullard Pure Music Coupling (the ideal method of low frequency amplification approved by the Mullard Engineers and employed so successfully in Mullard P.M. Receivers described in "Radio for the Million.")

These new P.M. Valves are available for 2 volt, 4 volt and 6 volt accumulators. Apart from absolute purity in music and speech reproduction, abundant volume is obtained and H.T. Battery consumption is considerably reduced.

Let these new Mullard P.M. Valves bring you unequalled results in the resistance coupled stages of your receiver, and give you the master service and long life universally associated with the valves with the wonderful Mullard P.M. Filament.
