A Rural University in the Making.

Prof. Eric J. Patterson tells how Radio is opening up a New World of Knowledge to the Countryside.

WHAT'S in a name? A rose by any other name would smell as sweet. That's all right for a romantic girl in love; but when you come to deal with science and men of scientific thought—well, there is everything in a definition. One must be exact, so that is why I speak of our rural university.

No other name would do half so well. I might call it our rural study circle; and so it was once. I might have spoken of it as a tutorial class; and so it is and was; but those names were all right in the days before wireless. Now radio has changed everything. You must call a rose a rose, not a cabbage.

'Well,' you say, 'what is a university?' It is certainly not necessarily a thing of bricks. It is a spirit, the spirit that exhilarates without intoxication. It is a universality of spirit, and numbers do not create it. So when that fact is understood I can tell you how the rural university came into being.

Its origin was the reverse of that of the Cheshire cat. The smile came first. It began with a debating society in a certain village or small town of two thousand inhabitants, a fortunate, dear little town with a local industry. After a year's history the debating society sent to the nearest university and asked the university what it could do for the members and what it would advise; and the university and, if you like the experiment, next year you can start a three-year tutorial class.

The members accepted the offer, and they were at first frightened at the tutor, because they thought that he must be a very learned man with his head in the clouds; but they soon found out that he had come to learn as well as to teach, and by degrees they realized that they were taking part in a co-operative society of knowledge.

He was, however, a curious chap, was the tutor. You never could find out what his views were. He had so many. The only thing he seemed to insist on was that smoking should be allowed and that the members should sit round the fire and not one behind the other.

'You can't be matey talking into a man's back,' he said. So the class was no longer arranged as for a public meeting, but in a circle. The new arrangement was found to have a great advantage over the old one. Shyness and fear broke down; there were no long speeches, but there was a lengthy discussion, and in the give and take of discussion points of view were brought forth. Argument was pushed with vigour but without bitterness. Men fought for the sake of truth, not merely to

STUDENTS OF THE NEW ERA.

Today we can no longer speak of the loneliness and isolation of country life. Radio has changed all that. The youth of the countryside can now receive through wireless the best that the university has to offer. Prof. Patterson, the author of the accompanying article, is Director of Extra-Mural Studies of University College, Exeter, and an authority on the problems of adult education.

made answer: 'Start a tutorial class and we will send you a tutor once a week for twenty-four weeks and he will help you in discussions, give lectures and advice as to written work, lay their opponents out for their own glory.

Sometimes, however, truth appeared such a difficult thing to find that the discussion would resolve itself into a series of questions. All the time the members felt that they were going on a journey where every experience enriched them, but at the same time served to tempt them farther along the road to the new lands which lay in the distance. For the method of study was to start with what people knew and to work from the known to the unknown, because knowledge without understanding turns men from human beings into prigs.

On these lines, then, this class, like any other class in the land, progressed. Then, as I have said, came wireless. Of course wireless had come in reality a long time before, but what came now was the realization that radio could be used in the interests of adult education generally and to the benefit of that tutorial class in particular. The first experiment, however, in the collective use of the radio was not a success. Arrangements were made to listen to a loud speaker, but the instrument turned out to be more loud than a speaker. All that the listeners heard first were the words, 'I remember'—then a series of sounds, which reminded some of them of a bad crossing at sea; others of them of the horrors of the dentist's chair; whilst those who were theologically inclined took a salutary warning.

It was naturally, therefore, a little while before the experiment was again attempted. When the time came to try again, the conditions of trial were somewhat different. Now, instead of collective listening, different members were delegated by the class to listen in their own homes or elsewhere and to report for discussion afterwards. This time the experiment was a success, and as a result the rural university came into being; for here was a new educational agency to complete those which were already functioning.

Candid friends had told the tutor that wireless would drive him out of a job, but he was able to laugh at them, for both he and his students had discovered that the more there was to help the class, the more he could help it. Previously, he himself had had to bear the main weight of the lecturing as well as act in the capacity of guide and critic. Now his position was more like that of a tutor within the university, who does not necessarily give all the lectures himself, but advises his students to go to Mr. So-and-So and Mr. Somebody-else.

Today, the tutor gets hold of the syllabus of the talks from the B.B.C. and says, 'I should advise you to listen to Mr. So-and-So and Mr. Somebody-else.' The class, then, as I have said, nominates certain of its members to bring the subject-matter of Mr. So-and-So's lecture before it, and when that is done, Mr. So-and-So is criticized or praised in a way which neither politeness nor his modesty would allow to be done to his face.

SOME B.B.C. programmes lend themselves more to this treatment than others; but the subject which this particular class happens to be studying is economics, which, whilst it covers a mass of indiscretions, opens out various possibilities, for there are so many questions allied to that of man in his 'business relations,' from problems of

THE SHEPHERD HEARS A SYMPHONY

LIVING in solitude, he had not dreamt
That music could be such, that all he loved—

The noise of running water, and the wind
Among the heather; tempest in the pines;
The piping of the curlew; flying light
And flying shadow over snowy fells;
The tremulous pale dawn; the evening
splendour;
Rain after drought; and thunder in the night;
Moonlight upon the lough; lone Hesperus;
The thronging lucencies of midnight stars;
The loneliness, the ecstasies, the laughter,
And all the dreams and passions of his heart,
Could thus be woven in a magic web
To hold him rapt, while it revealed the secret
Of life and death and immortality.

the mind to those of food; from international problems to the domestic ones of primitive man. After all, too, groups of students like the one I have in mind have one great advantage over the students in the university itself: they have not to go in for examinations. They can, therefore, give their whole time to education.

Well, here is the rural university in the being and in the making. Let us realize that radio will be what we make it. We won't all make of it the same thing, and we shall put it to different uses, and we can't be too thankful for that fact. What we want is variety in life, and the rural university says experiment, experiment, and again experiment.

A Breath of Fresh Air.

A. Bonnet Laird, well known for his broadcast talks, comments upon some of the many interesting letters he has recently received from Nature-lovers.

War on the Buzzard.

LAST year, along the cliffs adjoining the Salcombe estuary (writes a Devon reader) I witnessed repeated attacks on a male and female buzzard by the birds nesting along the sea-front.

I presume the buzzards were searching for a suitable spot to rear their young. As they passed along the coast, seagulls would soar, screaming, to the attack. Every time the buzzards crossed the estuary a particular sparrow-hawk would rise from the Prawle side, and it was a thrilling sight to watch the hawk manoeuvring to a high point for its sudden swoop.

It swooped repeatedly at one or the other, and each time the particular buzzard would turn over on its back in mid air to meet the attack with beak and claws.

Once I saw a number of gulls, by their combined onset, beat down the smaller bird, and it took refuge in a cleft in the cliff. The gulls made tangent swoops and endeavoured to worry it out.

The effortless circling flight of the two birds, as they rose to a higher level to avoid these attacks, reminded me of eagles. They went up and up until they were mere specks in the sky.

A curious feature was the great unrest created by the presence of the buzzards upon the smaller types of birds, whose uneasy flights and cries of alarm added to the general turmoil.

A Mother's Tragedy.

There is an element of tragedy in an incident recorded by J. B. (Derbyshire).

Walking with a friend, owner of a noted ratting terrier, he came on a small tub, which proved to contain a full-grown rat and one young one. The moment the dog put its muzzle over the edge of the tub, the mother rat turned suddenly and killed its offspring; then faced the terrier—and the inevitable.

When Robbers Fall Out.

A forty-minute fight between a rat and several crows, on the roof of a house at Aberystwyth, is chronicled by S. P.

Just as the rat was making his way across the roof, the crows spied him; darted at him first in feigned attacks, swerving just out of reach of his snapping jaws.

Then they began more seriously to attack in pairs; one lunging at him in front while, as he sprang forward, the other darted its beak into his side.

At last the rat was forced down to the gutter at the edge of the roof.

Still its pursuers followed, till it made a desperate plunge and fell dead on the ground twenty-five feet below.

Coming to the Microphone.

A Glance at Future Programmes.

LORD D'ABERNON, President of the Lawn Tennis Association, is visiting the LONDON Studio on Saturday, May 28, when he will be heard in the early evening sports talk.

Lord D'ABERNON.

Lord D'Abernon has had a distinguished career and was until recently British Ambassador in Berlin, where he was responsible for the smooth running of our after-the-war affairs. He was chairman of the Central Control Board (Liquor Traffic) from 1915 to 1920, and before taking up politics in 1899, did important work in connection with financial problems in the Near East. Lord D'Abernon's talk is of particular interest in view of the proximity of the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Championships, on which, as already stated, it is hoped to broadcast running commentaries.

A health talk, which Dr. Adolph Abrahams is giving at the Caxton Hall, Westminster, in connection with the Westminster Hospital Health Week, between 12.30 and 1 p.m. on Tuesday, May 31, is to be broadcast from London.

A NOVEL programme constructed on a series of incidents from the records of the Royal Hospital, Chelsea, and reminiscences of pensioners of that institution, will be broadcast from LONDON and other stations on Tuesday, May 31. It has been arranged by Mr. Amyas Young, and will be presented in the form of short episodes after the style of Regimental Reminiscences. A wealth of material is available for such a programme, including the legend of the foundation of the Hospital by Charles II, the tomb of William Hiseland, who died at the age of 113 after serving eighty years in the Army, the record of Thomas Rosewarne, who objected to surrendering because the enemy commander was of such small stature; and the memorial to the Birkenhead casualties, survivors of which ended their days in the Hospital. The programme will be carried out by selected artists, assisted by the Wireless Military Band, under the direction of Flight-Lieut. John Amers, and members of the Wireless Chorus.

Those who are contemplating a holiday abroad should listen for a talk from London on Tuesday, May 24, by Mr. Geoffrey Edwards, who will describe the attractions of Tyrol.

A RECITAL of Hebridean songs by Miss Margaret Stephen, with harp accompaniment by Miss Winifred Cockerill, will be given from BIRMINGHAM on Wednesday, May 25. Miss Stephen is the daughter of Mr. David Stephen, Director of Music to the Carnegie Trust, and Miss Cockerill is harpist in the City of Birmingham Orchestra. Another interesting programme from the Birmingham Studio on the following Friday will include a recital of Russian folk songs by Miss Elsie Gaskell, who received her musical education at the Royal College of Music, London, and studied under Alberto Visotti.

Miss MARGARET STEPHEN.

TWO notable events in the programme of the Buxton and North Derbyshire Musical Festival, an event which attracts large numbers of competitors from all parts of the country, are to be relayed from the Pavilion, Buxton, and broadcast through the MANCHESTER Station, on Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon, May 28 and 29. The first consists of the final test pieces sung by the several prize winners; the other is a portion of the Hymn Singing Festival, to be conducted by Sir Ivor Atkins, Organist of Worcester Cathedral since 1897. Sir Ivor will preface each hymn with explanations.

'Cambria,' a cantata by Owen M. Edwards, one of the lesser-known compositions of Joseph Parry, which was first performed at the National Eisteddfod, Llandudno, in 1896, will be broadcast from Swansea, on Monday, May 23.

EMPIRE Day, May 24, will be celebrated by special evening transmissions from LONDON and other stations. Between 6 and Dame CLARA BUTT.

6.30 and 6.45 and 7 p.m. a community singing concert, arranged in connection with the Daily Express, will be relayed from a spot near the Serpentine in Hyde Park, during which Dame Clara Butt will sing as solos Land of Hope and Glory, Jerusalem, Rule Britannia and O God Our Help in Ages Past. The community singing items which will be broadcast are Tipperary, Annie Laurie, and Drink to me only with Thine Eyes. Subsequently a special concert has been arranged to take place in the Kingsway Hall, to which the public will be admitted at popular prices. It will consist of stirring music played by the Wireless Orchestra and items by Percy Hemming (baritone), Leslie England (the Australian pianist), Elsie Playfair (the Canadian violinist), and Stella Murray (the New Zealand contralto). Listeners will also hear more community singing. At 9 p.m., during an interval in the concert, the Prime Minister, the Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, M.P., will give a talk on Empire Day. Those who have heard Mr. Baldwin on previous occasions will know how admirably his voice and personality are suited to the microphone.

Flight-Lieut. J. H. Amers, Musical Director of the Royal Air Force, will be the guest conductor of the Wireless Military Band when it gives a programme from London on Tuesday, May 31.

THE Air Ministry talk at 7.45 p.m. on Wednesday, May 25, is to take the form of a dialogue between Captain D. Sinclair, an aircraft wireless expert, and Captain F. L. Barnard, the well-known pilot, who will discuss the fascinating subject of 'Flying by Wireless.' It is worth recording that this dialogue would have taken place several months ago had not unforeseen circumstances prevented it. This is the third occasion on which definite dates have been fixed by Captains Sinclair and Barnard, previous arrangements failing to materialize owing to one or other of the airmen being abroad on flying duty.

DUBLIN is the city chosen for the second talk in the Capitals of Europe series, which Mr. Stephen Gwynn is giving from the LONDON Studio at 9.20 p.m. on Thursday, May 26. Few people know Dublin, and indeed Ireland, better than Mr. Gwynn, who was Nationalist M.P. for Galway between 1906 and 1918. He was a member of the Irish Convention, 1917-18, and has written extensively on Irish history and politics. The following evening Professor George Gordon is giving a talk on Lamb's Letters in the series on Companionable Books. In a previous talk Professor Gordon brought to the notice of listeners Lamb's best-known volume, The Essays of Elia. His 'Letters,' though perhaps not so well known, are written in quite as charming a vein of humour.

Mr. STEPHEN GWYNN.

A repeat performance of excerpts from the Wartime revue, 'Bubbly,' will be broadcast from London and other stations, by arrangement with Mr. Andre Charlot, on Wednesday, June 8. The revue will be interpolated with sketches.

AN important item in the LONDON programme between 10.40 and 11 p.m. on Tuesday May 31, will be a recital of old Spanish keyboard music given by Joaquin Nin, a famous pianist from that country. Nin, formerly a pupil of Moszkowski in Paris and of Vidiella in Barcelona, is not only a fine player; he has long been regarded as an authoritative editor and exponent of old Spanish music—a branch of the subject on which very little is known in England, even by the musician and the antiquarian. Nin has carried out important researches in his native country, unearthing many forgotten treasures. In an age when so much interest is being devoted to our own British music of other days, a recital of that of Spain should be of special interest. As a solo pianist he has toured Europe; he is equally well known as the author of a book on musical aesthetics, entitled Pour l'Art.

The next relay from Covent Garden Opera House takes place on Monday evening, May 30, when Act III of Meyerbeer's 'The Huguenots' will be broadcast from London and all stations.

A SPECIAL Empire Day programme from PLYMOUTH will include items by Mr. Herbert Simmonds (baritone), who will be paying his first visit to the West Country Station. Mr. Simmonds appeared in The Immortal Hour at the Regent Theatre, London, and has sung at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden, and the Royal Albert Hall. He has also been associated with the 'Old Vic' Opera Company and the Birmingham Repertory Company's opera productions. His songs will include The Old Superb (Stanford), Hymn Before Action (Walford Davies) and The Yeomen of England (Ed. German). The programme will be varied by special music by the Station Orchestra, directed by Miss Winifred Grant, and items by Clapham and Dwyer, who amongst other things will discuss 'Empires.'

Mr. H. SIMMONDS.

The Art of Eating.

One of the Prize-Winning Essays.

THE prizes in the Prose and Verse Competition No. IV—for an Essay on Eating, in not more than 500 words of English prose, which might include at least two illustrative quotations from the poets—were divided between Captain C. H. Trehane, Hillcroft, Ringwood, Hants, and Mr. H. S. Reid, Pamphill, Wimborne, Dorset. Miss Royde-Smith read the former essay when broadcasting the results of the competition on April 29, and in the course of her report she observed 'there is one quotation which has been made by two competitors, neither of whom developed the most singular reflection on eating contained by it. For is not the whole mystery of food conveyed in that amusing rhyme from Mr. Walter de la Mare's 'Peacock Pie,' which begins:—

'It's a very odd thing,
Just as odd as can be,
That whatever Miss T. eats
Turns into Miss T. !'

Mr. H. S. Reid's prize-winning essay follows:—

EATING is the universal art. Not music; for music excludes the deaf. We all practise eating, and all our ancestors practised it before us. Yet our technique is still imperfect.

How to eat is a comparatively simple problem. It is settled by tribal custom. The prioress who—

'... leet no morsel from hir lippes falle
Ne wette hir fingres in hir sauce depe,' was not merely obeying her own nice instincts. She had been 'wel y-taught' by an initiate. Crabbe's young lady—

'Cut the sanguine flesh in frustums fine'

because she had learnt to do it at her boarding-school; and we know that many of those wild Eastern tribesmen who eat, like angels,

'With the keen dispatch
Of real hunger,'

exaggerate that keen dispatch out of regard for their own barbarous code of civility. Much to be pitied are those individuals who live at a moment when their nation is passing from one custom to another; doubts about the propriety of eating peas with a knife must have poisoned many a meal.

When to eat is a more complicated question. Henry King, who died from chewing bits of string, once declared:—

'That Breakfast, Dinner, Lunch and Tea
Are all the human frame requires,'

and Custom, on the whole, sanctions his opinion. But Economic Pressure sometimes makes it hard to carry into practice; while Religion, bidding the Mohammedan fast from sunrise to sunset in Ramadan, actually opposes it. The voice of Science is loud but uncertain; it is expressed through too many channels, and the public is left bewildered. Light lunch, or light supper? Breakfast, or no breakfast? Little and often, or one good meal a day?

What to eat, is worse. That is decided by Custom, which allowed snails to the Romans; or by Religion, which forbids beef to the Hindu; by Individual Taste, when the individual is strong-minded; by Economic Pressure, which regulates the quantity and quality of what a man can buy; or by Science, which is more confusing here than ever. Is milk poison? Is brown bread more dangerous than white? Is charcoal nourishing? Should we eat meat? Should we eat raw cabbage? Should we abandon eating, and merely live, like Mrs. Anne Killigrew's morals,

'By great examples daily fed'?

On the whole, it seems probable that eating is not a progressive art. Preserved foods and substitutes have spoiled our palates; soap suds crudely flavoured serve us for whipped cream, and only the patentees know what we eat for custard. If we, in the West, have discovered a few new flavours, like that of the banana, we have lost others more subtle. Standardization has set in. Cookery has long been infected with it, and now the very fruits of the earth forget, as it were, their local dialects: those dialects that, in their variety, once made gastronomy respectable and travel charming. Already the townsman knows only one kind of dessert apple, yellow and shiny, with scarlet facings. Soon, one kind of everything will be everywhere.

H. S. REID.

ON Friday evening, May 13, at 9.20, Miss Royde-Smith will broadcast from London and Daventry the sixth of her series of Prose and Verse Competitions. This time she is offering a prize of Two Guineas for the best set of Six Thoughts of a Man who has Just Missed the Last Train Home.

These six thoughts must be expressed in not less than 50 and not more than 250 words in all. Competitors are asked to observe carefully the following rules which govern these competitions.

(1) All entries must be written on one side of the paper only, and the name and address of the competitor must appear at the top left-hand corner of each page. Where more than one page is used the pages must be carefully numbered and pinned together.

(2) Where a word-limit is given, every fifty words must be clearly marked off in red.

(3) Entries need not be typewritten, but if they are written by hand, neatness and legibility will be taken into account in awarding the prize.

(4) Competitors may, if they choose, use a pseudonym or pen-name. This must be written in block letters at the top left-hand corner of each page of the entry.

(5) Entries should reach the B.B.C. office in envelopes marked in the top left-hand corner 'Prose and Verse Competition,' and addressed B.B.C., Savoy Hill, London, W.C.2, by the first post on Friday, May 20, but entries arriving up to noon will be forwarded to the examiner.

(6) A full report of the competition will be broadcast from the London and Daventry Stations on Friday, May 27, at 9.20 p.m., and the prize-winning entry will subsequently be published in The Radio Times.

(7) Copies of the report will be sent on receipt of 3d. and a stamped addressed envelope. Applications for this report must not be sent with entries for the prize, but in separate envelopes marked 'Competitions Report.'

(8) The Competition Judge's decision will be final, and it should be noted that no correspondence can be entered into respecting the award of any prize.

BROADCASTING AND THE PRESS.

In his address as Chairman at the recent Annual Meeting of the Press Association, Sir Charles Hyde, proprietor of The Birmingham Post, and other newspapers, said:—

'I have always been strongly of the opinion that there is room for both newspapers and broadcasting, and have urged that the claims of the general public must receive every consideration. One of the most thrilling half-hours I have ever spent was on the occasion of the broadcasting of the last Boat Race—not until then did I realize how wonderful wireless is, and how more wonderful it may become. Broadcasting has come to stay, and the newspapers must realize the fact.'

A Look Ahead.

News and Notes from the Stations.

Liverpool.

'The East Through English Eyes' is the title of the programme arranged for Tuesday, May 31. Its principal feature will be the song-cycle In a Persian Garden, by Liza Lehmann.

Plymouth.

Now that bathing is in full swing in the West Country, listeners will look forward to the first of two talks on 'Swimming,' which Miss Dorothy Punched, Chairman of the Devon County Amateur Swimming Association's Education Committee, is giving on Thursday, May 26.

Sheffield.

A short programme of suitable songs will be broadcast by Mr. Joseph Green (tenor) on Empire Day.

Solos and duets by Percy Kahn and Olive Kavann, and violin items by Issay Schlaen, will be heard in the local programme on Wednesday, May 25.

Bournemouth.

Some snapshots of the China Seas in the 'Sixties will be given in a talk by Mr. Herbert Fison, a retired master mariner, on Tuesday, May 24.

Listeners who may be curious to know why a small and rocky islet in the West Indies came to be gazetted as a Ship of War in the Royal Navy, should listen to Miss Ethel M. Hewitt's talk on Monday afternoon, May 23.

Birmingham.

The Station Pianoforte Sextet, a combination new to listeners, with the Station Repertory Choir and Vivien Lambelet, will undertake the evening programme on Sunday, May 22.

A talk on the relation of 'Character and Sportsmanship,' will be given by Mr. E. W. Gillett, who is an Oxford and Warwickshire County Hockey player, on Thursday evening, May 26.

Cardiff.

Some community singing in connection with the Mid-Somerset Musical Competitions, of which the Marquess of Bath, K.G., is the patron and Sir G. Duncan Grey, president, will be relayed from Weston-super-Mare, on Tuesday, May 31. The Prize-Winners' Concert in the Grand Pier Pavilion on the following day will also be broadcast.

Mr. F. E. Weatherly, K.C., is to be compère of a programme entitled 'The West Countree,' to be given on Tuesday, May 31, from Daventry as well as the local station. The programme will include songs by Herbert Heyner, bassoon solos by W. H. Lyons, items by Frank Tyley (entertainer), part songs by the Lyrian Singers, and some West Country stories by Mr. Weatherly.

Manchester.

A play entitled A Change of Spirit is to be broadcast on Wednesday evening, May 25.

Another popular vaudeville programme will make a good entry in your radio diary for 7.45 p.m. on Monday, May 23.

The Irwell Bank Band, Lily Allen and Lee Thistlethwaite, are contributors to a concert entitled 'Gems from the Light Operas,' arranged for Monday evening, May 23.

A special Empire Day concert is to include a repeat performance of the play Gentlemen, the King, by Campbell Todd. The play concerns the experiences of an old soldier in battles that are now red-letter days in British Empire History.

The 'Radio Times' Map of China

The crisis in China looms large in the News Bulletins that are broadcast from all Stations every evening at 6.30 and 9.0. A good, clear map such as the one on this page, which has been specially drawn for The Radio Times by Mr. J. F. Horrabin, is essential to every listener who wishes to gain a clear understanding of the march of events. With this map before you when you listen to the News, you will be able to follow the advance and retreat of the rival armies of the North and South in this significant and far-reaching conflict.

3.30 MENDELSSOHN'S 'ELIJAH'

An Oratorio

The Text from the Old Testament

DORA LABBETTE (Soprano)	MURIEL BRUNSKILL (Contralto)
SPENCER THOMAS (Tenor)	REX PALMER (Baritone)

THE WIRELESS CHORUS, THE WIRELESS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA (Leader, S. KNEALE KELLEY), Conducted by STANFORD ROBINSON

THIS, one of the two most popular oratorios of the world, received its first performance in Birmingham Town Hall just over eighty years ago. The Composer himself conducted, and his work gained immediate favour. Its fame quickly spread all over England.

A few years ago the Oratorio was staged and acted by the Moody Manners Opera Company—an event taking us back to the idea of the original Oratorios, which were developments of the religious dramas of the Middle Ages.

The work outlines the great prophet's meditations between God and the Israelites. Besides ELIJAH, the chief characters are OBADIAH, an ANGEL, the WIDOW whose son Elijah restores to life, the BOY whom Elijah sends to seek signs of coming rain, KING AHAB and the QUEEN.

To soloists are also allotted various parts such as those of TWO WOMEN OF ISRAEL and of ANGELS. The Chorus generally represents the ISRAELITES, but also such different characters as the PROPHETS OF BAAL and ANGELS.

Neither is the whole Oratorio, nor are Parts One and Two, written in an unbroken, continuous flow, but rather in a number of set pieces, which we may classify as follows:—

(1) Choruses, which generally express the prayers, praises or comments of the People; (2) Solo pieces as follows: (a) Recitatives, or free musical recitation of the narrative. (The accompaniment is sometimes no more than a mere support, sometimes slightly fuller and more descriptive; in any case, in the Recitatives the words take precedence); (b) Airs, or definite songs in which the music takes precedence. (3) Ensembles—Duets, Trios, etc., in which the Soloists unite, and sometimes (one or more of them) combine with the Chorus.

PART I

The score opens with a brief INTRODUCTION, in which Elijah declaims the words: 'As God the Lord of Israel liveth, before Whom I stand, there shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to my word.'

This is followed by the OVERTURE, a lengthy orchestral piece which Mendelssohn added as an afterthought.

This leads direct into the Opening Chorus. The Israelites are bewailing the famine which is spreading over the land.

Next Elijah, at the bidding of an Angel, departs to the brook Cherith, and thence to Zarephath, where he restores the Widow's son to life.

Next follow King Ahab's accusation of Elijah as responsible for the lack of rain, the downfall of the Priests of Baal, the triumph of Elijah, and the coming of rain, with the rejoicings of the Israelites.

4.30 app. TALES FROM THE OLD TESTAMENT

The Call of Samuel (1 Samuel, Ch. ii, 18-19; Ch. iii, 1-21)

Two of the singers in Mendelssohn's 'Elijah,' to be broadcast from London this afternoon. On the left Miss Dora Labbette, and on the right Miss Muriel Brunskill.

4.40 app. ELIJAH (Continued) PART II

Almost at the opening of the Second Part Elijah prophesies against King Ahab, and is threatened by the Queen.

The rest of the work is almost taken up by Elijah's flight into the wilderness, his weariness of life, and his hearing of the Voice of God.

The final numbers refer to Elijah's ascension into Heaven, and end with a Chorus of Thanksgiving.

Those who wish to know something of Mendelssohn's life and works may care to hear of one or two useful books. The best study of the Composer is that in the eighty-column article by Grove in his Dictionary of Music. Small books are Stratton's Mendelssohn (Dent, 4s. 6d.) and Blackburn's Mendelssohn (Bell, 1s. 6d.). Parry's Studies of Great Composers (Routledge, 6s.) has a chapter on Mendelssohn, and so has Mason's The Romantic Composers (Macmillan, 10s. 6d.). In Dannreuther's discussion of The Romantic Period (Oxford History of Music, Vol. 6, Oxford University Press, 25s.) Mendelssohn may be studied against the background of his time.

5.30-6.0 A CHILDREN'S SERVICE

From St. John's Church, Smith Square, Conducted by the Rev. Canon C. S. WOODWARD

THIS Sunday the Children's Service will be relayed from that strange-looking church hidden away in the little square behind the precincts of Westminster Abbey—the church that has been not unfairly described as a giant dining-table upside down. Canon Woodward, its Rector, is well known to the radio congregation, as he has conducted similar services from Westminster Abbey.

THE GREAT COURT OF TRINITY.

The evening service from Trinity College Chapel, Cambridge, is to be broadcast by London Station today. The above drawing—by Mr. Edmund H. New—shows the great Court of the College which, gay with flowers and the music of fountains, is one of the loveliest in either of the great Universities.

7.5 A RELIGIOUS SERVICE

Hymn, 'O Worship the King' (A. and M. 167)

8.0 In the Studio. Address by Mr. CARL HEATH, of the Friends' Council for International Service

THE oldest 'May Meeting' in the world opens next Friday, when the Society of Friends holds its 260th yearly meeting at its new headquarters in the Euston Road. It is appropriate, therefore, that there should be a Quaker speaker tonight.

Mr. HEATH.

Mr. Carl Heath is Secretary of the Friends' Council for International Service, and he is particularly in touch with Quaker work in Europe, where his idea of 'Quaker Embassies' has led to the formation of centres in Paris, Geneva, Vienna, Berlin, Warsaw, and other cities. He is the author of several books, including one on 'Religion and Public Life.'

Eternal Father (Tune, Melita)

8.55 THE WEEK'S GOOD CAUSE: Appeal on behalf of the London Children's Gardens and Recreation Fund by Sir JOHNSTON FORBES-ROBERTSON

THIS fund exists to provide outdoor recreation, after school hours, for children in the poorest districts of London. It maintains gardens, kitchen gardens and playgrounds in such quarters as the Harrow Road, Euston Crescent, Stepney and St. Pancras, where children have a chance to spend their playtime amongst good soil and growing things instead of the usual surroundings of doorsteps, dustbins and rubbish-dumps.

Contributions should be sent to Mr. J. B. Davy, at 53, Queensborough Terrace, W.2.

8.55 Appeal by Dame MADGE KENDAL on behalf of Queen Charlotte's Maternity Hospital

Dame MADGE KENDAL.

THREE thousand English mothers yearly die in child-birth. Many more lose their health just at the time when it is most essential for the well-being of the race that they should be able to give their children the utmost care. Queen Charlotte's, the premier national maternity hospital and training school, is fighting to improve this situation, and it has done great work both directly and by its training of doctors and nurses. But it is fighting against antiquated conditions and cramped quarters: the present buildings were erected in 1854. The hospital already owns the land for the extension that is the object of tonight's appeal, and £250,000 is needed to complete the work.

Dame Madge Kendal, who makes the appeal, is one of the great actresses whose name will always live in the annals of the British stage. Her beautiful voice will rouse echoes in the memories of many listeners tonight.

Contributions should be addressed to the Secretary, Queen Charlotte's Hospital, at the New Building Headquarters, 5, Cosway Street, Marylebone Road, London.

Promoted to General Manager.

Great Tribute to Pelmanism— "You Showed Me How."

"IT is with feelings of great pleasure I am writing to inform you that I have been promoted to the position of General Manager. When I took up the Pelman Course I knew I had the abilities to succeed, but truly, you showed me how." (F. 32.210.)

This letter is one of the thousands of similar messages received by the Pelman Institute from all parts of the world.

Even the most cursory glance through the daily correspondence of the Institute reveals the fact that Pelmanism is accomplishing a most wonderful work in training the minds, improving the prospects and increasing the happiness of thousands of men and women of all ranks, ages and conditions, engaged in practically every known Profession, Trade and Industry in the world.

Many most interesting examples of this will be found in a little book entitled "The Efficient Mind," which any reader may obtain to-day, free of cost.

Amongst the failings and weaknesses rapidly and permanently removed by Pelmanism are—

- | | |
|-----------------|----------------|
| Forgetfulness | Indecision |
| Depression | Moodiness |
| Timidity | Diffidence |
| Lost Confidence | Will-Weakness |
| Brain-Fag | Mind-Wandering |

"By means of Pelmanism," writes an Insurance Clerk, "I have banished Forgetfulness, Brain-Fag, Depression, Inertia, Want of Energy, Lack of Ideas and Mental Stagnation."

Lord Walsingham's High Praise.

But Pelmanism does more than this. Based on the soundest Psychological principles it provides a system which enables you to train your mind scientifically, to increase your Efficiency and your Earning-Power and to develop such valuable business-like qualities as—

- | | |
|--------------------|----------------------|
| — Concentration | — Self-Confidence |
| — Initiative | — Resourcefulness |
| — Driving Power | — Personal Magnetism |
| — Salesmanship | — Presence of Mind |
| — Organising Power | — Reliability |
| — Will-Power | — A Reliable Memory |

and many others equally useful and important.

"If every person in the country were a Pelmanist," writes Lord Walsingham, "that is, had gone through the Pelman Course, and applied its principles and system to his or her daily life, we should be a thoroughly well-educated and well-organised race, and beyond measure superior to what we are in keeping our position and influence in the world."

This is high praise. But not too high, as everyone who has taken up Pelmanism or read the account of the revised Pelman Course given in "The Efficient Mind" will agree.

Pelmanism is extremely interesting. It takes up very little time and can be practised either in the evenings or in spare moments during the day. The revised course is fully described in "The Efficient Mind." This Course embodies the results of the latest discoveries in Psychology, and is based on the experience gained by the Institute in the course of training the minds of over 500,000 people. You can now enrol for a course of Pelmanism on especially convenient terms. The book is Free, and you can obtain a copy either by calling for it, or by writing for it to-day to the Pelman Institute, 95, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street London, W.C.1. The book will be sent you by return, gratis and post free. Write or call for this Free Book to-day.

expression of feeling than painting.' The 'Storm' music, however, is thoroughly realistic. It forms the Fourth Movement of the Symphony, interrupting a country-dance-like Movement that suggests 'A Village Festival.'

PIANO PLAYING WITHOUT DRUDGERY

THE "FROM BRAIN TO KEYBOARD" SYSTEM

is not merely a series of practice-saving Exercises but a complete System of Touch and Technique. Read these three extracts from Pupils' Reports. I have many hundreds of these to show to intending pupils.

"I have felt immense advantage from the Course and have played in public pieces of which I previously had no hope."

"I may say I have made rapid improvement this last three or four weeks and am playing difficult orchestral programmes with ease and confidence at sight, and without rehearsals."

"As for my Violin playing, I had given up all hopes of ever playing solos again, but I am pleased to say that next week I am playing the Mendelssohn and Max Bruch Concertos at a recital. This is due to your wonderful system."

Send to-day for my illustrated booklet "Light on Pianoforte Playing." It explains my system fully and gives details of fees and postal lessons. Many eminent musicians including the late Sir Frederick Bridge have used my system.

When writing, be sure you say whether you are an Average or Advanced Player; or if a Beginner whether you can or cannot play at sight a simple hymn tune. The book will be sent free of charge and post free, from

Relayed from Victoria Station

COMMENTATOR: MR. LESLIE HORE-BELISHA, M.P.

THIS is the first official visit to this country since the War of a President of the French Republic. Accompanied by M. Briand, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, the President will be received at Victoria Station by His Majesty the King.

From a window overlooking the arrival platform the commentator, Mr. Hore-Belisha, will have a splendid view of the arrival of the special train and the scene on the red-carpeted platform. After the formalities of the reception are over, the President will inspect a Guard of Honour in the courtyard outside the station. In describing the scene here, the commentator will have an easier task, as his remarks will be supported by the stirring sounds of the Marseillaise, the cheers of the crowd waiting outside and the sharp snap of the rifles coming to the 'Present!'

THE number of things that can go wrong in the course of an ordinary day's housework has frequently amazed the innocent man who has been left alone for a day or two to look after himself. Saucepans boiling over, joints burning, milk going sour, the cat getting the fish, the bung coming out of the beer barrel—all these are amongst the disasters that the housekeeper may have to encounter in the day. Some of them cannot be avoided, and some cannot be repaired, but there are emergencies that can be foreseen, and Miss Marjorie Claire Grey will give some useful hints on what to do in some of these tight corners, in her talk today.

about a dozen years, he almost entirely ceased to write music for the Pianoforte alone, his next work (Op. 76, in 1879) being a set of eight pieces, four entitled Capriccio and four Intermezzo. The titles broadly indicate the two types of piece, the one brisk or vigorous, the other quieter.

These titles, with Rhapsody (thrice), Ballad and Romance (once each) are the only names Brahms gave to the thirty pieces that constitute the bulk of his middle and later period Piano music—a collection of works, mostly in simple forms, that abound in interest and vitality, and in emotional breadth and purity. In this, as in most of Brahms' music, the emotion is not superficial.

Brahms was fond of internal melodies and cross-rhythms (for example, two notes to a beat in one hand against three to the beat in the other), and to the lyrical beauty of his music is added a bracing ruggedness of outline.

The first piece, the B Minor Rhapsody, shows not only the healthy energy and breadth that distinguish Brahms, but an interesting and rather unusual form of building up a fairly short piece, which is a splendid example of combined inspiration and workmanship.

The Capriccio in B Minor, a great favourite, is one of the Composer's daintiest pieces.

9.20 Mr. ROBERT LYND: 'The Importance of Idleness'

Mr. ROBERT LYND.

IDLENESS is a quality too little esteemed in these days of (often purposeless) activity, hurry and rush. Mr. Robert Lynd is an admirable person to defend it. An essayist of peculiar individuality, he has the somewhat Lamb-like characteristic of regarding the fret and worry of the world indulgently, but from a niche apart. Actually, he demonstrates in himself how far removed is idleness from laziness, for he is Literary Editor of The Daily News, his weekly essays, under a nom de plume, are a distinguished feature of The New Statesman, and he has published many books.

by
Mrs. POLLARD
(Winner of the Leicester Mercury Competition)

A FEW months ago the Leicester Mercury organized a competition amongst its readers, inviting them to submit their ideas of a good evening's broadcast programme. The Adjudication Committee, which was thoroughly representative, including a solicitor, a housewife, a postman, a housemaid, a magistrate, a woman secretary, a tramway official, a retired schoolmaster, a minister of religion, a policeman and a nurse, awarded the first prize to Mrs. Pollard for the programme that will be broadcast tonight.

3.10 BROADCAST TO SCHOOLS: Prof. W. M. TATTERSALL, 'Life on the Seashore—Starfishes and Sea-Urchins'

WHICH of us cannot remember the thrill with which we first found a starfish on the seashore, and wondered what it was? In many ways, the starfish is as wonderful to the zoologist as it is to the child. This is the common starfish, one of the strange forms of life of the seashore about which Professor Tattersall will talk to Cardiff school children today.

3.30 AN AFTERNOON CONCERT

THE STATION ORCHESTRA, conducted by WARWICK BRAITHWAITE

Overture to 'The King's Lieutenant' Suppé
Suite, 'Impressions of Italy' Charpentier

THE young Charpentier, having won at the Paris Conservatoire the premier prize in composition (the 'Prix de Rome') went, under the terms of the award, to study in Italy, and it was there that he thought out the five pieces comprising an Italian Suite. The printed score contains descriptions of each of the pieces.

I. Serenade. Young men coming from the inns are ardently singing beneath the windows of their sweethearts songs that have a trace of sadness. They are answered by mandolines and guitars.

II. At the Fountain. Grave, graceful girls move towards the ravine where the cascades flow, bearing pitchers on their heads. From the hill-sides come the gay songs of the shepherds.

III. On Mule-back. Toward evening, on the road that winds round the Sabine hills, the mules trot along to the music of their jingling bells. We hear the muleteer's song ('Cello') and the tender songs of girls.

IV. On the Heights. Noon in the Desert of Sorrento, the height that overlooks the town. We see the sun-scathed country through a haze of heat, and hear the joyous bird-songs and the distant monastery bell.

V. Naples—its population, its outdoor life and joyousness.

7.45 TWO PLAYS BY EDWIN LEWIS

EDWIN LEWIS is a Yorkshireman by birth.

At an early age he sold papers in a big industrial town, and for three years he worked, outside school hours, as a lather-boy. At the age of fourteen he worked in a coal mine, and he has since slung bricks, melted steel, written poetry, served as a soldier during the war and generally had an exceedingly varied career. He believes that there is a great future in the new medium of broadcast drama and is devoting much attention to the technique required for this special form of play.

'THE REED IN THE WOOD'

A new Romany Romance specially written for Broadcasting, by EDWIN LEWIS

Characters (in order of speaking):

Cathleen Carnetti, Seth Carnetti,

Naomi Laplaux, Simon Robins

Mad Martin

UNDER the shelter of the trees, in a woodland glade, on a late midsummer's night, two tents are pitched. In the foreground a log fire burns fitfully in the light breeze.

The still form of Cathleen Carnetti, who is sitting before the fire, completes a picture of romantic beauty. Her face is of the colour of ripe maple, with a hardness round the mouth that suggests its own story of wandering, fighting and struggling. She draws a gleaming knife from her waistband, and staring fixedly before her, speaks.

The Cast includes:

HYLDA METCALF, ELLA FORSYTH, D. E.

ORMEROD, FRANK NICOLLS and E. H.

BRIDGSTOCK

Musical Interlude

'MANAGING MARGARET'

A Comedy by EDWIN LEWIS

Characters (in order of speaking):

Sarah Brown (a North Country Miner's Wife)

Margaret Spikesley (Her Unmarried Sister)

Bill Brown (Her Husband)

Herbert Brown (Her Son)

SARAH is intent on her sewing. The patch she is weaving into Herbert's second pair trousers claims her undivided attention, so that to her, Margaret's monotonous, affected voice seems a long way off.

Margaret, bobbed and bedecked in a georgette afternoon frock, is reading out loud from the latest fashionable novel.

The Cast includes:

MARY EASTWOOD, LUCIA ROGERS, CHARLES

NESBITT, and E. H. BRIDGSTOCK

WILLIAM BLAKE.

OF recent years there has been a marked revival of interest in William Blake, amounting almost to a cult. Numerous expensive editions of his works have been produced, and they are prized by the discerning more for the reproductions of Blake's engravings and paintings than for their interpretations of his mystic poetry. Great as Blake undoubtedly was as a poet, it is as an artist that he is most easily appreciated by the unmythically-minded, and it is as an artist that Mrs. Andrews will talk of him tonight.

THEY'RE OFF!

The Derby, from start to finish, will be broadcast this year (Wednesday, June 1). There will be an introductory description by Mr. George F. Allison, who broadcast the Cup Final, and the race itself will be described by Mr. Geoffrey H. Gilbey—the original 'Tattenham' of The Sunday Express, the new 'Larry Lynx' of The People, and one of the most celebrated of sporting journalists. Don't miss hearing his second-to-second story of the race of the year.

- 6.30 TIME SIGNAL, GREENWICH; WEATHER FORECAST, FIRST GENERAL NEWS BULLETIN
- 6.45 THE WEST LONDON CONCERT ORCHESTRA (Continued)
- 7.0 Mr. ELLIOTT O'DONNELL: 'A Night in an American Forest'

ALTHOUGH he is best known as a ghost-hunter—a pursuit that he has conducted for many years, and about which he has written many interesting books—Mr. Elliott O'Donnell will talk this evening about the ordinary physical terrors of being lost at night in a forest in the Rockies, buried in a leafy darkness peopled with such undesirable neighbours as rattlesnakes and grizzly bears.

- 7.15 BRAHMS
Played by LAFFITTE
Two Ballads:
Op. 10, No. 1 ('Edward'); Op. 118, No. 3

THE first of the four Ballads that make up Brahms' Op. 10 is described as 'After the Scottish ballad Edward'—the words of which the Composer later set as one of his Ballads and Romances (Op. 75). This ancient tale, the spirit of which is caught in the piece we are to hear, is found in Percy's Reliques. It is a dialogue between a mother and her son. He comes in with reddened sword, and she anxiously asks what is the meaning of it. He says first that he has killed his steed. Pressed, he declares that he has killed his father. In the mother's heart fear and horror grow. He says he will 'fare over the sea,' leaving his wife and children for ever. 'And what will ye leave to your ain mither dear?' she tremblingly asks. In anger and despair the son cries out, 'The curse of hell frae me shall ye bear!'—for 'sic counsels ye gave to me.'

The later Ballad is one of the set of six pieces that make up Op. 118, written in 1893, the Composer's sixtieth year. It is short, crisp and vigorous, with a sweet lyrical interlude in the middle. A momentary reminiscence of this gentler strain forms its happy end.

- 7.25 Prof. D'ARCY THOMPSON: 'Nature and her Limitations: Limitations of Form.' S.B. from Edinburgh

IN his two previous talks, Professor D'Arcy Thompson has dealt with the limitations imposed by Nature on the size and speed of movement of living things. This evening he will consider the manifestation of the same principle which restricts the size of inanimate things so different as a raindrop and a star, and enter on the intricate problem of restrictions on form, taking as his illustration that familiar object, the soap-bubble.

This series of talks will now be suspended until the conclusion of Professor Turner's series on the Total Eclipse, which begins next week. Professor D'Arcy Thompson will resume his series on July 5.

9.40 'THE FISHERMAN AND HIS SOUL'

(Oscar Wilde)

Read by CECIL LEWIS

WE have all heard stories of Oscar Wilde's brilliance as a talker, and his gift of epigram, of which we may have failed to find adequate evidence in his works. Another of his talents was that of improvisation, and many of his Prose Poems came into being originally in this way. The time when he was writing 'The Fisherman and his Soul' is said to have been the happiest in his life; he would sit and tell the story over and over again with innumerable variations, many of which do not appear in the final version. Nevertheless, the story as we have it is an exquisite piece of ornate and highly stylized writing, myth-like in conception and perfect in execution. Unfortunately, it is too long to be given in its entirety tonight, but the abridgments have been done in such a way that the sense and mood of the original have been fully preserved.

'BERGLIOT'

A Dramatic Recitation with Orchestral Accompaniment

Words by BJÖRNSTJERNE BJÖRNSEN. Set to Music by EDWARD GRIEG

Relayed to London

THE motive of this piece is found in a chapter in the Saga of Harold Hardrada. Bergliot, the wife of Einar Tambarskelvir, is represented lamenting the death of her husband and son, treacherously killed by King Harold, and urging her tribesmen to take vengeance. The tribesmen do not respond to her exhortations, and suddenly a change of mood comes over her; she realises that vengeance belonged to the days in which was worshipped Odin, the lord of Valhalla, whom she renounced in childhood; that, if vengeance is to be taken at all, it is not for her but for the new God of Nazareth to exact it.

Tuesday's Programmes continued (May 17)

PARKER LYNCH (Reciter)

THE AUGMENTED STATION ORCHESTRA

MR. PARKER LYNCH, who is reciting the story of Bergliot, is well known to theatre-goers, for he played the title-rôle in the revival of The White-headed Boy at the Aldwych Theatre in 1922, and has appeared in many other famous plays. This intensely dramatic poem gives full scope to his powers.

Symphonic Poem, 'Vltava' Smetana

VLTAVA is one of a set of Symphonic Poems celebrating the beauties of Smetana's native Bohemia. The Vltava (Moldau) is the chief river of the country, and here we follow its progress from its source in the depths of the forest until, after tumbling over rapids and streaming past frowning fortresses, it joins the Elbe as a broad, rolling river. It witnesses on the way typical scenes of Bohemian life—a hunt and a peasant wedding, and by moonlight it spies forest nymphs dancing in a glade.

Symphonic Poem, 'Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks' Strauss

IN the Prologue of his Symphonic Poem Strauss introduces Till Eulenspiegel to us as an attractive companion (the Violins speaking of this side of him) and as a gay spark (typified in the Horn's leaping theme).

His adventures include a mad ride through the market-place, upsetting everything, then a masquerade as a monk, preaching a mock sermon; next he falls in love, and after that meets and jibes at some stuffy pedants.

At the last he is tried and hanged; and in an Epilogue Strauss bids us remember the lovable side of the rogue.

'ON TOUR' THIS WEEK.

Who is she? London will hear her on Monday, Belfast on Tuesday, Bournemouth on Wednesday, Glasgow on Thursday, Cardiff on Friday, while on Saturday night she will be delighting Birmingham listeners. Her name is Lee Morse. She was born in Tennessee, so the darkie rongs are in her blood; she can sing them as no one else can. Be sure to listen to Miss Morse when she plays her guitar and sings songs that were sung round many a camp-fire in the old slave-days, instinct with the melancholy inherent in the Negro soul.

2.55 Reading, 'David Copperfield' (Charles Dickens)

3.0 Mr. AUBREY DE SELINCOURT, 'Three Plays of Shakespeare—III, Julius Caesar'

3.45 Prof. WINIFRED CULLIS: 'Health and Commonsense—III, Breathing'

IN the first two of her series of talks Professor Cullis dealt with the important question of what to eat and drink. She now proceeds to the equally fundamental matter of breathing. How many of us breathe healthily? Of course, in many of our English industrial towns we cannot hope to breathe the right things—the air is a compound of soot and chemicals from factory chimneys; but at least we can breathe the right way, and that is what Professor Cullis will tell us this afternoon how to do.

7.15 BRAHMS Played by LAFFITE

Intermezzo in A (Op. 118, No. 2)
Capriccio in D Minor (from Op. 116)

THE A Major Intermezzo is a capital example of Brahms' sentiment, that never drops into sentimentality. Its tender, caressing phrases show him in his happiest mood. The emotion is restrained, but surely felt.

Op. 116 contains six pieces under the general title of 'Fantasies,' of which two (Nos. 1 and 7) are Capriccios in D Minor. One of these is marked to be played 'very fast and with energy,' and the other 'quick, agitated.'

7.25 Prof. F. E. WEISS, F.R.S., 'Plant Communities—III, In Hedgerows.' S.B. from Manchester

THIS is the third of Professor Weiss's talks, in which he tells of the way in which plants adopt themselves to their neighbours in the plant community. In the hedgerows, for instance, with which he will deal today, the competition for light causes many of the smaller kinds to develop a twining habit, and they climb up on their taller rivals in order to reach the life-giving rays of the sun.

Piano Music by Gabriel Grovlez
Inspired by the Poems of Tristan Klingsor
The Poems read in English and French by MME. ALICE DE WALMONT
The Piano played by ADOLPHE HALLIS

THOUGH Gabriel Grovlez (born 1879) began his career as a concert Pianist, he has become best known as a Conductor of the Paris Opera and a Composer of songs, Pianoforte pieces, Symphonic Poems and Ballets. He has also collaborated in editing the great edition of Rameau's works, and has brought out two other excellent collections of old French Operatic airs and instrumental pieces.

'SUNKISS,' a wonderful hair dye, plays the leading rôle. Captain Betts made it, Lady Agatha used it, and yet when he looked at her hair he thought of the Tuscan Hills—at dawn. A case of capillary attraction. However, when she found out, and he found out, it didn't really matter. Besides, her family motto was 'Never say dye.'

Scene: The Hall Lounge at Bangalore, Mrs. Buxton's cottage near Dorking, on a sunny morning in September. In the distance Mrs. Buxton can be heard talking to the gardener.

THE STATION STRING ORCHESTRA, conducted by FREDERICK BROWN

Prelude to 'The Deluge' Saint-Saëns

THE DELUGE is an Oratorio based upon a poem by Louis Gallet. The Prelude may be taken as suggesting the idea of God's judgment on the world, and His reconciliation. A majestic, slow Introduction leads to a fugal section, which is followed by a gentle and peaceful songlike portion, concluding the Prelude.

Serenade Tchaikovsky

WRITING to his friend and benefactor, Madame von Meck, in 1880, Tchaikovsky said that his Muse had been very benevolent, for he had written two long works very rapidly. One was the 1812 Overture, of which he said, 'It has no great artistic value'; the other was the Serenade in C (his Op. 48), which, he says, 'on the contrary, I wrote from an inward impulse; I felt it.' It was one of the works he conducted in London in 1888, when he was paying his first visit to this country.

The Serenade contains four Movements—a piece in 'First Movement' form, with themes of an old-world cast; a Waltz; an Elegy; and a Finale based on folk-tunes, one a hauling song of the Volga Boatmen, and the other a street song.

FRANCISCO ALONSO.

OWING to an error in the 'Glance at Future Programmes' on page 585 of The Radio Times for March 18, the Spanish Musical Comedy music broadcast from London on April 14 was wrongly attributed to Senor Lamberto Alonzo, whose photograph accompanied the announcement. The music referred to was actually the work of Maestro Francisco Alonso, the popular Spanish composer (picture above).

- 6.20 THE LONDON RADIO DANCE BAND (Continued)
- 6.30 TIME SIGNAL, GREENWICH; WEATHER FORECAST, FIRST GENERAL NEWS BULLETIN
- 6.45 Lady BADEN-POWELL: 'Guiding in the Empire'
- 7.0 Mr. FRANCIS BIRRELL, 'I Wish I had Lived in the Eighteenth Century'

Mr. FRANCIS BIRRELL.

IN retrospect, the eighteenth century often seems the ideal epoch—one sees a vision of powder and patches, hoops and laced hats, wit and gallantry, a general impression of life being lived really well. There is a lot to be said for this view, in spite of the other side of the picture—Newgate and Bedlam, the slave-ship and the press-gang, impassable streets and highwaymen in the Kensington Road. But without doubt the period is the spiritual home of many of our present-day intellectuals, and Mr. Francis Birrell, the son of Mr. Augustine Birrell, and himself an essayist and literary critic of considerable reputation, is, by his own confession, one of them.

- 7.15 BRAHMS
Played by LAFITTE
(Intermezzo in E Flat (Op. 117, No. 1)
Rhapsody in G Minor (Op. 79, No. 2)

THE Intermezzo is headed by a quotation from one of Herder's Folk Songs—a German form of the Scots cradle song known as Lady Anne Bothwell's Lament (to be found in Percy's Relics of Ancient English Poetry). The lines (in the original Scots) begin:—

Balow, my babe, lye still and sleipe,
It grieves me sair to see thee weipe.

Brahms writes a lovely little lullaby, the middle part of which perhaps reflects the darker sentiments of the poem (the lady, with her child, had been deserted).

The G Minor Rhapsody is an impassioned utterance. The wide sweep of its melody (note its opening in an arpeggio, a favourite figure of Brahms), the leaping vigour of the succeeding passage, and the following curious portion, marked 'mysterious' (in which the opening arpeggio motif is heard softly in the bass), are striking elements in a piece of uncommon impressiveness.

- 7.25 Mr. D. A. ROSS, 'A Hundred Years of Working Class Progress: A Stake in the Country—1850-1878'

IN this, his third talk, Mr. Ross will discuss the Golden Age of Victorian Capitalism, when the skilled worker had attained an assured position, and could fairly claim to have 'a stake in the country.'

- 7.45 'THE LADY OF THE LAKE'

A condensed version of Sir Walter Scott's great poem, adapted for Broadcasting, introducing the following characters:—

Conducted by JOHN ANSELL

A CENTURY and a quarter ago Scott was arousing frenzied enthusiasm in literary circles, and reviving interest in the wilder periods of Scottish history, with his long narrative

THE BALLAD OF BLACK-EYED SUSAN.

Gay's delightful ballad is included in the programme of music by Alfred Reynolds that London Station is to broadcast tonight. This is the setting used in 'Riverside Nights,' that brilliant revue at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, and the picture shows Mr. George Baker as Sweet William, the part he will take tonight.

poems, of which 'The Day of the Last Minstrel,' 'Marmion,' and 'The Lady of the Lake' are the best known. This last, which is being broadcast tonight, is typical of the whole series—full of feats of arms, the rivalry of clans, combats between the Saxon and the Gael; and one could nowhere find a better gallery of Scott heroes than FitzJames, the Douglas, Malcolm Graeme and the redoubtable Highland chieftain, Roderick Dhu.

Home Dressmaking.

Miss Pauline Hardy's Talk from London and Daventry at 3.45 today.

LISTENERS will find the following hints, promised in our Talk on May 12, helpful in the finishing of the dress.

In cutting the crossway strips for the binding, there are two chief points to bear in mind: the strips must be on the true bias, and in joining pieces together the grain must match.

Crossway binds must be put on without stretching. A suitable width for the bind on this dress when finished would be from a quarter to a third of an inch. Both edges must be levelled and all joins well pressed before being tacked on to the garment. The best place to start, and afterwards to join and finish the bind round the neck, is on the shoulder, rather towards the back of the neck.

The bind can then be machined on, the turnings neatened by being folded under, leaving the bind at the required width, and being slipped down, the slipping stitches drawing the folded edge of the bind just sufficiently low to hide the line of machining.

For the front and sleeve-ends, from the crepe-de-Chine or georgette cut off a length (selvedge way) two inches longer than the front opening of the dress—measuring from the shoulder seam—and two inches wider than the width of the opening. This is the lining of the front.

For the front itself (pleated or tucked) cut another piece of the same length, but allow as much more in width as is necessary for the tucking or pleating.

For the collar—(about two and a half inches wide when finished)—a strip of material fifteen inches long and six inches wide will be necessary, cut to the thread.

Both front and front lining must have the centre marked and a slit made by cutting down on this line to the depth required for the opening, which when turned back with the collar forms the revers.

To join the collar to the front: the two extreme ends of the collar, on one edge, are to be pinned, one on each side of the slit, and then along to the end of the front (leaving just a quarter of an inch at these ends for neatening), then stitched and pressed. The other edge of the collar must be tacked to the lining, and stitched and pressed.

The cut edges of the slit and the collar ends will be in a line and can be tacked ready for stitching. Stitch the edges and turn the whole front on to the right side, and press the edges of the revers and collar absolutely evenly. The outside edges of the front and front lining can now be turned in towards each other and slipped round, and the two open edges at the back of the collar slipped together.

The sleeve ends are each made from a piece of material eighteen inches wide cut to a thread and folded in half; down the fold (which is selvedge way) measure nine inches and mark with a pin; down the cut edges mark seven inches. These cut edges, when joined, form the seam of the sleeve. The wrist band should be nine inches long on the selvedge way and two inches wide—joined and turned over to form a wrist band one inch wide. The gathered curved end of the sleeve must be set into this band, keeping more fullness towards the deeper part of the curve which goes to the back.

The measurements for front and sleeve ends should be kept with the dress pattern, as they will be useful when making new sets which will be suggested in later Talks.

A 'LYRIC' PROGRAMME (May 19)

The Policeman's Serenade.

A Grand Little Opera
by

A. P. Herbert.

Set to Music by Alfred Reynolds.

ALFRED REYNOLDS, a programme of whose music is to be broadcast this evening, has become well known in recent years as Conductor of the Orchestra at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, for whose productions he has composed and arranged a good deal of music. Most notably, he edited Dibden's music for the revival of the opera 'Lionel and Clarissa,' for which he also composed some additional airs in the style of the work. Mr. A. P. Herbert, famed as a novelist, dramatist, and contributor to Punch, is another of the brilliant team which Mr. Nigel Playfair has gathered round him at his Hammersmith playhouse. He was partly responsible for the 'book' of 'Riverside Nights' which recently drew the West End still further West. 'The Policeman's Serenade,' of which the words are given below, is a happy combination of his talent as a writer of light verse and Mr. Reynolds' unfailing ear for a tuneful air. Most of the pieces in tonight's programme were first heard at the Lyric, Hammersmith, where Mr. Reynolds contributed to the production of 'Lionel and Clarissa,' 'The Duenna,' and the above-mentioned 'Riverside Nights.'

Outside a house—Moonlight—Discovered, a Policeman, with lantern, truncheon, and Service guitar.

THE POLICEMAN.

Susan, hear my tuneful sighing:
Brightest jewel on my beat,
From your hateful kitchen flying,
At my bosom find retreat.
See, the moon, serene and argent!
And we need not fear the sergeant,
For he loves a lady, too.
Here in pain I stand, my beauty,
One devoted eye on duty,
But the other fixed on you.

SUSAN (emerging).

Robert, though in my profession
We are crude, uncultured, coarse,
In the arts of self-expression
Scarcely fit to meet the Force,
In my plain, ill-tutored fashion
Let me here declare my passion,
And if still you doubt my flame,
Robert, see with what sweet ardour,
Leaving chaos in the larder,
To your dear blue arms I came.

THE POLICEMAN.

Now, my girl, I know you're mocking.
Have you not another swain?
When you hear the postman knocking,
Does your heart not knock again?
When you hear that milkman bellow,
Do you still admire the fellow?
Tell me, love, for, if 'tis so,
Should I meet these men at luncheon,
With a buffet from my truncheon,
Robert's rivals go below.

SUSAN.

Robert, cease thy foolish clamour;
Vain the milkman's modish coo!
And in vain do postmen hammer
If they bring no word from you.
For yourself your Sue is yearning—
But I smell the supper burning.
Back to duty must I press.
So, if you have done with hinting,
You'll oblige me by imprinting
On my lips a chaste caress.

Chaste caress. Susan retires into the kitchen.

THE POLICEMAN.

So, good night. Sleep sound, my pretty;
Here till dawn I take my stand;
There are burglars in this city,
But we have them well in hand.
And, whatever fears may furrow
Other foreheads in the borough,
Nothing shall this roof surprise;
Mice and burglars both repelling,
Robert guards the sacred dwelling
Where his lovely Susan dwells.

Exit the Policeman, with lantern, to examine the defences of the house.

Enter a Milkman with milkcart.

THE MILKMAN (softly).

Milk-O! Milk-O!

Come, Susan, from thy pots and pans,
No matter who may chide,
For with his merry tinkling cans
Thy milkman waits outside,
That brings each morning with his cart
His unadulterated heart,
And softly calls below,
'Milk-O! my love, milk-O!'

So fair the night, my love so strong,
This way I had to walk,
But I have brought my cart along
That people may not talk;
This pint of milk I'll give to thee
Our little alibi to be,
And softly call below,
'Milk-O! my love, milk-O!'

SUSAN (emerging).

Is that my milkman? Did I hear
That voice so like the linnet's?
O lovely milkman, kiss me, dear
(I've not been kissed for minutes).

The Milkman gives her a pint of milk and a kiss.
The Policeman, returning, observes this transaction with ill-concealed concern.

THE POLICEMAN (aside).

Duped! Duped! Ah, duped! So this is woman's trust.

Revenge, proud Robert! He shall bite the dust.
He approaches the guilty pair.

Now what's all this here?

THE MILKMAN.

Officer,

My lawful trade I ply with her,
Of which in witness pray behold
This pint of milk but newly sold.

THE POLICEMAN (suspiciously).

In my experience of crime—
And that, my lad, 's a goodish time—
I never saw a stranger sight,
A person selling milk at NIGHT!
Had it been whisky, now, or silk,
I might have winked at it—but MILK!

SUSAN.

Unhand him, wretch!

THE POLICEMAN.

My girl, withdraw!

It's my belief he's broke the law.
Men don't sell pints of milk by chance—
It's a suspicious circumstance.
And what is more, you amorous gurgler,
You'll be arrested for a burglar.
But first, that nothing be mistook,
I'll note the details in my book.

He does so. Meanwhile the Milkman sings a passionate farewell.

THE MILKMAN.

Farewell, my heart, farewell;
To Pentonville I go.
But in my gloomy cell
One comfort I may know.
Outside the dungeon dark,
If you will sit and hark,
I'll now and then remark
'Milk-O! my love, milk-O!'

1.0-2.0 LUNCH-TIME MUSIC from the Hotel Metropole

2.10 SPEECHES following the Luncheon of the UNITED ASSOCIATIONS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE Relayed from THE HOTEL VICTORIA

Toasts:

HIS MAJESTY THE KING
THE PRESIDENT OF THE FRENCH REPUBLIC

OUR GUESTS

Proposed by the Rt. Hon. The EARL OF DERBY, K.G.

Responded to by H.R.H. the DUKE OF CONNAUGHT

FRANCE

Proposed by the Most Hon. the MARQUESS OF CREWE, K.G.

Responded to by the MARQUIS DE VOGUE

THE United Associations of Great Britain and France have as their object the strengthening of ties between the two countries. They have offices in London and Paris, and at intervals during the year they arrange for their members to meet each other and also to welcome distinguished visitors from France.

At this luncheon H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, who spends the winter months in the South of France, will be the Guest of Honour. The Marquess of Crewe, who is the President of the British Institute in Paris, a project in which considerable interest is being taken, will explain the progress that has been made with this scheme. As British Ambassador to France, he will be very cordially welcomed when he proposes the health of France. The reply to this toast will be made by the Marquis de Vogue, who has just been elected President of the Suez Canal Company. The Earl of Derby, the President of the United Associations, will be in the Chair.

2.55 Reading, 'An Inland Voyage' (Stevenson)

3.0 Sir ERNEST GRAY, 'How English Laws are Made—III, A General Election'

THE result of a General Election determines the nature of an unpredictable number of future laws, and thus this talk forms an important part of Sir Ernest Gray's series. He will deal with the whole mechanism of election, from the register of electors and the issue of writs to the time when the newly-elected members take their seats.

3.30 Mr. CLIFFORD COLLINSON, 'Let's Go Round the World'

TODAY Mr. Collinson takes his party back to Vancouver, and, after a little salmon-fishing in Cowichan Bay, down the Pacific Coast to San Francisco. Thence it is an easy stage to Honolulu, with its surf-riding and all the other joys of the South Seas.

3.45 FOLK MUSIC AND DANCES By the ENGLISH FOLK DANCE SOCIETY Including the following dances: 'Galopade'; 'The Black Nag'; 'Gathering Peascods'

4.45 Short Song Recital by EVELYN BRYAN (Soprano)

5.0 Mrs. MARION CRAN: A Garden Chat

5.15 THE CHILDREN'S HOUR: 'It's All Nonsense!'—a quite absurd programme containing Songs by Dale Smith. 'The Voyage of the Four Little Children' (Edward Lear). Nonsense Rhymes by Lewis Carroll and David Naylor

7.15 BRAHMS Played by LAFFITTE

Variations and Fugue on a Theme by Handel—Part I

THESE Variations belong to Brahms' earlier years, when he was finding out what could be done in Pianoforte composition. He was then much attracted to the Variation form, though he only used it once after his Op. 35, and then for a work which came out both in Pianoforte and in Orchestral shape.

It is not necessary to describe each of the twenty-five very short Variations that make up this set, which concludes with a Fugue of some extent. After the older fashion in Variations, Brahms keeps almost entirely to the major and minor forms of the key in which the tune is given out. We have all kinds of rhythmic transformation, but comparatively little harmonic divagation. The theme itself is not always present in its full form, but its outline or some other salient point is there.

7.25 Prof. GEORGE GORDON, 'More Companionable Books—III, Johnson's Lives of the Poets'

CONSIDERING how great his reputation remains, it is surprising how little of Johnson's work has survived. Johnson, in fact, lives almost entirely in Boswell and in his 'Lives of the Poets,' that very characteristic work in which his prejudice often gets the better of his judgment, but which remains a valuable as well as a diverting review of the English poets up to his day.

9.20 AT GEORGE'S'

CHANCE CONVERSATIONS AT A COFFEE-STALL

IN ancient times the market-place, in 1727 the coffee-house, in 1827 the tobacconist's divan, and now in 1927 the coffee-stall—these have been the meeting-places of those who take pleasure in conversation. No coffee-stall in all the West-end is more popular today than Mr. George Ground's (or 'George's', as it is known among its varied clientele). The excellence of its coffee, the succulence of its cheese-cakes, the spicy quality of its saveloys are renowned wherever Londoners move and have their being. By lone camp-fires in the Himalayas and in the African jungle men have felt a thrill of reminiscence as the conversation turned upon 'George's,' recalling many a convivial evening in Town which wound up with a visit to the coffee-stall.

Tonight the counter is occupied by two of 'George's' 'regulars'—Mr. William Tether, a Civil Servant of democratic opinions, and Mr. Gilbert Stock, a business man who has not allowed the City to rob him of his sense of humour. Other casual visitors will no doubt drop in, and it is hoped that the ensuing discussion will be even livelier than usual, for there is no phase of current affairs which 'George's' clients are not prepared to discuss, hotly and without regard for the conventions.

Pianoforte Quartet—Scherzo.... Joseph Jongen

JOSEPH JONGEN is a native of Liège. A refugee in England during the war, he gave many concerts in London and the provinces as the Piano-playing member of a Quartet that included Mr. Lionel Tertis, the famous Viola player. He is now a Professor at the Brussels Conservatoire.

The Quartet in E Flat is his Op. 23. Its Scherzo is a blend of mystery (suggested by the muted Strings) and sprightly good humour, in the Piano's rapid running passages. Near the end are silver flashes of extremely soft full-speed Pianoforte scales.

 Träume (Dreams)... Wagner

DREAMS was originally one of a set of five songs which Wagner wrote in 1857. Two of them were later published as 'Studies for Tristan and Isolde.' While Wagner was working upon this Music Drama he found a melody from the song Dreams constantly recurring to his mind, and used it in the love music of the drama. Of the song itself he said: 'It is more beautiful than anything else I have done.'

IN LONDON'S VARIETY BILL TONIGHT.

London will broadcast a variety programme between 7.45 and 9.0 tonight. Here are four of the people who will take part in it—Sydney Nesbitt (left), Harry Hemsley (right), and in the centre Elsie and Doris Waters.

who, having got an idea, don't know what in the world to do with it, and of indifferent players, who come in at the wrong time, and produce false notes. One funny example of the latter point is the First Violin's last cadenza, a masterpiece of futility in which, in his last grand dash aloft, he comes a cropper on several notes of the scale, and finishes a note too high.

The work, which is scored for Strings and two Horns only, is in four short Movements.

Cossor

THE introduction of the Kalenised Filament by Cossor marked a significant Milestone in the progress of Radio.

It rendered possible for the first time the production of a Dull Emitter Valve which was immensely strong—almost proof against accidental breakage or premature burn-out. It cut to the bone the previous high costs of maintenance. Accumulators lasted for many weeks where before a recharge was necessary every few days.

And lastly—though perhaps most important of all—the increased emission from the Kalenised filament brought to a high pitch of perfection the reproduction of Broadcast music. Listeners were enabled to hear Radio as it should be heard—clear, sweet-toned music in ample volume—free from distortion and extraneous noises.

The rare combination of these three essential features—long service, economy and true-to-life reproduction—has made Cossor the most popular Valve on the British market. If you have still to purchase your first Cossor Valve a great musical treat awaits you. Buy them for your Receiver and you'll appreciate why Cossor has been spontaneously awarded the title "the melody maker."

The Royal

EVERY year, at Olympia, the fighting Services provide the public with a show that often puts the greatest efforts of the professional promoters right in the shade. The Royal Tournament differs from most shows in having so strong an admixture of the real thing. The Pageant of the year—in 1927 it portrays the history of Scotland in arms—usually rivals the greatest achievements of imaginative production; on the other hand, no outside producer can hope to attain the realistic effect of the Musical Ride and Drive, or the Physical Training Display, as they are done by men picked for the purpose and trained by experts at the job.

There are so many elements of attraction about the Tournament. It is at the same time a circus, a pageant, a drama and a parade. Sawdust and horses—antique uniforms and weapons—the swift march of events—the air of military precision—all the qualities that are the salt of all these different sorts of show combine to make the Tournament a unique and memorable event.

This year it is to be broadcast. That is to say, on the afternoon of Saturday, May 21 (the first Saturday during its run) the London programme will come from Olympia between a quarter to three and a quarter past five. First there will come an introduction lasting about ten minutes, and then the microphone will be switched on to the Tournament itself.

The first item will be the Musical Ride by the Royal Horse Guards from Regent's Park—one of the most famous features of the Tournament for many years. Then will come the Trick Riding Display by the 16/5th Lancers from the 2nd Cavalry Brigade, and the Physical Training Display by the Royal Air Force, on the lines of that which will live in the memory of all who saw the Wembley Tattoo. And, finally, the Scottish Pageant, the vièce de resistance of the programme.

All these events are particularly suitable for broadcasting. The Musical Ride, for instance, presents a fine blending of sounds—the brisk playing of the military band, the jingle of equipment, the dull thud of horses' hoofs, and the occasional sharp words of command. But, in addition, there will be the running commentary by one whose long experience of these events makes him especially fitted to convey over the microphone the whole atmosphere of Olympia this Saturday afternoon.

One particularly interesting item that is to be

SUMMONING THE CLANS.

A reproduction, by permission of the Tournament authorities, of the official poster.

A Running Commentary on THE ROYAL TOURNAMENT will be relayed from Olympia,
Saturday, May 21.

- 2.45 Descriptive introduction.
- 2.55 Musical Ride by the Royal Horse Guards.
- 3.15 Trick Riding Display by the 16/5th Lancers.
- 3.25 Physical Training Display by the Royal Air Force.
- 4.25 The Scottish Pageant.

These times are approximate and the items are liable to alteration, but any change in the programme will be announced in the introduction.

During the intervals Dance Music will be given by the London Radio Dance Band, directed by Sidney Firman.

Tournament.

broadcast to-day is the Trick Riding Display at 3.15. The Lancers' Team for this event will consist of Jumpers, Tent-peggers and Trick-riders. The Jumpers and Tent-peggers will be dressed as brigands, and the Trick-riders as green and red devils, who will perform every circus feat and some new dare-devil tricks.

In the trick-riding the men pick up articles from the ground, ride backwards, hang upside down from the saddle, and vault right over their horses. All these tricks and several others are performed at full gallop. All the jumps will be trick jumps. The horses are to jump over a coster's donkey and cart, a human group, a motor car, and several other unusual obstacles. Practically all the tent-pegging will be done 'Cossack' fashion, and the performers will not sit in their saddles, but will stand erect with the stirrups crossed over the saddle seats. There is not to be any 'straight' tent-pegging. Each turn is new and calls for great skill in the handling of arms.

But, of course, the star turn is the Scottish Pageant that will conclude the afternoon's broadcast. In this will be pictured the whole course of Scottish military history from the time of Killiecrankie till the present day. From the wild Highlanders of the clans—stern and savage warriors like the one pictured on this page—who cut to pieces the Lowland forces in that ill-fated victory in which Claverhouse fell, to the Scottish foot-soldier of 1927, the different types of Scottish soldiery will be portrayed in turn. All the Scottish foot regiments will take part; there will be dancing by the Seaforth and Gordon Highlanders, and the Pageant will include a great march of all the pipers gathered together from all the home battalions. Everyone loves the mad skirl of the pipes, and this massed march alone would make the Tournament worth hearing this year.

But in every respect it is a memorable year. Public interest in the Tournament has steadily grown since it was founded, on a very modest scale, by a few Volunteer officers in 1878, and in consequence it has become year by year a bigger and more attractive show. This year it is bigger than ever before (so many men and horses have never before been gathered together at Olympia), and it bids fair to make a new record for quality as well as for size. And, if so, the Services charities will, of course, reap the benefit.

THE ARENA AT OLYMPIA.

Typical Press

A scene at last year's Tournament, showing the display of Seventeenth Century Drill by the Guards. Listeners must imagine this spacious arena filled this afternoon with the picked men of the Services and the war-cries of the clans.

Episode 1: The Scene is on board ship.

THE man to whom we owe the book 'The Swiss Family Robinson' was a Swiss pastor. It is said that he told the story to his children, and after his death it was written down and published by one of his sons. It is certainly one of the most popular stories for the young, and it will probably remain so for all time.

The present adaptation to be broadcast from Liverpool is written by Miss Muriel Levy, and is in narrative play form. It is hoped that episodes from the book will be given during the Children's Hour from time to time.

The Policeman's Serenade.

SUSAN.

Outside the dungeon dark
 I'll sit at eve and hark,
 And hope that you'll remark,
 'Milk-O! my love, milk-O!'

THE POLICEMAN (taking notes).

Though he is in the dark,
 This ill-conditioned spark
 Will now and then remark,
 'Milk-O! my love, milk-O!'

During this affecting scene a Burglar, seizing his opportunity, enters the house by the open kitchen door.

Emotional music. The Policeman marches the Milkman off with cart.

SUSAN (reflective).

Alas, in one short night
 To lose two lovers true!
 O Cupid, is this right?
 I put the point to you.
 My milkman in a cage—
 My Robert in a rage!
 O Cupid, at this stage
 What is a girl to do?

The Burglar emerges from the house carrying a bag containing swag.

THE BURGLAR (presenting pistol).

Be silent, hussy, for if you should shout,
 The chances are you'll have your brains blown out.

SUSAN (unmoved, curiously).

The voice is sweet,
 Well formed the feet,
 The figure has a grace;
 One boon I ask—
 Remove your mask,
 That I may see the face.
 (Reassuring.)

To jail I will not shove you,
 For I believe I love you.

The Burglar, struck by her beauty and courage removes his mask, while his revolver falls from his nerveless fingers.

Now, strike me pink in every limb and feature
 If e'er I saw a more attractive creature!

Susan, after examining the face, picks up the revolver.

Yes, I love you, burglar dear;
 Burglar, will you marry me?
 You have money, it is clear;
 I have brains for two or three.
 Burglar, if you will not wed,
 I shall shoot you through the head!
 Better marr-i-ed than dead—
 Pretty burglar, marry me!

THE BURGLAR.

Never in my varied life
 Saw I such a tiger-eat;
 Born to be a burglar's wife—
 And I can't say more than that.
 You can drop the pistol now
 (It's not loaded, anyhow).
 I'll propose, if you'll allow.
 Pretty housemaid, marry me!

BOTH.

To the booty of the day
 Let me add one precious kiss;
 With our treasure then away—
 But no burgling after this!
 Burgling is, in fact, a bore;
 Safe upon some foreign shore
 We'll be happy evermore.

Pretty {burglar, } marry me!
 {housemaid, }

They go off, rapturous, with bag of swag.
 The Policeman returns, philosophical, having juggled the milkman, and resumes his vigil.

THE POLICEMAN.

Frail, ah, frail! But I forgive her.
 Here till dawn I play my part.
 So no other evil-liver
 Shall attempt her guileless heart.
 And whatever fears may furrow
 Other foreheads in the borough
 Nothing shall this roof surprise;
 Mice and burglars both repelling,
 Through the night I'll guard the dwelling
 Where my lovely Susan lies.

He stands with his lantern lovingly directed at the window where he supposes Susan to lie.

Louden Valves

If you pay more for your valves than the prices shown below, you should ask yourself why. These Loudens Valves are British made in a British factory and backed with British capital. No day goes by that does not bring glowing letters of praise for their purity and long life. They are cheap only because of our selling policy. Their sales are getting steadily greater and greater although comparatively little has been spent in advertising them. Make up your mind now to give Loudens a fair trial.

Use an O.V.D.

—and you'll require no spare accumulator

At last an Accumulator specially designed for dull emitter valves. Immensely strong with laminated plates (patent applied for) the new Oldham O.V.D. holds its charge over long periods. There is practically no risk of sulphation, and, owing to their girder-like construction, the plates cannot buckle.

Can be fully charged within eight hours

THE O.V.D. is the only "slow discharge" Accumulator which can be fully charged within 8 hours. Others require 30 to 40 hours. This means that you require no spare accumulator. Take it to your garage in the morning and by evening it will be fully charged.

When new add acid —no first charge necessary

EVERY O.V.D. is supplied "dry-charged." Merely add acid and within one hour it is ready for use. Ask your Dealer to show you an O.V.D. You'll be amazed at the wonderful value for money. Stout plates made under the Oldham Special Activation process, big coloured terminals and best quality clear glass container. Capacity 20 amp. hours Radio Rating.

The only full-sized, full-toned £3 Loud-Speaker for

The 14" flare gives a full, round tone.

THE B.T.H. C.2. Loud Speaker is an instrument which gives results unsurpassed by any other make. It will give faithful reproduction and a volume which will be a revelation to many listeners. Make a comparative test yourself by asking your dealer to let you listen to the C.2. and other instruments—whatever their price. The extraordinary performance of the C.2. is due to the care exercised in design and manufacture. Alongside are indicated a few of the points which make the C.2. the finest loud speaker of its kind—the only full-sized, full-toned instrument for £3.

The above price is applicable to Great Britain and Northern Ireland only

The length and special contour of the neck ensure maximum volume without distortion

The decorative grill considerably enhances the appearance without affecting volume or tone.

The base is made of Fabrolite, a special non-resonant material.

The EVOLUTION of the Loud Speaker

In Two Chapters

Chapter the First—The Yeller

WHEN the first motor car appeared on the streets of London, there was a sensation. At first people were amazed; awe-stricken. "What was this weird monster which travelled without a horse to pull it?" they asked. They were sceptical. They, like the boy when first he saw the giraffe, 'didn't believe it'! Scepticism soon gave place to mockery. It was farcical to suppose such a weird 'contraption' could oust the horse!

Very similar was the reception of the first Loud Speaker. Before the days of broadcasting, the first BROWN Loud Speaker—or 'Yeller' as it was then called—was produced. It was a yeller! Crude in appearance, as you see it here, its horn was made of a thin "tinny" metal. But it created a sensation! What was this wonder that filled your room with the music of unseen artistes? By very reason of its novelty it had a great appeal . . . for a time.

Soon, as in the case of the motor, the demand for something better became manifest. Performance was improved—the famous BROWN tuned-reed principle became the basis of all BROWN instruments. Attention then turned to appearance . . . 'the loud speaker beautiful' first became apparent in the magnificent 'Q,' followed by the distinctive Disc. Evolution was rapid . . .

The YELLER

The SPHINX

Chapter the Second— The Marvel of 1927

. . . and now a further and more impressive step. The greatest heights to which loud speaker manufacture has yet risen . . . the BROWN Sphinx Loud Speaker. What a far cry it is from the time of the first 'Yeller' to this day of the splendid Sphinx. Pure, mellow tone of truthful reproduction in place of a raucous noise! Distinctive design, beautifully fashioned in rich wood, in place of a tin megaphone-like contraption! What an advance! You'll appreciate it better by seeing and hearing this Sphinx at your Dealer's. Its price—£12 10s.—is not high for the possession of such a superb instrument.

IF WANTING
A BATTERY
ASK FOR LISSEN

POWER
FROM

HERE is a battery whose potential will never drop quickly in use like that of an ordinary battery. This LISSEN New Process Battery gives you bigger power because it maintains the electronic emission of your valves at a high value. You get noticeably improved loud-speaker tone because of its unadulterated energy. You get voltage steady as a rock, and an absolutely noiseless current flow all the time. You get such deep capacity in the battery that the longest programme has never been known to affect it. You get a new power smoothness, a new freshness of tone because of the use of a new combination of chemicals and a new process known only to LISSEN. The success of this new process is now such a definitely established fact that competitors would give anything to learn the secret. You get a battery which has won the high esteem of everybody who has used it. You get a battery, too, which, by reason of the new policy introduced by LISSEN in users' interests, gives you real value for money in the fullest sense.

By the elimination of big wholesale profits through the new LISSEN policy of direct-to-retail shop distribution; by asking retail friends to accept less discount; by LISSEN making a similar sacrifice in profit in the hope of bigger sales; by economy and efficiency at every stage this LISSEN New Process Battery has passed through a price and policy evolution until at last it is available to all users at the remarkably low price of 7/11.

Next time you want a good battery ask for LISSEN New Process, obtainable at any good dealers. Call for it in a way which shows you mean to get it—and your insistence will be rewarded by the improved tone of your loud speaker. If you meet with any difficulty in obtaining it, order direct from factory. No postage charged or can be sent C.O.D.

The Cosmos Valves take a kind of personal care of the human voice. They add nothing to it. They let it sing for itself. Cosmos Valves—owing to the Shortpath construction—bring the music somewhat nearer; make it infinitely clearer; and yet are not any dearer than any other valves.

THE LINK BETWEEN Your Set and the Mains

THE ETHOPOWER H.T. UNIT

You've got the electric mains in your house, right next to your receiving set, and yet you are "Carrying Coals to Newcastle," by using dry batteries or accumulators for your H.T. supply. Don't you realise what a lot of money you are wasting when for a comparatively small outlay on an ETHOPOWER H.T. UNIT you can get all the H.T. power you need direct from the mains?

The ETHOPOWER, plugged-in to any convenient lamp socket, works directly off the A.C. Mains and provides a continuous flow of perfectly filtered direct current, free from hum and sufficient for any multi-valve set.

If necessary the ETHOPOWER will supply two different voltages simultaneously, while a simple switch, supplied with the unit, puts it into operation or disconnects it from the mains as required.

The heart of the Ethopower is the ETHOTRON filamentless rectifying valve. There is no filament in this valve to burn out or break, therefore a long life can be anticipated. This valve will give any output up to 250 volts and 60 milliamps. Those who prefer to build their own H.T. battery eliminators should use this valve for satisfactory results.

CONE
AMPLION
SPEAKER

The
Natural Tone Loud Speaker

The AMPLION
CONE SPEAKER

has the following outstanding features:—

- † An adjustable unit of improved type, remarkably sensitive and efficient, yet robust.
- † A cone diaphragm made, not of paper, but of strong seamless material, acoustically correct and entirely impervious to changes in temperature and climate—a vital point.
- † A system of construction which possesses all the qualities inherent to cone speakers without any of the common defects, thus affording extraordinarily lifelike and natural results.
- † A carefully considered and well balanced design such as to eliminate the necessity for a special amplifier; in effect the AMPLION CONE gives—on any ordinary receiving set—remarkable fidelity in reproduction.

Each musical instrument retains its characteristics, each voice its individuality. There is no unnatural accentuation of the treble, no deliberate emphasis of the bass, no artificial “sharpness” or “mellow-ness” in the new Amplion Cone Speaker—just a faithful rendering of notes and tones.

For Fidelity in Reproduction

BUILD A LOUDSPEAKER THE SAMLESS CONE

Our DOUBLE ACTION REED MOVEMENT, a Brown A. Empire, or Lonsdale with Reed, will enable you to construct a CONE LOUDSPEAKER, which will give you unsurpassable results. These Cones are unequalled for purity of reproduction, the high and lower registers being equally rendered. Complete Speakers, or separate parts. Do not be put off with the ORDINARY PARAFFIN CONE, having a cone 10 1/2 inches in diameter and producing a weak, muffled sound.

EXTRACTS from UNSOLICITED TESTIMONIALS: FLESBURY, SURREY: "It is an excellent article and gives very good results." SPALDING, LINCS: "I am more than satisfied with the results." SHEPHERD: "I have had one of the 10 1/2 inch... Loudspeakers, and have no hesitation in saying that you have your Samless Cone is much better." LOWESTOFT: "The 10 1/2 inch I had from you is considered the most powerful and perfect speaker for quite a distance around."
