Give the Other Man a Chance!

—Says the Editor of 'The Autocar' in a Seasonable Talk to Motorists.

[Summer has brought with it a host of new motorists. Listeners who have recently invested in a car—as well as older hands at the motoring game—will be interested in the accompanying article by a leading motoring journalist, himself a driver of a quarter-century's experience.]

I AM not going to preach a sermon. What I am going to do is to try to give a few tips that I have accumulated since I first handled the steering-wheel of a motor-car twenty-six years ago. In those twenty-six years I have made all the mistakes that can be made and, being by no means perfect, I still make some of them. I realize, however, when I go off the rails—and some people, unfortunately, do not.

That brings us to the root of the matter. The great majority of those who fail to 'play the game' on the road are quite ignorant of the fact that they are breaking the rules—most of them unwritten rules—which should govern it.

If we were to take as gospel all that some of the daily papers print after a Bank Holiday week-end—or any other week-end, for that matter—we should promptly conclude that all motorists are public nuisances who should be forcibly suppressed. But that would be a very much exaggerated view to take. As a matter of honest fact, the great majority of those who drive motor-cars or ride motor-cycles are perfectly harmless. The trouble is that when one meets a road hog, one is annoyed and remembers him, while one can meet ninety-nine decent drivers and not notice them at all. In other words, the does not always do to others what he would like them to do to him. Take, for example, the matter of shoving cyclists into the gutter. Admittedly, some cyclists are simply maddening in the way they do their level best to obstruct motorists, but it is not fair to say that all cyclists behave badly merely because a few do. Anyhow, car drivers should ask themselves how they like being bullied into the side of the road by another driver, generally on a big, powerful car with front mudguards that show they have often been used as battering rams. Not nice, is it? Well, the cyclists whom you force into the gutter feel just as you do when a brother motorist shoves you almost off the road. Once that point is realized, we shall be getting on!

We hear a lot about the evil practice of 'cutting in,' and I fancy that more than half the offenders haven't the foggiest notion what 'cutting in' means. Let me tell them. It may mean any of several things, but it always means that the 'cutter in' is endangering or inconveniencing someone else. If you are coming up behind another car and there is a third coming towards you from the front, you 'cut in' if you overtake and pass the car ahead at a place or time that causes either of the other two drivers to alter their pace to enable you to get past

THIS HAPPENS EVERY DAY.

The rapid increase in the number of motor-owners has brought with it a corresponding increase in the number of 'crashes.' Some accidents are, of course, inevitable—but the majority are caused by careless driving and bad motoring manners. In this article, which was recently broadcast in the form of a talk, the Editor of 'The Autocar' reminds motorists of some essential points in the unwritten etiquette of the road.

wrath stirred up in us by the hundredth man is apt to embitter us against the ninety-nine who have done nothing wrong. It's quite natural, but all the same, we must try to be fair.

What is it that the motorist does that is wrong? I think the answer is this—he the slower car and back to the left-hand side of the road. And you 'cut in' it, in a line of traffic you overtake the car just ahead of you and then pull over to the left so abruptly that the driver you have just passed has to put on his brakes to prevent you carving a slice off his right front mudguard.

1. C 'cuts in' ahead of A, with B not far away, coming towards them. A and B have both to brake hard to avoid a crash.

How do you like those who 'cut in' on you? Not much love—lost, I'll be bound. All right—don't do it!

Then about overtaking a slower car on a blind curve or corner. To my mind, that is the crime of crimes. Put yourself in the place of a man approaching the corner from the other side. The road is rather narrow—not enough room comfortably for three cars abreast. You begin to round the corner, keeping well to the left-hand side, and suddenly you find—perhaps not ten yards ahead of you—two cars abreast coming towards you, the one on your side of the road going rather fast, to pass the other. Ten yards between your bonnets—not ten yards in which to pull up—five yards for that—fifteen feet—the length of your own car—because the other fellow has also got to stop and he is eating up that ten yards perhaps faster than you are. How do you like being the man—on his own side of the road, mark you—with disaster staring him in the face? Not much? Well, don't overtake on blind corners.

WHILE I am talking about blind corners, let me give one wrinkle that is worth its weight in gold. It is this. Don't stop the car on a blind corner—or near one. You will realize my point when I remind you that, if there is a stationary car by the side of the road, all other cars overtaking it must steer out into the middle—and perhaps beyond the middle—of the road to pass it. Then we have what we had when I was warning you about overtaking a moving car on a blind corner—two cars abreast and no room for the car that should always be expected to appear suddenly coming towards you from the other side of the blind spot. I needn't labour the point, and will just add: Make it a golden rule never to take up for longer than is absolutely necessary valuable road space on or near a blind corner.

The law says that we must give 'audible and sufficient warning' of our approach when we are driving. I wish it had never said anything of the kind, for there is a certain class—not a very big one, thank goodness—of driver who thinks that if he makes an infernal din with his horn he can carry on at speed and other people must make way for him. If two drivers who adopt this attitude happen to reach a blind road-crossing at the same moment, what happens?

Well, if I had not promised not to preach I should repeat—Don't do it.

The fact of the matter is, that the horn can actually be one of the great causes of danger, not only because some people think that 'blow and tread on the gas' is a good motto, but for the reason that while you are rending the air with your hooter you haven't the faintest chance of hearing the other fellow's. Please don't go in for prolonged blasts—give short, sharp ones, with good intervals between them for listening. And there is one other thing about horn blowing. Cut it down to the very minimum at night. There are such things as light sleepers.

None of us really enjoys meeting brilliant head lamps. I think, personally, they are unavoidable evils, but that is no reason why there should be more of them than is necessary. How many motorists are in the habit at night of pulling up by the side of the road and leaving their head lamps switched on? Quite a good few, I know to my sorrow.

Please don't do it again, and for goodness' sake don't pull up on the wrong side of the road with bright lamps alight. That is the very limit, and may cause a bad smash through someone mistaking yours for a moving car and trying to pass it on the foot-path.

Talking of the 'wrong side of the road' reminds me of the class of driver who says: 'It can't have been my fault; I was on my half of the road.' Let me say that there is no such thing as your half of the road. You are entitled to exactly as much of the roadway as your car requires to proceed along it. If, owing to traffic conditions, you have to pull over to the extreme left-hand side you have not the slightest cause for complaint. The roads of today have to carry far more traffic than most of them were designed to carry, and no driver is entitled to half the road if other people will be delayed by his usurping it.

Let me take a case in point. We will assume that a driver is about to overtake a slower car which is fairly near the crown of the road, and that there is a 'my-half-of-the-road' exponent approaching from in front, also near the crown of the road. The approaching driver has plenty of room on his left, but he will not pull over, because he doesn't see why anyone coming towards him should trespass on 'his half' of the road. So the first man—who is trying to overtake—can't get past the slower car, and has to wait behind it until the two cars ahead have met and passed. A very silly waste of available road space. The object and wish of every good driver is to give as much, and not as little, room as possible to all other road users.

NOW a word about 'good' driving. It is not necessarily fast driving—certainly it is not 'stunt' driving. Good driving means getting along at a reasonable speed, without taking a single chance, in such a way that other people are not annoyed or endangered. The young 'knot' who tears back to London after a Brooklands meeting—cutting in, taking risks and generally making other drivers hot and bothered—is not a budding Segrave; he is merely an ill-mannered nuisance and a disgrace to the brotherhood of motorists.

If there were space I would have something to say about a number of other matters—such as respecting the white line, keeping well in to the left when approaching the crest of a steep hill (often just as dangerous a place as a blind corner), going slowly past pedestrians and cyclists in wet weather to avoid splashing them, and giving way to cars going up stiff gradients.

Finally I would like to touch on the question of rear lamps or reflectors on pedal bicycles. Speaking, as I am sure I may, on behalf of the great majority of those who drive cars at night, I would like to thank those cyclists who carry such a lamp or reflector. If those who do not could have an hour or so at the wheel of a car in a badly lit district at night, they would understand why we motorists—who are really not cyclist-haters—are so keen on the universal adoption of the red rear light. To know all is to forgive all, and if cyclists knew even half the terrors that beset the considerate motorist at night they would, I am sure, forgive us for championing a cause that is to many of them distasteful, and may appear ridiculous.

2. A is unaware of the faster C. B, though aware of him, is a 'my-half-of-the-road' exponent and refuses to pull over to let him through.

3. B pulls sharply over to his left as he passes A—another form of 'cutting in.' A has to brake hard to save his right front mudguard.

4. C attempts to pass B on a blind corner. Here are all the ingredients of a very nasty accident in which the entirely blameless A is likely to be involved.

A Glance at Future Programmes.

Some Dates for Your Radio Diary.

CHIEF OS-KE-NON-TON, the Red Indian baritone, is paying a return visit to the LONDON Studio on Tuesday, June 28, to give a recital of Tribal songs, for which he is well known both in this country and America. His items are naturally of a distinctly unusual and interesting type; Chief Os-ke-non-ton not only interprets the songs of the Indian, but the character of the Indian through the song. The songs of the Mohawks and their legends are his by right—Os-ke-non-ton comes from a long line of chieftains famous in border song and story—and he has also made a study of the music material of other tribes.

OS-KE-NON-TON.

An hour of what might be described as 'Happy Music' by Liza Lehmann will be given from London and other stations on Tuesday, July 5.

THE first broadcast performance by the Harold Moss Octet takes place from LONDON and other stations on Saturday evening, July 9. This is not a new combination as it was well known before the War. Mr. Harold Moss has been musical director of various musical productions in London, and is also well known for his appearances on the variety stage.

A second broadcast from George's Coffee Stall in the West End will take place from London at 9.20 on Wednesday, June 29.

PARIS CALLING, a new revue specially written for broadcasting, will be presented by Alice Delysia for listeners to LONDON, DAVENTRY, CARDIFF, and the relay stations, on Saturday, July 9. It could perhaps be better described as a 'Continental entertainment composed, written and devised by Oscar M. Sheridan and Hubert W. David, with additional sketches by Yvonne Arnaud and Lucienne Herval.' The cast includes Mlle. Marova, M. Henri Leoni, the Gresham Singers, Miss Colleen Clifford, and Mlle. Yvette Darnac. The revue will be given from BELFAST, ABERDEEN, and BOURNEMOUTH, on Saturday, June 25, and from BIRMINGHAM, NEWCASTLE, and GLASGOW, on Saturday, July 2.

Mr. Stanford Robinson, whose work is more usually associated with the Wireless Orchestra and Chorus, will conduct a light orchestral programme from London on Sunday afternoon, July 3.

LIVERPOOL and DAVENTRY listeners are to hear a concert of Welsh Community Singing between 8 and 9 p.m. on Monday, June 27. The singing will be conducted by Mr. W. S. Gwynn Williams, the Welsh composer, and relayed from the Miners' Institute at Rhos, near Wrexham. The items will consist of National Welsh part songs which have a fine tradition in the Principality, and listeners will find it interesting to compare this method with the unison singing of English audiences, which has been broadcast on several occasions recently.

Mr. W. S. GWYNN WILLIAMS.

Liverpool will broadcast a programme of comedy numbers and instrumental solos.

THE 1,300th Anniversary of the foundation of York Minster is to be celebrated by a series of special services between Tuesday, June 28, and Wednesday, July 6, two of which are to be broadcast from LONDON and other stations. These are: Matins at 10.30 on Sunday, July 3, when the preacher will be Dr. Manning, Bishop of New York; and part of a performance of Bach's B Minor Mass—regarded as the greatest work of its kind ever written—at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, July 5. A full orchestra will be composed of members of the Hallé and Leeds Symphony Orchestras, and the chorus of York Minster Choir, York Musical Society, and Leeds Philharmonic Society. Dr. E. C. Bairstow is to conduct, the principals being Miss Elsie Suddaby (soprano), Miss Muriel Brunskill (contralto), Mr. Steuart Wilson (tenor), and Mr. George Parker (bass).

Lieut.-Col. J. Atkinson, who some time ago related some humorous stories from the Barrack Square, is giving a talk from London on Thursday, June 30, on the subject of humour in Government offices.

AN eye-witness account of Henley Regatta will be given from the LONDON Studio by Mr. G. Wansbrough, the rowing expert, on Saturday evening, July 2. Mr. Wansbrough stroked the Cambridge boat in 1925, and is rowing this year for Leander. Later the same evening, following the Military Band Concert, Mr. Michael Sadleir will contribute either a short story or one of his interesting essays in the 'Writers of To-day' series. Those who heard Mr. Sadleir's recent talk on Anthony Trollope will look forward to another amusing quarter of an hour. Subsequently a variety programme will be heard before the usual period of dance music until midnight.

Mr. G. WANSBROUGH.

Among the American artists in the special London programme arranged for Independence Day, July 4, are Alma Barnes, Ed. Lowry and Teddy Brown. John Drinkwater's play, 'Abraham Lincoln,' will also be included in this programme.

A SYMPHONY concert conducted by Mr. Godfrey Brown, Musical Director of the Belfast Station, will be a feature of the LONDON programme on Friday evening, July 8. The artist will be Turina, the Spanish composer and pianist, who will conduct the first performance in this country of his work, Sinfonia Sevillana. Turina's orchestral works, notably his Procession du Rocio and his Spanish Dances, have been heard at English concerts, particularly at the Promenades, for several seasons. Another orchestral item worthy of mention in the programme is Stanford's first Irish Rhapsody; the vocalist will be Miss Flora Woodman (soprano).

Another dialect talk arranged by Mr. E. Le Breton Martin—this time on Devonshire—will be given from London on Monday evening, June 27.

THE first of two talks which Dr. H. Crichton-Miller is giving in the series on 'The Development of Mind and Character' will be broadcast from LONDON and other stations on Wednesday, June 29, at 7.25 p.m. Dr. Crichton-Miller has published many books and articles on psychological and medical subjects. His first talk will be on Parental Influences.

MISS RUBY HELDER, the lady tenor, is making her farewell appearance before the LONDON microphone on Thursday, July 7, prior to a visit to America, which she expects will last for at least two years. For the last eighteen months or more Miss Ruby Helder's name has regularly appeared in the broadcast programmes; there is no doubt that she is particularly popular with listeners. Her voice is really remarkable for a woman, and Miss Helder must be regarded as a serious artist worthy of consideration and not in any way as a freak, as some people were apt to regard her when she first demonstrated the tenor qualities of her voice. It is interesting to recall that the late Charles Santley expressed astonishment when he first heard her sing, though previously he was very sceptical about her abilities as a tenor.

Miss RUBY HELDER.

The evening service on Sunday, June 26, will be relayed from St. Anne's Church, Liverpool, the address being given by the Rev. H. S. Day, of St. Francis Xavier's Church, in that city. Later an appeal on behalf of the Charing Cross Hospital will be made by Mr. George Verity, its chairman.

LOVERS of chamber music will find interesting concerts in the programmes from LONDON on Wednesday, July 6, and from Daventry on Friday, July 8. The first will be given by the Waldbauer Quartet, sometimes known as the Hungarian String Quartet, which has broadcast on several occasions and played with distinction in the Grosvenor Hall series of concerts last season. The vocalist will be Miss Sarah Fischer, the eminent soprano, who will be visiting this country at the time. The programme from Daventry will be given by John Barbiroli and his Chamber Orchestra. Mr. Roger Clayson (tenor) will be the soloist.

The last of the series of three talks on fishery subjects will be given by Mr. W. C. Hodgson from London and other stations on Wednesday, June 29. Mr. Hodgson will deal with research work carried out by the Fisheries Board of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries, the title of his talk being 'The Mystery of the Herring and How it is Being Solved.'

SAINTE-SAENS'S well-known tone poem, Le Rouet d'Omphale, and the rarely-played overture to Russlan and Ludmilla by Glinka, will be included in a light symphony concert to be broadcast from MANCHESTER Station on the afternoon of Sunday, June 26.

Miss EDA BENNIE.

Instrumental solos will be given by Mr. Frederick W. Hodgkinson (cellist), and solo songs and duets by Miss Eda Bennie (soprano, of operatic fame), and Mr. Bernard Ross (baritone). The evening programme from the same station will consist of a concert by the Salford Police Band under the conductorship of Mr. Thomas Wilson. Vocal numbers are to be given by the C. X. Huddersfield Vocal Quartet, newcomers to the Manchester Studio, all of whom are members of the Huddersfield Glee and Madrigal Society.

Coming to the Southern Stations.

From Leamington Spa—A W. W. Jacobs Play from Cardiff—Manchester's Spanish Programme.

Plymouth.

Miss José Edmonds (soprano), who has played in Rose Marie, will broadcast two groups of songs on Tuesday evening, June 28. Mr. Parry Jones (tenor) will also make his first appearance at the local station in the same programme.

Bournemouth.

The evening programme on Monday, June 27, will include items by Miss Beatrice Eveline (cellist), and Miss Margaret Champneys (contralto).

Another concert of works by modern British composers will be given on Friday, July 1. The soloists are Miss Dorothy Robson (soprano) and Mr. Osmond Davies (tenor).

Birmingham.

A programme by the Band of the 17th/21st Lancers will be relayed from the Jephson Gardens, Leamington Spa, on Wednesday, June 29.

A variety programme, which will include a comedy entitled His Rest Day, in which the two characters will be taken by Stuart Vinden and Eveline Hastilow, is arranged for Monday, June 27. Other items will be given by Helena Millais (actress-entertainer), Chrissie Thomas (musical glasses), and T. C. Sterndale Bennett, in his own compositions at the piano.

Cardiff.

The Love Passage, by W. W. Jacobs and P. E. Hubbard, is to be performed by the Station Radio Players on Saturday, July 9.

A Welsh programme based on the works of Dr. Cyril Jenkins will be given by the Lyrian Singers, Walter Glynn, and Herbert Heyner on Tuesday, July 12.

A programme of folk songs and a short play entitled Bell and Beau, by Constance Smedley, will be given by the Greenleaf Players on Wednesday, July 6.

The Band of the Lincolnshire Regiment will provide the programme to be relayed from the Royal Victoria Park, Bath, on Wednesday, July 6. On the following evening an entertainment by Reginald Mason's 'Powdered Players' will be relayed from the Llandaff Fields.

Hull.

The Newland High School Old Girls' Choir, winners of the Silver Challenge Cup for Ladies' Choirs at the Yorkshire Choral Competitions for 1926 and 1927, and the Newland High School Girls' Choir, who have on five occasions, including this year, won the C. H. Gore Challenge Shield at Hull, are appearing in Wednesday's programme, June 29. Miss Jo Lamb (violinist), Mr. Robert Melady (piccolo), and John and Kenneth Birch in an East Riding Dialect sketch will also be heard the same evening.

Manchester.

A play entitled Eclipse, by James L. Hodson, performed by the Repertory Players, will be broadcast on the eve of the phenomenon, Tuesday, June 28.

The sunny warmth of Spain will be introduced into the programme on Monday, June 27, when the artists taking part are F. H. Echeverria, the famous Spanish baritone, Mr. Wolfe Wolfensohn (violinist), and Miss Ethel Bartlett (pianist).

Liverpool.

The bells of St. Luke's Church, Bold Street, rung by the St. Nicholas's Bellringers, will be broadcast for ten minutes prior to the evening service, which is to be relayed from St. Anne's Church, Edge Hill, on Sunday, June 26. The address at the service will be given by the Rev. Henry Day, S.J., of St. Francis Xavier's Church, Liverpool.

Leeds-Bradford.

A talk on the A.C.U. Open Event at Post Hill, one of the most popular motoring contests in Yorkshire, is to be given by Mr. J. H. Burns on Thursday, June 30. Later the same evening the Lord Mayor of Leeds, Alderman Hugh Lupton, will speak on the objects and aims of the British Association, which meets in Leeds during August.

Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Sailor—sit in the Radio Lecture Room, at the feet of the Loud Speaker.

WHEN I was invited to listen with a group of people to the series of broadcast talks which Mr. D. A. Ross has been giving recently on 'A Hundred Years of Working Class Progress,' I confess I wondered at first whether I should enjoy the experience. We have had a wireless set at home for a long time, and I have often listened to the music, plays and talks, but it had never occurred to me to join with others in listening to a course of broadcast talks outside my home.

I was specially interested to see whether being with other people and taking part in discussions following the lectures would make these broadcast talks more enjoyable for me, as I have found by experience that I am on the whole a bad listener.

On the first evening of the course I went along to a room that had been lent for the occasion by the Workers' Educational Association, and found about ten other people there. The room had been fitted up with a loud speaker. We sat in a circle, as informally as if we had been at home.

We were quite a mixed group of people. Among us were three or four Post Office workers, a tram-driver, an accountant, and a typist. One or two of us had heard Mr.

Ross lecture in the flesh, and we wondered whether he would succeed in getting his personality across to us through the air. At first he spoke very slowly and carefully, but in a minute or two he seemed to warm up to his subject, and then the fact that he was talking to a microphone a mile or two away was forgotten by us all; he might have been in the same room with us. Our attention was held throughout, and as soon as the lecture was over a brisk discussion began. First one, then another raised a point of agreement or disagreement with what Mr. Ross had said, and our debate continued for three-quarters of an hour. Several of us had questions we wanted to ask the lecturer, and so one of our number was asked to write the questions down and post them to Mr. Ross. At our next meeting his answers gave us cause for some discussion before the lecture, as well as after it.

Every member of the group is enthusiastic about the experiment, and we all felt that we were in at the beginning of great things.

THE BROADCASTERS—

Mr. Geoffrey Gilbey (left) and Mr. George F. Allison with special microphones attached to their heads and glasses focused on the race.

MR. CURZON, Mr. Watts, Elliott, and possibly Call Boy himself must have been thankful when the Derby was over, but I am sure none of them was more thankful than I was. I have been frightened on many occasions in my life, but I have never really known the meaning of the word 'fear' until the weeks leading up to the race.

The truth of the matter is that I am one of those backboneless people who cannot say 'No.' It all came about quite gradually. Mr. B— of the B.B.C. asked me to come and see him. When I turned up he asked me if I would read the race for the Derby—if I was suitable, and about a dozen more 'ifs.' There seemed so many 'ifs' in the way that I thought there was no real danger. I therefore coyly said something about it being so sudden.

Next week we had a trial trip at Sandown, and a few days later Mr. B— proposed for the second time. This time no 'ifs' were mentioned, and I was so flattered that I accepted the proposal. No sooner had I accepted the responsibility than I began to kick myself.

I feel I should warn all readers of The Radio Times against Mr. B—. It is impossible to say 'No' to him. As things have turned out I am very glad I did not do so. Strange as it may sound, although he was responsible for my suffering days of mental agony, I am more grateful to him than I can say.

The fact that there were ten million listeners did not worry me. I never could grasp figures, and it did not really matter to me whether there were ten million, ten thousand, ten hundred or ten. What really worried me was the thought that if my eyes, my brain, and my tongue did not all do their job at the same moment, then I should not produce a sound. I eventually consoled myself with the assurance that if the bubbling brook Gilbey dried up, the great river Allison would continue to flow its even course. It made the whole difference having Mr. Allison beside me. I felt much as I did when I had my first lesson in driving a car. If I lost my head, I could hand over the wheel at once to the man beside me.

An additional worry was when I heard that we were to broadcast from the roof of the stand. I have a terrible head for heights. When I was at Beachy Head at Easter I could not walk within ten yards of the edge of the cliff. We had to broadcast less than three yards from the edge of the roof. Mr. B— promised me I would not be giddy and we went down to Epsom a fortnight before just to get used to the height. We climbed the ladder on to the roof and then he led me by the hand to my position. On the day of the race I was too frightened even to be giddy.

'Now That It Is Over . . .'

Few of the ten million listeners who heard Geoffrey Gilbey's cool and accurate description of the Derby on June 1 will have realized how great a strain such a big occasion was upon the commentator. In the accompanying article Mr. Gilbey, England's leading racing journalist, light-heartedly describes the ordeal that he went through.

The worst part was that I could not practise the broadcast. I made one attempt. I took my five-year-old daughter to Kew Gardens and chose a nice quiet spot among the bluebells. I told her I was going to rehearse. In a dramatic voice I said, 'They're off!' I got no farther, as she at once chipped in with, 'Where to, Daddy?'

THE morning of the race was terrible. If I am ever executed, I shall not be one of those heroes who eat a good breakfast. It was with the greatest difficulty I swallowed anything. People say that time flies. On this particular morning it crawled. I had an hour and a half to waste before my train left. I first played the piano for what seemed like half an hour. My clock registered three minutes. Then I took my dog round the square. This is usually a very lengthy proceeding, as he is most sociable and stops to have long conversations with every dog we meet. On this Wednesday, for some reason or other, he cut every dog, and walked past them with his head in the air. The fact that he had drawn Call Boy in our family sweep may have made him a bit above himself.

When we got indoors I got out my saxophone. I usually find its plaintive notes most soothing, but on Derby day it sounded to me like other people tell me it sounds to them on ordinary days. I played two scales, 'Because I Love' and half of 'My Dear Soul' when the telephone rang. After some time I discovered that I was the wrong number. The lady assured me that she was sorry I had been tr-tr-troubled. She seemed surprised when I thanked her for having helped me to pass the time.

Then in rushed my two-year-old.
'Come and play, Daddy.'

'I can't. I'm going to the Derby.'

'Why?'

'Because I'm going to broadcast it.'

'Why?'

'Because I am the silliest daddy in the world.'

'Is that your black hat?'

'Yes, in the hall. Mind you don't touch it.'

'I have touched it.'

She had. This was splendid, as I had to take it to be re-ironed, and then it was time to catch my train.

I TRAVELLED down in an over-full carriage in which were the two trainers, Mr. Willis and Mr. Basil Jarvis. When we got near Epsom, and we saw how misty it was, Mr. Basil Jarvis, to pull my leg, said: 'The light looks terribly bad, I wonder how that bloke will get on who's going to broadcast.' A big man standing by the window said: 'Oh, it won't matter to him. He'll make it up.'

That man saved my life, for he made me laugh. It brought me back to my senses. The light was bad, but if it had not been for the crowds of people and cars near the rails it would have been possible to distinguish the colours all the way round.

Now that it is all over I am, of course, enormously pleased at having assisted in the first broadcast of the Derby. The microphone is not a bit terrifying really, and I can assure readers of The Radio Times that when their turn comes to broadcast, they need not have sleepless nights.

My greatest joy in broadcasting has been that I have heard from many friends with whom I served in France. I had a bag stolen just after the war with my address book in it, and the result was that I lost touch with many I hoped to see again. Thanks to Call Boy, Siekle and Co., I shall now be able to see them again.

—AND WHAT THEY DESCRIBED.

PROGRAMMES for SUNDAY, June 19

2LO LONDON. 361.4 M.

3.30 HAYDN

LOUISE TRENTON (Soprano)
THE WIRELESS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
(Leader: S. KNEALE KELLEY)
Conducted by JOHN ANSELL

ORCHESTRA

Overture to 'L'Isola Disabitata' ('The Desert Island').

THE DESERT ISLAND was a little Opera that Haydn wrote to celebrate the name-day of his patron, Prince Esterhazy, in 1779. The story he used (by Metastasio) had already been set by three other composers at various times, and it was used again about twenty years later by Spontini.

The Overture begins with a slow introduction, as was customary, and goes on to a lively movement; in the middle of this comes a more gently-moving section, that probably suggests one of the scenes in the Opera when two women are left on the desert island.

3.45 ORCHESTRA
The 'London' Symphony

HAYDN was a great favourite in London. He came over, on the invitation of Salomon, a concert director, on two occasions, and each time contracted to compose and conduct six symphonies. That, perhaps, seems rather a large order, but Haydn worked so quickly and was so prolific that he had no difficulty in carrying out the agreement, and enjoying himself at the same time, attending Lord Mayor's Banquets, singing his songs to the Prince of Wales, paying country-house visits and so on.

This 'London' Symphony is one of his second 'Salomon Set.' In style and force it looks forward to Beethoven.

The FIRST MOVEMENT opens with a slow Introduction, which, very effectively, is in the minor key, the quick main body of the Movement being in the major. Its First Main Tune is a natty, lively one, which Haydn apparently liked so well that he used it as the Second Main Tune also—quite an unusual thing to do. There is a brief new tune, but it can scarcely be called a main one.

The SECOND MOVEMENT, the slow one, is an Air with two Variations.

The usual MIXTURE follows—a typical Haydn dance Movement.

The FINALE is quick and spirited. In its opening drone bass, like the tune of a shepherd's pipe, it recalls Haydn's love of peasant music.

4.15 DOROTHY FRESHWATER

Reading the description of the Chariot Race from 'Ben Hur,' by Wallace

SUCH is the power of the film nowadays that to most people 'Ben Hur' is now known primarily as a movie story. But a generation before Hollywood began to build amphitheatre sets in readiness for the film, Lew Wallace's book was known in countless British homes, and it is from the book that Miss Freshwater will read this afternoon.

4.30 A PROGRAMME OF WORKS

by
IGOR STRAVINSKY
THE WIRELESS SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
CONDUCTED BY THE COMPOSER
(Leader: S. KNEALE KELLEY)

IGOR STRAVINSKY.

This portrait of the distinguished modern composer, who will conduct a programme of his own works this afternoon, and play a new pianoforte concerto never before performed in England, is from a drawing by the famous French artist, Picasso.

Overture to 'Mavra'

IGOR STRAVINSKY was born in 1882, the son of an Opera singer. He was educated for the law, but soon turned to music, and studied with Rimsky-Korsakov. From his first compositions, which were fairly conventional, he passed to a more pungent period of violent rhythms, strange harmonies and novel orchestration. Of late years his style has again altered and developed. One of his recent works is the little one-act Opera Mavra, based on a story of Pushkin, about a soldier who, in order to be near the girl of his heart, disguises himself as a servant. This work was produced some five years ago by the Russian Ballet.

Suite for Small Orchestra
Concerto for Pianoforte with Accompaniment of Wind Instruments
(First Performances in England)
Soloist:

STRAVINSKY

(Orchestra conducted by EDWARD CLARK)
THE Concerto, written in 1924, is scored for Piccolo, two Flutes, two Clarinets, Cor Anglais, two Bassoons, Double Bassoon, four Horns, four Trumpets, three Trombones, Bass Tuba, four Kettledrums, and several Double Basses, these being the only Strings employed.

There are three Movements. The FIRST has a slow Introduction, opening with a theme which will be found as a motif running through the work, though sometimes it is very greatly varied in form. The Quick body of the Movement, for instance, begins with a variant of it. After the various ideas in the Movement have been dealt with, and the speed worked up, there is a brief return of the introductory matter, in altered form, before the Movement ends.

In the SECOND MOVEMENT (Slow), after the first theme has been stated, there is a cadenza, opening a second section. After this has been heard and an interlude has passed, the cadenza, condensed, returns, and a very brief recollection of the Movement's opening theme ends this short part of the Concerto.

The brilliant THIRD MOVEMENT starts in fugal style. Before long we hear the motif that opened the work, and immediately afterwards another theme, decisive and bold, that is clearly derived from it. This and the fugal theme are worked up; then there is a brief form of 'recapitulation' of ideas, followed by the re-presentation of the slow Introduction of the whole work. On the last page the music resumes its brilliant style and dashes home in a very few bars.

The Composer has said of the work that it is 'a sort of passacaglia or toccata. It is quite in the style of the seventeenth century viewed from the point of view of today.' As regards Stravinsky's outlook in general, it is worth noting, especially by those who have heard other music of the Composer, that he has declared (in an interview in 1925) that he is 'an altogether different composer' from the Stravinsky of The Rite of Spring. 'I am not modern,' he said. 'I have gone back in the centuries, and have begun over again, on a historic foundation. What I write today has its roots in the style and methods of Palestrina and Bach. Today, I am not to be taken as a harmonist; I have become, through and through, a contrapuntist. . . . My melodies take two, three, four or more independent lines. Of course, they have unity, notwithstanding their diversity. But my point is that it is a unity characteristic of the ancient counterpoint, rather than of the modern harmony.'

BESIDES being Principal of Mansfield College, Oxford—a position that he has occupied since 1909—the Rev. W. B. Selbie is a former Chairman of the Congregational Union and President of the National Free Church Council. He is the author of several books, including 'The Psychology of Religion,' and 'Belief and Life.'

8.55 THE WEEK'S GOOD CAUSE: Hospital Sunday Fund. Appeal by Mr. R. HOLLAND MARTIN, Treasurer of the Fund.

HOSPITAL SUNDAY is not one of the flag-days or money-getting festivals that sprang up in such profusion during the war. It has been going on for over fifty years, and it now provides ten per cent. of the incomes of more than 250 hospitals and similar institutions. It is worth noting that this money is used solely for the treatment of patients—including the supply of surgical appliances to the number of over 9,000 a year—and not in any circumstances for building. As there are every day 10,000 patients actually occupying beds in London hospitals, and 20,000 out-patients receiving treatment, it is obvious that the work that the Fund has to do is on a colossal scale.

The address to which contributions should be sent is Hospital Sunday Fund, The Mansion House, E.C.

Sunday's Programmes continued (June 19)

FIRST MOVEMENT. (Quick). The lively First Main Tune starts at once in all instruments in octaves. It continues at some length, mostly in First Violin.

After a general flourish and a full stop, the Second Main Tune arrives. This is really in several little parts, which all follow one another with perfect naturalness. It starts with a miming fragment of tune in Violins in octaves, which the Second Violin repeats, while the First Violin hops about above; then the Bass asserts itself, and so on. Soon we reach the end of the paragraph, so to speak. This first part is marked to be repeated, but that is usually thought superfluous nowadays.

The second part begins with a very brief discussion of bits of the two main tunes, then proceeds to repeat the first almost unchanged. With another general flourish, the piece ends. (The second part may also be repeated.)

The SECOND MOVEMENT is called a Romance. It is a rather stately, thoughtful piece, mostly plainly tuneful.

THIRD MOVEMENT. This is a swinging, rhythmic Minuet, followed by a smooth Trio (or second Minuet). After the Trio the Minuet is repeated.

The FINALE is a Rondo—a piece which owes its origin to a lively dance in which one tune comes round time after time.

Symphonic Piece Francis
- 2.55 Reading: 'Rural Rides' (Cobbett)
- 3.0 MARJORIE and C. H. B. QUENNELL, 'Everyday Things of the Past—The XIIIth Century'
THE thirteenth century was almost the first settled period in English history, when no conquests or invasions occurred to interfere with the ordinary course of evolution. Except for the Crusades, which left a few traces of Eastern influence in the most unlikely places, no outside force intervened in the thirteenth century, and the further development of Gothic architecture seems, in retrospect, perhaps the most important feature of the age.
- 3.45 THE LONDON RADIO DANCE BAND, directed by SIDNEY FIRMAN. MICHAEL COLE (Entertainer)
- 4.30 Excerpt from the ANNUAL MATINÉE in aid of THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND WAIFS AND STRAYS SOCIETY
Relayed from Daly's Theatre, London
'THE LADDER'
A New Fantastic Opera
Music by AMBERST WEBBER. Libretto by KITTY BARNE
The Artists will include MAGGIE TETTE and W. JOHNSTONE DOUGLAS
The Opera produced by FRANK COCHRANE
- 5.0 Household Talk: JULIA CAIRNS, 'Interior Decoration'
FIFTY years ago mahogany, plush and horse-hair, thrown together in luscious profusion, constituted the popular notion of interior decoration. The ideal of today is a simpler one. All those who are contemplating the decoration of a home should listen to what Julia Cairns has to say this afternoon.
- 5.15 THE CHILDREN'S HOUR: Rex Palmer will sing 'The Floral Dance' and other old favourites. The Wicked Uncle has consented once more to be a Victim (by request—like everything else this week!). 'Mac' will tell the tale of 'Jeff's Pet' (H. Mortimer Batten)
- 6.0 THE DAVENTRY QUARTET
- 6.25 National Council of Girls' Clubs
- 6.30 TIME SIGNAL, GREENWICH; WEATHER FORECAST, FIRST GENERAL NEWS BULLETIN
- 6.45 THE DAVENTRY QUARTET
- 7.0 Mr. DESMOND MACCARTHY: Literary Criticism

THE PATH OF THE ECLIPSE.

Mr. Donisthorpe will explain, in his talk from London at 9.20 tonight, how the total eclipse of the sun will affect radio transmission. This diagram, reproduced by courtesy of 'The New Photographer,' will be useful to listeners in showing how their parts of the country will be involved. The shaded area represents the district from which the total eclipse can be observed.

JOHN THORNE
The Owl and the Pussy Cat }
The Table and the Chair Hely-Hutchinson
The Duck and the Kangaroo }
ORCHESTRA
A Cornish Rhapsody Henry Gecht
THE work is founded on old Cornish folk-tunes (several of which were used, in a modified form, in the work On the Cornish Coast which the Composer wrote for the Crystal Palace Brass Band composition in 1924).
It opens with the sea shanty Loulaids Low, which is given out by the brass and developed at some length.
The opening fragment of the tune plays an important part throughout the work, serving, in various guises, to bind the different sections together.
A second theme (Woolycombe) now becomes more prominent and is shortly followed by a quieter section in which the tune, A maiden sat weeping, announced by the Oboe, plays the most important part.
The vigorous development of these themes suggests the rugged storm-bound Cornish coast.
The next tune to appear is that of the Helston Furry Dance. This is introduced, apparently, by the oldest inhabitant of the place—somewhat unsteady on his feet. Others take up the Dance, and when it is in full swing, yet another tune, the Song of the Western Men, steals in, and the two themes are heard together in the Coda.

9.0 WEATHER FORECAST, SECOND GENERAL NEWS BULLETIN; Local Announcements

9.20 Mr. De A. DONISTHORPE, 'The Effect of the Eclipse on Radio Transmission'

Mr. DONISTHORPE.

New York during the total eclipse visible there in 1924, will explain the position in his talk tonight.

CHARACTERS from DICKENS.

CAPTAIN CUTTLE AND FLORENCE.
 "Yes, yes, drowned," said the captain soothingly. "If our poor Wal'r could be here, he'd beg and pray of you, my precious, to pick a little bit, with a look out for your own sweet health—whereby, hold your arm, my lady lass, and lay your pretty head to the wind."

Iron Jelloids are exactly suited to such cases. They give that sweet health, and help you to hold your own. If you would have radiant health, an elastic step, and well-braced nerves, you must have strong blood. To improve and strengthen the blood, take Iron Jelloids—commended by Medical men, and the Medical press. Iron Jelloids are palatable, reliable and easy to take, and inexpensive—ten days treatment only 1/3—for five weeks 3/-. Everyone should take Iron Jelloids now and again. They are the great BLOOD ENRICHERS. Ask for Iron Jelloids No. 2. If you suffer from NEURALGIA, ask for Iron Jelloids No. 2A.

Dr. T. HATFIELD WALKER, F.C.S., late Analyst for the City of Carlisle, etc., late Medical Officer of Health, Longtown, wrote: "Since analysing your Iron Jelloids I have used them regularly in my practice, and have always found them most effectual."

THE HOSPITAL: "They deserve wide popularity."

PROGRAMMES for TUESDAY, June 21

2LO LONDON. 361.4 M.

(1.0 Time Signal, Big Ben)

1.0-2.0 THE VICTOR OLOF SEXTET and EDWARD SHAKESPEARE (Tenor)

2.55 Reading, 'Pride and Prejudice' (Jane Austen)

WITH all our modern progress, our advances in science and our new audacity of thought, there is one fashion of our ancestors that seems unlikely ever to die out—the love of Jane Austen. Her characters lived at the time of Waterloo, and their speech and manners seem almost incredibly artificial and formal compared with those of today; but they have never lost the charm that springs from the keen wit of their creator, her detached comprehension of human nature, and the limpid clarity of her style.

3.0 Sir H. WALFORD DAVIES: 'Elementary Music'

3.45 M. E. M. STÉPHAN: 'Elementary French'

BEFORE the war it was a proud boast of certain Englishmen that they could speak no foreign languages. But the war, which was responsible for so many changes in the national life, seems to have broken down our professed 'insularity'—and today there are no more eager travellers, no more proficient linguists than the English people who are to be met with in every corner of Europe. There can be no doubt that broadcasting has played a large part in creating this new cosmopolitanism, for it has given the average man an opportunity of hearing foreign languages spoken—by far the quickest short cut to surmounting their difficulties. Monsieur Stéphan, whose talks both for school children and grown ups are a feature of the programmes, is definitely one of the 'personalities' of broadcasting. Listeners who are taking their holidays in France this summer and wish to polish up their French grammar and accent will find his teaching of great help.

4.15 Prof. H. H. TURNER: 'The Shadows of the Stars—How One Star Hides Another'

4.30 A B.B.C. VARIETY PROGRAMME from THE THEATRICAL GARDEN PARTY in aid of the Actors' Orphanage

Relayed from

The Royal Hospital Ground, Chelsea

EVERY summer, when the green lawns of the Royal Hospital in Chelsea are at their greenest—and there is no lovelier garden in London than this that Wren planned for the gayest of the Stuart kings—the spirit of carnival finds a resting-place for a day in the heart of sober London. The Theatrical Garden Party gathers together all the stars of the stage in their most care-free mood. Actresses whose names are known wherever theatres flourish run impromptu side-shows; critics burlesque themselves, and the best-known figures in Society applaud their efforts. Everybody who is anybody goes to the Garden Party, and the Actors' Orphanage, that admirable charity run by the most generous profession in the world, benefits from it all.

This year the B.B.C. will provide one of the most striking features of the whole show. Listeners will remember that at the end of certain programmes broadcast from the studios they have heard the applause of an audience sitting in the studio itself. This afternoon any of them who are in the grounds of the Royal Hospital will have their chance to become a part of the studio audience. From three o'clock until seven, the B.B.C.'s marquee will be the scene of a succession of variety programmes, starting at every half hour, performed in the complete semblance of a London studio. The microphone will be there, the announcer, the control-box, the red-and-white lights—the whole studio atmosphere that anyone who has ever been present during a broadcast knows so well.

It is one of these variety shows that is being broadcast from half-past four to five. Among the well-known artists, of the air and of the boards, who are taking part during the afternoon, and who will probably be heard in the broadcast, are George Grossmith, Nelson Keys, Marie Dainton, Ann Penn, Dale Smith, Dorothy Bennett, John Henry and Blossom, Harry Hemsley, Muriel George and Ernest Butcher, Mavis Bennett, Clapham and Dwyer, and the Don Vocal Quartet. And at the end you will hear the London Radio Dance Band, which Sidney Firman is conducting outside the marquee in some of the intervals between shows.

So, even if you cannot get to the Garden Party, you will find it very easy to imagine you are there.

5.0 HOLIDAYS AT HOME AND ABROAD—V, Mr. I. LOGAN MACK, 'Along the Border'

M. I. LOGAN MACK.

THIS is the fifth of the Holiday Talks designed to give listeners some idea of the attractions of various sorts of holidays in various places at home and abroad. Today they will hear of the rugged beauties of the Border country, the wild hills over which the Romans drove their great wall, the heathy fastnesses whence the moss-troopers rode down on their forays, where Douglas and Percy waged their age-long war. Mr. Logan Mack has written an interesting book about the Border line, which he knows so well.

WHERE ENGLAND AND SCOTLAND MEET.

5.15 THE CHILDREN'S HOUR: Frederick Chester will sing songs of the West Country and tell a tale concerning some eggs. Stanford Robinson will conduct the Toy Symphony Orchestra. 'Erbert will conduct his family to the Seaside

7.0 Mr. GEOFFREY WHITWORTH: 'The Adelphi'

OVER a century and a half ago the four Adam brothers leased an area of waste land on the shore of the Thames, and began the erection of the fine group of buildings that is still called after them. Many times recently the Adelphi has been threatened, and today it has come at last under the hammer. If, as seems likely, this leads to its demolition, lovers of London and of architecture will have cause to mourn, for Adelphi Terrace is a triumph of construction, and has always attracted distinguished residents, amongst whom at this very moment are Sir James Barrie and George Bernard Shaw.

7.15 THE FOUNDATIONS OF MUSIC THE SONATAS OF BEETHOVEN

7.25 Prof. H. H. TURNER: 'Eclipses—Algol and Other Eclipsing Stars'

THIS is the fifth week of Professor Turner's talks, in which he has been explaining all about eclipses of every kind. His next talk will end the series, for the event itself is imminent.

 First Norwegian Rhapsody Svendsen
 Fantasia on 'Mignon' arr. Tavan
 Selection from 'Rose Marie' Friml
 Little Suite Debussy
- SVENDSEN, a contemporary of Grieg, was more of a cosmopolitan composer than a nationalist. This Norwegian Rhapsody, however (one of four so entitled), is among the work in which the spirit of his native country is prominent.
- THE charming Little Suite, one of Debussy's early compositions, was written as a Pianoforte Duet, and later arranged for Orchestra by Henri Büsser.
- It has four Movements—first a gently awaying Barcarolle entitled Boating; then a piece called Procession; thirdly a Minuet; and lastly a Ballet, a lively, very rhythmic dance.
- 4.45 GERTRUDE DAVIES (Soprano) and MARGARET ABLETHORPE (Pianoforte)
 Parodies on Well-known Nursery Rhymes (reset for Voice and Piano) Herbert Hughes
- 5.15 THE CHILDREN'S HOUR

'ON TOUR' THIS WEEK.

JOHN HENRY and (of course) BLOSSOM.

TWO well-known 'teams' are to accompany each other on a tour of the wavelengths this week—John Henry and Blossom, and Charteris and Dickson. The two former need no introduction to wireless audiences. Of the latter firm of entertainers, Hope Charteris has made a name for herself in variety and musical comedy; while Eve Dickson will be recalled by many ex-soldiers for her work with the Lena Ashwell Concert Party during the war.

These four entertainers will be heard as follows:—Monday, Newcastle; Tuesday, Cardiff; Wednesday, Belfast; Thursday, Birmingham; Friday, Manchester; Saturday, Glasgow.

A Midsummer Night's Dream

'A Wood Near Athens.'

By Herbert Farjeon.

[In this article Mr. Farjeon, the brilliant dramatic critic, and the author of that sparkling revue, 'The Picnic,' gives a characteristic impression of Shakespeare's fairy play, which is being broadcast tonight—an appropriate occasion, for this is the longest day of the year.]

SHAKESPEARE wrote two great pastoral plays: As You Like It, the scene of which is laid in the Forest of Arden, and A Midsummer Night's Dream, with its Wood near Athens. Of these two plays A Midsummer Night's Dream is the more magical and mysterious; and if you would inquire the reason, you might find it in the answer that, while the Forest of Arden is the Wood near Athens, and while both are English to the last acorn, night is more magical and mysterious than day. The Forest of Arden is for the sun-worshippers. Here it is perpetual high noon. We shall never know what sleeping accommodation the Banished Duke provided for his contented followers. We shall never know how Rosalind behaved by twilight—whether she maintained her triumphant buoyancy, or whether, when the horn of night had sounded in the glade, she subdued her wit to a gentler quality. We shall never know how Oberon and Puck would have rung the changes on the love of Silvius for Phebe, of Phebe for Ganymede, of Orlando for Rosalind, and of Rosalind for no man.

But just as the Forest of Arden is governed by the sun, so is the Wood near Athens governed by the moon. This wood is wet with night. The tiniest sounds prick as piercingly through the darkness as the stars prick through the vault of heaven. And as you thread your way between the trees, stumbling over a root or a shoot or a lover, to where Titania in a cup of light decks her gentle ass not into thin air. They vanish into the linen-press of Mistress Quince, into the oven of Mistress Plute, into the milk-pan of Mistress Starveling. And it is because Shakespeare understood their origin and because he had grown up with them under a thatched roof that he made them so much more alive than Theseus or Hippolyta. Hippolyta may have been an Amazon and Theseus a mighty hunter before the gods, but it is in Oberon that we see the man of action and in Titania the mate who must be won with more than wooing.

PERHAPS there is no comedy by Shakespeare containing more beautiful music than A Midsummer Night's Dream. It is for the nose and for the ear rather than for the eye, and if you wander through the woods on a summer night, you can scarcely fail to smell it and to hear it, though you may fail to see it. But it would be a mistake to infer from this statement any sympathy with the objection to stage representations of A Midsummer Night's Dream which is based on the mathematical calculation that fairies five, or even four, feet high, could never drown in the honey-bag of a humble-bee. A playgoer who cannot imagine that four feet are half-an-inch can never have looked at the stage through the wrong end of his opera-glasses and should give up the theatre altogether. This particular objection may disappear when the play is broadcast, but even so he may be troubled to account for the fact that Pease-Blossom has a mouth like a Loud Speaker. The playwright uses his imagination to the best of his ability, but all his efforts will be vain if the audience does not bring its own imagination to his support. After all, it entails little effort. For as Theseus says, at the close of his famous speech on the lunatic, the lover and the poet:—

'How easy is a bush suppos'd a bear!'

... FAIRIES, AWAY!

This is Arthur Rackham's delightful conception of Titania, the Queen of the Fairies, on the occasion of her first exit, after the quarrel with Oberon that causes so much trouble during the play. (Act II, Scene I.)

with coronets of flowers, the smell of a century of dead leaves rises with a strength and sweetness unknown today.

IF a psycho-analyst were to ask me to 'associate,' as I believe it is so called, beginning from the starting-point of A Midsummer Night's Dream, my first response would be 'Wet woods at night'; and after that perhaps I should blab out: 'Three-legged stools,' for Puck, you may remember, plays pranks with three-legged stools, and the immortal fairy-stuff in this play is made firm and fibrous because it is not merely of the earth, but of the cottage. When he created, or perhaps one should say when he reincarnated, Puck, Shakespeare was not so much fairy-conscious as kitchen-conscious. What a loss we should have sustained if, in the last scene of all, Puck had come to bless the house with a wand instead of with a besom. We must remember that it was the housewives who invented the fairies, and that the true fairyland is therefore to be found, not in the hazy nowhere to which timid fancies gravitate, but between four solid walls of brick and mortar. The Wood near Athens is the home of the newts and the bats and the screech-owls and the spotted snakes. It is not the home of the fairies. It is their playground. When their revels are at an end, they vanish, but

3.45 MISS NIGHTINGALE, 'Village Life in Other Lands—II, America'

THE first of this series of talks dealt with Jugo-Slavia, where, both socially and agriculturally, the village is still an important unit. The point about the village life of the United States, from which Miss Nightingale has just returned, is that there is none. The village is practically non-existent; American rural life is organized around the small town on the one hand, and the isolated farm on the other. The reasons for this lack of an essential and historic feature of old-world society, and its results, are full of interest, especially to anyone who is studying the problem of the countryside.

9.35-11.0 MY PROGRAMME

by

A MUSICAL MAN-IN-THE-STREET

THE identity of the latest contributor to the series of 'My Programmes' is shrouded in the deepest mystery. His idea of a perfect evening's programme was sent to Savoy Hill in an unsigned letter. So far as the B.B.C. knows, he may be a banker, a burglar or a band-master. Listeners will be able to deduce from tonight's programme what are its author's age, tastes and profession.

TURKEY'S STRONG MAN.

Mustafa Kemal Pasha, caught in Napoleonic mood. This picture was taken during the fighting in the Greco-Turkish War of 1922 by Lieut.-Col. Haddick, whose talk on Modern Turkey will be broadcast from London tonight (9.20).

- THIS is the second of six talks on Victorian Poetry, in which the Professor of English Literature at Leeds University will give a critical estimate of a period which was thought at the time to be a Golden Age of English poetry. Last week he discussed 'What is Victorianism?' Today he enters into particulars, and talks of two of the Victorian giants—Alfred, Lord Tennyson, who succeeded Wordsworth as Poet Laureate, held the position for nearly half-a-century, and wrote almost every conceivable kind of verse; and Robert Browning, the poet who pleased the Victorians by being hard to understand, and to whose cult Browning societies survive to bear witness today.

- 6.0 London Programme relayed from Daventry
- 6.30 S.B. from London
- 7.0 Major W. PEER GROVES, 'A Holiday Talk—Provence, the Wonder-land of France'
IF one had to nominate one part of Europe as the cradle of poetry and romance, what could one choose but Provence, the land that never lost the influence of its Roman civilization, and the home of the troubadours? When one sees the beauties of Provence, which Major Peer Groves will describe this evening, one ceases to wonder that poets are still praising nature in terms derived from the landscape of Provence.

2.55 Reading: 'An Inland Voyage' (Stevenson)

3.0-3.25 Sir ERNEST GRAY: 'How English Laws are Made by King and Parliament'

THE Budget is really the most important matter with which the House of Commons deals in the course of the year, and the House of Lords is nowadays probably less useful as a Second Chamber than as the supreme Court of Appeal. In this afternoon's talk Sir Ernest Gray will explain the progress of a Finance Bill through the Commons, and the hearing of an appeal in the Lords.

3.30-3.45 Mr. CLIFFORD W. COLLINSON: 'Let's Go round the World'

TODAY Mr. Collinson continues his round-the-world tour, coming down by the Thursday Islands, through the sea where the pearl-fishers ply their trade, to the coast of Australia, and so down to Sydney and big-city life again.

THE KINGSLEY QUARTET and OLIVE BLOOM (Pianoforte)

Second String Quartet—First and Second Movements.....Borodin

FOR a Doctor of Medicine and Professor of Chemistry to take up composition and excel in it is surely a curious thing.

Dr. Alexander Borodin, whose Second String Quartet we are now to hear, was one of the group of Russians, all amateurs, who set out in the early part of the nineteenth century to make a national art music for their country, by using in their works native old songs and the rhythms to which the country folk loved to dance.

Borodin's Second String Quartet is not highly typical Russian music: the composer had heard what Schumann could do in chamber music, and had picked up a good deal from him. Yet there are some clearly marked and enjoyable Russian traits in the four Movements of the Quartet.

The FIRST MOVEMENT, for instance, changes its speed several times, rather as the Russian peasant changes rapidly from one mood to another.

The SECOND MOVEMENT is an impulsive Scherzo, with a good deal of that reiteration of little bits of tune in which the Russian mind delights.

OLIVE BLOOM

Scherzo in B Flat Minor. Chopin

SCHUMANN was one of the pioneers of music journalism. He was also one of the great enthusiasts for Chopin's music. When he was reviewing Chopin's Second Scherzo, he said: 'It is so overflowing with tenderness, boldness, love and contempt, that it may be compared, not inappropriately, to a Byron poem. Such a one does not please everyone, to be sure.' However, in spite of Schumann's doubt, it has become one of Chopin's most popular works.

If there is any jesting about this Scherzo (as the word originally indicated) it seems to be very grim, or at least very noble, jesting.

SIR RICHARD TERRY.

the famous organist, choirmaster and editor of old music, will introduce the programme of Sea Shanties, arranged by himself, that London will broadcast this evening at 7.45.

'CELLO SOLO (to be announced)

THE QUARTET and OLIVE BLOOM

Quintet for Strings and Pianoforte—First and Third Movements.....Dvorak

THIS, one of the best of Dvorak's Chamber works, has all his native tunefulness and resource, and its sudden flashes of warmth, beauty and fire make it exceedingly attractive.

4.45 A Short Vocal Recital by ANNA TIBELZ (Soprano)

5.0 Commandant ALLEN: 'How Women Police Work'

HERSELF the first uniformed policewoman to work in an English borough, Commandant Allen, the head of the Women's Auxiliary Service, has had wide experience of the training and operation of policewomen. During the War she trained and controlled 1,900 women for the Ministry of Munitions, and in 1923 she initiated the Cologne Experiment (in which both British and German policewomen were specially trained to deal with the problems of the occupied area) that first drew the attention of Europe to the utility of women police.

8.45 CAPITALS OF EUROPE—IV, Mr. COLIN COOTE, 'Rome'

THE OLDEST CITY IN EUROPE.

Rome, the city of which Mr. Colin Coote will talk tonight (London 8.45), is richer in historic buildings than any other city in Europe. This view gives some idea of the juxtaposition of periods that is one of its characteristics—in the foreground the Forum, the centre of life during the Republic; beyond, a triumphal arch of the Empire, and in the distance a Renaissance church.

NO city in the world has so many facets, such varied appeals to different people, as Rome. Walking through its streets one comes upon relics and reminders of the Rome of the Republic, of early legends (but the Tarpeian Rock is still there to corroborate them), the Rome of the Caesars, the Rome of the early Christians, of the medieval Popes, the Renaissance Rome of Benvenuto Cellini and Michelangelo and the Borgias, the decadent Rome of the foreign domination, Rome the capital of unified Italy and now the new Rome of Mussolini and the Fascist spirit. Mr. Colin Coote has lived in Rome as correspondent of The Times. His books on Rome have guided the feet of many thousands of visitors to the city.

HOW THEY COOK IN PARIS.

In her new series of talks from Birmingham, of which the first occurs this afternoon at 4.45, Miss Azeline Lewis will have the help of Mme. Moll-Weiss, the Directrice of L'Ecole Domestique et Sociale in Paris. This picture shows some of her pupils there at work.

'When your hands are idle — plant a tree'

THUS counselled a wise old Scot when he saw his beloved trees gradually becoming depleted, and — visioned new forests for the future.

Have you equal foresight? Do you realize that NOW, in your leisure moments, is the time to plant the seeds of knowledge, the seeds that later will enable you to partake of the fruits from the orchards of prosperity? The booklet "Home Study" gives particulars of the Postal Courses of training offered by Pitman's College. It shows how men who earn a "mere pittance" in an office can train at home in their spare time for any of the more remunerative professions of Accountancy, Banking, Secretaryship, etc.

EMPLOYERS WANT TRAINED MEN

Think! Out of every 100 young men you know only 10 will ever achieve success; this, too, in spite of the fact that employers are always wanting trained men. Which do you intend to be—one of the 10 or one of the remaining 90? Are you content to remain a subordinate all your life, or have you ambition to control? Possibly you, like so many others, are waiting for a stroke of luck. Do not waste your time in this way, but remember that the enterprising are always prepared for the call of Opportunity. She is calling to-day, bidding you to lose no time in writing to Pitman's for the booklet "Home Study," which gives details of 100 specialized Postal Courses.

2.30 THE TEST TRIAL

A description of the North v. South match at Sheffield, broadcast from the ground by Mr. P. F. WARNER
S.B. from Sheffield

DANCE MUSIC by the LONDON RADIO DANCE BAND

ALTHOUGH we have no Australians to keep English cricket up to concert pitch this year, and the New Zealanders are playing no Test Matches, there is plenty of international rivalry to come in the near future. An English team is to tour South Africa this winter, and the West Indies will visit England next year. There is, therefore, a very practical reason for the three Test Trials fixed for this summer (of which this is the first), as well as the invariable appeal of representative matches, and the value to younger cricketers of experience in company of such class.

This match is to be described by Mr. P. F. Warner, who did the Middlesex match with Nottinghamshire at Lord's on June 1. No cricketer now living has a greater playing record as a captain and batsman than Mr. Warner, and since his recent retirement from first-class cricket he has become famous as a writer on the game.

5.15 THE CHILDREN'S HOUR: The London Radio Dance Band will play some well-known and well-liked tunes. A. J. Alan will retell his story of 'Cinderella up to date.' 'Chirabel Chicken and Hepzibah Hen find Treasure in the Farmyard' (Olwen Lowen)—with 'Peter' as mouthpiece

THE Ashburton Shield at Bisley is to public-school marksmen what the Davis Cup is to lawn-tennis players, or the Grand at Henley to rowing men. To contest for it is an honour, to win it the supreme triumph. Major Pollard, who will talk about this year's contest, is a noted authority on firearms of all kinds, on which he has written many books.

9.20 Writers of Today: Mr. E. V. KNOX

Mr. E. V. KNOX.

NOBODY who has any acquaintance with contemporary humorists needs to be told anything about 'Evoc,' whose signature at the foot of an article brightens the eyes of even the most blasé reader of Punch, and the sight of whose books on the stand makes even the most avid thriller-fond waver in his devotion to crime. All one can say is, if there are any listeners who have so far staggered through life without the solace of 'Evoc,' here is their chance to get straight.

9.55 A RUSSIAN PARTY
Relayed from Chiswick

LONDON, like every other European capital, is full of Russians, exiled voluntarily or otherwise, who hold entertainments, marked by all the national characteristics, in each other's houses. Tonight's party is taking place in the beautiful little eighteenth-century cottage in Chiswick Mall that is now the home of Vladimir Polunin, for so long scene-painter to the Diaghilev ballet, whose designs are known wherever anyone takes an interest in the art of the stage. He himself is organizing the party, in which his wife, his sons, and his daughter will be present and sing. His guests—who will probably number about sixty—will include Mme. Edezi (Princess Galitzin Zinoviev) and Mme. Marie Rabinek, who are the chief singers, and many others well known in the Russian colony in London as writers, painters, and artists of all kinds.

There will also be present two English guests, Mr. A. P. Herbert, the humorous writer and parodist, and Mr. L. de G. Sieveking. Their function will be to convey to listeners what is being done and who is doing it. It will probably be a very necessary function, for the party will have worked up to quite a high pitch when the microphone enters it at 9.55.

THE DIFFERENCE!

In this photograph the matched electrode construction of the P.M.6 is disclosed with the anode displaced. Note the great length of the wonderful P.M. Filament.

The grids illustrated give a striking example of the matched electrode system in the case of only two of the series of Mullard P.M. Valves.

THE GRID OF THE PM.5B.

THE GRID OF THE PM.256.

MATCHED ELECTRODES combined with the wonderful P.M. FILAMENT

MORE than a supreme filament in Mullard P.M. Valves . . . more than a master filament that has set a new standard for long life, toughness, economy and power . . . the wonderful P.M. Filament . . .

A system of matched electrodes, designed by Mullard Engineers to produce unequalled performance in every type of valve operation by completely utilising the vast energy of this master P.M. Filament to the best advantage in each case.

The result of this special P.M. construction and design is that a series of P.M. Valves has been produced from which, no matter what type of circuit you employ, positively pure and powerful amplification is assured from the first to the last stage, culminating in a final reproduction that is a delight and a revelation.

Consult your radio dealer to-day about the correct Mullard P.M. Valves for your receiver.

THE MASTER VALVE

Old Friends are best

MAN clings to the old. His ripe-old, well-smoked pipe—how he cherishes it and returns to it time after time! Old, dust-laden books—is there not a fascination in turning over again their well-thumbed pages? Old shoes, moulded by time and wear to every curve of our feet—don't we cling to them, long after they have lost their respectability? Old things that have become friends.

In the days before broadcasting came, the advent of the first Wireless Loud Speaker astonished England. Its name was Brown.

In the years that have followed many loud speakers have made their appearance. Some have been good. Others have been bad. The bad, because they had nothing to justify their existence, have gone. The Brown still leads. For the Brown has become the true friend of listeners the world over. The quality of reproduction which it gives has weaved a bond of friendship with its owner. It is never a deceiver; it tells nothing but the truth. If you, too, want the truth from your loud speaker, then your choice must also be the Brown. You too, will make it your friend. Your truthful friend. To rank, in the years to come, with your pipes, and your books, and your shoes.

The oldest model—on which BROWN reputation is founded—is shown above. It is the B.1. Its price: 120 ohms, £5 5s.; 2,000 ohms, £5 8s.; 4,000 ohms, £5 10s. There are nine other models, from 30/- to £15 15s.

DEL 210

The New Osram "STEEP SLOPE"
2 Volt General Purpose Valve

"Our new valve certainly fetches in the distant stations, increasing power and improving tone from the near ones."

"That's a true 'Steep Slope' characteristic," commented 'TONE.' "2-volt users will find DEL 210 gives them stronger signals from anywhere," added 'POWER.' "The low consumption filament reduces running costs, is invaluable for portable sets, and can be used anywhere on a set."

STEEP SLOPE

Valves

for TONE & POWER

"STEEP SLOPE" means Stronger Signals

IT'S not what you pay but what you get that determines whether a valve is cheap or expensive. When you buy a Cossor you get a Valve with a Kalenised filament giving such long service that you begin to wonder whether you'll ever have to buy another valve as long as you live! And at the same time you obtain a quality of reproduction which is the envy of your friends. What more can you expect from any valve?

Cossor gives you the sweet high notes of the Violin

Cossor gives you the majesty of the 'Cello

Cossor gives you the rich harmony of the Piano

Exide

"MASS" TYPE BATTERIES

Exide "Mass" Type Batteries for long slow discharges are the most recent advance in battery design and the most important for many years. They are not subject, like the ordinary battery, to loss of charge or sulphation when standing (even partially run down) for long periods. They are the only batteries free from this disability. They are of quite special construction and design.

THE SIGN OF
SKILLED SERVICE

Imitations should be avoided.

They are intended for all circuits where the rate of discharge is intermittent or low in relation to the capacity. They are thus exactly what is wanted for High Tension, or Low Tension for dull emitter valve sets of low current consumption. They make dry batteries quite out of date and are superior to any other accumulator.

THE R.C. THREESOME

A WONDERFUL SUCCESS — and no wonder!

It is easy to understand the phenomenal success of the R.C. Threesome—the first of the resistance coupling sets, and still the star performer. It is just perfect.

Little wonder that the R.C. Threesome has become the big thing in wireless: such purity! such volume! such amazing fidelity to the original performance!

And how simple to build! how inexpensive! You can listen on the same evening you start to build it, and the parts cost less than £3. Send now for the free Instruction Book and Blue print (see coupon). Put off no longer.

The R.C. TWOSOME.—Crystal-set users who have tired of headphone bondage, but who must have crystal purity should build this 2-valve amplifier. Incorporated with any crystal-set the R.C. Twosome can be built in an evening for 25/-. Instructions and Blue-print free (see coupon). Let the whole family listen.

HERE ARE THE RIGHT R.C. VALVES

There is a complete range of Ediswan valves for resistance coupling. Send for folder showing curves and specifications. See Coupon.

- RC.2 for use with 2-volt accumulators.
- RC.410 for use with 4-volt accumulators.
- RC.610 for use with 6-volt accumulators.

The B8 VALVE

means better reception
-and cheaper sets

THE wonderful purity of tone that it is possible to obtain with resistance-capacity coupling has made this method of amplification extremely popular. In the past the adoption of resistance-capacity coupling involved a very considerable sacrifice of volume. You couldn't have purity and volume at the same time.

The introduction of the B.T.H. B.8 Valve—with its extraordinary high amplification factor of 50 (unsurpassed by any other valve) has made resistance-capacity coupling an economic success. Indeed, the B.8 valve gives as great a sound magnification per stage as the best L.F. transformer. The high impedance of the B.8 (180,000 ohms) reduces its H.T. current consumption to only 1/60 as much as that of an ordinary valve. Actually the consumption is no greater than that dissipated by the battery when not in use. Add to these advantages the simplicity and lower constructional cost of a resistance-coupled receiver, and you will appreciate what the new B.8 valve means to you.

What is the "STANDARD" ?
Sac. Leclanché Battery ?

It is an improvement on the Battery discovered by Leclanché in 1868 and the prototype of the Dry Battery.

Advantage 1.—By reason of the improved electro-chemical action which takes place in a fluid to that which takes place in a paste or jelly the output of a Wet Battery of equal size 800 element is increased by at least 50%.

Advantage 2.—The containing jar, tray and rubber insulating bands are permanent. Only Sacs, Zincs, and Electrolyte are consumable. No need to throw away a Battery with half its material still unused. Couple this with the increased output and you see the obvious economy.

Advantage 3.—The cells of a STANDARD WET BATTERY are always fluid and the jars do not leak. Consequently the causes of cracking noises, practically always experienced when a Dry Battery is becoming exhausted, do not arise. The STANDARD WET H.T. BATTERY gives a current free from extraneous noises throughout the whole life of the elements. Write TO-DAY for Booklet giving full particulars. Send details of valves. We recommend suitable battery.

ELECTRON

FOR SIMPLIFIED WIRELESS

100% EFFICIENCY GUARANTEED from START TO FINISH

It's the simplest thing in the world for ANYBODY to wire up a set with SUPERIAL SIMPLE-STRIP. Then, in a few minutes to erect an ELECTRON or SUPERIAL aerial in the loft, round the room, or even fling it over a tree. A length of ELECTRON EXTENSION WIRE and you can take your 'phones or loudspeaker into any room, or to the end of the garden where you can sit in the sunshine and enjoy the beautiful music.

SIMPLE-STRIP.

Pat. No. 2772-1927

"Simple-Strip"—The very name given to this extraordinary useful wire is self-explanatory. It is scientific. It has unlimited uses. It is so easy to manipulate.

"Simple-Strip" presents everlasting suggestions to the experimenter. It totally abolishes solder, and is, therefore, indispensable to the amateur. There is no waste with "Simple-Strip"; it can be used over and over again when it is found necessary to re-arrange your circuit. It is made of the finest hard-drawn copper, heavily tinned and perforated at regular intervals to take 4 B.A. connections. "Simple-Strip" is in itself foolproof. Fits anywhere, a snip of the scissors cuts it. Bends and twists can be made with the fingers to any angle. Makes perfect spade terminals, earth clips and accumulator connections. A set can be wired in a few minutes. Any length obtainable.

INQUISITIVE CHEMISTS FAILED TO FIND THE SECRET

WHEN the chemists of a competing manufacturer under test found that, including their own, all known formulæ for the making of high tension batteries failed to reproduce the results of the LISSEN New Process Battery, they took the LISSEN New Process Battery to pieces and analysed the contents of the cells.

But even analysis failed to yield the secret. Only two men know it, and they are within the LISSEN organisation, and the battery itself will not disclose it because of the curious reaction of one chemical upon another which destroys the actual identification of the materials used and the quantities.

There are now tens of thousands of users of the LISSEN New Process Battery. They are telling others of the new power smoothness in the loud speaker, the new freshness of tone, its remarkable clarity, and how they have found that the longest programme does not affect the quality of song, speech or music when the LISSEN New Process Battery is used.

That is due to the remarkable oxygen content of the LISSEN Battery, due in turn, of course, to the chemical combination and the process.

For by a price policy pursued by LISSEN (even to the extent of asking retail friends to take less discount, which to their credit the trade are doing) and a new LISSEN policy of direct-to-retail-shop distribution which cuts out big wholesale profits, the price of the LISSEN New Process Battery has been made low enough for everybody to possess one.

If you want to use a really good battery, next time ask for LISSEN New Process—call for it in a way that shows you mean to get it—you know what you want and every good dealer will realise that he owes you a duty to serve it to you. And once you have it we stand behind it with our guarantee of quality and performance. Your insistence will be rewarded by the improved tone of your loud speaker. Your nearest dealer will supply, but if you meet with any difficulty in obtaining it, order direct from factory. No postage charged, or can be sent C.O.D. by return upon receipt of postcard.

PRACTICAL POINTS ABOUT THE LISSEN NEW PROCESS BATTERY

1. It brings a new power smoothness to your loud speaker.
2. It offers a stubborn resistance to volt drop.
3. Every battery absolutely fresh when you get it.
4. The price low enough to bring it within the reach of all.
5. You can get it on your way home at one of the 10,000 dealers who handle LISSEN products. Get one for your week-end radio.
