The Great Experiment Begins.

A Message to Listeners from Captain Eckersley.

At this moment, 5GB, our new Daventry Experimental Station, is in operation, about to enter upon the second week of its existence. We have seen the beginning of an experiment which is destined to play a large part in moulding the future of our broadcasting service.

The problem of 5GB is, at the moment, largely a technical one. It is perhaps, therefore, natural that, as Chief Engineer, I should be invited by the Editor of The Radio Times to write these few words on the progress and meaning of the present experiment.

It is not easy to measure the progress so far made, the experiment has hardly been going long enough. Inevitably, some listeners say that the new station is much too strong; that, because of it, they cannot now hear this or that other station; and, as inevitably, others say that it is too weak because they have been used to living close to the old local Birmingham transmitter, whose functions 5GB has assumed. But these local difficulties will soon disappear. In the meantime, letters are pouring in from all over the country showing appreciation of the new service, and leaving no doubt that many listeners find it effective.

I would add the word of warning that the service is experimental and we cannot guarantee the same freedom from breakdown as in the case of our other transmitters. 5GB is an experimental station. Its design has been evolved in a comparatively short period, by trial and measurement. It was felt that it would be a pity to deny listeners an alternative service just

As to the success of the experiment, the following are the main points on which we are definitely seeking guidance by practical experience:—

(a) The Extent of Service Area.

By this is meant the extent of the area within which reasonable service can be guaranteed to the average listener who possesses a simple receiving apparatus.

(b) The Best Method of Contrasting Programmes.

This implies designing programmes calculated to satisfy two moods of the average listener. It has nothing to do with the terms 'high-brow' and 'low-brow,' for the aim of the service is to give the best in every department.

(c) Technical Problems Incidental to the Operation of a New Type of Transmitter.

A novel form of circuit is being used at 5GB. This should prove to be distinctly superior, though actual practice under service conditions will reveal its true capability.

To sum up, 5GB is an experiment, a pioneer venture. The truth about the success of such experiments can only be revealed by co-operation between the listener and the broadcaster. This original scheme, undertaken while all our ordinary work is in progress, naturally involves a lot of worry, hard work and strain. But we are not complaining, since we are sure that listeners will co-operate in this great adventure, and that we are all going to participate in the enjoyment of a vastly improved service.

because it might be less regular than normally. But, after all, the service is alternative; if breakdowns occur in it, the listener is left with a programme from 5XX.

A London Night's Entertainment.

By Graham Eltham, with Sketches by Sava.

Mr. Graham Eltham, a veteran 'Promenader,' gives in the accompanying article an impression of the scene at Queen's Hall at the opening, on Saturday, August 13, of the 1927 Season of 'Proms.' These concerts has for thirty-two years been the rallying-point of musical London, and the enthusiasm of the 'Prom.' audiences have long been a matter of amazement to foreigners, who, in general, accept the axiom that England is 'the land without music.' Never before has public interest in the 'Proms.' run higher than this year, when the concerts are being conducted under the auspices of the B.B.C.

AS I stood in the expectant queue, a gentleman with a cynical expression and a ginger moustache played a dozen chords on a guitar and then, approaching our impatient crocodile, extended a grubby trilby hat with the words, 'That, ladies 'n gents, was a slight impersonation of a lady whilin' away the time playin' the guitar!' We tumbled our tuppences into the trilby. The impersonation had been of the slightest—but no slighter than our own impersonation of a crowd of English music-lovers.

Whatever we may have seemed we had certainly not the appearance of concert-goers. There, we were—old ladies with scarves round their heads, old gentlemen in mufflers (for it was an evening in August), Boy Scouts, young men in flannels carrying tennis rackets—a casual observer, taking us out of our context, might have supposed us to be waiting for anything else in the world but a concert. I half suspected that we were in the wrong queue after all, destined for Maskelyne's and another kind of magic. We were playing our parts very ill indeed. Our conversation should have been hushed and highbrow, our air aloof and scornful. But there were too many of us for that, we were filled with too joyous an expectancy—the hall might, from the crowd outside it, have contained not Grieg but Greyhounds.

When at slow pace we passed the doors and, flashing our season tickets, reached the Promenade, it was strangely welcoming to find the Queen's Hall just as we had always known it. Unthinkable that it should be otherwise. The queer comfort of familiar things—that lofty green and gold which in the minds of all good Promenaders must be for ever associated with the Proms, those same notices about striking matches, the same radiators to lean against—all as it was in our time, except that the fountain, rendezvous of youthful meetings, had gone the way of all fountains—and luckily, too, for certainly some of us would undoubtedly have been drowned among the gold fish, so great was the press upon the floor.

THE fountain had gone—let us hope to find rest in the country garden of some music-lover—but a stranger had come to replace it, an invader which the wisest among us had forecast would never conquer the Queen's Hall. As soon as they came through the doorway, people pointed at it, excitedly explaining, 'See, dear, there's the microphone—no, not that, that's the organ. That little white thing on a string! You'd hardly know, would you, that they were going to broadcast?'

Only five minutes to eight—and so many already on the Promenade that outside the police were turning people away. Inside everyone talked while the talking was good—the whole strangely assorted crowd in raincoats and flannels and the black cloak of Chelsea's Latin Quarter—the younger converts to this August cult of concerts loudly accepting the phenomenon of Broadcasting—the older hands (some with thirty-two years' experience to their credit) vaguely mistrustful of the microphone overhead, a little jealous perhaps that their own especial province was to be divided between a million others, a million strangers in the world beyond the green and gold. But whatever our age and standing as Promenaders, we kept our eyes to each other and our programmes, scarcely glancing at 'the gods' above us, for no true Promenader believes that any good can come to a man who listens to the Proms from a seat!

A HUSH. Entered the leaders of the orchestra, one by one as though instructed by some dramatic producer who knew his business. Applause. A second hush. Necks craned, we tiptoed as, on the stroke of eight, booming from church towers upon those unfortunates who had been shut outside in the misty damp of the evening, Sir Henry Wood, a black beard, a smile, and a pink carnation, advanced towards his platform. Then as though loosed from some enchanted expectancy, we all cheered and applauded the knight-errant of Music, who for more than thirty years had tilted against that most formidable of dragons, the Notion-that-Englishmen-do-not-care-for-Music. I dare say we put an extra ounce of horsepower into our clapping in order to show those fellows sitting at home in front of the loud-speaker that we were there—and the little microphone, seemingly distant and unmoved by our frenzies, gathered them up and scattered them over the country as later it was to scatter the music to which we listened.

The programme was familiar to us. With other music we might be 'on nodding terms; but this we could receive with unconstrained delight. No party manners were required to greet the 'Cockaigne' Overture, Boccherini's Minuet, the Grieg Concerto—no more than to welcome Rosina Buckman, (a Brunnhilde in muffti), Arthur de Greef (a little like Sir Hall Caine, a little less like William Shakespeare), Dale Smith. We were so perfectly at home that we demanded encores—and got them.

It was as though we were assisting at some intimate and sacred rite whose high priest was a short, masterful figure in stubborn evening dress who wielded his baton as though it had been, alternately, a whip, a rapier, and a feather. We were in turn Cockney with Elgar, sprightly with Boccherini, Scandinavian and vaguely heroic with Grieg, tender and devotional with Handel's 'Largo,' impetuously Magyar with Liszt. So possessed were we with music that when, after 'half time,' we were summoned from the buffet and the corridors, we returned with eager docility as though in terror of missing some supreme moment of ecstasy such as the last five minutes of a Cup Final or the last run of a century by Hobbs.

I DO not know what Sir Henry Wood thought of that opening concert of the 1927 Proms. I can only think that he must have been a happy man. If he had ever Coming To The Microphone.

Some Dates for Your Radio Diary.

THOSE who heard Professor Smithells' talk some weeks ago, in which he described the making of coal gas, will look forward to another in the same series—'How It's Done'—to be given by Professor E. V. Appleton, D.Sc., at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, September 7, entitled 'How Electricity is Made.' Professor Appleton has been Wheatstone Professor of Physics at the University of London since 1924, and is also the author of many interesting papers on Electricity and the scientific problems of Wireless Telegraphy. Later the same evening Mr. Robert Saudek, a Czech-Slovakian novelist, playwright and scientist, is giving a talk on character reading from handwriting. Mr. Saudek was the first expert to make English handwriting the subject of special study, and began his research of character reading from handwriting as far back as twenty years ago.

Prof. E. V. APPLETON.

At 9.20 on Saturday, September 10, Miss F. Tennyson Jesse will read a short story in the 'Writers of Today' series which has become a regular feature from all Stations. Miss Tennyson Jesse is the author of 'Tom Fool' and many other well-known novels.

THE old-fashioned music-hall song has, alas, been replaced by jazz. Today the street corner and the kerb are the last stronghold of the metrical ballad beloved of the '80's—and Mr. Harry Stevens, well known on the pavements of Westminster, is almost their last exponent. Mr. Stevens, troubadour of the street corners, will be introduced to LONDON and DAVENTRY listeners at 7 p.m. on Thursday, September 22, by Mr. L. de G. Sieveking, in a talk entitled 'The Street Singer.' He will render his two most popular numbers, 'Long years ago, out in the wilds of Australia' and 'The Old Abbey Ruin.'

The bells of Croyland Abbey, near Peterborough, are to be broadcast again on Sunday, September 18, between 8.0 and 8.15. These bells, which are very popular with listeners, are among the finest in the country.

SOME attractive programmes have been arranged for BOURNEMOUTH listeners during the week beginning September 4. On Wednesday, September 7, Bournemouth will broadcast a programme entitled 'Begone, Dull Care.' It will consist of light orchestral music and English and Scots humorous poems, including Hilaire Belloc's immortal histories of Charles Augustus Fortescue, Henry King (who died of eating bits of string), and Jim (who ran away from his nurse and was eaten by a lion). During the week Bournemouth is taking two of the B.B.C. Promenade Concerts from the Queen's Hall—on Tuesday, September 6, when Miss Marjorie Hayward is to be the soloist in the Mozart Violin Concerto (Number 5, in A), and Friday, September 9, when the programme will be mainly devoted to works by Beethoven.

Miss M. HAYWARD.

AS briefly announced in last week's issue, the main evening programme from LONDON and DAVENTRY on Friday, September 9, will consist of a German Programme, second in the series of National programmes which opened on July 24 with an afternoon devoted to the music of France. This series was suggested by the International Broadcasting Union at Geneva, and is an attempt to convey to listeners, in a series of programmes, a general idea of the music of other countries. The two main items in the forthcoming German Concert are to be Beethoven's rarely-performed Triple Concerto (for violin, cello and piano), played by the Hungarian Trio, and the most widely-known of Mozart's symphonies, the G-Minor. The vocalist will be Miss Enid Cruickshank.

Though the season for holidays is almost past, London and Daventry listeners will be interested in the talk which Miss Viola E. George is giving at 5 p.m. on Friday, September 9, in the series 'Holidays at Home and Abroad.' The title of Miss George's talk will be 'Glimpses of Sicily,' a timely one, for the island is most delightful to visit in the autumn.

FOR the past three seasons listeners have been able to share, through the medium of the microphone, some of the joy of Pavlova's annual London appearance at the Royal Opera House, Covent Garden. This they will be able to have again on the opening night this year, which is Monday, September 12, when between 8.15 and 9 p.m. the first ballet, Don Quixote, with music by Minkus, arranged by Laurent, will be relayed. The orchestra, which is the most important part of the entertainment from the point of view of listeners, will be conducted by Efrem Kurtz, for whom it will be the first appearance in this country. It is not inopportune to mention that Theodore Stier, who was for many years Pavlova's conductor on her world tours, and who was known to listeners for his work in the London Studio in connection with Viennese programmes, of which he was the unique interpreter, died some months ago after a severe illness, much to the regret of his many friends both in this country and abroad.

Madame PAVLOVA.

On Monday, September 5, at 5 p.m., Mrs. Clifton Reynolds is to give a Household talk from the London Studio on 'Aluminium Kitchen Ware.'

PERHAPS the most dramatic episode in the naval history of the Great War was that which began with the Battle of Coronel in the Pacific, on November 1, 1914—when Admiral von Spee's armoured cruisers, Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, sank Admiral Craddock's cruiser squadron—and ended with the Battle of Falkland on December 8, when Admiral Sturdee—sent with the two battle-cruisers, Invincible and Inflexible, to avenge the action at Coronel—sank von Spee and with him the last of Germany's naval weapons on the high seas. This is the story of the great 'Falkland Film' which has been made with the co-operation of the Admiralty. The film will open at the New Gallery Cinema on Monday, September 12, before a distinguished audience, and part of the special incidental music to it, relayed from the Cinema, is to be heard by LONDON and DAVENTRY listeners between 9.35 and 10.30 on that date.

THE next in the series of Promenade Concerts at the Queen's Hall which is to be broadcast from London and other stations, will be that on Wednesday, September 14, when the programme almost entirely will consist of works by Bach. The principal items in the first part of the programme include the two Double Piano Concertos No. 1 and 2 in C Minor and C Major respectively, the soloists for which will be James Ching and Victor Hely-Hutchinson, both of whom have been associated in broadcasting programmes with the interpretation of the Master. The vocalists, who will be singing arias and later general groups of songs, will be Miss Noel Eadie and Mr. Gregory Stroud.

Miss Minty Lamb, who is giving a talk on her experiences in Africa from the London Studio at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, September 6, is a niece of the late George R. Sims. Not long ago Miss Lamb travelled in territory hitherto unvisited by any white woman.

Mr. GREGORY STROUD.

SUNDAY, September 4, will be the beginning of the new Connexional Year of the Methodist Church, and on that day LONDON and DAVENTRY are to broadcast an evening service from Wesley's Chapel, City Road, with an address by the Rev. W. Hodson Smith, Principal of the National Children's Home. Mr. Hodson Smith is the new President of the Wesleyan Conference and will enter upon his year of office on September 4. Listeners may remember that a similar service was broadcast last year at the opening of the Connexional Year, when the then President of the Conference, the Rev. Dr. Russell Maltby, gave an address.

During the last ten years rapid strides have been made by the County Library Scheme, inaugurated by the Carnegie Trust. At 7 p.m. on Thursday, September 8, Daventry listeners will hear Mrs. Clement Parsons, Librarian in a Worcestershire village, on 'The Village Library—New Style.'

AN interesting Autumn Dramatic Season is announced by LIVERPOOL. This opens on Wednesday, September 14, with a new comedy by C. E. Lawrence, entitled The Hour of Prospero, an episode from the life of William Shakespeare, introducing, among other characters, Ann Hathaway and Ben Jonson. This will be the play's first radio performance. Later, in October, will follow a radio version, by Edward P. Genn, of Goethe's classic drama, Faust, with a cast of some thirty players led by William Armstrong. In addition to the two plays already mentioned, the Station also present a version of Gerhardt Hauptmann's beautiful imaginative play, Hannele (described by the author as a 'dream poem'), W. W. Jacobs's comedy-thriller, The Ghost of Jerry Bundler, Haddon Chambers's Passers By and, at Christmas, Puss in Boots, a radio pantomime played by wireless favourites, which should be seasonable fare for both children and grown-ups.

Squaring Up the Radio Circle.

An Announcement of Interest to Members, New and Old.

AS everyone knows who has ever listened to the Children's Hours at the various stations of the B.B.C., every Broadcasting Station has its own Radio Circle, and during the four years in which they have come into existence, it has become increasingly clear that they have an important part to play.

At the present moment it is difficult to know just how big these Radio Circles are, and (to some extent) who are and who are not members. There are, of course, lists of members, but these lists are not always up to date. Obviously, not a few of those whose names are included have grown out of childhood into youth and can no longer claim to be members of an organization designed especially for children. Some have changed their addresses. The membership of these Circles is bound to keep on changing, and unless periodical revisions are made in the membership lists there is always bound to be a certain amount of 'dead wood.'

To remedy this unsatisfactory state of affairs, those in charge of the Children's Hour have decided to alter somewhat the arrangements on which membership rests. Hitherto the general rule has been that newcomers to a Radio Circle should pay a small entrance fee entitling them to membership for an indefinite period. The entrance fee also entitled the new member to a badge, as the outward and visible sign of membership. In future it is proposed that there shall be an annual subscription and that it shall cover membership only for one year (January 1 to December 31). The first annual subscription, paid by new members, will entitle the newcomer to a badge, and the subsequent annual subscriptions will entitle him or her to a specially-designed membership calendar. As has been the case with entrance fees in the past, the difference between the cost of the annual subscription and the badge or calendar (and postage in connection with them) will be paid into the Radio Circle Fund, which will, as always, be spent wholly on helping approved 'good causes.' Every year a full statement will be published in The Radio Times, showing how the Radio Circle Fund is being spent.

It is thought that by this new plan, 'dead wood' will be cut out of the membership lists at regular intervals, and the lists will contain the names of only 'active' (i.e., actual) members for the year in question.

The new order of things will be introduced without any undue disturbance. It is not proposed to call in the badges that have already been issued even in the case of those who may not be willing to fall in with the new plan. (Any such person will remain a kind of honorary life member.)

For easy understanding we have summarized the various points of what we propose:—

1. In future active membership of the Radio Circle will be for one year only—each year to begin on January 1.

2. There will be an annual subscription of 9d.

3. Members will be given a badge when they join the Circle and a calendar in each succeeding year of membership.

4. Annual subscriptions are due on January 1.

5. The new system will come into operation on January 1, 1928, BUT in order that those who join the Circle before that date may not have to pay twice in a comparatively short time, all membership subscriptions paid during the remainder of 1927 will count as subscriptions for 1928 also.

The Radio Circles serve the admirable and useful purpose of uniting those who organize the Children's Hour programmes and those who listen to them. They also enable their members to assist, by means of their joint participation in Radio Circle schemes, those less fortunate than themselves. In both these respects it is hoped that the new plan will give strength to these groups, and all who have shared in Radio Circle activities in the past are asked to support them even more enthusiastically in the future.

any doubts in his mind as to the marriage of Broadcasting and the Proms they must now be laid at rest. You may ask, 'But what had broadcasting to do with the success of that evening?' So far as you at the Queen's Hall were concerned there was no visible sign of its presence but that little white box of a microphone and the letters B.B.C. writ small upon the tickets and programmes. But there was more than that. The spirit of broadcasting impressed itself upon the evening more vividly than any mere tangible symbol of it could have done. Listeners ourselves, we knew that tonight others were listening, and how they were listening, how the voice of the announcer was warning them that the time was come to 'go over' to Queen's Hall, the crescendo of sound as they 'faded in' to our own babble of conversation, their expectation as after the tap of Sir Henry's baton they waited for the opening of the overture. We were in the hall and they were at home, but we were the same sort of people, nevertheless, enjoying the same occasion. As we stood, closely packed on the floor of the hall, we seemed almost to brush shoulders with the immensely vaster audience outside.

Our memory of the evening will be a lasting one. We will remember it long after we have forgotten the sad rainy weather of this summer. Eager faces uplifted towards the music . . . a dominant figure lashing the orchestra to fury and soothing it to quiet . . . the little white microphone . . . a grey-blue London evening into which we crowded when the evening was done, walking home through the splashed lamplight of the streets, uplifted by the beauty of a great communal experience.

In the Near Future.

Notes from the Southern Stations.

Sheffield.

The next local night concert will take place at 7.30 p.m. on Tuesday, September 6, and will consist of 'turns' by two well-known entertainers, together with sketches by the Station Radio Players.

Liverpool.

Few white men have travelled extensively in Tibet. Of this small body is Captain J. E. Ellam who, in a talk at 7 p.m. on Thursday, September 15, will describe his experiences beyond the Himalayas. In 1922-23 he undertook a tour of Tibet, by permission of the Indian and Tibetan Governments, in order to study that peculiar phase of Buddhism known as Lamaism.

Plymouth.

The Micrognomes will be heard again on Monday, September 5, in 'A Thames-side Episode,' by Barbara Couper.

Age cannot wither nor custom stale the musical charm of Liza Lehmann's In a Persian Garden, which will occupy part of the evening programme on Friday, September 9. The artists will be Ida Cooper, Gladys Palmer, Parry Jones, and Kenneth Ellis.

Bournemouth.

During the half hour before the Promenade Concert on Tuesday, September 6, there will be songs by Mr. Tom Brown, and Mr. Ernest Lush will play pianoforte solos by Dorothy Howell and Leo Livens.

'From Somerset' is the title of a short programme of folk-songs to be given on the evening of Friday, September 9, by the Hensbridge Folk-Song Singers under the direction of the Rev. G. F. C. Peppin. Mr. Peppin was associated with the late Mr. Cecil Sharpe in his work of collecting our English songs from their often obscure sources, and has trained a choir from his own village of Hensbridge in Somerset to sing the songs of their county.

Manchester.

The Brodsky Quartet are giving a Chamber Music Recital on Sunday, September 4, between 3.30 and 5.15 p.m.

The Station Repertory Players will broadcast scenes from Sheridan's plays The Rivals and The Critic between 7.30 and 9 p.m. on Tuesday, September 6. The latter play is not generally known, but the scene which will be given—namely, the Rehearsal Scene from Act I—is still one of the most amusing in British Comedy.

Listeners who demand something new in musical programmes will find it in the 'Programme of Serenades' to be given on Thursday, September 8, at 9.15 p.m., which will include famous serenades by Schubert, Elgar, Gounod, Tchaikovsky, etc., some played by the Station Orchestra, others sung by Mr. Glyn Eastman (bass).

Daventry Experimental.

Two Promenade Concerts will be broadcast on Tuesday, September 6, and Friday, September 9, respectively.

Four old favourites are taking part in Birmingham's Ballad Concert on Saturday, September 10:—May Huxley (soprano), Leonard Gowings (tenor), Muriel Sotham (contralto), and Frank Foxon (baritone).

On Wednesday, September 7, Stuart Vinden will present two short plays from the Birmingham Studio—'The Bridge,' by Seton Malcolm, and 'Catherine Parr,' by Maurice Baring. Mr. Vinden himself will take the part of Henry VIII in the latter piece.

'Should We Stage People Broadcast?'

asks Mary O'Farrell—and gives the answer.

THERE can be no denying the existence of a certain difference of opinion among artists generally as to the value of broadcasting from their own personal point of view. This is perhaps only natural in the case of a new art like the art of radio-drama. For those who have had no experience of acting before the microphone, with no visible audience and no audible applause, the ordeal may seem to possess something of the terror of the unknown.

Personally I love it. To me it is one of the most fascinating branches of my art. Certainly I would never care entirely to forsake the footlights, but broadcasting possesses undoubted attractions of its own. In case it may be thought that my enthusiasm is merely the result of the novelty of the experience, I may say that I have been broadcasting on and off now for many months, and its interest for me has not waned. On the contrary, every fresh appearance before the microphone increases rather than diminishes my enjoyment.

Broadcasting is to me far more interesting than film work, in which, instead of the story being told consecutively and in a straightforward manner as in the case of stage or radio drama, it is acted in sections—so that occasionally the last scene is 'shot' before the first! Such a manner of telling a story does not, I think, tend to bring out the best that is in an artist.

One of the main contentions of those who dislike broadcasting is that the absence of a visible audience that is emotionally in sympathy with the performer tends to rob his or her acting of some of its force. Personally I do not see how this argument can be applied to the performance of radio plays, because it is literally incorrect to say that the actor has no audience. Hundreds of thousands of people are listening to every word he says,

Miss Mary O'Farrell enjoys a double popularity, as a star of both stage and ether. The question she asks in this article is one which has troubled many of our leading actors and actresses—but a glance at the B.B.C.'s programmes will show the answer which most of them have found to it.

every sound he makes. The microphone is the sign and symbol of the existence of this vast audience, and the performer must be devoid of all imagination who cannot clearly visualize the multitude of listeners, and be inspired thereby perhaps to an even greater degree than by a visible audience within the walls of a theatre. The involuntary action of the average performer in bending forward to deliver his or her lines to the microphone shows that this wonderful instrument is something more than what it seems to be. It is, in fact, an audience itself; one's imagination supplies the deficiency.

The technique of acting before the microphone is very different from the technique of the theatre, and I believe that there is danger for those who attempt too much in their first efforts at broadcasting. At first the performer should be modest; taking only those parts which are obviously easy to 'get over' by wireless—and, above all, remembering that just as much forceful acting is necessary to achieve the desired effect as in the case of a performance on the stage. It is true that from the listener's point of view gesture and facial expression count for nothing, but it is equally true that, unless the performer actually feels emotion, that emotion will not be suggested by the words that are uttered.

I cannot see that an appearance in a broadcast programme can do anything but enhance the reputation already gained by a good artist. A play may be familiar to almost everyone by name, yet there are bound to be many who, while knowing of the play by name, may not have seen it, and the fact that the whole or part of it is broadcast inevitably arouses a desire in the average listener to become more familiar with it. In this way the play reaches a far wider audience than it could ever hope to reach by ordinary performance in a theatre. And something similar is true of those who take part in it. From being perhaps mere names their work becomes known to many who for various reasons might never have heard of them; if they succeed in creating a favourable impression upon their vast audience, the result is all to the good.

The microphone is an acid test of real acting. In the first place, diction must be perfect; a primary virtue which is painfully lacking in some theatres today. Further, mere prettiness or charm of dress and make-up are worthless.

At the end of a performance of a radio play I am tired, but supremely happy, for the performer before the microphone cannot let himself go as he would on the stage; he must appear even more natural, and yet hold the listener's attention. Intense concentration and restraint are vitally necessary. Slipshod work is fatal, and for this reason alone, that it keys the artist up to give of the very best that is in him, broadcasting must be beneficial to every artist who is keen to progress in his art.

CONTACT with a great mind is one of the rarest privileges that may come our way, whether we are young or old, and who shall say that already the voice and personality of Sir Walford Davies may not have kindled in at least one of his young listeners the spark that will some day shed the light of new music on the world, that those thrilling travel talks by Clifford Collinson have not stirred in some young heart the spirit of another Livingstone or Stanley? Thanks to such inspired and inspiring teachers as these, the day is at hand when music will be no longer a dreary subject in the classroom, or geography a dull thing to be taught with the aid of maps and books alone.

It is in no sense of the word a deprecation of the influence of the staff teacher to make this claim for wireless. The teachers themselves, many of whom are wholeheartedly interested in broadcasting, are the last people to think that this is implied. Wireless at its best can never do more—nor, I am sure, does the B.B.C. desire that it should do more—than supplement and strengthen the influence of the teacher in the school, but rightly handled it may powerfully render this important service in our educational system.

A New Window in the Schools.

A startling way in which to realize what wireless is already doing in the classrooms of many of our modern schools is to go to the schools and see for yourself. Clearly the wireless lesson is not merely a stimulant and an inspiration; it is fast becoming a great leveller, levelling up, not down.

As I write there comes to my mind a sunny school in southern England, standing on a fragrant hillside high above the sea, a place in which the children have every kind of opportunity that they need for living a full and happy school life. Wireless there has become part of the daily round, and more, a new joy, to be brought out on to the lawn on fine days when lessons are over, for the children to listen if they will to the talks and the music. I recall another school, in the heart of a manufacturing city, a smoky, grimy, cramped-up school, with the windows looking out on to factory walls and chimney-stacks; where the turmoil of twentieth-century industrialism can be heard every day, and the children play on a dreary stretch of concrete. They have wireless there also, and it is a heartening sight to see a classroom full of children, their eager gaze directed towards the loud-speaker and their whole attention absorbed by the wireless lesson, the same perhaps to which other children are listening in the sunny school of the south.

I remember the contrast offered by the windows of the two schools: in one they looked out over the broad blue sea, and in the other on to the smoking chimney-stacks and grimy walls; and I rejoice to think that for the children of today and tomorrow in every kind of school, wireless is now opening a new window on to the world, a window from which can be seen no limits to the view, a new window for the growing minds of our children.

Fantasy Overture, 'Romeo and Juliet'
Tchaikovsky

TCHAIKOVSKY'S piece, an early work, is based on Shakespeare's play. It is really a tone-poem—an attempt to reproduce in music some of the emotions of the drama, without following the story scene by scene. It has three chief features: a chant-like tune suggesting Friar Lawrence and the marriage solemnity; vigorous music, reminding us of the Montague-Capulet feud, and a tender tune obviously suggesting the love of Romeo and Juliet.

ELGAR'S Sursum Corda was originally scored for Strings, Brass and Organ. It begins in slow, serious style, and then comes one of those broadly spreading, richly expressive tunes that are so characteristic of the Composer, and which here so well represents the thought expressed in the title—'Lift up your heart!' A climax is worked up, and a contrasted section follows, less smooth and at a quicker pace. The first mood then returns to round off the piece.

FEW clergymen are better known to the public than the Rev. F. H. Gillingham, who has for twenty years been a pillar of the Essex C.C., and has played for the Gentlemen several times. It will be remembered that he broadcast the first running commentary on a cricket match ever carried out in this country, on the occasion of the New Zealanders' visit to Leyton early this season. Since 1923 he has been Rector of St. Margaret's, Lee.

THERE is no need to emphasize the deadly nature of the tuberculous diseases, which now constitute one of the greatest plagues that afflict the human race. Last year the National Association launched a special appeal for £100,000 to endow its research into the origins and cure of tuberculosis, and a powerful plea for its success was made by the President of the Association, the Prince of Wales.

Contributions should be sent to the Marchioness of Titchfield at the Special Appeal Offices, 20, Hanover Square, London, W.1.

THE WIRELESS SINGERS

Just as at morning our thoughts are of the future as we set our faces to the new day, so at the hour of nightfall, with another day laid away on the shelf of the past, there steals upon us the spirit of remembrance. For, delightful though the present may be, the past and the future are the subject of our inner dreams. The 'Vesper' programmes, of which this is the second, are planned to fall in with this mood of sad-sweet recollection.

THE ORCHESTRA

Overture to 'The Italian in Algiers' .. Rossini

ROSSINI'S The Italian in Algiers, is nowadays represented only by its Overture, though when it came out (at Venice, in 1813) it seemed likely to have a long life, for it was full of the gayest, catchiest tunes, cleverly orchestrated.

The Overture opens with a slow Introduction, and then goes on its sprightly course with unquenchable vitality, making good use of that favourite Rossinian device of crescendo (a gradual, exciting increase of tone) that brought the Composer some satirical comment and the name of 'Signor Crescendo' when, later, he went to Paris.

Tone Poem, 'Finlandia' Sibelius

FEW Composers have expressed the nature and life of their native country so completely as Sibelius, who shows forth the spirit of Finland.

The piece named after his country is built up out of short motifs which are set off against each other, rather than fully developed.

After a few impressive chords, the religious-sounding First Tune is given out.

A quicker, dance-like section follows and is succeeded by a warlike theme.

A sad melody (not an actual folk-tune, though it sounds like one) is now heard, and the piece is soon rounded off by a Coda based on one of its early motifs.

An Oratorio by HANDEL

Soloists:

FLORENCE HOLDING (Soprano); GLADYS PALMER (Contralto); TOM PICKERING (Tenor); JOSEPH FARRINGTON (Bass); THE STATION REPERTORY CHORUS and ORCHESTRA, conducted by JOSEPH LEWIS.

From Birmingham

HANDEL was sixty-one when, in 1746, he composed Judas Maccabæus. Actually, it commemorated Culloden and the victories of the Duke of Cumberland over the Young Pretender, though ostensibly it celebrated the triumphs of the Israelitish hero, Judas Maccabæus, whose exploits are recorded in the Apocrypha.

The Oratorio is in three parts.

The FIRST PART opens with an Overture in two linked portions, the first slow and dignified, the second spirited.

We find the Israelites bewailing their defeats and the loss of their leader.

Simon bids the people cry to God. Here is sung the Chorus, often given apart from the Oratorio, O Father, whose almighty power.

Simon prophesies that Judas Maccabæus shall lead Israel to victory, and sings the well-known Arm, arm, ye brave.

Judas undertakes the great responsibility, and the closing numbers of this Part are expressions of confidence in God's power to give victory.

In the SECOND PART the Israelitish warriors return triumphant, and the praises of Judas are sung. The hero thanks his brethren, and reminds them, in the Air How vain is man, that they owe thanks to God.

A messenger now brings news that fresh hosts are advancing against them. Judas sings the famous Sound an alarm, and goes again to meet the foe, whilst an Israelitish Man and Woman urge the people to put away idols.

PART THREE opens with the prayers of the people. The messenger brings tidings of victory and there follows the triumphal See, the conquering hero comes.

A league of amity with Rome has been concluded, we are told. Here is placed the Duet O lovely peace, and with a Chorus of Hallelujah, Amen the work is concluded.

The Ideal Summer Meal.

Allinson Wholemeal Bread and fresh fruit—an ideal meal for a hot summer's day, light, refreshing, sustaining, very appetizing and easily digestible. Try it for breakfast for a week and see how much better you feel through the morning—fresher and more vigorous.

Allinson Bread is, in fact, a meal in itself. It provides every element necessary to keep the body in perfect condition—all the good of the finest selected Empire wheats, stone-ground in the good old windmill way. Nothing is added, nothing is taken away—it includes the Vitamin B essential to life, the mineral salts which aid digestion, and the roughage that helps the body to perform its natural functions with regularity. Do not be deceived by colour—all brown breads are not wholemeal. Ask for Allinson and see the band round every loaf. This Allinson paper band protects you against substitution. It guarantees that you are getting what you want and your family want—genuine Allinson Wholemeal Bread.

Free Gifts

Twelve of these bands entitle you to a copy of Rembrandt's famous picture, "The Mill," measuring 20" x 15", and free of any advertising matter. £100,000 was paid for the original. Useful and valuable Gifts may also be obtained in connection with Allinson Wholemeal Flour, with the aid of Coupons (valued in accordance with the size of the bag). Particulars of these gifts, together with a book of 101 Recipes for tasty dishes that may be made with Wholemeal, are contained in every sealed bag of Allinson Flour

There are Allinson bakers in every district. Allinson Wholemeal Flour for home baking is sold in sealed bags (3½lb., 7lb., and 14lb.) by most Bakers and Grocers.

THE story of Judas Maccabæus, which is being broadcast today from Daventry Experimental Station, will be found on page 331.

This extract is Judas's reply to the Israelites, when they express their joy and pride in his victory. He thanks them, but bids them 'look up to Heaven! To Heaven let glory and all praise be given. . . . It was the Lord that for His Israel fought. . . . Then, in the succeeding air, we have a reflection on man's frailty, without the aid of God:—

How vain is man who boasts in fight
The valour of gigantic might,
And dreams not that a hand unseen
Directs and guides this weak machine!

SCHUBERT'S song is a beautiful evocation of the spirit of peace. 'Come, then, to me, and never more depart; let this pure light fill my soul,' is its plea.

Overture to 'The Bartered Bride'

Smetana

Mr. Alexander McCredie (left) sings in Cardiff's Military Band Concert, and Mr. Robert Gregory is the solo pianist in the concert of Light Classics that Manchester broadcasts this afternoon.

SMETANA was the first man who caused the outside world to take notice of the music of Bohemia (now Czecho-Slovakia). Three years ago his countrymen celebrated the centenary of his birth by holding a great Smetana Festival at Prague.

The Bartered Bride, the second of his eight Operas, turns on an old situation—a girl's loving one man in spite of her parent's choosing another as her husband. Of course, all comes right in the end. The plot is worked out in a gay spirit, and the Overture hits that off delightfully.

OLIVE HEMINGWAY (Soprano)

Ever since the day ('Louise') Charpentier
Solveig's Song ('Peer Gynt') Grieg

JULIEN, a Parisian artist, falls in love with Louise, a working girl. Her parents will not let her marry a man of so happy-go-lucky a profession, as they think it, so the lovers run away together to Montmartre. There, in their charming little garden overlooking Paris, Louise sings this song, telling Julien how much happier she is with him than toiling in the dull workshop she used to know.

THE wilful, selfish Peer Gynt, in Ibsen's story, has been wandering over the world, never finding the satisfaction he seeks. Once he has a vision. He sees Solveig, who loves him, sitting spinning outside the hut he built long ago for himself and her. She is now a middle-aged woman, but still fair-haired and comely, and as she spins, she thinks of Peer and sings 'Thou wilt return some day and find me waiting.'

A PRIZE-WINNING QUARTET.

The Mexborough Excelsior Male Voice Quartet, which broadcasts from Manchester tonight, has to its credit a long list of successes in musical festivals in the North.

IN 1786 Mozart, then a popular public figure, was giving subscription concerts in Vienna. He must have been very busy, for of one of his concerts, given the year before, his father writes home: 'Wolfgang played an admirable new Concerto which was in the copyist's hands when we arrived yesterday. Your brother had not even time to try over the Rondo.' However, Mozart managed to write and learn a new work for almost every concert. In all he wrote seventeen during his time in Vienna (between 1782 and 1791). This one in A (K.488) is a cheery, urbane work, in three Movements.

AT the age of twenty-one, Mr. Robert Gregory, a native of Prestwich, near Manchester, went to Vienna to study under the great master, Leschetitzky. He lived in the Austrian capital for about twenty years and rapidly became known both as a teacher and a performer. At the outbreak of the war Mr. Gregory had some thrilling experiences, being denounced as a British spy and kept under strict surveillance for some time. Since the war he has settled once again in his native town and has given many recitals. This, however, is his first appearance before the microphone.

Rev. CYRIL JACKSON.

THE lunch-time organ recitals from Southwark Cathedral have made listeners familiar with the playing of the Rev. Cyril Jackson, and they will not be surprised to learn that he originally intended to take up music as a profession. His course at the Royal College of Music was, however, interrupted by the war, and certain circumstances during his service as an airman made him decide to take Holy Orders. He is now Succentor of Southwark Cathedral.

Cigarette ('The Catch of the Season')
Waltz Song, 'The Maid of the Mountains'

IT is not so very long ago that the popular conception of 'a really jolly evening' was one which began with a young lady singing Tosti's 'Goodbye' and ended with coffee in very small cups and then bread and butter rolled into very small cylinders. Those were the days of the ballad, the good old slushy ballad that made mamma tremble and sent a tear rolling down papa's whiskers, when 'years' inevitably rhymed with 'tears,' and 'love' with 'Heaven above.' They were not afraid of sentiment then. They were, in fact, uncommonly partial to a nice lump in the throat. But today our popular songs are different; a 'really jolly evening' consists of a solo Charleston by Aunt Mabel and a succession of cynical, syncopated songs by any member of the family who has the skill to handle a ukulele and the impertinence to pretend he can sing. Tonight's programme is avowedly and utterly sentimental. If listened to in a darkened room, with moonlight streaming through the window, it may bring a tear into the eyes of our unsentimental younger generation, it may re-create a little of the spirit of the days when men and women had the decency not to be ashamed of 'having a good cry.' The least it can do is to point the contrast between the new and the old—to the latter's advantage, some may think.

'PARIAH'

By AUGUST STRINDBERG

Characters:

Mr. X, an Archaeologist..... } middle-aged men
Mr. Y, an American traveller }

Scene: A simply-furnished room in a farmhouse. The door and the windows open on a landscape. In the middle of the room stands a big dining-table, covered at one end by books, writing materials, and antiquities; at the other end by a microscope, insect-cases and specimen jars full of alcohol.

On the left side hangs a bookshelf. Otherwise, the furniture is that of a well-to-do farmer. The landscape outside and the room itself are steeped in sunlight. The ringing of church bells indicates that the morning services are just over. Now and then the cackling of hens is heard from the outside.

Mr. Y comes in in his shirt-sleeves, carrying a butterfly-net and a botany-can. He goes straight up to the bookshelf and takes down a book, which he begins to read on the spot.

Mr. X comes in, also in his shirt-sleeves. Mr. Y starts violently, puts the book back on the shelf upside down, and pretends to be looking for another volume.

Mr. X speaks.

THE work of August Strindberg, the Swedish writer, who died in 1912, is still little known in England outside the circle of those who study the drama; but fifty years ago his plays and novels convulsed the intellectual world by their attacks on modern society, and particularly on the feminist movement to which the other great Scandinavian playwright of the day, Ibsen, had given such support.

Prelude to Act III ('Lohengrin') Wagner
Forest Murmurs ('Siegfried') Wagner
SIEGFRIED, the hero, having killed a dragon and tasted its blood, is enabled to understand the voices of Nature. Resting under a tree, he listens to the murmur of the forest's life. He would imitate the birds' songs, and from a reed, after several attempts, fashions a pipe. Then his thoughts turn to his mother, who died when he was born, and the music clouds over for a moment, only to resume its cheerful course with a new theme. The whole episode is one of the loveliest scenes Wagner ever wrote.
Prelude to Act III ('Tristan and Isolde') Wagner
TRISTAN, a Cornish Knight of royal birth, has fought successfully in Ireland on behalf of his uncle, King Mark of Cornwall. He brings Isolde, an Irish princess, as an unwilling bride for the King, but discovers that he himself loves Isolde. They hide their love, and her marriage with the King is carried out. But the lovers cannot be denied. During one of their secret meetings the King surprises them, and one of his followers stabs Tristan, who will not defend himself.
The prelude to the last Act expresses the anguish of the Knight, who lies dying, and his yearning for Isolde. We hear also (from the Cor Anglais) the shepherd playing upon his pipe—surely, the most plaintive melody in all music.

Symphonic Poem, 'Death and Transfiguration' Strauss

DEATH AND TRANSFIGURATION is one of the best-known of Strauss's 'Symphonic Poems.' It was completed in 1889 (when the Composer was only twenty-five), and when published in 1891 the score was prefaced by a poem by Alexander Ritter. This was, however, as a matter of fact, written after the music, and is somewhat in the nature of a commentary, Strauss having composed the work on his own imaginative basis.

Miss Margaret Balfour and Mr. Dale Smith are the soloists in the Promenade Concert to be broadcast from Daventry Experimental Station tonight.

Though Death and Transfiguration is a continuous work, it consists of four more or less definite sections, to which the sections of the poem correspond.
I. (Slow.) The sick man lies in his bed and dreams of 'childhood's golden day.'
II. (Quick, with great agitation.) A fierce, delirious fight with Death. Once again there follows stillness, and in
III. (Slower—a lengthy section) the dying man reviews, as in a trance, all his past life. At length, there comes a briefer, fiercer struggle, in which Death strikes his final blow.
IV. (At a moderate speed, and Tranquil.) The stillness of death is succeeded by the Transfiguration.

A PROGRAMME FOR A BORED LISTENER
THE holidays are over, and the first day back at work seems interminable. Nobody seems to be interested in your holiday experiences. By the evening, you don't know what you want in the way of a wireless programme. Not too much orchestra, not much singing—anyhow, nothing complicated. Pleasant things with a tune. Perhaps something to make you smile, not a hearty variety turn, but just—Never mind, we all know 'that bored feeling,' and tonight's programme is designed for those who suffer from it.

NORMANDY is the province of apple-blossom and cider, of Bayeux and Caen and Lisieux and Rouen, of some of the most famous buildings in France and half the names we learnt in history at school. It is an ideal place for a holiday, and after hearing Mr. Molony's talk, some of us may begin to regret that we did not hear it earlier in the year.

7.0 Mr. L. F. RAMSAY: 'The Hollering Pot'

HARVEST time is always, in communities that live on the produce of the soil, an occasion for many customs whose origin is often lost in antiquity. Such is the serving of the 'Hollering Pot'—the jug of home-brewed ale with which the farmer's wife would reward the harvesters when, having finished their work, they sang the Harvest Chant. Mr. Ramsay will describe this and other harvest customs, many of which, though quite suited to appear in books of folklore beside the barbaric ceremonies of Africa and the East, are still being performed in English villages at this season of the year.

THE names of Laddie Cliff and Leslie Henson are a valuable asset to the cast of any musical show—and in Lady Luck these two versatile comedians have things all their own way. They play the parts of Biff Morton and Wyndham Bleugh, two speculators, who lose all their money in a copper-mine. There never was a musical comedy yet which ended unhappily, so listeners need not waste their pity on 'Biff' and 'Windy'. The 'woman in the case' is Phyllis Monkman, the 'Lady Luck' who brings the two bankrupts prosperity.

9.20 SIR FREDERICK LUGARD: 'Africa and its Problems'

AFRICA, the Dark Continent that was a mystery to our grandfathers, is little less of a mystery to us—even after sixty years of exploration and colonization and annexation and exploitation have done their worst. Sir Frederick Lugard's experience of Africa dates back to 1885, when he served in the Sudan; three years later he was wounded by slave-dealers on Lake Nyasa, and since then he has held many administrative posts in both West and East Africa, finally being Governor-General of Nigeria from 1914 to 1919. Obviously, therefore, his opportunities of forming an opinion on Africa's many problems have been exceptionally large.

Devised by AMYAS YOUNG

- (1) Gold of Ophir—The return of Solomon's Treasure Fleet, as mentioned in the Second Book of Kings
- (2) The War Galleys—At sea in Roman times
- (3) The Toll of the Sea—A rescue on the Cornish coast
- (4) The Whalers—(c. 1850)
- (5) The Sure Shield—A glimpse of Jutland

THE WIRELESS ORCHESTRA and THE WIRELESS CHORUS, conducted by JOHN ANSELL

FROM the time when the ships of Solomon sailed to Ophir, the sea has called forth the highest endeavour and the greatest valour of men of action. This programme will strive to give some glimpses of the men who braved the perils of the sea—in the ships of Solomon, in the Roman galleys in the time of Ben Hur, in little-known adventures off our own coast today, and in the whalers that hunt the biggest animal that lives.

The 'London' Symphony Haydn

HAYDN was fond of London, and twice came over to conduct some of his works—and incidentally to be feted and have a thoroughly good time.

This Symphony, Haydn's hundred-and-fourth, was first heard in 1795, when he (then aged sixty-three) had a benefit concert. In style and power the music looks forward to Beethoven.

The First Movement opens with a slow Introduction, which, very effectively, is in the minor key, the quick main body of the Movement being in the major. Its First Main Tune is a natty, lively one, which Haydn apparently liked so well that he used it as the Second Main Tune also—quite an unusual thing to do. There is a brief new tune, but it can scarcely be called a main one.

The Second Movement, the slow one, is an Air with two Variations.

The usual Minuet follows—a typical Haydn dance Movement.

The Finale is quick and spirited. In its opening drone bass, like the tune of a shepherd's pipe, it recalls Haydn's love of peasant music.

Third Violin Concerto Mozart

AS a boy, Mozart was a wonderful pianist, as a youth, he was a capable violinist. This Concerto, with five others, comes from a time, about the age of nineteen, when he was particularly interested in the Violin, which he had studied under his father, one of the greatest teachers of the day.

The Concerto is in three Movements—a bold and brilliant opening one, a slow, expressive middle one, and a sparkling Rondo. The Orchestra Mozart used for the work contains

Twenty-ninth Symphony, in A Mozart

THIS charmingly clear and contented music belongs to much the same period as the Violin Concerto we have already heard. (Its number is K.201). It is equally lightly scored—for Strings, Oboes and Horns. Every note tells, and the First Movement in particular is a lovely example of how to use one's tools. The longish Slow Movement follows (starting with the beautiful effect of muted Violins). Then comes the dainty Minuet, and a Finale whose spirits never flag—nor would they, we feel, if the Movement were twice as long.

SOME NOTABLE BEAUTY SPOTS IN HISTORIC NORMANDY.

The pleasure resorts on the coast of Normandy offer every sort of enjoyment that the normal holiday-maker requires, but in the country behind lie all sorts of beauties to be discovered by the more inquisitive visitor. Here are three glimpses of the Normandy that Mr. Chartres Molony will describe in his talk from London this afternoon—Notre Dame at Caudebec-en-Caux, the Abbey of St. Wandrille, and the giant oak at Allouville-Belbosse.

THE annual meetings of the British Association bring together savants from all the branches of science, and the papers read before its assemblies, if they do not often publish any new discoveries of epoch-making importance, usually sum up the year's progress in scientific research. Tonight listeners will hear the presidential address of Sir Arthur Keith, the famous anthropologist and anatomist, on the position of the Darwinian theory today. It is nearly seventy years since first 'The Origin of Species' fluttered the Victorian doves, and in the meantime—especially of recent years—much evidence has been discovered that goes to modify the original

HOW EVERYONE CAN LEARN A LANGUAGE.

Pelman Institute's Amazing Discovery.

Can you read Spanish?
 No.
 Do you know any German?
 No.
 Here are two books, one printed in Spanish, the other in German.
 Yes.
 Can you read them?
 Of course not.
 Well, try and see.

An Hour later.

Miraculous! I can read and understand every word.

The above is typical of the experiences of the thousands of men and women who are learning French, Italian, Spanish, or German by the new Pelman method.

For instance, this method enables you to pick up a 48-page book, printed in a language of which you are entirely ignorant, and not containing a single English word, and to read it through without a mistake.

It sounds impossible; yet it is perfectly true, as you will see for yourself when you take the first lesson.

This new method is revolutionising the teaching of Foreign Languages in this and other countries.

It enables you to learn French in French, German in German, Italian in Italian, and Spanish in Spanish, thus avoiding all translation from one language into another.

It enables you to think in the particular language you are learning.

It enables you to learn a Foreign Language without spending months in a preliminary struggle with a mass of dull and difficult grammatical rules and exceptions. It introduces you to the language itself straight away and you pick up the grammar almost unconsciously as you go along.

There are no vocabularies to be learnt by heart—parrot fashion. You learn the words you need by using them and so that they stay in your mind without effort.

There are no classes to attend. The new method enables you to learn a Foreign Language in your spare time, in your own home, and in from one-third to one-half the usual time.

General Sir Aylmer Haldane, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., D.S.O., writes:—

"The Pelman method is the best way of learning French without a teacher."

Others write to say that they have —learnt French "in four months" (W 149).
 —learnt Spanish in "less than six months" (SM 151).
 —learnt German in "100 hours" (GP 136).
 —"obtained a remunerative post solely on the merits of my Italian" although "absolutely ignorant of the language eight months ago" (IG 121).

WRITE FOR FREE BOOK TO-DAY.

This wonderful new method of learning languages is explained in four little books entitled respectively: "How to Learn French," "How to Learn Italian," "How to Learn Spanish," and "How to Learn German."

You can have a free copy of any one of these books by writing for it to-day to the Pelman Institute (Languages Dept.), 95, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1.

State which book you want, and a copy will be sent you by return, gratis and post free. Write, or call, to-day.

'ON TOUR' THIS WEEK.

COLLEEN CLIFFORD

Versatility is often a dubious quality in an actress, for on the stage, to be good at many things is usually to be superlative at none. Miss Colleen Clifford, who makes a broadcast tour this week, is an exception to the general rule. She has undertaken, in turn, singing, dancing, light comedy, drama and character sketches—and made good in all these different departments of her art. It is, however, as an entertainer at the piano that Miss Clifford comes to the microphone and has at the same time, perhaps, found her truest métier. The evenings on which she is 'appearing' this week are as follows:—

Monday, Daventry Experimental; Tuesday, Cardiff; Wednesday, Glasgow; Thursday, Bournemouth; Friday, Belfast; Saturday, Manchester.

- 6.30 S.B. from London
- 8.50 S.B. from Leeds

7.0 Miss KENNEDY-BELL: 'The Massacre of the Drones'

WARS and massacres abound in human history, but nowhere can one find any so grim as the annual massacre that goes on in the bee-hives at this season every year. The drones—for thousands of years the type of idleness in the literatures of the world—have had their summer of ease and luxury; now comes their hour of reckoning. How this tragedy is worked out Miss Kennedy Bell will explain in this evening's talk.

9.20 Major HERBERT NOYES: 'A King of Big Game.'

A WAY in the virgin jungle of Malaya lives an animal—the Seladang—that is asserted by those who have hunted him to be the most dangerous quarry in the world. It is not merely that he stands six feet high and has horns six feet or more in length; what makes him so particularly formidable is the fact that, unlike most big game, he is apt to attack unprovoked, and, when attacked himself, he fights his hunter to the death. 'Either you get him or he gets you.'
Major Noyes will describe some thrilling incidents in which hunters have either got, or been got by, Seladang.

ONE of the most interesting of the birds which frequent our countryside is the partridge. There are two varieties common in this country—the grey and the red-legged. The latter was introduced into England by a British peer—the Marquis of Hertford—in the 18th century. As a table delicacy the partridge is unique and its habits are well worthy of study by the Nature lover. At this time of the year, too, the bird is causing great excitement in the hearts of countless sportsmen—for partridge-shooting begins in September! Nature lovers, epicures and sportsmen, therefore, should all make a point of hearing Mr. W. Percival Westell's interesting and topical talk this evening.

Two Broadcast Performances of 'La Tosca' This Week.

The Story of the Opera.

LA TOSCA, founded on Sardou's drama of that name, was first produced in Rome in 1900, and was heard in London later in the same year. The setting is Rome in the year 1800.

Act I.

Angelotti (Bass) rushes into the Church of Sant' Andrea alla Valle. He is breathless and dishevelled, for, as one of the Attavanti who took part in a recent revolt, he has been imprisoned, and only this moment has escaped.

His sister has hidden in a shrine the key of the chapel, for which he now searches; finding it, he hides in the chapel.

The Sacristan (Baritone) now enters. He has been washing brushes for the painter, Cavaradossi, who is at this time working in the church on a painting of the Madonna, and whose easel stands in the foreground.

Soon the Angelus rings. Cavaradossi (Tenor) comes in, to find the Sacristan kneeling in prayer. The painter uncovers the picture, which the Sacristan is scandalized to see is the portrait of a fair lady who frequents the Church.

Cavaradossi begins to paint, and compares the fair model with his dark-eyed Tosca. Soon he is left alone: then Angelotti appears. Cavaradossi welcomes him, but hides him again, giving him a basket of food, as he hears Tosca's voice calling him—'Mario!'

He then unlocks the Church door for Tosca, the singer (Soprano). She is suspicious of the locked door and the whispering voices she has heard, but he reassures her. There follows a long scene between these two. When Tosca recognizes in the painting the features of the Marchioness Attavanti, she becomes violently jealous, but Cavaradossi soon soothes her, and persuades her to leave him now to his work.

When Tosca has gone, Cavaradossi brings Angelotti out of the Chapel. Soon a cannon-shot from the Castle is heard, signal of Angelotti's escape. Cavaradossi takes it upon himself to escort the fugitive to refuge at his own villa.

They have just disappeared when the Sacristan enters excitedly, followed by acolytes, choristers and others (Chorus). He has good news: Bonaparte has been defeated, and there will be general rejoicings.

Sudden silence falls on the noisy crowd when the Baron Scarpia (Baritone) appears in the doorway, with Spoletta (Tenor) and other police agents. He dismisses all except his agents and the Sacristan. He suspects that Angelotti is concealed in the Church, and causes it to be searched. Various clues are found, and Scarpia is convinced that Cavaradossi is succouring Angelotti.

Presently Tosca enters the Church. While other people are assembling for the 'Te Deum,' which is to be sung as thanksgiving for the defeat of Bonaparte, Scarpia arouses Tosca's violent jealousy by showing her the Marchioness Attavanti's fan, which (he lies to her) was found on Cavaradossi's easel.

He leads her to the door, and she leaves the Church. He despatches Spoletta to shadow her. The Church is gradually filling. The organ is heard, and shots still resound from the Castle. The Cardinal enters, and, with his procession, advances to the high altar.

The Act ends with Scarpia in the foreground, outwardly feigning religious fervour, and to himself saying: 'Tosca! for thee I could renounce my hopes of heaven!'

Cavaradossi. When he utters a prolonged cry of pain, her resolution breaks, and she tells Scarpia where Angelotti will be found.

Cavaradossi, swooning, is now brought in and laid on a couch, where Tosca embraces him, though he reproaches her when he finds she has given away the secret of the prisoner.

Scarrione enters with bad news of the fighting, at which Cavaradossi exults. He is told he will be hanged for treason, and is dragged away.

Tosca and Scarpia are again left alone, and Scarpia calmly resuming his supper, gradually discloses to her that Cavaradossi can be saved if she will give herself to him, Scarpia.

Tosca is at first seized with utter revulsion; but her plight is extreme. Presently she sings her poignant song, 'Vissi d'arte' ('I lived for art and love, nor ever harmed a living being').

At length Spoletta brings word that Angelotti swallowed poison when he was arrested, and that Cavaradossi's fate awaits Scarpia's word.

Scarpia appeals to Tosca, who at last yields; and he sends Spoletta away with secret orders for a mock execution—'Simulated. . . . As we did in the case of Palmieri.'

Tosca now demands safe conduct for herself and Cavaradossi. While Scarpia writes out a passport, she goes to the table, intending to drink a glass of wine. She catches sight of a knife, picks it up, and, when Scarpia comes forward to embrace her, stabs him.

Scarpia falls to the ground and dies. Tosca washes the stains from her fingers, takes the passport from Scarpia's clenched fist, places candles at his head and a crucifix on his breast, and goes from the room.

Act III.

The scene is a lofty platform of the Castle Sant' Angelo. Cavaradossi, after being handed over to a Gaoler (Bass), begins to write a letter. Musing on his recollections of Tosca, he sings the air 'E lucevan le stelle' ('The stars were shining'). Tosca comes to tell him she has secured his freedom. She relates Scarpia's demand, and tells of his death. They join in a joyful duet. She tells him that the firing party who are to 'execute' him will use blank shot. He must pretend to be killed. They laugh together at the scheme. The soldiers arrive; they fire, and Cavaradossi falls. The men march away. When they are safely out of sight Tosca, still looking after them, urges her lover to rise quickly and flee with her. He does not reply, and with horror she finds that he is dead. Scarpia has played false. The cartridges were not blank.

From below comes a tumult. Scarpia's murder has been discovered, and Tosca is being pursued. There is but one way to frustrate her enemies. From the castle wall she leaps to her death.

To be broadcast from Daentry Experimental at 8.15 p.m. on Wednesday, August 31

And from London, Daentry, and other Stations at 8.15 p.m. on Thursday, September 1

Act II.

Scarpia is seated at supper, musing in his apartments at the Farnese Palace. Scarrione (Bass), a Gendarme, enters, and is given his orders to bring La Tosca, who is singing before the Queen. He withdraws, but soon returns to announce Spoletta, who brings news that Angelotti, the escaped prisoner, has not been found, but that Cavaradossi has been arrested.

Cavaradossi is now brought in, and scornfully and stubbornly repudiates the charge of sheltering the escaped prisoner, Angelotti.

Presently Tosca rushes in, and Scarpia orders Scarrione to take Cavaradossi away—to the torture chamber, though Tosca does not yet know this.

Tosca is now left with Scarpia, who tries in vain to gain information from her. Then he tells her that Cavaradossi is being tortured, and groans are just then heard. The conditions are intensified, until the doors are thrown open, and Tosca sees

Second Pianoforte Concerto Beethoven

BEETHOVEN'S earliest appearance on a Vienna platform as a Soloist was when, in 1795, he gave the first performance of this Concerto. It is called the Second Concerto, but it was actually written before that which is commonly numbered as the first.

At that time Mozart had only been dead a few years, and Haydn was still alive. It is not, then, to be wondered at that Beethoven's early works show a good deal of these masters' styles; and in this Concerto especially the influence of Mozart is apparent. Beethoven was not too puffed up about the work, which, he said, was not one of his best, and for which he only asked his publisher ten ducats (£5).

The music is in the usual three-Movement division of the Concerto.

FIRST MOVEMENT. We have at the start the regular opening in which the Orchestra shows us the First Main Tune, before the Pianoforte takes it up. Similarly, the Second Main Tune is first heard from the Orchestra (First Violins and Bassoons), to be duly adopted by the Soloist. The working out of this material and the representation of it practically in its original form make up the life of the Movement.

SECOND MOVEMENT. One theme only is used, recurring, after little contrasting episodes, in various settings, with typical ornamentation of the tune. Happy hints are here and there to be found of the individuality that was already breaking through the screen of Mozart's and Haydn's influence.

it first entered into the Symphonic scheme, and brought it to full rank as a musical composition.

At the end of it comes a mysterious, whispered passage that gradually takes the music out of C Minor into C Major and leads into the blaze of the FOURTH MOVEMENT, a triumphal pean that sustains the note of exhilaration from beginning to end, except for a moment where Beethoven brings in a few bars of the Scherzo. The ending is a rattling and a pounding of C Major chords without a parallel in music.

Intermezzo, 'The Battle of Poltava' ('Mazeppa') Tchaikovsky

SCHUMANN was a fervent admirer of Byron and in 1848, when he was thirty-eight, he put his whole heart into the composition of an Overture and fifteen pieces of incidental music for the stage presentation of the poet's drama, Manfred.

'Never,' he averred, 'have I expended such love and strength on any previous composition.' 'I consider it,' he wrote to Liszt, 'one of the finest children of my brain.'

The Overture does not seek to follow the incidents of the drama. It is a piece of mood painting, depicting the sombre, passionate character of Count Manfred, a man of bold and powerful impulses, who sold himself to the devil, lived aloof from men, and died very much tormented by remorse.

Scene and Air, 'Ah! perfido' ('Ah, faithless one!') Beethoven

THIS is an essay in the Italian style, written when Beethoven was about twenty-six. It consists of a long recitative, with various changes of pace, in which the wronged one upbraids the deceiver, and calls for Heaven's vengeance upon him. Then, with a revulsion of feeling, she begs the 'avenging god' to spare him. 'For him I lived,' she declares, 'and I would die for him.'

Then, in a slow Air, she pleads with the hard-hearted one himself to stay, for if he departs, she must perish of grief.

In the final section she asks why he treats her thus, and beseeches him to have pity on her distress.

ORCHESTRA

Fifth Symphony Beethoven

THE FIRST MOVEMENT is troubled, nervous music—the disordered sentiments which overthrow a great soul, a prey to despair, said Berlioz. Its first four gruff notes, known as 'Fate knocking at the door,' are famous among musicians, as a concentrated, significant, and entirely unique idea.

THE SECOND MOVEMENT is a series of connected Variations on a long-drawn Theme that has two distinct sections, the first a sinuous melody, and the second suggestive of a fanfare.

THE THIRD MOVEMENT is a Scherzo, a word that means 'a jest,' and became attached, as a formal term, to the light-styled, quick Movement that was usually found in the middle of a Symphony. Here, however, it is grim jesting, and there is no feeling of relaxed tension. It was by

A Note to Contributors.

THE Editorial Offices of The Radio Times are at Savoy Hill, W.C.2. Time is wasted and the loss of MSS. risked by those who forward contributions to any other address. The Editor is always glad to consider manuscripts, whether in the form of articles or of short stories. These should not be more than 1,500 words in length and should either have broadcasting for their theme or be of such a nature as to have a special interest for listeners. A glance at The Radio Times will show those who contemplate writing for it the style of work which it prints. There is no opening whatever for articles dealing with technical subjects.

HERE'S A GOOD IDEA!

Make your wireless help you to learn

Speedwriting

Speedwriting is the new shorthand—quicker to learn—easier to read—than any other system. Try Speedwriting from wireless dictation! It's a fascinating way of practising this wonderful new shorthand. Speedwriting will help you every day in your business or profession. Begin at once and learn from your easy chair!

IT'S AS EASY AS A.B.C.

because Speedwriting uses nothing but the letters of the alphabet so you have no new signs to learn. It teaches you a new and simple method of abbreviating ordinary longhand so that you can take notes of any dictation—by pen, pencil, or on the typewriter. You learn it at home in your spare time in a few weeks and begin using it after the first lesson.

EVERYBODY'S LEARNING IT.

It is more useful in office work than any other system. Not only because you can type it, but also because it is so easy to read that anyone who knows this system can transcribe from your notes. Speedwriting gives you an interchangeable system that simplifies your office routine.

THE STATION ORCHESTRA, conducted by WARWICK BRAITHWAITE

Overture to the Ball

AT twenty-eight, when he wrote this Overture, Sullivan had already achieved a fine command both of the Orchestra and of that knack of writing gay tunes that has endeared him to us all. He wrote few pieces more spirited than this, even in the Comic Operas—and that is saying a good deal.

After a short Introduction, there begins a very rhythmical, leaping dance-tune (started by the First Violins—chief accompaniment, Horns). This tune holds sway for some time, being given to most instruments in turn, including Flute and Piccolo. Later, there follow several waltz-tunes. Towards the end, the dancers break into a Galop.

9.35 'IN CHINESE WATERS'

A Play in Two Acts by VIVIAN TIDMARSH

Played by the STATION RADIO PLAYERS

HOW to crush the pirate gangs that hide among the islands round the Chinese coast is the problem confronting the Consular Service, with their meagre patrol of two destroyers for every 500 miles of water. Force of arms being out of the question, an exceptionally cunning plan is needed to defeat the highly-organized, well-informed pirates, and their terrifying leader, Ah Foo. Fortunately, by means of the deepest secrecy (even the captain of the English vessel is kept in ignorance), such a plot is concocted, which is designed to outwit and lure to destruction the Pirate King himself.

7.45 PAGES FROM ENGLISH MUSIC

Described by E. SIMS-HILDITCH (at the Piano)

THIS programme, which has been arranged and will be described by Mr. E. Sims-Hilditch, will form a brief review of English music from Elizabethan days to the present time. By means of explanatory notes and examples, played or sung, the striking difference between old and modern music will be shown, and it will be highly interesting to note the gradual development from the simple folk tune to the intricate construction of present day music. Mr. Sims-Hilditch, who is a widely-experienced musician, will himself accompany the artists.

Overture to 'Oberon' Weber

OBERON, Weber's last Opera, was written for performance in England, just a hundred years ago. It was produced at Covent Garden on April 12, and on June 4 the composer died in London.

The plot of the Opera is rather absurd—a mixture of fairy love, mediæval chivalry, and wild adventure, with revengeful villains, hair-breadth 'scapes of lovers, and, of course, a 'happy ever after' wind up.

In the fine Overture we admire Weber's genius for composing imaginative music, full of romantic and pictorial suggestion. There are all sorts of graphic ideas in it—the magic horn of Oberon, fairy music, and the more positive strains of human loves and triumphs.

Tone Poem, 'Finlandia' Sibelius

SIBELIUS, Finland's greatest composer, has had remarkable recognition from his countrymen. A year or two ago, on his sixtieth birthday, the President of the Republic personally invested him with the Grand Cross of the Order of the White Rose of Finland, and Parliament voted an increase in the pension which he has received since 1915. A national subscription was also raised in his honour.

In such music as his tone poem, Finlandia, the Kalevala Suite, and chiefly in his seven Symphonies, we find the best—the virile, rugged Sibelius, using national idioms and often deriving the rhythms of his music from those of traditional Finnish folk-poems.

The new Marconiphone 2-valve receiver strikes a modern note

Essentially modern is this new Marconiphone receiver. Not only is there definite superiority in volume, distance and purity of tone, but control has been delightfully simplified. Distant stations can be tuned in at loud speaker strength with the most effortless accuracy. The cabinet is beautifully finished and soundly constructed from thoroughly seasoned materials. The Model 22 is a moderately priced Marconiphone product that your dealer will be pleased to demonstrate. Ask him, too, to let you hear the "Sterling" Baby Loud Speaker. It only costs £2-7-6 and gives all the volume you want with a friendly fullness of tone.

By means of the improved circuit arrangement the selectivity of the Marconiphone Model 22 2-volt receiver is excellent. A detector valve with reaction into the aerial circuit is followed by one L.F. stage through a 4-1 "Ideal" Transformer.

Receiver complete with coil Unit (250-500 metres or 1000-2000 metres) and Royalty paid - - £7-15-0

With "Sterling" Baby Loud Speaker (Royalty paid) - - - - - £10-2-6*

No longer need initial cost deter you from installing this wonderful H.T. Accumulator

The life of the H.T. Dry Battery is exceedingly short, and the dust-bin soon claims it. It can't be recharged and whether in use or out of use it loses power. Now loss of power means difficulty in picking up stations, a falling off in sensitivity and consequent loss of tone. In short, a dry battery is both economically and practically unsound.

Invest in an Oldham H.T. Accumulator and enjoy to the full the clear, crisp tone which results from its use. It is the only H.T. Accumulator made on the principle of the expanding bookcase. Start with 60 Volts and add further units as and when required. Make a point of seeing it at your dealer's to-day. It is a first-rate investment.

Marconi Royalty on A.C. Models 12/6 extra.

USERS' OPINIONS.

Mr. J. W. G., Fulwell, Sunderland.
"Received H. T. Eliminator, and may say am delighted with the result. I did not think my set could do what it does, with the Eliminator instead of the dry cells. The increase of volume is great and no trace of hum whatever, and you can rest assured I shall do my utmost to recommend them to all my friends who have electric light."

Mr. K. E. B., The Square, Plymouth, writes:—

"The H.T. Eliminator is O.K. Not a ripple from the Power Station is to be heard."

HOME SERVICE ACCUMULATOR CHARGERS.

"ALTERNO" CHARGER FOR ALTERNATING CURRENT. This Rectifier is recommended for charging High Tension Radio Accumulators. Cut out Local Broadcasting at Will

"GÖLTONE" REG. SELECTOR WAVE TRAP

and bring in additional Stations

The "Göltone" Selector Wave Trap enables local Broadcasting (on wavelengths up to 550 metres) to be cut out when desired, and brings in a range of home and foreign Stations hitherto unobtainable.

Clearer production, greater selectivity and increased range is ensured, and the addition of this unit to existing sets provides a refinement which will be appreciated by those who wish to add an additional range of Stations to their log.

The "Selector" is fitted in a few moments without any alteration to the Receiving Set.
Price, complete with instructions, 35/- POST FREE.

USERS' OPINIONS.

FROM A LONDON USER STATES:—
"I am two miles from 210 and with your appliance I cut out London for the first time and brought in foreign stations never previously obtained."
ANOTHER LONDON USER STATES:—
"Your selector is excellent. I can cut out 210 and have added Belfast and Bournemouth to my log book, besides improving the quality."

FROM A MANCHESTER USER:—
"I cut out Manchester and obtained several German stations never before received by me, clearly and loudly."

A BRADFORD (YORKS) USER STATES:—

"The preliminary tests have been highly satisfactory. Reception greatly enhanced. I am delighted."

The
among Valves

DON'T spoil the ship for a ha'porth of tar. Your Wireless set has cost you money. It is foolish economy to use any but the best valves. Choose your valves carefully—for upon them rests the responsibility of providing you with good music. Choose Cossor Valves—and your Set will give the most faithful reproduction. Superb tone, with all the richness and sweetness of the original—majestic, full-throated volume with absolute freedom from microphonic noises—these essential features of the Cossor valve have won for it the title "The Melody Maker."

DON'T BUY A BATTERY WITH YOUR EYES SHUT!

Your H.T. Battery, it is that puts power into your set—it is the prime mover of the wireless circuit. Valves, condensers, gridleaks and the rest are inert, passive, useless, until vitalised by the battery in conjunction with the accumulator.

Battery buying especially is of paramount importance. You should never buy a battery because it happens to be the nearest on the counter, or because the retailer is out of stock of the battery that you have made up your mind to get. Because somewhere near to you there is a dealer who can serve you with a battery of a quality proved so definitely that tens of thousands of users will take nothing else. This is the LISSEN Secret Process Battery. Ask any friend of yours using a LISSEN battery if he would ever contemplate buying any other, and be prepared for his emphatic "NO."

No battery has ever before so quickly won its way through all opposition and come to the top as has the LISSEN Secret Process Battery. And it is only the discovery of a new chemical combination embodied in a secret process known only to LISSEN that accounts for this great public appreciation of these facts: that here at last is a battery with such deep capacity that it will withstand the strain of the longest programme without deterioration—a battery, too, whose energy keeps fresh—a battery that maintains the electronic emission of your valves at a high value—a battery that because of its unique characteristics brings a new power smoothness and a new tone clarity to your loud speaker—a battery that LISSEN, by a trade and distribution policy never before attempted by any battery maker, has now brought within the reach of all.
