Which Shall We Listen To Tonight?

A Note on the New Art of Listening to the Broadcast Programmes.

CONTRASTED programmes, 'the satisfaction of two moods in the listener, an end to the irritating patchiness of broadcasting,' 'a new artistic unity in the programmes'—these are ideas which, since the beginning of the transmission from 5GB, have been widely discussed, both in the Press and among listeners themselves. The listening public is naturally curious to know what is the B.B.C.'s criterion in building up the contrasted programmes which are now available in a great part of the country and will shortly be at the disposition of every listener. What are these 'two moods' which the B.B.C. is out to satisfy? And how are the programmes to be divided so as to fall in with them?

The division is not between 'light' and 'serious' items nor between 'low brow' and 'high-brow' (elusive distinction!). It is, rather, based upon an assessment of the degree of concentration required from the listener. Alternative programmes are to be available for him (a) in the mood in which he wishes to concentrate (this mood embracing radio drama, the more difficult of classical music and talks); and (b) in a mood in which he wishes to relax—what, to use a current expression, might be called 'the tired business man mood' (within this latter category falls most music, particularly of the lighter kind).

So much for the differentiation upon which the B.B.C. is basing its alternative programmes. But how about the listener? If there be an art of broadcasting there is the listener who tunes in to a programme, willy nilly, and complains that he does not care for it. He should decide his broadcast entertainment for the evening with as much care as he would decide whether to go to see a Bernard Shaw play or a Revue. To take talks or radio drama in a mood of weariness would be to stimulate irritation and disappointment—an unnecessary disappointment when a glance at the alternative programme would reveal Dance Music and Variety. And if 'mood' is to play a chief part in the choice of what programme to listen to, so also should 'environment.' Obviously, no concentrated listening is possible or pleasurable in the presence of interruptions or distractions: a broadcast 'thriller' cannot be fully appreciated in a room blazing with lights; dance music should not be listened to in a room where there is not space for dancing.

One final word of warning! Do not listen too much. If you were to go to the theatre every night for a month, you would be satiated with theatre-going. Similarly with broadcasting. Listen, as often as you really feel inclined, to the items you really like, but don't overdo it. The Radio Times will help you to make a prudent choice equally an art of listening—and it is a common error to imagine that this consists merely of adjusting the headphones or switching on the loudspeaker. There can be no excuse for

of your broadcast entertainment, for the programmes are printed there in full, with annotations which give a clear idea of the nature of each item.

'I Would Make Radio Really Useful'

By Beverley Nichols. Pictures by Aubrey Hammond.

I HAVE always had an embarrassing desire to use things for other purposes than those for which they were properly intended. I early discovered that electric light bulbs, if hurled sharply but firmly against a garden wall, emitted a very pleasant bang, as of an exploding cracker. And, as a lover of candle-light, I still believe that this is what the bulbs were made for. Similarly, I found that a knife-cleaning machine, if properly used, was invaluable for the sharpening of sticks with which to prod one's more distasteful schoolfellows, and that mangies were ideally fashioned to test the resisting power of bananas. It has even been suggested that my affection for my godfather was based, not upon his efficiency in administering the precepts of the Catechism, but upon his admirable habit of presenting me, at odd moments, with sovereigns—but that is what my enemies say!

I still believe that is what the bulbs were made for.

Thus, with radio, I can imagine a great many uses for this excellent invention, uses for which it was manifestly not intended. And were I the Grand Mogul of the B.B.C., I should immediately instal a new department, where, for the payment of a small extra fee, subscribers might enjoy the benefits of a service which would enormously simplify the problems of life.

Thus at the hour of tea-time I should organize a service calculated to deal with bores. This would be invaluable to all dwellers in the country who are powerless to defend themselves against the assaults of 'callers.' From four o'clock till six, the announcers from 5XX would emit a stream of platitudes, lasting for ten minutes and then beginning all over again. Thus, supposing that I am peacefully reading on the lawn, and Mrs. Smith is announced, I can instantly turn on the wireless, and give Mrs. Smith a sample of the conversation on which she apparently thrives. As:—

'The evenings are drawing ⁽ⁱⁿ⁾ _(out) wonderfully now, aren't they?' (Pause for reply.) 'I think that we really deserve some fine weather now, don't you?'

Beverley Nichols, author of 'Crazy Pavements' and that precocious book of memoirs 'Twenty Five,' is one of the most versatile writers of the day. In addition to being a novelist and playwright, he is the composer of a revue which will soon see light in London, and was for several years dramatic critic of a great weekly newspaper. Aubrey Hammond, whose drawings illustrate the accompanying article, is well known for his work in the leading magazines, and includes among his talents a gift for designing stage-settings and costumes. His work can be seen at present in the revue at the London Pavilion.

(Pause for reply.) 'Wonderful little people, the Japanese? All those earthquakes, don't you know?' (Pause for reply.)

For harassed mothers I should instal yet another service. This would be of extreme simplicity and would merely consist of a voice, repeating all day, between the hours of eight in the morning and eight at night, 'Don't do that, dear.' For particularly obstreperous children a more than usually hideous and alarming voice could be turned on: 'Will you STOP doing that AT ONCE, my darling?' This injunction would be broadcast, as I say, at intervals of not more than thirty seconds.

Another idea which should commend itself to all who have the interests of humanity at heart is the 'Getting-up-in-the-morning' department, which would operate between the hours of seven-thirty and nine-thirty a.m. The licence-holder, awaking from his first doze, would be able to extend a lazy hand to the switch, having, as he did so, no intention whatever of obeying the voice which he would hear. However, he would eventually obey it, because of the concentrated power of suggestion which would instantly flood the room. It might begin like this:—

'How wide-awake you are feeling, aren't you? You are wondering how you can possibly stay one minute more in the uncomfortable bed, when the sun is shining so brightly outside. You are afraid your room is full of microbes, and unless you get up at once you really know that you will be contracting some terrible disease.'

Her whole being would be irradiated with a divine content.

For women, other tactics would be employed. Thus: 'Isn't it strange that so many beetles have taken up their abode in people's houses this year? They say it's the damp summer that is the cause of it. All over the house, they are, and they always seem to go for the bedrooms. And then, of course, they try to crawl into the beds. Heavens! Is that a beetle just crawling into your bed now?'

Within two minutes Colonel Nonstop will be out of the house.

I defy the women of the Empire to remain between the sheets while such sinister suggestions were being made.

One has only to toy with this plan for a few moments to see how vast are its possibilities. For example, there might be a 'Neglected Wife Bureau.' Everybody knows that disease has been appreciably arrested, sometimes even cured, by the simple formula of saying: 'Every day, in every way, I grow better and better and better.' Why, then, should matrimonial discontent not be equally curable if wives were to say, on every occasion that their husbands were detained at the office: 'Every day, in every way, he grows fonder and fonder and fonder.' The only bore would be to keep on saying it, for though women are excellent beginners they are not so good at staying the course. And that is where the radio comes in. She would only have to turn it on, and hear those soothing words, and her whole being would be gradually irradiated with a divine content.

For particularly bad cases there would be a special twenty minutes' distribution of compliments every evening. Thus:—

'I have never seen you look so charming, dearest.' (Pause for 'I look a perfect fright.') 'I've been thinking about you all day. How peaceful it is to get home again.' (Pause for reply, to vary according to

Coming To The Microphone.

Some Dates for Your Radio Diary.

ONE of our foremost dramatists, Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, will make his début 'on the air' when, on Tuesday, September 20, his play, The Liars, is broadcast from DAVENTRY EXPERIMENTAL. The Liars, which is generally considered to be Mr. Jones's finest play, was first played in 1897 and has since been revived. It will be given from LONDON and DAVENTRY on Wednesday, September 21. Mr. Jones has personally approved the form and adaptation of the play as it will be broadcast. Arrangements are on foot for the broadcasting of other of his well-known plays. An interesting new development of the dramatic side of the B.B.C.'s work will be initiated on the afternoon of Friday, September 30, with the broadcasting of the first of a series of six full-length plays which are to be given fortnightly for school-children during the hours set aside for school transmissions—Richard II, The Tempest, Twelfth Night, She Stoops to Conquer, Prunella and Abraham Lincoln.

Those who make a point of listening to Mr. Reginald Foort's Wednesday organ recitals from the New Gallery Cinema will be interested to hear that at the same time on Monday evenings, beginning on September 12, organ recitals by Mr. C. T. Pattman will be relayed from the Astoria, Charing Cross Road.

AN interesting 'feature talk' is that announced for LONDON and DAVENTRY at 10.35 p.m. on Wednesday, September 14, when Mr. Philip B. James is to give a short lecture on 'Old Keyboard Music,' illustrated by Miss E. Wilkinson, who will play the Harpsichord and the Clavichord. The following are the illustrations which Miss Wilkinson will give on her two old instruments—a Bach Prelude and Fugue in F Minor, 'The Primerose,' by Martin Peerson, 'Pawle's Wharf,' by Giles Farnaby, and Air and Variations by Handel.

The first 'Rugger' talk of the 1927 season will be given at 7.25 p.m. on Friday, September 16, by Major L. R. Tosswill, who is taking for his subject, 'The New South Wales Tour.'

A SHAKESPEARE programme will be given from BOURNEMOUTH on Monday, September 12, consisting of scenes from his plays presented by the Station Players, interspersed with music by the Station Octet. The programme will include the delightful scene from As You Like It in which Rosalind heartlessly teases Orlando on the subject of his love. The Trial Scene and the Garden Scene from The Merchant of Venice will also be given; the latter, between Lorenzo and Jessica ('The moon shines bright on such a night as this') being one of the loveliest in all Shakespeare and one which is often ruthlessly 'cut' by producers on the grounds that it holds up the action of the play. In contrast with the above programme there will be, on the same evening, a broadcast by Neil Kenyon, the Scottish comedian.

Mr. NEIL KENYON.

Shakespeare and one which is often ruthlessly 'cut' by producers on the grounds that it holds up the action of the play. In contrast with the above programme there will be, on the same evening, a broadcast by Neil Kenyon, the Scottish comedian.

THE Symphony Concert which is to be broadcast from DAVENTRY EXPERIMENTAL at 8.0 p.m. on Wednesday, September 21, will be conducted by the celebrated Finnish conductor, Georg Schneevoigt. His appearance before the microphone will be in the nature of a farewell to listeners, for whom he last conducted on May 25 of this year. He is shortly leaving for the U.S.A. to take up the post of conductor to the famous Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Schneevoigt, Scandinavia's most distinguished conductor, began his musical career as a cellist with the Helsingfors Philharmonic Society, and later took up the baton at Munich, Riga and elsewhere.

At 7.0 p.m. on Thursday, September 15, Miss Eva Christy will give a talk from the London Studio on 'How to ride a Horse.' Miss Christy, who was the only woman riding instructor to the military during the War, is a recognized authority on matters equestrian.

GREAT interest was aroused by the broadcasting from the studio of Puccini's two operas, La Bohème and Tosca, which have been given during the past few weeks. The trio of Puccini's favourite operas is to be completed on September 15 and 16, when Madame Butterfly makes its appearance in the programmes. The works of Puccini have always been popular with English audiences, for we in England appreciate, more than anything else in music, a good melody. Until this summer, however, the above-mentioned operas had never been broadcast from any B.B.C. studio. The story of Madame Butterfly is too familiar to listeners to demand detailed mention here; the story of the little Japanese girl whose strength of devotion was not realized by the American who deserted her. The opera will be given from DAVENTRY EXPERIMENTAL on Thursday, September 15, and from LONDON, DAVENTRY, and other Stations on the following evening. The cast will be as follows: Miriam Licette (Butterfly), Dorothy Helmrich (Suzuki), Vivienne Chatterton (Mrs. Pinkerton), Parry Jones (Pinkerton), Dennis Noble (Sharpless), Sydney Russell and Bernard Ross. The broadcasts will be directed by Mr. Percy Pitt.

Miss M. LICETTE.

On Tuesday, September 13, at 9.20 p.m., Dr. A. E. Morgan, Principal of the new University College at Hull, is to give a talk from the London Studio. This will be entitled 'The New Fear—A Commentary on Modern Drama.'

On Tuesday, September 13, at 9.20 p.m., Dr. A. E. Morgan, Principal of the new University College at Hull, is to give a talk from the London Studio. This will be entitled 'The New Fear—A Commentary on Modern Drama.'

A NOVEL series of talks has been planned for the winter, under the general title of 'Ourselves as Others See Us.' Most of us when we travel abroad (and we do travel, despite our supposed insularity) find something strange and often laughable about the life of other countries. But what do the people of other countries think of us? We know that they do not approve of our method of cooking vegetables and that they find our English Sunday a very gloomy sort of day, but how else do we strike them? The talks in the new series will be given by outstanding personalities from other countries, mostly writers of distinction, who will say exactly what they think of England and the English. The series opens at 9.20 p.m. on Monday, September 26.

FOR some time now the B.B.C. has had its regular critics of Music, Drama and the Screen who have given fortnightly talks on these subjects.

Mr. FRANCIS TOYE.

It has now been arranged for an addition to this trio of critics, in the person of Mr. Francis Toye, the Musical Editor of the Morning Post, who during the coming winter is to give on alternate Thursday evenings at 7.0 p.m. a criticism of current 'Music in the Theatre.' In these talks, the first of which he will broadcast on Thursday, October 13, Mr. Toye will deal with Opera, Musical Comedy, Ballet, etc.; listeners who are interested in these branches of the musical and dramatic arts will be able to gather from them what is going on in the world of musical entertainments. Mr. Toye is himself a musician and elder brother of Geoffrey Toye, the conductor. His interest in broadcasting will be realized by those listeners who read his daily notes on broadcast music.

The reading by Mr. Beverley Nichols, which was recently announced on this page for Saturday, August 13, and was postponed to make room for the Chief Engineer's talk on the Regional Scheme, will be given from London and all Stations on Saturday, September 17.

ON Monday, September 19, listeners to DAVENTRY EXPERIMENTAL will have the opportunity of hearing the British National Opera Company in Rossini's Opera, The Barber of Seville, relayed from Newcastle. The opera will be broadcast in its entirety, between approximately 7.15 and 10.15 p.m. This should prove a popular broadcast as the quality of the performances of the B.N.O.C. is well known to listeners who, however, have rarely had the opportunity of hearing a complete opera relayed from outside the studio. The Barber of Seville is in all countries its composer's best-liked opera, and the most popular of all comic operas.

On Thursday evening, September 22, a third in the series of Concerts of New Works will be broadcast from the London Studio. This will include orchestral, vocal and instrumental items, the titles of which will be announced on this page later.

THE programme which LIVERPOOL is to broadcast between 9.35 and 11.0 p.m. on Monday, September 19, will be woven around the subject of Gardens.

Mr. GORDON BRYAN.

It will be relayed to LONDON and other stations. The musical items in this programme are to be linked together by readings of poems by Andrew Marvell, Tennyson and other poets who have celebrated the delights of gardens. The Station Orchestra will play de Falla's 'Nights in the Gardens of Spain,' and Cowen's Suite, 'The Language of Flowers,' Gordon Bryan playing the solo piano part in the former work. The theme of this Garden Programme is an apt one, for the English as a race have always taken pride in the designing and cultivating of fine gardens, which Bacon, the great essayist, beautifully termed 'the purest of human pleasures.'

Ma Masey's Nightingale.

A Modern Version of the Story of the Magic Crystal.

MA MASEY opened her door. A tram crawled down the street, the driver stamping on his bell. A dray rumbled in front of it; and a coal cart creaked in front of the dray. So, on and on; a hideous stream of jarring noise.

Ma Masey, lifting her face, scanned the sky—a little jagged sky, peeping greyly between chimneys, cut by tram wires, dimmed by smoke. Deciding that the weather prospects were good, she smoothed her clean apron, settled her bonnet, and stepped out into the street. And picking her way over marbles, treading on hop-scootch courts, moved far more slowly than the crawling traffic. For Ma Masey's legs were bad.

There had been a time, she reflected with pride, when she could run. A time so distant that it was almost forgotten—almost, but not quite.

OLD JANE, standing at her doorway, was peering up the street, shading her eyes with a shrivelled hand, and pretending to see.

Old Jane always pretended to see. She thought nobody but herself knew how dim were the eyes that had gazed on that street for eighty years. . . .

'Appy returns, and many of 'em!' greeted Ma Masey, at last drawing near.

'Appy returns to yer,' hazarded Old Jane, in reply, pretending to hear.

Old Jane always pretended to hear. She thought no one but herself knew how deaf were her poor old ears. And to humour this aged fancy, a grandson, home from sea, had rigged up a crystal set in her cramped, close room.

The crystal was her birthday treat—and Ma Masey's, too. For long ago, on the very same day, Old Jane and Ma Masey had come into the world; and from time almost immemorial had spent this day together.

'We'll be listenin',' quavered Old Jane, fixing a pair of headphones over her old, deaf ears. 'Jimmy showed me 'ow ter do it. 'E ses we'll be 'earin' music quite plain.'

'I likes a bit o' music,' she added, doggedly, who twenty years ago had liked the barrel organ, striving against the traffic's din; and the steam-soaked songs of the neighbours, singing over their tubs. . . .

In the tiny, dingy room sat the two old women. A strip of torn lace tried to hide the prying chimney-stacks; a crooked door did its best to deaden the ceaseless clamour of the slum.

Old Jane, with strong tea warm within her, felt drowsy. The headphones were hot on her wrinkled ears.

Not so Ma Masey. With thin lips a-gape, and pale eyes wide, she was listening, wonderingly.

For into the room—whence, she knew not—came soft, clear notes, fluting, liquid, pure.

Only a bird's song. But a mist came over Ma Masey's eyes. Sweet notes, clear. . . .

A fresh breath swept in from the window. The strip of curtain fell. And the wood was without, deep, dim, cool. With her arms full of honeysuckle, Ma Masey was running, with long, fast legs, across the grass, dew-soaked over her shoe tops; a breeze lifted her hair. (The nightingale was singing.) Ma Masey stooped, and dragged a trail of woodbine from the hedge; a rabbit, startled, scuttled in the fern. (And the bird was still singing.) Overhead, beyond the sleepy tree-tops, spread a soft, pale sky.

(And the bird was singing, singing.) Ma Masey ran on into the cottage, all dew-soaked, smelling of thyme, up to the little attic, fragrant under the thatch; the clear sky looked in through the window. And outside the nightingale was singing, almost bursting its little throat—wheet, wheet—jug, jug, jug—fainter—wheet, wheet.

'I LIKES a bit o' music,' drowsily muttered old slum-bred Jane, twitching in the chair, the headphones tilted off her poor deaf ears.

But Ma Masey only gazed across to the dingy window. And the room was dimmer than bricks or smoke could make it. For Ma Masey saw it through her tears. MARGARET WAIN.

district.) 'That's a very pretty frock you have on. Is it a new one?' (Pause for answer in the affirmative.) 'You must go out tomorrow and buy some more of the same sort.'

Perhaps, however, that last remark might lead to trouble.

Finally, there would be a large and urgently needed department for speeding the parting guest.

Thus, if a hostess finds that eleven o'clock has arrived and that the most sickening bore of the neighbourhood, Colonel Nonstop, appears to be settling down for the night, and may at any moment launch into the story about the leopard (which takes, on an average, ten minutes for every spot), she has only to retire discreetly for a moment, inform the B.B.C., return to the drawing-room and switch on the wireless. And then, just as the word 'leopard' is forming on the Colonel's lips, a voice will ring through the room:—

'Will Colonel Nonstop, who is at present dining with Mrs. Smith, four-one-four Pont Street, South-West, come home at once to attend to his valet, who has shot himself in the stomach with one of the Colonel's guns?'

And, within two minutes, Colonel Nonstop will be out of the house.

Well, I sincerely trust that these words will not fall upon barren ground. I myself should find life a far easier business were they to bear fruit. What about a petition to the B.B.C.? We should get a million signatures in a week.

In the Near Future.

Notes from the Southern Stations.

Liverpool.

The Religious Service on Sunday, September 18, will be relayed from St. John's Church, Toxteth Park, and the address will be given by Canon C. R. Raven, Resident Canon of Liverpool Cathedral.

Bournemouth.

Dance Music by the King's Hall Harmonics will be relayed from the Royal Bath Hotel, Bournemouth, during the afternoon programme on Saturday, September 17.

On Wednesday, September 14, a Promenade Concert will be relayed from the Queen's Hall. This will be a Bach concert and include the Sixth Brandenburg Concerto and arias from Bach's only opera, Phoebus and Pan.

Manchester.

On Sunday, September 11, listeners will hear a Studio programme of orchestral music by the Casano Octet and choral items by the St. Stephen's (Blackpool) Gleemen.

Mr. Douglas Wallwork, President of the Ramblers' Federation in Manchester, is arranging a programme for Saturday, September 17, to be entitled, 'Highways and Byways.'

Plymouth.

Rose Morse (mezzo-soprano) will pay her first visit to the Plymouth Station on Tuesday, September 13, at 6.0 p.m., when she will be heard in a short song recital.

Two well-known London artists will visit the Studio at 7.30 p.m. on Thursday, September 15—Millicent Russell (contralto) in a series of attractive ballads, and Roy Henderson (baritone), who will sing, among other numbers, Tchaikovsky's To the Forest and the Erl King of Schubert.

Cardiff.

A light programme on Saturday, September 24, will include Jacque Thomas and Partner, and the Cory Silver Band. A play, entitled No Class, will be given by the Station Repertory Players.

The camper-out of 1927 generally takes a portable set with him on his rambles. Those in camp on Friday, September 23, who have 'portables' with them should tune in for a programme entitled, 'The King's Highway.' This will include a short and thrilling sketch with a highwayman for its principal character.

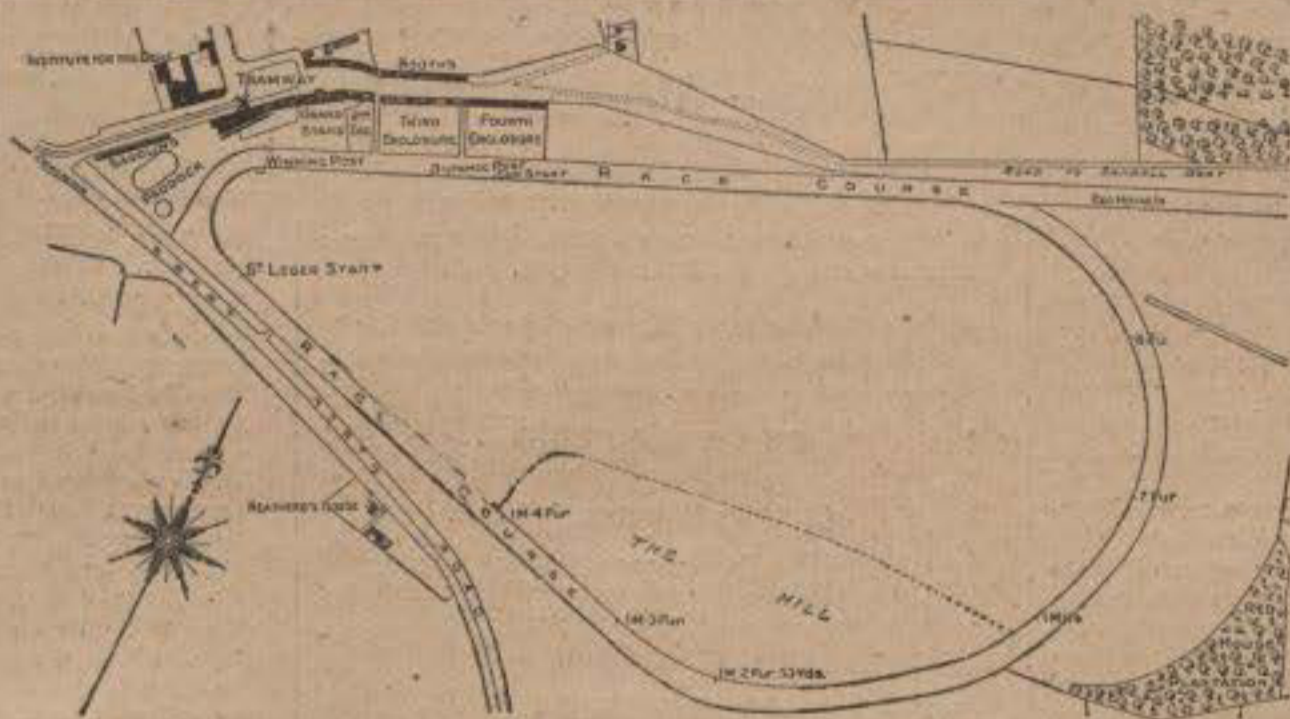

Daventry Experimental.

Between 8.0 and 10.0 p.m. on Wednesday, September 14, The Rancee, a new musical comedy, by W. A. Featherstone, will be relayed from the Birmingham Studio.

Two Promenade Concerts are to be relayed from the Queen's Hall, on Monday, September 12 and Tuesday, September 13. The first will be a Wagner Concert, with Tatiana Makushina and Herbert Heyner; the second largely devoted to Mozart.

The afternoon programme on Sunday, September 11, will contain two complete short oratorios, Lauda Sion, by Mendelssohn, and The Song of Miriam, by Schubert. Gertrude Johnson, George Parker and other well-known soloists will contribute arias from the popular oratorios, assisted by the Birmingham Station Repertory Chorus and Orchestra, both directed by Joseph Lewis.

The race for the ST. LEGER STAKES will be run at Doncaster on Wednesday, September 7, and a Running Commentary on it, by Mr. Geoffrey Gilbey, the famous racing journalist, will be broadcast from London and Daventry, and other stations, between 3 and 3.30 in the afternoon.

In this article Mr. GEOFFREY GILBEY who will be well remembered as the man who made the first Derby broadcast such a success, discusses this historic event—the last of the 'Classic' races of the year—and tells listeners how he feels about his task of broadcasting it on Wednesday afternoon.

MEMORY is short. On the morning of the Derby I vowed that if the whole of the B.B.C. staff went down on their hands and knees and implored me to read another race for them I would not dream of doing it. A few days ago I was asked on the telephone if I would broadcast the St. Leger. The voice did not suggest its owner was on his hands and knees. It was, of course, an alluring voice, because its owner used to be an announcer. It explained to me what child's play reading the St. Leger would be compared with the Derby, and before I knew where I was, I had accepted.

Broadcasting is the most wonderful thing in the world for reducing anybody's conceit. It is invaluable to those of us who are egotistical by nature, because as soon as we speak over the microphone our friends let us know exactly what they think of us. My readers in The Sunday Express are candid. Only yesterday I received a letter beginning 'Dear Egotistical Ass.' But it was not until I spoke over the wireless that I realized what a worm I am. In most things in life practice makes perfect. In broadcasting we can console ourselves with the thought that every time we speak we shall annoy more people. We hear somebody, and we think how good he is. We hear him again, and we think him quite good. The third time we tolerate him, the fourth time we fidget, and the fifth time we scream.

(Of course, there are exceptions, and if I heard them every night I should never tire of listening to Mr. Dick Sheppard or Mr. Reginald Foort.)

I feel, therefore, that I must apologize for my third visit to the microphone. The time is not far distant when I expect the B.B.C., in a charming little speech, will tell me that they were very pleased, etc., etc., but they are going to give somebody else a chance.

I am already feeling like the rather passée lady at a dance, who does not want to dance, but who likes to be asked. I do appreciate enormously the invitation, and I am almost looking forward to the Leger.

For this broadcast I am going to have my brother Quintin to assist me. He is ten years younger than I, but his voice is old for its age, and listeners will not be able to distinguish between our voices. This will be a great advantage, as I can put all the donkey work on him. It will be his first appearance at the microphone. On the following Wednesday he is to be married, which will be his first appearance as a husband.

NOW for a few words about the St. Leger, so frequently referred to by us racing scribes and prophets as the 'Last of the Classics.' There are, of course, four other classic races—the Derby, the Oaks, the Two Thousand Guineas, and the One Thousand Guineas. The distance of the St. Leger is 1 mile 6 furlongs and 132 yards, and, as in the other classics, three-year-olds only are allowed to compete. Colts carry 9 stone and fillies 8 stone 11 lbs., which is different from the Derby, in which the fillies receive 5 lbs.

Few racing men and women to whom the name St. Leger is a household word know how the name originated. It was decided upon at a dinner in the Red Lion, Doncaster. At that dinner the Marquis of Rockingham proposed that the 'sweepstakes' put in for in 1776 should be named the 'St. Leger' in compliment to Lieutenant-General Anthony St. Leger, of Park Hill. The proposition was adopted.

The race was originally run on a Tuesday, then Wednesday became the day chosen, then back again to Tuesday for twenty-five years. Monday was then given a trial for a few years, and then it was changed back to Tuesday. Since 1845, however, the race has been run year after year on a Wednesday.

We do not get terrific big fields nowadays. In 1825, when Marmion won, there were thirty starters, and when Lord Lonsdale's Royal Lancer was victorious in 1922 there were twenty-four starters. Since then the fields have been 13, 17, 15 and 12. I speak feelingly when I say that I hope we shall not have an unwieldy field this year.

The absence of Call Boy, owing to the death of Mr. Frank Curzon, robs the race of much of its interest. It is a pity nominations for races become void on the death of the nominator. On the other hand, the race certainly looks more open now that the Derby winner cannot compete. I am glad to say I am not expected to give a selection. As I am broadcasting I intend to keep as open a mind as possible on the race, and I am not going to have a bet.

There are many owners, trainers, and jockeys I wish good luck to this year. The horse in which I take a fatherly interest is Book Law. Just about two years ago Lord Astor kindly allowed me to see his stud farm. I was chiefly interested in three charming fillies, a chestnut and two bays. I liked

THE WIRELESS ORCHESTRA, conducted by JOHN ANSELL

Overture, 'In Memoriam' Sullivan
Three Dances from 'Nell Gwyn' German

SULLIVAN'S Overture has been heard on many a solemn memorial occasion since its composition sixty years ago.

The story of its production has a note of personal tragedy. For the Norwich Festival of 1866, Sullivan (then twenty-four years old) was to write a new work. About a month before the Festival he told his father in despair that he could get no satisfactory idea. His father, however, prophesied that something would be sure to happen which would inspire him. Three days later, the father died, and Sullivan expressed his grief in the In Memoriam Overture, which was duly produced at the Festival.

This is a large-scale Overture, complex, but not obscure. It opens 'at a steady pace, with religious feeling.' A simple tune is given out by a Woodwind quartet, Oboe playing the tune. This is well known as a hymn-tune. After this has been repeated, there immediately follows the main body of the piece, marked 'Very quick.' This is very dramatic music. Many distinctive tunes are introduced, and treated with great variety. The prevailing mood is forceful.

The Overture ends with the hymn-tune melody, played by the whole Orchestra and full Organ, a great triumphal song.

Masque from Music to 'The Merchant of Venice' Sullivan

SULLIVAN'S Overture to the Ball brings the spirit of the Dance before us in many of its familiar forms, like the preamble to a Carnival ball. It is spirited music, written when Sullivan was twenty-eight, before he dreamt of winning fame as a Composer of Comic Operas.

In The Merchant of Venice a Masque is held outside the house of Shylock. The dancing reaches a great pitch of excitement, and when the revelry is at its highest, Shylock's daughter, Jessica, escapes with her lover, Lorenzo.

Rev. W. HODSON SMITH, known as Principal of the National Children's Home.

TODAY is the first Sunday of the Methodist year, and—as last year—London station is broadcasting the service from Wesley's Chapel, with the address by the new President of the Wesleyan Conference, the Rev. W. Hodson Smith, is already well known as Principal of the National Children's Home.

THE DESERTED CITY OF AMBER.

Some time ago an Indian Rajah decided to move his chief city. At his command, the inhabitants built a new city and transferred themselves to it, leaving their houses abandoned, and the magnificent buildings of the old city—some of which are shown above—to fall to ruins. This is one of the interesting stories of the Native States that Mr. McLeish will tell in his missionary talk from Edinburgh, London, and other stations this afternoon.

Chaplain to H.M. The King, Vicar of Ashford, on behalf of Ashford Hospital.

BUILT fifty years ago as a cottage hospital for twelve patients, the Ashford Hospital has now thirty-two beds and an average waiting list of a hundred cases. As it is on the main road to the coast, it has many accident cases, in addition to the ordinary needs of the town of Ashford, with the railway works there, and the seventy villages that it serves. To meet these needs, a new hospital, with ninety beds, has been planned, and the foundation-stone was laid by the Duke and Duchess of York last October. This will cost £35,000; and £7,000 more will be required for a Nurses' Home. £21,000 has been raised, and a Jubilee Campaign is endeavouring to collect the £14,000 needed to complete the main buildings.

Contributions should be sent to the Rev. H. W. Blackburne, D.S.O., Ashford, Kent.

8.55 (Daventry only) THE WEEK'S GOOD CAUSE: Appeal on behalf of Brabazon Employment Society by Miss JEAN ALEXANDER

LACK of employment is not merely an economic, but a psychological evil. Even those whose maintenance is assured can suffer in mind from having nothing to do, and the Brabazon Employment Society was founded by the late Countess of Meath, in 1883, 'to provide interesting occupation for those who from age or ill-health are forced to pass the weary hours idly in our workhouse and infirmary wards, and in other similar institutions.' These people are taught crafts by unpaid voluntary teachers, and, though the results of their work are not allowed to compete with outside labour, they are kept happy and in some cases they attain such proficiency that they leave the workhouse and support themselves.

Contributions should be sent to the Brabazon Employment Society, 28, Upper Gloucester Place, London, N.W.1.

This Plan Will Bring You £250 A YEAR FOR LIFE—FROM AGE 55

Ninety-nine men out of a hundred have to provide for their own future. They have no rich relative to take the burden from their shoulders, and no business pension scheme to fall back upon. They stand or fall on their own efforts.

Are you satisfied with the progress you yourself are making? Have you saved anything like enough to justify a belief that at 55 years of age you will be in a position to take things easier? What about your family, should you, the bread winner, be taken from them? The plan about to be explained will, if adopted without further delay, relieve you of all anxiety about the matter.

It is the best, the easiest, and the surest way of providing both for your own later years and for your dependents.

Assuming your age to be 35 and you would like to provide for a private income of £250 a year for life commencing at 55, this is how the plan works out. You make yearly or half-yearly deposits to the Sun Life of Canada (the great Annuity Co.) of an agreed sum. And this is what you will get in return.

£250 a Year for Life.
 At 55 years of age the Sun Life of Canada will start paying you an income for life of a fixed sum—about £250 per annum—and you'll receive this income every year as long as you live. Or, if you prefer it, you can have a cash sum down of about £3,000. Of course, you haven't deposited anything like that sum. It's the profits that make it so large—profits heaped upon profits, accumulated over the entire period of the arrangement.

Income Tax Saved.
 For every deposit you make you receive rebate of Income Tax—a concession which will save you nearly £250 during the period, assuming the present rate of tax to continue. This is additional profit on the transaction.

£20 a Month if Unable to Work.
 If through illness or accident you lose the power to earn a living, and the disability is permanent, you are excused from making any further deposits and £20 per month will be paid to you until the £250 a year for life becomes due.

£2,000 for Your Family.
 Should you not live to the age of 55, £2,000 will be paid to your family, and, in addition, half of every deposit you had made to date. If death result from an accident, the sum would be increased to £4,000 plus half the deposits.

Any Age, Any Amount.
 Though 55, and £250 a year for life has been quoted here, the plan applies at any age and for any amount. Whatever your income, if you can spare something out of it for your and your family's future, this plan is the best and most profitable method you can adopt.

£70,000,000 Assets.
 The Sun Life of Canada has assets of over £70,000,000, which are under Government supervision. It is in an impregnable position. Do not, therefore, hesitate to send for particulars of this plan, which may mean great things for you and yours.

FILL IN AND POST THIS FORM TO-DAY.

To J. F. JUNKIN (Manager),
SUN LIFE ASSURANCE CO. OF CANADA
 12, Sun of Canada House, Victoria Embankment, London, W.C.2 (near Temple Station).

Assuming I can save and deposit £..... per..... please send me—without obligation on my part—full particulars of your investment plan showing what income of cash sum will be available for me.

IN 1880 the University of Breslau made Brahms a Doctor of Philosophy, and this Overture was written expressly for the occasion. The title may sound rather solemn, but the Overture is one of the gayest pieces of music Brahms wrote. It was originally scored for Full Orchestra, with plenty of 'percussion'—Kettle Drums, Big Drum, Cymbals and Triangle. Today we hear it in an arrangement for Military Band.

The chief themes are all well-known German students' songs. Some of them are familiar also to us in England.

8.55 THE WEEK'S GOOD CAUSE: Appeal on behalf of 'The Newport and Monmouthshire Blind Aid Society,' by Councillor CYRUS T. CLISSETT

Mr. CYRUS T. CLISSETT

ONE of the few charitable causes that appeal to all of us who have imagination and sympathy with the afflictions of other people is that of the blind. The curse of blindness is a thing of which we all have some experience; few indeed have never known or met one of its victims, and been impressed with the cheerful fortitude that almost always characterizes them. These memories will be a powerful aid to Councillor Clissett's appeal tonight.

 Quartet in D Haydn

WHEN Charles Hallé died in 1895, Dr. Brodsky succeeded him as Principal of the Manchester College of Music, and in these thirty years he has trained a long succession of violinists to carry on the tradition that he has maintained so well. Many years ago he studied under the great quartet player Hellmesberger, and conceived his lifelong passion for the string quartet. His own famous quartet was founded at Leipzig, where he aimed at popularizing the later and lesser-known Beethoven quartets.

 Quartet in A Minor Schubert

AMONG Schubert's greatest pleasures, at one period, was spending some months in summer at the Hungarian estate of his patrons and friends, the Esterhazys.

This Quartet was probably written during such a visit, in 1824. Its Finale shows the influence of the folk-tunes that the Composer used to enjoy picking up from servants and peasants in the district.

There are four Movements, full of sunny melody. The theme of the Second (Stow) Movement will be familiar to many listeners, for Schubert used it also in his Incidental Music for the play Rosamunde (written the winter before the visit mentioned above), and again in one of his Impromptus.

then, fair vision).....

THE story of the pleasure-loving Manon Lescaut and her lovers was written in 1763 by the Abbé Prevost. It was taken as the basis of an Opera by various composers—Halévy, Auber, Massenet, Puccini, and our own Balfe. Massenet's and Puccini's proved by far the most popular versions of the story. The music of Massenet's Opera, which was produced in 1884, is by turns charming and passionate.

Near the end of Act II, Manon's lover, des Grieux, sings of a dream in which he saw Manon

IN THE HEART OF ENGLAND.

A Warwickshire Concert is to be broadcast from 5GB tonight. Could anything be more typically English than this view of Warwick Castle, mirrored in the River Avon, and set round with the woods that Shakespeare used as the setting of his most English plays?

in her cottage in a wood—a lovely maid, surrounded by all Nature's loveliness.

Then the beautiful vision altered, and Manon was no longer there. The dream is prophetic, for, though he does not know it, in a few moments he and Manon are to be parted.

When des Grieux sings the second air we are to hear, Manon has gone to another lover, and des Grieux has determined to enter the priesthood. He renounces the sweet joys of the past, and would dedicate himself to the religious life.

IN her room on her husband's houseboat, the Hyacinth, Betty Jones has retired to bed, one afternoon, with the full intention of staying there—a silent, injured heroine in a most becoming boudoir cap.

This is the outcome of a battle of words with a certain Mrs. Wister (who lives on the houseboat next door), which had startled the neighbourhood that morning.

According to her very 'modern' views, Betty has been fully justified, but a slight pricking of conscience, coupled with the excitement left from the fray, makes her pour out, together with a dish of tea, the whole shocking story to her friend, Alice Meyne!

Later, her husband comes in, and presently the inevitable result of her outburst brings Betty up on deck on one of the hottest evenings of a record summer.

The name Warwick was in existence as far back as A.D. 701, but there is no mention of the county before the year 1016, so that it is not at all likely that the county was formed by Alfred. It is more probably the work of Edward the Elder, and resulted from his victory over the Danes. The meaning of Warwick (Wærinc Wicum) is the village of the Wærings

Do You Draw Two Salaries?

What is your spare time worth to you?

If you can write a good letter—if you have a little natural aptitude for literary work—you can be trained to earn a second income, and this "sideline" may be even more profitable than your regular occupation.

You need not be a genius to become a successful writer. Many contributors who find a ready market for their articles and stories are men and women of average education. Training was the short-cut to their mastery of the rules of effective writing.

The records of the Regent Institute (which has a world-wide reputation for success in training free-lance journalists) contain scores of cases of almost instantaneous success won by students who had never written a line for publication before they enrolled.

A woman student placed 55 articles with leading journals within ten months of enrolment. Just over two years later she reported that she had sold more than 350 further MSS. Another student, in addition to placing articles, gained the appointment of dramatic critic to a well-known provincial morning paper. Yet another secured permanent and remunerative work as a result of the tuition, besides selling every one of the exercises submitted. Following are extracts from a few of the many hundreds of letters on file:

I am being successful in having all my work published, and thanks to the invaluable help and advice I received I have made writing a profitable pastime. I cannot speak too highly of the benefits of the Institute.

It is now some time since I finished the course in journalism. I wish to state that your advice has been invaluable to me in constructing articles of the right type. Unfortunately, I have had little time for writing. Almost all the articles I have turned out have been accepted, which you will agree is encouraging.

I promised to let you know what I made in the year after starting your valuable course. I wrote three girls' short story books, for which I got £20 for the first two (and the royalties, which have not yet come in), and £90 for the third, without royalties. Besides this I wrote a few articles, which were accepted by the Daily Sketch and Daily Express, and which brought me in £12 10s. 6d., thus bringing the total for my first year to £82 10s. 6d. I really feel I owe a lot to you, as I should not have discovered this small talent without your journalistic course.

LEARN TO WRITE; Earn While You Learn.

Hundreds of publications need the work of outside contributors. The supply of brightly-written articles and stories does not keep pace with the demand. Big prices are paid for good work.

The postal tuition given by the Regent Institute will show you definitely and practically how to write in the way that appeals to editors, what to write about, how to get ideas, and where to sell.

Send to-day for a free copy of the Institute's prospectus, "How to Succeed as a Writer." It contains much striking information of interest to literary aspirants and describes the Regent postal courses, which have enabled so many novices to earn while learning.

Cut this coupon out and post in an unsealed envelope (2d. stamp), or write a simple request for the booklet.

DREAMS was originally one of a set of five songs which Wagner wrote in 1857. Two of them were later published as 'Studies for

Tristan and Isolde.' While Wagner was working upon this Music-Drama he found a melody from the song Dreams constantly recurring to his mind, and used it in the love music of the drama. Of the song itself he said: 'It is more beautiful than anything else I have done.' Later he arranged the song for Small Orchestra.

5.0 MR. ALLEN S. WALKER, 'Old Middlesex Churches—Finchley and Hendon'

THE old churches of Finchley and Hendon are both mediæval buildings with interesting architectural features, but Hendon Church was transformed by its incorporation, some years ago, into a great new building. There is now a danger that the character of Finchley Church—one of the last 'village churches' surviving within the ever-widening area of London—may be similarly altered, so this talk by Mr. Allen Walker, the well-known lecturer on the architecture and antiquities of London, comes at a particularly opportune moment.

the banjost, will contribute to London's Variety programme tonight.

9.15 Mrs. MARY ADAMS: 'Heredity'

BIOLOGY, in what may be called its social aspect, is very much in the public eye just now, and the subject of heredity has attracted a vast amount of research in recent years. Not only is Mrs. Adams an expert on heredity, but as a lecturer in biology under the Cambridge University Board of Extra Mural Studies, with much experience of taking biology classes for working people, she knows how to treat this important scientific topic in an attractive way.

Fifth Violin Concerto, in A (K. 219)... Mozart

Two of the solo artists in tonight's Promenade Concert, relayed from 5GB at 8.0—Miss Marjorie Hayward and Mr. Kenneth Ellis.

AS a boy, Mozart was a wonderful pianist; as a youth, he was a capable violinist. This Concerto, with five others, is a relic of the period when he was particularly interested in the Violin.

It is in three Movements: (1) A Quick Movement prefaced by a slow Introduction; (2) an expressive Slow Movement; (3) a piece in the character of a Minuet.

THE ST. LEGER STAKES

them all immensely, and I asked myself which I would have if I was given the pick. There was much to like and so little to dislike in any of them, but I first of all discarded the chestnut, Miss Cavendish. Then I spent a long time looking at the two bays, which were Book Law and Pretty Swift. I decided finally in favour of Pretty Swift, which was singularly bad picking, as it has never won a race. Book Law has gone from strength to strength, and I should dearly like to break the news to the world that she has won the Leger.

Other horses whom I hope to record as running well are Restigouche, who is a fine stayer; Hot Night (my Sunday Express Derby selection), Shian Mor, Tattoo, and Hassan. We can depend on having a fascinating race, and I will do my utmost to help those who cannot get to Doncaster to see the race through my glasses. I wish I could tell you the winner now. It would be much more useful than telling you it on Wednesday as the horses pass the post.

I HOPE sincerely the light will be better than it was on Derby Day. The horses are a long way from the stands at half-way, and if it is at all misty they will disappear from view. From what I remember of previous years the visibility at Doncaster is usually pretty good, so I shall have no excuse. I do not know what position I am to have for reading the race, but it certainly cannot be better than the marvellous place I had at Epsom on the roof of the Members' stand.

We shall certainly not have a more sensational race than we had in 1924. However long I live I shall never forget that race. Somehow, or other I got the idea fixed in my head that Salmon Trout was a certainty for it. Everybody I met I implored to back Salmon Trout each way. I tipped him as unbeatable in The Sunday Express. I shall never forget how small I felt when Salmon Trout came into the straight streets behind the leaders. It looked as though he could not win unless all the others fell down. Close home Carslake made a stupendous effort, and it looked as though by a miracle the horse might be placed. We were treated to no ordinary miracle. Salmon Trout actually won the race. I learnt a lesson. I have never implored people to back a horse since that day. Nowadays I believe in having a bet if you must, but I am confident that those who derive the greatest pleasure from racing are men like Lord Astor, who never has a bet.

Everybody has a use for Germolene. It is the ideal first-aid for skin accidents in the home and garden, at work and at sport. And it has a wonderful reputation for Eczema and other serious skin complaints.

It is a wise plan to make a habit of applying Germolene to all cuts, scratches, burns, scalds, etc. Keep it handy, too, for sunburn and insect bites.

To keep the skin healthy and attractive, use Germolene Aseptic Soap.

7.30 SCENES FROM SHERIDAN

ENGLISH comedy has never really advanced much beyond the state of technical accomplishment and brilliance of dialogue to which Sheridan brought it in the eighteenth century. The two scenes that are being played tonight are both typical of the Irish playwright's work. The Critic is a notable example of the literary warfare in which the wits of the period so frequently engaged; and as for The Rivals, the loves of Lydia Languish and her Beverley, the malapropisms of Mrs. Malaprop, the crochets of Sir Anthony Absolute and the thunders and lightnings of Sir Lucius O'Trigger are never long absent from the present-day stage.

5.15 THE CHILDREN'S HOUR: Back to the Days of Good Queen Bess! Sixteenth Century music played on old English Instruments by the Chaplin Trio. The story of 'The Armada' from 'Westward Ho!' (Charles Kingsley) told by Alan Howland. 'A Child's Day in the Sixteenth Century,' by Marjorie Quennell.

THE Chaplin Trio, who specialize in Old English Music, will play today on the Harpsichord, the Viola d'Amore and the Viola da Gamba. The Harpsichord was the keyboard instrument used before the Piano was invented. It has stops and pedals, and the sounds are made by quills which pluck the strings when the keys are played upon. The qualities of sound are therefore quite different from those of the Piano, which are produced by hammers striking the strings.

The Viola d'Amore has seven strings, tuned to the key of D. In addition, there are seven metal strings under the fingerboard. These give a peculiarly sympathetic quality of tone to the instrument.

The Viola da Gamba has six strings—three being made of gut and three being wire covered.

The Chaplin Trio will play music of the Sixteenth century by Dr. John Bull, William Byrd and Robert Johnson, and some old dances of the period, the composers of which are unknown.

ORCHESTRA
 Fantasia on Two Elizabethan Themes
 Napier Miles

THE Fantasia, written in 1923, is an attempt, the Composer tells us, to express the spirit and characteristics of the Tudor madrigal in terms of the modern Orchestra. It has no 'programme' and is developed on purely musical lines, in three linked Movements—two quick ones separated by a slow one. These form a continuous whole. The subject of the First Movement is taken from Morley's 'Ho! who comes here?' and indeed this theme lies the use of any fairly advanced school orchestra, with the possible help of a few teachers or musical friends. It is scored for a Flute (or Piccolo), an Oboe, two Clarinets, a Bassoon, two Horns, two Trumpets, two Trombones, Drums and other Percussion instruments, Harp (or Piano) and Strings.

The Movements are thus entitled: (1) Introduction ('Announcements') and Allegro ('At Work'); (2) Presto ('At Play'); (3) Andante ('Thoughts'); (4) Finale ('Here we go'). The programme note goes on: 'To those long familiar with Symphony Form such titles are probably less than unimportant, and may even be in the way. But for the sake of younger symphonic listeners, their mention here may be forgivingly ignored by those who have grown old in the gentle art of listening to abstract music.'

WHAT DO THESE SIGNATURES REVEAL?

Tonight at 9.15 M. Robert Saudek will broadcast from London a talk on 'Character Reading from Handwriting.' We reproduce above specimen autographs of some well-known broadcasters. Listeners may find it interesting to study them in the light of M. Saudek's talk, and compare the results with the impressions that they have formed over the microphone.

behind the first two Movements, while the Third is based on a fragment of a theme from Weelkes' 'Sing we at pleasure,' at the end of which the Morley theme from the First Movement returns, the Coda being built on both the themes.

- It is a little curious that almost all Composers of Opera have ignored the gayest of Shakespeare's comedies. Nicolai and Verdi, however, both treated Falstaff's comical adventures with conspicuous success. The Overture to Nicolai's Opera is as nimble as Falstaff's wit. It has charming vivacity, and a lightness of touch that the Composer probably acquired through living in Italy.
- Nicolai's early home life was not happy, so he ran away, and was befriended by a lawyer, who helped him to obtain a period of musical study in Berlin. Then he became Organist at the Prussian Embassy in Rome, and some years later became Conductor of the Vienna Opera. Finally he received the appointment of Court Music Master at Berlin, in which city The Merry Wives of Windsor was produced in 1849, only a couple of months before the Composer's death.

THE scene is laid at Olga Werther's cottage in a forest near Petersdorf, the capital of Valesia, a country in South-Eastern Europe. Her room is barely furnished, a table with some electrical apparatus on it being in the centre, while a writing table is under the window. The room is lit by means of two table lamps, one on each table, while a fire burns brightly in the open fireplace. Outside, a gale is

7.45 Travel Talk: Mr. VAL GIELGUD, 'Capitals of Europe—Warsaw'

THERE is something medieval and romantic in the Polish character, a quixotism dating from the days when John Sobieski saved Europe from the Turks and exemplified in our own time by the Polish invasion of Russia in 1920 and the doggedness of the slow retreat which followed when the Poles believed that they were saving Europe from Russia. Warsaw is a romantic capital—and it is with this side of its life that

THE COLUMN OF SIGISMUND III. and the old Palace of the Kings of Poland—one of the most historic places in that historic capital of which Mr. Gielgud will talk to London listeners at 7.45 tonight.

Mr. Gielgud will talk tonight. He is of Polish descent himself, and frequently visits the country of his blood. A novel by Mr. Gielgud, with Poland for its setting, is appearing early next year.

Overture to 'Russian and Ludmilla'.. Glinka
OPERA-COMPOSING usually comes fairly late in a country's musical development. In Russia it came early, and Glinka, the pioneer of art music in that country, quite naturally went for the plots of his Operas to national fairy-lore, legend and history. 'Russian' is based on one of the many quaintly extravagant, fantastic Russian fairy tales, about lordly humans, TONIGHT AT THE QUEEN'S HALL.

The soloists in tonight's Promenade Concert, which will be broadcast from London Station, are Mr. Frank Titterton (left), Mme. Aksarova, and Mr. Stephen Wearing (right).

fairy folk, poets, dwarfs and such like. The Overture is a bright, energetic and straightforward prelude to their exciting doings.

Masonic Funeral Music Mozart
Trümmerei (Dreaming), for Strings and Horn Schumann

MOZART'S funeral piece, written on the death of two well-known Freemasons in 1785, is based on a Gregorian psalm-tune. It will be remembered that Mozart, a strong Freemason, founded his Magic Flute on Masonic ideas.

ORCHESTRA
First Symphony Elgar

ALMOST a hundred performances of this Symphony were given within a year of its production. It is dedicated to the great Conductor, Richter, and it was he who gave its first performance at one of the famous Manchester Hallé Concerts nineteen years ago.

Since the end of the nineteenth century we have been led generally to expect some literary or pictorial basis for orchestral works, some 'programme' or at least a descriptive title. Elgar has given us nothing beyond the suggestion that in it we see a Composer's outlook on life, and in the light of that interpretation this Symphony has always been considered highly personal. To most people it conveys a sense of spirituality, sometimes of longing, sometimes of consolation. There are four Movements.

ORCHESTRA
Amráin na N'Gaedeal, 'Songs of the Gael' (A Gaelic Fantasy) B. Walton O'Donnell
Conducted by the COMPOSER

THIS piece was composed for performance by the massed Bands at Wembley on Empire Day two years ago. It is built upon a number of somewhat unfamiliar tunes, the first of which, Tadhbui (Yellow Tim) was taken down by the Composer from a singer of folk-songs in County Cork. An Antrim tune, and snatches of The Green Ribbon, lead to the appearance, as a Euphonium solo, of Along the Ocean shore. The Clarinets next start a 'chorus Jig' and a Pipers' Dance is heard a little later. Two more tunes are used, and then the last section is made out of two Reels.

THE NEW RADIO SIMPLICITY

MARCONIPHONE MAINS-DRIVEN WIRELESS

Never before has wireless attained such marvellous convenience — such utter simplicity. Batteries and accumulators are completely eliminated. The set when first installed has simply to be connected to an ordinary electric light socket and thereafter it is always ready for immediate action. Whenever the wireless is wanted you just switch on.

Marconiphone Mains-Driven Receivers

★ Your dealer is ready to show you these modern receivers. If you haven't electricity, the same highly efficient receivers are available for the ordinary battery-accumulator installation.

can be installed anywhere there is electricity. They cut out all maintenance worries, and because the electrical energy is derived from the mains, upkeep cost is negligible.

Those who already possess receivers can also enjoy this new radio simplicity. With slight alterations, any existing set can be operated direct from the mains by means of Marconiphone All-Power Units.

3.0 THE STATION ORCHESTRA
 Overture to 'Russlan and Ludmilla' Glinka
 Suite from 'Where the Rainbow Ends' Quilter

RUSSLAN AND LUDMILLA is a fairy-tale Opera about a Princess who was wooed by three lovers and carried off by a magician. The plot follows the adventures of the three rival suitors in search of her.

The Overture, a stirring piece of quick music, is built on themes from the Opera. One of them, that represents the wicked magician, is a descending whole-tone scale (on the piano, that in which there intervenes a key, black or white, between each pair of successive keys in the scale). This is one of the first instances of the use of this peculiar scale, which was much used later by other composers, notably by Debussy.

The First Main Tune is given out, after a few bars of Introduction, by the Full Orchestra, with great energy. This is worked up a little, one part 'imitating' another, and then the broad, swinging Second Main Tune (based on one of Russlan's songs) comes on the Bassoons and Lower Strings.

It is just before the Coda, or winding-up section, that we hear the 'whole-tone scale,' blared out by the heaviest bass instruments. After it, the Overture quickly rattles on to a rollicking conclusion.

QUILTER'S music comes from a children's Fairy Play produced at Christmas, 1911. The titles of the pieces in the Suite are Rainbow Land and Will o' the Wisp; Rosamund; Fairy Frolic; and Goblin Forest.

ADA ROWLANDS-JAMES (Contralto)
 The Danube River Hamilton Aide
 Twickenham Ferry Marzials
 By the Waters of Minnetonka Thalae Licurace

ORCHESTRA

Symphonic Poem, 'Omphale's Spinning Wheel' Saint-Saëns

First 'Peer Gynt' Suite Grieg
 THE hero Hercules, as a penance for a crime, had to hire himself out for three years. He took service with Omphale, Queen of Lydia, and worked at her side amongst the women—in so uncouth a manner as to win him many a blow. In this 'Symphonic Poem' you may hear the whirl of the wheels, the derision of the Queen, and the sorrow of the enslaved hero.

THE incidental music to Ibsen's play about Peer Gynt, the supreme egoist, is probably the first favourite among all Orchestral Suites, and rightly so, for it is full of colour and 'atmosphere.'

The First of the two Suites made from Grieg's separate numbers contains four pieces. Morning is the serene prelude to the Fourth Act. Asc's Death (for Muted Strings) refers to Peer's old mother. Anitra's Dance is the dance of the Bedouin girl who bewitches Peer. In the Hall of the Mountain King gives a vivid picture of festivity in the palace of the goblins whom Peer visited and who tormented him, finally driving him away.

- BANGKOK, which is the capital of Siam, was until quite recently built on piles and floating pontoons at the edges of canals and rivers, which, like the canals of Venice, were used for purposes of transport. To meet modern demands, however, and increased trade, roads have been built across the waterways, and the people now live chiefly in brick houses. Nevertheless the city is still impregnated with the romance of its past and the mysterious charm of the East, which will be described at first hand this afternoon by Mr. Sargent, a great traveller, who has broadcast from Manchester several times before.

THE ROYAL BARGE IN SIAM.
 Bangkok, the capital of Siam, is a city of waterways and canals, not inaptly called 'the Venice of the East'—the title under which Mr. Sargent will describe it to Manchester listeners this afternoon. This picture shows the Royal barge of gold lacquer being driven through Bangkok by the sixty paddlers who form its crew.

An Instrument that revolutionises
the Gramophone

IS your Gramophone weak-lunged and throaty after years of Service? Have your records grown weary after constant use? Then rejuvenate the former and revive the latter—with the new Brown Electrical Pick-up.

Fit this new instrument to your gramophone in place of the sound box, and connect to an amplifier and loud speaker. Immediately the result will be these four improvements:

- Greater purity of tone
- Largely increased volume
- Controllable volume
- Reduction of needle scratch.

Think what these mean: More beautiful reproduction and yet, at the same time, far greater volume—even enough to fill a large room for dancing. Then, for the first time, effective control of gramophone volume. Lastly, that bugbear—needle scratch—almost eliminated.

PRACTICAL POINTS ABOUT THE LISSEN SECRET PROCESS BATTERY

1. It brings a new power smoothness to your loud speaker.
2. It offers a stubborn resistance to volt drop.
3. Every battery absolutely fresh when you get it.
4. The price low enough to bring it within the reach of all.
5. You can get it on your way home at one of the 10,000 dealers who handle LISSEN products. Get one for your week-end radio.

Science has never successfully explained the phenomenon of catalysis—the mysterious way in which a chemical reaction is hastened by the addition of substances which do not themselves react.

Part of the secret formula of the LISSEN New Process Battery includes a catalytic agent which promotes a liberation of oxygen copious to an extraordinary degree.

To the oxygen producing elements in the LISSEN battery and the nature and abundance of their oxygen liberation, your valves respond by undisputed working while your loud speaker rewards you with a truth of tone and volume in a way no other battery, whatever the price, has yet succeeded in doing.

Intended first for sale at 13/- LISSEN has brought the price down by persistently pursuing—in users' interests—a daring policy in a matter of price, profit and distribution. Big wholesale profits have been eliminated and this fine battery is now sold at a price which brings it within the reach of all.

You can get it at one of 10,000 dealers throughout the country. Ask for it in a way which shows you will take no other.

A Hornless Loud
Speaker at a popular price

UNIVERSAL is its name. Universal will be its popularity. For universal is its price appeal. It is the new Brown Universal Loud Speaker.

In the Universal, for the first time, is the handsome hornless loud speaker brought within everyone's reach. Price is now no barrier. The elegance of the famous Brown Sphinx Loud Speaker and the true, honest reproduction of the equally notorious Brown Disc are no longer denied to those whose means will not permit such prices.

Only £6 now, is the cost of this priceless boon; a loud speaker whose design is true beauty and whose reproduction is remarkably purer and infinitely nearer the original than anything within pounds of its price. The reputation enjoyed by Brown as "the loud speaker that tells the truth" can only be further enhanced by the new Universal. Hear it at your Wireless Dealer's. Price £6

UNIVERSAL LOUD SPEAKER

Receives Paris or Berlin without an Aerial!

TAKE a REES-MACE Wireless Set with you anywhere—touch a button—and listen to the programme from England, France, Germany and Holland, perfectly reproduced in full pure volume from the Cone Loud Speaker embodied in the set.

The Rees-Mace was the first self-contained wireless set manufactured and marketed in Great Britain.

The Rees-Mace is the set of the future, handsome and portable, the set with no aerial wire, no earth wire—no outside wires of any kind.

Simplicity of tuning is a great feature, the change from low wave length to high is accomplished by a throw-over switch giving a tuning range of from 200 to 2000 metres, thus covering all European broadcasting stations. Super capacity batteries are used ensuring a minimum cost of upkeep and trouble.

DEAF

Unrivalled Accomplishments of the very latest and outstandingly successful miniature hearing aid which, by its extraordinary ability to pick up conversation spoken in ordinary tones and at distances within the reach of normal ears, is causing unprecedented comment throughout medical circles and the whole deaf world. Even with the instrument concealed under the clothing its great sensitivity to sound renders for ever the danger and inconvenience of deafness when travelling; the embarrassment of making mistakes in conversation; the impatience of others on being asked frequently to repeat what they have said.

"The SHELLACON"
A MARVEL IN MINIATURE.

ITS NATURALNESS IS A WONDER TO ALL WHO TRY IT. Hundreds are enjoying the revelation that the smallest aid in the world can give them better hearing than any other kind of instrument they have ever tried. Call yourself for a FREE TEST.

SHELLACON Made exclusively by 77, WIGMORE ST., W.1. General Acoustics, Ltd., Birmingham.
BRANCHES: 14, St. Ann's Square, Manchester; 65, Corporation St., Birmingham; 75, Buchanan St., Glasgow; 19, Shandwick Place, Edinburgh.

Recently Demonstrated at the British Medical Exhibition in Edinburgh where it caused unprecedented interest among leading doctors and aurist specialists.

Select a Celeste—

The Hestavox 'Celeste' is a full size speaker that gives splendid reproduction under the most severe tests. It will carry perfectly the volume of a multi-valve set and yet give full satisfaction on even a two-valve receiver.

Is sensitive to a degree and its generous internal construction ensures long and excellent service.

Handsome appearance. Finished in Black Crystalline Enamel. Supplied for 120-2000 or 4000 ohms at the remarkably low price of 42/6.

Now you can get good Music always

THERE'S a great musical treat in store for you the first time you use Cossor Valves. From the sweet high notes of the violin to the throbbing of the drums every sound is re-created with a wealth of colour and atmosphere, surprisingly beautiful and true in detail. Such perfect music is due largely to the super-sensitive Kalenised filament with which every Cossor Valve is fitted. But, remember—you can't get this remarkable Kalenised filament and, therefore the same outstanding quality of reproduction, with any other valve. It is an exclusive Cossor development.
