What Broadcasting Can Do For Shakespeare.

By Sybil Thorndike.

THE purpose of all Art, so far as it has a definite purpose at all, is to stimulate. An artist writes, paints or composes because he is compelled by an inward urge to express in a perfect form something that he feels intensely. So through that form his emotion and thought become available to his fellow men. There his work is ended. The actual value of art is a matter of the use we others make of his vision; and, roughly speaking, its value to us is in proportion to the effort we ourselves make to understand his vision, and through it to increase our own powers of vision and understanding. We can only draw from the artist's work in proportion as we bring to it and apply to it such gifts as we have. And that application is its

Miss Sybil Thorndike, our greatest Shakespearean actress, pleads in the accompanying article for a 'square deal' for Shakespeare's plays, several of which are to be broadcast in the near future.

Art of Acting, and so come to any dramatic work ready equipped with a technique that helps us to appreciate the artist's work. Moreover, as the extraordinary revival of interest in amateur acting all over the country has shown, there is a great hunger for the practise of this common art. And those who actually practise an art even in its humblest form are likely to be the best appreciators of the finest work.

The encouragement of acting in schools, which received such an impetus from the Report of the Committee on Adult Education, is in my opinion going to have a very great effect on the rising generation. It encourages intellectual amusement, appreciation of beauty of colour grouping, movement and speech, of literature and the living word, besides combatting that besetting curse of Englishmen, self-consciousness.

The broadcasting of three full-length Shakespeare plays—The Tempest, Twelfth Night and Richard II—during the hours when the children are listening at school, is an innovation the value of which cannot be overrated. All Drama is written to be spoken. To be able to read it with enjoyment, printed in cold black and white, demands a development of imagination which is the possession of very few grown people—and even fewer children. For the young and inexperienced to be able to appreciate the living quality of Shakespeare's works, an aural introduction to them is, I feel convinced, essential. To read the plays line by line in class, slowly, painfully to disentangle the difficulties of sixteenth-century words and phrasing, is to put a brake on their urgent onward flow—perhaps to kill in the child all interest in Shakespeare whom he feels to be no more than a class exercise. In all education practical work takes its place side by side with class-room work—and these broadcasts will be in a way a laboratory in which the children can see the magic of Shakespeare—like the magic of chemistry—manifest. And as, when he watches the science lecturer about his illustrations, the child longs to take part in the experiment (and becomes in that instant a scientist himself), so when he listens to these Shakespeare broadcasts, there will be developed in him the actor which is in everyone, and he will be as close to Shakespeare as each member of the race which sired the poet should be.

The B.B.C. has chosen three very interesting plays for this new venture, all from value to us. That is why the dramatic form of art in its highest form is the one that should of all others be encouraged; partly because the materials of the art, the flesh and blood of living people and the words of common speech, are available to us all, but even more because we all, throughout our daily lives, practise the Shakespeare's finest period, plays that are specially suitable for broadcasting purposes because their glorious verse gains so much from beautiful reading and because they are all excellent for dramatic reading and acting in schools. None of them, even Richard II, contains parts that are beyond the range of intelligent presentation by elder school children. Plays of the type of The Taming of the Shrew, of Shakespeare's earlier period, seem to me unsuitable both for Broadcasting and Reading. (In this respect I seem to differ from the Productions Director of the B.B.C., for the play is to be broadcast on October 4 and 6, when listeners will have an opportunity of judging which of us is right.) They are, in my opinion, too closely allied with the old Italian Comedy, with its clowns and its broad visual acting, where the characterization is embodied in the action more than the words. But they are admirable for actual performance in schools. Indeed, the merriest show of The Taming of the Shrew I ever saw was given by the choir boys of All Saints', Margaret Street. As this play is, at the moment, in the public eye, both on the stage at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith, and in the programmes of the B.B.C., may I be allowed to protest against the common view that Petruchio is a mere mercenary bully? He is a wealthy man, quite willing to settle his money on his widow; he never makes Katherine suffer anything he is not willing to suffer with her; when she strikes him he turns the other cheek; while her own family call her names to him she is always 'good Kate' and 'sweet Kate.' No doubt it is due to this quite as much as his treatment of her as a naughty child, that wins her in the end.

But what shall we say of Twelfth Night and The Tempest? Twelfth Night, as Masefield says, 'is the best English comedy, the happiest, and one of the loveliest of Shakespearean plays.' Read it yourself, hear it read, read it aloud in a class, see it on the stage, or above all act it yourself. Every way its beauty and humanity are apparent.

And The Tempest. Again a play for reading aloud or simple acting. It is a terrible problem for the 'producer' with unlimited money to spend, and the necessity of making a great 'show' of it, but play it yourselves under the simplest conditions, with such guidance as you will get from the coming broadcast of the play, and its beauty and romance cannot fail. Don't bother about its symbolism. That will come through and make its effect all the same. One of the performances of this play, too, that has given me most pleasure, was that of a girl's school where no one showed any outstanding acting ability, but each had an understanding of the character she had to play and treated it simply and sincerely.

Richard II is a harder nut to crack. It is a human tragedy more than a historical play. It is like a historical Hamlet, the unsuccessful struggle of a man with a temperament quite unsuited to the role he had to play. A play overflowing with lovely poetry that continually kindles the imagination. For the school producer it has the advantages that it is built of historical characters, and that it is a tragedy with a leading part that is not technically too difficult for anyone who can speak verse well once the part is explained, and it has a very large number of interesting small parts.

In conclusion, then, let me commend these broadcasts of Shakespeare—not only the school series, but those which from time to time appear in the evening programmes—because I feel that they will incite listeners to work for themselves. There is a danger that Broadcasting may make it too easy to hear the most beautiful things in the world without any effort whatever—just as the Cinema enables its audiences to pass an evening with a minimum of mental and imaginative effort. Don't let these Shakespeare broadcasts lead to that. Give them a fair chance to show you Shakespeare as he is. Turn on the loud-speaker or put on the headphones for them with a sense of mental alertness, determined to extract from them all the tension, colour, vitality and experience which the greatest English poet and dramatist so lavishly poured into his plays.

How It's Done.

A Note on a Forthcoming Publication for Listeners.

HOW is it done? That is the question our human curiosity is always asking from the moment we pull our first toy railway engine to pieces and scatter the 'works' around us on the floor. While things are new to us, at any rate, we are not content until we find out exactly how they work.

Twelve million—that is the estimated number of listeners to broadcasting in the British Isles. In four and a half years there has been firmly established a tremendous new instrument of entertainment and instruction, which has not only transformed the formerly lonely and isolated life of the countryside but has also banished some of the drabness from the homes of our great industrial cities. And nobody knows 'How it is done.'

Very shortly, within the next few weeks, a unique book will be appearing. Its title is The B.B.C. Handbook, and its unique quality lies in the fact that its contributors are those who actually do the work about which they are writing. In this book for the first time programme-builders, engineers, and administrators of our broadcasting service describe their work, their difficulties, and their aspirations. This book will, to quote a picturesque Americanism, show broadcasting 'with the lid off.' The lid has for four and a half years been kept pretty tightly screwed on, for the work of organizing this entirely novel service has been hard work and left little time for the workers to talk or write about it.

The Handbook will not only deal with the B.B.C. and its work, it is also packed full of useful technical information. But quite apart from its function as a work of reference, the book, which is illustrated with drawings and photographs, will make fascinating reading, for it is the story of a pioneer venture.

This combination of the personal and the technical makes the forthcoming Handbook a very necessary asset for listeners who would enjoy broadcasting to the full. The price of the book will be two shillings. The actual date of publication is not yet certain, but listeners who watch the pages of The Radio Times during the next few weeks will find an announcement to this effect.

The Listener Speaks his Mind.

The Bible Stories—Do we need Foreign Music Titles?—Broadcasting Boxing.

The Romance of Broadcasting.

DEAR SIR,—I wonder how many of the millions of British Listeners are conscious of the romance of broadcasting. I am afraid that wireless, like all other modern-day miracles, will quickly become a commonplace, of which people will take no more notice than they now take of an aeroplane overhead, or a passing motor-car. But we who, for business reasons, are cut off from home do appreciate the romantic side of radio—especially when we hear Big Ben striking a thousand miles away, carrying our thoughts, as it were, on a magic carpet back to Town.—'COMMIS,' Avenue de la Victoire, Nice, A.M.

Tales from the Old Testament.

DEAR SIR,—I should like to convey to you my thanks for the new series of Tales from the Old Testament. In my humble opinion, these are among the most helpful of all broadcasts, since they bring a new light to bear upon the Bible stories. Heard as we now hear them, on Sunday afternoons, at home and away, from the often dehumanizing atmosphere of church or Bible class, they seem to gain in reality and human interest. I like particularly the manner in which these talks are read—simply and 'unparsonically.'—G. V. EDWARDS, Cardiff.

More Pictures!

DEAR SIR,—As a listener of three years' standing, I wish to compliment you on the interest and variety of the illustrations in The Radio Times, particularly those referring to talks. I myself am not, I must admit, predisposed in favour of talks, and if I saw in your programmes just '7.0 Mr. So-and-so—Thibet' I should probably not listen at all. But a well-chosen photograph of Lhasa arouses all my interest and curiosity; I listen, and thoroughly enjoy the talk. I would even go further, and say that the illustrations in themselves form a weekly picture-gallery whose subjects cover every sphere of interest and range all over the globe. I only wish you could see your way to give us at least one picture for every broadcast talk.—A. T. LARKIN, Chiswick.

Foreign Music Titles.

DEAR SIR,—We who love music and believe in its function and power to bring beauty and pleasure to Man can never be sufficiently grateful to the B.B.C. for the work it has done in making the best music available to everyone and so breaking down the popular prejudice against 'concert going.' The ever-growing love of music which has resulted from the B.B.C.'s four years of broadcasting may not be apparent at once, but the newly-formed tradition of musical appreciation will certainly be revealed in the tastes of the growing generation. One of the shrewdest blows which the B.B.C. has struck for the cause of Music is that of printing translations of the titles of foreign songs and pieces alongside the originals, for it has stripped music of some of the awesome mystery with which in the past the popular ignorance of foreign languages clothed it. Strangely enough, despite the fact that we are not a nation of linguists, we are the only people who have insisted upon retaining foreign music titles in their original form. We still refer to Debussy's tone poem as L'Après-midi d'un faune, although seventy-five per cent. of our population cannot translate the title and are therefore deprived of the very key to the meaning of the piece. In France, for example (a country in which I have attended many concerts) no musical programme would complicate a piece of English music by leaving its title in English. For example, Rutland Boughton's opera, The Immortal Hour, would be referred to as l'Heure Immortelle, and Eric Coates' Suite Summer Days as Jours d'Été. French musical circles are not restrained by 'highbrow' ideals from making music as plain and illuminating

WALTER GLADSTONE FULLER.

Ob. 15.9.27.

Editor of The Radio Times.

*'He always loved the stars; to him
The tiny spark, remote and dim,
Was filled with life and superman,
So far his speculation ran.
O more to him the night's array
Than all the pageantry of day;
The far-lit citadel of space
Than earth's supreme abiding place,
What ecstasy of joy to him
To seek the last horizon's rim;
To find in some vast cave of space
The vagrant comet's resting place.
Where is he now? I think, maybe,
His shallop sails the ether sea
In happy search of some bright star
Where ancient dreams as substance are.'*

TO those who knew Walter Fuller, and especially to all who worked with him, the significance of these verses will be apparent. For many years to come memories of that eager and radiant spirit will flash upon them. He loved beauty and constantly sought to serve it. His devotion and restless enthusiasm were infectious. High inspiration and far-flung imagination characterized his work; and with it all a childlike simplicity and modesty of demeanour made him beloved. The personal sorrow—especially of his immediate associates—is mitigated by the inspiration of his friendship.

to its audience as possible. I notice that in certain cases foreign titles still go untranslated in The Radio Times. I hope that you propose in the near future to bring all titles in line with your praiseworthy ideal.—A. A. M., Birmingham.

A Word More About 'Ski.'

DEAR SIR,—It is a matter of indifference to most of us whether the plural of the word 'ski' is anglicized or not, but I do feel that one sentence in Mr. McDermott's letter ought not to be allowed to pass without comment. He says, 'In any case, since the word is almost universally called "skee" on the Continent, where the sport actually takes place, is it not somewhat absurd for us in England to adopt the sound used by the minority in Scandinavia?' The ski were not originally invented for the purposes of sport; they are the result of the need of a means of transit in the snow-bound Norwegian valleys, where they have been in use for many a long year. In more recent years the town-dwellers in Norway took up ski-running as a sport, so that nowadays practically the entire younger generation of Norwegians runs on ski, and, as a matter of fact, ski-running is to the Norwegian more or less what golf is to a Scotman, viz., part of his national life. I am aware that the so-called 'idle rich' have subsequently adopted the sport as part of the Swiss winter sports, but to assume that those who pursue the sport there are in the majority, and that the Norwegians constitute the minority, is not only 'somewhat absurd' (to quote your correspondent) but entirely so.—E. B. B., Hull.

A Plea for Boxing Commentaries.

DEAR SIR,—Now that the sporting broadcasts have become such a success, and so many of us rely upon our sets for the enjoyment of football matches, racing, tennis championships, etc., may I make a plea for the broadcasting of boxing? This fine old British sport is more popular than ever at the present time, and the fact that we have won back one World's Championship and got back to the stage of having World's Championship fights staged in this country, makes every Englishman full of enthusiasm for the success of our boxers. A running commentary by one of the expert referees—say, Mr. John Douglas—on an important match with a title at stake would be an incomparable boon to those who, like the writer, have very little chance of ever getting in person to witness one of these historic encounters in London's biggest halls.—CORINTHIAN, Chatham.

The Singer and the Vowel.

DEAR SIR,—'B.M.S.M.' can be reassured: it is really not necessary to sing either 'hands' or 'bah-ahnds.' I have listened to several sopranos lately (and these usually find it hard to get their vowels truly) singing short 'a's', as in the word 'hand,' on a sustained note, without distortion in either direction. The B.B.C. has been particularly successful of late in picking vocalists who are also appreciators of the true sound of a word.—K. R., Chelsea, S.W.3.

DEAR SIR,—In a recent issue of The Radio Times you published a letter from a listener on the vowel-sounds in singing. May I mention another fault, viz., the linking of one word ending with a consonant to the next beginning with a vowel, 'And, oh,' becomes, 'An Doh,' 'Grand Amen'—'Gran Damen' and so on indefinitely. Amongst the tenors are dozens of singers who should know better. Then there is that horrible linking up with an 'R.' The most perfect rendering I have ever heard of 'Shenandoah' by a young singer now touring abroad was ruined by 'Shenandoahrilong.' This carelessness in not keeping words quite clear of each other is one of the reasons why enunciation is so imperfect generally.—E. H., Surbiton.

Music—Or Noise.

By E. R. Appleton.

THE saying that beauty is in the eye of the beholder may be paralleled in the other senses. The man with a trained ear and a wide range of sympathies, perceives beauty in compositions so new and so strange that the crowd turns from them in deep distrust. But he can do more; he can trace a pattern—incomplete, broken it may be, yet none the less real to him—in the sounds which beat upon his ear from morning to night.

The man who takes no interest in music (or sound) is probably deaf to most of the noises in his daily life, especially if they be familiar ones. Many dwellers in large cities realize the full weight of this volume of sound only once a year, at the time of the two-minute Silence. The word 'weight' is used advisedly, for as all sounds gradually cease, it is as if a great weight were lifted, leaving a sense of relief and strangeness; for except after periods of strain, the stillness and deep peace of the country is not welcomed by the confirmed town-dweller. Even during the holidays, many people congregate on the busy esplanade, or around the booths in full swing, whilst the deep silence of the turn of the tide, and the chatter of the waves on the beach, pass neglected.

For silence, both of Nature and man, can be terrifying. It is perhaps most deeply felt by explorers who lose their way in snow or in sand, for at such times their own footfalls are muffled and mysterious. A story is told of a man who lost his way in the desert and who felt that his mind was giving way under the double strain of thirst and loneliness, when a homely strain broke upon his ears and saved his reason; it was the braying of a donkey! Probably the breaking of the silence by any sound whatever would have been a relief, but had that sound been sad or sinister, the relief might have been followed by a deep apprehension. For some sounds have a disintegrating effect, and in like manner, others seem to tone and build up.

It is told of Amphion, the Greek musician, whose divine music raised the walls of Thebes, that the very stones came and placed themselves in order at the sound of his music.

'Tis said he had a tuneful tongue
Such happy intonation
Whenever he sat down and sang
He left a small plantation.
Whenever in a lonely grove
He set up his forlorn pipes
The gouty oaks began to move
And flounder into hornpipes.

—lines of Tennyson's, which today might be accepted in all seriousness by those who witnessed Dr. Bose's demonstrations of the feeling of plants. All old religious mythologies have laid stress upon the creative influence of sound, and we are beginning to think that there may be 'something in it.' Poets have lost the sole copyright in 'Orpheus with his Lute,' and the harmony of the spheres has become a branch of science.

It has been demonstrated that musical sounds have also geometrical form, each tone producing its own particular figure. 'Voice figures,' says Mrs. Watts Hughes, 'are produced by directing the voice against an elastic membrane upon which powder, paste, or some similar substance has been placed,' and she herself produced voice figures of the most delicate vibrations.

It is therefore imperative that the broadcaster, working entirely in sound, should make a careful study of its potencies. Until we free our minds from the idea that invisibility is a limitation to be deplored, we are unable to recognize its advantage in quickening our aural receptivity and selective power. The brain can receive a message through one sense, and redistribute that message just as it has been able to receive and interpret it.

The keener sense of hearing, not only developed by those blind from birth, but by those who lose their sight through accidents, used to be considered a beneficent compensation; we know now that it is not necessary to be deprived of our sight in order to gain higher efficiency in hearing. Too long have we been content to muddle along, taking our senses for granted, but when we learn to listen without the distraction of sight, we may find that the pleasure we gain is capable of increase in proportion to our power of attention.

Coming To The Microphone.

Some Dates for Your Radio Diary.

THE association of Sir Henry J. Wood with the B.B.C. found its first concrete expression in the recent successful Season of 'Proms' at the Queen's Hall. Following on the 'Proms,' Sir Henry is conducting concerts for various local stations which are attracting as great an audience in the towns in question as came to the Queen's Hall during the past two months. He has visited Belfast and Glasgow and will be at Cardiff on Tuesday, October 11. This Symphony Concert, in which Sir Henry will have the assistance of Harold Williams, baritone, and Isabel Grey, pianoforte, will be held at the City Hall, and will be broadcast from Cardiff. The prices of tickets range from 2s. 4d. to 5s. 9d., and early application for these, which should be made to the B.B.C. Station, is advisable.

Sir HENRY WOOD.

A further distinguished name will be added to the list of contributors to the series, 'Writers of today,' when Mr. Hilaire Belloc, poet and novelist, reads a short story from the London Studio at 9.15 p.m. on Saturday, October 15.

THERE is a strong cosmopolitan flavour about an International Relay arranged for Tuesday evening, October 11, when LONDON and DAVENTRY listeners are to hear, between 8.30 and 9.0 p.m., a concert of Portuguese music relayed from Brussels. This concert, which the Portuguese Minister at Brussels is arranging, will be broadcast by Radio Belgique, Brussels, but will come to Savoy Hill via land-lines. Those who recall the success of the Menin Gate broadcast and the recent visits paid by London and Daventry to the Kursaal at Ostend will have some idea of the technical excellence which is hoped for on this occasion.

Miss Irene Scharrer, one of our leading British pianists, is to give a farewell recital from London and Daventry between 10.35 and 11.0 p.m. on Friday, October 14, prior to her departure for a tour of the United States.

THE second of the new Season of B.B.C. National Concerts will be held at the People's Palace, Mile End Road, on Friday, October 14, when Mr. Percy Pitt will conduct a programme of works by Wagner. This concert is to be broadcast from LONDON and DAVENTRY and other Stations. The orchestral items will include Forest Murmurs from Siegfried, the Good Friday Music from Parsifal and the Prelude and Liebestod from Tristan and Isolde. Mr. Pitt, who has done much fine work for music, and for opera in particular, is Musical Director of the B.B.C. The soloists who will assist him on October 14 are Miriam Licette, whom listeners recently heard in the name-part in Puccini's Madame Butterfly, and Walter Widdop, who was accorded such a favourable reception by the Press for his singing of Wagner during the Promenade Season. The National Concerts this year are to be divided between the Queen's Hall and the People's Palace.

Mr. PERCY PITT.

FENCING to-day has ceased to play any important part in our lives. It is the exclusive sport of a few enthusiasts whose matches and tournaments arouse little more interest than a few lines in the newspapers. But on the Continent, where the eighteenth-century appeal to weapons in affairs of honour still survives, the art of swordsmanship flourishes, and there are men living today who have risen at the grey uncomfortable hour of dawn to face an adversary in the Bois de Boulogne or some other traditional rendezvous. Such is Monsieur J. Joseph-Renaud, the French novelist, author of many popular detective-stories and, until recently, world's champion with the épée. His talk on 'Duels I have fought' will be broadcast at 9.15 p.m. on Wednesday, October 19. Listeners who recall the thrill of the duel with swords as described by writers like Dumas and Sabatini should make a point of listening to Monsieur Joseph-Renaud.

The talk from the London Studio at 9.20 p.m. on Thursday, October 13, will be given by Mr. Cecil Lewis. This talk, one of the 'Men and Cities' series, will deal with 'Old Rothenburg.'

THREE prominent figures in contemporary literature are shortly to come to the microphone—Aino Kallas, George Bernard Shaw and G. K. Chesterton. Mme. Kallas, who is the wife of the Estonian Minister at the Court of St. James, and writes in both English and her own language, has made a name for herself by two recent novels, The White Ship and Eros the Slayer. She will give, at 9.15 p.m. on Wednesday, October 26, the first talk in the series 'Ourselves as Others See Us'—and she has had plenty of opportunity of observing the English 'in their natural surroundings.'

Madame KALLAS.

Mr. Shaw and Mr. Chesterton are to be the protagonists in a debate which is to be broadcast on Friday, October 28. Their subject on this occasion will be 'Do we agree?' and the discussion of it will reveal to listeners the 'philosophies of life' of two of the most virile and unconventional thinkers of our time.

The weekly household talk from the London Studio will be given at 3.0 p.m. on Monday, October 10, by Mrs. Cottington Taylor. Her subject is, 'Ice and Refrigerators.'

THE chief sensation of the Rugby football season this year has been the Waratahs, the New South Wales team, which, under the leadership of A. C. Wallace, the former Oxford and Scotland three-quarter, and with the support of A. T. Lawton, the famous Dark-Blue stand-off half, has been threatening to repeat the triumphs of the Springboks and the All Blacks. On Saturday, October 22, they will meet at Twickenham a composite side drawn from the London Clubs, and a very fine game should be the result. A running commentary on this match will be for sport lovers a popular item of the month's programmes, and another will come on Saturday, October 15, when the meeting of the Arsenal and Leicester City will similarly be broadcast from the Highbury ground.

THE fifty-fifth birthday of one of the greatest of living English composers will be celebrated on Wednesday, October 12, when LONDON and DAVENTRY are to broadcast a programme of music by Dr. Ralph Vaughan Williams. This programme, which will be given by the Wireless Singers and the Wireless Orchestra, will show Dr. Vaughan Williams in his lighter mood. It will not contain such sombre and magnificent works as The Sea Symphony and Towards an Unknown Region (which was recently broadcast from these stations), but will dwell rather upon that side of his work which reflects the spirit of the folk music he loves so well. The Orchestra will play the Suite from the incidental music to The Wasps and the Folk Song Suite, and the Singers contribute, among other items, the Composer's famous Five Folk Songs for Unaccompanied Chorus. This programme will be an important one for those who like English music at its best, for Dr. Vaughan Williams is a composer whose work represents our country at most of the great Continental music festivals.

Sir Arthur Salter is to give a talk, under the auspices of the League of Nations Union, at 7.0 p.m. on Wednesday, October 12, entitled 'Are we getting richer or poorer?'

THE recent broadcasts of The Liars brought Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, one of our leading dramatists, within the circle of radio playwrights—and now comes the news that at 10.30 p.m. on Thursday, October 20, DAVENTRY EXPERIMENTAL listeners are to hear a new and unacted play by Mr. Jones, entitled Her Tongue. This witty comedy concerns a woman whose tongue is her worst enemy and finally loses her the man she hopes to marry. Those who heard The Liars and recall Michael and his Lost Angel, Mrs. Dane's Defence, and The Lie, will wish to make a note of the date of this radio 'first night.'

At 7.0 p.m. on Thursday, October 13, Mr. Francis Toye, Musical Editor of 'The Morning Post,' will begin his series of fortnightly criticisms of 'Music in the Theatre.'

PROBABLY no name in modern French music is as well known to the Ordinary Listener (the capitals are Sir Walford Davies's, and lend a particular significance to the term) as that of Claude Debussy. The imaginative delicacy of such works as The Cathedral under the Sea and Gardens in the Rain has an instructive appeal for the listener who seeks poetry in music. On Thursday, October 13, BOURNEMOUTH listeners are to have a Debussy Concert, to include a number of the master's works both for orchestra and solo pianoforte. The pianist on this occasion is to be Elsa

Miss JOAN ELWES.

Karen. On Monday, October 10, Joan Elwes and Wateyn Wateyns are taking part in a Programme of British Music, including works by Elgar, German and Coleridge-Taylor.

II. BIG BEN.

TIME for the Time Signal,
 Speak, Big Ben!
 Boom out the time
 To children and men,
 Over Great Britain's
 Listening Isles
 Send your voice ringing
 For miles upon miles.
 Children that listen
 Will turn into men
 Ere you cease telling the
 Time, Big Ben.
 Men that now hear you
 Tell the time plain,
 Ere you are dumb will be
 Children again.
 Britain is listening.
 Wondering, When?
 Time for the Time Signal—
 Speak, Big Ben!

A Treasure Island Competition.

ARRANGING Children's Hour programmes is always great fun, but it means a good deal of brain-racking to find new ideas. In nothing is this more the case than in the matter of competitions. These have to be of such a kind that children of almost any age have a reasonable chance; they must not be a bit like a school exam. paper—that wouldn't be 'cricket' in the Children's Hour, and our post-bag would probably burst under the weight of the protests from indignant listeners. Unfinished stories; verse with missing words at the ends of lines; stories with the hidden names of birds and beasts and trees; musical competitions of various sorts—all these and other ideas have been used and will be used again in due time.

The latest competition set for London and Daventry listeners was suggested by a wildly improbable 'yarn' spun by a retired pirate who found his way into a programme unexpectedly. It took the form of a map of a Treasure Island, and the results are surprisingly good. There are skulls and crossbones in overwhelming abundance, and enough 'Jolly Rogers' to make bunting for all London. The clues to the hiding-places are highly ingenious also, and the names of the capes and bays and hills are too wonderful for words. Those who entered for the competition are to be heartily congratulated, for of all the entries hardly one is not a good effort. One typical example is given here, and only lack of space prevents the insertion of several others.

'Auntie Geraldine' of 2LO.

After nearly two years of work in the London and Daventry Children's Hour, 'Auntie Geraldine' left the service of the B.B.C. on August 27, in order to be married. She carries away with her the most cordial wishes for happiness from her colleagues at Savoy Hill and from a host of listeners to whom her evident love of the work endeared her.

NEWS FOR THE CHILDREN.

More Radio Circle Activities.

Quite recently an appeal was made in the London and Daventry Children's Hour for money gifts to the Royal Westminster Eye Hospital. The answer to the appeal was prompt and ungrudging, and the result of it was no less than £150. As a matter of fact, contributions are still coming in, the last one being a cheque for £5, collected in sums ranging from 5s. to a penny, according to the list which accompanied the cheque.

It is good that Radio Circle members should devise their own ways of contributing to Radio Circle activities, and this is being done in many cases. Here are a few examples:—

G. O. has recently sent in 4s. the result of collecting new pennies.

J. W. has sent in 48 farthings.

J. L. has just sent in 5s. worth of farthings, collected from all sources.

K. H. is making and selling woollen button-holes, and the proceeds are paid into the fund periodically.

K. W. is doing the same with lavender bags.

J. W. makes and sells toffee and contributes the proceeds.

M. S. makes sweets and sends in 10s. every week or two as the result of her efforts.

J. and B. C. recently sent in 7s. 2d., the proceeds of selling flowers grown in their own garden.

G. N. produces (with infinite and careful work) a Quarterly Magazine with a wireless bias, which she circulates privately for a small reading fee, sending up every few months a contribution of something over a sovereign.

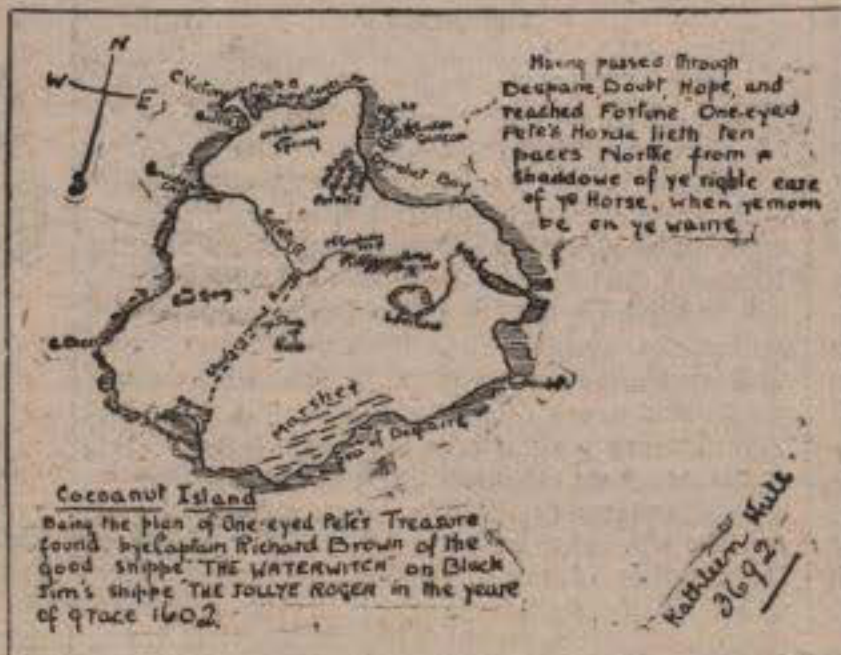

B. H. and her family organized a Fête and sold all kinds of articles which they had made and collected, with the result that £3 8s. 4d. went into the Radio Circle Fund.

P. S. got up a play and contributed £3 5s.

C. E. collects silver paper from little native boys of South Africa.

These are only some of the plans which are being devised by Radio Circle members themselves, but it sets an example which many others will doubtless follow.

A considerable number of Children's Hour listeners collect silver paper, and in the first eight months of this year the amount paid into the Children's Hospital Wireless Fund from this source alone was over £100. These efforts may be small, but they are in every way praiseworthy, and collectively they are a very important thing indeed.

The University of the Air.

And the Chance for Study which it Offers. By the Rt. Hon. Charles Trevelyan, M.P.

BROADCASTING is feeling its way to great possibilities. The impressive programme of Talks and Lectures prepared by the B.B.C. for the autumn lies before me. It has a great range—Languages, Geology, Music, Astronomy, the Child Mind, History, the Preservation of Rural England, Electrical Engineering are only some of the subjects to be dealt with by obviously and notably competent lecturers. The aspiration is to provide some response to the craving for self-improvement which is so widespread today. The mass of our people leave school at fourteen years of age. Though opinion and public policy are steadily tending towards raising the school leaving age, and though higher education of all kinds is rapidly expanding, it will be many a long day before we can say that all our people have their proper chance of education. While multitudes never know what they have had to miss, there are great numbers who sooner or later grasp at any chance to get learning in later years. If we could only have our provision of adult education widespread enough and efficient, we could counteract much of the loss of capacity through a too-early resort to industry. People's minds do not cease to be receptive with maturity. The young man or woman with the passionate and unslaked thirst for knowledge at twenty-one may be a far more rapid and acquisitive student than many who have been at school and college through their teens. Industry may and does dull the souls and harden the spirit of many men. To others, it gives experience and understanding which can make them better learners than the student.

What, then, can Broadcasting do for Adult Education? The answer is not easy as I look at this admirable list of famous names and subjects. Certainly one thing will be accomplished. Scores of thousands of people will have a chance of a new superficial interest in many subjects. The facile possibility of constantly hearing the voices of the best men on their own subjects is going to create a desire to know and listen. But how deep is the desire going to go? It is better to have a curious people than a stolid and stockish one. But I am not altogether satisfied with the inordinate thirst for lectures on any and every subject for which the Americans are famous today. A little knowledge is not a dangerous thing as compared with ignorance and indifference. But the echoing of opinions or the citing of a few facts acquired without effort or relation to deeper knowledge is not education. The learner has got to participate in the effort to be educated. To listen to a first-class lecture is better than to pore over Tit-Bits. To take notes of a lecture is better than merely listening to it as a soothing amusement. But to use the lecture as the

be used by their unseen audiences. It is immaterial that many thousands should listen as a relaxation to the lecturers, if there are some hundreds who are intending to pass on from what they hear to real study.

How is this to become the practical result of these excellent series of lectures? Of all the more recently-developed forms of adult education the most fruitful has been the classes and Study Circles organized by the Workers' Education Association (W.E.A.). These limited groups of adult students not only listen to University lecturers who come down to their towns and villages, but discuss the lectures afterwards and write essays for their lecturer to criticize. They read largely on their own account. The supreme value of the system is the personal advice and presence of the lecturer, acting as guide to more extensive study.

In the case of the B.B.C. lecturer this personal contact is obviously impossible. Contact by correspondence is at least doubtfully effective. Nor do I suppose that many of the B.B.C. lecturers would have the time to give to the answering of extensive questionings by letter. The organization of their further study must therefore depend largely on those who are listening. There might be a systematic organization of groups in different localities who would meet after the lectures and discuss them, both with a view to elucidating debatable points and to deciding how to continue the study of the subject by books. A well-educated leader in a locality, with the help and stimulus of the national lecturer, might make great progress with a group of twenty young people who were, for instance, keen to use Sir Oliver Lodge's lectures as an introduction to a sound knowledge of Astronomy.

It might be a great advantage if the organizers of the B.B.C. would get into touch with the W.E.A. and kindred organizations with a view to developing some effective system. Broadcasting may be destined to play a very important part in Adult Education; but, if so, it must make part at least of its aim something more than satisfying the interest and curiosity of probably the most vocal part of its listening clientele. The students, the real searchers after knowledge, are always likely to be unobtrusive and will never be numerous among the great community of listeners; but they are the most important, and the B.B.C. will perform a high service to the nation if it can find the machinery for a new system of study stimulated from a national centre.

jumping-off point for self-study of some great subject is a real form of education.

Twenty minutes is clearly an overshoot time for the most experienced lecturer to make an impression on his subject. He can excite interest, he can point to sources of expanded information, he can recommend books, he can suggest subjects for discussion. The problem that interests me is how the talks initiated by the B.B.C. are going to

The pleasures of Foreign Travel are multiplied tenfold when you have learnt, by the New Pelman Method, to speak the language of the country.

HOW EVERYONE CAN LEARN A FOREIGN LANGUAGE.

PELMAN INSTITUTE'S AMAZING DISCOVERY.

Can you read Spanish ?
No.
Do you know any German ?
No.
Here are two books, one printed in Spanish, the other in German.
Yes.
Can you read them ?
Of course not.
Well, try and see.
An Hour later.
Miraculous ! I can read and understand every word.

THE above conversation is typical of the experiences of the thousands of men and women who are now learning French, German, Spanish, and Italian by the New Pelman Method.

A Business Man, for example, visits the Languages Department of the famous Pelman Institute. He is a very poor linguist. He knows a little French, but not much. He doesn't know a single word of Spanish, German or Italian. Yet, when handed a book printed entirely in Spanish and another printed in German (neither containing a word of English), he is able to read them through correctly and to understand every word.

Needless to say, such a visitor is immensely impressed and at once enrolls for the Pelman Course in the particular language in which he is interested.

Still more numerous are those who write to the Institute for particulars of the method and receive in return a free first lesson in Italian, Spanish, German or French. There are no English words in this lesson, yet to their surprise they are able to read it through without a mistake. They, too, decide to enrol and soon become enthusiastic admirers and advocates of the New Pelman Method.

Revolutionising Language Teaching.

This method is revolutionising the teaching of Foreign Languages.

It enables you to learn French in French, German in German, Italian in Italian, and Spanish in Spanish, thus avoiding all translation from one language into another.

It enables you to think in the particular language you are learning.

It enables you to learn a Foreign Language without spending months in a preliminary struggle with a mass of dull and difficult grammatical rules and exceptions. It introduces you to the language itself right away and you pick up the grammar almost unconsciously as you go along.

It enables you to dispense with the labour of memorising by heart (parrot-fashion) long vocabularies of foreign words. By this method you learn the words you need by actually using them so that they stay in your mind without effort.

Reading Foreign Literature.

It enables you to write and converse in a Foreign tongue, to read Foreign newspapers and magazines, and to enjoy the masterpieces of French, German, Italian and Spanish literature, many of which have never been translated and all of which (especially in the case of Poetry) lose much of their charm in an English version.

There are no classes to attend. The new method enables you to learn a Foreign Language in your spare time, and in from one-third to one-half the usual time.

General Sir Aylmer Haldane, G.C.M.G., K.C.B., D.S.O., writes :—

"The Pelman method is the best way of learning French without a teacher."

And others write in the same strain of the Pelman Courses in German, Italian and Spanish. Here are a few typical examples of letters received from readers who have adopted this new method :—

"It would have taken me as many years to learn by any ordinary method as much (French) as I have learnt in months by yours." (P. 145.)

"I have obtained a remunerative post in the City, solely on the merits of my Italian. I was absolutely ignorant of the language before I began your course eight months ago." (IF. 121.)

"I have recently returned from Spain, where I have been doing Consular work. With only the knowledge of Spanish gained from your Course I was able within a month to tackle any sort of correspondence and conversation." (SC. 279.)

"Your system of learning German cannot be beaten." (GC. 112.)

"I have started the Course (Spanish) and find it the best and most interesting I have ever tried." (S.P. 106.)

"It is a wonderful system you have for teaching languages. So extremely interesting, and the old-fashioned rules and regulations eliminated! I have learnt more (Italian) in these few short weeks than I ever learnt of French (by the old System) in several years. It is perfectly splendid and I have very much enjoyed the Course." (LL. 108.)

"Your system of teaching French is the best that I have yet encountered. According to the old custom of translation I used to memorise pages of vocabulary which proved to be of no practical use; but under your system the words seem to be indelibly written in my mind, and I am able to recall them at any time without the slightest effort, using them intelligently in question or answer." (R. 256.)

"I should like to offer you my heartiest congratulations. The way in which it has been planned and (above all) the admirable judgment which is apparent in the progressive introduction of new matter has impressed me more than anything of the kind I have met before, either in teaching languages or any other subject. It almost brought tears to my eyes to think what I might have saved myself when I first learnt German, if only I had had your method." (G.W. 196.)

"I have just returned from a visit to Spain, never having previously heard Spanish spoken. It says much for the perfection of your Guide to Pronunciation that I have not had to alter my ideas on Pronunciation in any particular, finding everything spoken just as I had imagined. My accent was also praised, in one case by a lawyer, who should be qualified to judge, and who impressed on me that he was not flattering me." (S.W. 372.)

In fact, everyone who has followed it is delighted with the ease, simplicity, interesting nature, and masterly character of the New Pelman Method.

- SAMSON was composed immediately after Messiah, and in about the same length of time as sufficed for that work—three weeks.

Some of the words Handel used are not of high poetic value, but a good deal of the libretto is of finer quality, being taken from Milton's Samson Agonistes.

There is a pathetic story of Handel in his old age, at a performance of this Oratorio, weeping as he listened to the air 'Total eclipse,' in which Samson laments his loss of sight—for Handel himself had then become blind.

The work is divided into three parts.

PART ONE

We find Samson, blinded and made captive by the Philistines, standing before his prison in Gaza. A feast day of the god Dagon is being celebrated, and the Priests of the temple hymn their deity.

Samson's father, Manoah, his friend Micah, and other Israelites come to visit him, and to condole with him. Samson acknowledges his punishment just, but is sure that Dagon, vaunting himself against God, will be overthrown, and in a fine Air, he prays the God of Israel to raise the tempest of His wrath. He feels his life is almost ended, and his friends remind him of the joys to be his in another world.

PART TWO

The same scene, and the same moods, prevail as at the opening of the work. Samson, Micah, and their Israelitish friends call on God to have mercy on the fallen hero.

Now Dalila (here, it is to be remembered, figuring as Samson's wife) appears, with a train of Virgins as Chorus, and pretends to be penitent. Samson scorns her, she hotly retorts, and so they part.

The Philistine giant, Harapha, approaches, and boasts how he would have crushed Samson if they had met while yet the Israelite had his sight; but now, of course, 'honour and arms scorn such a foe.' They sing, in a fine duet, their mutual defiance, and then Micah proposes that the giant shall call upon Dagon to 'dissolve those magic spells that gave our hero strength.' The Israelite and the Philistines, in mingling but opposing chorus, sing of the might of their respective gods.

PART THREE

Harapha comes to bid Samson to a festival in honour of Dagon, at which he is desired to exhibit his strength. Samson refuses, but Micah counsels him that it would be wise to go. The Israelites pray God to protect their champion, and Samson departs.

Manoah comes to tell the friends of his hope of obtaining Samson's freedom, and sings the pathetic air 'How willing my paternal love, The weight to share of filial care. . . . While I have eyes, he wants no light.'

A terrible noise is heard, and the voices of the Philistines, raised in terror. An Israelitish Messenger tells the tidings—how Samson has pulled down the temple, himself perishing in the ruins. The Israelites lament their hero's end, and, while a Dead March is played, his body is brought in. The funeral rites are celebrated, and Manoah pronounces the hero's epitaph—'Samson like Samson fell, Both life and death heroic.'

The Oratorio ends with an ascription of praise to God, the Ruler of all things.

8.55 THE WEEK'S GOOD CAUSE: Appeal on behalf of the Royal Victoria and West Hants Hospital, by His Worship the Mayor of Bournemouth, Alderman H. J. THWAITES.

ON October 10 the Prince of Wales will officially open the new large Sunshine Wards at the Boscombe Branch of the Royal Victoria and West Hants Hospital. These Wards fulfil a great need for hospital accommodation in this rapidly growing town, but even now the Hospital is too small. It cannot receive all the in-patients or out-patients who apply, and at present it has only one block of operating rooms.

Contributions should be sent to the Hon. Treasurer (Mr. A. Godwin Pratt, J.P.), The Royal Victoria and West Hants Hospital, Boscombe, marked—'Wireless Fund.'

THE BRITISH TRIO: ARTHUR CATTERALL (Violin), CLYDE TWELVETREES (Cello), JOHN WILLS (Pianoforte)

Trio in E Flat Beethoven

THE fourth of Beethoven's Trios for Piano, Violin and Cello was written in the country, the same summer (1808) in which he finished his great Fifth Symphony, the Pastoral Symphony, and the Choral Fantasia. He was thirty-seven years old, and his virile forcefulness and high spirits were at their best. He had attained full mastery of expression, and the music he was then writing has tremendous directness.

The Trio is in four Movements, the first of which is preceded by a brief, rather slow Introduction.

TRIO
 'Dumky' Trio Dvorak

THROUGHOUT almost all Dvorak's works we feel the presence of the national element—of the Bohemian folk-songs and folk-dances that he heard in the village alehouse or on the village green.

A Dumka is a piece of a passionate, elegiac character, and the word Dumky is the plural form. Dvorak's Dumky Trio, for Piano, Violin and Cello, consists of a succession of brief Movements which have in common a passionate emotion.

3.0 Great Stories, told by J. C. STOBART and MARY SOMERVILLE—II, 'Eros and Psyche'

EROS (known to the Romans as Cupid) was the god of love, and Psyche typified the human soul.

7.0 Mr. T. H. BAXTER, 'Filming through Africa'

DESPITE the inroads of civilization, Africa and its peoples still retain many age-old customs and ways of life. Mr. Baxter, the Secretary of the Missionary Film Committee, who was responsible for that very interesting film, 'India Today,' has recently returned from a journey, with a well-known camera-man, from the Cape to Kenya, 'shooting' the real life of the real African. The best of the films that he secured, often under trying and even dangerous conditions, will be shown in London at the end of the month.

7.0 (Davenport only) Prof. W. M. THORNTON, 'The Swan Memorial Lecture.' S.B. from Newcastle

THIS lecture is in memory of Sir Joseph Swan, the great English physicist and electrician, who died in 1914. Born in Sunderland nearly a century ago, Swan was a partner in a Newcastle firm of manufacturing chemists, and it was for them that he invented a process of photographic printing that is the foundation of methods in use today; whilst in the invention of electric lamps he forestalled Edison. He gave the first public exhibition of electric lighting on a large scale at Newcastle in 1880. Professor Thornton holds the chair of Electrical Engineering at Armstrong College, and is a Vice-President of the Institution of Electrical Engineers.

THIS is the second of the talks in which Professor Swinnerton, the geologist and palaeontologist, will describe the evidence for evolution that is offered by the record of the rocks and fossils. Last time he described principally the way in which the expert can read the story of the rocks, and this evening he will indicate how the fossils found in them tell their tale to the geologist.

Die Soldatenbraut (The Soldier's Bride).....Schumann

Vor dem Fenster (By the Window) ... Brahms
Der Jaeger (The Huntsman)...

DIE SOLDATENBRAUT is the meditation of a soldier's bride, who wishes the King could know how brave her man is, and how good to her. If only she could have him to herself!

Die Lotosblume is one of the song cycle entitled Myrtes which the composer wrote as an offering to his betrothed, Clara Wieck. The lotus flower is weary of the sunlight, and longs for the night. She loves the moonlight, and to it unveils her beauty. Thus blooming, she trembles with the fervour of love and love's pains.

In Schubert's song the fisherman gaily sings of his life, than which he could wish none better. On the quay he spies a maiden, angling in vain. 'You may as well give up your artful pranks, sly creature, you won't deceive the fish!'

Vor dem Fenster is one of the many folk-songs that Brahms arranged. The young man determines to go a-wooing, and sings beneath his maiden's window. She is afraid her parents will hear. He cares naught for that, so long as he can be near her. The parting makes him sad, but it must be, for the watchman approaches, blowing his horn.

Der Jaeger is a bold fellow—a huntsman who never misses his aim, and who has a great way with the girls. He knows all the woodland trails; but, muses one maiden, 'his path to me must be through the church door.'

8.0-8.30 (Davenport only) Mr. G. E. WILKINSON, 'Adventure in Literature—II, The Buccaneer'

IN this, the second of his series of talks on the literature of adventure, Mr. Wilkinson will take as his subject those buccaneers who were the terror of the Spanish Main in their own time, and have been the delight of boyhood ever since.

ACT I

THE scene is the courtyard of an inn at Amiens in 1821. Guillot de Morfontaine, Minister of Finance (Bass) and de Brétigny, a nobleman (Baritone) have just arrived. Leseaut, of the Royal Guard (Baritone) comes up in a coach. He is awaiting Manon, his cousin (Soprano), whom he is to take to a convent school.
She soon arrives, and Guillot approaches her and hints that he would like to make her further acquaintance. After a little, the Chevalier des Grioux (Tenor) enters. He instantly falls in love with Manon, and they run away to Paris in Guillot's coach.

ACT II

The scene is the new home of des Grioux and Manon, in Paris. He writes to his father, asking that he may marry Manon.

Leseaut and de Brétigny enter, the latter disguised as a soldier. Leseaut asks if des Grioux will marry Manon, and the young man shows the letter he has just written. De Brétigny privately tells Manon that her lover's father is shocked at his son's conduct, and intends to have him waylaid and taken away.

He also tells her that she can have a far finer home than this, if she wishes. After the two visitors have gone there is a noise outside. It is made by the men who have been sent to abduct Manon's lover. The love of pleasure prevails, and she says nothing to warn him. Des Grioux goes out, is seized and carried off.

ACT III

Scene 1 is a pleasure park on a fête day.
Manon is walking with her new lover, Brétigny.

The old Count des Grioux (Bass), father of her former lover, enters and tells Brétigny that his son is about to take holy orders. Manon decides to go to him.

Scene 2 is the Parlour of the Seminary of St.
Sulpice. The elder des Grioux tries unsuccessfully to dissuade his son from becoming a priest.
But Manon wins him from his purpose.

ACT IV

A gambling house in Paris. Manon and des Grioux enter, and Manon, who is in need of money, encourages her lover to play for high stakes.
He does so, and wins much money from Guillot.
After a while, the chagrined loser accuses des Grioux of cheating, and summons the police, who arrest the lovers.

ACT V

The scene is the road to Havre. Des Grioux has been tried, with Manon, and freed, but she has been condemned to exile. Des Grioux sadly awaits, with Leseaut, the coming of the prisoners, on their way to the port of embarkation. They enter, Manon among them. The guards, bribed, allow the exhausted girl to remain behind whilst the others are urged on their way. She utters her farewell to her lover, and dies in his arms.

play a note!

If in six short months you could add pianoforte playing to your accomplishments what new joys would be opened up! Yet this is a common achievement through the "From Brain to Keyboard" System of Piano tuition.
It is a fascinating, inexpensive system that eliminates the out-of-date methods of scales, arpeggios, and heart-breaking 'practice.'

Decide now, that before another Summer comes,
you will be able to express your love of music, to charm your friends, and ensure the lifelong pleasure that piano-mastery brings.

AS THE EVENINGS DRAW IN

As the evenings draw in reception from the many Continental broadcasting stations increases in power, and the disturbing voice of atmospherics is hushed.

At this time such stations as Radio Belge, Langenberg, Nuremberg, Radio Paris, Hilversum, etc., are heard with pleasing volume against a quiet background.

Every listener should provide himself with the current issue of World Radio, the official programme paper for the principal European stations. Unless the listener is so provided he may miss some of the gems of music which are nightly broadcast from many parts of Europe.

Order World Radio to be delivered regularly in future.

Any would-be bird-lover whose clumsy and inexpert advances have hitherto been repulsed, may find some good advice in this talk by a writer who is becoming as well known as a naturalist as he has long been as a war-correspondent.

This evening the subject discussed will be one of great interest to many parents, and—in these days of youthful precocity—to quite a lot of adolescents; how far it is possible to seek the aid of science as a guide in that ever-recurring difficulty, the choice of a career.

9.15 Sir CHARLES HOLMES: 'The Gainsborough Centenary'

GAINSBOROUGH, who was born in Suffolk, lived in Ipswich from the time of his marriage, in 1746, until his removal, in 1760, to Bath; and the Suffolk country has left an ineradicable impression on his landscape work. Ipswich is, therefore, celebrating the bi-centenary of his birth with a special exhibition, organized by the Town Council, which will include not only a very fine loan collection of Gainsborough's own work, but examples of the masters whom he influenced and those who influenced him. This exhibition, which will be opened by Prince Henry on Friday of this week, will be the subject of this talk by Sir Charles Holmes, the Director of the National Gallery, tonight.

ACT I. The Cheese Market at Arndyk. On the Borders of the Zuyder Zee.

ACT II. The interior of the Liqueur Distillery, Amsterdam.

THE story opens in the Cheese Market at Arndyk, on the occasion of the birthday of the Squire, Mr. Hook, of Hook's Distillery, Amsterdam.

Mr. Hook, however, loses the secret recipe of 'Cream of the Sky,' the liqueur invented by his daughter, Sally, which had brought fame and prosperity to the Distillery. The loss puts a blight on the romantic hopes of Sally and Lieut. Van Vuyt, the young bandmaster. Van Vuyt's senior officer, Capt. Paap, is also in love with Sally, but his suit meets with little favour.

The loss of the recipe, however, brings him hope. It is found by a loafer, Slinks, and he sells it to Paap at a good price.

Meanwhile, all is ready for the great celebrations at the Distillery. Van Vuyt is forbidden to go to Amsterdam by Paap, but 'persuades' Slinks to sell him his job in the Distillery, and so we find him there in time for the rejoicings.

Capt. Paap, not wishing to court arrest, decides to return the recipe by means of a deputy and selects Van Vuyt, believing him to be one of the workmen. Van Vuyt hands it to Mr. Hook, who accuses him of stealing it and orders his arrest, but Sally intervenes with a much better plan.

8.0 A SYMPHONY CONCERT
S.B. from Glasgow
THE STATION SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
 Conducted by Sir HENRY WOOD
 HERBERT WALTON (Organist)

Suite for Orchestra and Organ Purcell
 A London Symphony Vaughan Williams

IN a programme note to the revised version of the Symphony (brought out in 1920, six years after the actual first performance), Vaughan Williams said:—

'A better title would perhaps be "Symphony by a Londoner," that is to say, the life of London (including possibly its various sights and sounds) has suggested to the composer an attempt at musical expression; but it would be no help to the hearer to describe these in words. The music is intended to be self-impressive, and must stand or fall as "absolute" music. Therefore, if listeners recognize suggestions of such things as the Westminster Chimes or the Lavender Cry, they are asked to consider these as accidents, not essentials of the music.'

There are four Movements in the Symphony. The FIRST MOVEMENT opens with a Slow Introduction, gradually emerging from a haze. After a faint echo of the Westminster Chimes, we are plunged into the Movement proper. The SECOND MOVEMENT is slow and meditative, almost mystical. The THIRD MOVEMENT is called a 'Scherzo.' Vaughan Williams has added the word 'Nocturne' to his title, and has said: 'If the hearer will imagine himself standing on Westminster Embankment at night, surrounded by the distant noises of the Strand, with its great hotels on one side and the "New Cut" on the other, with its crowded streets and flaring lights, it may serve as a mood in which to listen to this Movement.'

The FOURTH MOVEMENT is very forceful, dramatic, and intense. Its chief Tune bears the direction, 'Majestic, in the manner of a March (quasi slow).'

Towards the end, when the Westminster Chimes have again been suggested, fainter than ever, we pass into an Epilogue, based on the opening of the whole Symphony. This dies away into silence.

9.0 Reading by ALAN HOWLAND

THE STATION SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA
 First Dance Rhapsody Delius

THE First Dance Rhapsody was brought out at the Hereford Festival of 1909. It is written for a large Orchestra, including the rarely-heard Heckelphone (an improved Bass Oboe). At the outset a short Introduction brings forth some of the tunes to be worked upon. Two of these appear successively on Oboe and Flute. In the next section the time quickens considerably, and a new tune is given out, low down. Violins, in octaves, have another. After a climax a slow section ensues, in which a Solo Violin has a beautiful version of the first Tune, accompanied only by Strings. The last clear division is that in which the very lively pace is resumed. The ending is loud and most energetic.

RAYA GARBOUSOVA (Cello) and ORCHESTRA
 Variations on a Rocco Theme Tchaikovsky

ORCHESTRA
 Song of the Rhine Daughters ('The Dusk of the Gods') Wagner
 Andante from First Cassation Mozart

7.0 Mrs. MARY AGNES HAMILTON: 'New Novels'

THE fortnightly talks by Mr. Desmond McCarthy, the B.B.C.'s literary critic, have proved so popular that it has been decided to extend the time given to notices of books. Mr. McCarthy, in his talks, has no time to deal adequately with new novels, so in future Mrs. Mary Agnes Hamilton (who is equally well known as a novelist and as an economist, in which latter capacity she was a member of the Balfour Committee on British Trade and Industry) will relieve him of this part of the task. Fiction-friends should now postpone the composition of their library lists until they have heard her review.

SIR J. M. BARRIE

MR. A. G. GARDINER.

The creator of Peter Pan, the only contribution to popular mythology ever made by a living writer—the author of 'Sentimental Tommy,' 'A Kiss for Cinderella,' and 'The Little Minister'—Sir J. M. Barrie is one of the baffling and elusive personalities in the world of letters. He knows all about his fellow creatures, which you can see from the almost uncanny insight that his work displays; and they know all too little about him. He is, therefore, an ideal subject for the first of Mr. A. G. Gardiner's new series of character studies, of which he will broadcast the first tonight.

Since then he has become equally well known as a writer on many subjects under his own name and under his pseudonym, 'Alpha of the Plough.' In this series of talks he will return to his earliest métier and give character-studies of some of the people most prominently and permanently in the public eye.

THE CITY OF BIRMINGHAM ORCHESTRA

JELLY D'ARANYI (Violin)

ORCHESTRA
Overture to 'Euryanthe' Weber
Rhapsody, 'A Shropshire Lad' Butterworth

SOME of the loveliest music of this century was left us by George Butterworth, who (like many young English composers) was killed in action in France, in August, 1916. His music tells plainly that he had deep within him the rapture and tranquillity of the English countryside.

Unfortunately, the music he left us is as slight in bulk as it is choice. Two song-cycles and this orchestral Rhapsody are founded on A. E. Housman's poem-cycle, 'A Shropshire Lad'. The song-cycles are, of course, settings of certain of the poems, while the Rhapsody is a sort of epilogue to the song-cycles—a reverie, perhaps, on the whole of 'A Shropshire Lad.'

JELLY D'ARANYI and Orchestra
Third Violin Concerto, in G Mozart

8.20 app. Interval, during which MARGARET MADELEY will Recite from the Studio

Fifth Symphony Sibelius

SIBELIUS' symphonies are not very often played here, and the opportunity of hearing one is very welcome. This Fifth Symphony was first performed in 1915, at a concert given at Helsingfors to celebrate the composer's fiftieth birthday.

The Fifth Symphony has four Movements, but the first two are linked together, the opening Movement being in rather slow time, the Second moving at a brisk pace.

In the FIRST MOVEMENT several brief ideas play their part in the scheme.

The quick SECOND MOVEMENT comes unexpectedly, without a break. It begins with a theme played high up in thirds, by Woodwind, the Strings jumping about below. Soon the Trumpet has a brisk tune, accompanied by the kettledrum. This is taken up and treated by other instruments. The Movement ends with a very lively climax. Now there is a break before the THIRD MOVEMENT. This takes a little rhythmic idea of five notes and works it up by melodic variation and quiet discussion. In the middle the Brass has new matter, and then the original rhythmic basis is re-established, and all ends calmly.

The LAST MOVEMENT has for its first idea a Viola tune which is heard against a background of trembling string tone. The Horns and Strings have the loud, swinging second tune. This, and other matter, is fully dealt with, and there is a great climax.

A Schoolgirl's Outfit.

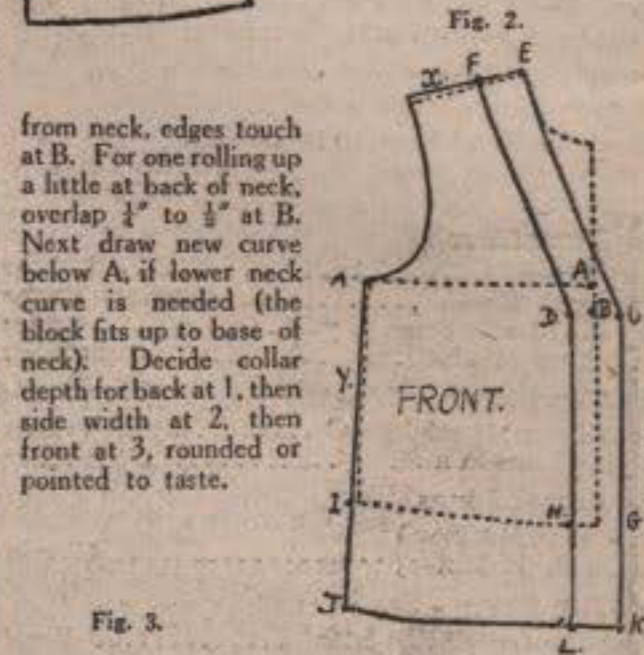

The second of this new series of talks on dressmaking will be given at 3.45 today by Miss E. R. Hambridge.

A complete set of paper patterns for use in conjunction with the series can be obtained by sending 9d. in stamps to the B.B.C., together with the coupon on page 599.

The drawings below will all be used to illustrate points in today's talk, especially Figs. 2 and 3. To save space, comments are now made, in note form, on Figs. 1 and 4 mainly.

To cut COLLAR patterns (see Fig. 1), lay paper behind front and back blocks. Make shoulder corners at C touch, always. For a collar full at lower edge, leave, at B, 2" space. For one falling flat from neck, edges touch at B. For one rolling up a little at back of neck, overlap 1/2" to 1" at B. Next draw new curve below A, if lower neck curve is needed (the block fits up to base of neck). Decide collar depth for back at 1, then side width at 2, then front at 3, rounded or pointed to taste.

In COAT (Fig. 2), A to B, B to C, B to D are each 1", hence D to C is 2". E to F is 1 1/2", G to K is as liked. Edges x and y are 1/2" beyond block (which is shown by dotted lines). For back facing (Fig. 3), E to F is same as front. Use paper with fold at N O.

To cut COAT SLEEVE pattern, with dart, from "Bishop" pattern, see Fig. 4. Add 2" from A to B, and A to C (in place of cuff). Halve E to B, and draw line F, which crosses crease down middle of sleeve at G. The top of dart is 1/2" down from G to H, but 1" out, to I, towards the under part of the sleeve. At wrist, B to J is 4 1/2" for upper part, and K to C is 3 1/2" for underneath the arm. To cut facing for cuff, take out dart and close together the edges above K and J, then cut along line from A to A.

Broadcasting a Big Fight.

Baldock v. Smith at the Albert Hall tonight—Thursday, October 6—at 9.35 p.m.

Mr. EUGENE CORRI.

Mr. BOHUN LYNCH.

The sporting broadcast enters on a new phase tonight, when a running commentary on the big fight at the Albert Hall will be broadcast from London and Daventry. Both the commentators are men famous in the sporting world. Mr. Eugene Corri has refereed more big fights than any other man living, and his book, 'Gloves and the Man,' formed a fascinating personal story of a lifetime spent in the boxing game. Mr. Bohun Lynch was himself a useful amateur boxer in his Oxford days, and he is the author of several of the best books on pugilism, including 'The Prize Ring,' and 'Knuckles and Gloves.' Mr. E. B. Osborn, who writes this article, began to take an interest in boxing when, as a young man in a Canadian lumber-camp, he discovered what a useful accomplishment it could be. He is now Literary Editor of The Morning Post, and in addition, a boxing critic who has not missed an important fight for years.

THE B.B.C. are always hitting upon some ingenious innovation which makes our immediate past seem as remote as a B.C. period. This latest happy thought is to arrange for broadcasting a running commentary on the Baldock-Smith fight from the Albert Hall, where it takes place on the night of October 6, so that the wireless listener will be able to follow the struggle punch by punch, round by round, while seated comfortably at his (or her) fireside.

Every lover of boxing as a fine, virile art will be anxious to know how the meteoric Teddy has passport into a starry Nirvana, which is commonly called a knock-out.

You will perhaps be surprised to learn that a petty, imperfect and rather pathetic form of broadcasting big fights has often been noticed at the Albert Hall. On a big night a huge crowd is invariably seen outside—consisting of enthusiasts who could not afford the price of the cheapest seat, and get only a glimpse of the boxers when arriving and departing. If, like myself, you have followed boxing for many years, you will recognize in the shadowy assemblage the sad faces of old pugilists, once minor celebrities but now down and out, and clean forgotten by the public. These are glad to be recognized and to get a cheery greeting and a half-crown—the former counts for most, seeing that courtesy is the better part of charity in that world apart of 'the Fancy.' For the benefit of these faithful votaries information as to the course of each round is relayed out through the entrances, the last link in the chain of voices being a kindly policeman, who knows something about 'putting 'em up' himself, much more often than not.

TEDDY BALDOCK will find this Willie Smith a dangerous antagonist. He has the look and build of a good glove-fighter; though not an extra special bit of boxing architecture, like Jimmy Wilde, whose every ounce of bone and muscle was placed where it would best help his hitting, the South African has a beautifully-balanced physique, designed to combine pace and power. As an amateur, victor in the Olympic Games, he was swift and evasive and possessed of a punch; and his subsequent record confirms the belief of his friends that Baldock will find him anything but an easy handful.

As the lads are fighting at 8st. 8lbs., 2lbs. above the bantam-weight limit, no championship is involved in this meeting. So that the debonair Teddy can take on the affair with the smiling aplomb which made him such a popular favourite during his American tour, when, owing to his youth, the New York State authorities would only allow him to fight six-round no-decision contests. In these contests (called 'pork-and-beaners' when novices are concerned) the American fans regarded his victory as inevitable. There was never any betting on the result, but an admirer of the 'Red Terror' (as they called him over there from the colour of his lavish locks) would sometimes offer to wager that his 'japanned hair' wouldn't get ruffled during the bout!

Teddy is so popular here, having succeeded to the crowd-compelling repute of Georges Carpentier in his prime, that we are apt to forget that he has not yet a fully-furnished physique. For example, he still seems to lack the belt of tough, steely muscle which enables a boxer to withstand the pounding in 'the slats' that he is bound to get from a skilful and resolute in-fighter. In his memorable contest with Archie Bell, which was the most thrilling struggle seen in this country for many a day, this weakness was nearly, but not quite, fatal to him. In the last two or three rounds, when he has been slowed down by his opponent's body-hitting and his deadly right was no longer so dangerous, we were all on-tenterhooks—wondering whether he would escape being demolished by the inside batteries of the American fighter. It was his ringcraft which saved Teddy in this critical period, when he had a good lead on points. Young in years, he is old in experience—for he has more than a hundred won contests under his

of Poplar, the bantam-weight champion of the world, and—fares on that historic occasion against the lithe and elusive bantam-weight Champion of South Africa. Some of the enthusiasts will have to wait until they get the morning papers. But the wireless 'fans'—a crowd which would pack a dozen Albert Halls to overflowing—will learn every significant detail of the contest from the still, insistent voice of the expert commentator heard through a thrilling accompaniment of the muffled thuds of blows that land and the cheers and counter-cheers of excited ringside spectators. And they will actually be able to anticipate the referee's decision, supposing the contest does not end in the handing out by one of the combatants of that of South Africa, whom he will meet at the Albert Hall tonight.

belt, as the saying is, and has always lived up to the advantageous adage that fighting is the best preparation for a fight.

Good as Smith may be, I have no doubt that the Poplar lad will collect his scalp, probably as the result of a long-range punch from his 'poisonous right.' Whatever thrills there may be, the listener will enjoy them in comfort, and I feel sure the B.B.C. innovation will be universally applauded. And sooner or later—sooner rather than later, no doubt—we shall be able to see as well as hear these cosmical examples of the sweet science and noble art.

AUNT ETHEL SAID IT WAS LIBEL

George is an announcer. At Binghampton, we believe. He's Aunt Ethel's favourite nephew. When she heard him on Cousin Dick's set one evening she said, first of all, that George had croup. Then she said it was a scandal.

And after that she talked a lot about solicitors and libel actions and things. For George, as you've probably gathered, was a victim of "valve distortion." When Aunt Ethel told him what he sounded like on Cousin Dick's set, he said that was the worst of Dick, he would go experimenting, and that Marconi Valves ought to be made compulsory by law

Seriously, though, that is one outstanding thing about Marconi Valves. They don't "twist." Moreover, they're very economical on power and they last a tremendously long time. You see, they're MARCONI, which means that everything—filament, grid, plate, vacuum, everything—is designed for the purpose of making a better VALVE.

You have a 2-volt accumulator?—then these are the Marconi Valves you need:—

Marconi D.F.H. 210—for the H.F. stage (Price 10/6)

Marconi D.E.L. 210—for the detector stage
(also for 'general purposes') " 10/6

Marconi D.E.P. 210—for the Power stage " 12/6

Full particulars of all Marconi Valves and all Marconi Sets are to be found in an amusing and informative free booklet called "Back Chat." Secure your free copy by sending off the coupon (below) Now.

Third Brandenburg Concerto in G for } Bach
Strings..... }

BACH'S six Brandenburg Concertos were written for the Count Christian Ludwig of Brandenburg, who had heard Bach play, and immediately asked him to write something for his private Orchestra.

In the Third Strings only are used, divided into ten parts—three each of Violins, Violas, and Cellos, together with one of Double Basses.

The effects obtained are of two kinds. Generally there is a great fullness of sound, due to the many lines of music running side by side; at other times one group is answered by another, or one part by another.

There are two movements, but there is no break between them; they are connected by two sustained chords. Both Movements are quick. The second is rather like a Jig, in the familiar rhythm of two-in-a-bar, each beat being divided into three.

Sixth Suite Bach, arr. Wood

THIS is a collection of six pieces, nearly all taken from Bach's music for keyboard instruments. Sir Henry Wood has scored these pieces for modern orchestra, but in doing so he has tried to adhere faithfully throughout to the spirit of the original.

The First (Very quick, swift, and light) is the third Prelude of Bach's famous Forty-eight Preludes and Fugues, The Well-tempered Clavier (Clavier-keyboard instrument—in Bach's day, Harpsichord or Clavichord).

The Second piece is a Lament taken from the Caprice on the departure of a dear brother, for Clavier.

The Third piece is taken from the Third Clavier Partita. It is a Scherzo (Very quick, rhythmical).

The Fourth piece is the Gavotte-and-Musette from the Sixth English Suite (for Clavier). 'Musette' was originally the name of an instrument of the bagpipe kind. Its dreamy character is well suggested in this piece, which Sir Henry Wood has scored as a delicate trio for Oboe, Viola and Horn.

The Fifth piece (At a steady pace, mystical) is another Prelude of The Well-tempered Clavier. Sir Henry Wood has said: 'This . . . always suggests to me a little Gothic side-chapel in which one lonely supplicant is praying fervently.'

The joyous Finale is the Prelude from the Third Partita for Solo Violin.

THE NATIONAL CHORUS

BEETHOVEN'S Ninth and last Symphony is reckoned by all musicians amongst the greatest things of their art.

There are four Movements in the Symphony, the last of which is very broken in character and very dramatic. This Movement introduces solo vocalists and a chorus, and has given the work its name of 'Choral Symphony.'

Of the first three Movements each is in a different way powerful and moving. From the mysterious opening sounds the FIRST MOVEMENT seems to show the Composer face to face with the immensities and problems of life, and in music expressing what could be expressed in no other way,

Mr. TUDOR DAVIES.

Miss ASTRA DESMOND.

There follow the SCHERZO of boisterous vitality and the song-like, gravely beautiful SLOW MOVEMENT.

Without any pause we pass into the LAST MOVEMENT. With a shock, we hear all the Wind Instruments and the Kettledrums bursting into the cloistered peace.

A recitative passage in Cellos and Double Basses then seems to be saying something—asking some question.

The Wind and Drums outburst is repeated. The String Bass question is repeated—it sounds as though the question is: 'What are we next to play?'

The first reply to this question is a quotation from the mysterious opening of the First Movement.

The String Basses speak again, and repel the suggestion.

The next reply is a quotation from the Second Movement.

The String Basses reject this also. The third reply is a phrase from the Third Movement.

This also is rejected. Then a line or two of a lovely new melody is heard in the Woodwind. The reply this time is very different.

Then (a great moment—one of the greatest in all music) the String Basses themselves give out this melody in full, and other instruments gradually join in, until at last all are joyously playing.

Then comes interruption again, and when it subsides, a Baritone is heard singing, 'O friends not these tones, let us sing something more full of gladness.'

As a snatch of the melody is again heard, the Chorus Basses begin to sing Schiller's Ode to Joy.

From here onwards the Vocal Quartet and the Choir are much used. In culminating power the music expresses the Composer's aspirations towards joy, goodwill, and brotherhood among men.

The "75" Cone Speaker.

The "51" Receiver.

MARCONIPHONE

LEADERSHIP IN WIRELESS

A GAIN something new from Marconiphone, a new 5-valve Receiver and Cone type Loud Speakers, the first to be called "Marconiphone." The "51" Receiver, fully described below, combines the latest efficiency with increased simplicity of operation, while the cone speakers are of that supreme quality which justifies giving them the name of the greatest and most experienced radio organisation in the world—"MARCONIPHONE."

MARCONIPHONE MODEL 75 CONE SPEAKER

The attractively decorated and convenient design of the hornless loud-speaker has hitherto had to balance a slightly less sensitive reception. This is no longer the case; the Marconiphone Model 75 Cone Speaker, after three years' research, is able to give ideal reception, equal in every respect to that of the best horn type. Adjustment is at the front and the cone at the back is protected. It is most attractive, easily kept free from dust, and at a price within the means of the average buyer.

PRICE 75/-

There is also the MARCONIPHONE MODEL 105 CABINET CONE which has similar qualities, and is double-sided, so that it can be placed on a table away from the wall—a well-designed and attractive form of speaker. That cone speakers now bear the name "Marconiphone" implies that the highest standard has been reached.

PRICE 105/-

DEFERRED TERMS

All Marconiphone apparatus costing £10 or more is supplied on deferred terms. The new simplified system involves only a small initial payment to secure immediate delivery. The balance is spread over 12 months.

MARCONIPHONE MODEL 51 (5-VALVE) RECEIVER

Simplicity of tuning, great sensitivity and possibility of operation entirely from house electric supply, entirely without batteries or accumulators, are outstanding features of Marconiphone Model 51. This 5-valve receiver employs two neutralised high frequency stages, a detector and two low frequency valves, tuning being reduced to a single master control and two small verniers which only require slight adjustment after a station is heard. A particularly handsome mahogany cabinet with sloping sides encloses the components, and cases to hold batteries or power-units can be supplied, producing a self-contained installation. With either A.C. or D.C. mains, Model 51 brings all the advantages of battery-less radio into being. But even where electricity is not available, economical battery combinations may be used.

Receiver only, with long and short wave coils, including royalty £27 2s. 6d.

The D.C. Mains Drive Unit for operating direct from the house electric supply costs £6 10s., or for A.C. mains, including valve royalty, £9 7s. 6d.

MARCONIPHONE H.T. SUPPLY UNITS

Save the money you spend on H.T. Batteries

Why not use power direct from your house electric supply and have the benefit of this wonderful radio convenience? The initial outlay is small and upkeep costs next to nothing. Simply plug the unit into an ordinary lampholder and you obtain continuous and steady H.T. Supply requiring no attention or refilling, no adjustments or H.T. renewals.

MARCONIPHONE MODEL D.C.3 HIGH TENSION SUPPLY UNIT FOR DIRECT CURRENT For One or Two Valve Receivers.

Designed to provide H.T. from direct current mains for receivers employing not more than 2 valves. Its simple and sturdy construction ensures unfailing reliability. All components and wiring are enclosed in a sealed metal case, the whole unit being extremely compact so that it will fit into any existing battery compartment or pedestal. Ample smoothing is provided and an unusual refinement is the possibility of reversing the smoothing circuit to cope with exceptional cases which may arise in areas where a "3-wire" system is in use. The current consumption is only 1/20th of that of an average electric light bulb.

Two models are available, one for supply voltages between 100 and 125 and the other for between 200 and 250 volts.

Suite from music to 'As You Like It'

QUILTER is one of the two or three living English Composers who seem to get nearest to the spirit of Shakespeare. The Suite we are to hear was written in 1922, and includes four pieces, the first three being the Introductions to the several Acts, and the last a dance that winds up the play. The titles are: (1) Shepherd's Holiday; (2) Evening in the Forest; (3) Merry Pranks; and (4) Country Dance.

ORCHESTRA

Suite of Ballet Music from 'The Rake'

QUILTER is one of the few Composers of 'serious' music who have been engaged to write for Revue. The Rake was an eighteenth-century Ballet in one of Mr. Cochran's London Pavilion Revues, On with the Dance! In the Suite are five Movements: (1) Dance at the Feast; (2) The Light-hearted Lady; (3) The Frolicsome Friend; (4) Allurement; and (5) Midnight Revels.

 12th September, 1927.

Messrs. Marconi Company, Ltd.

Dear Sirs,—Out of thirty valves used in my experimental British Empire transmissions, twenty-eight are of your make, and I wish to express my appreciation of them. Results obtained during tests have far exceeded my expectations, and I would specially like to mention your L.S.5 types, which are used throughout the amplifiers, and the M.T.9F., which is indeed a short-wave transmitting valve par excellence.

A particularly useful general purpose valve is the new Marconi Type, 2-volt DEL 210. A description of this, and of all Marconi Valves, will be contained in an amusing but most informative booklet called "Back Chat" to be published shortly. To get your copy, send off the coupon below. Choked!!

That's why H.T. Batteries splutter and spit and die a premature death. They are choked! Not worn out, but choked to death!

If you buy a Fellows Regenerator Battery it will go on giving its full signals for the full life of its materials. This wonderful battery is a Fellows invention, and there is no other battery like it in the world. Big claims are made so glibly that they mean little. Nevertheless, we say that after prolonged tests of all the well-known makes of H.T. Battery, we believe the Regenerator will give clearer signals, greater strength and longer life than any other H.T. Battery at whatever price.

The Greatest Accumulator

The Oldham O.V.D. is the ideal Accumulator for use with one-valve or two-valve sets.

INTRODUCED at the beginning of the year, the Oldham O.V.D. has sold in hundreds of thousands solely by reason of the wonderful service it gives. The secret of this service lies in the Laminode Plates which enable the O.V.D. to hold its charge over a long period without sulphation. Girder-like in construction, plate buckling is unknown; yet, despite this immense plate strength an O.V.D. can be left for re-charging in the morning and picked up again in the evening, fully charged—a matter of merely 8 hours. With other slow discharge accumulators your set is out of action for two days! And when you buy an O.V.D. you don't have to wait a day before you can use it. Just add acid and in an hour it is ready for its job.

The New O.V.D.

with the following seven features:

1. Charged ready for use—merely add acid.
2. Laminated buckle-proof plates.
3. No leaking away of charge when not in use.
4. Large coloured terminals and special spray-proof filler cap.
5. Rapid charging and slow discharging.
6. Stout glass cell requiring no separators.
7. All plates made under the Special Activation Process.

Value ever offered

Here are three Standard Oldham Accumulators for sets with three or more Valves.

The New Oldham C.L.G. Crystal Clear Glass Accumulator forms a veritable revolution in accumulator design. It bristles with good points: Large terminals, moulded non-splash screw vent, smooth moulded top, robust plates, no separators, glass container—never before have so many unique advantages been embodied in an accumulator. Not content with making the best possible accumulator Oldham has provided the lightest, neatest and cheapest skeleton carrier to accompany it. You can see how handy and practical it is from the illustration opposite.

The Oldham I.V.D. Crystal Clear Glass Accumulator is a big brother of the famous O.V.D. possessing all its admirable qualities but being of double capacity—20 amp. hours as against 10 amp. hours. Of course, the plates are made under the Oldham Special Activation Process. A thoroughly efficient accumulator this, made in five capacities and in 2, 4 and 6 volts.

The Oldham High Tension Accumulator is the remedy for any wireless user who has experienced trouble with his H. T. Accumulator. Dry Cells are unsatisfactory. An Oldham H. T. Accumulator never varies; it gives that steady, unvarying flow of current so essential for smooth working. The Oldham Special Activation Plates do not suffer from sulphation even though the accumulator has no attention for months. Each unit is made up of stout glass cells—ten of them—and each individual cell can be tapped. Start with 60 volts and add 20 volt units as and when required. With its handsome polished base and lid the Oldham H.T. Accumulator is always neat and tidy. Best of all the Oldham H.T. is so reliable and holds its charge so well that it needs recharging only about four times a year.

The Oldham C.L.G. Crystal Clear Glass Accumulator, 2-Volts, 30 amp. hours. 12/- each. Other capacities at proportionately increased prices. Carrier 2/6 extra.

The Oldham I.V.D. Crystal Clear Glass Accumulator 2-Volts, 20 amp. hours 9/- each. Oxidised carriers for 1, 2 or 3, cells available. Carrier 2/6 extra.

YOUR EAR need not be acute to notice the improvement the new LISSEN transformer brings. Every note on the piano is heard clearly. The strings retain their individualities. Wind instruments sound melodious, and the voices of singers have a really wonderful realism.

You will not find a better transformer than the new LISSEN. It is only possible for us to sell it for a price so low as 8/6 by concentrating on the production of this one type and selling direct to the retailers (wholesalers' profits are eliminated).

This transformer can be used with equal success as an L.F. choke by connecting together the terminals marked O.P. and I.S. Buy one. Test it for 7 days against the most expensive transformers or chokes. "Who's the Musician?"

is a question often asked of the owner of a Brown Cabinet Loud Speaker. You see there is something about the reproduction of this Brown that is true. It does not sound like a loud speaker. Neither does it look like a loud speaker.

It makes you feel that you have people singing to you in your room, playing to you in your home, or that you are the happy possessor of a magnificent orchestra.

The Cabinet abolishes the idea that some people attach to the horn loud speaker as being out of fashion, and it dispenses with the extremely modern cone, which is becoming so common on the market. It carries an air of refinement wherever it is seen and satisfies wherever it is heard.

UNEQUALLED for PURITY of TONE- VOLUME AND RANGE

Designed to receive the maximum number of stations with the minimum number of valves, this entirely new GECophone four-valve stabilised set is not only super-sensitive, but is so highly selective that interference from the local station can be eliminated at short distances. The screened circuit enables stations to be tuned-in with ease, while the quality of reproduction is of an exceptionally high standard. Like other GECophone Models, this receiver may be instantly adapted for gramophone reproduction by means of the Gramophone Pick-up.

Whatever the Circuit—

Whether the set is a straight "single valver" or a "super-het"—whether it is transformer or resistance coupled, an exactly suitable valve or combination of valves will be found in the new B.T.H. series of 2-volt valves. Each valve has been designed for a specific purpose and can be relied upon to give absolute satisfaction.

It is because these new valves are perfect in every part that absolute satisfaction can be guaranteed. B.T.H. Valves were not hurriedly put on the market to meet a demand for 2-volt valves. Long and careful research work has preceded their arrival. Not until the perfect 2-volt valve had been evolved were they introduced. B.T.H. Valves are perfect because attention has been paid to every part of the valve and to every requirement of the valve user. The filament has emissive properties second to none, and an unusually long life—no filament lasts longer. The anode and grid are so perfectly constructed and placed that maximum efficiency is assured.

If you want the best possible results in any circuit specify B.T.H. Valves—the exact valves for the most exacting circuit.

The RI new Varley
INTERDYNE
RECEIVER

WITH A WONDERFUL NEW VALVE

This receiver completely revolutionizes the design of stable selective wireless receivers, as the result of the development of an entirely new valve—the Mullard R.I. and Varley "Interdyne" (Dr. Robinson's Patent).

In this valve, there are four electrodes (a double grid and two separate anodes), with one filament so disposed that it affects only one of the anodes. With this particular arrangement any electrode capacities generated inside the valve are automatically cancelled, thereby enabling the maximum high-frequency amplification to be obtained without instability, or the necessity for using external neutralizing devices. In addition, it is impossible, with this valve, to re-radiate oscillations which might affect neighbouring aerials. Two of these patent valves are fitted in the receiver, in the first two high-frequency stages.

The arrangement of the receiver is simple. Three sets of specially designed split coil H.F. transformers are assembled in a large copper screening box, on which are mounted the two patent valves. In addition, there is a detector valve and two stages of L.F. amplification, employing a combination of both resistance capacity and transformer coupling, the last stage having one of our new Straight Line Super Transformers. A special "on" and "off" switch is fitted, which automatically introduces a resistance for obtaining perfect volume control, the tuning being carried out by a single knob which simultaneously operates the three condensers. The degree of selectivity and the number of stations received with a single adjustment is remarkable, and hitherto thought impossible, with reasonable stability, by any other instrument employing even a greater number of valves. Two models are available: one for 250-550 metres, and the other for both 250-550 metres and 1,000-2,000 metres, the change-over from short to long waves being effected by a single switch.

THE COMPLETE RECEIVER IS BEAUTIFULLY FINISHED, AND FOR VOLUME, TONAL PURITY AND SUPER SELECTIVITY HAS NO EQUAL.

made possible by the world's largest

Electric Furnaces

The Carborundum used in Carborundum Radio Products is created at the terrific temperature of 4,060° F. in the largest electric furnaces in the world. It has long been used as a resistance unit in electrical engineering and is now available in the form of our new Resistance Capacity Coupling Unit. This Unit is quite different from any other at present on the market, presenting as it does, many distinct advantages over units employing ordinary grid leaks and anode resistances. The resistances used in the Carborundum Resistance Capacity Coupling Unit are solid rods of unbreakable Carborundum. They cannot burn out—present no capacity effects—and are absolutely non-microphonic. The Unit takes up far less room than the smallest L.F. transformer and the complete absence of background noises greatly enhances the already great possibilities of R.C. coupling. Not being dependent on a metallic film, the resistances will not disintegrate and are unaffected by atmospheric changes.

Dear Sirs,
I feel that I should write to tell you how delighted I am with your new 2-volt OSRAM VALVES which I am now using in my "GEORFON" Receiver. They have made me realise what an essential part the valve plays in producing true reproduction.

Since using these new valves I have found great pleasure in listening to the music which comes through so faithfully and with any volume desired.

If they were confident that their efforts would be as faithfully reproduced as my set is capable of doing, many distinguished artistes would feel happier when giving broadcast recitals.

Yours truly,

THE Dunham New Season's Two valve loud speaker set is indeed an achievement in Radio production, and is easily the equal of most three valve receivers for both range and strength of reception. Not a cheap set in any sense, but made possible at the price by special tools and big production in very large quantities.
Operation is simplicity itself. One dial only to tune, with a smaller knob to vary power of reception to individual requirements, and you just plug in speaker to start set working. This automatically switches on all connections, lights up valves, and set operates at once.

Sound is distributed evenly in all directions—to the side as well as to the front; "drumming" is eliminated. Every note of music, every syllable, every letter of speech is clear and distinct.

Gledhill's Famous "IDEAL"

Don't hurl epithets at your Set

IF you are not satisfied with your Receiver don't blame it without investigation. The fault may lie in the Valves. Even the best Set will be handicapped when the wrong Valves are used. Fit Cossor Valves and you'll be certain of good results. Cossor Valves owe their wonderful efficiency largely to their super-sensitive Kalenised filaments. No other valve can equal them for length of service, economy and quality of reproduction. Fit Cossor Valves and hear the living music of the Studio—not a travesty of jumbled, muffled sounds.
