This Shakespeare Business.

The question of London's proposed Shakespeare Theatre has again come into prominence in the Press, and with it the perennial discussion of the position and popularity of our national poet who, one is apt to suspect, is more honoured in certain European countries than in his own. In this article Hamilton Fyfe, the distinguished author and journalist, maintains that it is giving Shakespeare a fairer chance, artistically, to listen to his plays broadcast as dramatic poetry than to see them in the theatre played as pseudo-realistic drama.

WHY are people who engage in debates so unwilling to discuss the subjects set down for them?

A few months ago Ian Hay and someone else were announced to argue the question whether sport does more harm than good. They never tackled that most interesting point at all.

The other day Miss Rebecca West and Mr. Ben Greet inveigled me into spending an evening at home when I might have dined in piquant company by holding out the lure of a debate on 'Should Shakespeare be acted?' The natural inference was that one would maintain Shakespeare to be a poet who was best appreciated in the chimney corner (or by the gas stove), while the other would claim that he was first and principally a dramatist whose work could not be judged aright unless it was seen on the stage.

Much to my annoyance, they did not even approach this controversy. They argued as to how Shakespeare should be acted. The suggestion that it might be better not to act him was never glanced at.

I was disappointed for two reasons. First, because I hoped to hear something new and useful said upon this old cause of dispute; and secondly, because I thought it almost certain that somebody in the course of the evening would mention what many of us have discovered during the last few years—that the ideal way of making and keeping up acquaintance with Shakespeare is neither to read him nor to see his plays acted, but to hear them broadcast.

If I had attended the debate, I should have spoken in this sense myself. I should have pointed out that you cannot enjoy the full flavour and sonority of Shakespeare's language by reading the plays to yourself. He wrote verse which was meant to be spoken aloud. He wrote many scenes which depend for a great part of their effect upon the quick cut and thrust of dialogue.

You need the different voices, for example, in the Brutus and Cassius scene; you need them continually in Hamlet; the absence of them robs Othello of its poignant emotion. Again, Romeo and Juliet must be heard if the tale of those pitiful lovers is to move us as it should.

This, I think, needs not to be insisted upon. No one doubts that Shakespeare wrote his most thrilling poetry, the poetry we find in the plays, for recitation. When he was writing poems intended only to be read he used quite a different method, and, to my ear, an inferior method. Neither the Sonnets nor 'Venus and Adonis' nor 'The Rape of Lucrece' would have won for him the fame that is his today. What did win it were the plays, and it is impossible, I contend, to see either the whole of their beauty or the whole of their dramatic value unless they are heard.

This sounds like an argument in favour of performing them. So it is, but not in favour of performing them as they are performed now.

To start with, when you see them on the stage now, you cannot hear them—at all events, not nearly all of them. In their efforts to be 'natural' and 'realistic' the players mangle and dismember the verse in villainous fashion. Often they are plainly unaware of any meaning in the words they pronounce. Often they lose the entire effect of glorious passages by speaking them as if they were painfully thinking the thoughts out for themselves instead of treating them as the recitations which they are.

The most glaring instance of this fault is in the manner of delivering the 'To be or not to be' speech. The way to do it, the only way, the way Shakespeare meant it to be done, is to declaim it. To move about the stage, to shift uneasily on a seat, to jerk out its phrases as if they were ideas which had just come into the speaker's mind, is to maim its beauty and obscure its meaning both.

Further, there are many things in performances of Shakespeare which disturb the eye as well as those things which offend the ear. There may be scenery that is too emphatic or too ostentatious; there may be performers who lack skill or whose persons are unfitted to the characters they represent. There may be shortcomings in production, errors of judgment or taste, which make a disagreeable impression on the spectator's mind.

Of course, I am talking of spectators who know the plays. When you don't know them they are entrancing, no matter how poorly they are acted.

I BEGAN my experience as a playgoer by being taken at the age of nine to Astley's Circus, where a performance (abridged) of Richard the Third was sandwiched between 'equestrian acts' and clowns. I have never forgotten that performance. I never shall forget it. I have no doubt now that the acting was crude. We should laugh at it today as 'barn-storming.' But it got me. I was in thrall to Shakespeare from that hour.

The next play of his that I saw was Hamlet at the old Princess's in Oxford Street. I was a small schoolboy; I sat enraptured. From that chilly moment on the ramparts when the ghost is talked about I was in Elsinore. The Prince was the most romantic figure I had ever even imagined. Yet now I know he was played by Wilson Barrett, whose performance must have been unspeakably bad.

For the uninitiated almost all the plays are actor-proof. Their characters, incidents, language defy all attempts to mangle them. Perhaps the novices do not always quite grasp the poet's intent. They may be like the old lady who, seeing Hamlet for the first time and being obliged to leave before the end, whispered to her neighbour in the pit before she went: 'Mark my word, young man, that there 'Amlet will turn out to be the rightful heir.' But their attention is firmly held, their imagination quickened and stirred, though they might not be able to tell you afterwards just exactly what it was all about.

This enviable state ceases unhappily when playgoing has become a habit. One becomes critical as well as receptive; sometimes one is not receptive any more. Then one is annoyed if words are ill-spoken, if acting falls short of expectation, if the scenery jars against our own ideas of what it should be. There was a time when the old Vic. company buoyed our hopes up. It offered us a maximum of enjoyment with a minimum of discontent. Now, alas, that is so no longer. Their best friends admit (let us hope, for the moment only) that they have lost their touch.

What then, I asked myself a short while ago, is to be the future of the plays if the theatre can no longer present them acceptably? Until we get a playhouse that is not run on purely commercial lines—a National Theatre, just as we have a National Gallery—we need not look for much improvement in their presentation. Are we to be reduced in the meantime to reading or recollecting them?

At that juncture I was fortunate to discover what is at this time the ideal way of hearing Shakespeare.

Already I had made up my mind that I never wanted to see opera again. Listening to it by Radio gave one the exquisite pleasure of the music and relieved one from the horrors of the fat tenor, the smirking prima donna, the abject chorus in ill-fitting tights, the bows and smiles after a death scene, the absurd clash between convention and reality.

Now I learned that this was the most agreeable manner of listening to Shakespeare, too.

Broadcasting performers can be chosen for their voices alone, and for their ability to speak verse. That is an immense gain, for a start.

Next, there is no temptation to them to spoil the beauty of the verse by foolishly trying to act while they are speaking it. They must recite it, as the actors of the Elizabethan stage did. That is the only way to give it its complete value.

FINALLY, the advantage of simply listening to Shakespeare is that you can let your imagination supply the figures of his creation, the scenes in which he placed them, the forests and seashores, the heaths and cliffs which he described, as well as the cottages, the palaces, the market-places, the law courts in which the familiar episodes happen.

No longer forced to overlook the deficiencies of a painted Arden, no longer invited to admire artificial grass plots and cardboard pillars imitating marble, we are able with the mind's eye to see what he saw (because he told us so plainly). We can always see the Juliet of our dreams, the Caliban of our nightmares, all the great gallery of fascinating, lovable, radiant men and women whom we know so much better and more affectionately than we know most of those among whom we pass our lives.

And one thing more. We can do all this without sitting for hours in a cramped position on an uncomfortable seat.

The 'Madness' of Bartok and Other Matters.

Discussed in Letters to the Editor from Listeners.

'Is Bartok Mad—Or Are We?'

DEAR SIR,—I have read with interest and amusement the article by Mr. P. A. Scholes in your issue of December 9. Mr. Scholes, in the rôle of 'Devil's Advocate,' is distinctly interesting—but hardly convincing.

While reading Mr. Scholes's naïve appeals to our tolerance, I fell asleep, and lo, I dreamed a dream!

And in my dream it seemed that I called on my architect and said: 'I am very dissatisfied with my present house, and I want you to build me an entirely different and better one.' And in the course of time he sent for me, saying: 'Your new house is finished, come and see.' And in my dream he took me by the hand and showed me a mud-built house, situated on marshy ground. 'There,' said he, 'I flatter myself is a house that does not slavishly follow the hide-bound traditions of domestic architecture. If it is anything, it is original.' Filled with indignation, I replied: 'But the place revolts my every sense.' 'Ah,' said he, wagging his forefinger playfully at me, 'your senses, sir, your senses! Do you not realize they are all most conservative members? I am not very sure, but I believe this will make a very desirable residence.'

And then I awoke with a start to realize that my loud speaker was filling the room with the heavenly strains of the Pastoral Symphony. Then a horrid doubt flashed across my mind, for I remembered, 'The ear is a very conservative member.'—THOMAS FUEWIS, Stamford Hill, N.16.

Smaller Doses, Please.

DEAR SIR,—I don't care if Bartok is slightly mad. People with a touch of mental disorder are extremely entertaining companions. Genius is supposed to be akin to madness. Whatever our Hungarian friend is, he is at least novel and entertaining. When one switches on one's set for a recital of his works, one has the satisfaction of knowing that what one is to hear will be original. Such originality must, I suppose, be offensive to the average British listener whose favourite musical diet is Faust and Schubert's 'Unfinished.' It is curious that a nation which has produced such active and inquiring minds in the fields of science and exploration is temperamentally 'unexploring' in the field of Art. One word I should like to say to the B.B.C. If Bartok, Stravinsky and Co. were administered in somewhat smaller doses, it might be possible to persuade the patient to 'keep them down.' The 'treatment' so far has been rather too drastic.—ERIC LEWIS, King's Road, Chelsea.

Good Lord, Deliver Us!

DEAR SIR,—Although a little belated, I would like a word on Mr. Percy Scholes's article under the heading, 'Is Bartok Mad—Or Are We?'

His half-hearted attempt to prove that beauty is in these days suspect, and that we ought to like ugliness, hardly convinces himself. It won't do. I agree with him that musical tastes change from period to period, but Stravinsky's and Bartok's stuff isn't music at all! And to talk of it as any form of that divine art is an outrage. I have added a private suffrage to the Litany: 'From Stravinsky, Bartok, Honneger, etc., Good Lord, deliver us!'

The worship of deformity in all Art—Music, Literature, the Drama, Painting, and Sculpture, which is being urged upon us by critics, is, one hopes, only a temporary craze. The majority of art lovers are not losing their heads.

Mr. Scholes tells us, in effect, that we are possibly right—at least, we have been right in the past to appreciate the perfume of roses, lilies of the valley, even the humble wallflower. Now what we ought to try to like is assafoetida—my aunt!

I agree with John Arkell that:—

'If ugliness should be the theme of every poet's song,

If Epstein should be in the right and God Almighty wrong,

I'm glad he did not interfere

When God first fashioned Gloucestershire.'

—T. F., Glos.

We Need Shocking!

DEAR SIR,—I heartily agree with all that Mr. Scholes has to say, and admire the liberal viewpoint of a man who has an outstanding acquaintance with the music of the past, yet can keep an open mind about the music of the present. Whether we like Bartok or not is immaterial. A more fundamental question is raised by this controversy—the question of our being prepared to give modern music a fair hearing. Anything so 'different' is, of course, shocking to our established taste. I affirm that our taste needs shocking, unless we are to sink into a slough of prejudice and die surfeited with 'old favourites.' The foreigner who called England 'the land without music' was wrong. We are a musical nation. Once we can overcome our prejudice against a composer—and that takes about fifty years—we are uncommonly appreciative of his work. Our appreciation needs the 'electric shock' of a Bartok programme or so. These modern composers must enjoy something better than posthumous honour.—B. St. D. A., Cambridge.

LISTENERS' LETTERS.

The article by Percy A. Scholes entitled 'Is Bartok Mad—Or Are We?' which appeared in The Radio Times for December 9 last, has attracted a considerable number of letters from listeners. A selection of these is published herewith. The Editor is always glad to receive for publication letters regarding the hundred and one problems and aspects of Broadcasting.

It May Appeal to Savages, but—

DEAR SIR,—Your leading article by Mr. Percy Scholes on Bartok I found highly interesting, but not convincing.

As a lifelong devotee of music, I am anxious to keep in touch with all kinds of music, particularly the so-called Modern Music.

After all, what is Music?

Music may be said to be a series of sounds caused by intervals both of consonances and dissonances, put together by the laws of harmony. The laws of harmony have been evolved through the ages, from the works of composers of all kinds. The ear and sense of beauty have been the guide to all writers of music, their methods may have varied, but their objectives have been the same.

And so our present sense of the beautiful in music has been built up by the combined efforts of composers of all times. Granted that, why should we be asked to appreciate music which offends our sense of beauty of tone, which I feel sure is what the music of Bartok does? If he delights to write in terms of discord, I might say, why should we be asked to say it is beautiful? It may be modern, it may be music, it may appeal to savages, but to the lovers of the beautiful in music it will never appeal.—JOHN J. ALLEN, Thornywood, Nottingham.

From Lord Aberdeen.

DEAR SIR,—Surely a vast number of listeners (especially those who are no longer chickens in years) must have been grateful to the B.B.C. for inserting, and to Mr. Tyrone Power for producing, the delightful sketch of a Victorian At Home, which was given from London on Friday evening, December 2. And I am referring especially to the music. How refreshing it was to hear old favourites, such as 'The Diver' and 'The Village Blacksmith,' and so excellently sung.

And then the glees and part songs. That, of course, suggests a rich field which, somehow, is not much cultivated at present. This is regrettable, for the music combines high quality with an attractiveness which all can appreciate. I have in mind such standard pieces as the glee, 'Herb in a Cool Grot,' composed by that fine musician, the Earl of Mornington (the father of the Duke of Wellington), whose work may truly be described as of Purcell-like quality. Or, again, the tuneful old English ballad, 'Since First I Saw Your Face,' arranged for four parts, with delicious effect.

May we not hope that another treat, similar to that of last Friday, may be repeated on the wireless and that it should be rendered by the same talented artists? That will doubtless depend, in accordance with the settled policy of the B.B.C., upon the demand.—ABERDEEN AND TEMAIR.

The Black Country.

DEAR SIR,—I am sure your Birmingham readers will be much amused with the paragraph under the heading, 'Birmingham in Oratorio,' in the December 2 issue of The Radio Times, wherein it is stated that the Birmingham Triennial Festivals bear witness to the musical taste and enthusiasm of the Black Country. Provincial people, however, are so accustomed to the appalling lack of geographical knowledge displayed by the average Londoner of anywhere outside his own city that this oft-repeated belief that Birmingham is in the Black Country is just as amusing to them as it would be to the people of Windsor, Brighton, or Canterbury to assert that they were part of London.—BIRM.

[We have passed the above letter to 'The Announcer' for his reply. 'I am not "an average Londoner,"' he says. 'As a matter of fact, I was born within two miles of New Street, Birmingham. The musical enthusiasm which made the Festivals so notable was not local, in the narrowest sense. These concerts drew music-lovers from miles around—even from the Black Country (where they do appreciate good singing).—EDITOR, The Radio Times.]

What Women Want.

DEAR SIR,—Is it not rather unfortunate that Miss Eleanor Farjeon in the verse 'T is for Talks,' of her Broadcast Alphabet, should take it for granted that the talks for 'Mother' should of necessity be on a lower intellectual scale than those tuned for 'Father's' ears? There are a large number of women who resent the idea that because they are women they must therefore be catered for in the 'homely chat,' as being the topic in which they are primarily interested! By all means let us have 'Talks' in which any and all intelligent adults can be interested, grading them for the specialist or for the average listener, but do let us have done with intellectual classification which attempts to rest on differentiation of sex.—E. L. ACRES, Barnet.

A Quiet Hour.

DEAR SIR,—I wonder whether it has ever occurred to the B.B.C. to broadcast—say, once a week—a special programme of restful music for those who find jazz and the more difficult classical stuff more stimulating than soothing.—R.A.C., Epping.

BOTH SIDES OF THE MICROPHONE

A Stormy 'First Night.'

ONE is constantly reading in one's morning paper of scenes at the 'first nights' of plays which have not proved to the liking of their audience. But surely there was never such a 'scene' as that which, almost twenty years ago, attended the first production at the Abbey Theatre, Dublin, of John Millington Synge's play, The Playboy of the Western World. Synge was a director of the little theatre down on the quays of the Liffey which had been founded three years before as a home for that National drama which he, together with such enthusiasts as Lady Gregory, was endeavouring to create. Irish pride is very quick to imagine reflections upon the national character, and for a week the Abbey Theatre was the scene of a nightly riot. There was not even an orchestra-pit separating the stage from the auditorium; the brilliant company of Irish Players had a hard time of it.

'The Playboy' to be Broadcast.

SINCE those wild days, Synge's play has won the reputation it deserves. Today not even the most fervent patriot resents the spectacle of a man being idolized in Ireland for killing his father. But to those of us who recall the stormy days, the broadcasting of The Playboy on Thursday, January 19, seems to set the seal on the triumph of the man who, more than any other, initiated the renaissance of the Irish drama of which the Abbey Theatre has been the vital centre from the time of The Playboy of the Western World to the time of The Plough and the Stars.

Working Things Out.

SUCH is the speed at which we move these days and the multiplicity of material interests with which we are occupied, that very few of us have any time for thinking. It is a rare luxury, that quiet hour by the fireside or on a solitary walk when we find an opportunity of 'working things out.' Whether consciously or not, we have all our philosophy of life; we are all in some degree politicians, moralists, and economists in our attitude towards the problems of our daily existence—though it is seldom that we have the chance of putting our conceptions into words. A series of talks by the Master of Balliol College, Dr. A. D. Lindsay, begins at 7.25 p.m. on Friday, January 20, which should prove fascinating hearing. It is entitled, 'Philosophy and our Common Problems.' The word, 'Philosophy,' which is one of those 'red-rags-to-a-bull' words which are terrifying to the average Englishman, need not determine you to switch off your set. What Dr. Lindsay has to say will be of extraordinary interest to anyone who has ever given thought to problems less material than 'What shall we have for dinner?'

Which Singers 'Come Over' Best?

A FRIEND put forward an interesting theory to me the other day. 'I have always noticed,' he said, 'that artists with "very quiet" voices and the "intimate" style of singing come over the microphone a great deal better than the "big voices." I have very seldom heard a voice of operatic volume which sounded as pleasant as those of the "whispering baritones" and "crooning sopranos." The latter have no tendency to "blast." It may be that one day there will grow up a special branch of singing instruction intended to prepare artists specially for broadcasting, which will emphasize the importance of sweetness of tone, clarity of diction, and "intimacy" of style.'

MacCarthy on James.

THE 'I Remember' series of talks, to which I referred last week, opens on Thursday, January 19, at 9.15 p.m., with Desmond MacCarthy on Henry James. James has never been a best seller over here, though, of late years, his short stories (they are almost long enough to be termed 'short novels') which Martin Secker publishes in separate small volumes have had a considerable sale. If you have not read any of these or of his longer novels such as 'The Golden Bowl,' 'The Awkward Age' and 'The Americans,' you should do so. The present popularity of the 'psychological' novel has prepared the way for a new 'boom' in Henry James. His fine and subtle analysis of the reactions of cultured people were a trifle too tough for the literary teeth of Edwardian days. Born in 1843, the son of an American theologian, he spent the greater part of his life in England. In 1915 he was naturalized an Englishman—a graceful compensation to the country he loved and whose attitude towards the war he so greatly admired. Shortly before his death in 1916 he was awarded the Order of Merit. It should be interesting to hear what Mr. MacCarthy, a close personal friend, has to say of Henry James, who was in every way an exceptional man, a conscientious literary artist and student of behaviour.

The Secret of the East.

WHAT is the secret of the East—that mysterious difference between East and West which has baffled so many observers and persisted through so many centuries of history? China we popularly associate with porcelain, tea, opium, pagodas and junks—India with temples, elephants, tigers, fakirs and conjurers—Persia with carpets, Omar Khayyám and other poets—Arabia with sheikhs, Bedouins, camels, dates and mosques. Is there more to it than this? Sir Denison Ross, who last autumn gave a fascinating reading of Persian Poetry, will try to answer this question in his six talks on 'Eastern Art and Literature,' which begin on Wednesday, January 18, at 7.25 p.m. When Sir Denison Ross broadcast previously a correspondent in The Times acclaimed him as one of our finest broadcasters of poetry; and in his talks this time he will recite many gems from Chinese, Indian, Persian and Arabian literature. The course will be a rare, an almost unique opportunity for many listeners to hear about Eastern culture from an acknowledged authority.

The Ideal Set.

PROPOS my statement in the Christmas Number to the effect that only very few listeners can as yet have experienced the joy of really good 'reception,' I see that an interesting competition is announced in this month's issue of the Review of Reviews. A prize of Fifteen Guineas is offered for the best design for a standard receiving set sent in to the Review of Reviews before February 15 next. Any wireless amateur who wishes to have a shot at this competition will find the complete rules, as well as the coupon which must accompany each entry, in the issue above-mentioned. One limitation is that the components must not exceed £20 in cost, excluding the loud speaker and batteries but including the valves. One of the judges will be 'Clan Chattan,' whose wireless articles in the Review of Reviews are among the best of their kind outside the technical Press. This competition will serve the excellent purpose of stimulating the interest of amateurs throughout the country in designing sets which will give the best possible reception.

A Wild Man of Europe.

WYNDHAM LEWIS, who is to read a short story in the 'Writers of Today' series on Saturday evening, January 21, is a real 'wild man of Europe,' the Great Revolutionary of Art. Himself a painter, novelist and philosopher, he has set out to demolish as many accepted theories as have come within his reach. In painting he introduced the Vortecist movement into England and arrogantly defended its claim to aesthetic consideration. In writing, he has given the world a remarkable novel entitled, 'Tarr,' which would certainly not be to the taste of the young lady who likes her reading to be sheikish. In philosophy, he has published works 'demolishing' Spengler, Bergson and Bertrand Russell. Altogether a devastating personality. But do not confuse him with D. B. Wyndham Lewis, the humorist, who contributes 'The Sign of the Blue Moon' to one of our distinguished contemporaries.

'King George's Keys!'

FOR the assistance of those who will be listening to the Ceremony of the Keys which is to be relayed from the Tower of London on Monday, January 16, I will give a very brief description of the form which the ceremony takes. At five minutes to ten, the Chief Warden, Mr. Alexander Smoker, leaves his quarters in the Byward Tower and requests an escort, which in this case is composed of an N.C.O. and men from the 1st Bn. H.M. Coldstream Guards. He carries the Keys and a brass lantern presented to the Tower by the H.A.C., which was stationed in the Tower during the War. The sentry presents arms, and the Chief Warden, accompanied by the guard, marches to the Visitors' Gate on Tower Hill, locks it, and returns, passing through the Middle Tower, Byward Tower as far as Traitor's Gate, turns to the left through the Bloody Tower, locking each Gate in turn, and then proceeds to the Main Gate. He is challenged by the various sentries along the route. At the Main Gate the escort salutes the Keys by presenting arms. The challenge rings out, 'Whose Keys are these?' and the Chief Warden displays his Keys to the guard, which stands at attention. The Warden then raises his hat with the words, 'King George's Keys, God preserve King George,' the guard answering 'Amen.' The Keys are then deposited in the King's House, the Last Post sounded, and the ceremony is over. This year the descriptive talk will be given from the Byward Tower by H. V. Morton, most popular of the many writers on London.

Learning to Broadcast.

THE broadcast talks have come in for a certain amount of criticism lately in the Press, which seems to think that nothing is done by the B.B.C. to ensure that those who give talks are first shown how to give them. Actually the lot of the prospective talker is a hard one. He is subjected to 'voice tests' and given instruction in the art of speaking into the microphone. Quite a number of famous people have failed to pass these tests. The B.B.C. issues a little pamphlet entitled 'Suggestions to Speakers,' which conveys briefly the special art of broadcasting. It is not as easy as it may seem to the uninitiated. You must not drop your voice at the end of sentences, nor speak too fast nor declaim your words nor rustle your papers. The microphone plays queer tricks with the human voice. Many people who have excellent voices on a public platform fail lamentably when they come to broadcast.

BOTH SIDES OF THE MICROPHONE

A New John Gay Opera.

THE B.B.C., which has 'discovered' a number of new composers, has also 'rediscovered' a number of works of music which in the course of time had been allowed to lapse into obscurity. This seems to me to be one of its most admirable achievements. We have had recently the music of William Shield revived by Newcastle Station. In a few days we are to have two performances of The Return of Ulysses. On Wednesday evening, January 25, London and Daventry listeners will hear a broadcast of Damon and Phillida, a little opera by John Gay, author of The Beggar's Opera and Polly, the original MS. of which Mr. Robert Barclay Wilson recently discovered in a London Museum. The performance on the 25th will not, of course, be a first performance (Gay's works were played in the eighteenth century with great success), but it will be the first occasion on which the opera has been given for many, many years. I wonder if there is any listener who remembers hearing Damon and Phillida. The music is of the same gay and delicate quality as that of The Beggar's Opera, and has been simply scored by Mr. Barclay Wilson for harpsichord and small orchestra.

Commentaries on 'I' Coop.'

THE Third Round of the F.A. Cup is to be played on Saturday, January 14. The struggle for the coveted 'Coop' will really begin then—for the first two rounds are merely eliminating heats. London and Daventry football enthusiasts will hear a commentary on the Arsenal v. West Bromwich Albion tie, relayed from the Highbury Ground. This game will be described by George Allison, who is already well known to the broadcast football public for his vivid and accurate accounts of 'Soccer' matches. From Liverpool Station, Ernest Edwards will describe for the benefit of Merseyside listeners another tough Third Round match—the Corinthians v. New Brighton, relayed from the New Brighton ground.

Discovering a Standard.

I SUPPOSE that no standards are so vague as those by which we judge the various arts. Most of us stop at the 'knowing what we like' stage; but there must be many who would be glad to know along what general lines the trained critics form their judgment. It is with a view to helping these uninitiated that a new series of 7.25 talks has been planned under the general title of 'How to Appreciate.' The talkers in this series, which opens on Thursday, January 19, with a talk on 'How to Appreciate Pictures' by Mr. H. Wellington, a former lecturer at the National Gallery, are to be experts in their various subjects—though what they have to say will bear no trace of the dreaded stigma of 'highbrowism.' Rupert Lee, one of the pioneers of the development of concrete sculpture in building, will talk on 'Sculpture,' Sir Banister Fletcher on 'Architecture,' Peter Latham on 'Music,' and Desmond MacCarthy on 'Poetry.'

The Alfred Barker Quartet.

ON Sunday afternoon, January 15, Manchester listeners will hear the newly formed Alfred Barker String Quartet. The leader of this quartet is Alfred Barker, principal violonist of the Hallé Orchestra, assisted by Leon Ogden (second violin), Russell Brown (viola) and Carl Fuchs (cello). Their first broadcast programme will consist of quartets by Beethoven and Mozart. In the same concert there are to be harp solos by Charles Collier, harpist to the Hallé Orchestra, and songs to harp accompaniment by Hugh Mackay.

Has Farming a Future?

COUNTRY-DWELLERS in Great Britain often complain that everything nowadays is arranged for the townsman—including broadcast programmes! That this is not true, Daventry (5XX) listeners will have an opportunity of proving when Mr. J. W. Robertson Scott begins on Tuesday, January 17 (8 p.m.), his series of six talks on 'Has Farming a Future?' Mr. Robertson Scott, well known as the author of 'The Dying Peasant' and as editor of The Countryman, has firsthand knowledge of agriculture in other countries besides our own, and what he has to say about the way farming is carried on in Japan, Holland, and Denmark should prove of interest in comparison with British farming.

Bournemouth's Religious Services.

DURING 1928 Bournemouth Station will continue its policy of broadcasting one local evening service every month. Church of England services will come, under the direction of the Rev. Eric Southam, from All Saints, Southbourne, and Free Church Services from the Punshon Memorial Church, Richmond Hill. These services will be relayed in alternate months. There will be an occasional Roman Catholic Service from the Studio—and the monthly Studio Service for the Sick will be continued as before, on the first Thursday afternoon of every month. On Sunday, January 15, a service is to be relayed from the Punshon Memorial Church at 8 p.m. The address will be given by the Rev. J. Stephens Roose.

What the Microphone Hears.

CONSIDERING how persistent and pitiless an eavesdropper the microphone is, it is strange how little is unintentionally broadcast. P. C. Wren's story in our Christmas Number did not, however, strain probability, for I have myself occasionally overheard, during O.B.'s of dance bands, the talk of people standing near the microphone. The unintentional recording of such scraps of conversation is not confined to broadcasting. I have at home an early gramophone record of the Eroica Symphony conducted by Sir Henry Wood on which, after the end of the movement, someone (Sir Henry, I suppose) says quite plainly, 'Thank you, Wilson.' I hear, too, that a recent recording by the H.M.V. people at the Three Choirs Festival had to be scrapped entirely because, during a quiet passage in the symphony in question, a feminine voice was plainly audible on the record saying: 'Now, tell me, dear, where did you get those stockings?'

The Turn o' the Year.

THE various seasons and changes of season are celebrated from Cardiff with programmes of specially 'seasonable' music. The next of these broadcasts should properly welcome in spring, though when exactly spring does come in this contrary northern climate of ours is difficult to tell—and grows more difficult each year. One hears of trains snowed up in late April—and yet some years there are afternoons in January tender with spring. Cardiff's programme on Sunday, January 15, is to be a sort of 'half-way house' between winter and spring programmes. Its title is 'Turn o' the Year.' It will celebrate the varying moods of those days when the crocus is fighting the hard earth and the snowdrifts yielding to the first really golden sunshine.

The Greatest Lecture Room of All.

MANY of you who are preoccupied with the 'lighter side' of broadcasting perhaps hardly realise what a lot of interest is now taken in the B.B.C.'s evening 'educational' talks—that is, those given usually at 7.25 p.m. During the past autumn the B.B.C. has made many new friends among the members of organisations with a social, recreational or educational purpose. It is now in touch with nearly 1,500 such bodies, which distribute copies of the Talks Programme and, if they happen to possess premises of their own, often complete their educational equipment by the installation of receiving apparatus. Among the bodies that have lately begun to experiment with the possibilities of wireless adult education are to be found evening institutes (L.C.C.), prisons, educational settlements and guildhouses, industrial welfare organisations, trade unions and rural community councils. Several large business firms with premises used for recreational purposes by their employees are considering how far the broadcast talks can be made of service. Public libraries have been quick to see that listeners need their help in connection with the talks, and now over 150 libraries provide copies of the programmes and aids-to-study pamphlets for reference, and also display the B.B.C. poster offering guidance to listeners in their reading.

Discussion Groups.

A NUMBER of lively discussion-groups have sprung up in connection with the lecture courses—here a group to follow the language lessons, there a small gathering of blind listeners to discuss the literature talks, elsewhere a group of students at a technical college interested in electrical engineering. Many of these groups have reported enthusiastically on their experiences. Another direction in which we may hope to see developments in the near future is in the provision of talks for young people between fourteen and eighteen. The B.B.C. Adult Education Section has been consulting with bodies like the Y.M.C.A., Scouts' headquarters, dockland settlements, London working boys' clubs, and some of the 7.25 p.m. series to come will reflect their interest in hobbies, physical exercises, pets, handicrafts, elementary mechanics, and so on.

Roll Up for the Radio Circle!

THE uneasy time of unformed resolutions and ill-digested turkeys being past, let me recall to all Children's Hour listeners that, in accordance with the new scheme announced not long ago in The Radio Times, there is to be from January 1 an annual subscription for membership of the Radio Circle instead of merely one entrance fee as formerly. The reason for this change of plan was, you will remember, that it will enable the Radio Circle to be a live, active organization, instead of one which has on its books the names of people who have grown up or lost touch and interest. Moreover, the annual subscription means more money for hospitals and other 'good causes.' All subscriptions paid by new members between June and the end of December, 1927, give membership for the whole of 1928. A Calendar (as well as a badge) will be sent to all new members who join before the end of February—as well as to all old members who renew their membership. You all know what good work the Radio Circle stands for, so please help by sending in your subscriptions as soon as possible!

This hymn, which is numbered 229 in 'The People's Hymn Book,' will be sung from St. Martin-in-the-Fields this evening. We print it in full herewith for the convenience of listeners who may not be in possession of the Hymn Book.

My God, my Father, make me strong,
When tasks of life seem hard and long,
To greet them with this triumph song,
Thy Will be done.

Draw from my timid eyes the veil,
To show, where earthly forces fail,
Thy power and love must still prevail,
Thy Will be done.

With confident and humble mind,
Freedom in service I would find,
Praying through every toil assigned,
Thy Will be done!

Things deemed impossible I dare,
Thine is the call and Thine the care,
Thy wisdom shall the way prepare,
Thy Will be done.

All power is here and round me now,
Faithful I stand in rule and vow,
While 'tis not I, but ever Thou,
Thy Will be done!

Heaven's music chimes the glad days in,
Hope soars beyond death, pain and sin,
Faith shouts in triumph, Love must win,
Thy Will be done!

If I Were A Millionaire

Hello, everybody! Guess who's calling! A philosopher—a fellow who hasn't annexed any coin, and so praises the desirability of doing without. All the same, I dream sometimes that I'm opulent; and my word, don't I do myself well! Cars and yachts, purple and fine linen, first class travel, theatre stalls, and all that sort of thing. The best is good enough for me; and that's where I'm stuck when it comes to breakfast. I can't improve on what I get already, for you don't need to be a millionaire to enjoy

9.5 A CHORAL AND INSTRUMENTAL CONCERT

Members of the HALLÉ CHORUS, conducted by HAROLD DAWBER

Death, I do not fear thee (from the Motet, 'Jesus, Priceless Treasure') ..... Bach
 Quarens me (from the Requiem Mass) ..... Berlioz
 But if from Thy psalter (from the Alto Rhapsody) ..... Brahms

Soloist, STEPHANIE BAKER

KATHLEEN MOORHOUSE ('Cello) and ERIC FOAG (Pianoforte)

Sonata in A, Op. 69 ..... Beethoven
 (1) Fairly fast; (2) Scherzo—Very Quick;
 (3) Slow, in a singing style, leading to (4) Very lively

THIS Pianoforte and 'Cello Sonata (Beethoven's Op. 69) is perhaps the finest of the five he wrote for these instruments. In its delightful poise and breadth it bespeaks the mature artist, master alike of his medium and his moods.

Of its four Movements the Scherzo (the Second), with its leaping syncopations, has a peculiar tang in it that most people, when they have tasted it once, particularly want to savour again.

CHORUS

O pure in heart .....
 O gladsome Light ..... ('The Golden Legend')
 The night is calm and cloudless ..... Sullivan

Soloist, FLORENCE WILSON

Music, when soft voices die ..... Parry

THE first of these choruses from Sullivan's setting of Longfellow's poem is sung in the fourth Scene of the Cantata, when the heroine, Elsie, insists upon giving her life to save her lover's. The Attendants sing:

O pure in heart! from thy sweet dust shall grow
 Lilies upon whose petals will be written
 'Ave Maria' in characters of gold.

The second chorus is an Evening Hymn sung by peasants.

The third extract is sung by Elsie and her Attendants when, on the road to Salerno (where she is to make her sacrifice) they have encamped at evening on a height overlooking the sea.

KATHLEEN MOORHOUSE

Piece in the form of a Habanera ..... Ravel
 Elegy ..... Fauré
 Scherzo ..... Van Goens

CHORUS

Faithful and true (from 'Lohengrin') ..... Wagner
 Duet for Basses, 'The Lord is a Man of War' (from 'Israel in Egypt') ..... Handel
 God is a Spirit (from 'The Woman of Samaria') ..... Sterndale Bennett

THE first extract is the famous Bridal Chorus in which, at the end of the marriage ceremony of Elsa and her deliverer Lohengrin, the nobles of Brabant greet the happy pair.

HANDEL'S music, which sings the praises of the Lord as a man of war, who caused Pharaoh's hosts to perish in the Red Sea, is one of those splendid, rolling pieces in which he so finely caught the spirit of the words.

As an expression of fierce Old Testament exultation in the fall of foes it is not easily beaten.

Compare this with Sterndale Bennett's music to another view of Omnipotence—as the Holy Spirit, who must be worshipped in spirit and in truth.

8.45 THE WEEK'S GOOD CAUSE: Appeal on behalf of the Hampshire and Dorset Babies' Home, by Miss E. D. FENWICK

THIS Home was founded in 1916 for fatherless babies whose mothers have to work, and it now looks after 23 children from a fortnight old till they are two. The Home also trains educated girls as children's nurses, giving them eighteen months' tuition in all branches of nursery management.

At the present time the particular need of the Home is for warm clothes for the babies during the winter months. An Appeal which was broadcast from this station some time back resulted in a considerable quantity of warm clothing being provided for the Home, but fresh supplies are now beginning to be urgently needed.

All contributions or gifts of babies' clothing should be sent to the Matron, Hampshire and Dorset Babies' Home, Fairholme, 14, Commercial Road, Parkstone.

A FAIRY PLAY BY MAURICE MAETERLINCK

Maeterlinck's Fairy Play has enchanted children and grown-ups the whole world over. Now comes the good news that it is to be broadcast. No play ever written is more suited to the microphone than this elusive fabric of fairy and music.

MAURICE MAETERLINCK'S Blue Bird is probably at the present time the most famous fairy play in the world. It has achieved what Peter Pan has never managed to achieve: that is, a classical reputation in Continental and English-speaking countries alike. For while Peter made himself famous by decamping on the day he was born from his mother, I have yet to learn that he has ever gained much notoriety by decamping from his mutter or his maman or his madre. Tyltyl and Mytyl, on the other hand, have conducted their pursuit of happiness not only through the Land of Memory and the Palace of Night and the Kingdom of the Future, but through Scandinavia and Czecho-Slovakia and New Zealand, and half the countries in the stamp album. It is clear from these peregrinations that their quest touches us nearly. There are few human beings strong enough to resist joining in the general hue and cry after happiness. And when Maeterlinck offers a philosophico-fairy allegory of this hue and cry, the world rushes to the theatre again and again to hear him say that happiness is to be found at home.

IT seems to me that Maeterlinck gave us the best of himself in his earliest period, when he was of imagination and of mystery all compact, and that as he has become more and more explicit, he has become less and less interesting. In the days when he was delighting us with Pelléas and Mélisande and terrifying us with The Death of Tintagiles, people used to deride the little rows of dots with which he would end every sentence . . . for all the world as though (to quote a satirical critic on Mr. H. G. Wells) he could go on stopping for ever. But those dots conveyed something of the essential Maeterlinck, they confessed a sense of futility, they were an expression of his belief that 'it is idle to think that by means of words any real communication can ever pass from one man to another.' Maeterlinck's great secret

The Hunt for Happiness.

By Herbert Farjeon.

Mr. Farjeon is well known to readers of The Radio Times as an author and dramatic critic. In this short article he briefly analyses the meaning behind Maeterlinck's play.

was the concealment of nothing. His Mélisande was magical because she was the most lointaine of all princesses—a princess who came from Nowhere. His opening doors were horrifying not because, when they opened, there was something behind them, but because, when they opened, there wasn't anything behind them at all. And there is beauty in the ending of The Blue Bird, which belongs to his middle period, because when it is found that the prize has been in the kitchen all the time, away flies the prize. To be conscious of happiness is to destroy happiness. The Blue Bird will only sing when it is invisible.

YET we can never give up the pursuit of it, and although we can never catch it, it must escape from us before we recognize it. Cast your mind back over the past, recall the times when you were happy, and ask yourself whether at those times you were conscious of that happiness? Is not the exquisite quality of the memory due to the fact that you were too happy to think about happiness at all? Should we not shed a tear over the desperadoes who must for ever be declaring, 'I am enjoying myself!' or 'This is a lovely view!'—for these emphatic affirmations are but hollow echoes of some far-away feeling that was once too fine and too pure to be protested.

There is a barrel-organ in the Adelaide Road. The organ-grinder has come to a halt just by the lamp-post, it is two o'clock in the afternoon, the sun concentrates its heat upon the very moment, burning as no sun-conscious of a past or of a future could ever burn. The afternoon is before me, the whole long afternoon I lie in the embrace of the instant. I hear the tune clapped out by the barrel-organ's rattling teeth: 'Daisy, Daisy, Give me your Answer, Do'—I hear the tune, but

The Blue Bird will be heard from London and Daventry at 9.35 p.m. on Monday, January 9. Details of the broadcast will be found in the programme on page 10. Several of those who took part in the stage play will be heard in the microphone version.

I do not listen to it, for hearing is of the present, listening of the past. When you begin to listen, it is always too late. The old men, with their bright eyes, listen. The scramblers after fine taste listen, their ears pricked up even for Dove Son Io. Ah, blessed tune, 'Daisy, Daisy, Give me your Answer, Do!'—blessed because once it was not beautiful to me, because once it shone upon me as the sun shone upon me, sucking from my heart no sorrow-suffocating gratitude, no fiercely joyous cry of 'Lovely, lovely day!' Pity the poor creature who must hug beauty to his soul. And pity yourself for searching in the present what can only be found in the past, and for killing your memories even as you pore over them.

HAPPINESS can be found only in the past, but it exists only in the present, and perhaps that is what Maeterlinck means in The Blue Bird. Perhaps, too, that is what Bernard Shaw unconsciously means when, in Getting Married, after a discussion on happiness, one of the characters drops a bombshell by remarking that 'All this talk about happiness seems to me rather vulgar.' Open the gateway to happiness, and there would be such a rush to scramble through that the population of the world would be squeezed to death. But even that might be better for the world than to waste its time knocking on the gate for admittance, pestering quacks for the philosopher's stone, scurrying in and out of picture palaces, or striving to dissipate boredom in a deck-chair on the Riviera. 'Give me a shell of salt and a three-legged table!' cried Horace—but even these modest demands slew their intention even as they were uttered. Horace may have been happy with his shell of salt and his three-legged table once, but he could never be happy with them again. Give up thinking about happiness and turn your attention to something a little more decent. Then the Blue Bird may light upon your shoulder—but so very gently that you will not know it.

ACT VI

Scene 1. The Leaving-taking
Scene 2. The Awakening

The Blue Bird, symbol of happiness or truth, is a rare and precious thing, very difficult to find. It is, perhaps, enough to seek it.

The children, Tyltyl and Mytyl having gone to bed, are visited by the Fairy Berylune, who tells them that she is anxious to find the Blue Bird so that she may give it to her sick child. She says she would like them to help her to find it and gives Tyltyl a magic diamond by means of which he is able to bring all things to life and provide them with souls. Light comes from the lamp; and Fire, Water, Milk, Sugar and Bread, and even the Dog and Cat, all come from their accustomed places. With Light as guide, they go on their quest, first to the Land of Memory, then to the Palace of Night, the Palace of Happiness, a Graveyard, the Kingdom of the Future, and at last, after many adventures, home again.

WHY BE POOR?

When By Training Your Mind By Means of Pelmanism You Can Easily Double Your Mental Output.

SOMEONE has said that the human mind, being a product of the struggle for existence, is essentially a food-seeking system.

That is to say, it is a system which enables you to earn your living.

Of course it is more than that, or can be made more than that, by proper training and education. But essentially it is that at present.

It follows, therefore, that unless you are fully utilising your mental system you are not earning as good a living as otherwise you would do. And there are thousands of people to-day who are only utilising one-quarter or one-half of their mental powers.

Consequently—it is no use making any bones about it—they are Poor.

Poverty and Poor Thinking.

In fact, Poverty in thousands of cases (not in all) is due to Poor Thinking.

The problem, therefore, is how to utilise the whole of one's mental powers.

That is the problem which Pelmanism solves. Pelmanism trains your mind. It trains it scientifically and on the right lines. It develops powers and faculties which you have allowed to fall into disuse. It teaches you not to be Forgetful, not to be Self-Doubtful, not to be Timid or Irresolute, not to allow yourself to fall into the rut of Routine.

And, on the other hand, it develops your Initiative and your Will Power, it enables you to cultivate the art of Concentration, it sharpens your powers of Observation, it gives you Self-Confidence and Resourcefulness, it trains your senses and develops your powers of artistic appreciation, it intensifies your capacity for intellectual enjoyment, it doubles your Efficiency, and consequently not only increases your Earning Power but helps you to live a fuller and happier life.

People Who Are Securing Promotion.

That is why so many people write to say that as a result of taking up Pelmanism they have doubled their incomes, secured promotion to higher positions in life and gained other valuable benefits.

A Business Man writes: "It is with feelings of great pleasure I am writing to inform you that I have been promoted to the position of General Manager. When I took up the Pelman Course I knew I had the abilities to succeed, but truly you showed me how." (F. 32,210.)

A Clerk writes: "Six months after studying your course my salary was doubled. I realise more and more that there is a harvest to be reaped through Pelmanism." (D. 23,091.)

A Telegraphist reports that he has been able to secure an appointment simply and solely through Pelmanism. (B. 28,743.)

A Fitter writes: "Since I have been a Pelmanist I have had two promotions, which, I think, is mostly due to your very excellent advice and instructions." (P. 27,454.)

A Civil Engineer writes: "I am considerably more observant, better in health and can concentrate on things I dislike but have to do. My memory for names is improving; I can visualize easily." (G. 32,075.)

A Clerk writes: "I have received two substantial increases of salary in six months and have very bright prospects for the future." (L. 24,278.)

A Doctor writes: "I have changed from an easy-going, take-it-for-granted sort, to a man with a purpose and joy of achievement; and I can see that others are observing the change to my gain." (K. 30,108.)

A Shep Assistant writes: "Allow me to pay my little tribute to Pelmanism. I had an increase last week in my salary, and a very good one at that. My sales have trebled and are still 'looking upwards.' It has acted like magic in my case. A few months ago I lacked Self-Confidence; now I feel capable of 'tackling' all corners. To repeat another student's statement, 'Pelmanism was the best investment I ever made.' Please accept my gratitude." (P. 31,238.)

An Electrician reports that he has "already gained a substantial rise in wages." (S. 27,470.)

A Printer reports the following results: "Increased Self-Confidence; Optimism; Improved Memory; Ease of Concentration; Clearer and more Active Ideas and Imagination; Keener Observation; Initiative." (W. 32,045.)

An Engine Room Artificer, R.N., reports the following benefits: "Recovery of Self-Respect due to the eradication of bad habits. Return of Efficient Memory resulting in increased Self-Confidence, Eradication of such weaknesses as Self-Consciousness and Unnecessary Fears." (K. 32,197.)

A Pharmacist writes: "I have benefited inestimably from this Course, not in a startling way but in many small ways which would be difficult to define. I've always had a purpose, but Pelmanism has made it clear that this purpose must be kept alive and healthy to be of any good. I see life now as a thing to be enjoyed, not tolerated; my outlook is broader and kinder. The cost of this Course is nothing compared with the value given in return." (R. 32,355.)

A Mining Engineer writes: "Pelmanism has benefited me considerably. I have just got a post with £20 a month greater salary than I have ever had, namely, £60 a month and maintenance. I have now got absolute confidence in myself. I was able to impress my new employer that I was the man he needed." (L. 26,265.)

Further examples are given in a little book entitled "The Efficient Mind," which also contains a full description of the revised Pelman Course and shows how you can enrol for a course of Pelmanism on specially convenient terms. A copy of this most interesting book will be sent, gratis and post free, to everyone who writes (or calls) for it to-day to the Pelman Institute, 95, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1.

Readers who can call at the Institute will be cordially welcomed. The Chief Consultant will be delighted to have a talk with them, and no fee will be charged for his advice.

1928.

How to Get More Out of Life During the Next 12 Months.

THIS is the first month of a new year. 1928, with all its possibilities, all its opportunities, stretches ahead of you.

What are you going to do during the coming year?

Are you going to do better—not merely in the sense of earning more money (although that is included)—but in the direction of improving your status and position, of increasing your happiness and of getting more out of life generally?

Or is next December going to see you in the same old rut, making at most a few more shillings a week, with the same difficulties worrying you, the same fear that you are stagnating haunting you, with the same sense that you are not developing—mentally, socially, and economically—as you should be, with the same feeling that during the year you have missed opportunities you might have taken?

Every reader who wishes to do better in the next 12 months should write to-day for a free copy of a book entitled "The Efficient Mind," which will show you how thousands of men and women are training their minds and cultivating their senses by means of Pelmanism, and thereby increasing their Efficiency and Earning-Power, banishing Timidity, Depression and Morbid and "Defeatist" states of mind, developing Self-Confidence and other valuable qualities, and cultivating their powers of appreciating the beauties of Nature, the Arts and Life generally.

A few examples of the reports received from those who are practising Pelmanism are given on this page, and many more will be found in the literature you can obtain, free of cost by using the coupon printed below.

On getting a copy of "The Efficient Mind" you will see how, by means of Pelmanism, you can develop those qualities of Concentration, Observation, Initiative, Self-Confidence, Resourcefulness and Originality which make men and women successful, and will enable you to live a fuller, a richer and a more effective life.

The Pelman Course, which has recently been thoroughly revised, contains the cream of the experience gained by the Pelman Institute in the course of training over 500,000 minds. The revised Course is fully described in "The Efficient Mind." This book will show you how to "do better" in 1928. Write for a copy to-day (using the following coupon) to the Pelman Institute, 95, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1, and this book will be sent you by return, gratis and post free.

(From London)

ERWIN SCHULHOFF (Pianoforte)

A CHAMBER ORCHESTRA, under the direction of

ERNEST ANSERMET

ORCHESTRA
Chamber Symphony
Schönberg

MANY listeners have already heard some of Schönberg's earlier music, his Sextet, Resplendent Night (Verklärte Nacht) having been broadcast a few months ago.

This Chamber Symphony, his Op. 9, dates from 1906 (when he was just over thirty), and goes a little farther in modernism than does that tuneful and romantic work.

The Symphony requires fifteen solo instruments—Flute (changing at times to Piccolo), Oboe, Cor Anglais (the Alto Oboe), two Clarinets, Bass Clarinet, Bassoon, Double Bassoon, two Horns, and the five Strings. When the music is played in large halls, the composer directs that the Strings shall be doubled.

The work is in one Movement, as are several other extended pieces of Schönberg (e.g., the Quartet in D Minor played a few weeks ago, and Resplendent Night). It is in five sections, the second and fourth of which roughly correspond to the Scherzo and Slow Movement of the older String Quartet. This is closely woven music, made out of a great many themes (a thematic analysis gives no fewer than twenty-three of these), so, obviously, one hearing will not enable anyone to follow its development at all closely. All that one can expect to get at one sitting is some sense of the music's moods, perhaps a hint or two of its logical bases, and an idea as to the composer's power of persuading us that he has his goal clearly in sight all the time—and that it is worth the journey to it.

SCHULHOFF and Orchestra
Concerto for Pianoforte and Small Orchestra
Schulhoff

SOME of Schulhoff's music was heard at one of the B.B.C.'s Chenil Chamber Concerts a year ago, on the evening devoted to Czechoslovak composers.

The two divisions of his Pianoforte Concerto (it is in one unbroken Movement) are respectively marked Slow and Quick, 'à la Jazz.' Another work of Schulhoff is his Five Jazz Studies, one of which bears the title, Toccata on the shimmy, 'The Kitten on the Keys.'

ORCHESTRA

'The Creation of the World' Ballet Music Milhaud
Oetel for Wind Instruments.....Stravinsky

IN the eighteenth century the Creation was deemed fit subject for a full-dress Oratorio. It is clearly in accord with the spirit of these stirring times that the twentieth should celebrate the ultimate marvel in the dance.

Milhaud has shown his liking for the Ballet more than once—notably in writing The Blue Train, which Diaghilev's Russian dancers first interpreted a few seasons ago. This is the first English performance of his music for The Creation of the World.

PARRY JONES (Tenor)

Questa o quella ('This woman or that,' from

'Rigoletto') ..... Verdi

The Dream (from 'Manon Lescaut') .. Massenet

Celeste Aida ('Heavenly Aida,' from 'Aida')

Verdi

IN the first Air, the libertine Duke declares that one woman, to him, is as fair as the next. He finds them all equally attractive, and must pay attention to each.

THE second piece is a dream of Manon's lover.

He sees her in her cottage in a wood—a lovely maid, surrounded by all Nature's loveliness. Then the beautiful vision alters, and Manon is no longer there. The dream is prophetic, for though he does not know it, in a few moments he and Manon are to be parted.

THE hero of Aida is Radames, an Egyptian Captain, who is made leader of the Egyptian Army, and, when he returns victorious, is offered the hand of the King's daughter, who loves him. The tragedy which follows is due to the love which Radames and Aida, daughter of the captive Ethiopian King, bear for one another.

Radames sings Heavenly Aida near the beginning of the Opera. He dreams of his return, as victorious leader, to his beloved.

OCTET

Selection from 'Don Juan' ..... Mozart

PARRY JONES

Dawn with her rosy mantle

Shall I tell thee the name of thy lover? ..... (from 'The Barber

Prize Song (from 'The Mastersingers') Wagner

THE first two Airs are two serenades sung by Count Almaviva to Rosina, the jealousy-guarded ward of Doctor Bartolo. The first air comes very soon after the opening of the Opera, at dawn outside Rosina's house.

The Second Air is the Count's response to Rosina's request that she may know the name of her lover.

GETTING a house is no easy matter nowadays; decorating a house is costly, and furnishing it is a serious matter. But after all these are accomplished, there remains the crowning problem of 'settling in.' Everyone knows the innumerable little difficulties that occur, when everything refuses to run smoothly, when windows stick and chimneys pour acrid torrents of smoke into the room. How best to live through this trying period of initiation Miss Cartland will tell this afternoon.

THE Pilgrim's Chant, approaching and withdrawing, the wild Dance of the Maidens of the Venus Mount, Knight Tannhäuser's Love Invocation, the Rising of Venus, the Love Song again, the Wild Revels of the Court of Venus, the Pilgrim's Chant once more—these make up the famous and popular Overture to Tannhäuser.

BARBARA CARTLAND,
who gives a talk this afternoon on 'Settling into a House.'

Thus is pictured the eternal strife between the carnal and the spiritual.

8.0 RACHEL MORTON
Depuis le jour ('Since the Day,' from 'Louise') Charpentier
Ritorna vincitore ('Return victorious,' from 'Aida') ..... Verdi

JULIEN, a Parisian artist, falls in love with Louise, a working girl. Her parents will not let her marry a man of so happy-go-lucky a profession, as they think it, so the lovers run away together to Montmartre. There, in their charming little garden overlooking Paris, Louise sings this song, telling Julien how much happier she is with him than toiling in the dull workshop she used to know.

RADAMES, the hero of Verdi's Opera, has been appointed Leader of the Egyptian Army against the Ethiopians. Aida, a slave of the King's daughter, loves him; but she is the daughter of the Ethiopian King, so is moved by opposing affections.

After the Egyptians have sent Radames off with acclamations and wishes for his safe return, she is left alone, repeating their words 'Return victorious,' and calling upon Heaven to pity her distress.

8.10 ORCHESTRA
Prelude to Act IV of 'La Traviata' Verdi
Overture to 'Il Seraglio'

('The Harem') ..... Mozart

IN La Traviata, the heart of Violetta Valéry, a Parisian courtesan, has at last been touched by the sincerity of a suitor; but, as she at last finds happiness, she dies of consumption. This Prelude to the final Act of the Opera reveals all the sadness of the lovers, and near the end the phrases falter, as falters the breath of life in the breast of poor Violetta.

THE Composer did not call The Harem an 'Opera,' but a Comic Musical Play ('Komisches Singspiel'). It is concerned with a capture by pirates, a selling into slavery, and threats of death and torture—all treated in the gayest and most insouciant fashion, and this bright Overture sets the tone of the work.

It is easily followed, consisting of three sections—(1) Very quick; (2) Moving steadily; (3) Very quick—of which the middle section is an anticipation of the opening Air of the Opera and the last section a curtailed repetition of the first section.

THE repertory of pieces written specially for the Military Band used to be sadly scanty.

Now, more good composers are writing a little for it, and there is plenty of room for more first-class music written by men who have something to say—who know how to write for Wind without being windy.

Holst has contributed a couple of capital Suites.

This one contains three pieces—(1) a vigorous Chaconne (a piece in which one bit of time is repeated over and over again in the bass, occasionally in other parts); (2) an expressive

Intermezzo; and (3) a lively March.

THIS Concerto by Bach comes nearer than many of the older Concertos to the modern form in which a soloist (two in this case) plays a conspicuous part on an orchestral background. It consists of three Movements:—

FIRST MOVEMENT. A Quick Movement in which the two Pianos are played mostly in a kind of dialogue.

SECOND MOVEMENT. A Slow Movement for the Pianos only.

THIRD MOVEMENT. A Fugue written on a bright Tune. In this vigorous Movement the instruments enter in turn, first one Piano, then the second Piano, then the stringed instruments working downwards.

PART I

THE STATION ORCHESTRA, conducted by LEIGH HENRY

LEIGH HENRY (born 1889) was at first intended for the profession of architect, but took up music also, and eventually devoted himself entirely to it, particularly in its relation to the theatre. He was for some years Director of Music at Gordon Craig's School for the Art of the Theatre, in Florence, and has composed several works for the stage, besides chamber pieces, songs, and orchestral works. He is actively connected with modern musical movements and with the furthering of Welsh national art, and to-night we are to hear some fruits of the latter of these interests.

 Alto Rhapsody ..... Brahms

GETHE, getting into correspondence with a pessimistic young man named Plessing, took an interest in him, visited him during a trip to the Harz Mountains, and afterwards, reflecting on his talks with the young man, wrote a poem about his journey and its interesting results.
 Of this poem, Brahms set several stanzas for Contralto Solo, Men's Choir and Orchestra. In the first two, poet and composer consider the sad estate of him who goes apart from men, comfort-less, unloved and unloving. Lonely, he becomes self-seeking, doing nothing to help the world onward.

Then, in the last portion of the poem, comes consolation, and here Brahms finely reflects and reinforces the cheering thoughts: 'But if from Thy Psalter, O Father of Love, one note may come to his ear, refresh his soul. Open his clouded eyes to see the thousand fountains that are near him in the desert!'

ORCHESTRA
 First Symphony ..... Brahms

IF this famous work were given an English nickname, it might be called 'The Cambridge Symphony.'

It was composed half a century since—in 1876. Stanford, Professor of Music at Cambridge, arranged a performance of the work, which Brahms was warmly invited to come and conduct, but all efforts at persuasion failed.

When Brahms wrote this First Symphony he was already well over forty. The other three great Symphonies which stand to his credit followed in quick succession.

Tuesday's Programmes continued (January 10)

The Symphony in C Minor follows the usual 'classical' forms, and is in four Movements. The First is very weighty and unusually serious even for Brahms. The vein of seriousness affects also the Second Movement, a gently-flowing piece, partly song-like, partly rhapsodic. Then comes a more light-spirited Movement, of a more scintillating rhythm, but one that is far from introducing the spirit of gaiety that we often find in one of the centre pieces of a Symphony.

The Last Movement, like the First, begins with a slow Introduction (with an unintentional quotation of a theme resembling that of the 'Cambridge Chimes,' which Brahms had never heard). Then after a change from the prevailing minor to a major key, and a short pause, the urgent Finale starts on its long, exulting course.

Serenade, 'Eine kleine Nachtmusik' ..... Mozart

AN Orchestral 'Serenade' in Mozart's day was a collection of light pieces, such as might be played at intervals in an evening's entertainment. This favourite Serenade consists of four delightful little pieces—a kind of miniature Symphony, but light as air and fragrant as the summer evenings for which such music was written.

The FIRST of its four pieces is a lively, dainty one, the SECOND is a thoughtful Romance, the THIRD is a rhythmical Minuet and Trio, and the FINALE is a wing-footed Rondo.

7.25 Professor R. M. Y. GLEADOWE: 'English Painting'

THERE has recently been a movement to revive interest in the British School of Painting, and remind ourselves that even if we have never had a Leonardo or a Michaelangelo, a Botticelli or a Rubens, a Rembrandt or a Goya, we yet can boast our Constable, Gainsborough, Reynolds and Turner, and many more painters not to be despised. This talk on English painting is to be given by the Slade Professor of Art in the University of Oxford.

A FAMOUS GAINSBOROUGH.

This picture of the artist's daughters displays the prince of portrait-painters in a particularly pleasant mood. Professor Gleadowe will make special mention of Gainsborough in his talk this evening at 7.25.

PIDGIN English—that strange langue de commerce which flourishes in China—has been responsible for some of the queerest things ever said in what purported to be the English tongue. Dr. Whymant (who, it will be remembered, gave a broadcast talk not long ago on Japan) has lived and worked in China and talked the queer jargon of whose humorous aspect he will give some idea tonight.

 Four Part Songs (for Female Voices, Harp and Two Horns) ..... Brahms
 I hear a harp; Come away, Death!; Greetings; Weep on the rocks (Song on the Death of Trenchard, from Ossian's 'Fingal')

THESE are among the pieces Brahms wrote for a choir of ladies that in his early days he conducted at Hamburg. He gets some lovely effects from his unusual accompaniment. Note this, for instance, in the Shakespeare song Come away, Death, and observe the gracious, easy charm of Greetings (called in the original Der Gd'ner—The car-deer) and the sadness of the last, a fine setting of some words (attributed to Ossian) on The Death of Trenchard, a hero who was killed by Cathullin.

3.40 ELSIE STELL (Violin) and MARGARET ABLETHORPE (Pianoforte)
 Sonata in F Minor
McEwen

IN Mr. McEwen's Sonata, in one Movement, there is great interest for the player and much beauty of an inward-looking kind.

His chamber music (some fourteen Quartets, four Sonatas, etc.) is perhaps less well-known than that of some writers of today. It is never extravagant, always well-knit and logical, the product of a philosophical mind.

 An Old Man ..... WORTLEY ALLEN
 A Young Stranger ..... STUART VINDEN

A mountain cottage on a midwinter night. Outside, a snowstorm rages. Alice is looking out through the window, while Joan, her younger sister, and Sarah, an old neighbour woman, are sitting over the fire. Alice's husband has failed to return home at his usual hour, and owing to the croakings of old Sarah, the foreboding of some terrible happening is fretting the younger woman. The story gives her hopes and fears.

Do You Draw Two Salaries?

What is your spare time worth to you? If you can write a good letter—if you have a little natural aptitude for literary work—you can be trained to earn a second income, and this "sideline" may be even more profitable than your regular occupation. You need not be a genius to become a successful writer. Many contributors who find a ready market for their articles and stories are men and women of average education. Training was the short-cut to their mastery of the rules of effective writing. The records of the Regent Institute (which has a world-wide reputation for success in training freelance journalists) contain scores of cases of almost instantaneous success won by students who had never written a line for publication before they enrolled.

A woman student placed 55 articles with leading journals within ten months of enrolment. Just over two years later she reported that she had sold more than 330 further MSS. Another student, in addition to placing articles, gained the appointment of dramatic critic to a well-known provincial morning paper. Yet another secured permanent and remunerative work as a result of the tuition, besides selling every one of the exercises submitted. Following are extracts from a few of the many hundreds of letters on file:

I am being successful in having all my work published, and thanks to the invaluable help and advice I received I have made writing a profitable pastime. I cannot speak too highly of the benefits of the Institute.

It is now some time since I finished the course in journalism. I wish to state that your advice has been invaluable to me in constructing articles of the right type. Unfortunately, I have had little time for writing. Almost all the articles I have turned out have been accepted, which you will agree is encouraging.

I promised to let you know what I made in the year after starting your valuable Course. I wrote three girls' short story books, for which I got £20 for the first two (and the royalties, which have not yet come in), and £30 for the third, without royalties. Besides this I wrote a few articles, which were accepted by the Daily Sketch and Daily Express, and which brought me in £12 18s. 6d., thus bringing the total for my first year to £82 18s. 6d. I really feel I owe a lot to you, as I should not have discovered this small talent without your journalistic Course.

LEARN TO WRITE; Earn While You Learn.

Hundreds of publications need the work of outside contributors. The supply of brightly-written articles and stories does not keep pace with the demand. Big prices are paid for good work.

The postal tuition given by the Regent Institute will show you definitely and practically how to write in the way that appeals to editors, what to write about, how to get ideas, and where to sell.

Send to-day for a free copy of the Institute's prospectus, "How to Succeed as a Writer." It contains much striking information of interest to literary aspirants and describes the Regent postal courses, which have enabled so many novices to earn while learning.

Cut this coupon out and post in an unscaled envelope (3d. stamp), or write a simple request for the booklet.

THE REGENT INSTITUTE
 (Dept. 258), 13, Victoria St., London, S.W.1.

Without obligation on my part, please send me a copy of "How to Succeed as a Writer"—free and post free.

William (A hot cross bun designer, in love with Polly) ..... HAROLD CLEMENCE

THE STATION ORCHESTRA ACT I

Scene.—The Village Green in Upper Wallop.
It is Daffodil's birthday, and in accordance with the custom in Comic Opera, the village maidens and yokels are preparing to come and sing about it. But Daffodil is in despair because her father has forbidden her to marry Jack, because it is only the First Act, and no wedding ever takes place in comic opera till the end of Act II.

Polly Popkiss calls in her young man William to consult as to the best way of softening father's heart. Hearing that he has a passion for butterflies, William suggests that they all go to Morocco where a particularly rare specimen called Heart's Desire may be obtained and presented as a votive offering to father. Polly consents to marry William at once in order that she may chaperone Daffodil, and they prepare to start for Morocco.

ACT II.

Scene.—A secluded bay on the Moroccan coast.

Daffodil, Jack, William and Polly have come to seek Heart's Desire. Polly has developed a taste for Sheikh, which is causing William a good deal of anxiety. Father arrives in an aeroplane, accompanied by village maidens. Fearful that father should obtain the Heart's Desire for himself and thus render their journey fruitless, they offer him the first butterfly they can find. It proves to be the wrong one, but, the end of Act II having arrived, father gives his consent to the wedding amid general rejoicings.

7.45 CATTERALL QUARTET CHAMBER CONCERT

Relayed from the Lesser Free Trade Hall
Relayed to London and Daventry

ARTHUR CATTERALL (1st Violin); JOHN L. BRIDGE (2nd Violin); FRANK PARK (Viola); JOHAN C. HOCK (Cello)

Quartet in D Minor ..... Turina
Andante Piacevole (Slow Movement) from String Quartet ..... Elgar
Scherzo, from String Quartet ..... Franck

JOAQUIN TURINA (born 1882) is one of the most distinguished of the present-day musicians of Spain. He and Manuel de Falla are the two Composers in whom the modern school of Spanish music, which is founded on the tunes and dances of the people, lives most intensely.

They are both Andalusians, and most of their works reflect the picturesqueness of the Southern landscapes, the warmth and colour of the national life, the thrumming rhythm of popular music born of the guitar, the tinge of the East that is still over the land once ruled by the Moors.

FRANCK'S String Quartet contains some of his most fragrant music, rich in harmony, striking, resourceful, fresh in technical construction, and full of nobility of feeling. The Scherzo, of great delicacy and fine imagination, is played on muted Strings.

8.30 IN THE STUDIO HELEN ANDERTON (Contralto)

Autumn ..... Crompton
I love thee ..... Grieg
None but the weary heart ..... Tchaikovsky

P.C. 24 ..... D. E. ORMEROD
Mary Gannett (Gannett's Wife) BETTY ELSMOR
Jane Rogers (Rogers' Wife) ... LUCIA ROGERS

A parrot who is able to give a detailed account of a person's behaviour, when questioned on the subject, might prove an asset in many households.

Jim Gannett, however, found that the possession of such a remarkable bird was a distinct liability.

BAND

Cornet Duet, 'Dot and Carrie' ..... White
(Soloists, C. JONES and H. SUTCLIFFE)

Selection from 'The Mastersingers'
Wagner, arr. Rimmer

'A QUIET HOUR'

Cast:

Claude Browne (on the staff of the Day Newspaper) ..... W. E. DICKMAN
Clariissa Browne (his wife) ..... HYLDA METCALF
Gladys (their servant) ..... BETTY ELSMOR

Claude Browne had made it a daily habit to rest in his study from five to six p.m. He had, in fact, taken great care to inform all and sundry that he considered it an almost sacred hour, during which, not even his wife was permitted to disturb him.

BAND

E Flat Bass Solo, 'Cyclops' ..... Rimmer
Selection from 'The Girl on the Film' ... Rollé

In the Near Future. News and Notes from the Southern Stations.

Leeds-Bradford.

The Leeds Art Theatre Players are presenting A Lady Calls on Peter, a play by Harry Wall, the well-known author of Havoc and other successful plays, on Tuesday, January 17.

Bournemouth.

As a continuation of her series of talks on 'The State Palaces of Paris,' the Hon. Mrs. Stuart Wortley will deal with the Palace of Chantilly on Monday, January 16.

The afternoon talk on Friday, January 20, will be given by Marian Mackay Sharpe, her subject being 'Through Pre-Historic England.'

Manchester.

Tchaikovsky's Pathetic Symphony is the main item in the Hallé concert to be heard by Manchester and 5GB listeners on Thursday, January 19. Other works to be included in the programme are Purcell's Fantasy on One Note, for strings (which will be heard in Manchester for the first time), Three Spanish Dances by Granados and Schubert's Rosamunde Overture.

The Apollo Glee Club, under the conductorship of Mr. T. W. Evans, will again visit the Manchester studio on Monday, January 16. In the same concert there will be violin solos by David Lilliman, a blind artist, and humorous items by Nina Taylor, both newcomers to the Manchester studio.

Plymouth.

The third of her series of talks entitled 'Three Great Romantics' will be given by Miss M. P. Willcocks on Monday, January 16, when she will deal with 'Sir J. M. Barrie: The Romance of Fantasy.'

The development of Church music, from the fifteenth century to modern times, will be traced in a talk which Mr. H. Moreton is giving on Tuesday, January 17, at 7 p.m.

Examples of the music of Russia, Norway, Spain and other countries will be given in a recital by Gordon Bryan (pianoforte) and Cuthbert Smith (baritone) on Tuesday, January 17, at 7.45 p.m. The programme will also include a short violin recital by George East.

Daventry Experimental.

Mendelssohn's Oratorio Athalie will be given by the Birmingham Studio Chorus and Orchestra on Sunday evening, January 15. The whole of the spoken libretti will be carried out by members of the Studio Dramatic Company.

A novel programme, entitled 'Some Eminent Victorians,' is down for Tuesday, January 17. The music of Sullivan, Sterndale Bennett, Cowen, the poetry of Arnold and Browning, and the work of Darwin, Huxley and the scientists will be briefly reviewed in a 'Running Commentary' written by the well-known critic, H. G. Sear.

The artists in a variety programme to be given on Wednesday, January 18, include Claude Martin, who will give 'The Confessions of Edwards, the Jobbing Gardener' (Barry Payne), Tom Bromley (pianoforte), Helen Alston (songs at the piano), Mason and Arms (entertainers) and Pattison's Salon Orchestra.

On Wednesday, January 18, 'Love and Humour,' another delightful Weatherly programme, will be given from Birmingham. Favourite old love songs and humorous ballads will be sung by Helen Alston, the lyrics being by F. Weatherly, with appropriate remarks in each case by the writer.

Allegretto Wolstenholme

SOME time during the first half of last century a Miss Ross, of County Derry, Ireland, heard and noted a very beautiful folk-tune. It had no name, and is presumed to be very old. But everyone in the British Isles is now familiar with the 'Londonderry Air,' or the 'Irish Tune from County Derry,' which in both emotion and build is surely one of the finest folk-tunes any country can show.

VLADIMIR REBIKOV (1866-1920), a dramatically-minded Russian, made some notable, if not very far-reaching experiments in harmony, and wrote several interesting works in which he endeavoured to combine miming with music and scenic effects. The piece of his that we are to hear comes from a set of such pieces entitled Dreams, five 'Melomimiques.' He describes melomiming as 'a scenic art in which mimery and instrumental music mingle in one indivisible whole. It differs from the ballet because the dance plays no part in it, and from pantomime pure and simple because in that music plays a part at least equal to that of mimery. The region of mimery begins where the word ceases and feeling reigns alone.'

In this piece demons sit, silent and motionless, watching admiringly the dancing of Satan's daughter. It is written on the notes of the 'whole tone' scale—D Flat, E Flat, F, G, A, B.

9.15 'TRAVELLERS' TALES': Mr. ESCOTT NORTH, 'Among the Blackfeet Indians'

THIS evening's 'traveller's tale' is to be told by a well-known lecturer and a vivid personality, who has already broadcast with considerable success. Mr. Escott North really knows that 'wild and woolly West' about which we have all heard so much; from the Canadian Rockies down to Mexico he has travelled, lived, and worked, range-riding, harvesting, broncho-busting, being initiated into blood-brotherhood with the Blackfeet Indians, and generally doing all the things that they do in the wide open spaces where men are men, unless they happen to be coyotes or greasers or skunks or dudes. Tonight he will describe the Redskins as they really are today.

DYSPEPSIA

INDIGESTION causes nerve trouble. Nerve trouble causes indigestion. These are plain and well-recognized facts.

But when you ask "Which came first, my indigestion or my nerve trouble," real difficulties arise. Authorities cannot agree on this question. They do agree, however, that nerve treatment is as necessary as stomach treatment in the majority of dyspepsia cases, and that very many sufferers have failed to improve in the past because the nerves have been neglected.

Years ago the Veno chemists produced the formula to meet these requirements—Dr. Cassell's Tablets. Dr. Cassell's build up the nerves and enrich the blood, by means of Hypophosphites and Blood Nutrients, while appetite and digestion are stimulated by valuable Stomachics and Digestive Enzymes. It is this thoroughness which has restored so many apparently "hopeless" cases.

If you are a dyspepsia victim—do not waste precious time—start a course of Dr. Cassell's to-day!

Symphony in G Minor ..... Mozart
Fifth Symphony, in C Minor ..... Beethoven

THE FIRST MOVEMENT of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony is troubled, nervous sort of music—the disordered sentiments which overthrow a great soul, a prey to despair,' said Berlioz. Its first four gruff notes, known as 'Fate knocking at the door,' are famous among musicians, as a concentrated, significant, and entirely unique idea.

The SECOND MOVEMENT is a series of connected Variations on a long-drawn Theme that has two distinct sections, the first a sinuous melody, and the second suggestive of a fanfare.

The THIRD MOVEMENT is a Scherzo, a word that means 'a jest,' and became attached, as a formal term, to the light-styled, quick Movement that was usually found in the middle of a Symphony. Here, however, it is grim/jesting, and there is no feeling of relaxed tension. It was by such movements as these that Beethoven raised the Scherzo from the air of triviality with which it first entered into the Symphonic scheme, and brought it to full rank as a musical composition.

At the end of it comes a mysterious, whispered passage that gradually takes the music out of C Minor into C Major and leads into the blaze of the FOURTH MOVEMENT, a triumphal pean that sustains the note of exhilaration from beginning to end, except for a moment where Beethoven brings in a few bars of the Scherzo.
The ending is a rattling and a pounding of
C Major chords without a parallel in music.

ORCHESTRA

A Faust Overture ..... Wagner

THE Faust Overture was written in Paris in 1840 (when Wagner was twenty-seven) in the midst of opposition and failure. It was originally designed as the first movement of a
'Faust Symphony,' and was rewritten in 1853.
The subject is, of course, Goethe's story of Faust,
who is tempted to sell his soul for renewed youth.
The peaceful ending may, perhaps, represent his final redemption.

HAROLD WILLIAMS

Wotan's Farewell and the Fire Music (from 'The Valkyrie') ..... Wagner

ORCHESTRA

Forest Murmurs (from 'Siegfried') ..... Wagner

HAROLD WILLIAMS

Hans Sachs' Monologue (from 'The Mastersingers') ..... Wagner

HANS SACHS, the cobbler-poet of Nuremberg, is championing the cause of the young knight Walter, whom some of the pedantic Mastersingers are chary of welcoming to their Guild. Early in the morning of Midsummer Day Sachs sits in his room, a great volume on his lap, and meditates on men's incessant, bitter strife with one another, and considers how he may turn it to the ends he has in view—the furthering of Walter's fortunes with the Guild, and helping the youth to win the maiden he loves.

ORCHESTRA

Overture to 'The Flying Dutchman' ..... Wagner

WHEN Wagner was about twenty-six he visited London on his way from Riga to Paris. He had a very rough voyage from Riga to London.
The next year he started work on his Opera,
'The Flying Dutchman,' and the Overture to this work, which has been described as the finest storm music in existence, owes a good deal of its vividness to Wagner's stormy voyage of the year before.

The story of the Dutchman is more or less traditional. It can be traced back to at least the sixteenth century. Everyone is familiar with the legend of the reckless sea-captain who is condemned by Satan to sail until (in Wagner's version) he finds a woman willing to share his fate. After many years he finds such a self-sacrificing woman, but wishing, in his love for her, to save her from a doom such as his, he leaves her. She, however, throws herself into the water to join him; the spell is broken by her renunciation, and they find rest together.

The Overture is practically an epitome of the opera. A dominating figure is that of the Curse, heard in a strenuous call on the Brass against a quivering, stormy background of Strings. There is a contrasting, prayer-like tune, and also a gay sailor-song. These are all repeated with increasing force towards the end.

('Evoc' of Punch)

Chairman: Mrs. OLIVER STRACHEY

WILL our grandchildren be as much happier than ourselves as we imagine that we are happier than the Mid-Victorians? Is our civilization destined to go on expanding in liberty (and licence) as it has done for the last generation or two? Or will there be a reaction? Or are we merely in a state of degeneration that time will only accentuate? All these points will doubtless be raised and met in the clash between two of the most brilliant talkers who ever faced a microphone when they meet tonight.

10.0 WEATHER FORECAST, SECOND GENERAL NEWS BULLETIN

10.15-11.15 DANCE MUSIC: HERMAN DAREWSKI and his BAND and LEON ABBEY and his BAND, from the Olympia Dance Hall

THE 'Occasion' that produced the work whose Overture we are to hear was the defeat, in 1745, of the Young Pretender, after he had reached Derby and so threatened the capital. Handel decided to express the general joy in a choral work, first performed in February, 1746, which was known as the Occasional Oratorio.

The Prelude to this work, a typical large-scale Overture of the period, has four Movements:—

I. (Slow and stately.) There is only one persistent Tune, and that is merely a one-bar idea. This leads, with no real feeling of break, into:—

II. (Quick.) This is in the nature of a Fugue, a Movement on one subject only—generally quite a brief phrase, as here.

III. (Slow.) A brief, lyrical Movement, which practically constitutes an introduction to:—

IV. (A March.) This is the best-known part of the Overture. It is in two clearly defined halves, each of which is repeated.

HAPPY THOUGHTS!

SMALL INVESTMENTS AND SECURITY.

No man or woman who purchases a home or other necessities for personal comfort or that of dependents can be certain to be in a position to complete the payments which will give the family full possession for all time—be it of a house, furniture, a sewing machine, or a wireless set.

The same argument applies to other necessities bought daily or weekly, such as food, books, newspapers and clothes. Just imagine the ease of mind you would experience if you knew that, should anything come to take you from your dependents, everything for which you had worked would be maintained by the SUN LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY OF CANADA as the result of your arrangement with that Company.

Assuming your age to be 30, and that you have obligations in the future totalling £1,000, to be paid during the next 25 years, this is how the Sun Life of Canada can help you.

You make yearly or half-yearly deposits to the Company for, say, 25 years, of an agreed sum, and assure the following in return:

Over £1,000 for Your Family.

Should you not live to the age of 55, £1,000 and accumulated bonuses added by the Company on a generous scale will be paid to your dependents. Should your death result from an accident the sum would be increased to £2,000, plus accumulated profits.

£10 per Month if Unable to Work.

If through illness or accident you lose the power to earn a living, and the disability is permanent, you are excused from making any further deposits, and £10 per month will be paid to you until the policy matures at age 55. Then all the benefits would be paid to you as though you had paid the deposits yourself.

£80 a Year for Life from Age 55.

But you will probably be fortunate enough to live, work and support yourself and family, through your best years, and, later on, will think of rest and ease. Under the plan described, and assuming the present (1927) scale of profit distribution to be maintained, if you live to age 55, the Sun of Canada will pay you for the rest of your days £80 a year, even if you live to be a centenarian. If you prefer it, you can have a cash sum down of £1,000. Of course, you have not deposited anything like that sum. It's the profits that make it so large—profits heaped upon profits, accumulated over the entire period of the arrangement. Perhaps, at age 55 you will not need to draw the cash or pension available to you, and your investment may then be left with the Company to protect your dependents in an ever-increasing sum to be paid to them after you are gone, or, on the other hand, to be drawn by yourself later on if you should need it.

Income Tax Saved.

For every deposit you make you receive rebate of Income Tax—a concession which will save you over £80 during the period, assuming the present rate of tax to continue.

Any Age, Any Amount.

Though age 30, and cover for £1,000 has been quoted here, the plan applies at any age and for any amount. Whatever your income, if you can spare something out of it for your dependents' future, this plan is the best and most profitable method you can adopt.

£70,000,000 Assets.

The Sun of Canada has Assets of over £70,000,000, which are under Government supervision.

TO HELP OUR READERS.

Every copy of 'The Radio Times' is subjected to hard wear. In many households our programme pages are being referred to through every hour of the day.

Before Saturday comes the current week's issue often, through much use, has become a dog-eared veteran.

Therefore, to save your copies of 'The Radio Times' from damage, the publishers have prepared a reading case in red cloth with cord down the back to hold each week's number, and a pencil in a convenient slot at the side.

This reading case can be ordered from any newsagent. The price is 2s. 6d. Or it can be obtained by sending 2s. 6d. and 4d. extra to cover postage, direct to the Publisher, 'The Radio Times,' 8-11, Southampton Street, Strand, London, W.C.2.

A FAMOUS ETCHING.

'Etchings and their value' is to be the subject of a talk by Mr. C. I. Britton, from Cardiff this afternoon. Above is reproduced one of the most valuable of modern etchings—Charles Meryon's 'La Morgue' (from the 'Masters of Etching' series, by courtesy of The Studio, Ltd.)

The Broadcast Pulpit.

Notable Passages from Recent Addresses.

The Heather of the Hills

THE heather is the food of the mind and the imagination. The emigrant takes a sprig of it with him to Canada or New Zealand to feed his soul upon and console his heart. Such is man that a little sprig of highland heather can transport him in imagination over a waste of sea to the dim shieling in the misty moorland which was once his own or his Father's home. There is a very real sense in which the cry today for more money is a cry for more life, more beauty, more truth. Of course there are some of us to whom 'the bloom of the heather' means nothing and supplies no nutriment. But most of us have some spiritual avenue by which the sense of the spiritual reaches our souls. Art in all its forms, music, poetry, painting, provides the avenue for many of us back to our spiritual background. For art is both an outlet and an inlet. It is an inletting of light and strength from somewhere beyond ourselves. It is also an outletting of an imprisoned something within us which flies out to meet the inspiration and feels itself uplifted by it.—The Rev. John MacConnachie, Dundee.

The Futility of Flight.

THE cry for the wings of a dove has been the futile longing of the human heart in every age of the world—the reason is that for most of us life is compounded of disappointment and failure and suffering and disillusionment; we become of the earth and of all the people on the earth. We are frantically eager to run away from our imprisoning circumstances and think that flight is the only solution of our problems. The expectation, of course, is that in running away from things as they are, we are bound to arrive at the enchanted land of things as they might be. But prudence consists not in evasion or flight, but in courage.—The Rev. T. Wilkinson Riddle, Plymouth.

The Simple Life.

MARIUS, the Epicurean, bored with his philosophy of life, was amazed to find the attractiveness of simplicity and fellowship as practised by the early Christians. Let us aim at simplicity. That doesn't mean to eat dry bread, to live in a hermit's cell, to be clothed in sackcloth, but to have as an object before us to be just the man and woman we are meant to be, to be perfectly natural, genuine, frank and human, to live naturally, as birds and flowers do; to become as little children and to be filled with faith, hope and charity every day; to learn to do without, to love simple pleasures and to have simple needs—for simplicity is a state of mind. There are four stages in a nation's history, simplicity, prosperity, luxury, decay. Let us return to simplicity and we shall find we are returning to God.—The Rev. A. M. Coxon, Stoke-on-Trent.

The Things by which Men Live.

IN a speech which Mr. Baldwin gave in Dundee some little time ago, he told of a relative of his who made a visit to New Zealand. Getting into conversation with a man of Highland stock, he asked him how long the traditions of his homeland last in New Zealand. The answer was: The porridge, the heather and the Psalms of David last to the third generation. The Prime Minister expressed the wish that here in Scotland they might last for ever as being the things by which men live. These things express pictorially the three great essential needs of life, for all of which Christ found place in His doctrine of life: food for the body, for the mind and for the soul.—The Rev. John MacConnachie, Dundee.

FIGARO, the famous town barber of Seville, was a creation of Beaumarchais. He appears in both this Opera of Rossini and Mozart's Marriage of Figaro. In this gay 'patter' song he struts about, proclaiming the delights of being trusted and looked up to by all sorts of people, especially lovers, who confide in him and ask his advice and help.

STANFORD'S collections of Irish folk songs are famous. One of the most engaging of such songs is My Love's an Arbutus, in which the cool charm of the woods is mated to a flexibly curving melody that seems to express in music the grace of the maiden who is like

... an arbutus by the borders of Lene,
So slender and shapely in her girdle of green.

Polonaise in C Minor ..... Chopin

THE Polonaise was a ceremonial dance. When a new king ascended the throne of Poland, a great reception took place at which the nobles and their wives defiled before him to stately music. Out of this grew, so they say, the Polonaise as we know it.

Bach, Handel, Mozart, Beethoven, Schubert, Weber, and even Wagner have written Polonaises, but it was Chopin, whose a Po, who brought into it the spirit of patriotism, of lamentation under wrongs suffered, of defiance and of triumph.

COUNTLESS composers have sought in their music to suggest the other-worldliness of the pale light of the moon. None, perhaps, has ever been better fitted to do so than Debussy, with his genius for dreamy, atmospheric music, half-lights and subtle shades.

His other piece wittily suggests the antics of a Negro band, with its s.a.s. syncopated rhythms, the oily vulgar tune that comes swaying in, and the plunk of the banjo.

HERE'S THE LATEST —COD LIVER OIL IN TASTELESS TABLETS

Great Flesh Builder for Weak, Run-Down People.

No more need weak, thin, unfortunate children cry in protest when the nasty, fishy-tasting, horrible-smelling Cod Liver Oil is brought out.

Medical science progresses rapidly and now you can get at your Chemist's the benefits of real, genuine Cod Liver Oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down grown-ups who ought to take Cod Liver Oil, because it really is the greatest builder of healthy flesh in the world, will be glad when they read this welcome news.

Of course, Doctors have been prescribing Cod Liver Oil in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only now that one can walk into a Chemist's and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easily as a bottle of cough mixture.

Thin, run-down, anæmic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets and if you don't gain 3 lbs. with 30 days' treatment as prescribed just get your money back.

One woman gained fifteen pounds in five weeks, according to her own doctor—another ten pounds in three weeks. A very sickly child aged nine gained twelve pounds in seven months, and now plays with other children and has a good appetite.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets. Any good Chemist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders and don't forget that they are wonder workers for feeble old folks.

Only 1/3 and 3/- the box at any Chemist's. Insist on McCOY'S Tablets—the original, and only genuine. Refuse imitations. In case of difficulty send direct to McCoy's Laboratories, Norwich.

The Thrill of 't' Coop.'

This afternoon, Saturday, January 14, tier upon tier of densely-packed football enthusiasts at famous grounds all over the country will bear witness to the popularity of 'soccer,' and of Cup-tie struggles in particular. London and Daventry listeners are to hear the Arsenal v. West Bromwich Albion Match described from Highbury, while Liverpool will have a commentary on the Corinthians v. New Brighton. In the accompanying article H. G. Lewis, famous football correspondent of The Westminster Gazette, tells of the thrill of Cup matches and the merits of the

IN thousands of homes there will be the usual atmosphere of petrified amazement when the results of the Association Cup-ties come through tonight (January 14). One feels fairly safe with that bald statement, because if there is one certainty about Cup-ties it is their extraordinary uncertainty. That, of course, is the secret of their fascination, a fascination which is world-wide.

When I was in Australia some twenty years back, the English and Scottish football results were among the most important of the cabled news.

As a layman regarding wireless, I do not know how far it is possible for this Saturday's broadcast of Cup results to be picked up, but I venture to say that there will be people in hundreds of corners of this globe endeavouring to listen to the fate of Aston Villa, the Corinthians, Newcastle United, and other such tremendously popular clubs. There will be club 'sweeps' from Hong Kong to Geneva; and the fate of the Arsenal will be discussed by the 'boys' of the Gold Coast who play bare-footed, and who are constantly sending queerly written epistles to English clubs for old footballs, jerseys, and souvenirs. One such letter reached me in recent years, offering a shipment of monkeys and native charms in exchange for the ball used at Wembley Stadium in a Cup Final.

The possibility of surprise—that is the secret. It drew over 800,000 people to watch the struggles in the equivalent round last year. This round, by the way, is called the third round, but it is really the first in which are entered the select clubs of the country. The two vital factors are nerves and experience, and they are closely related. According to form and status any man who follows football can show you why Sunderland should so easily beat Northampton; why Southampton have not an earthly chance in meeting the holders of the Cup, Cardiff City, at Cardiff. But when the men line up and the referee starts the game, the teams become eleven men against eleven men. The delicacies of ball control, which distinguish the good footballer from the moderate, are likely to be swept away in the swirl of emotions, unless there is an ice-cool brain to govern the limbs.

THE two matches, descriptions of which are to be broadcast, should provide fine examples of the peculiar way of Cup football. One of these is the Arsenal versus West Bromwich Albion, at Highbury; and the other, New Brighton versus the Corinthians, at New Brighton.

The Arsenal seem to have Cup-winning qualities to a marked degree. For one thing, they were in the Final last April; and although they lost, the experience they gained should be of tremendous value. It is not, as is generally supposed, that a different type of football is required to win a Cup-tie from that employed in the ordinary League match; but that abnormal mental control is necessary to enable the players to play normal football.

The classic example of this was the first Wembley Final, when about a quarter of a million people surged through and over the gates, covered the playing pitch, and were eventually persuaded to crowd back or to leave the ground by the players themselves, with the help of the police. No such nerve-racking experience ever fell to the lot of footballers since the collapse of a stand with terrible consequences, during an International match in Scotland early this century. The opposing teams at Wembley were Bolton Wanderers and West Ham United, and the coolness of the Wanderers, despite the circumstances, won them the match. The same team won the Cup again three years later.

The Arsenal are a phlegmatic, dour side, whose defence are like bull-dogs in a fight: they grip and hang on. Buchan, their captain, whose name is a household word, never fails in a tight corner to produce with that casual air of his the sly tricks and thoughtful moves which wreak panic in the opposition in Cup-ties.

And yet West Bromwich Albion, though in the Second Division these days, are a doughty side. Partly, their strength has for years lain in the fact that they are one of the few leading professional clubs who earnestly believe that the club should represent the locality. Most of their players are local players, and their pride in their club must therefore be the greater. Their League encounters this season have shown that the harder the task, the better they play. Repeatedly they have upset 'form' by drawing or winning on the grounds of apparently stronger sides. But they are comparatively a young side, and the experienced Arsenal men, such as Parker and Baker, Buchan and Blyth, ought to gain the day.

THE opinion has been voiced by a few, who make the mistake of regarding football as an entertainment before a sport, that all qualifying rounds should be abolished, and that only League clubs should compete, because only they have a chance. There is truth in this, but not wisdom, as is shown by the tremendous popularity of the entry, a few years ago, of the famous amateurs, the Corinthians.

This entry increased the general interest and the purely sporting element to an unsuspected degree. People who have seen their Cup struggles with the professional sides will talk for the rest of their lives of such sporting epics as their gallant display against Newcastle United last year, their brilliant victory over Blackburn Rovers, and others. Enormous crowds have watched them.

No one expected much success from the Corinthians, at first; but with them, as with every other team, experience counts. They are a powerful side today, and are increasing in power year by year. Such great players as Howard Baker, A. G. Bower, Claude Ashton, Freddy Ewer, and that magnificent veteran, A. E. Knight, have had international as well as Cup-fighting experience. Without the advantage of week-by-week matches, they nevertheless bring freshness and a devil-may-care spirit to the field.

There is no room among them for the stereotyped methods which one watches week by week in League games.

A belief in good, old-fashioned, shoulder to shoulder work has an important place in their creed. And because a Cup defeat is of no vital consequence to them, they have neither nerves nor worries.

New Brighton the Corinthians have never met, although in the days of G. O. Smith and Cobbold they played a local side in the Lancashire town. New Brighton, in the Northern Section of the League's Third Division, would be an awkward handful for any League side, on the New Brighton ground.

But they may find the 'unorthodox' football of the Corinthians a trifle too bewildering.

The plan to follow when listening to this afternoon's Third Round Matches.

New Oldham H.T. Accumulator

MANY of the pitfalls in wireless are directly traceable to faulty H.T. supply. Everyone knows the noises and cracklings due to weak cells. Other defects are not so easily traceable. Mysterious loss of "pep," failure to pick up distant stations, distortion, lack of volume are often due to a faulty H.T. battery.

An H.T. dry battery starts working the day it is made—it can't be controlled. You cannot expect full voltage from a dry battery if it has been on the dealer's shelf for a month or so. It is on the long, sustained discharge where it fails so miserably.

Here is where the OLDHAM H.T. Accumulator comes into its own. It does not deteriorate in stock. Use it for hours on end and the current won't vary a trifle. Look at the clever design of the new OLDHAM 10-volt H.T. Block. Each of the big capacity glass cells is a miniature OLDHAM Accumulator capable of holding its charge for months on end. The plates are made under the OLDHAM Special Activation Process which has made the name OLDHAM famous throughout the country. ## Publications Subscription Scheme.

The B.B.C. has instituted a subscription scheme for the convenience of listeners who wish to avoid the trouble of applying for individual pamphlets from time to time. The scheme only applies to the three classes of pamphlets mentioned below, and listeners may subscribe for any of the series or inclusively for all of them. The names of forthcoming pamphlets and other relevant details will be published in 'The Radio Times' and elsewhere from time to time.

			Date .....

NOTE.—The above scheme does not prevent any listeners obtaining individual pamphlets as formerly. In particular applications are invited for the libretto of the opera 'The Return of Ulysses,' which is to be broadcast from 5GB on January 16, and from London, Daventry, and other stations on January 15.

FORM OF APPLICATION.

Please send me _____ copy (copies) of the Libretto of 'The Return of Ulysses.' I enclose _____ penny stamps in payment at the rate of 2d. per copy, post free.

All applications in connection with the scheme and for separate copies of publications must be marked "Publications" and sent to The B.B.C. Bookshop, Savoy Hill, London, W.C.2. Additional names and addresses may be written on a separate sheet of paper, but payment of the additional subscriptions must be sent with order.

VOLUME TONE

LONG LIFE

FOR volume, tone and long life B.T.H. Nickel Filament Valves are without equal. This is not an empty statement, but one based on tests carried out under actual broadcast conditions and endorsed by thousands of users. Their volume and tone you can judge yourself by putting them in your set. Their long life you can only appreciate in use. You will be getting good results from B.T.H. Nickel Filament Valves when other valves have declined into inaudibility. If you use two volts use B.T.H. Nickel Filament Valves.

A Loud Speaker for 16/-

built by yourself

WHEN we were very young didn't we just love 'making things'? And who is to say that, now we are older, we are not still proud to say "I made it myself"? At least, we are sure you would be of the loud speaker you can make with the Brown Constructor's Unit. Can't you imagine the joy of building a real horn loud speaker? Or, if you would rather, with the addition of the Brown C.T.S. Accessory Set, a handsome hornless type? The joy of making it would only be surpassed by the joy of hearing it when you had finished. You would agree that its tone was quite as pure and its volume quite as loud as many factory-made loud speakers. And yet it would only cost you 16/-. You would expect to pay far more for such a good loud speaker, wouldn't you?

With the BROWN C.T.S. Constructor's Unit, price 13/6, anyone can build a horn type loud speaker. By adding the BROWN C.T.S. Accessory Set price 2/6, a hornless loud speaker can be made. No skill necessary. At all Wireless Dealers.

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE LISSEN BATTERY DURING 18 DAYS & 18 NIGHTS UNDER CONTINUOUS DISCHARGE

A LISSEN new process Battery was taken from stock on 23rd January, 1927. It was standard in every way with the LISSEN Battery you can buy at any Radio dealers.

It was put on test a day later and was discharged through a resistance of 150 ohms per cell, giving a discharge rate of 10 milliamperes.

The Battery discharged continuously under these conditions for 18 days and 18 nights, and at the end of that time the LISSEN Battery actually read 36 volts.

This is one of the most drastic steps any Battery could be put to, because it never had a chance to recuperate, which ordinary use provides.

The effective life of a LISSEN Battery under normal conditions, would obviously be multiplied many times, and it is no uncommon thing for users to report that the LISSEN Battery has lasted over 12 months.

The higher the voltage of your Battery and the lower its internal resistance, the further you are away from Valve distortion—buy, therefore, a LISSEN Battery.

No Battery so stubbornly resists volt drop and has so low an internal resistance as the result of use.

This is due to the new process and chemical combination—employed only by LISSEN because only LISSEN knows the secret.

You can buy a LISSEN Battery at one of 10,000 radio dealers throughout the country.

60 v. (actually 66 v.)	- price	7/11
100 v. (actually 108 v.)	- price	12/11
9 v. - - - - -	price	1/6

The Lissen Battery often reads 60 volts after 3 months' use. Suitable for 10 milliamperes discharges.

The REGENERATOR

WALLED UP ALIVE!

Do the cells in your H.T. Battery become isolated—walled up by Internal Resistance—when they still have weeks and months of useful life inside them?

Not if your battery is the "Regenerator"! In the "Regenerator" the current flows freely through each cell until every particle of useful energy has been used.

That makes the "Regenerator"—

THE LONG-LIFE BATTERY.

The Cabinet Loud Speaker 35/-

Some Loud Speakers reproduce well on the bass notes of the 'cello, but distort horribly when a full choir is being broadcast.

Others bring in the military bands with full power and tone, but the announcer's voice is made to sound weak and harsh.

Fellows Cabinet Loud Speaker reproduces everything perfectly.

That is the reason for its amazing success and popularity.

To Experimenters

THOUGH your set may be capable of receiving many foreign stations in addition to those of the B.B.C., the difficulty of identifying them often mars the pleasure of listening to their transmissions. There is, however, no reason why the experimenter should not be able to identify the most remote Broadcast station, for he can secure the assistance of the B.B.C. engineers by sending particulars, together with a coupon, given with each issue of World Radio. Full particulars of this scheme are given in the current issue of this important journal.

Order World Radio to be delivered regularly in future.
