FEBRUARY 17, 1928.

Every Friday. Two Pence.

When Nation Wars Against Nation.

Saturday, February 25, will be something of a 'Rugger' Festival for those football enthusiasts who, being unable to attend the 'Internationals,' will hear them described from the ground—England v. France from Twickenham and Scotland v. Ireland from Murrayfield. The former match will be heard from London, Daventry and other stations, while Belfast and Scottish listeners will be able to follow their countries' fortunes from their local stations.

THE climax of the Rugby season is upon us; Broadcasting is to take a hand in it. There are two International matches next Saturday. Scotland, up on their fine new pitch at Murrayfield, meet Ireland. France come to Twickenham to play England. And the microphone will bring to you the scene of one or other of these games, the roar of the crowd, the run of the play. Perhaps you will be able to picture the great stands at Twickenham packed close with eagerness and enthusiasm. England's side will be 'on their toes' against these Frenchmen. There is memory of a defeat of last year over in Paris to be wiped out.

Then all Ireland will be able to follow the fortunes of their team. Belfast will broadcast the story of the Scottish match, and in Dublin (Rugby unites the old country) they are to hear it. The Irishmen will bring high hope to the adventure. They are a sturdy side, and last season were bracketed with Scotland at the top of the Championship table. The Scotsmen will be stirred to new endeavour. Things have gone askew a little with them in these last weeks. There was, for example, the disappointing affair with Wales on this same home ground three weeks since. A victory over Ireland would make amends.

Yes! these Internationals promise to be the events of the Rugby year (excepting, of course, the historic Calcutta Cup match of England and Scotland). Not willingly will your lover of the game miss the seeing or the hearing of it.

But though all Britons love football, all do not love Rugby. They will wonder at all this excitement. Association, they say, is the game—older and more democratic. I suppose that in the history of football, Rugby is something of an upstart. They do say that Julius Cæsar brought 'Soccer' to and is likely so to remain. This implies no disrespect for the fine body of men who, in the other code, take football for their profession. It simply happens that Rugby is not a game in which there is room for professionalism. A man's playing life in Rugby is short. Rarely is he at the pinnacle of his form for more than half-a-dozen years—from twenty-one to twenty-seven, say.

There is another reason why, year by year, the International 'Rugger' games have new interest. Always there are young players in the sides.

The schoolboy of today is the International of tomorrow—the team which is invincible one year can be quite ineffective the next.

It is strange how fortune swings in these contests between the countries. For sixty years, nearly, International Rugby has been played. England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, have all had their periods of victory—good patches and bad patches, but never have they endured for long. They have their own traditions and styles of play. Between them they have developed and improved the game. Curious it is to look back and note how national characteristics have ever been present in the national teams.

Scottish Rugby is dogged stuff—an affair, one feels, of porridge and tenacity. Their heavy, dour forwards have in many years carried all before them. In this coming England with him from early Rome. But little more than a century has passed since William Webb Ellis, the Rugby boy, 'showing a fine disregard for the rules of the game,' first picked up the ball and ran with it, so inventing 'Rugger.' Also, it is true that it is Association which draws the big battalions and wears out the turnstiles. Rugby has always been strictly amateur, match with Ireland, you may learn something of it. They still know the fine art of the loose rush towards the opposing line, taking the ball with them. How often, I wonder, has the old battle cry of 'Feet, Scotland, feet,' taken them to victory.

With the Irishmen there is a debonair recklessness. Always they will take a chance, and often there will come a touch of fiery energy which batters down all opposition. Irishmen can go at their Rugby in true fighting spirit. You will remember perhaps the old libel of the two Irish club teams ready on the playing-field for their match to begin; but the groundsman was slow in producing the ball. 'Oh, well,' said the captain of one side to the other, 'never mind the ball; let's make a start!'

In the Scottish-Irish match of last year, played in Dublin, on an atrocious day, it was the pluck of the Irish forwards which turned the scale against their opponents. There is nothing much the matter with the Irish team of this year. They showed that not so long since when they mastered France at Belfast. As for Scotland, just now they are in the doldrums. Their back division is not functioning too well. These Scotsmen will be fortunate if, after their set-back against Wales, they survive this encounter with the robust Irish side. But you will hear the whole story for yourselves when the time comes.

Then there is France—and France in these recent years has added a new piquancy to the International competition. 'Le Rugby' has gone swinging through France until now it is more than an enthusiasm, mannerisms of the side's play reflects the temperamental idiosyncrasies of the nation. On the field, a French team are volatile, excitable and capable of effecting all manner of surprises. There is no deliberate opportunism, but sheer capacity for unexpected heroism.

England will win this match, we can suppose, if they go at their business with sure level-headedness. But—and I have left it till last—it is level-headedness which normally characterizes the Rugby of an English side. They go to their business without flurry. W. W. Wakefield, R. Cove-Smith, and other of England's fine modern forwards, have brought new life and tactics to the scrummage. There is competence in the work of the men outside the scrummage which presently may ripen into brilliance. Who knows?

And 'who knows?' is the keynote of this International Rugby business. That is why it fascinates us—that, with the added thought—that here are games which bring out into the open each year the sporting spirit of the nations.

I hope that we shall feel something of the fire and enthusiasm of Murrayfield and of Twickenham when we listen next Saturday afternoon.

and is like to become a craze. In a few years, starting with no traditions and no knowledge of the game, they have built up a national team capable (as happened last year) of beating England on the other side of the Channel, and of driving them hard on this side.

Here again, though, the manner and Corpse-candles there, in double row

With wan and fitful lustre glow:
Two rows, with nine in each, are seen,
As they a fun'ral train had been:
From water-overladen bogs
Resounds a dirge of croaking frogs.

And on he went, with rapid gait,
She reeled along, yet fain would wait.
Her tender feet were tired and sore,
Her mouth betrayed the pain she bore,
Ah, whither bound, thou pallid bride?
With blood from thee the ferns are dyed.

No. 12.—DUET.—SOPRANO AND TENOR.
Now, when the night so fair doth show,
Unto the grave the living go,
And ere thou know'st, may pass by thee,
Yet fear thou not, for thou hast me.

I do not fear when I have thee,
The will of God is over me.
Now for a time forbear thy quest,
One moment only let me rest,
See how I reel for very pain,
My strength no longer I retain.

Nay, come, my love, the end is near,
The goal we seek will soon appear,
There wait us guests and mirth and joy,
And like a dart the moments fly.

But, say, what is it, maiden fair,
That thou around thy neck dost bear?
A cross my mother bade me wear.
Ha, ha, accursed ornament,
Beneath its weight I see thee bent,
Its edges wound both thee and me,
Without it, swifter we could be.
Hurling it far, he hurried on,
Till thirty miles the two had gone.

No. 13.—BARITONE SOLO AND CHORUS.
There stood a pile, with tower beside,
Wherein a bell might be descried,
With lofty windows, ample door,
Toward heaven it upward seemed to soar.

No. 14.—RECITATIVE—SOPRANO AND TENOR—AND CHORUS.

See now, my sweetheart, here at last
At home are we, our journey past.

Where is the house? A church I behold,
The churchyard set with crosses there.

No church is this, but my castle old,
No churchyard, but my garden fair.
I pray thee, maiden, happy be,
And o'er the wall come leap with me.

O let me go, I would return,
Thine eyes with look terrific burn,
All hot and tainted is thy breath,
Thy heart is hard, and cold as death.

Fear not, my dear one, have no dread,
Richly my house within is spread,
Bloodless the flesh that there is found,
Today shall blood for once abound.

What art thou bearing, sweetheart, say?
Garments, against my wedding day,
Two are enough, thou maiden fair,
The rest but needless trifles are.
He took the garments which she gave,
And, laughing, threw them on a grave.

Fear not that aught will injure thee,
But lightly leap the wall with me.
Thou hast before me ever gone,
By risky paths I followed on,
Still thine it is the first to be,
Make thou the leap, I'll follow thee.

No. 15.—BARITONE SOLO AND CHORUS.
He leapt the wall, with sudden power,
Five fathom full, or somewhat more.
The maiden then in deadly fright,
Betook herself to headlong flight.

God be with thee, thou hapless maid,
And in thy danger send thee aid.
Behold, a tiny house is here,
To the door with speed, where help is near.

Undo the door, and hurry in,
And God's protecting care be thine;
Make door and bolt together fly;
Upon the grace of God rely.

A strange abode; with feeble ray
The moon thro' crannies made her way;
A plank was laid there, worn and old,
Thereon a corpse all pale and cold.

Before the house while moonbeams glanced,
A ghastly band of spectres danced,
Their voices gave an awful sound,
The warning echoed far around:
'The body must to death be brought,
And woe to him who ill has wrought.'

No. 16.—BARITONE SOLO AND CHORUS.
And at the door there came a knock;
Arise, thou dead, one loudly spoke,
Wake up, wake up, without delay,
And draw me now the bolts away.

The dead obeyed the voice that cried:
At once his eyes he opened wide,
He stretched his limbs, he raised his head,
And life thro' all his members spread.

O mighty God, I call on Thee,
From Satan's grasp deliver me;
Thou dead, O close again thine eyes,
God give thee rest in Paradise.
And lo, the dead man, near the door,
Let fall his eyelids as before.

And louder came again the knock;
Arise, thou dead, one strongly spoke:
Wake up, and hearken, without delay,
I bid thee draw the bolts away.

Again the dead the voice obeyed,
And left the place where he was laid.
He then held out his frigid hand
To reach the door—God near us stand!
Set free my soul, Redeemer kind,
Defence with Thee O let me find.

The Spectre's Bride

On Sunday afternoon, February 19, London and Daventry are taking their programme from Manchester Station, which is broadcasting Dvorak's cantata, The Spectre's Bride. Notes on this work will be found on page 326 under its appearance in the London programme. For the assistance of listeners, we reprint below the complete words of The Spectre's Bride (by courteous permission of the publishers, Messrs. Novello and Co., Ltd., London).

No. 1.—CHORUS.

The stroke of midnight soon will sound,
And all is wrapt in rest profound;
Save only where the lonely light
In yonder chamber still is bright.

Those humble walls to guard and grace,
Hangs there the Virgin's pictur'd face,
Borne in her arms the Holy Child,
So pure and fair, so sweet and mild.

Before that Mother's form one sees,
Pallid, a maiden on her knees;
Clasped are her hands, and sunk her head,
Tears, too, she cannot choose but shed;

Scarce can she breathe, by grief oppressed;
And wildly throbs her heaving breast;
While tear on tear, so deep her woe,
Rolls down in one unceasing flow.

No. 2.—SOPRANO SOLO.

Where art thou, father dear?
At peace in death for many a year,
Where art thou, mother blest?
Beside my father laid at rest.

Not one year old my sister died;
War took my brother from my side;
Mine did I once a lover call;
Him would I fain have given my all;
Fortune in foreign lands he sought,
And back to me he turns him not.

When on his quest he went away,
These words I heard him, parting, say:
Sow flax, my love, I counsel thee,
And ev'ry day remember me.

Spin in the first year, spin with care,
Bleach in the next the fabric fair,
Then garments make, when the years are three;
And ev'ry day remember me.
Twine I that year a wreath for thee,
We two that year shall wedded be.

Long have the garments now been made,
Long have in order due been laid,
Green myrtles fade, still is afar
My life's one only guiding star.

I know not where he is—can he
Have sunk beneath the cruel sea?
Three years, and tidings have I none;
Does he yet live, or is he gone?

Oh holy Mother, hear me cry:
In my distress to thee I fly.
Bring thou my dear one back to me;
All the delight I have is he.
O grant the boon for which I pray,
If not, then take my life away.

With him, near him, would I remain;
Without him what is life but pain?
Bring him again, thus do I pray,
Else carry me to him away.

No. 3.—BARITONE AND TENOR SOLO AND CHORUS.

The picture on a sudden moves;
A cry the maiden's terror proves;
The lamp with hisses flickers bright,
Upleaps the flame, then all is night.

Perchance then came a stream of air,
Perchance a sign of ill was there.
And, hark! advancing steps come nigh,
And one is heard to knock, and cry:

Say, maiden, dost thou sleep or wake?
Shall not my voice thy slumbers break?
Ah, dearest child, how is't with thee?
Say, is thy heart still true to me?

No. 4.—SOPRANO AND TENOR DUET.

Ah, dearest child, how is't with thee?
Know'st thou thy love, that I am he?
Ah, dearest child, how is't with thee?
Say, is thy heart still true to me?

Thou that art ever dear to me,
But now my thoughts were set on thee;
On thee I think by night and day,
For thee I never cease to pray.

Up, leave thy praying, hasten thee,
Up, up, my love, and follow me:
The moon is bright, and long the way,
Home I must lead my bride today.

Alas, what art thou asking me?
So late, so late—it cannot be:
And wildly roars the stormy blast:
Delay until the night be past.

Ha! Day is night, and night is day,
The day I like to sleep away.
Ere yet this passing night is done,
Shall we in wedded bonds be one.
Then linger not, but come away,
And mine thou art ere dawn of day.

No. 5.—BARITONE SOLO AND CHORUS.

Nature was clad in gloom of night,
The wakeful moon displayed her light
No life was stirring all around,
The wind alone was heard to sound.

No. 6.—BARITONE SOLO AND CHORUS.

And on he went, with rapid gait,
And she behind, she might not wait.
The dogs, awakened, yelled and cried,
To greet the bridegroom and the bride
And all that heard them said, in fear,
There is a spectre somewhere near.

No. 7.—DUET—SOPRANO AND TENOR.

Fair is the night, as clear as day,
Now many spirits forth may stray;
And, ere thou know'st, may pass by thee;
Yet fear not, since thou art with me.

I do not fear, when I have thee,
And Heaven's regard is over me.
But tell me, dearest, answer give,
How fares thy father? Does he live?
And will the mother in thy home—
Will she be glad to see me come?

Thou askest much, but let it be,
Make haste, make haste, thou soon wilt see.
Make haste, make haste, time quickly flies,
A weary march before us lies.

What is't thy hand is clasping there,
Beloved maid? A book of prayer.
Throw it away, bid it begone,
It weighs upon thee like a stone;
The book is but a check to thee;
Then fling it off, and follow me.

No. 8.—BARITONE SOLO AND CHORUS.

He grips the book; without a pause
Ten miles her steps he onward draws.
O'er boulders rough he takes his way,
The wolf's prolonged and dismal bay
From rocky clefts is heard to sound.

No. 9.—BARITONE SOLO AND CHORUS.

And out of caverns under ground,
The screech-owl, hark, the screech-owl cries,
And coming evil prophesies.

And on he went, with rapid gait,
And she behind, she might not wait.
And over flinty stones they sped,
Through thorny brakes, and deserts dead;
And wheresoe'er her footstep fell,
With blood the track was marked as well.

No. 10.—DUET—SOPRANO AND TENOR.

Fair is the night, and spirits love,
At such an hour, on earth to rove;
And ere thou know'st, may pass by thee,
Yet fear not, since thou art with me.

I do not fear, when I have thee;
The hand of God is over me.
Deny me not, but answer give,
Describe thy home, where we shall live,
The view that from the house one sees;
And say if near the church it is.
Thou askest much, but let it be,
The whole this very day thou'lt see,
Make haste, make haste, time quickly flies,
A weary march before us lies.

But, say, what hangs around thee there?
'Tis but the chaplet which I wear.
The chaplet? How it frightens me!
How like a snake it circles thee!
Throw it away, we are at speed,
Thy breathing, sure, it must impede.
Tearing it off, he rushes on,
Nor stops till twenty miles are done.

No. 11.—BARITONE SOLO AND CHORUS.

The pathway now less rugged grows,
Thro' marshy land and swamp it goes.

BOTH SIDES OF THE MICROPHONE

Our Frivolous Lapse.

NEXT week's issue of The Radio Times will be a special Leap Year Number—the same price as usual, but a trifle more frivolous in tone than ordinary issues. This, I hope, will not prove a sad disillusion to the listener who, in a recent letter, congratulated me on The Radio Times (as though I, and not the Editor, were responsible for the paper), saying that it was 'the most interesting and intelligent of all the popular magazines and should be read even by those who are not fortunate enough to possess a receiving set.' The gravest among us have their lighter moments, however. February 29 cannot be regarded as a serious day.

A Godchild of Shakespeare.

ANOTHER feature of next week's Radio Times will be a short supplement devoted to Ellen Terry, to commemorate whose eightieth birthday, on Monday, February 27, a special programme is to be broadcast. This programme will consist partly of scenes from various plays of Shakespeare, with which Dame Ellen's name is closely associated. An interesting point is that those who take part in the programme will be for the most part members of the Terry family. A 'family' performance of this nature is not without precedent; the Forbes-Robertsons gave recently a matinée of Twelfth Night, in which all the parts were played by themselves. There seems to be no end to the offshoots of the Terry tree—Fred Terry, Marion Terry, Mabel Terry Lewis, and others of the name—not to mention the two young Gielguds, great-nephews of Ellen Terry, who are rapidly making a name for themselves on the stage. The musical part of the celebration on the 27th will be given under John Ansell's direction. The programme will be a repetition of that which he himself conducted at the Hotel Cecil in June of 1906, when a Festival Dinner was held in honour of our great actress. The name of Ellen Terry stands not only for her own great gifts but for many associations with the past. She was the friend of most of the great Victorians. G. F. Watts, her first husband, and the Hon. John Collier painted her; Oscar Wilde addressed two of his loveliest sonnets to her.

Talks Too Short.

ARE talks too short? This question may come as a bombshell to those listeners who complain that too much time is already given up to them—but there is something in it. Can a good speaker do a good subject justice in twenty minutes? Probably not, for so short a talk would demand too great a compression, and a good talk in tabloid form is sometimes almost more aggravating than a bad talk at great length. Personally, I could listen to Sir Oliver Lodge or James Agate or Sir Edward Denison Ross for an hour on end. It seems to me that speakers who really 'hold' and entertain the listener should be worth an hour's run. Anyway this experiment, which was initiated recently with a half-hour talk by Sir Oliver Lodge, is to be continued from 5GB on March 1, when from 10.15 until 11.15 p.m. Captain P. P. Eckersley talks on 'The History of Broadcasting.' The Chief Engineer knows how to hold an audience. How many of us know, even in its briefest outline, the history of Broadcasting? Upon the opinion of listeners following this experiment depends the future development of talks. I should imagine that an hour with Captain Eckersley would fly all too quickly. Talks of an hour's length should be popular so long as they are given by the right sort of speakers.

A Historic Experiment.

THE rapid advance of Broadcasting will, one feels, continue for many years to come, there being still many fields of activity as yet uncovered—especially, the field of international relays. European broadcasting authorities are patiently working to make possible a great 'link up' of the nation's programmes by means of telephone lines. This is intricate work, for it means the installation and connection of lines of a special weight and frequency. Such a connection between London and Vienna is now almost complete—and the day not far distant when we shall be able to receive the Viennese programmes broadcast from our British stations. The first important development of this scheme is to take place early in March. On Sunday, March 11, the singing of the Legia Choir—225 voices, under the direction of M. Ernest Jerome—will be relayed from Liège in Belgium to London. This will be heard between 10.5 and 10.30 p.m. The same afternoon there is to be a Belgian National Programme which is being given from the London Studio in continuation of the scheme for national programmes inaugurated by the International Union at Geneva.

Exchanging Programmes with Germany.

BUT developments will not cease with this Liège relay. On the following evening an even more ambitious experiment will be attempted—the relay by land-line of a concert from Cologne—followed on the Tuesday by a relay to Cologne of 5GB's programme. I am not yet able to give you details of these two programmes, arrangements for the two relays being still under discussion between our authorities and those of Cologne. The Cologne director has, however, promised me full details of his concert for publication in an early issue. In a year's time, perhaps, we shall look back with tolerant scorn on these small beginnings. In the history of Broadcasting, however, the Liège and Cologne experiments will hold an important place. The day is not far distant, it seems, when, without stirring from our chairs, we shall be able to make a tour of the foreign capitals, visiting their theatres, concert-rooms and restaurants. The possibilities are endless.

A Proper Introduction.

YOU remember the story of the two Englishmen, strangers to each other, cast up on a desert island, who did not speak to each other for ten years because they had not been properly introduced. This fable is a true commentary on the English character. Before we tackle anyone or anything new, we like the guarantee of a formal introduction. From 5GB, on Tuesday evening this week, Percy A. Scholes and Mrs. Norman O'Neill, in the first of an experimental series of music broadcasts entitled 'New Friends in Music,' are to introduce us 'properly' to Debussy. I recommend you to listen to this hour of talk and music; it promises to be something quite out of the run of the ordinary 'lecture recital.' It will enable us to make friends with Debussy. The older composers, Bach, Beethoven, and their like, we know well enough to count as friends, but the moderns are as yet only acquaintances. Mr. Scholes and Mrs. O'Neill will perform a much-needed introduction which may serve to break down the prejudices of many listeners. The second of the series will be given on March 7, when the 'new friend' is to be John Ireland.

IN the near future we are to have two broadcasts from James Stephens, one of the greatest of Irish writers—certainly the greatest since the time of Synge. Though Mr. Stephens has written in the modern manner such books as 'Here are Ladies' and 'Etched in Moonlight' (which is shortly to appear), it is in his treatment of the mystical, fantastic figures of the Shee, the giants and gods, the heroes and fairy-folk of Irish legend in books such as 'The Demi-Gods' and 'The Cavern of Gold,' that he excels. On Saturday, March 3, he will read from London a selection from his own verse and prose. During the following week, in the 'I Remember' series of talks, he will give some reminiscences of J. M. Synge, author of 'The Playboy of the Western World,' about which he recently wrote in The Radio Times.

Medtner to Broadcast.

A MODERN Russian composer who has escaped the influence of Scriabin and the other 'moderns,' and followed the classical tradition, is Nikolai Medtner. A pianist himself, he has written much for his instrument. He has been nicknamed 'the Russian Brahms.' On his first visit to England he will take part in a recital of his own works from 5GB. This is to take place on Monday evening, February 27. With the composer will be Tatiana Makushina, who will sing groups of Medtner's songs, which, I hear, are exceptionally lovely.

On Sunday, February 26.

A WELL-KNOWN String Quartet, the Poltronieri, which broadcast from London not long ago, is to give a recital from 5GB on Sunday evening, February 26. The programme will be a popular one—Mozart's Quartet in D Minor, Boccherini's in C Minor, and Dvorak's Nigger Quartet, so named because it was written after his return from an American visit and makes use of various Negro melodies. The soloist on this occasion is to be Adolphe Hallis, the pianist, who has just returned from a year's tour of the world.

Addresses during Lent.

DURING Lent there will be a series of special religious addresses from both London and 5GB. London listeners will hear, at 3.30 p.m. on Thursdays (immediately after the Westminster Abbey service), addresses by the Rev. W. H. Elliot, Vicar of Holy Trinity, Folkestone, under the general title of 'The Seamy Side of Life.' From 5GB, between 1 and 2 p.m. on Thursdays, will come a Dinner Hour Service, from the Parish Church of Birmingham, St. Martin's, Bull Ring. Among the speakers at these services will be Dr. Carnegie Simpson, Rev. Pat McCormick, Sir Harry Verney, and Canon Rust. The series in each case begins on Thursday afternoon, February 23.

S.B. from Stoke.

THE parish of Stoke-on-Trent, from the church of which a service is to be broadcast on Sunday evening, February 26, used, a century ago, to comprise the whole of the so-called 'Five Towns.' Even today it is one of the largest in England. The present Rector, the Rev. D. H. Crick, has worked all his life in shipping and industrial districts—amongst sailors at Liverpool, colliers in South Yorkshire, tube-workers at Wednesbury in the Black Country. The service on the 26th will be heard from London and Daventry as well as from Stoke.

BOTH SIDES OF THE MICROPHONE

The Boat Race Again—

THE Boat Race is again in the offing. The popular interest aroused by this event is phenomenal, considering that rowing is a sport in which Englishmen, as a whole, are not greatly interested. Crowds do not flock to the 'Varsity Rugger and Soccer matches in the same way as to Mortlake and Putney, although non-'Varsity football attracts the biggest 'gates' in the country. The truth must be that there is a dramatic interest in the Boat Race, in the sight of the two eights, which to the onlooker appear immensely lonely amidst the hubbub from the banks, battling the gruelling four miles upstream. The Boat Race is a first-class test of 'guts,' a quality still much admired in this country. The race this year is on the last day of March. A commentary on it will again be broadcast from a launch in mid-stream. Of all outside broadcasts this is the most tricky technically. The commentary is transmitted via the ether to a receiving station on shore, whence it comes to Savoy Hill by landline. Last year's occasion was supremely successful—from not only the technical, but also the artistic, angle, the account given by Oliver Nickalls and J. C. Squire being admirably clear and the 'atmosphere' picked up by the microphone enabling the listener to picture vividly the scene of the race. I am sure that we all wish the engineers and the commentators as much luck this year.

—And the Grand National.

TO those of us who believe in the Art of Broadcasting, and who eagerly watch the development of this art which is more personal to us, as listeners, than any of its sisters, it is interesting to note the skill with which certain broadcastings are acquiring the technique of 'commentary.' The ideal commentator, whether he is describing a football match, the Boat Race, or some ceremony of state has a unique, and difficult task. Without previous preparation he has to picture accurately and vividly a scene suddenly projected before him. His time is limited, his material without limit. He must have an observant eye, a ready and colourful style of speaking. A master of this new branch of the mother art is Geoffrey Gilbey, the well-known racing journalist, who gave a commentary on last year's Derby. On March 30, Mr. Gilbey is to describe the Grand National to us from Aintree.

Manifestations in honour of St. David.

THE name-days of St. David and St. Patrick are not far distant. Last week I gave a note on several of the special programmes arranged for the feast of the Welsh Saint on March 1. Here are several other 'fixtures' for that day. Swansea is giving a concert of Welsh Music in the afternoon, with Nancy Hughes (soprano) and Uriel Rees (tenor) and later a talk on 'Dewi Sant' by the Rev. R. S. Rogers. Liverpool, as mentioned previously, is relaying a Community Singing Festival. This will be from the Miners' Institute at Rhoslanerchrugog, near Wrexham. Community singing is somewhat older than the newspapers which have recently fathered its revival. Giraldus Cambrensis, who travelled in Wales in 1188, came across it. He notes that the singing was always, as in Wales to-day, in parts. On St. David's Eve—February 29—Manchester is giving a Welsh Programme, arranged by Mr. E. T. Davies, Director of Music to the University College of Bangor, and Swansea a broadcast of Cambria, a Welsh patriotic cantata by Owen M. Edwards and Joseph Parry.

St. Patrick's Day.

ON St. Patrick's Day, March 17, London and Daventry are taking a concert of Irish Music by the Band of the Royal Marines (Portsmouth Division) from Portsmouth Town Hall. The director of this band is Lieut. R. P. O'Donnell, one of the famous O'Donnell brothers, who at one time were musical directors of the Deal, Portsmouth and Plymouth Divisions of the R.M. This triple alliance was broken by the retirement of B. Walton O'Donnell and his appointment to the conductorship of the Wireless Military Band which, under his control, has become one of the finest in the country. Both 'B. Walton' and 'P. S. C.' (director of the Plymouth Division) will be down at Portsmouth on St. Patrick's Day to assist 'R. P.' with his programme. Later, the same evening, part of the Irish Concert which the Gaelic League of London is giving at the Queen's Hall will be relayed by the same stations. This is to be a truly Gaelic occasion, with items on the War Pipes, recitations by Una O'Connor, traditional songs by Donnchadh Mac Colligh and violin solos by Art Darley.

An Appeal for the Poor Children.

ON Sunday, February 26, Sir Charles Rafter, Chief Constable of Birmingham, will speak from 5GB on behalf of the Birmingham Police Aided Association. The Association, which was established thirty-five years ago, provides boots and clothing for the poor children of Birmingham. Last year it clothed nearly 6,000 children. Sir Charles tells me that there is great scope for the extension of this kindly service, but that shortage of funds has so far prevented this. I was myself born in Birmingham, and have personal knowledge of the needs of the many children of poor parents who play about the street corners of some of the most miserable slums in England. This is certainly a cause which Midland listeners should make their own.

5GB News.

HERE are a couple of 5GB programmes which you may care to note for next week. On Tuesday, February 28, there is to be an 'Open Road Programme' the nature of which does not demand explanation. An interesting feature of this will be Gordon Bryan's playing of the piano suite Promenades (Journeys) by the young French composer, Paulenc. This suite is lively, brilliant stuff. On Friday evening, March 2, Sir Henry Wood is conducting the Birmingham Studio Symphony Orchestra, with Elsie Suddaby and Maurice Cole as soloists. Sir Henry's programme includes the Nut Cracker Suite of Tchaikovsky and Saint-Saëns' Second Pianoforte Concerto in G Minor. Miss Suddaby will sing, among other items, an aria from Eugene Onegin.

The Laughter of Fools.

ONE of our finest comedy-writers is H. F. Maltby, author of The Rotters, Mr. Budd of Kensington, etc. Manchester is to broadcast his comedy, The Laughter of Fools, on Monday, February 27. This three-act play deals with the ambitions of Mrs. Grieg, wife of a retired Colonel whom she persistently thrusts into the background, regarding him as a fool. The Colonel turns out to be not quite such a fool as he looked. When the Grieg family is faced with ruin, it is he who surprisingly saves it. I will not anticipate Manchester's production by revealing the plot of The Laughter of Fools. Let it suffice to say that this neat comedy is very entertaining stuff indeed, and that Mancunians should note the date.

I take back all I said.

UNFORTUNATELY, 'The Announcer' is sometimes compelled to eat his own words. I do my best to give information about the programmes of the near future, knowing from experience how often one misses one's favourite broadcast through inadvertently making an engagement to go out, but it sometimes happens that programmes 'fall through' after I announce them. This has happened in the case of Ferrers' opera, The Piper, which last week I announced for March 6. It has not been possible to gather the ideal artists for this date, and so The Piper has been postponed till later in March. Its place on March 6 will be taken by La Serva Padrona ('The Maid turned Mistress'), an enchanting little opera in two acts by Pergolesi, about which I will have more to say next week.

The Plaintive Melodies of Jewry.

MANCHESTER has a Jewish population of more than 40,000. It is with this in mind that the local Station has arranged a short programme of Hebrew melodies for 10 p.m. on Friday, March 2. The artists in this programme will be Louis Cohen, of the Hallé Orchestra, who will play violin solos, Reba Cohen (soprano) and Nathan Joseph, who is to give some dramatic recitations.

Three Appeals.

ON Sunday, February 26, the Lord Chancellor, Lord Cave, will appeal from London and Daventry on behalf of the Royal Hospital and Home for Incurables, Putney, while the Plymouth appeal will be made by Viscount Astor on behalf of the Virginia House Holiday Camp, which is held each year in August at Maker, and gives a much-needed holiday to some two hundred poor children from the Batter Street district of Plymouth. From Bournemouth there will be an appeal for funds for the Free Eye Hospital, Southampton, which was started in 1889 in a private house, and has in less than forty years become a great institution serving the needs of not only its parent city but of the greater part of Hampshire.

A New Radio Society.

AN Association of British Radio Societies has just been formed with its headquarters at Manchester. Mr. J. E. Kemp, its chairman, tells me that the new association is not competitive with any existing organizations, but rather supplementary to them. One of its main objects is to provide facilities for the general public to gain knowledge in the operation of receiving sets. That many listeners are anxious to acquire such information I can judge from the letters I receive. They have only to write to the Honorary Secretary, The Association of British Radio Societies, Hope House, South Reddish, Stockport, who will inform them how they may join the Association.

Memories of Spencer.

THE subject of Mrs. Sidney Webb's reminiscences on February 27, when she is to contribute to the 'I Remember' series of talks, will be Herbert Spencer. Mrs. Webb knew Spencer well in her youth. He was one of the giants of the reign of Victoria, who died in 1903 on the threshold of the Edwardian Age. He began life as a railway engineer and finished it as a philosopher. In his writing he was parallel with his friends Huxley and Darwin, applying to philosophy the principles which they had evolved as the basis of biology—evolution and progressive development.

good and bad,—to know the historical side of it—how men's views of right and wrong have developed and changed—but what they are doing is really philosophical. They are reflecting upon the assumptions of ordinary good and bad behaviour, and they are not experts in the sense that they can tell us better than can good men what we ought to do. This inquiry into the nature and history of calling actions right and wrong, etc., is ordinarily called Ethics, and for shortness' sake I shall call all this aspect of human behaviour Ethics.

In the second place, whether our actions are right or wrong, good or bad, is, as I have said, primarily our own concern. But there is another aspect of our actions which other people make their concern, that is, whether they are legal or illegal. If we commit illegal actions, we find that we are interfered with and stopped and punished by an organization we call government. Illegal actions and morally wrong actions do not cover the same ground. All morally wrong actions are not illegal. Envy and malice, and envious and malicious actions, are not as such illegal. On the other hand there are many actions (such as in this country riding a bicycle without a lamp after certain hours) which the law forbids, but which are not in themselves morally wrong. Lastly, there are many actions, such as stealing and murder, which are both morally wrong and forbidden by the law.

This aspect of human actions, their legality and their illegality, and all the organization of enforcing, interpreting, making and administering the law is the sphere of politics. Law seems to be more of an artificial business than right and wrong. Men's views as to what actions are right and wrong change to some extent, but they change only gradually; whereas in modern times we are continually making laws. We all, whatever our politics, look on the organization for making and administering laws as a great instrument of social well-being. But we shall find that men differ very much as to what limits there are to the good which legislation can bring about.

Politics is clearly a good deal more a matter for experts than is Ethics. We all have, in a modern democratic country where we have votes, some responsibility for what the Government does. But all we can do is to choose between people who are to govern for us: and these chosen representatives can only do their work by means of a whole host of permanent experts, from the Lord Chancellor to a policeman. Law, administration, and government are immensely complicated things nowadays; each needs the study and learning of a lifetime. At the same time, though we talk of legal science and political science, we do not think of any of the branches of skill and knowledge required in politics as quite like a natural science. I suppose we should all agree that successful political action needs what are called the practical qualities—commonsense, judgment, and decision—more than does success in the natural sciences. Further, as we have seen already, politics and law share with ethics the assumption that men are responsible for their actions.

That there are problems enough in the relation between Ethics and Politics will be obvious to anyone who thinks of the long history of the relations between the Churches and the State.

But we cannot say anything about them without referring to the third great branch of social inquiry—Economics.

Here again we find the same conflict between two sets of claims. The zealous economist sometimes suggests that if we were efficient enough in our economic relations we could do without the State, and moral questions would settle themselves. The typical exaggeration of the economist is what is called the doctrine of economic determinism—the theory that economic laws are like physical laws, inevitable, and that economic relations are the sole determining factor in social life; that political relations, forms of government, and so on, and moral customs and actions, are not independent factors, but are a mere reflection of the economic relations. But, as economics are concerned with men in so far as they buy and sell (that is, in so far as each serves the other's purposes in return for power to get others to serve his), economic relations involve no common purpose. Unless we have some common purposes, we could not even have the law necessary for there to be any buying and selling, and therefore there must be politics as well as economics. And economics are concerned with how wants are satisfied, but we must sometimes ask what wants are worth satisfying—ask not simply how we are to get what we want, but what we ought to want. Therefore there must be ethics.

MARCONIPHONE

FOR MODERN L.F. AMPLIFICATION

Marconiphone Amplifying Devices build up whispers into voluminous sound, yet never do they sacrifice tone purity for the sake of volume—harshness and distortion have no place in a receiver built from Marconiphone components—especially if Marconi Valves are used.

For the first L.F. stage use one of the new Marconiphone R.C. Units. Remarkably compact, they maintain their stated value under all conditions with absolute silence. There are two types: Type "A" for valves of medium impedance, 8s. Type "B" for high magnification valves, 7s. 3d.

Follow this with the famous "Marconiphone" Ideal Transformer—proved distortionless throughout the musical scale and guaranteed against electrical and mechanical defects for twelve months. In ratios 2.7 to 1, 4 to 1, 6 to 1, 8 to 1, 25s. each.

The Talk of the Week. No. 5.

What Philosophy Means to Us.

At the request of very many listeners we are this week including in our series the first of the series of talks on 'Philosophy and Our Common Problems,' broadcast by Dr. A. D. Lindsay, the Master of Balliol. This talk, which was introductory to his series, briefly and simply explains the meaning of the word 'philosophy.'

THE title of these talks may have seemed to some who have seen it a strange one. What can philosophy have to do with our common problems? It is ordinarily supposed to be a highly abstract and esoteric business, asking questions the answers to which seem of little importance to anybody, and disputing about the answers.

Well, if any of you feel like that, you are reacting in a very old way to a very old suggestion. Some 2,300 years ago Plato, surveying the disturbed and troubled state of the Greek cities of his time, announced that there could be no proper dealing with social problems without philosophy. He puts this opinion into the mouth of Socrates in his great dialogue called 'The Republic,' and he makes the persons with whom Socrates is talking scout the proposal indignantly. What they say may be summarized as, 'Well, of all the preposterous proposals we ever heard! Most philosophers are rather queer people, but everyone knows that at best they are perfectly useless.' Plato's answer to that indignant reaction was that such judgments about philosophy were made only because people did not understand what philosophy was, and what it was its business to do.

He distinguishes philosophy from the sciences by saying that the sciences work each in its special department, and all work on certain assumptions. There is need for an inquiry whose business it is to reflect on the assumptions of the sciences, to try to make them consistent with one another, and to get in that way a vision of the whole field of knowledge and be able to say what it all comes to. This, Plato thinks, is the special business of philosophy.

Since Plato's day the departmentalism of the sciences has not diminished but rather immensely increased. But perhaps even more characteristic of modern knowledge are the apparent contradictions between different branches of knowledge. What we call the natural sciences have made their wonderful progress since the seventeenth century on the assumption of necessary law. They take for granted that the processes they are studying are such that the present is necessarily determined by the past, and the future by the present. There is a magnificent sentence of Huxley's which expresses this assumption in a striking way:—

If the fundamental proposition of evolution is true, that the entire world, living and not living, is the result of the mutual interaction, according to definite laws, of the forces possessed by the molecules of which the primitive nebula of the Universe was composed, it is no less certain that the existing world lay, potentially, in the cosmic vapour, and that a sufficient intellect could, from a knowledge of the properties of the molecules of that vapour, have predicted, say, the state of the fauna of Great Britain in 1819, with as much certainty as one can say what will happen to the vapour of the

breath on a cold winter's day.

Huxley there assumes, you will notice, that the entire world, living and not living, comes under this necessary law. The doings of animals and the actions of men and women are as necessarily determined and (given sufficient knowledge) as accurately predictable as the motions of the stars. On the other hand, in our dealings with one another, in the practice of the law courts, and in our judgments of right and wrong, whether applied to ourselves or to other people, we take for granted that human beings are ordinarily responsible for their actions, as animals and things are not. We should think it a piece of childish folly to try to punish a railway carriage wheel the breaking of which under strain had caused a railway accident, though in primitive times men did things very like that. But we do try, and sometimes punish, a signalman whose ordinary carefulness has broken down under strain. We do not indeed assume that men can do anything; we admit that there are circumstances beyond a man's control, but we certainly do assume a limited responsibility in all human actions—that when men act in one way they might have acted in another.

That is perhaps the most striking instance of this contradiction between assumptions, which has produced in modern times conflict between various aspects of human activities—what we refer to as the conflict between science and religion or the conflict between science and morality. Because the conflict comes from inconsistent assumptions, the disputants on either side are at cross purposes, until their assumptions are criticized and either found to be not so necessary as had been supposed or not so contradictory as had been supposed. This criticism and examination of assumptions is, as I said, the special business of philosophy, whose great service in modern times is, I think, to act as a peacemaker, to compose the quarrels of the different departments of life.

But does all this, which is only a longer way of saying that it is important to discuss the relation between philosophy and science, or philosophy and religion, get us any further on in seeing that philosophy has an importance for our common problems, and that it is worth the while of ordinary people to hear what it has to say? Science is a matter for experts, and if philosophy concerns itself with the criticism of the assumptions of the sciences, does not that imply that philosophy is an expert's criticism of experts, and so even more remote from common problems than are the sciences? Well, of course all difficult problems, common or otherwise, usually need expert aid for their solution. But experts cannot help us unless we call them in. The trouble often is to know which expert we need. When we come to the consideration of social problems, we find not only that there are a bewildering number of experts who all claim to have something very special to say on our problem, but, what is more, the experts are not (as are medical experts) specialists in different branches of a single science. Human knowledge about society and its ills, and the solution of difficulties which arise in men's relations to one another, seems to be divided roughly between three inquiries.

In the first place, we describe these actions as right and wrong, or good and bad. Most people would also say that the rightness or wrongness of actions was not a matter for experts but for each one of us. That is a responsibility which we cannot delegate or hire an expert to perform for us. It is up to each one of us to perform his obligations, to act justly and to love mercy. We ordinarily suppose too that the question of what we ought in any given circumstances to do is a matter primarily for our own conscience. There are generally allowed to be some persons of finer moral insight—and therefore of higher moral authority—than others, and we may go to them for advice and instruction; but this authority comes from their goodness, not from their learning and knowledge, and in the last resort we consider that we have to consult our own conscience. At the same time we recognize that moral character and a sound judgment are largely made and strengthened by society—by the influence of family, school, and all kinds of social institutions. Above all, we think that religion has a powerful effect in the production of goodness and the inspiring of men with the motives most likely to produce actions we morally praise; and we should probably say that the building up of character is the great social function of the churches. There are, of course, special people whose business it is to reflect upon this habit of ours of calling actions right and wrong or because perfection is for ever unattainable. We can none of us grasp all aspects of life simultaneously.

'Impressionism' in Music.

Now we come to Debussy. Like the painter Impressionists, many of them his personal friends (and for that matter, like the literary Symbolists—but we must not go into that now), Debussy is 'atmospheric.'

If you take one of his compositions and examine it under the aural microscope you are amazed to find how perfect is its form; it is, then, in a sense, classical. If you listen to it repeatedly you recognize that it expresses very definite human feeling; it is then, in a sense, romantic. But the form and the human feeling are not the first characteristics that strike us. What we most note, as we hear a Debussy composition (unless it is a very early one) is its amazing array of subtlest tonal shades and colours.

Homer described the rainbow as purple. Xenophon, later, described it as red, yellow and green; and Aristotle, a little later, as red, green, and blue with occasional yellow. Later still, Ovid saw in the rainbow 'a thousand dazzling colours that the eye cannot distinguish separately,' but some people up to six or seven hundred years ago still went about saying 'a rainbow has three colours.' How slowly people's eyes are trained! (I am indebted for this rainbow parallel to Mrs. Franz Liebich, who in her 'Claude Debussy' quotes from M. Marnold, who in turn quotes from a German writer on the colour sense, Dr. Hugo Magnus.)

There are many claims to be made for Debussy's greatness, but the first claim is this—that he took the musical rainbow as his musical palette, that he was a great colourist in tone, and by 'colour' here is meant not merely orchestral 'colour,' but also harmonic 'colour'—that colour, in its infinite varieties, that results from the placing of chord against chord in such a manner that the juxtaposition lends new effect, as the juxtaposition of red against blue gives a different quality to the red from the juxtaposition of red against yellow or green.

There is the musical equivalent of Manet's principle that 'light is the principal personage of the picture,' and it is this that has led people (surely very aptly) to describe Debussy as 'The Musical Impressionist.'

The Listener's Duty.

What, then, is the listener's first duty towards Debussy (for every listener has a duty to every composer)? To open his ears and his mind, and sit quietly, and humbly begin to learn to distinguish fine shades and delicate colourings. He will never grasp them all, but he has gone a good way towards the appreciation of Debussy if he has recognized that on his canvases there are (as Ovid says of the rainbow), 'a thousand dazzling colours that the eye cannot distinguish separately.' And not only 'dazzling colours,' but also delicate greys and silvers. It is no good looking at Monet or Whistler with the same eyes we use for Ingres or Delacroix, and it is no good listening to Debussy with the same ears we use for Mozart or Chopin—and still less with those we use for the fuller-sounding Beethoven, Wagner, and Strauss. There is such a thing as 'the Debussy ear'; it is a valuable possession, and we must acquire it.

Debussy—Musical Impressionist.

This article by Graham Eltham, whose writings on Music have appeared on previous occasions in The Radio Times, provides a short introduction to 'New Friends in Music—Debussy,' which is to be broadcast from 5GB on Tuesday next, February 21, and at the same time draws an interesting comparison between a certain school of Modern Painting and the work of one of the greatest of Modern Composers.

STRAUSS and Debussy swam into public ken about the same time. There could not have appeared two planets of more different colour.

Strauss represents a direct continuation of the line of Wagner, Berlioz, and Liszt—orchestral big battalions, heavily romantic subject-matter (literary and musical).

Debussy represents no continuation at all. He is almost a new beginning. Of the King and Priest, Melchisedec, we are told that he was 'without father, without mother, without descent.' There are no true Melchisedecs in music, but if there were, Debussy would be one.

That is why many people took to Strauss before they took to Debussy. The latter was so new, and what is new is alarming. It is true there was found a certain 'frightfulness' about Strauss in some of his phases, but it was only the old 'frightfulness' a little increased—the kind with which Wagner had long been fighting his battles and had already won them both for himself and for Strauss. There is no 'frightfulness' about Debussy, but there is sometimes a gentle irony which some people find more disturbing, and a subtlety that at first vaguely troubles the plain, downright man.

In early days Debussy frequented Bayreuth and momentarily proclaimed himself a Wagnerian. Then he 'reacted.' To some extent his reaction was that of a Frenchman against the German mind; to a larger extent it represented a temperamental antipathy to the grandiose.

The handy term often used to describe Debussy's style is 'Impressionism.' Let us consider it a moment.

It is a term borrowed from painting. By the middle of the nineteenth century the heavy romantic school of painting was triumphant. Take France as an example and consider the course of events.

Ingres represented the last stand of the 'classical' tradition. His pictures are beautiful in every line and every touch of colour—but very formal. His models pose for him. He paints lovely statues rather than living people. The subjects that engross him are 'The Apotheosis of Homer,' 'Œdipus explaining the Enigma,' and the 'Portrait of Cherubini' (with Muse behind him, stiff and statuesque, one hand over her votary's head and the other holding a lyre).

Then came Delacroix, bold and romantic, with the vivid panoply of war, snorting horses, the suffering wounded, the tricolour of the Republic borne aloft on a great canvas of 'Liberty guiding the People,' with the barricades, an excited youth in a Tam-ô-shanter and with a pistol in each hand, the wounded raising their faces to the flag in romantic ecstasy.

Three pictures which illustrate the points which the writer makes in the accompanying article—'The Thames at London' (Monet), 'Liberty Guiding the People' (Delacroix), and 'The Apotheosis of Homer' (Ingres).

Both Ingres and Delacroix loved historical, mythological, and symbolical scenes, but how differently they treated them! The one stood first for beauty and the other for expression, the one for form and the other for feeling. Mentally they were at the antipodes, and so for forty years they led opposing factions in the artistic salons of Paris.

Then appeared Manet, Monet, Degas, Renoir, Pissarro, Sisley, and others. They were striving primarily neither for beauty of form nor for strong emotional expression, but for the recording of things as the eye sees them, and, moreover, as it sees them at a single glance. Unlike the Classicists, they cared relatively little for form and shape; unlike the Romanticists, they cared little for telling a vivid story of human passion; with them, as Manet himself put it, 'light is the principal personage of the picture.'

It is by light we see; the art of painting is a record of seeing, and so the study of light, thought they, is the principal part of the study of painting.

With their minds so directed, then, the Impressionists saw in the effect of light and darkness shades and colours formerly overlooked. To take an example—the ordinary man says 'grass is green,' but the Impressionist says 'Look again—it is often blue, yellow, all colours, according to the momentary play of light upon it'; so, too, the ordinary man says 'shadows are black' (and so, too, in those days did the ordinary painter), but the Impressionist says 'Look again—shadows are often blue, purple, all colours according to the time of day, and the conditions of cloud or mist or clear blue sky.'

Nature, the Impressionists tell us, is not so much a matter of line and mass as a matter of vague, looming shape and shimmering colour. That last statement can, perhaps, best be illustrated to a British reader by instancing Whistler and his pictures of the Thames in mist. Ruskin attacked Whistler as 'a coxcomb who had flung a paint-pot in the eyes of the public,' and for his libel had to pay a farthing damages. It was a libel; and more than a farthing one! Whistler was seeing in Nature something Ruskin, for all his study of that great colourist, Turner, had always missed—a lesson, by the way, to all of us who are too ready to condemn a new phase of art, pictorial or musical.

Of course, Impressionism in painting was only a phase—so was Classicism and so was Romanticism. There is no finality in art. All is relative

THE SPECTRE'S BRIDE, written for the Birmingham Festival of 1885, when the composer came over and conducted it, is a poetic version by K. J. Erben (English by Dr. Troutbeck) of an old legend found very widely scattered over Europe. The theme is that of a dead man who returns as a spectre to claim his beloved.

At the opening of the work the maiden is praying by night before a picture of the Virgin. She is an orphan; her sister died when a child, and her brother has gone to the wars. Her lover has been away three years, and she knows not what his fortunes may have been.

The picture suddenly moves, the lamp flares up and goes out. She hears steps outside, and a knock on the door. Her lover's voice calls to her to follow him, for they are to be wed ere the dawn. She goes out, and the spectre leads her in haste over the countryside, by rough places and through dark woods. The ghostly lover bids her throw away her prayer-book, her crucifix and rosary. He answers none of her questions, but ever draws her on in greater haste until she is exhausted and her feet are bleeding. At length, they reach a graveyard. She is terrified and would return, but the spectre leaps the wall, calling on her to follow.

In an instant she takes courage and runs to a little cottage near by, where she bars the door against the horror. She finds within a corpse laid upon a plank. Ghosts gather before the door, and chant:

'The body must to death be brought,
And woe to him who ill has wrought.'

There is a knock at the door, and the voice of the spectral lover calls on the dead man to rise and draw the bolts. The corpse comes to life and is about to do so when, by the power of the maiden's anguished prayer, the life is withdrawn from it, and it falls again stark and still. Once more the voice commands, and once more the dead arises, to be struck motionless again as the maid renews her prayer for heavenly intercession, and in the Holy Name bids it forbear to move. A third time the spectre exerts its power, but now the cock crows, and at the sound the dead man moves no more, and the ghosts vanish.

In the morning the people coming to church find her alive in the house of the dead, and in the churchyard a ruined grave.

8.45 THE WEEK'S GOOD CAUSE: Appeal on behalf of the Salvation Army by General BOOTH

THE work of the Salvation Army is worldwide and far-ranging, and those of its activities with which we are most familiar—street services, night refuges, and so on—are only a fraction of the whole. Tonight's service has given some idea of the scope of the Army's work. The missionary side is represented by Mrs. Major Sanson, of China, and Lieut.-Col.
(Lottie) McIlwraith, who spent thirty-six years in India; Lieut.-Col. Orsborn, who reads the prayers, is in charge of the International Training Garrison, and the music is supplied by the Army's own bands.

Contributions should be sent to General
Booth at the International Headquarters, 101,
Queen Victoria Street, E.C.4.

Vulcan's Song (from 'Philemon and Baucis')
Gounod

THE first extract is one of the two splendid Bass airs in The Magic Flute. In it the High Priest of the Temple of Wisdom tells how the noble in heart is welcomed to the company of those who are guided by the gods Isis and Osiris, but the mean and unworthy can never find a place within those hallowed walls, where all live in peace.

IN the song by Gounod, the blacksmith god, Vulcan, who forged Jove's thunderbolts, tells why he prefers to remain in his underground kingdom, where he is lord of all. It is because when he ventured above, to Olympus, and wooed Venus, he was repulsed and made a laughing-stock.

Third 'Leonora' Overture..... Beethoven

THIS, generally reckoned the best of all the Overtures written for the Opera Fidelio, is a long piece, fully developed on symphonic lines—too extended for use as a theatre overture, perhaps, but a magnificent concert piece. There is a short-slow Introduction, and then the vigorous main body of the Overture begins.
There are two chief tunes—the very soft and mysteriously-opening one, and a smoothly flowing one.

Note the dramatic interruption of the Trumpet call in the middle of the Overture (generally performed in the concert room, by a player out of sight); this represents the crucial moment in the play, when the Minister of State appears, just in time to save the hero from execution.

BRÜNNHILDE, beloved child of Wotan, has disobeyed him, and must be punished. No longer may she ride the storms and exalt in the wildness of her godhead. As a mortal she must live henceforth. She is to be awakened by the first man who encounters her. She pleads that only a true hero shall make her captive, and as a last boon Wotan, having laid her to sleep upon a rock, summons the fire-god. As he points his spear here and there, spurts of flame issue from the rocks around her, and the famous Fire Music flames and hisses and glows in the Orchestra.
As Wotan turns slowly away, we hear, thundered out by the brass, the sturdy, martial melody prophetic of the hero who shall win her—Siegfried.

Prelude, 'The Afternoon of a Faun' .. Debussy
'The place is silent and aware'

IN the 'nineties, when this work was new to London, it was once performed at the Queen's Hall under the title The Afternoon of a Young Gazelle, and elder concert-goers still smile as they recall this 'howler.' It is not a fawn, but a faun that is in question, a sort of minor god Pan, a rural half-deity, the upper part that of a man, with horns, and the lower part that of a goat, with hoofs and tail.

The faun is resting slumberously in the heat of the day and half dreaming. There drift through his mind thoughts of the nymphs he has pursued with his affections; he reflects on the woods, the pools and the meadows where he has sought them, and, at last, vaingloriously and sacrilegiously, he wonders whether the time may not come when upon the slopes of Etna, he may perhaps meet the great goddess Venus herself. With a start he realizes his sacrilege, and dreads punishment.

This piece of Debussy's exhibits at its highest development his 'impressionistic' manner. It is all very vague and indefinite and hazy, as the picture of a summer afternoon should be. It glows with sunlight and palpitates with heat. Its orchestral colouring is wonderfully delicate; its thought extremely poetical.

EDITH PENVILLE

Pavane Bavel

Mephisto Waltz Liszt

THIS scene in the second piece is one of two from Lenau's Faust that Liszt took as the basis for a work.

Faust and Mephistopheles, taking a walk abroad, come to a village inn, where the folk are dancing after a wedding. Faust instantly falls in love with one of the girls, and Mephistopheles urges him to ask her for a dance. Taking a fiddle from one of the players, the Evil One declares he will show them how to play. His wild playing sets everyone dancing madly, Faust with his lady amongst them. In the midst of the excitement the two dance out through the open door and slip away to the woods, pursued by the sound of Mephistopheles' demonic fiddling.

THE SALVATION ARMY'S Programme

A DICTIONARY defines "BROADCAST" as the "sowing of seed at large." In this light, the Salvation Army is the greatest broadcasting organisation in the world. For over sixty years it has scattered seed which has borne abundant fruit in the lives of men and women of all grades. The Salvation Army's record is a stirring story of TRAGEDY and JOY.

Its programme covers every human need. From deserted child to homeless aged—from Darkest London to Darkest Heathendom—all find a loving friendship and sane, practical help through the organisation which has endeared itself to thousands as "The Army of the Helping Hand." From a very humble beginning in the East End of London, its merciful work has spread to 82 Countries and Colonies, and its Message is now being broadcast in 57 Different Languages.

Big figures convey little to the average mind but some idea of the magnitude of the Army's efforts may be gained from the fact that

IN ONE YEAR

The Salvation Army supplied
Nearly Ten Million Beds and over 15 Million Meals
through its Food Depôts, Shelters, etc.
360,000 Men given Work either temporary or permanent.

The Army maintains 17,752 Evangelical and Social Centres, including:

CHILDREN'S HOMES.....	106
CRÈCHES	26
INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.....	19
DAY SCHOOLS.....	1,025
PRISON GATE HOMES.....	14
INEBRIATES' HOMES	5
WOMEN'S RESCUE HOMES.....	132
MATERNITY HOMES.....	65
FARMS	11
SLUM POSTS.....	175
Other Social Institutions, including Hospitals.....	1,169

among which is:

THE MOTHER'S HOSPITAL, Clapton, which has more beds than any similar Institution in London.

GENERAL BOOTH earnestly pleads for your generous help towards the maintenance and extension of this beneficent work.

Gifts should be addressed to General Booth,

Mrs. Neville Gardner is giving the second of her series of talks on Famous Englishwomen—on this occasion dealing with the life and work of Florence Nightingale—on Friday, March 2.

Cardiff.

On Monday, February 27, the Cardiff Grand Opera Society will give a programme of reminiscences of famous operas. They include Faust, Il Trovatore and Carmen.

A West Country programme, 'Light o' the West,' on Tuesday, February 28, will include W. Irving Gass in songs and stories and a West Country play, Money Makes a Difference.

Plymouth.

The Safe, a play in one act by Geoffrey Benn, will be presented by the Micrognomes on Tuesday, February 28. It will be followed by a talk on 'Medieval Ships,' the first of a series entitled 'Byways of Shipbuilding' to be given by Mr. C. D. Jarrett Bell, who, it will be remembered, gave the running commentary on the recent launching of the Devonshire. Part of the evening concert the same night is to consist of a 'Round the Stations' programme.

Manchester.

A ballad concert, arranged for Tuesday, February 28, is to include songs by Charles Knowles (baritone), and Mavis Bennett (soprano), violin solos by Leonard Hirsch, and pianoforte items by Victor Hely-Hutchinson.

The early part of the programme on Saturday evening, March 3, includes a popular concert by the Augmented Station Orchestra, with humorous interludes by Mira B. Johnson. Subsequently there will be an hour of orchestral and vocal music by Coleridge-Taylor, the soloist being Wilfred Hindle (tenor).

The soloists in Elgar's oratorio The Kingdom, which, as already stated in The Radio Times, is to be given under the conductorship of Sir Hamilton Harty on Thursday, March 1, are Dorothy Silk (soprano), Muriel Brunskill (contralto), John Coates (tenor) and Harold Williams (baritone).

Deventry Experimental.

A new song cycle, Over the Garden Wall, by Dorothea Barcroft, a member of the Birmingham Station staff, will be produced during a light music programme on Monday, February 27. It will be sung by John Armstrong (tenor).

The artists in the Vaudeville programme from the Birmingham Studio on Monday, February 27, are Ivell and Worth (syncopated duettists), Denis O'Neil (Irish entertainer), Zachary Tan (novelty instrumentalist) and Philip Brown's Dominoes Band.

A chamber music concert which the Harold Mills Trio is giving on Wednesday, February 29, will include Beethoven's String Trio, Opus 3, in E. Flat and Haydn's Divertissement No. 6, in D. Songs by Schumann and Strauss will be sung by Winifred Davies.

Master Wayfarer, a happening of long ago, by J. E. Harold Terry, with songs by Arthur Scott Craven and music by Howard Carr, is included in the programme on Tuesday, February 28. It is a dramatic play and was first produced at the Apollo Theatre, London, in December, 1917. Incidental music will be supplied by the Midland Sextet, directed by Yonosuke Mutsu.

VIVALDI was a great Violin virtuoso of the eighteenth century, who was also an orchestral conductor.

Most people imagine that an orchestra for ladies only is a modern idea. But Vivaldi conducted such an orchestra—at a founding hospital for girls in Venice.

He was a priest as well as a Violinist, officiating in both capacities at St. Mark's, Venice.

Bach greatly admired Vivaldi's music, and arranged twenty of his Concertos for Keyboard use.

2.30 Miss RHODA POWER: 'Boys and Girls of Other Days—VI, The Boy Pedlar'

SHOPS, orders by post and the delivery vans of the big stores have finally extinguished the pedlar within the memory of many of us, but he was once a familiar figure on the English roads, and three centuries ago he was an important factor in the economic organization of the country. It is of a boy pedlar of this period that Miss Rhoda Power will talk this afternoon.

3.5 'Great Stories from History and Mythology—VI, Tristan and Isold'

THIS afternoon's story from the Arthurian cycle is one that has taken its place amongst the great love stories of the world. Under varying forms, with names variously modified (Tristan and Tristram—Isolt, Isold and Isolde) it has been chosen by such different artists as Malory, Tennyson, Swinburne, and Wagner as the inspiration for as widely differing works of art.

5.0 HOUSEHOLD TALK: Miss H. TRESS, 'The Use of Grapefruit and Oranges'

THANKS to the influence of the United States, grapefruit is gradually ceasing to be regarded in England as a luxury to be eaten before dinner, and taking its place as an agreeable breakfast food. Oranges, of course, are a very old-established favourite, but even they can be served in many appetizing new ways. In this afternoon's talk Miss Helen Tress—who is Lecturer in Household Arts at King's College for Women, and who has recently achieved her Cordon Bleu—will give some new suggestions for dealing with both fruits.

Debussy

EVERYONE knows Debussy's excellence in delicately imaginative and pictorial music. Most of his sketches are impressionistic, and we need little more than the title to help us to conjure up the scene which the composer has endeavoured to translate into musical terms.

It is not on record that Debussy ever went to China, so that these Pagodas are not a strictly authentic record. It may be that his eye had dwelt on some engraved pictures of Chinese scenes—for Engravings (Estampes) is the title of the volume from which this piece is taken: or maybe Debussy is thinking only of those little China men who nod to us from mantel-pieces—they also are called Pagodas. The only suggestion we get from the music is the continuous tinkle of bells—bells of all kinds but those that ring in the belfries of Europe.

The cool charm of the portrait of the 'lassie wi' the lint-white locks' is particularly attractive. One feels that the composer has conjured up the perfect parallel in sound of the portrait in the poem of Baudelaire that inspired the piece.

The Toccata is a swift, airy piece that might almost stand as an expression of the spirit of Mercury, the winged messenger.

Those who know his characteristic style will realize what delights are in store for them when they learn that the B.B.I. of his title stands for the British Burglars' Institution, and that the story that he will tell this evening deals with his experiences in the sphere of housebreaking, where, unfortunately, all his experiments seem to go wrong.

"TAKE UP PELMANISM."

Sir John Foster Fraser's Appeal.

(Elliott & Fry)

Sir John Foster Fraser. sharpens the man who thinks decay is laying hold of him. It will not make the dunderhead into a statesman, but it will and does provide a plan whereby we can make the best of our qualities."

The Pelman Course has been thoroughly revised in the light of the latest Psychological discoveries and is fully explained in a book entitled "The Efficient Mind," a copy of which can be obtained free of cost by any reader who writes for it to-day, using the coupon printed below.

Training the Senses.

Pelmanism trains the senses and brings increased power and energy to your mind. It strengthens your Will-Power. It develops your Personality. It gives you Courage, Initiative, Forcefulness and Determination. It banishes Timidity and drives away Depression and all harmful and morbid thoughts. It enables you to adopt a more cheerful and optimistic outlook upon life. And not only does it increase your Efficiency and your Earning-Power, but it enables you to cultivate an appreciation of the finer things of existence.

Applied to Every Phase of Life.

A striking feature of Pelmanism is that it can be applied not merely to business but to every phase of life.

A Clerk, for example, who had taken the Pelman Course, writes:

"What are the features of the Pelman Course?"

"I think they can be said to be—Development of Energy, Self-Confidence, Observation, the Training of the Senses, and the Cultivation of Originality. It keeps the brain and mind in good order, strengthens the Will and the Power of Concentration. Above all, in my opinion, its most helpful feature is that it can be applied to any phase of life, both in Business and Pleasure equally well."

A short course of Pelmanism brings out the mind's latent powers and develops them to the highest pitch of efficiency. It banishes such weaknesses and defects as

- | | |
|-------------------|---------------------------|
| Depression | The "Inferiority Complex" |
| Shyness | |
| Timidity | Indecision |
| Forgetfulness | Weakness of Will |
| Boredom | "Defeatism" |
| The Worry Habit | Procrastination |
| Unnecessary Fears | Restlessness |
| Indefiniteness | Brain-Fag |
| Mind-Wandering | Morbid Thoughts | which interfere with the effective working-power of the mind, and in their place it develops strong, positive, vital qualities such as

- | | |
|------------------|--------------------|
| —Concentration | —Organising Power |
| —Observation | —Directive Ability |
| —Perception | —Forcefulness |
| —Optimism | —Courage |
| —Cheerfulness | —Self-Confidence |
| —Judgment | —Self-Control |
| —Initiative | —Tact |
| —Will Power | —Reliability |
| —Decision | —Driving Force |
| —Originality | —Salesmanship | | —Resourcefulness | —Business Acumen |

and a Reliable Memory.

By developing these qualities you add to your Efficiency and consequently to your Earning Power.

What is equally important (as a result of cultivating your senses, getting your mind in order and acquiring a healthy mental outlook), you also increase your happiness and develop your appreciation of the beauties of Nature, the Arts, and Life generally.

In a word, Pelmanism enables you to live a fuller, a richer, a happier, and a more successful existence.

Remarkable Results.

This is borne out by the letters received from those who have taken the Course, some extracts from which are given here:—

A Teacher writes: "I have more self-confidence and am not so subject to fits of depression."

A Nurse writes: "I have a much brighter outlook on life and have to a large extent regained poise of mind and body. No matter how tired or dismal I may feel on waking, before I am half-way through the exercise I feel quite cheerful and ready for anything."

A Civil Servant writes: "I began the course in a state of mental distress caused by fears and a foreboding of evil. I have succeeded in regaining Confidence and driving these away. I have thus acquired a calmness of outlook that reflects itself in my work, in my conversation and in my appearance."

An Accountant writes that Pelmanism has shown him "how to overcome that paralysing feeling of inferiority."

A Manager states that as a result of Pelmanism he has received the following benefits: "Salary increased from £230 per annum, first to £400, then to £800, now to £1,000, in two years. My age is 33 years."

A Clergyman says that his preaching has improved.

A Gardener states that Pelmanism has given him the "stimulus to forge ahead in spite of difficulties."

A Shop Assistant states that he has secured a better position, and attributes this to Pelmanism.

An Insurance Agent writes that Pelmanism has improved his powers of Observation, has increased his Confidence and improved his memory.

A Cabinet Maker writes that he has improved greatly in Observation, Concentration, and Recollection.

A Clerk states that he has secured a bigger salary.

An Engineer's Draughtsman states that he has secured "two substantial increases in salary."

A Pharmacist writes that he has greatly increased his Self-Confidence and overcome the habit of Procrastination.

A Departmental Manager reports an increase in salary of 25 per cent.

An Assistant Analyst states that he has found Pelmanism to be a "sure cure" for Depression.

In fact, thousands of men and women in every walk of life have testified to the Power that Pelmanism gives. Their letters show how Pelmanism has increased their Efficiency in every way—how it has enabled them to gain Promotion—how it has developed their Personalities—how it has enabled them to hold their own (and more than hold their own) in the fierce competition of Business and the Professions—how it has increased their Earning Powers (even doubled and trebled them)—how it has increased their capacity for enjoyment and for artistic appreciation—how it has enabled them to realise their aims, dreams and ambitions.

If, therefore, you wish—

- To strengthen your will-power,
- To develop your powers of concentration,
- To act with foresight and decision,
- To become a first-rate organiser,
- To develop initiative,
- To become a clever salesman,
- To originate new ideas,
- To acquire a strong personality,
- To banish Depression,
- To talk and speak convincingly,
- To work more easily and efficiently,
- To cultivate a perfect memory,
- To win the confidence of others,
- To appreciate more fully the beauties of Art and Nature,
- To widen your intellectual outlook,
- To deepen and enrich your life,

in short, to make the fullest use of the powers now lying, perhaps, latent or only semi-developed, in your mind, you should send to-day for a copy of "The Efficient Mind," which will be sent you by return, gratis and post free.

Pelmanism is quite easy and simple to follow. It only takes up a few minutes daily. The books are printed in a handy "pocket size," so that you can study them in bus or tram or train, or in odd moments during the day. Even the busiest man or woman can spare a few minutes daily for Pelmanism, especially when minutes so spent bring in such rich rewards.

The coupon is printed below. Post it to-day to the Pelman Institute, 95, Pelman House, Bloomsbury Street, London, W.C.1, and by return you will receive a free copy of "The Efficient Mind," and particulars enabling you to enrol for the revised Pelman Course on specially convenient terms. Call or write for this free book to-day.

Readers who call at the Institute will be cordially welcomed. The Chief Consultant will be delighted to have a talk with them, and no fee will be charged for his advice.

HOW MANY ACCUMULATORS HAVE YOU GOT?

ONE? TWO? OR NONE? If you have only one accumulator, we will lend you one of ours while we recharge yours to ensure a continuous service. We will collect, maintain and deliver each alternately. If you have two accumulators, we will give you the same service. If your accumulators are unserviceable, we will keep you continuously supplied with ours.

And at the same time we will loan you, if you like, the famous C.A.V. H.T. accumulators, which experts agree give far better results for less than the cost of unreliable dry batteries.

This Service is cheaper than seeing to accumulators yourself. It saves you the trouble and risk of unskilled recharging, never leaving you without current; eliminates accumulator trouble; looks after your accumulators properly.

Our elaborate plant, skilled operators, and fleet of delivery vans guarantee an efficient, punctual and economical service. Deliveries are made weekly, fortnightly, or monthly. Send a p.c. right away, and we will post you full particulars.

C.A.V. H.T. ACCUMULATOR SERVICE
Better than Dry Batteries.

For H.T. Service we supply the famous C.A.V. make exclusively. Our experience has proved these to be the best. Any voltage.

PARIS SEEN FROM THE EIFFEL TOWER.

This picture shows the view of Paris of which Mr. Richards will talk from Swansea this afternoon. In the foreground is the Seine; beyond it can be distinguished the Champs-Élysées, the Grand Palais (with the domed roof, on the river-front towards the west), the church of the Madeleine and the Opera; and on the skyline are Montmartre and the Basilica of the Sacré-Cœur.

ON the storm-swept and uninhabited islands off the north and west coasts of Scotland the grey seal breeds, and these island nurseries are a wonderful sight to see on the not too frequent occasions when they are accessible by boat. Mr. Seton Gordon, who is well known as a naturalist and nature photographer, with a particular interest in the wild life of Scotland, has a very special knowledge of the breeding-grounds of the seal, as he was Admiralty Patrol Officer for Argyllshire and the Inner Hebrides during the War.

MORRIS HARVEY ON TOUR.

The genial star of so many witty little revues, who lately shone undimmed amongst the splendour of One Dam Thing After Another at the London Pavilion, Morris Harvey is to go travelling on the ether this week. Make a careful note of his dates:—
Monday, Newcastle; Tuesday, Belfast; Wednesday, Manchester; Thursday, Aberdeen; Friday, Cardiff; and Saturday, Glasgow.

7.25 Mr. D. C. SOMERVELL, 'Europe throughout the Ages: Modern Europe—The Rise of Democracy'
THE series on 'Europe throughout the Ages,' which began last November, has traced the course of Western civilization from its dawn in ancient Greece, through its eclipse in the Dark Ages and its re-emergence in the Middle Ages; the change that came with the Renaissance and the Reformation, and the age of (more or less) enlightened despotism. This evening Mr. Somervell will conclude the series by describing the rise of modern democracy—first in aspiration, later in concrete form, in the Scottish Kirk and the English Levellers, in the writings of Rousseau and the achievements of constitution-makers in the United States and in revolutionary France.

In the concluding talk in his series from Daventry tonight, Mr. Robertson Scott will discuss the prospects of British farming. Here is an interesting scene at Banbury cattle mart, where a weighing-machine has been installed which shows the weight of the beast being auctioned, thereby encouraging buying on scientific principles and not merely by 'rule of thumb.'

Sea Drift Delius

THE name Sea Drift was chosen by Whitman, as a general title, to cover a number of poems inspired by the sea and its life. Delius has set only part of the first of the series—that which begins

'Out of the cradle endlessly rocking.' The lines he has chosen are from 'Once

Paumanok' to 'We two together no more,' a little over fifty lines from the end of this first poem—one in which

Whitman reaches his highest level of imaginative lyrical expression. On the sea-shore

he sees 'two feathered guests from Alabama,' and interprets the thoughts of one of the birds when his mate leaves him and does not return.

In and around Delius's music is the sense of the sea, its power and loneliness, and the sadness of the bird who longs for the mate he will never see again.

The British Charities Association announces that its sixth Hospital Ballot will close on Wednesday, February 29. This Association, whose President is Viscount Knutsford, has already distributed £107,000 in cash prizes to the public, and £173,000 to British hospitals. It may therefore fairly claim to be the established authority on this form of money-raising for charitable purposes.

The present Ballot differs from its predecessors in one important respect; the price of an entrance ticket is only 1s. And with one shilling ticket it is possible to win the first prize of £3,000, or any of the other 759 prizes.

There can be little doubt that many listeners will be anxious to support the 'good cause' of the Hospitals, especially as any entrant may in addition win the £3,000 prize. It is, of course, essential to secure tickets in good time, as the final date for receipt of entries is March 15.

IT was once said of Hazlitt that he was the only man who had ever read right through "The Faerie Queene," and it is true that Spenser's great allegorical-romantic-fantastic epic is not best suited to continuous reading, especially in this hurried age. But everything that Spenser wrote was elegant, and no long poem better repays browsing in. As for "Paradise Lost," it occupies very nearly the same position to English poetry as the Authorized Version of the Bible does to English prose.

ACT I.

Scene 1. Rodelinda's Chamber. The action takes place in Milan in the sixth century. Queen Rodelinda (Soprano) bewails her loneliness. Grimwald (Baritone), who has conquered the country, comes to plead his love, telling her that her husband, King Bertario, is dead. She indignantly bids him begone, for she will ever be faithful, even though she should never again see her husband. With Grimwald is his friend Garibald (Bass-Baritone), Duke of Turin, who urges him not to be satisfied until he has conquered the Queen's obstinacy. Grimwald had also another woman in his eye—Hadwig (Contralto), King Bertario's sister, to whom Grimwald is pledged, and of whom he now openly expresses scorn. In her distress she turns to Garibald, who professes himself ready to avenge Grimwald's insult; but Hadwig declares that she will herself make the tyrant beg for forgiveness. When she has gone out, the scheming Garibald laughs scornfully. Help her? All he aims at is to supplant Grimwald. To that end he will pretend to be anyone's friend or lover.

Scene 2. A Cypress Grove, The Graveyard of the Lombard Kings. Bertario (Baritone) has returned, only to find a monument with an inscription which declares that he fled to exile and died among the Huns. He meets his faithful servant Hunolf (Bass), who counsels him to hide for the present, until some plan can be contrived for the furtherance of his fortunes.

Rodelinda now enters with her little son Flavius and mourns by the monument. She is followed by Garibald, who jeers at her, and bids her consent to marry Grimwald. She cannot escape, and so promises to do so, but threatens that she will have vengeance on Garibald. Of this scene Bertario is a horrified observer, restrained by Hunolf from bursting out upon Garibald.

Grimwald, hastening to hear of Rodelinda's decision, is overjoyed at Garibald's news, and assures him that no harm shall come to him.

Bertario is heartbroken, believing his wife false to him.

ACT II.

Scene 1. The Cypress Grove, as in the last scene. Bertario, sadly meditating, is found by his sister Hadwig, who consoles him. Hunolf comes joyfully to tell him that Rodelinda is still true, and Bertario goes to meet her and prove her for himself.

Scene 2. Rodelinda's Chamber. There is an orchestral Intermezzo, whilst Rodelinda and her retinue receive Grimwald and his followers. She consents to marry him, but demands the life of Garibald. This Grimwald will not give. In scorn she bids him complete his crimes by killing her son, for how, she demands, could she marry the usurper and remain the mother of the rightful king of the Lombards? She will never be Grimwald's queen whilst Flavius lives. Soon she is alone. Bertario enters, and husband and wife are joyously embracing when Grimwald rushes in. He does not at first recognize Bertario, but when he does, he orders him to be imprisoned, promising in his rage that Rodelinda shall never see him again.

The Story Of 'Rodelinda.'

Handel's opera will be broadcast from 5GB on Monday, February 20, and from London, Daventry and other Stations today (February 22).

ACT III.

An orchestral introduction—Prelude and Fugue from Concerto Grosso in G Minor.

Scene 1. A Dim Gallery. Hadwig and Hunolf plot to release Bertario. When they have gone, Garibald and Grimwald appear. Garibald insists that the stranger who has broken in upon their plot is not really Bertario. Whoever he is, he must be got rid of. Grimwald, half-demented amongst his doubts and fears, can see no light.

Scene 2. The Dungeon. Bertario is in despair. A sword is thrown into the cell, and his courage rises. In the darkness Hunolf enters, and Bertario, thinking him an enemy, wounds him. Hunolf urges his master to flee, and they rush out.

Hadwig and Rodelinda come to look for her husband, and, seeing the blood and the mantle that Bertario has left in his haste, imagine he is dead.

Scene 3. A Flower Garden by the Palace. During this, the last scene, night passes into dawn, and dawn to the full glory of morning sunshine.

Grimwald, whose mind is unhinged, rushes from the palace. His conscience torments him. The influence of his surroundings calms him, and he falls asleep.

Garibald enters and would kill him, to gain the kingdom. He awakes, defenceless, and as Garibald is about to thrust him through, Bertario and Hunolf, escaping from the dungeon, appear and put Garibald to flight. Bertario pursues and kills Garibald.

Rodelinda and Hadwig find them thus, and Grimwald, who has been staring at Bertario as at a ghost, comes to his senses; his heart is touched, and he hails Bertario as king. Citizens have flocked to the spot, and there is general rejoicing, and a procession of homage. The chief characters join in a glad song, acclaiming the glorious day that dawns after the night of sorrow.

Every man and woman who has to make provision for the future should read this

£250 A YEAR FOR LIFE—FROM AGE 55

4 GREAT BENEFITS

- 1. £250 A YEAR FOR LIFE or £3,000 CASH
- 2. £20 A MONTH IF UNABLE TO WORK
- 3. INCOME TAX SAVED EACH YEAR
- 4. £2,000 FOR YOUR FAMILY

Thousands of men are making their own and their family's future secure by means of the latest Plan of Combined Investment and Insurance devised by the Sun Life of Canada. It is a splendid plan, adaptable at any age and for any amount. You simply make yearly or half-yearly deposits of an agreed amount for an agreed period and at the end of the time you receive a pension for life, or (if you prefer) a large cash sum.

For example, supposing you are now 35 and plan to receive £250 a year for life from age 55. When you get to that age you can have a cheque for about £3,000, instead of the pension, if you prefer to do so.

If, meantime, through illness or accident you are totally and permanently incapacitated for work you will receive a monthly payment of £20 until you are 55, when your regular pension will become due. In addition you will not be called upon to make any further deposit—the Company will make them for you. Further, the cash sum or pension will be paid to you at age 55 as arranged.

Every year you will save a considerable amount of money through rebate of Income Tax. This will greatly add to the profits of the transaction. With the tax as high as it is every man will welcome an opportunity for relief.

Last but not least your family. Every year adds to the amount of this insurance, so that from the moment you make your first deposit they are sure of £2,000. Accumulated profits increase the value of this protection each year.

Why not investigate this Plan? It means happiness for your own later years should you live, it will mean everything to your family should they lose their breadwinner. The Sun Life of Canada is the great Annuity Company, with assets of over £70,000,000 which are under strict Government supervision.

The Plan is so good because the Sun Life of Canada is so prosperous and so safe. It places you under no obligation to send the Enquiry Form for full particulars.

Says the Microphone— Points from Recent Talks.

THE Danes, having realized the possibilities of agriculture and rural life, have resolutely set to work to make the most of them. Their hearts are in the country. Whereas, one hears in England, 'Lord B. is in the country,' what I heard in Denmark was, 'The Count is on his farm.'—J. W. Robertson Scott on 'Farming in Denmark.'

You can make a garden anywhere—I don't care how small the space is. You can make an exquisite little Alpine garden in a stone sink or a pie-dish—or a sardine tin. Gardening is not a matter of acres.—Mrs. Marion Cran: Garden Talk.

For my part, I should like to see, in large type, on the office wall of every stage or screen producer, these words: 'The theatre should be a place where dreams come true.'—Mr. G. A. Atkinson: 'Seen on the Screen.'

MEN wanted a reform within the Church, not a revolution away from it. Lords could afford to look down on traders in the twelfth century; but in the fifteenth no lord could afford to look down on people like the Anolfinis of Lucca and Bruges, or like Dick Whittington of London, or Jacques Coeur, the great French financier. The day of the middle classes had come, and the middle classes supported not feudalism, but the Crown.—Miss Eileen Power on 'Europe Throughout the Ages: The Growth of National States and the Changing World—1300-1500.'

If there is one country in the world which could afford to disregard the doings of all others, that country is the United States, and immediately after the war, Washington tried the experiment by refusing to become a member of the League of Nations. And yet force of circumstances drives the United States to tackle exactly the same problems as those tackled by the League.—Mr. Vernon Bartlett on 'The Way of the World.'

Beard off— comforting Cold Cream on —in one move

How it multiplies!—Gibbs Shaving Cream lather. Soon it is 22½ times the weight of the cream used. A closely-packed mass of water-bubbles, blanketing the beard. Every hair "soaked to the skin"—saturated to limp resignation. Soft job for the razor.

And in the meantime the Cold Cream in the lather filtering into the pores of the skin, ready for the last act.

Sweep comes the razor. Off goes the beard—cleanly, evenly, with skin-level smoothness. The Cold Cream working in its wake leaves the refreshed glow of a healthily supple skin—cool and comforted.

That's a Gibbs Shaving Cream Shave.

Side of Life'—A Lenten Address

LISTENERS will remember a remarkable series of Lenten addresses delivered last year by the Rev. W. H. Elliott, the Vicar of Holy Trinity, Folkestone, and a well-known broadcast preacher. Last year he talked of 'the sunny side of life'; this year he deals with 'the seamy side'—a less promising subject at first sight, but on reflection, one that yields no less material for serious and even inspiring thought; at least for those who do not wish to close their minds to all but the most reassuring and doubt-dispelling aspects of life. This series of addresses will be continued every Thursday afternoon throughout Lent.

The Beggar's Song Leveridge, arr. Lane Wilson
My lovely Celia Monro, arr. Lane Wilson
Come, let's be merry .. Auon., arr. Lane Wilson

THE first air is one of a number composed by Richard Leveridge, a famous bass singer, who appeared in some of Purcell's works towards the end of the seventeenth century, and in at least one of Handel's English productions. His voice long remained powerful, and at the age of sixty he offered to sing a song against any man in England, for a wager of a hundred guineas. Singing appears to have been good for him, for he was not far off ninety when he died.

Of Leveridge's songs we remember the names of but a few, among them, The Roast Beef of Old England, All in the Downs, and the one we are about to hear, the jovial Beggar's Song.

MY LOVELY CELIA is a tormented lover's plea to a fair maid to ease his troubled mind by showing him she loves him.

THE philosophy of Come, let's be merry, is much akin to that of the ancient saying that reminds us 'tomorrow we die':
Time it will your youth decay;
Then try to live and enjoy while you may.

Wagner, arr. C. Woodhouse

THE warrior-maidens who bring to Valhalla the bodies of warriors from the battlefield, who shall serve to guard that home of the gods, are speeding through the air.

In this Prelude to the Third Act of The Valkyries we have a wonderfully vivid depiction of the galloping of the horses. There are few finer suggestions of elemental force in all music.

Shipping

ONE of the oldest of our industries, shipping is also one of the very most important. British ships are met with in every corner of the world, and the reputation of the ship and the seaman alike stand as high as ever they did. Tonight Britain's most popular broadcaster, The Prince of Wales, has an ideal subject on which to speak, and everyone will want to hear what he has to say.

Conducted by Sir DAN GODFREY
Kamarinskaja Glinka
Overture, 'Leonarda' Elsie Headlam-Morley (First Performance)
Variations on a Rococo Theme Tchaikovsky
Soloist, MAY MURLE

THE air on which these Variations are made is a very simple Tune, ending in a little Woodwind refrain, which is repeated after each of the Variations—seven in number.

First Symphony, in C Minor Brahms
THE Symphony in C Minor follows the usual 'classical' forms, and is in four Movements. The First is very weighty and unusually serious, even for Brahms. The vein of seriousness affects also the Second Movement, a gently-flowing piece, partly song-like, partly rhapsodic. Then comes a more light-spirited Movement, of a more seizable rhythm, but one that is far from introducing the spirit of gaiety that we often find in one of the centrepieces of a Symphony.

The last Movement opens with a short, solemn Introduction that keeps the Violins in soaring flight for a few bars. Then, after a change from the prevailing minor to a major key and a short pause, the urgent Finale (still in the major) starts on its long, exulting course.

DON'T BE ROBBED OF HEALTH and VITALITY

Many people suffer, unsuspected, from a very prevalent form of mild Anaemia. If you are pale and lacking in vigour, pull down the lower eyelid and examine the inside of it in a mirror. A pale and whitish hue denotes Anaemia.

Dr. Cassell's Tablets have achieved miracles in Anaemia cases. They provide the complete kind of nutrition essential: Blood nutrients and Hypophosphites, valuable stomachics and Digestive Enzymes. Neither stimulants nor sedatives, but strength-building elements. See the glow of healthy blood and strong nerves in your cheeks—start a course of Dr. Cassell's to-day.

'Drum Roll' Symphony Haydn

HAYDN was fond of giving titles to his Symphonies, such as The Hen, The Philosopher, The Queen of France, The Bear, and so on, and he wrote so many (over a hundred and fifty) of them that even when he did not give them names, we have found it convenient to do so, in order to distinguish one from another. We call this 'The Drum-Roll' Symphony because it opens with a kettledrum rumble—a sort of call to attention. (Its key is E Flat, and its number in the new Breitkopf Edition is 103).

The work is planned in the usual four Movements, and the chief point of distinction in it is that in every Movement at least one of the Main Tunes is a folk-song of Haydn's native Croatia; and very jolly tunes most of them are. Listen, for instance, to that dainty pair that dance into the FIRST MOVEMENT one after another and substitute themselves leaders in its game—a game that sounds so simple that you would think anyone could keep it going, but that is really so finely and scientifically put together.

A serious SECOND MOVEMENT, consisting of a short series of Variations on a theme, follows; then there is a dainty, prim little MINUET (with a middle part that seems to have escaped from the governess' eye and sought a quiet corner, for a flirtation, perhaps?); and a lively LAST MOVEMENT, splendidly engineered, and sounding perfectly spontaneous and immensely contented.

Something New For Something Old!

An Announcement of Interest to all Women Listeners.

SOMETHING New out of Something Old—a wish at least as old as the 'Arabian Nights,' and a wish still alive in the hearts of most women today. On Thursday afternoons at 3.45, beginning this afternoon, February 23, Miss Violet Brand will try to tell listening women how the wish may be realized. Miss Brand's series of talks are of a simple and practical nature, similar in type to those which she has given to Women's Institutes up and down the country, and which have proved both popular and useful.

The subjects covered will include the alteration of coats, dresses, and jumpers, with tips on cleaning, mending, and turning. Hints will be given on difficult points such as the use of paper patterns and how to make sleeves fit correctly.

The son of the house is not forgotten, and a talk will be devoted to the making of his trousers, with every hope of achieving 'that tailored look' of which he is so proud.

Carpets will be dealt with round about spring-cleaning time, including the joining of the best bits of an old one to make a mat.

Where is there a woman who doesn't want more than one new hat when springtime comes? Well, listen and find out how to turn and remodel last year's one.

The greatest difficulty in planning a series of talks of this sort is that the listener cannot see the process described. To overcome this difficulty and to lead to really practical results, there will be a weekly article in The Radio Times with notes and illustrations, and it will be possible to obtain a pattern of the Boy's Knickers in three sizes.

Miss Brand is now on the teaching staff of the National Training School of Cookery, and specializes in Needlework, Dressmaking, and Millinery. She demonstrates and teaches practical classes for the Women's Institutes throughout the home counties—and frequently acts as a judge at handicraft exhibitions.

Artificial flower-making on craft methods is also one of her subjects, and will be touched on in her last talk.

JUMPY MEN AND NERVOUS WOMEN.

Troubles Bred by Malnutrition.

Doctors have good news for men and women who are run down, weak, under weight, nervous and irritable. All these troubles spring from malnutrition, a failure of the digestive system to extract the nourishment from food. Doctors have always known that good, old-fashioned cod liver oil would bring a speedy cure because cod liver oil is the richest possible source of the valuable body-building, nerve-restoring, vitalising elements. But, alas, few people could take cod liver oil because its nasty, fishy taste and smell themselves upset the stomach.

Now you can take cod liver oil. Now you can get the valuable elements from the finest cod liver oil concentrated in little sugar-coated tablets, McCoy's, tasteless, odourless, and as easy to take as sweets, but even more beneficial than if you forced yourself to take the nauseating oil. McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets are simply wonderful for any man or woman who is run down, nervous or under weight. They bring new appetite, soothe and restore frayed nerves and infallibly rebuild the wasted flesh. If you are under weight and don't put on at least 3 lbs. with one month's treatment as prescribed, in addition to feeling better in every way, the makers will refund all you paid.

Any chemist will testify to the value of McCoy's. 1s. 3d. and 3s. the box, but insist on McCoy's Tablets, the original and only genuine.

In case of difficulty send direct to McCoy's Laboratories, Norwich.

THE official church of the Empire, and one of the most historic buildings in the world,
Westminster Abbey is full of interest to anybody interested in the story of Britain, as the long queues of sightseers constantly testify. Mr. Allen Walker's knowledge of the Abbey is, like Sam Weller's knowledge of London, extensive and peculiar; this afternoon he will describe the most interesting features of the Abbey Church, leaving the remains of the Monastery buildings for his talk next week.

HAVING dealt with the exaggerated claims of economics and of morals to rule all the relations between men in a society, the Master of Balliol concludes his series this evening by examining the claims of politics. Amongst the questions that he will discuss are: How far can the State perform economic functions? and How far is it the business of the State to make people good?

THE NOBLE GOTHIC OF THE ABBEY.

A typical view of the lofty arches of the East Nave, in Westminster Abbey, of which Mr. Allen Walker will talk this afternoon.

(Carnegie Collection of British Music)

THIS, Stanford's Op. 56, written in 1894, was inspired by the two poems of Milton named in its title. The work received one of the awards of the Carnegie United Kingdom Trust.

FIRST MOVEMENT. To this are prefixed two quotations from L'Allegro beginning:—

Hence, loathed Melancholy,
Of Cerberus and blackest midnight born,
In Stygian cave forlorn,
'Mongst horrid shapes, and shrieks and sighs unholy!

Find out some uncouth cell;

and
Haste thee, Nymph, and bring with thee
Jest, and youthful jollity . . .

Two little motifs on which the opening Introduction is based (one on the Flute and the other on the Trombone) are later used as material for development. The Flute theme is found in the opening tune of the Movement, and the Trombone theme plays a leading part throughout.

SECOND MOVEMENT (Minuet). This is preceded by the lines describing pastoral scenes and sounds:—

Oft listening how the hounds and horn
Cheerily rouse the slumbering morn . . .
Sometimes with secure delight
The upland hamlets will invite,
When the merry bells ring round,
And the jocund rebecks sound
To many a youth and many a maid,
Dancing in the chequer'd shade;
And young and old come forth to play
On a sun-shine holy-day . . .

THIRD MOVEMENT (Slow and calm). This has as a suggestive background some lines from Il Penseroso:—

But hail, thou goddess sage and holy,
Hail, divinest Melancholy! . . .
Come, pensive nun, devout and pure,
Sober, steadfast, and demure . . .
But first, and chiefest, with thee bring Him that you soars on golden wing,
Guiding the fiery-wheeled throne,
The cherub Contemplation . . .

LAST MOVEMENT:—

Oft, on a plat of rising ground
I hear the far-off curfew sound
Over some wide-water'd shore,
Swinging slow with sullen roar:
Sometime let gorgeous Tragedy
In accepter'd pall come sweeping by . . .
And, as I wake, sweet music breathe
Above, about, or underneath . . .
But let my due feet never fail
To walk the studious cloister's pale . . .
There let the pealing organ blow
To the full-voiced quire below
In service high and anthems clear,
As may with sweetness, through mine ear,
Dissolve me into ecstasies,
And bring all Heaven before mine eyes.

The curfew is sounded at the opening, and then we go on to the vigorous and stirring musical suggestion of the thoughts of the poet.

BALEE was one of the few British composers of his time (the early nineteenth century) who had much experience abroad. He spent a good many years in Italy and France, singing, and composing Operas in the Italian style. With The Siege of Rochelle (Drury Lane, 1835) he became known as a writer of English Operas, and The Maid of Artois, which appeared in the following year, with Malibran in the cast, strengthened his reputation.

The Spectre's Bride.

Thou dead, be still, forbear to move,
Our God in judgment shew thee love,
And lo, the dead man, near the door,
Lay down where he had lain before.

Yet louder came the knock anew;
The maiden faint with terror grew;
Thou dead, do this, I order thee,
The living thrust thou forth to me.

What anguish, what tormenting pain!
He wakens up yet once again,
His gloomy eye, new source of dread,
Glares on the maiden, now half dead.

No. 17.—SOPRANO SOLO.

O Virgin-Mother, gracious be,
All thy compassion let me see:
Sinful the prayer I made to thee,
Yet in thy love forgive thou me.
Bring me to dawn from out this night,
And set me free from cruel might.

No. 18.—BARITONE SOLO AND CHORUS.

There crew a cock, of morn to tell,
A second, third, and fourth as well,
The crowing still more frequent came,
The news was everywhere the same.

And when the signal first was heard,
The dead fell back, and never stirred,
And fled the ghastly spectre crew,
'Twas peaceful—morning breezes blew.

And who to Mass at morning went Stood still in great astonishment:
One tomb there was to ruin gone,
And in the dead house a maiden wan.
On looking round, amazed were they,
On every grave a garment lay.

Well was it, maiden, that thy mind
Turned unto God, defence to find.
For He thy foes did harmless bind.
Hadst thou thyself, too, nothing done,
Ill with thy soul it then had gone,
Thy body, as the garments were,
Mangled had been, and scattered there.

2.55 ENGLAND v. FRANCE

A Running Commentary by Capt. H. B. T. WAKELAM on the INTERNATIONAL RUGBY MATCH Relayed from Twickenham

(See front page)

FRANCE, the latest addition to the countries playing in the International Championship, is still the dark horse of the competition. Club Rugby in France is far higher in standard than might be imagined from the average showing made by French international teams, but it is particularly difficult to combine players from all over so large a country into an effective whole. Still, French Rugby is always full of dash and fire, and a French team is always capable of springing a surprise, such, for instance, as the defeat of England last year. This season France has given very stiff matches to Ireland and Wales, so the chances of victory at Twickenham this afternoon are not all on the one side.

Serenade for the Doll } Debussy
Golliwog's Cake Walk }

IN 1907 Debussy wrote six of the most delicious little musical trifles that exist. The whole collection of these six he called Children's Corner, and each of them has an English title. They were written for the Piano, and have since been orchestrated. At the beginning of the book we find two little fat elephants, and between them the inscription: 'To my dear little Chouchou, with her Father's tender excuses for that which follows.'

M. Cortot, the famous French pianist, suggests that the choice of English names was intended as a gentle, good-humoured, ironic hint at the 'traditional English Miss.'

Valse Mignonne (Dainty Waltz) Palmgren
Orientale Cui
Russian Dance Tchaikovsky

THE Finnish composer, Palmgren, is best known in this country as a writer of Piano music. But he has also composed Operas and Orchestral and Choral Music, and is himself a pianist. His sympathy with his instrument is made clear by his own piano pieces, such as this Dainty Waltz, which we are now to hear in an arrangement for Sextet.

CÉSAR CUI'S father was a French officer who fought in Russia, and was left behind during Napoleon's retreat from Moscow, in 1812. He settled in that country, and married a Lithuanian lady. His son was born in 1835, and, like many other Russian musicians of his day, followed two occupations, for he entered the School of Military Engineering and became a leading authority on fortification.

Possibly owing to his French extraction, Cui's music is less distinctively Russian than that of the other Nationalists of his time. He had this quality in common with them—he was attracted by things Oriental. This little piece is an example of his particular conception of the East in music.

SQUASH rackets has lately come increasingly into favour as a business man's game—fast and sporting, giving any amount of exercise in a short time, and capable of being played by artificial light in a court that costs far less to build and maintain than a real rackets court. Captain Cazalet, who is M.P. for Chippenham and Parliamentary Private Secretary to the President of the Board of Trade, is well known as a player of all the racket games—tennis, lawn tennis, rackets, and squash—and he was a member of the English team against America in 1925.

7.45 OLD FOLKS PROGRAMME

Broadcasting is often thought of as being the realm of youth—the concern of the rising generation, who are born into the inheritance of the age of miracles that wireless has ushered in. But it is also in a very real sense the domain of the old; of those who can no longer go to theatres and concerts and public meetings, but whose love for music and the drama and the affairs of the world remains undimmed. With the aid of radio they can keep up with the mad whirl of the world today; further, they can revisit the past, and hear again the old tunes and the old songs that thrilled them in the days when all their world was young. This latter opportunity—an opportunity of reviving old memories of the sentimental past—will be given them by the programme tonight.

9.15 Mr. G. WATSON PARKER: 'Let's got a Car—IV, Breakdowns'

AT the risk of damping the spirits of prospective owner-drivers, Mr. Watson Parker proceeds this evening to consider a very important feature of the motorist's life. Breakdowns vary in degree as in kind, but the breakdown that may be very serious to the ignorant driver is often a simple matter of adjustment for the expert. Any motorist who wants to shorten those weary hours of stationary endeavour on deserted roads will do well to listen to the good advice that Mr. Watson Parker will give.

Overture, '1745'

W. B. Moonie

MR. MOONIE, son of a distinguished father who was for many years a musical leader in Edinburgh, has carried on the family activities. After a period of study at home and in Frankfurt, he returned to Edinburgh, and for twenty years has associated himself with music there. His compositions are largely concerned with Scottish life and scenes. Here he has cast into the form of a Concert Overture his impressions of the burning patriotism and heroic deeds in the stirring days of the '45, when Bonnie Prince Charlie raised his father's standard in

MARGARET STEPHEN, Chorus and Orchestra Cantata, 'The Wife of Usherswell' David Stephen

MR. STEPHEN, a Dundee man, is well known to his countrymen as organ recitalist, conductor, and Director of the Carnegie School of Music in Dunfermline. His recent lectures from Dundee upon Scottish Instrumental Music will be remembered by many listeners, who will be interested to have another example of his work in composition.

He has set an old ballad which Scott says was taken down from the recitation of an old woman at Kirkhill, in West Lothian. It tells how the wife of Usherswell lost her three sons, whom she had 'sent o'er the sea.' She ardently wished for their return 'in earthly flesh and blood,' and about Martinmas her sons returned, in human likeness, their hats made of the birk (birch) that grew 'at the gates o' Paradise.' She made a feast for them, and sat by their bedside in the night. When the cock crew, one said to another,

'Tis time we were away.
'Gin we be mist out o' our place
A sair pain we maun bide.
Fare ye weel, my mother dear!
Fareweel to barn and byre!
And fare ye weel, the bonny lass
That kindles my mother's fire.'

A FAMOUS POLO PONY.

This evening Lieut. Col. Goldschmidt gives the first of his series of talks from Manchester on 'The Psychology of the Horse and his Rider.' Here is a fine example of horse-breeding—Miss Buck, who played in both the international polo matches in America last year, and was sold at auction for £1,400.

THE SOLUTION—OF COMPLETE ELECTRIC MAINS OPERATION:

NO DRY BATTERIES

NO
ACCUMULATORS

Met-Vick-Cosmos A.C. Valves not only provide the solution of the complete operation of wireless sets from the Electric Light Mains. They also provide great volume and extreme selectivity free from distortion. By their use you can switch on your set like electric light, and yet lose nothing in effect. In fact a mains operated set with Met-Vick-Cosmos A.C. Valves is a much better set. By using the ingenious Cosmos Disc Adaptors, these five-pin valves can be used in a set wired for accumulator valves, without altering the wiring.

A.C.
VALVES

This is what Mr. G. A. Exeter, the London Area Manager of the Radio Society of Great Britain says about them:—

"I must confess that I was a bit sceptical of the claim made for these valves, but in view of the results I have obtained upon trial, under decidedly adverse conditions, I now think you are indeed to be congratulated upon producing a great improvement in the technique of radio.

Undoubtedly this is the valve of the future, as by its use comfortable Broadcast reception is possible by the single turn of a switch, thus ensuring perfect reception by anyone with the least possible knowledge of radio."

You can solve the battery problem by fitting your set with them

JAZZ

WITH ITS MEDLEY OF INSTRUMENTS

but they make a wonderful harmony of the medley. And you catch the real spirit of jazz when you have a Lissen New Process Battery in your set. Your valves, like its power, never distort, and you get that clear reproduction without which jazz loses its infectious gaiety. The pure D.C. current of the Lissen Battery is flowing always so noiselessly, so smoothly, and so abundantly that every instrument is clear and distinct, every note and every word is clear and loud. The oxygen content of the cells due to the new process and chemical combination known only to Lissen is so great that throughout the longest programme your loud speaker utterance is natural and true from first to last. You get months and months of use out of the battery and delightful reproduction all the time. You can buy a Lissen Battery at 10,000 dealers. Ask for it in a way that shows plainly you want it and will take no other.

Exquisite Music-on Headphones!

WHENEVER you want to hear a fine piece of music hear it on these LISSEN headphones. Tune your set to the right degree of loudness and then sit back in your chair with real enjoyment. Pick out every instrument in the orchestra—hear every note of the singer crystal clear—listen to a fine opera with all the thrill of the actual performance. You can sit for hours with these LISSEN headphones on—they're so light you will hardly know they're there.

Every lover of fine music should possess at least one pair.

Cords will not twist or tangle but will always hang straight down no matter how the head may be turned or twisted. The two ear-pieces are extremely sensitive and are exactly matched in impedance. They settle at once into comfortable positions and may be secured there by a single movement of a special ball joint.

Butter side up

You met disappointment early. Bread and butter you dropped, for instance, always fell butter side down. Remember?

The Peto & Radford Indicating Accumulator obviates one disappointment for you, though. It doesn't let you lose a programme because you thought there was plenty of juice. This P. & R. tells you whether it's fully charged, half charged, or dead. You merely look at the indicating floats.

And that's an extra advantage.

This P. & R. is like every P. & R. Built for service. Solidly. Carefully. Like a BATTERY.

The Peto & Radford Indicating Accumulator keeps your wireless butter side up. And yet it costs but little more than the ordinary accumulator.

Write for our leaflet to Peto & Radford, 50, Grosvenor Gardens, London, S.W.1.

ALL EUROPE AT YOUR FIRESIDE!

“GOOD evening! Meet my friends from the Continent.” Thus John Bull introduces all Europe to thousands of firesides through the wonderful Cossor “Melody Maker.”

France, Germany, Holland, Switzerland, Italy and Spain,—any or all, whenever you want them on a Set you can build yourself. Tens of thousands have already done so—people who don't know the first thing about Radio. For nothing so simple has ever been known before. Every step is clearly set out in the full-size chart “How to build the Cossor ‘Melody Maker,’” free from your Dealer. It's as simple as Meccano. There's no blue-print to puzzle you; no soldering to thwart you. If you follow the instructions you can't go wrong. In a few hours you'll build a Set that is better than many factory-built Receivers costing twice the price. Ask your Dealer to-day (or send a P.C. to A. C. Cossor, Ltd., Highbury Grove, London, N.5.) for “How to build the Cossor ‘Melody Maker,’” and build the Set that brings the broadcasting of Europe to your fireside.

and the message is:—
“USE THE NEW Exide
 H.T. BATTERY”

The Exide WH Battery is the best H.T. battery ever produced. Hitherto offered only in 24-volt units at 24/- (1/- per volt), it is now available in a new, improved, and much handier 10-volt unit at 7/6d.—or 9d. per volt. A really heavy duty 5,000 milli-ampere hour H.T. battery at this greatly reduced price creates a record in value, even for Exide.

This super battery for H.T. must now appeal to everyone—obviously to users of powerful sets taking large currents (for the WH has long been the professional choice for really heavy work)—and equally to those whose current requirements are more modest, for its large capacity will greatly prolong the periods between recharges—while its new price places it within the reach of all.

Compared with an H.T. Battery of, say, half its capacity, the Exide WH will more than double the working hours per charge, at a price only 50% more at the outside.

LET ME

LISTEN!

IN a thousand homes throughout the land there's a nightly clamouring of little voices to hear the bed-time story on the BROWN Crystaframe. And a thousand mothers, now-a-days, find the kiddies eager for bed where, snug and warm, they can listen to the quips and cranks of the Uncles and Aunts.

The BROWN Crystaframe is quite the handiest Set ever made. It gives you the music of the broadcast wherever you want it. Upstairs or down—inside or out . . . wherever you go you can take the Crystaframe with you. Anyone can use it, too. Just a dial to turn—nothing to go wrong. No valves to break—no batteries to recharge.

Ask your Wireless Dealer, if you live within six miles of a B.B.C. Station, to demonstrate the BROWN Crystaframe. Complete with BROWN A2 Headphones it costs £4 10s.

The INTERDYNE

The famous new 4-Electrode
INTERDYNE Valve (Dr. Robinson's Patent).

This is the famous Receiver which will bring in practically any European Station, at any time, by simply turning a knob. Just think of it! Almost any programme you want can be tuned in at will, and in nine cases out of ten reception will be equal in quality and faithfulness of reproduction to that from your local station. This is really where the Interdyne scores. That noisy background, often referred to as "mush," is completely eliminated as a result of the special 4-Electrode Valves (Dr. Robinson's patent) used, and very often it is impossible to know whether you are listening to your local broadcast or a foreign station.

We have made a special study of all forms of Low Frequency Amplification, and the wonderful degree of tonal quality obtained with the Interdyne is proof of the success achieved. It is remarkably selective, as evidenced by the large number of stations received without interference of any kind. One of our leading daily newspapers was so struck with this remarkable advance in radio science, that it published a glowing report of the performance of this famous Interdyne Receiver, adding that deep, rich-toned music and clear speech marked all the stations tuned in.

Some idea of the efficiency of this Receiver can be gauged from the fact that almost every night America can be tuned in, even on the East Coast.

We have had a host of congratulatory letters from satisfied purchasers, originals of which can be seen at our office.

A report just received states that Atlantic City—5KW—comes in well using an indoor aerial. Nine or ten U.S.A. stations picked up, two or three audible on the loud-speaker.

A MANCHESTER user writes: "14 American Stations on new Screened Four on the loud speaker. Excellent."

From PENARTH, Glam.: "The Screened Four is the finest 4-valve set on the market. Its performance is excellent in every way, some forty stations being easily obtainable on the Loud Speaker, while it is possible to eliminate Cardiff and receive London without interference here. (3 miles from Cardiff aerial.)"

From the Temple, LONDON: "Though I know practically nothing about wireless, I succeeded on the first night in getting every station that I tried for, with one exception. At 1.10 a.m. Schenectady, N.Y., came in quite plainly. I have also succeeded in getting Budapest."

A LEEDS user has received on the loud speaker: 6 American Stations, 13 British Stations, 19 Continental Stations.

A GLASGOW user has received on the loud speaker: 3 American Stations, 8 British Stations, 27 Continental Stations.

From PENZANCE: "The Screened Four does all you claim for it and will get several stations on the loud speaker here on a wire tacked round the room."

From Willesden Green, LONDON: "Apart from the exceedingly reasonable price, the purity of reception is really so amazing that one wonders whether there can be any room for improvement. This instrument has completely revolutionized radio reception."

A RECENT TESTIMONIAL.

"The Daventry's Separated." 30-1-28. 88, Monica Rd., Small Heath, Birmingham. Gentlemen.—For the first time since 1924 I can understand Capt. P. P. Eckersley's advice to all listeners: "Look to your Sets; make them more selective." I purchased an XL Crystal Detector on the 22nd December last and fixed it, and its effect was fourfold. FIRST: Reception improved, clarity perfect. SECOND: No Cat's-whisker to fiddle about with, which alone is a big saving of time, etc. THIRD: For the first time since 5XX commenced operations we are able to separate two stations, 5GB and 5XX. FOURTH: Tuning in is perfect.

For it to do so much for so little is truly remarkable.

In fact, fitting the XL has made my Set work as it was intended it should, and has solved our troubles.

Yours truly, E. B. MARK.

PROOF!

of "Faithful Service"

HERE is a wonderful spontaneous tribute from a wireless enthusiast who has proved to his own satisfaction that the Oldham H.T. Accumulator is not only more efficient, but more economical than the average dry battery. Adequate high tension current is a vital necessity; so much so that a prominent radio engineer has said that 82% of poor reception is due to faulty H.T.

Note these from points of Oldham superiority:

1 Recharge 4 times a year.

The Oldham H.T. holds its charge so well, that with normal use frequent recharging is unnecessary. Four times a year should suffice. The robust plates of each glass cell are made under the Oldham Special Activation Process which accounts for their long life and their ability to hold their charge.

2 Cheaper than Dry Batteries.

The Oldham H.T. is a sound investment. When your dry battery runs down you must buy a new one. Your Oldham H.T. will last for years, and in the long run you will be handsomely in pocket.

3 No crackling-No noises

Crackling and noises are inevitable with dry batteries. With the Oldham H.T. you obtain a smooth, steady flow of current all the time. Its output is absolutely constant, unvarying and dead silent.

4 Full power throughout its life.

If an H.T. dry battery has been kept in stock for any appreciable length of time, it will probably suffer from deterioration. Not so with the Oldham H.T. Your Dealer simply fills it with acid, and in an hour or so it gives its full power, and it can be recharged as often as necessary. The H.T. dry battery must be consigned to the dustbin, when exhausted.

The most satisfactory method of building up your H.T. is with Oldham 10-Volt Blocks, which can be assembled quickly into any desired voltage. They are neat and compact, and can be stored away in any handy corner. Make a point of seeing these blocks at your Dealer's.

3, Ashton Gate Terrace, Bedminster,
Bristol,
January 19th, 1928.

Dear Sirs,
I bought an Oldham 60-Volt H.T. Accumulator on December 20th, 1926. It was charged then and again in June, 1927, and I have just taken it to be charged again. I have a three valve Set. Most people think when I tell them about it that I do not use my set very often, but I prove to them that my 2-Volt L.T. accumulator requires charging every three weeks. Before I bought your H.T., from December, 1925, to December, 1926, I used 2 H.T. Dry Batteries of 108 Volts at 22/6 and one 100-Volts at 16/-.

If I had to use dry batteries I should have to keep 2 buying new ones, whereas my Oldham H.T. looks as if it will last for years. My only expense will be for recharging. I do not get the noises or cracklings that I did with Dry Batteries, and my reception is as strong four months after as it is on the day it is charged. I consider my 60-Volt H.T. Oldham the equal of any 100-Volt Dry Battery I have tried.

Yours faithfully,
(Sgd.) W. JARMAN.

IT is extremely impressive to be able with no more mental or physical effort than maintaining three dials in step to produce a log of stations such as that on the left and receive each one as perfectly as the local. Few sets, if any, could boast of a performance equal to that!

Has not the vision of such a set filled your mind's eye from time to time? Would not radio be just your greatest joy if you owned a set such as this?

Contrary to usual experience the long wave tuning curve is dotted with stations to no less an efficient degree than the broadcast waveband.

On the 200 to 550 metre waveband performance of this receiver is remarkable. Stations such as Langenberg, Brussels, Frankfurt-on-Main, Nuremberg, 5 G.B., Bruenn, Stuttgart, Toulouse, Munich, Muenster, Berne, Hamburg, Rome and Madrid, simply break through like an immense volume from a suddenly-opened swell-box of a great cathedral organ.

This is an experience which occurs over the whole tuning range of the condensers. Mark you, it is not confined to those stations which are known to be working on very high power but is also extended to such transmissions as are not often heard, for reasons of their limited power.

If you want a radio set to provide your family with a variety of distant programmes at a volume as intensive as the local, build the Raleigh P.M.
