21 nights* departing November 2020 and February 2021 on board ms *Westerdam

Iguazu Falls

With fully escorted tours of Christ the Redeemer and the Iguazu Falls, discover the beauty of South America on this incredible cruise holiday.

Beginning in the carnival capital of Rio de Janeiro, you can revel in the lively energy that is embedded into the cobblestone streets before enjoying an escorted tour of the mighty Christ the Redeemer statue.

Flying to Iguazu Falls, explore this natural wonder on a walking tour. Watch as the water crashes and plays over the rocks while the sunlight catches on its ripples. First, you'll walk on the Brazilian side to view that perfect panorama of the whole waterfall system. On the Argentinian side, stroll along the catwalks, circling on top of the falls until you reach Devil's Throat and witness the power and majesty of water roaring over the precipice.

You'll then fly to Buenos Aires, capital of Argentina and the birthplace of the Argentine tango. Spend time delving into the city's vivacious beating heart between colonial, neo-classical and art nouveau buildings, and you'll then embark ms Westerdam for a further night on board the ship. Set sail on an epic voyage around the coast of South America, diving deep into its wildlife capitals, remote retreats and serene Chilean fjords.

A few of your highlights include the Falkland Islands with their penguin colonies and sailing around the Cape Horn, watching mountainous waves crashing against the cliffs. After cruising through the Chilean fjords where seals weave around chunks of ice and snow-capped peaks hem in winding rivers, you'll arrive in San Antonio and disembark the ship.

THIS WEEK'S UNMISSABLE TV

ALISON GRAHAM TV EDITOR

'True crimes and monkey business'

DUE TO A scheduling quirk – and it's a grim coincidence – there are two dramas this week about appalling atrocities in small communities. But while Deadwater Fell (Friday C4) is fictional, White House Farm (Wednesday ITV) is based on a true story.

Both feature the massacres of families – in White House Farm Freddie Fox is entirely convincing as Jeremy Bamber, the only survivor of the terrible events of a single night at his family's remote farmhouse, where his parents and twin nephews were shot dead. Police initially believe that the killer was the twin's mother, Sheila Caffell, who turned the gun on herself.

Of course, anyone who can remember the case from 1985 will recall that suspicion soon fell on Bamber himself. It is a sombre drama, but it's handled sensitively and well by writer Kris Mrksa.

Deadwater Fell stars David Tennant as a kindly doctor, the cornerstone of a close-knit community in rural Scotland and the adored dad to three children. His family is a picture of happiness, with the doc and his smiling wife at the centre of a group of trusted friends. But one night there's an appalling tragedy, and the village is torn apart. It's a well-constructed, harrowing drama.

CLEARLY, IT'S NOT a very sunny television week, crime both imagined and actual, is everywhere – there are excellent true-crime documentaries

24 Hours in Police Custody (Monday and Tuesday C4) and Murder Trial: The Disappearance of Margaret Fleming (Wednesday and Thursday BBC2). But the adored, daft crime drama Death in Paradise returns to BBC1 on Thursday and the sombre Grantchester is back on ITV on Friday.

If you need a cuteness overload after all of this mayhem, watch Baby Chimp Rescue (Thursday BBC2). Adorable!

Why free-range eggs are bad

But is food production without farming the answer?

IN A LABORATORY in Helsinki, I have seen the future of the world. At first sight, it doesn't look very appetising: yellow froth churning around a big steel vat. But when it's piped onto a heated roller, it turns into a golden flour. Mix it with water and you have batter for a pancake. I was the first person outside the lab to eat one made from this new flour. How did it taste? Like a pancake.

The flour consists of bacteria, taken from the soil and fed with nothing but hydrogen, carbon dioxide and a sprinkling of mineral salts. The cells are about 60 per cent protein; the rest is fat and carbohydrates. This simple process, using standard brewing equipment, is, I believe, the world's most important environmental technology.

It enables us to produce food without farming. The lab uses solar electricity to produce hydrogen from water, which becomes the energy source for the bacteria. The flour can become the feedstock for cultured meat, milk and eggs: products that will be identical to those we eat today, but made without animals. With a few tweaks, the bacteria could produce lauric acid, doing away with the need for palm oil, and omega 3 oil, allowing the manufacture of cultured fish. All these applications promise to take massive pressure off the living planet.

The horrible truth, that few people seem prepared to face, is that farming and fishing are the greatest threats to the world's living systems. Farming uses far more land than anything else we do, depriving wild animals of their homes, killing the wildlife that might eat or compete with livestock and crops, sucking rivers and aquifers dry, and spreading greenhouse gases, pesticides, manure and nitrates through the Earth's systems. Industrial fishing is causing cascading ecological collapse in seas around the world. It's a far more urgent threat to ocean life than plastic.

'Free-range means more land, more pollution and greenhouse gases than indoor production'

These industries are protected from public scrutiny by bucolic storybook images, planted in our minds from early childhood. We tell ourselves we can reduce our environmental impacts by buying free-range. Nothing could be further from the truth: free-range meat and eggs need more land and spread more pollution and greenhouse gases than indoor production, cruel as that can be.

SHELL SHOCK
Free-range eggs need more land and cause more pollution

But this is only half the problem. It's not just that fishing and farming are the most environmentally damaging of all industries. It's also hard to see how they can keep feeding the world. As a result of climate breakdown, soil erosion, the loss of fresh water and overfishing, even maintaining current levels of production could be difficult, let alone the extra volume needed to feed a growing population. If we carry on as we are, the world faces the real and terrifying prospect of mass starvation.

BUT NEW FOOD technologies, such as the microbial protein being developed in Helsinki, offer a way out. They could enable us to produce all the food we need on a tiny fraction of the current land area: beside bacterial products, all we would need to grow are fruit and vegetables. We could feed everyone comfortably, while releasing vast areas of land and sea from human pressure, allowing the wonders of the living world to recover, stopping the catastrophic rate of extinction, and drawing down vast amounts of carbon dioxide from the atmosphere. We face a very different world, but it could be a better one.

George Monbiot is a writer and environmental activist. He presents Apocalypse Cow: How Meat Killed the Planet, which is on Wednesday at 10pm on Channel 4

FROM THE RT ARCHIVE... 3-9 JANUARY 1970

WHAT WE WATCHED

The 1960s had ended but the new decade heralded a fresh Doctor Who in Jon Pertwee, complete with a flamboyant get-up of ruffled shirt and velvet lined cape for what was also the first series shown in colour. According to Who folklore, Pertwee had turned up at a press launch the previous year and grabbed what he said was a "suitably eccentric outfit" from his family wardrobe. The look so impressed the production team that it stuck (with a few amendments) for his tenure in the Tardis, which ended in 1974 when Tom Baker took the keys.

WHAT YOU SAID

Following the BBC's Noël Coward season, RT readers were exercised by the decision to show the Hollywood film of his 1929 operetta Bitter Sweet, which the writer disowned as "dreadful". "The film was a travesty of the original and now the younger generation will assume that Bitter Sweet was as shown in this version and not the charming play Coward wrote," said Bernard Cane from Beaconsfield, Bucks. Gordon Smith, the BBC's head of programme purchasing, insisted the movie "had enough of the drama of the original... to delight a great many and dismay but a very few". BEN DOWELL

The Sixties i

Call the Midwife creator
Heidi Thomas on how hemlines and high-rises changed Britain

SERIES NINE OF Call the Midwife is set in 1965, and kicks off with Sir Winston Churchill's funeral. I was a toddler at the time, and can't remember this at all. My most vivid memory of the mid-1960s is actually of legs. Specifically, ladies' legs, covered in American Tan hosiery and topped with extremely short skirts.

Ever since tights arrived on the scene, freeing women from the tyranny of suspender belts, hems had risen at space-rocket speed. Furthermore – as we are reminded every time midwives Trixie, Valerie and Lucille get dressed up to go out – fashion was suddenly fabulous fun. The colours were vibrant, the silhouettes quirky, and patterns had gone completely wild.

With its sudden burst of shocking pink tights, purple pinafore dresses and white vinyl ankle boots, Call the Midwife has come a long way from the twin sets, pearls and dirndl skirts of series one. And the changes have not been confined to the wardrobe. All across Poplar, people's lives have been transfigured by slum clearance, antibiotics, vaccinations, contraception, and gas and air in childbirth. Indeed, things are looking up so much that our fans have started fretting, asking "How much longer can the show go on?"

'Tights freed women from the tyranny of suspender belts'

They have no need to worry. Sister Julienne and her devoted team have more work to do than ever, because change is never instant, or complete, nor is it always welcome. Progress can give with one hand, and take away with the other. In Poplar in 1965, the Welfare State is flourishing, but family structures are breaking down. Polio has vanished, and TB can be cured, but ultrasound and epidurals have yet to be invented. Meanwhile, the Pill is not available to everyone who wants it, and abortion will stay outlawed until 1967.

Yes, there is optimism. Yes, there are small triumphs. But is every baby wanted? Is every illness curable? Is everybody happy? The answers are obvious – no, no and no again. Things in the East End are compromised, fragile and messy.

AND THAT IS the nature of life itself, wherever you go, whatever the date, whoever you meet, or love, or lose. This series, we see the Nonnatus House team dealing with cases involving cancer, dementia, fistula, prostitution and homelessness. There is a beloved infant who dies, and a brave and beautiful mother who is blind. There is also a fashion show, a horticultural extravaganza, and a firework display – with everything played out against a backdrop of permanent demolition and rebuilding. As Nonnatus House itself finds out, the wrecking ball is never far away.

And so we go forward, with no end yet in sight. Our midwives cycle on over the cobbles in their blue uniforms and sensible red cardigans, under the shadow of the rising tower blocks. And Call the Midwife continues telling stories about change that, in turn, remind us of the things that don't date and will never go out of fashion – hope, generosity, kindness, and love.

n full swing

Helen George

How has Nurse Trixie's style changed?
In the early series, I would be sewn into my dresses and it was very much about keeping everything in. Whereas now it's much more about the high hemlines and more fun: different coloured leathers, brighter patterns, floral designs.

It must have been a relief to ditch the corset? The corset is your friend when you're in these period dresses because they were so tiny back then. Since having a baby, I just don't fit into a lot of the clothes.

Are you allowed more eyeliner now it's 1965?

In the first few series, lip balm was our luxury item. As the years have gone by, we've had new make-up designers working on the show and I'm always like, "We used to do loads of blusher..." I fib so much. So now I've got lashes, fake tan, the works!

What is your favourite style?

I don't really have a favourite. It's like in life – you don't really notice the changes but then you look back on photos from nine years ago and think, "I can't believe I wore that, I look like a different person!" 1960s fashion was more comfortable and much easier to wash, so it was freeing in more ways than one.

Would you like to have lived in the 60s?

It would have been exciting – what a creative time, what a time to be young. But hard, too. In the 60s, you weren't allowed to have a career and to be a mum, whereas now you're almost expected to, but...

We still have a long way to go?

Right. In the UK we're just not geared up to help young parents. Childcare is so costly.

How difficult have you found juggling a career and being a mum?

I work long hours and have mother's guilt. But I think it's important that a child sees both parents working. We're both actors [her partner is Jack Ashton, who plays Rev Hereward] so we balance it out. We get through, one day at a time. CLAIRE WEBB

STRIKE A POSE

Jennifer Kirby, Leonie Elliott, and Helen George embrace the style of the mid-60s

EXCLUSIVELY PHOTOGRAPHED FOR RADIO TIMES BY RICHARD GRASSIE

Jennifer Kirby

Do you enjoy stepping into Nurse Valerie's shoes?

I love it. She's quite Mod and Twiggy-esque, which suits her personality – very stylish but no-nonsense. She wouldn't wear anything that is impractical. Some of the wools are a bit itchy but her outfits are pretty comfortable because they're not cinched-in around the waist.

Will she be donning a miniskirt?

Plenty. There have been a couple of times when they've put ones out for me to try and I've thought, "This is pretty risqué!"

Your hair is pinker than Valerie's...

I had a wig for this series – it's occasionally a bit itchy, but it looks great. Actors aren't really supposed to dye their hair because you have to be castable. But as it's under a wig, I thought I might as well take my chance, so I had it bleached and then pink put in.

What's your normal style like?

I probably shop too much, but I don't think I have a style. I chop and change. I wonder if it's partly down to being an actor: my temperament is to always reinvent myself.

Would you like to have lived in the 60s?

No, people have a fair amount of nostalgia towards that time and conveniently forget all the terrible bits. We've come on leaps and bounds in terms of women's rights. But if you were, say, an immigrant, it would have been considerably harder. The drama shows how hard it was for people who didn't have very much money – it was pretty bleak.

Was life simpler for women back then?

I'm sure it was simpler in the sense that women weren't allowed to do as much, and that doesn't appeal to me.

Can you relate to Valerie at all?

I love her straight-talking and practicality. It's funny how Heidi and the other writers weave in what an actor brings to their character. Valerie loves food because I do, and she has my naughty sense of humour.

Why does Call the Midwife resonate with so many viewers?

I think it's because we have the same issues then and now. When the series comes out, people often say "Oh my gosh, it's so poignant – that's happening now". For instance, we had a storyline about backstreet abortion in the last series and at the time there was a lot of talk about abortion being legalised in Northern Ireland. Call the Midwife is about human rights and women's medical rights, and they're still pressing issues that need addressing. CW

Leonie Elliott

What do you enjoy most about travelling back to the 60s?

Researching what was happening in London and Jamaica at that time, and the fashion! Lucille's wardrobe doesn't change as dramatically as some of the others, but I love that when I put on her clothes, I feel like Lucille.

Will Nurse Lucille be flaunting a little more leg?

She's got her own style, but I don't think you'll ever see her in a miniskirt. She's very demure so everything is always below the knee. I love the colour palette that Claire Lynch [Call the Midwife's costume designer] uses. She always introduces greens and yellows into Lucille's outfits, so there's a slight nod to the Caribbean.

Any downsides to a 60s wardrobe?

We've definitely got softer fabrics now, and shoes are a lot more comfortable.

What's your normal style like?

Very different to Lucille's! I like scrolling through Instagram, looking at runway shows and seeing models pulling off these fabulous outfits. I love it when the high street re-creates something that was on the catwalk, but makes it wearable.

Can you relate to Lucille at all?

I grew up in London, so in some ways we're worlds apart. I can't imagine what it would be like to move to a country where it's culturally so different at 20. But I can relate in terms of feeling like I've got a dual identity. My family are Caribbean; I went to Jamaica a lot as a child and it almost feels like home because I have a lot of family there.

How did you research the role?

When I first got the part, I ran through the script with my grandad and said, "How does this sound? Can you relate to any of this?" I had a conversation with him about how it was difficult to be accepted at church, so they would hold services and christenings in people's living rooms. I told one of the executive producers and they put in a storyline about living-room churches – I felt like I'd done my grandad proud.

Do they still exist?

I don't think so. My parents talk about how it was for them growing up – not having to lock your door, your neighbours looking out for you. We tend to have tunnel vision now – looking after ourselves as opposed to the community. CW

How the Radio Times photo shoot was conceived and created

Our Call the Midwife cover is an homage to a 1965 Vogue fashion shoot featuring Yves Saint Laurent's iconic Mondrian dresses. Helen, Leonie and Jennifer are wearing bespoke re-creations of the French designer's geometric gowns, which Call the Midwife's costume designer Claire Lynch had specially made for RT.

"I saw one of the originals at the Yves Saint Laurent Museum in Marrakesh last year and they would have been quite heavy because the fabric is wool-felt," she says. "I've glammed them up by using a lighter wool-crepe, which is the fabric that Yves Saint Laurent used for his evening dresses."

But while these dresses aren't originals, most of the costumes in Call the Midwife are the real deal. "I want them to be authentic, so as much as possible is vintage and from that era. I go to vintage fairs in Brick Lane and Portobello in London and I have a lot of trusted sellers.

"When I first read a storyline, I'll send them pictures from my mood boards, and they send me pictures of what they have. If I do need to make something, I try and get fabric that looks and feels authentic."

When deciding on a character's wardrobe, Lynch looks to real fashion icons of the time for inspiration. For example, Doctor Turner and Shelagh Turner are modelled on JFK and Jackie O, while Nurse Valerie's bold wardrobe is a nod to Mary Quant, the designer who popularised miniskirts in the 1960s.

In series nine, the midwives will even put on their first fashion show, turning their old garments into new pieces to raise money. "That was exciting," says Lynch. "I had carte blanche to go for it and I designed my own fabric. I took inspiration from a collection that Mary Quant did in '63 and went from there." CW

‘I FEEL LIKE I’VE FOUND MY VOICE’

From probing Prince Andrew to grilling MPs, Emily Maitlis is the BBC’s star inquisitor. So why does she find it so difficult to talk about herself?

THE RT INTERVIEW BY FLORA GILL

ON TELEVISION, EMILY Maitlis is serious and stern, prepared to hold anyone to account. But now, she’s grinning broadly, dressed in a casual jumper and leggings, laughing at viewers’ conspiracy theories about the colour of the clothes she wears.

Immediately disarming, she sits on her chair with her shoeless feet tucked under her body, offering out mints. She’s warm and welcoming, and it seems obvious why someone could feel so comfortable in her presence that they accidentally share too much, whether they be a politician, an American president or, indeed, a prince.

It’s been the most extraordinary few months of her professional life, doesn’t she think?

Hang on a moment. “Nice”? Perhaps “nice” might be a generous way of playing down the fact you’ve beaten other colleagues to land the lead presenter role on Newsnight. At a stretch, it could also be a self-effacing response to the universal praise for her brilliantly tenacious grilling of electioneering politicians (her eye-roll while talking to Labour MP Barry Gardiner broke the internet).

But about that interview? “Nice”?

“I’m so superstitious, so ridiculously superstitious, I think I musn’t mention that it’s been a good year.”

Eventually she will, and in the most revealing way...

It’s the day before the general election and Maitlis is doing her prep ahead of hosting the morning-after-the-night-before results programme – the first woman to do so.

On election night itself, she goes to bed with the radio on, not really sleeping and hoping the percentages and swings “osmote” into her brain. Her husband, investment manager Mark Gwynne, is banished to sleep in another room. She’ll be back on duty in a few hours’ time to take over from Huw Edwards.

It’s a far cry from her usual routine. For Newsnight, she’s off air at 11.15pm then she gets a cab home to Gwynne and their teenage sons, Milo and Max, in west London. She spends the journey answering viewers’ emails. Alone with her dog, she has “a cheeky something to calm down” and WhatsApps the colleagues she’s just left for a postmortem of the night’s show.

When historians conduct their own postmortem of 2019, it will be Maitlis’s interview with Prince Andrew that will be written up in big bold letters. One royal commentator said it had provoked the biggest crisis for the Windsors since the abdication. This is the first time she’s spoken about it since that November appointment at Buckingham Palace.

Did the prince really think it had gone well? “The impression I got was definitely that he had been happy with it.” Even afterwards, she says, the Palace told the Newsnight team it thought they had done a “fair job”. Did she believe the prince’s claim that he couldn’t recall ever meeting Virginia Roberts, a teenager he was reputed to have slept with three times between 2001–2?

“I don’t feel that is for me, actually. It’s not my job. I’m not a judge, I’m not a barrister, this isn’t a court of law.” The most she’ll concede is that there was “stuff that made more sense than other stuff”, answers that she “never expected to hear”, and words that she imagines “he wishes he’d chosen differently or better”.

And what of Prince Andrew himself? She wrote afterwards of “respecting” his decision to take all the questions head-on. Does she feel sorry for him now? “I think you have a curious duty of care towards your interviewees. I admire him for his candour and his engagement with the questions in an age of so much deviation and circumnavigation, and quite often a failure to put yourself up for scrutiny.”

Does she have any regrets about the repercussions of the interview? “I didn’t see it coming. It wasn’t ▷

◁ an attempt to bring down the royals, just a chance to understand the story." Maitlis remains reluctant to celebrate the interview, as she might any other scoop of such significance, though she can expect plenty of backslapping at broadcast awards ceremonies in the coming year. In part, she's worried it will scare off interviewees.

"I didn't like people saying: 'Oh, it's a car crash interview,' because I thought, 'That's not enticing, that's not encouraging.' I don't want people thinking that's what happens at Newsnight."

MODESTY ASIDE, FOR the watching world the Prince Andrew interview was the highlight of Maitlis's year, but it was only possible due to her promotion to lead presenter on the show nine months ago. Before this she had auditioned to present Question Time, a job that ultimately went to Fiona Bruce. Was she disappointed not to replace David Dimbleby in the QT chair?

"You never don't want to get a job that you go for, but I look back and think, 'I'm so lucky with the way things worked out.' I don't think any of this year could have happened [otherwise]."

Presenting alongside Maitlis on Newsnight are Kirsty Wark and Emma Barnett, with Esmé Wren editing the programme. Is this all-female team reflective of things having changed for women at the BBC? "I think things are shifting," she says. But then adds: "I don't think everything's changed by any stretch of the imagination, and I mean that on a national level."

Maitlis, a committed runner and early-morning swimmer, has proved herself to be one of our best presenters and political journalists. She also happens to be attractive.

Does she think that her looks helped her to get on in the industry? It's the first time she pauses, with a long "um" filling the gap as she searches carefully for her words.

"I think that I don't really know how to answer that," she says eventually. "Television was always very looks-based, I don't know if it is as much any more. I genuinely think that something shifted there.

"Being young and female gets you more attention. When I look at my male colleagues, when I was coming up, I had far more attention [than they did] in the Daily Mail. Was that good attention? Believe me, it wasn't always. I looked at [my colleagues], saying: 'You've no idea how lucky you are that you don't get all these ridiculous stories about you,' and they'd go: 'You have no idea how lucky you are getting all this coverage.' In a sense that's your answer. Sometimes you get more written about and more talked about. Sometimes that's nice and helpful and sometimes it's really damaging. I don't think we've reached an equilibrium."

'You have a curious duty of care towards your interviewees'

Perhaps her biggest success of the year, or at least the one she talks about with the greatest enthusiasm, was the publication of her memoir, Airhead: the Imperfect Art of Making News, which provides a fascinating and brilliantly evocative ringside seat at some of the most notable interviews she's done – including those with Donald Trump and Bill Clinton. The book was a critical success and Maitlis talks proudly of the accomplishment. A sense of relief also fills her words as she reveals she was prepared for the book to fail, and for that failure to feel like it was an attack on her as a person rather than on her writing ability.

What she definitely didn't expect was for it to be turned into a TV drama – perhaps The Morning Show meets Drop the Dead Donkey? Rights to the book have been bought by Working Title TV and Maitlis talks about the project with giddy enthusiasm, though when it comes to details she's not too forthcoming.

"It gives you this absolutely delusional sense of power," she says. "You go: 'I think I'll have him, go fetch him and I've just seen so-and-so, can you bring him hither,'" pointing from side to side at the imaginary actors she's beckoning.

Does she think her interviewees will want to play themselves? "I'm sure Piers [Morgan] will cast himself," she says with a smirk (the two are friends in real life). She can also imagine Trump playing himself and maybe even the Dalai Lama, if he's still around: "He seemed like quite a good guy." I suspect she's joking.

But everything is still up in the air, with the writer yet to be confirmed (although she has a particular woman in mind who she'd love to work with). And while Maitlis wants to be involved, she admits she will have to distance herself from the writing. She laughs at the possibility of having to sit and nod, as her character is transformed into an alcoholic with no self-esteem, who can't make friends.

Does she know who she wants to play her – or at least an approximation of her? In a flash, the inquisitor turns guarded interviewee. "I couldn't possibly say, but I am talking to her right now."

One suspects that if this piece of fantasy casting does work out, her reaction will be somewhat more enthusiastic than "nice". Which brings us back to the beginning. Later this year, Maitlis will celebrate her 50th birthday. A milestone, perhaps, but surely given the past 12 months it is but a stepping stone towards greater success? She smiles pensively and says: "I feel like I've found my voice this year."

Give us a clue

To daytime viewers he's Father Brown, to millions of others he's Arthur Weasley – but who is the real Mark Williams?

HANG ON, I'VE just got to take my frock off," says Mark Williams, in the West Midlands voice I still half-expect to say, "I'll get my coat". That, along with "You ain't seen me, right!" was his catchphrase on The Fast Show, the comedy sketch series in which Williams appeared alongside Charlie Higson and Paul Whitehouse.

But The Fast Show finished in 2000 (with the exception of a handful of specials) and today the 60-year-old actor is known around the world for two very different roles: as Arthur Weasley, Ron's dad, in the Harry Potter films and, since 2013, as the lead in Father Brown.

The BBC daytime period drama takes the investigating priest of GK Chesterton's original early-20th century novels, and moves him forward to the Cotswolds in the 1950s. That's why Williams is wearing the frock – or rather a cassock – and the black flying-saucer hat once favoured by priests, called a saturno. "The first time I ever put the costume on," says Williams, "I thought, 'Oh yeah, there it is, I've got him.'"

Williams's performance in Father Brown is a delight. Often, he does no more than watch, but his presence is enough to cause the innocent and guilty alike to betray their secrets. "It's not just sleuthing," he says. "There's a spiritual side to it. It's like he's saying, 'Who are you to be judging each other? There is a greater judgement.' Father Brown isn't just asking questions; it's about the human soul, too."

We're talking in the caterer's caravan. A few fields away, on location, there's an old Austin 7 van parked up in a honey-coloured limestone hamlet. It's partly this atmosphere, of Agatha Christie meets Midsomer Murders, that makes the show so popular. Also its gentleness. "Father Brown is like a bedtime story," says Williams. "It's light opera, it's chamber music, it's light on its feet."

Those attributes have proved to be particularly popular abroad. "It is extraordinary," says Williams, when he's finally struggled out of his costume. "We were filming in a church near here once and a woman had come from Argentina just to watch. Argentina! And she started crying."

I'm not always sure if Williams is joking or not. For instance, he claims to have been engaged in an ongoing online tussle with another man called Mark Williams who keeps changing his Wikipedia entry. "It says my wife's name is Denise," he says. "It isn't, my wife's name is Emma. But obviously, whenever somebody changes it back, somebody called Mark Williams goes on Wikipedia and thinks, 'No, my wife's called Denise. Change!' It's curious."

ALTHOUGH HE'S NOT a Catholic, Williams says he understands the appeal. "After the Reformation, the Catholic Church in this country had a glamour that was associated with being a bit alternative, a bit on the other side," he says. "That worked a lot in its favour, I think, because it meant that people trusted the Catholic Church in ways they did not trust the Church of England."

Have Catholics ever objected to his portrayal? "People got their knickers in a twist about liturgy and stuff," he says. "At first they asked, 'Is he really a Catholic?' That seems to have subsided now, because Father Brown is a fiction, just like Casualty is a fiction. It isn't a real hospital."

Williams himself doesn't have any religious faith. "I'm not a believer, but I have the greatest respect for what is done in churches, as a place for saying thank you and sorry." Would he do that? "Yeah, I'd still do that. I wouldn't seek out a Catholic church, it's just where you are and how you're feeling. Just walk through the door."

His life philosophy has an unlikely inspiration: the late German fashion designer Karl Lagerfeld. "He was very interesting – a thinker," Williams says. "I met him when he was taking photographs of me for 101 Dalmatians. Lagerfeld said, 'It is better to do, than to have done.' What does it mean? "Well, keep digging the hole." Just keep going? "Yes, deep is good."

Williams comes from Bromsgrove in Worcestershire, where as a boy he went to sleep to the sound of hammers at the steel works. "Everywhere you went someone was manufacturing something," he says. "There'd be a tatty shed and people would be in there with lathes, making turbo fans for jet engines."

He still loves engineering, and has made several documentaries about it, but rather than a life casting sprockets, Williams read English at Oxford, where he made independent films with Hugh Grant.

How on earth did that come about?

"I watched Frederic Raphael's series The Glittering Prizes [the 1976 BBC2 Oxbridge drama] with Tom Conti and it made me think, 'Oh yeah, I'll have a go at that,'" he says. "So, after we'd done our O-levels, Mr Toomey, the deputy headmaster, said, 'Is anybody thinking of applying for Oxbridge?' And I put my hand up." And that was it, you were at college with Hugh Grant? "Yeah, 1978, different times. And he's all right, Hugh. He's a brilliant actor. Though he didn't sound quite as posh then."

Class tensions gave The Fast Show much of its humour. "It was rebellion against the class system, really," Williams says. "But there are huge prejudices on both sides, looking up and down the scale. It's amazing that we haven't really managed to make a decent fist of understanding each other yet. I find it saddening."

EVEN THOUGH HE was elected president of the Junior Common Room at his college, Williams claims to have struggled with social difference at Oxford. I ask him how, and he says, "You can't really analyse your past, you can't explain it. You're moving forward, aren't you? The past and the future don't really exist, all we've got is that needlepoint of now."

Before we part, Williams asks me not to mention details of his family life. Not that he has revealed any bad stuff; in fact, I tell him, his life seems to have been largely delightful. "No," he demurs. "There's darkness everywhere, sir, darkness, darkness! We had our share of unhappiness, everybody does, don't they? Life is our lot."

Later I look up the name of Williams's wife on his Wikipedia page. It says Diane.

MAN IN BLACK
Mark Williams as Father
Brown, the protagonist of GK Chesterton's tales

IN MIDSUMMER 1985, Essex police received an emergency call from 24-year-old Jeremy Bamber, telling them that his father, Nevill, had just telephoned him to report gunshots being fired at the family home, White House Farm.

Arriving at the farm, police found the bodies of Nevill Bamber, his wife June, their adopted daughter, Sheila Caffell, and her six-year-old twin sons, Daniel and Nicholas. Largely on the basis of Jeremy's testimony about Sheila's history of mental illness, investigators initially assumed she had killed her family before taking her own life. However, forensic evidence led suspicion to fall on Jeremy and, in 1986, he was convicted of the five murders by a 10-2 majority verdict. He is serving a life sentence in prison, from where he continues to protest his innocence.

Now ITV's six-part true-crime drama, White House Farm, starring Freddie Fox as Jeremy, is retelling the story of the case. It follows the ITV series A Confession and Manhunt, which respectively re-created the murder investigations into serial killers Christopher Halliwell and Levi Bellfield, which begs the question: is the genre being overdone?

Polly Hill, ITV's head of drama, says: "We are pitched so many [true-crime dramas] now, that we need to be careful how many we do. Crime stories of any sort are hugely popular, and I think there's an extra fascination in a compelling story that is also true. But I don't think you should tell a story for sensationalist reasons."

When Jeremy Bamber killed his family in 1985, the nation was shocked. Why turn the crime into a drama now, asks Mark Lawson

There has to be some other justification."

White House Farm screenwriter Kris Mrksa took concerns about the form so seriously that he was initially reluctant to be involved. Mrksa, whose credits include the BBC's Requiem and The Slap, went off true crime after writing the 2012 Australian mini-series Devil's Dust, about a real case of corporate malpractice: "It was very difficult from a legal standpoint, and in terms of depicting the stories of the victims," Mrksa says.

"I'm proud of it, but it was exhausting. I told my wife that, from now on, I just wanted to make stuff up." But when his agent sent him Carol Ann Lee's book The Murders at White House Farm, Mrksa was enthralled by the story. He then read In Search of the Rainbow's End, a memoir by Colin Caffell, Sheila's former husband and father of the murdered twins. Those two accounts became the basis for the scripts.

"There is an ongoing public interest in the case," says Mrska. "Bamber continues to protest his innocence, which keeps it in the public domain. If it had gone quiet and people wanted it to be left alone, I would respect that.”

Watching a murderer

Carol Ann Lee agrees: “Many people believe him to be innocent, based on information that is only coming from Jeremy’s team. So I think it’s important to get a more rounded view.”

Mrksa’s aim was “not to re-sensationalise the story. So we put enormous thought into how we dealt with the crime scenes, and tried to restrain it as much as possible. But there are some details the audience has to see for the narrative to make sense, and I also think we need to convey the magnitude of the crime.”

THE BIGGEST QUESTION for the actors was whether they could play real people convincingly – or whether they would want to. Fox had to decide whether he wanted to spend time in the mind of a man found by a jury to be a homicidal psychopath. When the call came, he was appearing on stage with his father, Edward Fox.

“I had that conversation with him,” says Fox. “He said: ‘Think carefully, because you will not only have to play this person, but talk about him afterwards – and people will think of you in connection with him.’ So I did think about it. But I wanted to do it, because it’s a serious psychological examination of a very complex character.”

As a convicted criminal, Bamber couldn’t be formally consulted during the drama’s production, so Fox had to work from a few police tape recordings and TV reports from the family funerals. Carol Ann Lee was also able to share insights from a long correspondence she had with Bamber during the writing of her book. “Sometimes, the letters were 15 to 20 pages,” she says. “He came across as charming, but manipulative. I’d ask him questions and, if he didn’t want to answer them, he’d say: ‘Oh, sorry, forgot to answer the question, I’ll answer it next time,’ and then, next time, he wouldn’t.”

A particular issue for Fox was that Bamber insists that he told the truth about what happened in 1985, but police and jurors judged him to be lying. So, in his head, was Fox playing a liar, or a victim of injustice? “That is a very interesting question. In the opening episode, where Jeremy is told about the murder of his family, I responded to it emotionally. It’s for the audience to decide whether those are real emotions or an attempt to trick people. But the process for an actor is the same. Our view was that, for the first two episodes at least, viewers should think Jeremy is innocent, which is what people thought at the time.”

Lee has no doubt about Bamber’s guilt: “Once I had access to the crime scene photographs, there were a couple that made it clear that the injuries had been inflicted by someone with a good knowledge of firearms.” (Which Bamber had, through farming and country pursuits.)

Playing a woman whose murder robbed her of a voice, Cressida Bonas had to work hard to get into the part of Sheila Caffell. “There’s a lot of description of her in Colin’s book, so I carried the book around with me,” she says. “It was important to me to give this woman some voice. She was completely vilified in the press for being ‘mad’, which wouldn’t happen now, so I also did as much research as I could into her condition.”

‘For the first episodes, viewers should think he is innocent’

At the time, people used pejorative terms such as “nutter”, but Hill is pragmatic. “You have to accept it, if it’s part of the story you’re telling,” she says. “But obviously, we aren’t endorsing that language. It’s a really interesting way of looking at how we dealt with mental health then.”

“I think sometimes we need to confront people with how things were,” adds Mrksa. “But also, while we tell ourselves that these things are in the past, perhaps they aren’t entirely.”

In dramas now there is a drive for more sensitivity, as well as diversity – how does that affect a story where the major players were white? “It is difficult,” agrees Hill. “[But] these shows have to reflect the people who were in the story.”

Complex legal cases often have to be simplified for the screen, however, and some people worry that true-crime dramas muddy facts. How much intervention does Polly Hill think is permissible? “Hardly any. The job of our legal department is to make sure that, if you tell an audience they are watching something true, they are. You can’t make things up that are unfair to the characters.”

Mrksa agrees: “I hope that anything invented or changed from the truth is done in the service of a deeper truth. But turning events that took place over a year into six hours of TV is a giant editing job. There has to be some compression.”

IT’S BEEN SUGGESTED that Bamber’s imprisonment conditions mean that he has access to television. Has Mrksa considered the possibility of the antagonist tuning in? “Regularly. My hope is that – if we’ve done it sensitively and accurately – we can bring the cleansing light of day to a story that is still so often sensationalised, or simplified, or misunderstood.

“In doing that, will it have an impact on all those involved, including Jeremy Bamber? I’m sure it will. It’s one of the tricky and sometimes troubling effects of making drama based on real events. There’s no escaping it, but I hope the positives outweigh the possible negatives.”

From working on a building site to starring in his own sitcom...
Tom Davis is shaking up old-school comedy

IF THE GUYS back home in Sutton could see me now..." Tom Davis contorts his hefty frame, his eyes bulge behind thick-framed glasses and his heavily bearded features gurn obligingly for RT's photographer. He's enjoying himself so much that I feel a little awkward reminding him that the guys back home will definitely see him when this hits the newsstands.

"They'll use it as a dartboard," he concedes with a good-natured smile. Davis is a comedian from flat cap to the tips of his boots, all six feet and seven inches of him, with self-deprecating gags, big personality and mild insecurity in the face of Bafta-winning success; he claims to be stopped by tourists on account of his height more than by fans of his work – notably the BBC3 award winner Murder in Successville, more of which later – but he's about to get even bigger.

The 2018 pilot of his new BBC1 sitcom, King Gary, was well received and given a full series, following the travails of Davis's eponymous builder, loud-mouthed wally and would-be figurehead of suburban cul de sac Butterchurn Crescent. Yet uneasy lies the head that wears a crown, and Gary must navigate a world of potentially illegal home extensions, kids' football matches, his passive-aggressive dad (Simon Day) and a sniping middle-class neighbour (Romesh Ranganathan).

Broadly played but minutely observed, it's an unapologetically mainstream comedy of class, embarrassment and ineptitude, with the genuinely touching romance of Gary and his wife

Terri (the brilliant Laura Checkley) at its heart.

Reviews of the pilot were warm, although some raised sceptical eyebrows over the apparently over-the-top characterisations. "Come down the pub with my dad," says Davis, offering the first of many belly laughs as generous as his company. "If you're not from that world, I get that you'd think people like that don't exist. But I could say the same about Downton Abbey! The important thing was creating a world that felt true to the one where I grew up, and making sure the happiness and colour came across."

That world was south London, where the 40-year-old worked as a builder on terraces, manor houses and even the Shard until taking up comedy full-time eight years ago. Accounts differ regarding his exact role on site. "They mentioned I was a scaffolder on Channel 4's Sunday Brunch, then an old workmate rang up and said, 'You weren't a scaffolder, you were a labourer and an awful one.' It doesn't matter that I've got a Bafta, it's a leveller and it still grinds me! I must have been the country's oldest labourer, which isn't a great future."

Scaffolder or labourer, it wasn't a job he much enjoyed, but did instil a lasting work ethic. "I threw my heart and soul into it, but I had an awful memory when it came to grabbing stuff or mixing. Then the last recession hit and work just went. It was like the 1980s, going into a pub on Friday to see if anyone had any work on Monday. It was genuinely terrifying to think I might spend 30 years doing something I'm no good at and get no joy from. Looking back, I was probably depressed, but you couldn't turn up to work going: 'You know what, I'm just not emotionally there...' Our generation is the first to really talk about mental health, and thank God for that."

IT ALSO ALLOWED him to nurture a talent first realised in school. "I got a big kick out of making people laugh. It was the same on the sites: in that very masculine environment you were the quiet one, the aggressive one or the idiot who makes people laugh. They kept me around because I could be silly."

Inspired by seeing Micky Flanagan perform in a pub and encouraged by close friends and family, Davis honed his act on the circuit in the evenings while labouring on sites in the day. When lifelong friend James De Frond, then a budding director working as a runner on Leigh Francis's comedy Bo' Selecta!, passed some sketches he had shot on to his boss, Davis was given his first professional on-camera work. A respectable career of cameos might well have followed, as Davis racked up parts including "Big John", "security guard" and "burly man".

"I was always keen to push myself as an actor because I'd never trained and didn't come from that world," says Davis. "I played with toys until I was 13 and that imagination needed somewhere to go, so in a way it felt easier to hide behind a character rather than play anyone too close to me."

But Leigh Francis saw something in his future, and Davis was inspired: "He told me to believe in who I was playing. His big thing for me was: 'You're 6ft 7in, so you're never going to need ▷

◁ to impose yourself. Just play it down. He gave me the confidence to make my own stuff.”

Confidence alone wasn't enough to survive in a comedy landscape Davis describes as a closed shop. “People pigeonholed me very quickly until they'd seen something from me,” he says. “Comedy was very much a middle-class environment when I was coming through, but we needed more voices and now it's opened up so much in the last five years. King Gary is where I'm from, but you've got Man like Mobeen, The Young Offenders, This Country... Different voices coming from people choosing comedy as their mouthpiece, and I'm so proud of that. Now it's up to us to bring through the next raft of people.”

In the years when Davis could only afford a week's worth of gigs at the Edinburgh Fringe (and certainly no more time off work), the support of his peers proved invaluable. Many are now household names, from Katherine Ryan and Aisling Bea to Mo Gilligan and King Gary co-star Romesh Ranganathan. The high standard they and others have set for British television comedy brings its own pressures. “The terrifying thing is coming out with a sitcom that's old-school in its fundamentals, when there's a lot of really good, innovative stuff out there.”

EMBLEMATIC OF WIDER horizons among commissioners and viewers alike was Davis's breakthrough, Murder in Successville. Unique, anarchic and hilarious, this semi-improvised twist on the police procedural ran for three years from 2015, winning a Bafta in 2018 for its final series. Davis's soft-centered hardman DI Sleet was accompanied each week by a different visiting celebrity (Deborah Meaden, Lorraine Kelly, Martin Kemp) to solve a murder in a town where Vladimir Putin owned a gym, Jimmy and Alan Carr were Krays-esque gangsters and Paul Hollywood ran a biker gang; all the famous residents were played by comics and impressionists.

“The BBC comes in for a bashing, but they took an incredible risk on an ex-scaffolder with no real education to do a show that is virtually impossible to explain. And it was terrifying: we only had two days to shoot an episode, so we'd sometimes be up all night rewriting scenes because the guest star wasn't playing it how we expected them to.”

Davis and De Frond made magic on a shoestring budget but, after three series, both felt it had run its course. “The cracks were showing. Harry Hill said to us, ‘You could make it for another five years but you wouldn't enjoy it because, what are you making it for?’” His only regret was a mooted Comic Relief special with Line of Duty's Vicky McClure and Martin Compston falling foul of shooting schedules. Davis shared a flat with Compston, of whom Davis says, “I don't know how many stories I could tell that could make it into Radio Times, but he's one of the funniest people you'll ever meet.”

Spoof spy Action Team followed on ITV2 but struggled to find an audience, so Davis and De Frond opted to return to familiar territory. King Gary helped them “find our love for it” again; they hope more series will follow. If not, a grafter like Davis has plenty of other ideas on the boil.

“I remember teachers going to my mum: just have another kid, wash your hands of that one. I've always been an underdog, so to have ended up doing this for a living? It's humbling that, in a pretty toxic world, I can make something that offers a bit of respite and hopefully speaks for people who may think they're not represented on television. I still feel like I'm getting away with it a bit, if I'm honest, but all I ever wanted to do was to make people laugh, try new things, and not have to go back to scaffolding.”

Or back – for the benefit of any of the guys back home in Sutton – to labouring. Neither seems a likely prospect for Davis, whose future, as he readies for one final close-up, looks as bright as his grin.

DAVID TENNANT

BY MICHAEL HODGES

HAS DAVID TENNANT gone to the dark side? Watch Deadwater Fell, his new four-part Channel 4 drama, and you'll be convinced that he's a child killer. Last year, in Criminal on Netflix, he was Dr Edgar Fallon, suspected of raping and murdering his step-daughter. Next, he is playing 1980s serial killer Dennis Nilsen in ITV's Des.

What happened to the actor who charmed us as the Doctor, and captured a nation's sympathy as DI Alec Hardy in Broadchurch? "Nothing!" Tennant says when we meet at Channel 4's London HQ. "I'm not moving away from the light and into the darkness. I've always been in and out of the shadows. While we were shooting Deadwater Fell, I was doing Duck Tales down the line to the US."

While the Disney animation in which Tennant voices Scrooge McDuck is not psychologically demanding, Deadwater Fell is tougher stuff. Tennant plays Tom, a GP and father of three, who is married to a teacher. Created by Grantchester screenwriter Daisy Coulam, it's set in an apparently idyllic Scottish middle-class community that turns out to be anything but. Tom is having an affair with his wife's married colleague Jess, played by Cush Jumbo. Then, just as we have met these characters and begun to understand the complexity of their relationships, something very bad happens to the children.

"It's a lovely, picturesque little Scottish village where everyone feels like they know each other," says Tennant. "Then gradually everyone realises they don't know each other at all."

'It's a lovely village but nobody really knows each other'

Tennant, though 48, is still boyish. Married to the actor Georgia Moffett, they have five children: Georgia's son from a previous relationship, Ty, 17, Olive, eight, Wilfred, six, Doris, four, and a baby whose name is yet to be made public.

Having children, he says, has kept his ego in check. "I think there's nothing better to stop you from getting self-indulgent," he says. "Or allowing yourself to feel like what you do is so important that nothing else matters. There are little bundles of perspective waiting for you at home."

Were they in his mind when he was making Deadwater Fell? "Drama has always been about the extremity of human experience," he says. "I didn't think, 'This is about a terrible ▷ ◁ tragedy involving children and I have children and therefore I shouldn't touch it. You're looking for how your experience can inform you. I don't mean that you'd go on set and imagine the death of your own children, but you're informed by the act of being a parent. I did a show about ten years ago called Single Father, before I actually was a parent. I think about that a lot; how I would do it differently now."

TENNANT MADE THAT drama in 2010, just after leaving Doctor Who. His five years in the Tardis brought him critical praise and heart-throb status, though Tennant doesn't like the way he looks. "No! Who does? I'd like to be some Californian surfer, but I've got a scrawny Paisley body."

Tennant hails from Bathgate, in West Lothian. "Which is something I'm endlessly proud of," he says. "Being Scottish is part of what defines me, even though I spend most of my time pretending not to be Scottish." Deadwater Fell will remind viewers just how Scottish Tennant is. Does he support Scottish independence? "I don't live in Scotland, so I'm removed from the heat of that conversation. I don't get to be part of that debate. I have an emotional connection but I don't get a vote in that referendum." But if he did? "It depends on what happens with the EU, because that will define Scotland's future. And f*** knows what's going to happen?"

'Who likes their looks? I've a scrawny Paisley body'

Likewise, Tennant claims that he's never planned his career. "You bumble from one thing to the next. For Doctor Who I happened to be working on Casanova, which [screenwriter] Russell T Davies was working on. And Casanova probably only happened because I'd done a series called Blackpool, which meant that certain people at the BBC had noticed me. And Blackpool definitely only happened because I did an Anthony Trollope adaptation [He Knew He Was Right, 2004]."

These days he doesn't need to audition. Recent parts – also over on the "dark side" – include the demon Crowley opposite Michael Sheen's angel Aziraphale in Good Omens and supervillain Kilgrave in Marvel series Jessica Jones. What did he think when Martin Scorsese recently said Marvel movies are "closer to theme parks"

BAD GUY
Tennant as demon Crowley in Good Omens

than cinema? "I love Marvel movies. I queue up to see each new one as it comes out. I don't think that means there's no space for other things. The golden age of television, if that is what we're in, has thrived at the expense of independent filmmaking, but then you get these long-form dramas that are so beautifully made, written and acted; something like Succession, which I think is just delicious."

In Deadwater Fell, much of the drama is driven by the dynamic between Tennant and Jumbo. "I immediately felt, 'All right, this is an easy working relationship,'" says Tennant. "She's done a lot of theatre and maybe that makes us similar types of actors. I really warmed to working with her – she's also a decent human being, which is important."

He makes that sound like an unusual thing... "It's undervalued in our profession." More actors are nice than nasty, though, aren't they? "Without a doubt. Which means the occasional w****r does sing out." How does he handle that? "It depends. But I think bad behaviour on set comes from insecurity."

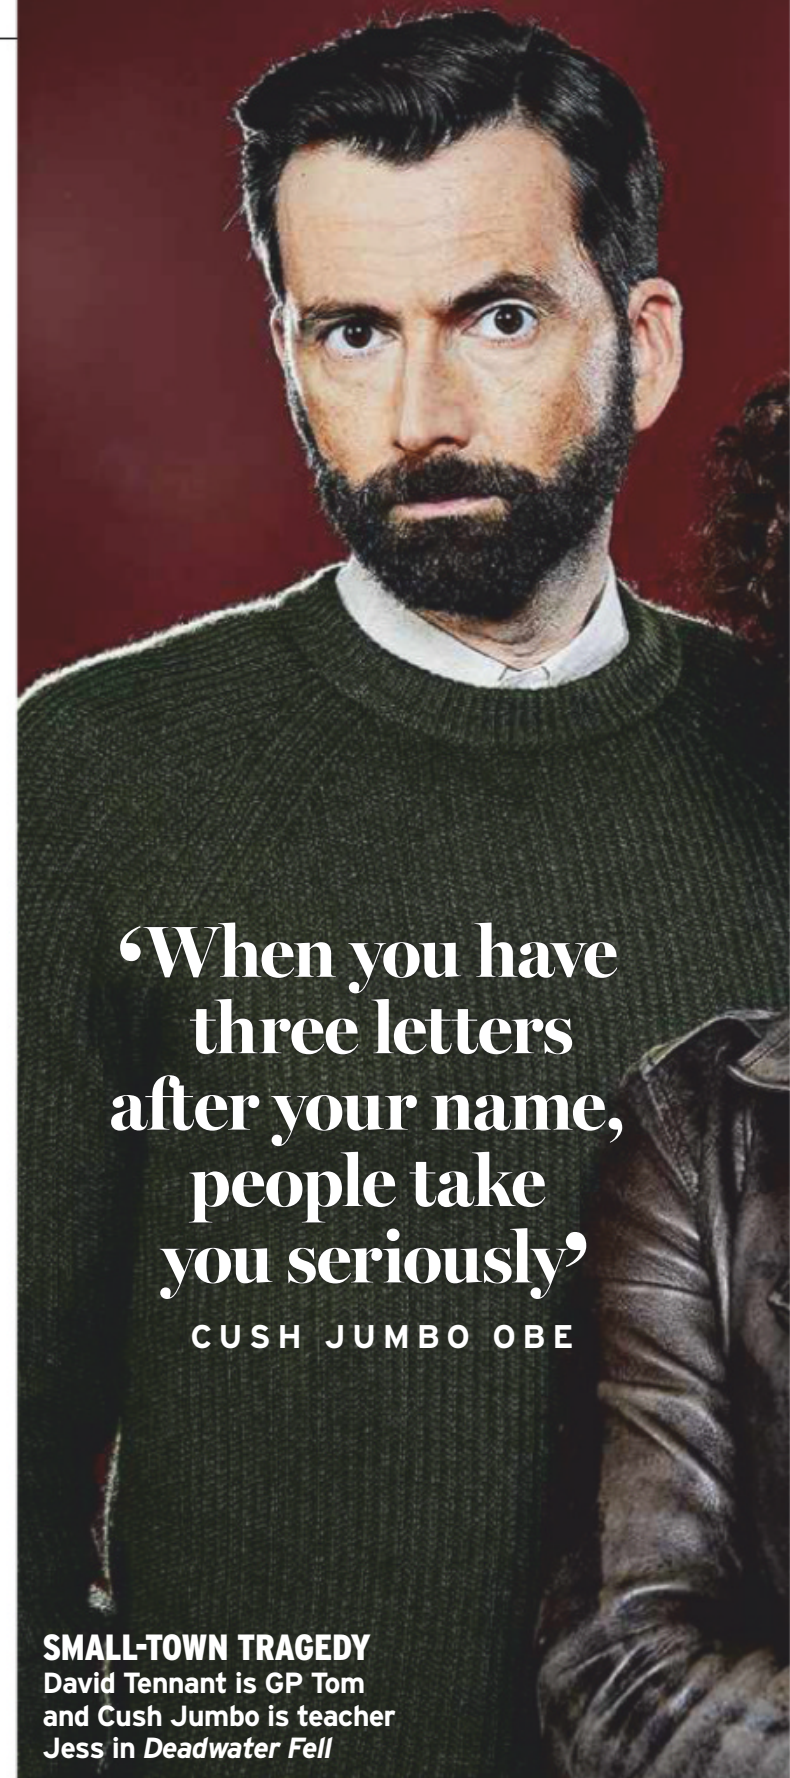

Sometimes, he admits, it can even be him. "I can get frustrated with my shortcomings. If there are days when I've not been my best self, it's because I'm feeling insecure or nervous. If I ever have a moment where I'm short or cranky, it ruins my day, I'm not very good at it. I'm sure there are people who can tell you all sorts of awful stories about me."

If there are awful stories, I can't find them, and, be he good or evil, Time Lord or killer, Tennant has never let fortune inflate his ego. "I try to remember," he says, "that when you're being treated a certain way on set it's because they want to get the show made, so that everyone can go home. It's not because you are special."

CUSH JUMBO BY GARETH McLEAN

CUSH JUMBO IS talking about the proudest moment of her life. There are lots of contenders: the night, in 2013, when she won the emerging talent award at the Evening Standard Theatre Awards for her one-woman show about the singer and performer Josephine Baker. Or when Josephine and I transferred from London to New York to yet more critical acclaim.

Then there's the day she landed the part of Lucca Quinn on the US legal drama The Good Wife, or when she was asked to continue as Lucca in The Good Fight (the spin-off in which she was promoted to second billing, behind Christine Baranski). There's her Broadway debut, in 2014, opposite Hugh Jackman in The River by Jez Butterworth, and her Olivier-nominated turn as Mark Antony in the Donmar Warehouse's all-female production of Julius Caesar.

'When you have three letters after your name, people take you seriously'

CUSH JUMBO OBE

SMALL-TOWN TRAGEDY
David Tennant is GP Tom and Cush Jumbo is teacher Jess in Deadwater Fell

And yet, the 34-year-old's proudest moment was not accompanied by rapturous applause or the glare of the spotlight. Instead, the circumstances were altogether more subdued. It was the day she received a letter announcing that three more letters would soon be hers, awarded for services to drama. Her OBE.

"Getting that letter..." she says, grinning broadly. Well, you would, wouldn't you?

Or maybe you wouldn't. Some people don't agree with the honours system, and so decline to participate. Did Jumbo ever entertain any indecision over accepting hers? "I don't judge anybody that would feel that way," Jumbo says, "but I don't."

For Jumbo, her family background – born and raised in south-east London, one of seven children – played a large part in her decision to accept the OBE. "My dad's Nigerian: he emigrated when he was 18, has paid into the system his whole life. My mum's from Yorkshire, Jumbo's conviction is contagious. You can see why she enjoys working in the States – and why she's so valued there. For the moment, though, Jumbo is in the UK in Deadwater Fell, in which she plays a teacher called Jess. "It's the first time I was offered a British show with a script that truly excited me; a character that excited me. And they just offered it. I was so honoured. That's never happened before."

When I suggest that Jumbo has star power now, she raises an eyebrow, but then admits: "Yes, there may be some power that I've now built, having raised my profile a little bit."

Just a little bit. Indeed, if Christine Baranski hadn't seen Jumbo perform Josephine and I in that New York transfer, Jumbo might still be playing roles like the one she left behind on British TV, as sidekick to Brenda Blethyn's Vera instead of holding her own alongside the likes of Julianna Margulies and Baranski.

Jumbo describes working with Margulies and Baranski as a masterclass in acting. "It felt like a no-brainer [accepting the part in The Good Wife]. Why wouldn't you?" And so, Jumbo upped sticks and left the UK for New York, where she now lives, with her husband and baby.

SO WHAT'S IT like working in the States, as a woman of colour, in a drama that is explicitly anti-Trump? "I don't want to be arrested or deported, but nor did I become an activist to shy away from discussions and debates, or from standing up for what I believe in. At the beginning [of Trump's first term in office], there was a bonkers theatricality to it and now we're settled into a dark thing. People attacking people. No one being sure what's really going on."

Not that Jumbo feels despondent. She's engaged and determined, aptly enough, to fight the good fight – there and in the UK. She's incensed by Government cuts, for example. "Every free programme or group I went to, growing up as an actor, has been shut down. And if I hadn't gone to the Brit School, which was free, I would never have made it to drama school. And if I didn't get grants there, I wouldn't have got through it – and that's all gone now."

With other opportunities for people like her "blocked off", Jumbo feels an obligation to "send the elevator back down". "I can hold open a door for somebody else. That is a responsibility of the generations that got through. Things aren't going to happen for others the way they happened for us, so we have to find another way. We're going to have to make the doorways."

I ask what makes Jumbo so fearless. She shrugs. "I had a child 16 months ago. And there's nothing like pushing something out of your vagina to make you brave." But I suspect Jumbo has always been brave. Now, however, she doesn't feel that she has to hide it.

and they're both nurses," she says proudly. "They were in tears when I told them. And I'll tell you why: part of the problem in the UK is this idea that we are all separate. Separated. That we're not British together, in our difference. But that's what makes us British. What made me proud about receiving an OBE was that there was a part of me that thought, 'Oh, finally they think I'm British.' Now, that sounds nuts when you're born and bred in London... But I've always been made to feel 'other'. Which doesn't make any sense. That's what I am – British."

Does Jumbo not worry that she's giving the establishment her blessing? "When you have three letters after your name, people take you more seriously. The establishment, society... And I worked f***ing hard for it. I never took a penny. I never signed on, I worked every job, I cleaned every toilet. So I deserve it, and I'd like to use it to empower other people."

My diet secrets

Tom Kerridge serves up 12 simple ways to shed your excess pounds – and keep them off all year...

THE TV CHEF lost 12 stone by cutting out carbs, but if you want to stay trim in the long term, Tom Kerridge says you've got to count the calories, exercise and train your mind. If you follow the advice of his new series you can expect to lose a pound or two per week, but some participants have done better than that. Here are his 12 ways to keep the weight off and stay fit all year.

1 Get off your behind

The moment when you say "I could just have a cup of tea now" is the moment when you should be exercising instead. The NHS advises that adults between 19 and 64 should complete 150 minutes of moderate cardio exercise a week – cardio means anything, like running or swimming, that raises your heart rate – or 75 minutes of vigorous cardio. On at least two days a week you should work on your muscle strength. That could be yoga, Pilates, weights or resistance bands. All exercise is good and you don't need to have an expensive gym membership – ride a bike or go for a walk or a run.

2 Don't fret about carbs

I lost most of my weight in the first place by going low carb – cutting out sugar, bread, pasta, rice and potatoes – but the NHS recommends losing weight with a lower-calorie diet. This method is much more everyday-life-friendly and easier to control on a day-to-day basis because you can still have a sandwich or a bowl of muesli for breakfast. Either way, you have to commit mentally and physically. If it were easy, all of us would be skinny.

3 Drink water

I never used to drink water and now I drink it throughout the day and especially after exercising. This is such an important habit to get into. Staying hydrated is vital if you are going to be doing more exercise, and if you drink water before you eat, it helps you feel fuller for longer.

4 Start with porridge

Start the day with a really healthy breakfast, and add extra flavour to your porridge by toasting the oats first. If you skip breakfast, you'll be hungry by mid-morning. So set yourself up properly!

5 Just do it!

"I'm going to give it a go" doesn't work. You have to say, "I'm going to do this." That's what leads to success. If you're just going to have a go at something, it's very easy to say, "I had a go, but it didn't work." You don't have a go, you DO IT!

6 Have goals

We all like achieving stuff, whether it's passing exams or finishing a work assignment. Have a sense of purpose and a goal, so you really feel you're trying to do something important. You're not just floating through life! But don't stop when you reach your goals, make it the way you live.

7 Get high on health

Eating better food and exercising puts you in a better mental and physical place but also gives you a buzz – a real euphoric "up".

8 Beware snack attacks!

When you're out and about and hungry, it's easy to just grab the easiest, most convenient snack – and they are often laced with fat and sugar. Avoid bad snack choices by making yourself protein bars, or eating fruit.

9 Savour the flavour

Healthy food like turkey mince can be incredibly flavoursome if you add fresh herbs, spices and seasonings. So, drive your cooking to a different level and you'll enjoy it even more.

10 Prepare meals ahead

Batch-cooking is your friend. Even if you don't like cooking, you just have to do it once and it could give you three or four meals. And bulk out with vegetables that are much lower in calories, which means you can have more of them.

11 Think before you eat

We all have to take responsibility for what we put in our bodies. No one is sitting you down, tying your hands and force-feeding you cake. You are making those decisions. It's up to you.

12 Anyone can get fit – even you

I'm 46 years old and my joints are battered. I hadn't been on a fitness regime since the age of 16. It's not about getting a six-pack and being able to run ultra-marathons. It's about being able to live a happier, healthier life.

URGENT APPEAL: help Syrian refugee parents like Khitam to protect their children through the winter.

Khitam lives with her children, husband Abdelsalam, and his elderly parents in a single, damp room of a half-built apartment block near Tripoli, Lebanon.

There are holes in the walls and ceiling, and they share a toilet with other refugee families crammed into the building. Khitam and Abdelsalam are mentally and physically exhausted after years of struggling to survive, unable to earn a living and fighting a daily, relentless battle to feed their children.

Right now, they are terrified by the prospect of another winter in their cold, uninsulated single room. Another winter where they will feel every blast of icy wind. Another winter where every time their children cough or sneeze they will fear they have contracted a lethal respiratory condition like pneumonia or tuberculosis.

UNHCR, the UN Refugee Agency, needs your support to help parents protect their children this winter.

Please will you give £75 to provide a refugee family like Khitam's with a Winter Survival Kit ## to protect against the freezing weather?

The kit contains essentials such as a heating stove, thermal blankets, warm clothes and a tarpaulin for insulation. It could mean survival for a family like Khitam's.

Two winters ago, as a result of their exposed and unsanitary living conditions, Khitam and all of her children became ill. Baby Bilal had a high temperature and diarrhoea. Her sons Khaled (3, pictured) and Abdul Rahman (8) had chest infections and their sister Fatimah (4) contracted worms. Khitam herself developed painful growths on her throat and lost her voice. Without access to a free healthcare system like we have in the UK, Khitam became overwhelmed with worry about how to pay for the treatment and medicines her children needed.

"I felt helpless. My children were coughing and crying and there was nothing I could do."

Khitam believes that without assistance from UNHCR "my children would be dead". Across Lebanon and Jordan, seven of the last eight winters have brought heavy snowfall and temperatures regularly drop below 0°C.

Right now, with the conflict continuing in Syria, 1.7 million refugees in Lebanon and Jordan remain unable to return home. They are living, like Khitam's family, in derelict buildings, or in makeshift shelters made of little more than wood and plastic sheeting. With temperatures falling, the lives of the most vulnerable – young children, pregnant women and the elderly – are at grave risk.

With a gift of £75 you can provide a Winter Survival Kit containing a stove, blankets, warm clothes and a tarpaulin to help a family insulate and heat their home. Please give today – you could save the lives of children like Khitam's.

The great leveller

Why the FA Cup brings us back down to earth

THE BIOGRAPHIES OF great artists or thinkers are enthralling. We read them in the hope of glimpsing the secret of genius: what makes these extraordinary people different from us? But we end up marvelling at what makes them ordinary: James Joyce lovestruck, or too interested in money; Charles Darwin worried about what his wife would think; Marcel Proust abasing himself for grand invitations. The FA Cup third round has the same sort of feeling.

You can get a bit too carried away with the Premier League: its glorious skills, its vast amphitheatres, its box-office managers; above all the feeling that football is cut off from life as we know it.

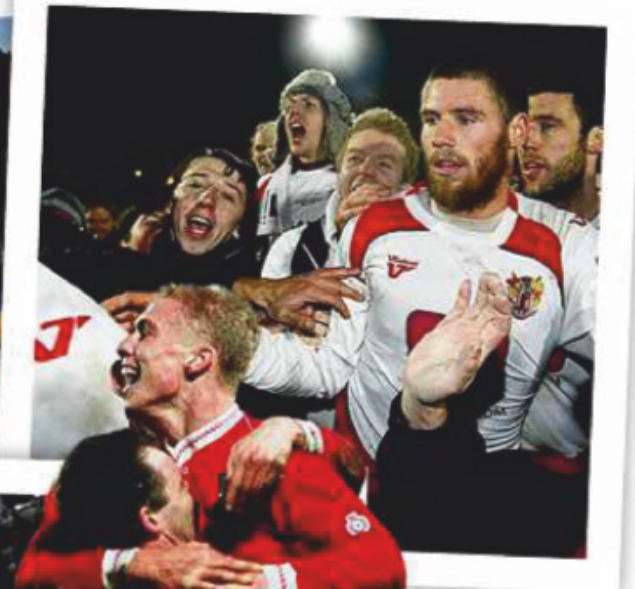

But then comes the intrusion of the third round, when the league's players have to slum it with the rest – and no one can duck the fact that there is a line that connects the most elevated stars of the footballing universe to Hackney Marshes, and a million back gardens and playgrounds. We remember that football is hard and dirty and muddy and cold: that it's the ugly game as well as the beautiful game, and all the richer for that. Arsenal have a visit from Leeds United (Monday BBC1, kick-off 7.56pm), and West Ham must go to Gillingham (Sunday BT Sport 1, kick-off 6.16pm): classic upset potential.

I remember the Monty Python sketch about the working-class playwright whose son, after running away from Hampstead to be a coal-miner in Barnsley, tells his father: “One day you’ll learn there’s more to life than culture! There’s dirt and smoke and good honest sweat!” There is more to life than the Premier League, more to football than millionaires. Every elite club goes into the competition knowing that a mighty humiliation could be lurking.

But it's not just the upsets that entice. It's the way those never-wealthy clubs and their never-will-be-wealthy players are all in the same competition. It's a moment of mad democracy, in which Shrewsbury, Rotherham, Tranmere, Oxford and Brentford count the same as anybody else... at least until their run is ended.

FEVER PITCH
Hereford fans and players after the non-league side dumped Newcastle out of the FA Cup in 1972

GIANT KILLERS
Clockwise from top left: Shrewsbury celebrate beating Everton in 2003; Stevenage's Michael Bostwick is mobbed after helping his side to victory over Newcastle in 2011; and Wrexham players celebrate during their defeat of Arsenal in 1992

That temporary equality is important for all of us to witness. Because as we watch, we are reminded that, while football is a difficult game to play well, there is continuity from highest achiever to the lowest common trier. Whatever else it is, football is also a game for all.

PEOPLE SAY THAT the FA Cup is about romance: about the Cinderella going to the ball, the shepherd boy who becomes king. But it's also about dirt and good honest sweat – a reminder that the great players are human beings, just like ourselves.

When a great player makes a mistake, the commentators say: “He’s human after all!” This weekend, when the top teams must play with the rest, there is no ducking the humanity of all concerned. We are forced to remember what joins us rather than what divides us. The FA Cup third round is Football United.

This weekend's other televised fixtures are Rochdale v Newcastle, k/o 12.31pm, and Wolves v Manchester United k/o 5.31pm, both on BT Sport 1 on Saturday; on Sunday, watch Middlesbrough v Spurs, k/o 2.01pm BT Sport 1, and Liverpool v Everton, k/o 4.01pm BBC1

Mr Music

André Rieu plays Strauss for the masses – now the Dutch virtuoso and his 100-strong entourage are bringing his music to the big screen

WHEN ANDRÉ RIEU was a child, his mother used to tell him not to look people in the eye. “I was always very open,” recalls the Dutch superstar conductor and violinist. “It’s in my nature. But she would say to me, ‘It’s not polite. People don’t like it.’” How wrong she was. Her son is now a sprightly 70, and it’s clear that the more he engages with his fans, the more they like it.

Moreover, he has the sales to prove it: 40 million albums sold, with 500 platinum awards, and boyband-level sell-out concerts that bring in audiences of around 600,000 each year. Those devoted admirers are responding as much to his bonhomie as they are to his celebrated waltzes. Classical concerts these may be, but there is no solemnity once Rieu and his Johann Strauss Orchestra start playing. Anything can happen: lavishly dressed musicians are sprayed with champagne; a glockenspiel played at high speed begins to give off smoke; his recent Christmas concerts in his hometown of Maastricht featured 60 ice skaters and 300 dancers.

It’s classical music, but not as we know it, and the tone is set as soon as Rieu and his colleagues enter from the back of the venue, high-fiving audience members en route to the stage. “Nobody else does that,” he says proudly.

Rieu spends so much of his professional life in a tuxedo, with either a baton in his hand or a Stradivarius nestled on his shoulder, that it feels odd to see him seated today on a hotel sofa in a dark blue shirt, cream trousers and check jacket. In all other respects, his off-stage self is consistent with the on-stage one: the tumbling golden mane greying at the temples, the mischievous smile and convivial mood.

This month, he will be inviting fans into his home with a new part-live extravaganza, André Rieu: 70 Years Young, which is being beamed into cinemas on 4 and 5 January. The exact contents are still being finalised as we meet, along with the identity of his special guests.

But he can confirm that the evening will include musical highlights from his career, along with new interview footage and a tour of the grand Maastricht castle where he lives with his wife Marjorie, or “Marjie” as he calls her.

MARJIE SHUNS THE spotlight and doesn’t come on tour with her husband, though he’s unlikely to get lonely, what with the 100-odd people he has on the payroll, including a doctor, a personal trainer and several cooks. “Marjie doesn’t want the publicity, and I wouldn’t want her to have to listen to the same concert every night. So I play and the money comes in and she...” Counts it? “Pays the bills!”

Other tasks include writing Rieu’s on-stage script, with its comic asides and pleas for togetherness. (His most recent tour featured references to Brexit, and to music being borderless. “Why does your country want to leave?” he asks me, mock-crossly. “Europe is fantastic!”) And it was Marjie who made a small but vital contribution to the

Caught on the Cobb

Apologies for the brief dip into travel journalism, but I'd like to recommend Dorset's Unesco-protected Jurassic Coast. It's ingrained with prehistory and, more to the point, well served by coffee shops (I recommend the Hive Beach café in Burton Bradstock). Fans of Ian McEwan will be drawn to the shingle featured in his novella On Chesil Beach (also now a film). And even if you've never visited, you'll recognise the cliffs at West Bay: the actual rock stars of ITV's Broadchurch.

Filmgoers of a longer vintage will always have Lyme Regis, setting for John Fowles's novel The French Lieutenant's Woman, adapted (after various failed attempts) by Harold Pinter and filmed by Karel Reisz in 1981. I often find British films of that period to have aged badly – caught perhaps between a freewheeling, American-influenced 70s style and the funkier social realism of the Thatcher years. The three endings of Fowles's novel lay down a challenge to any adapter. Yet Pinter simply presents a dual love story: one between the sailor of the title's ex, Sarah (Meryl Streep), and well-to-do naturalist Charles (Jeremy Irons), played out against the repressed glare of Victorian values; and a parallel tryst between the morally free actors cast in a modern film version.

The film's not as complicated as it sounds, it's bursting with fabulous British talent, and Reisz toggles commandingly between mid-19th-century mores and late-70s sexual freedoms, while Pinter underscores the moral chasm between the two periods. A Bafta- and Oscar-nominated Streep and Bafta-nominated Irons slip easily into twin modes.

Carl Davis won a Bafta for his sumptuous, melodramatic music, and rightly so. Fraught with uneasy strings and inclement weather, its standout is Sarah's Walk, the film's indelible moment where, cast out amid "talk of committing you to an institution", our heroine ventures out to the tip of the Cobb, Lyme's harbour wall. Why not take the pilgrimage to follow in her footsteps?

BIG NIGHT
They're dancing in the aisles at an André Rieu concert in his hometown of Maastricht; and it's all about colour with the Johann Strauss Orchestra (above) recording that transformed Rieu from a successful musician into an outright phenomenon. His 1994 album Strauss & Co included Shostakovich's Waltz No 2 from Jazz Suite No 2 – "Not a very catchy title," he admits – but it was his wife who suggested renaming it The Second Waltz. "In one year, we sold a million CDs," he says. "The whole of Holland was singing it." When I mention the version that was featured five years later in Stanley Kubrick's Eyes Wide Shut, he wrinkles his nose. "Mine is..." He searches for the right word. "Better! More dynamic. But then all my music is like that. When it's a crescendo, I make it a big crescendo. Marjie tells me: 'You are like four horses and I am trying to keep you back.'" He mimics her struggling with the reins.

Such behaviour, along with the wildly celebratory scenes at his concerts, runs counter to the way he was brought up by his father, a stern conductor who had no truck with frivolities. There is a case to be made that Rieu's career is a corrective to his austere upbringing in a home where pop music was practically forbidden ("I had to listen to Bob Dylan in secret") and it didn't do to be seen enjoying oneself.

'For me there is no high or low, no elite. I play for everybody'

His father was unimpressed by the levity that André brought to the concert hall. "He didn't approve of me injecting humour into it. In the beginning, I played with a small orchestra at weddings and he said, 'I didn't educate you to play at weddings.' But for me there is no high or low, no elite. I play for everybody. People are sometimes afraid of classical music: 'I don't know how to behave. Can I clap? Can I laugh?'" He throws his arms wide. "At my concerts, you can do whatever you want!" RYAN GILBEY

FILM OF THE DAY

Atomic Blonde ★★★

9.00-11.20pm C4 15

THRILLER British comics writer Antony Johnston struck oil when he created Cold War-set graphic novel The Coldest City in 2012; thanks to interest from Charlize Theron's Denver and Delilah production company, it was subsequently turned into this $30 million-budget thriller. Theron plays a fit, designer-dressed English spy sent to Berlin on a mission, who, in a tweak to the original story, is conveniently bisexual. She is well backed up by James McAvoy's yappy MI6 ally and handler Toby Jones. The movie's visuals are faithful to the pluming cigarette smoke-style of artist Sam Hart's spare, atmospheric illustrations, except now coloured in queasy greys and melancholic blues, and stuntman-turned-Deadpool 2-director David Leitch's highly choreographed fights are timed to 80s hits by Bowie, New Order and Nena. It's bruising and brutal, and the $100 million box-office gross means there's a good chance of a sequel. (US 2017, violence, swearing, sex scenes, nudity, HD)

DAYTIME

The King and I ★★★★★
2.25-5.10pm C5 U

MUSICAL Yul Brynner re-created his Broadway King for posterity in this faithful adaptation of Rodgers and Hammerstein's Broadway success about an English governess and her romance with the King of Siam. Brynner deservedly picked up a best actor Oscar and Deborah Kerr is resolute and touching, with an unbilled Marni Nixon dubbing her voice for such delights as Hello Young Lovers. A stronger director than Walter Lang would have been beneficial, but if you've never seen it, prepare to be enchanted. TS (US 1956, HD)

Cats & Dogs: the Revenge of Kitty Galore ★★★
5.15-6.55pm ITV2 U

COMEDY FANTASY The claws are out in this sequel to 2001's Cats & Dogs, as deranged and hairless moggy Kitty Galore seeks revenge on humans for the loss of her home by hatching a dastardly plan to turn the world's dogs against mankind. The plot is straight out of the James Bond case file, and the film owes much of its look and ideas to classic entries in that franchise, while Bette Midler lends Kitty a devilish rasp that's one of the joys of the film. SuR (US/Aus 2010, HD)

EVENING

The Heroes of Telemark ★★★
7.00-9.05pm BBC4 U

WAR THRILLER Reluctant scientist Kirk Douglas and fiery resistance fighter Richard Harris have to overcome their hatred of each other, as well as the Germans, to sabotage an atomic bomb project in this brawny war story set in Norway in 1942. Director Anthony Mann avoids getting bogged down with technical information and sustains a nail-biting tension throughout the daredevil mission. The night sequences are particularly striking, although Robert Krasker's photography will have you positively pining for the fjords. DP (UK 1965, HD)

Prospect ★★★

9.00-11.00pm Film4 15

SCI-FI Following the trials of a father and daughter (Jay Duplass and Sophie Thatcher) as they attempt to mine gems from a distant planet, this sci-fi drama says a lot by keeping things simple. The feature debut of co-directors Christopher Caldwell and Zeek Earl, it focuses on the psychology of its characters, rather than what's happening around them, not least when an uneasy alliance develops between Thatcher's character and a grizzled newcomer (Pedro Pascal). While the overall story is simplistic, Prospect stands out by bringing humanity to a genre that normally relies on spectacle. JL (Can/US 2018, violence, HD)

Chicago ★★★★★

9.00-11.20pm W 12

MUSICAL It took more than a quarter of a century to bring the 1975 musical Chicago to the screen, but it was worth the wait. In this spirited film adaptation, Renée Zellweger stars as Roxie Hart, the newcomer who dreams of singing and dancing in a jazz club, and Catherine Zeta-Jones plays Velma, the established performer. After the shootings of a lover and a faithless husband, they end up in prison and discover that the publicity surrounding a murder case can be a boon to a career in showbusiness. Oscar-nominated Zellweger is perfect casting, Oscar-winning Zeta-Jones sings and high-kicks as if born on Broadway, and director Rob Marshall loses none of the energy of the stage version nor its dark subtext on the corrupting nature of stardom. BP (US/Ger 2002, violence, HD)

LATE NIGHT

For a Few Dollars More ★★★★★
11.10pm-1.20am BBC2 15

SPAGHETTI WESTERN The second instalment of Sergio Leone's Dollars trilogy is arguably the best and most influential of the three. Honing the stylised visuals and dark humour of the original, Leone develops such future genre staples as the uneasy alliance against a common foe and the three-way shoot-out (refined to an even grander level in The Good, the Bad and the Ugly). But, while the pursuit of bandit Gian Maria Volonté by bounty hunters Clint Eastwood and Lee Van Cleef forms the core of the action, it's the attention to everyday detail and symbols of a passing era (religion and the railroad) that give this operatic classic its distinctive aura. DP (It/WGer/Sp 1965, violence, HD)

Prometheus ★★★★★

11.20pm-1.35am C4 15

SCI-FI Director Ridley Scott's eagerly anticipated return to science fiction shares much of its DNA with Alien, though it's more of a precursor than a prequel to that 1979 shocker. In the latter half of the 21st century, a mission (including Noomi Rapace, Idris Elba and Michael Fassbender) sets out to find an extraterrestrial race that may hold the key to the origins of man. However, other motives for the mission begin to emerge. The thrilling story is the movie's beating heart, though, and the perfectly structured plot is matched by solid performances and powerful visuals. TeS (US 2012, violence, swearing, HD)

12.15-1.45am BBC1 15

ACTION DRAMA John Travolta is as weak as the scripting in Saw V director David Hackl's tribute to America's brave electrical linemen – "the fourth most dangerous job in the US". Based on actual events, the Texas-set tale resembles a TV movie, with an overstuffed mess of human clichés thrown together in an attempt to create drama. PTSD, pregnancy and infidelity are among the issues, as Travolta's heroic foreman and his waitress niece (Kate Bosworth) lead a cast of stereotypes causing friction in the countdown to a mighty storm. SF (US 2015, violence, swearing, HD)

FILM OF THE DAY

The Angry Birds Movie ★★★
3.55-5.55pm C5 U

COMEDY Traffic between video games and films is constant (Resident Evil, Final Fantasy, Pokémon...) and it's easy for non-gamers to feel locked out of the love-in. Angry Birds – a cheap Finnish platformer launched in 2009, in which avian protagonists use a slingshot to retrieve eggs from green pigs – proved addictive and the franchise expanded exponentially. A film adaptation shouldn't have worked, but in the inventive, postmodern hands of writer John Vitti (The Simpsons Movie) and debuting co-directors Clay Kaytis and Fergal Reilly, the bird/pig conflict is established. Bird Island, occupied by serene but trapped flightless birds, is overrun by porcine tourists who are in fact egg-nappers, prompting Red (voiced by Jason Sudeikis), Chuck (Josh Gad) and Bomb (Danny McBride) to take action. An interlinked cataclysm of rickety buildings and wink-wink hoardings ("Calvin Swine") adds to the colourful airborne insanity. The film is the all-time third highest-grossing game spin-off after Warcraft and Detective Pikachu, and it spawned a successful sequel. (Fin/US 2016, HD)

DID YOU KNOW?

EVENING

Raising the Wind ★★★
7.10-9.00pm Talking Pictures TV U

COMEDY Leslie Phillips stars in this laboured but likeable Gerald Thomas comedy as a penniless music student whose talent for writing pop songs while drunk jeopardises his scholarship at a top classical academy, until gruff tutor James Robertson-Justice unexpectedly comes to his rescue. These accomplished funnymen go through their usual paces with aplomb, but the film belongs to the delightful Esma Cannon as a deaf landlady, Kenneth Williams as a toffee-nosed swot with designs on a composing prize and Sid James as the disreputable music publisher behind Phillips's predicament. DP (UK 1961)

Executive Decision ★★★
9.00-11.40pm ITV4 15

ACTION Producer Joel Silver is no mug at the action game, being one of the chaps behind the Lethal Weapon and Die Hard series, and, though no match for his best work, this thriller is entertaining enough. In this once far-fetched but now rather chilling action tale, David Suchet's gang of terrorists heads towards the USA in a hijacked jumbo jet with enough stolen Russian nerve gas to kill millions of Americans. Steven Seagal and Kurt Russell share top billing as part of an elite team that sets out in a stealth bomber to try to defuse the situation. It's competently done and director Stuart Baird makes good use of the set pieces. JF (US 1996, violence, swearing, HD)

Erin Brockovich ★★★★★
9.00-11.40pm Paramount Network 15

BIOPIC Steven Soderbergh's film might resemble a standard "issue of the week" TV movie, yet its ace in the hole is Julia Roberts's showy turn in the lead. Erin Brockovich is a twice-divorced mother of three who lands a job in the office of a small-time lawyer (Albert Finney). There she stumbles on some medical records, and, investigating further, uncovers evidence that a power company has wrecked the health of a local community with contaminated water. Based on a true story, Soderbergh's emotionally rich drama is compulsive viewing, thanks not only to Roberts's throat-grabbing performance, but also to Finney's lovable turn as the attorney who finds himself well out of his depth. AJ (US 2000, swearing, HD)

Abraham Lincoln: Vampire Hunter ★★★★★ 10.05pm-12.20am E4 15

HORROR Who knew the 16th President of the United States was the scourge of the undead? Seth Grahame-Smith adapts his own novel for this outlandish, action-packed story, brought to life by director Timur Bekmambetov (Night Watch, Wanted). Benjamin Walker makes for a likeable, credible hero, holding his own through the main vampire action and the anti-slavery subplot, however improbable it all becomes. Terrific supporting turns from Anthony Mackie and Dominic Cooper add spice to a wildly enjoyable supernatural yarn that's guaranteed to have you leaping out of your seat. The premise may be pretty ridiculous, but this movie surprises by actually making sense. KK (US 2012, violence, swearing, a sex scene, HD)

LATE NIGHT

There's Something about Mary ★★★★★ 11.00pm-1.20am 5STAR 15

ROMANTIC COMEDY Those kings of bad taste Peter and Bobby Farrelly (Dumb and Dumber) surpassed themselves with this defiantly non-PC but wickedly funny Hollywood smash. Ben Stiller plays a writer who, 13 years later, is still obsessed by his prom date Cameron Diaz. The problem is that a queue of fellow misfits has also fallen under her spell. With its risqué gags and the infamous "hair gel" scene, this is unwholesome entertainment for older members of the family. There's also an inspired musical commentary from singer/songwriter Jonathan Richman. JF (US 1998, violence, swearing, sexual situations, HD)

DAYTIME

Tomorrowland: a World Beyond ★★★★★
4.00-6.00pm BBC2 12

ADVENTURE This totally beguiling, mind-bending trip is also a call to action for kids to take ownership of the future or else inherit a troubled planet. Among them is Casey (Britt Robertson) who has a vision of a futuristic utopia, which may be an illusion, except that a girl called Athena (Raffey Cassidy) claims she can take her there. She also introduces Casey to a bitter old inventor (a gruff George Clooney) who has had similar experiences. Director Brad Bird peels away the layers of a complex story – taking in time travel, environmental issues and the nature of reality – to reveal the bigger picture with lots of retro-cool stylings and eye-popping set pieces. Enlightening stuff for older children and it's fun, too. SP (US 2015, edited for content, HD)

Pirates of the Caribbean: the Curse of the Black Pearl ★★★★★
5.15-8.00pm ITV2 12

ADVENTURE As this box-office smash is based on one of Disney's most famous theme-park attractions, we might have expected a shiver-me-timbers swashbuckler that's short on plot and long on action. Not so. It delivers plenty of both and is infinitely superior to the ride itself. With producer Jerry Bruckheimer at the rudder, it's a lavish Hollywood voyage into pirate country that sees blacksmith Orlando Bloom and governor's daughter Keira Knightley fall foul of buccaneers. Geoffrey Rush milks his role to the hilt as an archetypal pirate captain, but the real treasure comes courtesy of Oscar-nominated Johnny Depp, who delivers a swaggering, slurring, mascara-wearing turn as rascal Jack Sparrow. JC (US 2003, edited for violence, language, HD)

Mrs Doubtfire ★★★★★
5.40-8.00pm C4 PG

COMEDY DRAMA Robin Williams gives one of the performances of his career as an actor who disguises himself as a Scottish nanny to be close to his children after he splits from wife Sally Field. Director Chris Columbus should be given credit for reining in the Williams exuberance that often overbalanced his pictures, while retaining enough of his quick-fire personality to ensure that just about every gag hits its target. It's a little long and some scenes misfire, notably Williams's routine with the dinosaurs and the resultant TV show, but cracking set pieces, such as the make-up experiments and the series of table-hopping quick changes, more than make amends. DP (US 1993, edited for language, HD)

FILM OF THE DAY

Enemy of the State ★★★★★

9.00-11.30pm Sky1 15

THRILLER This 1998 movie from Tony Scott casts Will Smith as the Hitchcockian "wrong man" dragged into a conspiracy that imperils his family and national security. In a nice twist for cinephiles, Gene Hackman turns up as a retired government spook who works off-grid – fans of Francis Coppola's The Conversation (1974) like to imagine that he is in fact Harry Caul, Hackman's paranoid freelance surveillance expert (though here he's codenamed "Brill"). As Smith's life unravels, his identity is erased by higher forces, and Scott's camera zooms in and out as if watching the action from a series of spy satellites – Google Earth before it was invented. It looks a bit old hat now, but it was cutting edge back then and is no less entertaining for that. (US 1998, violence, swearing, HD)

5.05-6.55pm Talking Pictures TV PG

COMEDY Those familiar with the sitcom Only When I Laugh (1979-82) will recognise the formula here, as six male residents at Lenton Sanatorium seek distractions during their treatment for tuberculosis. The humour derives largely from everyday situations, as nurses Juliet Mills and Amanda Reiss take temperatures and flutter hearts. While romance simmers below the surface, this is primarily a study of masculine insecurity, as Donald Sinden, Lance Percival and Kenneth Williams and co struggle to cope with the reality of their condition. DP (UK 1962, BW)

The Girl on the Train ★★★★★
9.00-11.15pm Film4 15

MYSTERY Being faithful isn't always a virtue, especially in adapting a novel as popular as this one. It's a neat if rather too tidy domestic thriller from director Tate Taylor (The Help), with the action relocated from London to New York. The usually fresh-faced Emily Blunt plays the dumpy alcoholic of the title, who obsesses about her ex (Justin Theroux) and his new wife (Rebecca Ferguson). When their neighbour (Haley Bennett) goes missing, Blunt puts herself in danger. However, the truth of what happened to Bennett is never as intriguing as the mystery of who Blunt really is – and what she is capable of. SP (US 2016, violence, swearing, sex scenes, nudity, HD)

Get Carter ★★★★★
9.00-11.15pm ITV4 18

THRILLER This tough British crime tale hides its story of raw revenge behind some fascinating Newcastle upon Tyne locations. Director Mike Hodges keeps a firm hand on the surly proceedings and Michael Caine is at his most impressively impassive as the London gangster who goes north after his brother is murdered. Playwright John Osborne also makes a rare screen appearance as a crime boss. This is sex and death with a British accent, and it makes a welcome change from the American-set thrillers of today. TH (UK 1971, violence, swearing, drug abuse, sex scenes, nudity, HD)

Body of Lies ★★★★★

THRILLER In this Middle East-set story, Leonardo DiCaprio plays a CIA agent who is sent to Jordan by Russell Crowe to track down a terrorist mastermind, only to then get caught up in his boss's Machiavellian games. Director Ridley Scott orchestrates the action with his usual flair and the script (by Oscar winner William Monahan) makes some telling points about America's war on terror. However, the movie lacks the depth and sweep of a film like Syriana and the muted playing of DiCaprio and Crowe provides few fireworks. JF (US 2008, violence, swearing)

Midge Costin's clear, crowd-pleasing film infuses dry technical material with unfettered geeky excitement. A potted history that takes in everything from The Jazz Singer to Jurassic Park, with the likes of Walter Murch, Ben Burtt and Gary Rydstrom helping to demystify their work. AC (US 2019, col/BW, HD)

ANDREW COLLINS FILM OF THE DAY

The Big Chill ★★★★★
9.00-11.10pm Sony Classic 15

DRAMA As anyone who's experienced the sudden death of a contemporary will know, taking stock becomes paramount. The Big Chill, co-written by Barbara Benedek with director Lawrence Kasdan, is one of the most honest, challenging and yes, humorous dramas about bereavement and friendship ever made. It begins with the friends of Alex (played in death, but cut from the print, by Kevin Costner) learning of his suicide. The shocked reactions of Kevin Kline, Glenn Close and Mary Kay Place are understatedly real. The funeral acts as a larger, often carnal college reunion and 30-something lives (bored TV actor Tom Berenger's is a quiet revelation) are laid out and examined. Brilliant. (US 1983, swearing, drug abuse, brief nudity)

DID YOU KNOW?

Kasdan explains that the title refers to the experience of cold adult reality after leaving the "warm embrace" of true friendship during college

SWAT ★★
4.50-7.10pm Sony Movies 12

THRILLER In this half-baked misfire, SWAT (Special Weapons and Tactics) officer Colin Farrell is kicked off the team for disobeying an order and has to undergo interminable retraining. There's the germ of an idea during the final 15 minutes, as a billionaire international terrorist offers $100 million to the criminal who springs him from US custody and the SWAT team has to escort him across LA. But Farrell is bland, co-star Samuel L Jackson appears to be aware that he's slumming it and the result is resolutely leaden. AS (US 2003, violence, swearing)

Transformers: the Last Knight ★★★ 9.00pm-12.05am Film4 12

SCI-FI Director Michael Bay takes no prisoners in this mind-numbing spectacle that connects Arthurian legend and Stonehenge with undersea odysseys and Escher-style outer-space battles. As is always the case in this much-maligned series, the metal-crunching madness and mayhem is really all that matters, as Oxford professor Laura Haddock joins forces with inventor Mark Wahlberg to find Merlin's legendary staff, the key to stopping the Decepticons annihilating Earth entirely. AJ (US 2017, violence, swearing, HD)

Carlito's Way ★★★★★
10.00pm-12.55am ITV4 18

CRIME DRAMA Ten years after Scarface, Al Pacino and director Brian De Palma reunited here for another crime-doesn't-pay drama. Pacino plays a Puerto Rican hoodlum who leaves jail with the aim of going straight. However, his lawyer Sean Penn has other ideas, so it's not long before Pacino is heading back into trouble. The set pieces are among the most thrilling De Palma has ever filmed, while Pacino's restrained performance as the leather-clad, gently lispng Carlito allows room for the supporting cast to chew the scenery. AT (US 1993, violence, swearing, drug abuse, sex scenes, nudity, HD)

The Chase ★★★★★ 10.05pm-12.45am
Talking Pictures TV 15

DRAMA Before he directed Bonnie and Clyde, Arthur Penn made this impressively cast, wondrously overcooked drama about a Texan sheriff who protects an escaped convict against a town that has run out of control. Marlon Brando has immense stature as the sheriff and clearly relishes the appalling beating he receives at the hands of the mob, while Robert Redford is perfect as the angelic convict he protects. Although Penn virtually disowned the picture after producer Sam Spiegel had it re-edited, it remains a genuinely disturbing evocation of what was at times a traumatic era. AT (US 1966, violence)

FILM OF THE DAY

Get Out ★★★★★
9.00-11.10pm Film4 15

HORROR A young black man's anxiety about meeting his white girlfriend's posh parents for the first time proves to be well founded, but not in the way he expected, as this socially aware movie unfolds. Delivered from an African-American perspective that addresses racial tensions in Trump-era America, Jordan Peele's debut embraces classic storytelling from a previous period. The less you know going in, the further your chin will drop. Peele's follow-up, Us, comes to Sky Premiere tomorrow. Trevor Johnston (US/Jpn 2017, violence, swearing, HD)

Suddenly, Last Summer ★★★★★
9.00-11.20pm Sony Classic 15

DRAMA This wonderfully overheated drama by Tennessee Williams is animated by powerful performances from Elizabeth Taylor and Katharine Hepburn. Taylor plays the niece about to be committed to a mental institution by southern matriarch Hepburn after witnessing the violent death of a cousin, with Montgomery Clift as the neurologist called in to assess the girl's sanity rating before a possible lobotomy. Director Joseph L Mankiewicz makes it a class act all round. TH (UK 1959, BW)

Jarhead ★★★
10.50pm-1.20am Sony Movies 15

WAR DRAMA Director Sam Mendes takes a run at the first Gulf War with this adaptation of Anthony Swofford's memoir, in which the author relates the brutal process of becoming a marine and his experiences of the absurdly short war. Mendes delivers some stunning imagery, and he renders everyday marine-life well, both in its tedium and occasionally unpleasant detail. AS (US/UK/ Ger 2005, violence, swearing, a sex scene, nudity)

Friday 10

Heaven Knows, Mr Allison ★★★★★
2.45-4.55pm Film4 PG

WAR DRAMA This is a rare gem, a marvellously touching two-hander beautifully acted by the sublime duo of Robert Mitchum and Deborah Kerr in their prime. The tale is simplicity itself: she's a nun and he's a marine, and they're stranded on a Japanese-occupied Pacific island during the Second World War. Kerr won an Oscar nomination for best actress, but perhaps even she couldn't quite overcome her character's somewhat sketchy motivation. No matter, sit back and enjoy. TS (US 1957, HD)

The Commuter ★★★
9.00-11.05pm 5STAR 15

ACTION Retired cop and recently let-go insurance agent Liam Neeson faces a race against time to locate a fellow train passenger of interest to a shady criminal (Vera Farmiga) in this workmanlike thriller. A big pay-off is promised upon completion of the task, but an uncertain fate awaits his wife and son if he fails to identify the targeted commuter. Neeson doesn't have much to do except frown and shout frantically, Farmiga makes a fine cold-blooded femme fatale but has comparatively little screen time to make a mark, and director Jaume Collet-Serra's action-focus treats the rattling, runaway train as the true star of the piece. TeS (Fr/UK/US 2018, violence, HD)

Legal Eagles ★★★
9.00-11.20pm Sony Classic PG

COMEDY THRILLER This high-gloss comic courtroom tale was director Ivan Reitman's next movie after Ghost Busters. Robert Redford and Debra Winger star as attorneys involved in the unusual case of an artist (Daryl Hannah) accused of stealing a painting by her late father. It's not long before district attorney Redford has hopped over the fence to help defence lawyer Winger get to the bottom of the art-fraud conspiracy behind the case. There's plenty of star appeal and sexual chemistry, but the script is a bit flabby and the result is entertaining but unmemorable. PF (US 1986, swearing)

Baby Driver ★★
9.00-11.15pm Sony Movies 15

THRILLER In a revved-up reworking of traditional heist movies, Ansel Elgort stars as Baby, the young getaway driver for crime lord Kevin Spacey and his psychotic crew (Jon Hamm, Jamie Foxx, Jon Bernthal). It's a life Baby wants to leave behind for a future with perky waitress Lily James, after the obligatory "one last job" settles a past debt to the scowling Spacey. The bravura action sequences are well choreographed, accompanied by an eclectic soundtrack (mostly filtered through Baby's ever-present earphones), so it's a shame the disjointed plot of this fast and spurious jaunt frustrates at every corner taken in fifth gear. TeS (UK/US 2017, violence, swearing)

Films worth paying for...

Untamed

The Mustang ★★★ 15

From Monday Sky Store, Virgin Movies and iTunes

DRAMA An antisocial prisoner in a Nevada correctional facility finds his fortunes improving when he joins a programme to break-in wild mustangs for auction in this European production shot in the United States.

Matthias Schoenaerts is on good form as the convict learning how to address his anger-management issues while in equine company, and director Laure de Clermont-Tonnerre does a convincing job marshalling her untamed four-legged cast. But the film's real trump card is Bruce Dern as the marvellously ornery head of the institution's horse-wrangling project.

Given there's a broken relationship between Schoenaerts and his pregnant daughter that's in need of repair, events go pretty much where you'd expect. But despite a slight lack of substance, The Mustang makes for absorbing viewing throughout. Trevor Johnston (Fr/US/UK/Bel/Jpn, 2019, violence, swearing, drug abuse, HD)

PICK OF THE REST

QT 8: the First Eight ★★★ 15

Continues on Virgin Movies

DOCUMENTARY Tara Wood's exuberant trawl through the (then) eight-film oeuvre of "natural born film-maker" Quentin Tarantino is packed with clips and anecdotes from his regular collaborators, including Samuel L Jackson and Tim Roth. It's a pity the man himself is not present to provide good quotes, but if you love his movies, there is much to absorb and enjoy. JA (US 2019, violence, swearing, HD)

... OR A NIGHT AT THE CINEMA

The Gentlemen 18

Hugh Grant drops a few aitches in Guy Ritchie's latest tale of geezers and dodgy deals. Matthew McConaughey and Michelle Dockery co-star.

Jojo Rabbit ★★★★★ 12A

In this satire, a member of the Hitler Youth turns to his imaginary friend when he learns his mother (Scarlett Johansson) is sheltering a Jewish girl.

Amanda 15

After the death of his sister, a man (Vincent Lacoste) finds himself caring for his seven-year-old niece.

DVD OF THE WEEK

Animals ★★★★★ 15 Released 6 January on DVD, Blu-ray and download

In director Sophie Hyde's comedy drama, Holliday Grainger and Alia Shawkat are terrific as the hard-partying rebels, whose early years seem to have been spent carousing on the streets of Dublin.

Grainger's Laura is an aspiring author perpetually on the verge of writing a novel, if only brash best friend Tyler (Shawkat) wasn't enticing her into a diet of drink, drugs and casual sex. So far, so hedonistic, until Laura falls for a young pianist (Fra Fee) and domesticity beckons. Irreverent and refreshingly unsentimental, Hyde's film is blessed with a nuanced script (based on Emma Jane Unsworth's novel) and believable lead performances. Jeremy Aspinall RT Offer To order the DVD for £13.99, phone 0844 848 7300 (charges apply), quoting ref RT1792. ## ANDREW COLLINS FILM OF THE DAY

Snatched ★★★ 10.00-11.45pm C4 15

ACTION COMEDY It's bawdy and brash, but then so is Amy Schumer, a breakout star from the stand-up circuit whose lack of embarrassment defines her. Snatched is her second star vehicle, after Trainwreck, and preceding I Feel Pretty, which dealt with self-esteem issues. Here, she's dumped by her rock star boyfriend and persuades her formerly fun-seeking mum, Goldie Hawn, to take his place on a trip to Ecuador, during which they are kidnapped. Gags range from the scatological to the slapstick, and there is an awful lot of screaming, but there's no arguing its feminist credentials (written as it is by Katie Dippold of Melissa McCarthy vehicle The Heat). Cameos from Wanda Sykes and Joan Cusack further relegate the men to support. In many ways, it's Schumer who's the butt of most of the gags, but she carries that burden with carefree pride. The scene where she's seen by Englishman Tom Bateman "freshening up" is priceless. (US 2017, swearing, sexual references, HD)

DID YOU KNOW?
This marked Goldie Hawn's return to the screen after a 15-year break; her previous movie was 2002's The Banger Sisters

The Green Mile ★★★
9.00pm-12.45am More4 18

PRISON DRAMA Set in a Louisiana prison in 1935, this overlong but masterful sentimental fantasy stars Tom Hanks as a guard who forms a life-affirming relationship with a black prisoner on death row. Suspension of disbelief is essential if you're to enjoy Frank Darabont's reverential adaptation of Stephen King's 1996 novel – all the wardens are angels, bar one. Yet the director cleverly manipulates the emotions and only the very hard-hearted will remain dry-eyed throughout or unshocked by the harrowing execution scenes. DM (US 1999, violence, swearing, HD)

The Impossible ★★★★★
11.45pm-1.40am C4 12

DRAMA This visceral and deeply moving true-life tale follows the desperate efforts of a family to survive and reunite in the immediate aftermath of the 2004 Indian Ocean tsunami. Naomi Watts and Ewan McGregor give astonishingly raw performances as a married couple who, along with their three boys (including a pre-Spider-Man Tom Holland), are caught up in the devastation while on holiday in Thailand. With its excellent performances, thrilling authenticity and epic scope, this packs a real emotional wallop. AJ (Sp 2011, brief nudity, HD)

An End to Getting Frustrated with your Smartphone

Finally discover how to get it to do what you want, easily
(and find out what else you can do with it, too)

At last, using your smartphone can be easy, simple and stress-free.

Find out how...

Modern mobile phones – smartphones as they're called - can do so much more than just make phone calls.

From browsing the web wherever you are, checking train times, acting as a sat nav... And best of all they can make it so easy to keep in touch with family and friends – in so many ways, from sharing photos to making video calls.

But using them isn't always as easy as you'd want – and that's putting it mildly!

Do the manufacturers do it on purpose?

Sometimes it can seem like the manufacturers deliberately make them complicated – and how you do things is often hidden away. It might be easy once you know, but until you've been shown the easy way, it can drive you mad.

In fact only yesterday I was talking to someone whose Mum had got a new all-singing-all-dancing phone – but she couldn't work out how to answer a phone call on it! She's not daft – it's just that it's different from what she'd used before and the phone didn't come with a manual telling her what to do.

Whether you have similar problems or you're trying to do something slightly more advanced, the thing is, it can be easy to use them... once you know how. But until you've been shown, it can be like talking a different language.

That's why I've published two new books: iPhones one Step at a Time and Android Smartphones One Step at a Time.

Plain English... and that's not all

They explain how to use the phone, in plain simple language with pictures of the screen showing you exactly where to tap or slide your fingers. No jargon!

What's covered?

I can't list it all here. But amongst other things, you'll discover:

- The basics of controlling it – swiping, tapping, opening apps & so on.
- How to use it as a sat-nav... in the car or even on foot.
- Send emails from your phone.
- Most phones have a good camera so you can take photos: here's how to use it properly (and for videos).

*Suitable for iPhones, Android smartphones and Doros.
(Not sure what phone you have?
Best send off for the free info pack)*

- Share photos with friends around the world – quickly and easily.
- See updates, photos and video clips from friends and family - as soon as they “post” them.
- Instant messaging & how to use it.
- Make it easier to read the screen.
- Video phone calls - a great way to keep up with family who live a long way away
- Browse the web at home or out and about.
- Choosing and downloading apps.
- And obviously, you can make phone calls and send and receive text messages. (“Voicemail” is covered, too)

All explained nice and simply. (Find out more in the free information pack – read on...)

What one reader had to say:

“Thanks for a fantastic smart phone book. Very pleasant staff as usual.

I think this book should be sold with every smart phone. I have learnt so much from it, the info you get with the phone is non-existent.

Smart phones are quite complex, and your books speak in plain English.”

Only half the story

Dealing in true crime

When is the right time to revisit murder, asks Alison Graham

I WONDER IF there's a sliding scale of good taste when it comes to the dramatisation of real-life crimes. How long is it considered decent to wait after a particularly notorious murder or series of murders before the story is adapted?

It took just over 40 years before television dramatists felt they could go anywhere near the Moors Murders (with two dramas, Longford and See No Evil), such was the depravity of Ian Brady and Myra Hindley. Anyone who lived through those years in the mid 1960s will remember the pervasive sense of horror, even if we were, mercifully, much too young to know the details.

Yet it was a mere (in comparison) 17 years after the remains of the first bodies of murdered women were unearthed from beneath Fred and Rosemary West's Gloucester patio that Dominic West arrived on our screens as the monstrous Fred in Appropriate Adult.

This Wednesday, ITV begins a six-part dramatisation of the events of 6/7 August 1985 at White House Farm in Essex. Written by Kris Mrska (who did such an excellent job of The Slap in 2011), White House Farm unpacks an extraordinary story that begins with the massacre of a family at this remote farm. (See page 28 for our interview with Mrska.)

'It took 40 years for TV drama to go near the Moors Murders'

Six-year-old twins, their mum and their grandparents were shot dead. Initially, police believed their mother, Sheila Caffell, a fragile woman with mental health problems, was the killer, before she turned the gun on herself. But they later arrested her brother, Jeremy Bamber, who was convicted of the killings. He's in prison serving a whole life sentence.

Dramatisations of real crimes, some going back decades, others more recent, have become a cornerstone of the schedules, and I expect they're here to stay. I have absolutely no problem with dramas based on real crimes if they're done well, and invariably they are.

I think, too, they provide a valuable service. Real-crime stories tend to break piecemeal over a long period. The actual act... the investigation... the arrest... the great silence required by law until a trial. Then it's over and newspapers and television can run their background pieces.

Jeremy Bamber (Freddie Fox)
and Sgt Bews (David Hunt)

Good dramas, like White House Farm and A Confession last year, and Little Boy Blue before that, can pull a complicated story together to present context and overview. If the production is sensitive, viewers don't feel they're gawping or that there's something unseemly about watching the terrible misfortunes of others – the victims and the bereaved.

IT'S INCREDIBLY IMPORTANT to get these things right. True-crime dramas have to be respectful while also being compelling enough to attract and keep viewers because that's what dramas must do. They are dramas after all, channels want us to watch and to stay watching. Making us feel like tasteless eavesdroppers would be counterproductive.

The best true-crime dramas, without being sentimental, can flesh out, emotionally, the necessarily dry legal process. A Confession was particularly good at this, showing the effect of one police officer's lapse of judgement that would go on to have catastrophic consequences after the arrest of a suspected serial killer. But it never lost sight of the victims' loved ones.

But maybe we are drawn to true-life crime dramas for the simple reason that they show the worst of humanity – something we would hope never to witness – at a safe remove.

STOP BEING SNEERY

That Channel 4 Complaints Welcome campaign gets on my wick. You know the one, where celebrities – Jamie Oliver, Prue Leith, Grayson Perry – invite us to scoff at real complaints made about its programmes and presenters by viewers.

I suppose it's in keeping with C4's iconoclastic posturing, but how about you stop being such smart arses, C4? You have a public service broadcasting remit and however silly, old-fashioned or moronic you think your viewer complaints are, these viewers are still part of your public. Taking the mickey makes you look metropolitan, supercilious and sneery.

1 NEW TRAVELOGUE James May: Our Man in Japan Available from 3 Jan

The urbane, sensitive one from The Grand Tour leaves his pals behind for a solo trip to Japan, where his wry detachment and mild buffoonery contrast well with the local cultures. It's an odyssey defined by futuristic transport, robots and small but calamitous linguistic misunderstandings.

A LOST GEM

2 Jonathan Strange & Mr Norrell

Available now

This was one of 2015's grandest drama treats. Bertie Carvel (right) and Eddie Marsan are magicians in a lavish but quirky dramatisation of Susanna Clarke's novel that amounts to a period saga telling the normal tales of power, love, war and revenge, but in a vivid dreamworld where a captivating leap of imagination is never far away.

ANOTHER CHANCE

3 Public Enemies

Available now

Anna Friel and Daniel Mays lead a three-part drama, first shown on BBC2 in 2012. She's a probation officer with a tainted past and a desire to prove herself; he's a murderer just out of prison who's got no experience of the adult outside world. Their linked, potentially clashing quests for redemption are just the start of the story.

NEW EPISODES

4 The Expanse

Available now

Set hundreds of years into a future where humans have conquered Mars and the solar system – only for the different civilisations to constantly be at or on the brink of war – this show has slowly established itself as TV's smartest space opera. Now we're on series four, the first made by Amazon. The latest episodes see a further expansion of scale as new worlds are explored, but the same problems of diplomacy and colonialism recur.

NETFLIX

THE FINAL SERIES

5 Anne with an E

Series three available from 3 Jan

LM Montgomery's book Anne of Green Gables was the original basis for this feisty but accessible drama, and from the start Amybeth McNulty (above) has been the equal of any screen Anne. Yet since the second series it's deviated defiantly from the source text, and that's still in evidence in the third and final run. It's a darker proposition than the novel, but that means it can give its modern heroine more agency, with satisfying results.

BRAND-NEW DRAMA

6 Spinning Out

Available from 1 Jan

Think the movie Black Swan, but soapier and on ice, so there's the lurid glamour and bitter rivalry of I, Tonya there, too: Kaya Scodelario, once of Skins, takes the lead in a feverish US drama about a teenager whose love/hate obsession with competitive ice skating threatens her mental health, especially when romance gets in the way. Can she stay strong enough to make it to the top?

MISSING HOMELAND?

7 Messiah

Available from 1 Jan

An international espionage thriller that seems, at first at least, to be in the Homeland mould. Michelle Monaghan is an ambitious and capable CIA agent tasked with monitoring developments in the Syrian civil war, but when one of those developments turns out to be a man (Mehdi Dehbi) who is convincing people he's a deity, the usual spycraft makes way for a bewildering, multifaceted story. Beau Bridges and Philip Baker Hall are in the supporting cast.

The nation's second-favourite kids' literary saga has been well served by the BBC1 version of the first of Philip Pullman's series of novels. Without taking over a well-paced story about a special kid coming of age, the visual effects are spot-on.

10 Ghosts

Available now

One of 2019's best comedies. The gang from Yonderland, Bill and, once upon a time, Horrible Histories play spirits who, for varying numbers of centuries, have been haunting a creaky old house – now taken over by a young woman (Charlotte Ritchie, above with Laurence Rickard as Robin the Caveman) who can see the ghosts, and her boyfriend, who can't. Fine family fun full of visual invention and with a sound, warm heart.

GUILTY PLEASURE

11 Gold Digger

Available now

Sometimes a shamelessly histrionic melodrama is what you need, and oh my goodness here's exactly that. Julia Ormond is an unhappy new divorcée whose dalliance with a much younger man (Ben Barnes) appals her family. Can he be trusted? And is he really any more self-absorbed, unlikeable and potentially evil than anyone else in a show riven with affairs and lies? It's sinful fun not quite finding out.

12 The Deuce

Series 3 available from 1 Jan

David Simon, co-creator of The Wire, is behind a drama that's moved from the early 70s in Manhattan to the mid-80s, tracking the rise of the sex industry as it goes. A nuanced, humane examination of exploited people, it re-creates a lost world you can enjoy immersing yourself in, even if what you see is often challenging. The characters, led by Maggie Gyllenhaal as sex worker turned film-maker Eileen, become ever more vivid in the third and final series.

13 Save Me

Available now

Ahead of the second series in 2020, catch up with this terrific homegrown drama. Creator Lennie James plays a man whose poor but stress-free inner-city existence – an unusually convincing portrait of urban working-class life – is upended when he's accused of kidnapping his own estranged daughter and forced to face up to his life choices and their effect on the people around him. The story is involving but the characters are even better.

14 My Grandparents' War

Available now

Kristin Scott-Thomas, Carey Mulligan (above), Mark Rylance and Helena Bonham-Carter are big names, but this celebrity-family-history series has chosen them not for their star power, but because their relatives lived through gripping, moving war stories that could all have been movies. The tales of heroism and horror, extreme bravery and incredible adversity, are skilfully told – and visibly affect these famous investigators.

CATCH UP, QUICK

15 Liar

Available now

Written by golden-fingered twist kings the Williams brothers, who also authored The Missing, this drama caused waves in 2017 with its tricky plotting and its bold, arguably cavalier handling of the crime of rape, in a story viscerally brought to life by Joanne Froggatt and Ioan Gruffudd. Fans who are desperate to know what happens next will get their wish when series two comes to ITV this year – the uninitiated have got time to catch up with the original episodes.

Tennis: ATP Cup

Amazon

SPORT World team tennis competitions have become like that fabled London bus. No sooner had Rafael Nadal and his Spanish teammates drained the last of their Moët after their victory in the revamped Davis Cup than they were heading to Australia for the inaugural ATP Cup. Everybody said the men's game needed a proper "World Cup" and now, thanks to the intricacies of tennis politics, it has two.

After their gutsy run to the Davis Cup semi-finals, Great Britain will be hoping Andy Murray is fit enough to play a leading role Down Under, but Spain, with both Nadal and world number nine Roberto Bautista Agut on their five-man roster, remain the team to beat. CHRIS HUGHES

Darts: BDO World Championships

1.00pm, 7.00pm Eurosport 1

SPORT It's not quite the ravens fleeing the Tower, but the BDO World Championship leaving the Lakeside Country Club in Surrey's Frimley Green must come a close second. After 33 years, the original world championship has moved to the O2 arena in Greenwich. For darts fans, nothing will ever be the same again. The old-school charms of the Lakeside made it the perfect amphitheatre for the BDO championship.

Following his victory 12 months ago, Glen Durrant joined the PDC, leaving runner-up Scott Waites as the leading contender to land his third title, while Japan's Mikuru Suzuki will be aiming to retain the women's crown. CH

The Masked Singer

7.00pm ITV

ENTERTAINMENT New series BBC1 and ITV are going head to head with their entertainment schedules, and the latter is throwing everything – including the kitchen sink – at two big, glossy shows. The Masked Singer has already proved a huge hit in the US and sees 12 celebrities sing under elaborate costumes that conceal their identity; only once they're eliminated are they revealed. The only snag is that with the show having been pre-recorded, some of the potential excitement and jeopardy has sadly been lost.

This is followed at 8.30pm by the return of The Voice UK, which is very much business as usual for its ninth series – with one difference (see above right). FRANCES TAYLOR

PICK OF THE DAY Clive James Tribute from 8.15pm BBC2

DOCUMENTARY In the final years of his life the great Clive James's voice might have been weakened by illness, but his talent, spirit and intellectual energy were as strong as ever. James's death at the end of November from leukaemia, aged 80, was hardly unexpected, but his loss to those of us to whom he was a great guiding spirit is incalculable.

He is largely known for his on-screen television work, but for many, including me, he will always and forever be the beacon of television criticism thanks to his unmissable weekly columns in The Observer throughout the 1970s.

This tribute comprises repeats of Clive James's Postcards from Sydney (8.15pm) and London (9.05pm), and a re-run of his extraordinary interview with Mary Beard (9.55pm) in the study of his Cambridge home as he looked back upon his life with joy and thankfulness.

NEW TALENT-SHOW SIGNINGS

There are a few new faces on both The Greatest Dancer (7pm BBC1) and The Voice UK (8.30pm ITV) when the entertainment shows return tonight.

Curtis Pritchard (right), Love Island star and brother of Strictly's AJ, joins The Greatest Dancer as the new receptionist, while American singer and choreographer Todrick Hall sits alongside Cheryl, Matthew Morrison and Oti Mabuse as a new dance captain. The 34-year-old first found fame on American Idol and has since worked with Beyoncé and Taylor Swift.

Meanwhile, there's also a new addition to the coaching line-up on The Voice UK. Jennifer Hudson has left after three series, and joining Sir Tom Jones, will.i.am and Olly Murs is US singer/songwriter Meghan Trainor. The Grammy-winning 25-year-old is best-known for her number one hit with All About That Bass, released in 2014. FT

Tony Robinson's History of Britain

8.00pm Channel 5

HISTORY New series There's a whiff of Horrible Histories about this series in which Tony Robinson delves into the miserable lives of ordinary people in the past. He starts with the Tudor era – "a time of sex scandals, executions and cod pieces" – and the work of Thomas Grimes, a knacker whose skills butchering animals earned him a new job as an executioner, a role that was much in demand during the reign of Henry VIII.

Having relished hearing the gory details of decapitation, Robinson then learns about Richard Roose, the Bishop of Rochester's cook, who was boiled to death for allegedly poisoning his diners. It took an agonising two hours. JANE RACKHAM

Casualty

9.05pm BBC1

DRAMA New year, new Connie. Yes, Mrs B is back with an image makeover: shoulder-length hair, a snazzy white winter coat and no painkillers in her system for four months, apparently.

Within minutes of arriving, she's telling a brittle Dylan that he needs to "lead by example" following the recent tragedy in the department. A bit rich seeing as, at the time of her unceremonious ejection from the ED, she had more pills rattling around in her desk drawer than were stocked in the hospital pharmacy.

But Connie is certainly trying to make amends – whether Charlie and Archie are willing to forgive and forget, though, remains to be seen.

DAVID BROWN

Wisting

9.05pm, 9.50pm BBC4

DRAMA Apart from its over-reliance on dead or doomed young blonde women, there's still a lot to like about this Norwegian crime drama, notably the fantastically atmospheric snowy, grey and gloomy locations.

When the cops cross fields to look for bodies they wade knee-deep through pristine snow, roads are icy, the fog looks chilly and everyone's breath clouds the screen. If you love a bit of bleak Scandi, this is for you.

Haunted detective William Wisting discovers that his infuriating habit of never answering or even looking at his phone has fractured his relationship with his kids. But the hunt for a serial killer must dominate his life as he and the FBI agents explore more abandoned wells. AG

The Greatest Dancer

7.00pm BBC1

ENTERTAINMENT This may not have had the greatest ratings or the greatest reception when it debuted last year, but the BBC commissioned a second run nonetheless, complete with a few unremarkable tweaks to the format. Presenters Alesha Dixon and Ashley Banjo return alongside "dance captains" Cheryl, Matthew Morrison and Oti Mabuse, while new faces joining them are US star Todrick Hall, who injects some pizzazz even if he's prone to hyperbole, and Love Island's Curtis Pritchard – the new receptionist who has a laptop that doesn't appear to be switched on.

As before, eclectic dance acts – including a plucky 98-year-old – take to the stage, with their destiny lying in the mitts of the studio audience. If 75 per cent or more turn their light on for a performance, they make it through to the next round. It's entertaining enough, but at 75 minutes is far too long. FT

Get a grip, Tom!

Mission: Impossible - Fallout ★★★★★

All 4 FREE TO VIEW also 9.00pm Sky Megahits

You can watch this thrilling entry in the spy series on C4's catch-up service as well as on the new Sky Megahits channel. This time, Ethan Hunt (Tom Cruise) must pose as a terrorist to buy plutonium before MI6 rogue agent Solomon Lane (Sean Harris) can enact his doomsday scenario. The densely plotted story interconnects with several past plot threads, as events speed towards the nuclear-countdown climax. But what audiences really want to see is Cruise's stuntwork – and he doesn't disappoint. ALAN JONES

Now on Netflix

The Hustle ★★ Netflix

A suave con artist on the French Riviera must contend with the arrival of a brassy rival for the area's rich pickings in this gender-switch remake of 1988's Dirty Rotten Scoundrels. With Anne Hathaway taking the Michael Caine role of high-toned swindler and Rebel Wilson supplying goofball contrast in the upstart Steve Martin part, what unfolds is almost a scene-for-scene rerun. Wilson works her socks off to bring some life to the proceedings, but genuine laughs are sadly in short supply. TREVOR JOHNSTON

Lacking that Cars polish

Wheely ★★

6.15pm Sky Premiere

This animated adventure follows a taxi cab who dreams of becoming a racing car, in spite of challenges on and off the road. The film is presented nicely, but once you get past the slick paint job, it's hard to get past the fact this is a pale imitation of Pixar's Cars, right down to the vehicle designs and characters. JAMES LUXFORD

A DELICATE SITUATION
Nurse Trixie (Helen George) and Mother Mildred (Miriam Margolyes) must take care

PICK OF THE DAY Call the Midwife 8.00pm BBC1

DRAMA Trixie is excited by the arrival of her “new electric body shaver” and is all aquiver until the radio news makes a solemn announcement that the former prime minister, Winston Churchill, has died.

So yes, it's 1965 as we rejoin the personnel at Nonnatus House, and the East End is undergoing considerable upheaval as the men from the council arrive with clipboards ready to clear the area of its slums. But there is distressing news for Sister Julienne (Jenny Agutter), who looks pained as Call the Midwife's omnipresent cascade of soundtrack-strings washes over her.

Lefty Dr Turner, after claiming “the National Health Service was nothing to do with Winston Churchill”, consults his textbooks when a young boy falls seriously ill while the excellent Mother Mildred, a battleship in a wimple, sails to the defence of a desperate mum who's abandoned her newborn baby.

FA Cup Match of the Day Live

3.30pm (kick-off 4.01pm) BBC1

SPORT Liverpool v Everton It's the third round and the Premier League titans crash the FA Cup party, which means alongside those precarious David and Goliath match-ups are thoroughbred clashes like this – although the gulf in quality between the rivals makes Liverpool look like a different species. They recently put five past the Toffees, despite fielding a below-strength side; that proved the final straw for Everton manager Marco Silva.

And no, that kick-off time isn't a typo: third round ties are starting a minute late as part of the Heads Up campaign, to encourage fans to talk about mental health.

Dancing on Ice

6.00pm ITV

ENTERTAINMENT It's fair to say that many of the celebrities taking part are hardly household names (Maura Higgins and Ben Hanlin, anyone?), but there are notable exceptions: unbelievably, Michael Barrymore has signed up.

There are a few noteworthy components to this series, which begins tonight with six of the 12 couples making their rink debut. Jason Gardiner has stepped aside and John Barrowman, a contestant in series one back in 2006, replaces him on the “ice panel”, while singer H from Steps becomes the first celebrity to be partnered in a same-sex dancing couple on UK TV when he takes to the ice with professional skater Matt Evers. FRANCES TAYLOR

The Snow Queen

7.30pm BBC4

ARTS Scottish Ballet celebrated its 50th anniversary in 2019 and as part of its celebrations it will be commissioning five new ballets. This winter it premiered a lively and sensuous reworking of Hans Christian Andersen's classic fairy tale to music from Rimsky-Korsakov and magical choreography by the company's artistic director Christopher Hampson – shown on BBC Scotland on Christmas Eve.

Constance Devernay sparkles as the Snow Queen in tender pas de deux with her bewitched love, Kai (Andrew Peasgood), while an acrobatic circus troupe and the story's resemblance to Frozen will keep young children entranced.

DAVID CRAWFORD

George Clarke's Old House, New Home

8.00pm C4

PROPERTY Prepare to sigh with envy at the transformation of a 16th-century Cotswold cottage from a sturdily built but cramped home to a thing of sympathetically restored beauty. George Clarke is of course the fairy godfather as he advises new owners Tim and Emily on how to spend their hefty £100,000 budget.

Naturally, unexpected costs crop up throughout the build, which the couple are largely undertaking themselves. It's often tiresome, dreary work, and poor Emily despairs of ever getting rid of years of accumulated plaster and wallpaper.

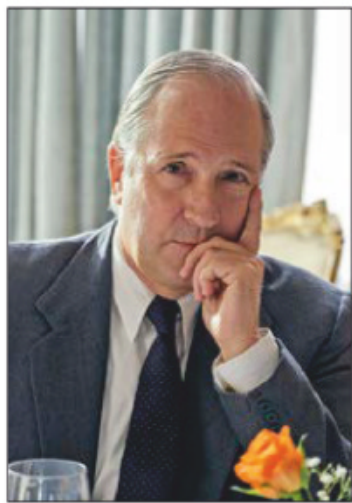

Clarke also visits a couple who want to revamp a Kent oast house to create a groovy bedroom. AG

MICHAEL MALONEY'S TV CV

The 62-year-old actor can be seen in The Trial of Christine Keeler (9pm BBC1) as the nervous-looking Tory peer Lord Astor, who was accused of having an affair with Mandy Rice-Davies. It's an ideal role for Maloney, who has played sweaty-browed characters in seemingly every drama on British TV.

There is a rule of thumb here at RT: if Maloney is a guest star on a detective drama, he's bound to be the killer. Spoiler warning – see the likes of Lewis, Midsomer

Murders and Shakespeare & Hathaway.

But there have been more diverse parts, too. Maloney famously hopped down the street alongside Juliet Stevenson in Truly Madly Deeply, was nobleman Henry Stafford in The White Queen and has featured in the latest series of The Crown as Edward Heath. He's certainly come a long way since his first TV appearance, as Peter Barkworth's teenage son in the 1979 drama Telford's Change. DAVID BROWN

The Trial of Christine Keeler

9.00pm BBC1

DRAMA Waves of scandal threaten to break over the head of War Secretary John Profumo as the rumours about his affair with Christine Keeler gather pace in Westminster and Fleet Street.

As for Keeler, she's posing for pouty newspaper photographs ahead of giving evidence at the trial of her ex-boyfriend Johnny Edgecombe. She's preparing to sell a story that she knows is dynamite, though her reach exceeds her grasp as she demands cash from a nervous Profumo to buy her silence – but the upper echelons of government close ranks...

Sophie Cookson's Keeler is the perfect blend of naif and minx, while Ben Miles as Profumo is excellent as a man on a crumbling cliff edge. AG

Geraint Thomas: the Road Will Decide

9.00pm BBC2 (N Ireland: 11pm)

DOCUMENTARY Asked what made him want to admit cameras to his almost every move on the 2019 Tour de France, Geraint Thomas says it's about letting viewers see what the experience is really like: "There weren't too many documentaries about cycling when I was growing up." In recent years there have been quite a few, and Geraint Thomas: the Road Will Decide takes its place among the best.

Thomas, who went into the race as the 2018 title-holder, downplays everything. He revels in the routine of hotel, ride, hotel, but his wife Sara says she hates the four weeks of July. An intimate portrait of life that's less about glory than it is about pain and monotony. SIMON O'HAGAN

SAS: Who Dares Wins

9.00pm C4

REALITY Growth through adversity is a key theme of this series, in which recruits put themselves through the kind of mental and physical discomfort that most of us would rather shrink away from, like snails avoiding salt.

In this opener, we witness them leaping from a speedboat into the icy Atlantic, off the coast of Scotland. Perhaps the elevated heart rate that we'll get from watching this, from the comfort of our sofas, will burn off a few mince pies. But, let's face it, for most viewers this will be more of an exercise in "rather them than me" than a post-Christmas motivational tool. The question is, will any of the participants have the guile to spot the mole in their midst? He who dares, Rodney... GARY ROSE

Eating with My Ex

from 10am BBC3

It's no surprise that this addictive dating show has come back for a new series: it's a brilliant format in which, as the title implies, former partners sit down together to have a meal. As well as food, they're fed provocative questions to ask each other, which leads to recriminations, quiet regret or the start of a possible reconciliation. As each date starts, you're never quite sure which it will be.

IN WITH THE WHO

The Doctor (Jodie Whittaker) and her pals face deadly danger

Doctor Who

7.00pm BBC1

DRAMA Following an absolutely massive cliffhanger at the end of the previous episode (broadcast on New Year's Day), fans could be forgiven for wondering how on Earth the Doctor (Jodie Whittaker) and her "fam" (played by Bradley Walsh, Mandip Gill and Tosin Cole) could possibly get back on their feet.

But in this week's adventure that's exactly what they try to do, with the Time Lord and her team facing an incredibly deadly alliance and escaping fiendish traps in a last-ditch attempt to save humanity.

After last week's bright and all-action opener this is a darker and moodier episode, both visually and tonally, brought to life by The Bay's Lee Haven Jones from a script by series boss Chris Chibnall. And don't worry – even following that first episode, there are sure to be some pretty big surprises...

Killing is a family business

The Sisters Brothers ★★★★★

10.10pm Sky Premiere

Novelist Patrick DeWitt's idiosyncratic take on the western is brought searingly to the screen by French director Jacques Audiard (A Prophet). Joaquin Phoenix and John C Reilly play the assassin siblings of the title, who are dispatched to find a humble chemist (Riz Ahmed) who has developed a divining substance to locate gold. Phoenix and Reilly are amusing in their absurdity and endearing in their loyalty, but also chilling in their capacity for carnage. EMMA SIMMONDS

The will to sing

Wild Rose ★★★★★ Amazon Prime

Glasgow grit meets Nashville swagger for this funny and touching musical drama, recently added to Prime. Jessie Buckley is sensational as the Scottish songstress who's as troubled as she is talented. Fresh out of prison, this brazenly ambitious live wire is a mother trying and failing to make amends to her two young children, while her own mum (Julie Walters) pours scorn on her dreams. The narrative tends toward the predictable, but the depth and determination of its leading lady sets it apart. ES

Point Break ★★★★★

In Kathryn Bigelow's hugely enjoyable thriller, FBI agent Keanu Reeves goes undercover to infiltrate Patrick Swayze's gang of bank-robbing adrenaline junkies. Try to ignore the mystical claptrap Swayze spouts and concentrate instead on the stunning action set pieces, including some exhilarating skydiving and surfing scenes. JOHN FERGUSON

ON THE CASE
DCI Adam Gallop (above) sets out to put a killer behind bars

PICK OF THE DAY 24 Hours in Police Custody 9.00pm C4

DOCUMENTARY "It's one of those jobs where, slowly, the truth is starting to come out," muses DCI Adam Gallop as he investigates the death of a young man found stabbed in a country park near Huntingdon in Cambridgeshire. And over two instalments, tonight and tomorrow, we watch as the truth, slowly and painfully, does come out, thanks to dogged work from Gallop and his officers.

That's what makes these programmes so gripping. The prosaic plodding of policing – sifting through bags of clothes or scanning endless grainy CCTV footage – unfolds with brutal tension because we know what is at stake.

We've seen shots of the bloodied body. We've heard the victim's tearful mother talk about the "toxic waste" of the drugs trade her son was caught up in. We've seen a suspect talk about how, "It's crazy – you just can't wrap your head around the weight of it." So is he in fact the killer, or grieving for his closest friend? DAVID BUTCHER

Antiques Road Trip

4.30pm BBC1

DAYTIME CHOICE The long-running ratings winner is back. This week Catherine Southon and James Buxton will, no doubt, be hoping to emulate Paul Laidlaw's 2017 success, when he bought a camera for £60 and sold it at auction for a stonking £20,000. Failing that, they just want to make a bigger profit than their opponent.

But I don't think the show's competitive element, while polite and amiable, is that important to its millions of fans. What's enjoyable is watching the experts pootle gently around the English countryside in gorgeous vintage cars, looking for bargains – although the chance to exercise your encyclopedic antique knowledge by playing Guess How Much is fun, too. JANE RACKHAM

Great British Railway Journeys

6.30pm BBC2

DOCUMENTARY Michael Portillo's always on a train going somewhere. Does he ever nip home for a cuppa and a change of clothes? Well, not right now, because he's back on track in the north-east, armed with his beloved Bradshaw's guide and travelling from Newcastle to Loch Ness.

His first detour is to Jarrow where, in 1936, about 200 unemployed men marched to London to protest against poverty. Then it's swiftly on to make a mess of wrapping fish suppers at a coal-powered chip shop, marvel at the "indescribably wondrous" Durham Cathedral and admire the art of Norman Cornish, a miner from Spennymoor. JR

FA Cup Match of the Day Live

7.30pm (kick off 7.56pm) BBC1

SPORT Arsenal v Leeds United Since 2004, Leeds and Arsenal have met three times in the FA Cup, with the north Londoners always advancing at the Yorkshire side's expense – but surely, this season, the Championship champions-in-waiting (too early?) will be licking their lips at the prospect of taking on the scattershot Gunners.

At press time, Arsenal were yet to appoint a new permanent manager, while Leeds look formidable in their second season under the tutelage of Marcelo "el Loco" Bielsa, surely the closest thing football has to a nutty professor. If his team triumph tonight, few would call it an upset.

HANNAH SHADDOCK

Celebrity Coach Trip

7.30pm E4

REALITY Being stuck on a coach with a bunch of larger-than-life celebs may be your idea of hell, but this lot spend the entire time screeching with laughter, so are presumably having an absolute ball.

Loudest of all are online pranksters Woody and Kleiny and TOWIE power couple Tommy and Georgia, but Rustie Lee cranks up the decibels, too. They're on the French Riviera, which, according to tour guide Brendan, is as posh as you can get. Not with this bunch rampaging about, it isn't.

They vote off their least favourite travelling companions, who are replaced by a new pair... But they'll have to be even louder if they're to survive. JR

TODAY IN SOAPLAND

A social worker is to be feared in Soapland, because they always seem to swoop in like Chitty Chitty Bang Bang's Child Catcher and take kids away from parents. Usually, there's some injustice involved, too, as is currently the case with Fiz and Tyrone on Coronation Street (7.30pm ITV).

They, and the authorities, are being duped by vengeful nanny Jade, who's out to paint Fiz and Ty (Jennie McAlpine and Alan Halsall, above) as abusive parents. Might this be the moment they're separated from Hope?

Hollyoaks Later (9pm E4), the soap's post-watershed spin-off filled with scenes forbidden in a teatime slot, returns for the first time in seven years to depict the final chapter of Breda McQueen's reign of terror. What we'll see in this hour-long special is Mercedes trying to free Tony, while a swivel-eyed Breda approaches, armed with a pitchfork and determined to halt the escape attempt. If you usually catch episodes on C4 rather than E4, there's a chance to witness the madness there tomorrow at 11pm. DAVID BROWN

Only Connect

8.00pm BBC2

QUIZ One of the best bits of an Only Connect episode is when the seconds are running down on an unsolved Wall. It's cruel really, but seeing clever people reduced to stabbing at groups of tiles, in tonight's case desperately muttering, "Uncle Tom? Apple Tom? Key Tom?" is more enjoyable than it should be.

In fact, both teams have a tough time with the Walls – and with the early rounds too, for that matter. But to be fair, would you know which came next after the clues Ham, Pitts and Middles? Or what connects Charlie Chaplin, James Brown and Nicolae Ceausescu? If you would, what are you doing reading TV previews when you could be making a fortune in the quizzing world? DAVID BUTCHER

Midsomer Murders

8.30pm ITV

DRAMA In an episode that's been gathering dust on a shelf somewhere at ITV since 2017, Kelly Brook plays a new bride who's found dead on her wedding day, squeezed to suffocation by her bridal dress corset.

Of course, no one bats an eyelid any more at such outre methods of murder, but it's a bit tame, even for Midsomer Murders. The killer has tied a ribbon round the bride's tongue, possibly as some kind of hint that he or she is displeased at the victim's role as some kind of shock jock on a witless local radio station, Midsomer FM.

DCI Barnaby's wife Sarah finds the body, as she and her reluctant husband are among the wedding guests. Of course. ALISON GRAHAM

The Choir: Aylesbury Prison

9.00pm BBC2

REALITY A dispirited Gareth Malone is a rare sight; he's usually the most optimistic and upbeat of performers. But the gruelling effort of trying to form a choir at Aylesbury prison looks like it might defeat him.

The governor wants him to work with the young offender inmates, but the handful who take any interest are obsessed by drill music, associated with gangs and violent crime.

One of his few volunteers is injured in one of the prison's daily fights, while his best singer suffers from mental health issues.

TIME FOR TEA
But first, Father Brown has another mystery to solve

Father Brown

2.15pm BBC1

DRAMA Unlike Midsomer Murders – that other chocolate-box crime drama – nobody is bumped off by a rampant wild boar, an unearthed exercise bike or some other bizarre method of dispatch in this episode. But there's plenty of well-mannered intrigue and secrecy, allowing the eponymous sleuthing cleric (Mark Williams) to employ his peerless insight into human nature and powers of observation in order to solve the mystery.

It all starts innocently enough. The Kembleford Choristers have reached the finals of the Three Counties choir competition – a massive deal for the village and for a very excited Mrs McCarthy (Sorcha Cusack) – but en route to perform at Worcester, their bus is sabotaged and it becomes clear that someone really doesn't want them to perform. Surely a rival choir wouldn't stoop to such dastardly low tricks? JR

7.30 FA Cup Match of the Day Live

RT Arsenal v Leeds United Coverage of the third-round tie from the Emirates Stadium (kick-off 7.56).

As the club that has won the Cup the most times – 13 in total – Arsenal should be confident of beating a Leeds side which will be prioritising promotion from the Championship this season and whose last three FA Cup exits have been at the hands of Sutton United, Newport County and Queens Park Rangers. But then the Gunners only made it to the fourth round last season, losing to Manchester United, and their form in the Premier League has been less than sparkling.

The last time the two sides met at this stage of the competition was eight years ago, when a solitary goal from Arsenal's all-time leading scorer, Thierry Henry, sufficed to separate the sides. Leeds fans checking the historical record will doubtless point to the 1972 final, when it was their team that triumphed by the only goal. They and manager Marcelo Bielsa will surely be striving to cause an upset against a team under the temporary stewardship of Freddie Ljungberg. ## Last chance to see

Trumbo ★★★ BBC iPlayer FREE TO VIEW

The blacklisting of film-makers in the 1940s and 50s provides the backdrop for this portrait of screenwriter Dalton Trumbo, which leaves iPlayer late tonight. Bryan Cranston brings stature and eccentricity to the role, while director Jay Roach relishes the Tinseltown milieu, cleverly blending newsreel of the HUAC hearings into the unfolding drama. However, the film busies itself too much with karaoke star-spotting to reach any deeper understanding of a shameful period of American history. ANDREW COLLINS

An underrated gem

mid90s ★★★★★ Netflix

Jonah Hill's directorial debut arrived on Netflix last month and is well worth seeking out. Sunny Suljic stars as teenager Stevie, who escapes a difficult home life to find acceptance among a gang of skaters. While the points he makes are a little obvious at times, Hill's exploration of the insecurity of young manhood is raw and compelling. The younger members of the cast deliver natural, unshowy performances, while Katherine Waterston elicits more sympathy than criticism as Stevie's overwrought mother. JAMES LUXFORD

Rowan's birthday laugh-in

Sky Comedy bends over backwards today for fans of flexible funnyman Rowan Atkinson on the day he celebrates his 65th birthday. The channel is showing international smasheroos Bean (left) and its Jacques Tati-inspired sequel, Mr Bean's Holiday. There's also the entire, Bond-spoofing Johnny English trilogy – so even non-fans will find something to savour. AC

PICK OF THE DAY Cornwall: This Fishing Life 8.00pm BBC2

DOCUMENTARY New series A grizzled sea dog from the pretty Cornish fishing village of Mevagissey has no truck with the visitors who swarm there in huge numbers during the summer, eating ice creams and fish and chips, and blocking the roads. "I mustn't be anti-tourist, but I am, I hate it."

Of course the rub is that Mevagissey needs tourist money: it's the village's number one source of income. There's ill-feeling, too, about the perennial problem of second homes and holiday lets that sweep up the best housing stock, leaving locals pushed out. "We don't want Mevagissey turned into somewhere like Padstow, we don't really want that."

This absorbing new series takes us to the heart of "Meva's" still flourishing fishing industry – there are 74 working boats in the harbour – and the families at its heart, and accompanies its fishermen out to sea to catch "black gold" (cuttlefish, newly in fashion) and "Cornish sardines" (pilchards).

Food Unwrapped: New Year Health Secrets

8.00pm C4

LIFESTYLE 'Tis the season to feel very jaded after all the excesses of Christmas and New Year, so Jimmy Doherty and team are on a mission to make us feel healthier and more energetic.

Amanda Byram is shocked to learn that spinach contains a steroid-type compound that might have muscle-enhancing qualities. You'd have to eat an awful lot of the green stuff to get the same effect as Popeye did, though.

And, as many of us succumb to colds at this time of year, Jimmy investigates whether ginger can help fight the virus. It involves a trip to Thailand for him, lucky man.

JANE RACKHAM

The Choir: Aylesbury Prison

9.00pm BBC2

DOCUMENTARY Rehearsals for the Aylesbury Young Offenders Institute choir are not going well. A vulnerable young man with a lovely voice is put off by jeering inmates eavesdropping on his singing, and there are constant fears that at any time a member of the little group could simply not turn up. Because it's a prison, and there are many reasons, a lot of them unpleasant, why an inmate would not turn up to choir practice.

But Gareth Malone refuses to be defeated. He perseveres, taking the singers through their self-penned songs with great patience, as he prepares for a concert in front of staff and his choir's families. AG

ENTERTAINMENT In 1995, at the first NTAs, Men Behaving Badly was voted best comedy, Soldier Soldier won best drama and Michael Barrymore best entertainment presenter. Since then a host of stars have been honoured.

Some were flabbergasted, many were emotional, although Judy Finnigan, who in 2001 inadvertently flashed her bra, was simply mortified. Previous hosts Sir Trevor McDonald and Dermot O'Leary share their memories, as do Ant and Dec (most frequent award winners) and Danny Dyer (who swore twice in a memorable acceptance speech). JR

24 Hours in Police Custody

9.00pm C4

DOCUMENTARY The investigation into the murder of Sam Mechelewski takes an unexpected direction as a second suspect is brought in for questioning. The police have a good deal of evidence, but (though the suspects don't know this) nothing conclusive. Their best hope is to play the two suspects against each other in the hope of breaking through their "No comment" stonewalling.

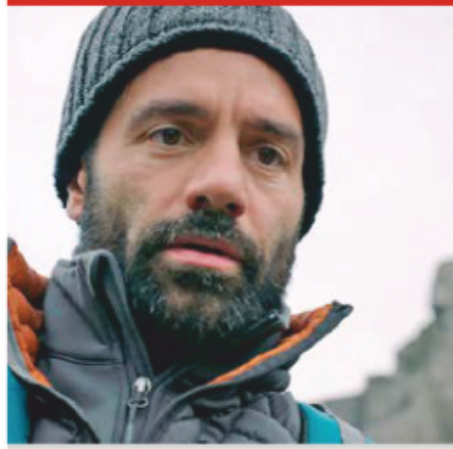

The drama of suspects caught in a terrible trap of their own making is mesmerising to watch, as is the picture that emerges of the thriving local drug scene. One of the detectives grumbles of the local teens, "They're all off their rockers on cannabis." DAVID BUTCHER

Having taken his top off on every ward, Holby City's (8pm BBC1; Scotland: 10.35pm) Kian (Ramin Karimloo, right) now decides to take a trip away so he can strip on the Black Mountains. He's in mourning, so I don't want to sound too salacious, but a certain section of the audience will probably be interested to know that Kian is very much at one with nature in one particular scene.

But this is not just an hour of mere bottom-baring. As you'll see, Jac is convinced that Kian is feeling suicidal and hares off in hot pursuit. And when the two of them are reunited, they soon have a new emergency to deal with.

Back on the more familiar turf of the hospital, we have a crack appearing in Max McGerry's armour. It turns out that she has a missing daughter – and when a private investigator is wheeled in needing urgent treatment, it quickly becomes apparent that he has some fresh information about the runaway girl... DAVID BROWN

Jonestown: Terror in the Jungle – Storyville

9.00pm BBC4

DOCUMENTARY The "Reverend" Jim Jones's bland, pudgy face masked a monster – a megalomaniac, a sadist, a charlatan and, ultimately, a man who presided over a massacre: the deaths by poisoning of more than 900 members of his church, the Peoples Temple, in the South American jungle.

This exhaustive and chilling two-part documentary (which concludes tomorrow) talks to survivors of the 1978 atrocity and to Peoples Temple members who had managed, with Jones's threats ringing in their ears, to flee the cult. It's a shocking account of a man deranged by power and drugs, who giggled as he ordered the beating of followers he said had transgressed some pettifogging rule. AG

Ben Fogle: New Lives in the Wild

9.00pm Channel 5

DOCUMENTARY Opting to flee the rat race is understandable, but it always surprises me when people pick somewhere freezing cold for their new life in the wild. The south of France would do me fine, but former carpenter Hakon's home is a private island in the Icelandic wilderness. "He's part hipster, part Viking and part monk," is Ben's first impression. And there sure is something very cool about the guy, as he stands there in his flat cap, calling Ben "man" and barbecuing cod with Arctic thyme on a grill he lit by fire-breathing onto it.

But, of course, things aren't all easy for Hakon, as we learn when he opens up about his victory over alcoholism.

Jett

10.00pm Sky1

DRAMA New series There's a key exchange in this stylish crime caper when retired thief Daisy "Jett" Kowalski is watching her daughter play in a park, and another mum asks Jett where she used to live. "Prison," she replies, with all the deadpan cool that Carla Gugino brings to her role.

The series is written and directed by Gugino's real-life other half in the hard-boiled, Elmore Leonard style. There's a convoluted-but-fun plot that starts with a kidnap-gone-wrong and progresses via a prison break to a heist. Jett and an old flame must steal a ring from a safe in Havana. With Tarantino-esque dialogue, flashbacks, split screens, sex and guns it's the kind of easy watch you wish British TV did more of. DAVID BUTCHER

CALL OF DUTY

Nikki (Emilia Fox) is distracted by her personal life

Silent Witness

9.00pm BBC1

DRAMA The forensic procedural rolls back for series 23 with a two-parter that is a fugue on men's mental health. No, "fugue" is too strong, it suggests something very structured, whereas a Silent Witness two-parter is more like following a ball rolling for an hour, then the next night following it some more, until at the end everyone says, "Oh, that's where it ended up..." and goes to bed.

But you don't reach series 23 by messing with a formula, so things at the pathology lab are much the same. Nikki (Emilia Fox) is still with Matt (Michael Landes), though all is not well. She keeps ducking out of meetings to take his calls, when she should be concentrating on the case in hand, which involves a private jet that has crashed with a former US ambassador on board. Why did it follow such a curious flight path? Did someone try to crash the plane deliberately, then panic? DAVID BUTCHER

Welcome to Sony Classic

Today we introduce a new channel to your daily listings: Sony Movies Classic. Taking the place of Sony Movies Christmas, the free-to-air channel promises to bring you Sony titles from the 1940s to the noughties, with everything from Marx brothers comedies (Duck Soup) to kitchen-sink dramas (Saturday Night and Sunday Morning) and cult classics (The Wild One) showing around the clock. Among the launch-day highlights is The French Lieutenant's Woman, showing for the first time in six years on British TV – see Andrew Collins My Movies, page 33. JAMIE HEALY

A work of fiction

JT LeRoy ★★★ 10.00pm Sky Premiere
Following documentaries about the literary “hoax” perpetuated by Laura Albert comes Justin Kelly’s dramatic retelling of events. Laura Dern plays the author who created the avatar of transsexual Jeremiah Terminator LeRoy and then posed as his British manager, while also persuading sister-in-law Savannah (Kristen Stewart) to embody LeRoy for a series of publicity stunts. Stewart excels in portraying the gender issues underpinning the ruse, yet Kelly seems curiously uninterested in the interior lives of these compelling and chameleonic characters. DAVID PARKINSON

Baftas countdown

The biggest night in the British movie calendar, the Baftas, will be held on Sunday 2 February, with Graham Norton taking over as master of ceremonies. The shortlisted nominees are announced today, and you can watch coverage online at www.bafta.org. Armando Iannucci’s new film The Personal History of David Copperfield, starring Dev Patel, is among the home-grown hopefuls. JH

White House Farm

DRAMA OF THE WEEK

New series The White House Farm murders in Essex – the massacre of five people, including six-year-old twin boys – became a cause célèbre in 1985. The killings were perfect press fodder – the murderer was initially thought to be fragile Sheila Caffell, a former model with mental health issues. Police believed that Sheila (played here by Cressida Bonas) killed her family, including her parents, before turning the gun on herself.

But the story was to take an entirely different direction when detectives focused on Jeremy Bamber, Sheila's brother. Freddie Fox is excellent as Bamber, a man who does a very good job of seeming to be torn apart by the slaying of his entire family.

Mark Addy is a dogged detective who refuses to believe Sheila could wreak such dreadful mayhem, while Stephen Graham – with a distractingly bad Welsh accent – is the jobsworth cop who wants the whole thing cleared up, fast. ALISON GRAHAM

Bradley Walsh & Son: Breaking Dad

8.00pm ITV

TRAVEL This easy-going travel series gets it just right. Not because the places visited by Bradley Walsh and his 21-year-old son Barney are especially interesting, nor because they're especially insightful about them. It's their lovely relationship that hooks you in. That and Bradley's laugh, which is incredibly infectious – as fans of The Chase will know.

Father and son are back, motoring from Key West to Maine in a giant RV, with Bradley dreaming of a "slide and slash (sic)" at a Florida theme park. Instead, Barney forces him into extreme activities, like drag racing and waterjet boarding. Bradley reckons his internal organs have been rearranged. JANE RACKHAM

Kirstie and Phil's Love It or List It

8.00pm C4

PROPERTY Kirstie Allsopp and Phil Spencer continue their long-running battle over whether couples who are unhappy with their homes should renovate or relocate (which might have been a better title.)

The pawns in their game this time are Stoke couple Julie and Alan, who have endured ten years of indecision, including marketing their 1970s house four times, selling it four times and pulling out four times. How the local estate agents must love them.

While she wants somewhere more characterful ("I hate this house," she mutters in an unguarded moment), he feels rooted where he is. Phil lines up three viewings to try to swing it.

Lose Weight and Get Fit with Tom Kerridge

8.30pm BBC2

LIFESTYLE New series Supersize chef Tom Kerridge famously lost 12 stone a few years ago. His so-called "dopamine diet" kept calories down but majored on flavour, helping him transform his body shape. Job done? Well, no, because then came the part that often follows the most successful diet: over time, Kerridge found the pounds creeping back on.

At the start of this series, he's back to 141kg (22st 2lb) so, along with 11 volunteers, he's following a diet and exercise regime – the latter courtesy of personal trainer Adam Peacock. Tom's recipes look great, but it's the exercises – no gym membership required – that may be most useful.

Silent Witness

DRAMA The theme of male mental health surfaces again in tonight's second part. The words of the therapist in last night's episode hang over the story: "Some men don't have clear societal roles anymore. They feel they're no longer listened to." Crikey, is Silent Witness really going to try to address the crisis in masculinity?

Somebody is posting messages on a chatroom encouraging men to take their own lives. There's no shortage of anguished men who might be in the frame. But the police investigation is hampered by the old "I didn't tell you about it because I didn't think it was important" excuse from a witness. The female detective in charge gets quite tetchy. DAVID BUTCHER

Graham's current storyline on Emmerdale (7pm ITV) feels like the first ten minutes of every episode of Murder, She Wrote, but stretched out for weeks and weeks. It's already been announced that glowering Graham (Andrew Scarborough) is set to be bumped off as part of a January whodunnit, so we're now in that run-up period, where villagers are constantly saying things like, "He'll regret crossing me," or "I ought to kill him" or "I'd better say something ominous about wanting to do Graham in because the writers need more would-be murderers". Tonight's potential killer-in-waiting is Charity (Emma Atkins, far left), who sees red when she discovers that it was Graham who took young Noah to hospital, thus drawing attention to her somewhat laissez-faire attitude to parenting. Though this doesn't give Charity a strong enough motive for murder, you can't blame Emmerdale for wanting someone so morally complex and ruthless on the official list of suspects. DAVID BROWN

Murder Trial

DOCUMENTARY OF THE WEEK

Margaret Fleming was a vulnerable woman who lived under the supposed care of two of her late father's friends, Edward Cairney and Avril Jones. But in 2016 police in the west of Scotland were contacted by a social worker, worried for Margaret's well-being. It was the start of an inquiry that ended with Cairney and Jones standing trial for Margaret's murder. Her body has not been found and police established she has never been seen alive by an independent witness since 1999.

For the first time cameras follow a murder trial in a riveting two-part documentary that concludes tomorrow. Interviews with police and legal teams give context and background. AG

Jonestown: Terror in the Jungle – Storyville

9.00pm BBC4

DOCUMENTARY A recording of Jim Jones's final rant in 1978, as more than 900 men, women and children were poisoned in the South American jungle, either by their own hand or forcibly (children were injected, as were dissenters) dominates the final part of a bleak documentary.

It is, of course, appalling – the so-called "Death Tape" features the screams of children and adults as a deranged Jones, leader of the Peoples Temple, urges his followers to swallow cyanide-laced drinks as an act of "revolutionary suicide".

Survivors of the massacre, some of whom could do little as their families died in front of them, still struggle to talk of what they saw. AG

Apocalypse Cow: How Meat Killed the Planet

10.00pm C4

DOCUMENTARY Environmental writer George Monbiot presents a poleaxing look at the effects of meat farming: "If we all go on as we are, we're going to run out of planet."

What makes this different from the recent Liz Bonnin programme on the same theme is that the focus is on Britain. Monbiot looks at how farming nearly 23 million sheep has wiped out trees in upland areas, how the River Wye has been blighted by agricultural pollution, and how one Scottish estate is re-wilding, by culling deer. He also looks at alternatives to industrialised farming, such as lab-grown meat. It's a daft title and a late slot, but this is well worth a look. DAVID BUTCHER

Cheer

Netflix (starts today)

From the creators of the absorbing college football documentary Last Chance U comes a new series about the young women working it on the sidelines: we're with the cheerleading squad of Navarro College in Corsicana, Texas. They've won multiple national championships and we learn what's involved, but the programme is more interested in the details of their off-field triumphs and heartbreaks.

The Great Pottery Throw Down

9.00pm More4

REALITY There was polite annoyance from fans when the BBC ditched The Great Pottery Throw Down after just two series. More4 has come to the rescue with a revival, although there's a presenter change – Melanie Sykes replaces Sara Cox – and ceramicist Sue Pryke takes over as a judge from Kate Malone.

Lachrymose Keith "Stop Your Sobbing" Brymer Jones

hasn't gone anywhere, so we assume he's packed a supply of hankies to have a good old weep over any particular item that moves him. Twelve amateur potters arrive at the studio in Stoke-on-Trent where, for the first challenge, they must make a six-piece breakfast set, including a cafetiere.

This is puzzling to some: "Have you ever seen a ceramic cafetiere?" asks one nonplussed contestant. "I haven't". There's plenty of innuendo about "lubrication" and "shrinkage". So not that much has changed. The series is also being shown from next Sunday on C4. AG

A-list shoot-out

Free Fire ★★★ A114 FREE TO VIEW

This fun shoot-'em-up from Ben Wheatley leaves C4's catch-up service tonight. A gun deal in a warehouse rapidly becomes a trigger-happy free-for-all, as personal grudges are aired and gangland scores are settled. This Tarantino-style genre exercise is elevated by a cast that includes Cillian Murphy, Armie Hammer, Brie Larson and Sharlto Copley. Wheatley's latest film, Happy New Year, Colin Burstead, is available on iPlayer, while his next project, a new adaptation of Rebecca, is in the pipeline for Netflix. TERRY STAUNTON

The best in world cinema

Burning ★★★★★ 10.15pm Sky Premiere

Youthful romance turns to teasing mystery in this South Korean film. Despite being stuck in a menial job, Yoo Ah-in somehow finds himself with a slinky new girlfriend. His joy is short-lived, however, when he gains a smug, wealthy rival for her affections (Steven Yeun), and the girl then suddenly disappears. Yoo turns ad-hoc sleuth, but are his suspicions based on hard evidence or class prejudice caused by his own lowly status? It's a slow build, but this thriller is tantalising and compelling in equal measure. TREVOR JOHNSTON

A Marlene matinée

Destry Rides Again

★★★★★ 4.10pm TCM

This is one of those comedy westerns that has universal appeal. James Stewart stars as the lawman who manages to clean up the town of Bottleneck using a slow drawl rather than a quick draw, while the fabulous Marlene Dietrich performs See What the Boys in the Back Room Will Have.

LAST ORDERS

Ruby, Patterson and Madeleine will soon be bidding Jack farewell

PICK OF THE DAY Death in Paradise 9.00pm BBC1

DRAMA It's never a good sign. When someone in Death in Paradise says, "You go ahead, I won't be long," we know they're doomed, with a life expectancy shorter than Commissioner Patterson's temper. So it is as series nine opens in a Saint Marie villa, with a local businessman and his wife late for a party – a party that she will never see, thanks to a masked man with a knife and a penchant for writing cryptic messages in lipstick.

There's plenty for DI Jack Mooney (Ardal O'Hanlon) and his team to get their heads around: a rum distillery with money problems, secret investments and infidelities, long-estranged brothers, and that mystery assailant in the devil mask. But we know O'Hanlon is leaving the series soon, so when Jack strikes up a friendship with a tourist (Nina Wadia), we have a hunch where it might be heading. Meanwhile, Florence is, sadly, a distant memory, but new detective sergeant Madeleine Dumas (Aude Legastelois-Bidé) is settling in nicely. DAVID BUTCHER The view from Ardal O'Hanlon's sofa: page 150

Best Home Cook

8.00pm BBC1

FOOD You think this show is all warm and nurturing, with its rustic barn setting and joshing judges. But underneath, it's brutal. When judge Mary Berry delivers criticism, it hurts. When she dismisses your dish as "a little clumsy", it feels, one contestant tonight says, like a "stab through the heart". And the final eliminator round, where the two or three worst-performing cooks have their versions of the same recipe judged blind, has real, cruel tension. One slip and you're out.

But before then there's lots of fun watching some smashing cooks work wonders with meringue (which always comes with a helping of jeopardy) and this week's "rustle up" ingredient, cauliflower. DAVID BUTCHER

The Supervet: Noel Fitzpatrick

8.00pm C4

DOCUMENTARY When an animal has such complex developmental deformities that any treatment will be prolonged and arduous, many vets would suggest euthanasia. But when Noel Fitzpatrick sees Merida, a six-month-old rough collie with serious orthopaedic problems, he argues that "we live in a world where surgery and possibility is moving forward all the time" and he believes that families who love their animals deserve that choice. So Merida is in with a chance of a new lease of life.

He also sees Elmo, an "intact" feisty cat, referred after being hit by a car. Noel advocates neutering him during the surgery to repair his leg. Elmo's not keen. JANE RACKHAM

Gino's Italian Express

8.30pm ITV (not N Ireland; STV: 10.45pm)

FOOD If the chill of Britain in January hasn't got you dreaming about a summer holiday, the sight of Gino D'Acampo strolling through sun-drenched Milan just might. The city is "the heart of Italian style and fashion" but Gino sips an aperitivo in the bar famous for introducing cocktails to "everyday people" before hopping on a train trundling through the scenic plains of Lombardy to visit the Bianchi bike factory.

He whips up a traditional veal Milanese, stracciatella ice-cream and limoncelli biscuits, which he makes molto velocemente in medieval Bergamo's former prison, now a co-operative restaurant employing disadvantaged people. JR

Murder Trial

DOCUMENTARY OF THE WEEK

In the concluding episode about the disappearance of a vulnerable young woman, Margaret Fleming, a police officer grows angry with suspect Avril Jones. "I can't stress enough, you are in here for murder – you don't seem bothered about this wee lassie." Jones and her fellow carer Edward Cairney later both go on trial in Scotland, charged with Fleming's murder, and the prosecution sets about convincing the jury that Margaret is dead by their hands, though no body has ever been found.

Cairney claims Margaret is still alive. But there is compelling evidence that casts doubt on letters she is supposed to have written to the pair. ALISON GRAHAM

Chantelle in EastEnders (7.30pm BBC1) is keeping the Panesar family at arm's length for fear of what her abusive husband Gray will do if she's seen talking to them. But I bet she ultimately decides to tell newcomer Jags about the violence to which she's being subjected – if only because Jags appears to have the potential to be the Square's next Fatboy, in whom I recall everyone seemed to confide their woes.

I'd be disappointed, though, if Jags ended up swooping in to rescue

TODAY IN SOAPLAND

Chantelle from Gray's clutches. There's no point really in doing such hard-hitting storylines if the victim of the abuse doesn't eventually find the strength to thwart the aggressor. Even if it means we get one of those over-familiar lines such as, "I'm not scared of you any more," before the villain gets their clothes thrown onto the pavement in bin bags and is lamped in the face with an iron or, as in the recent case of Honey and the horrible Adam, a recycling bin. DAVID BROWN

Welcome to HMP Belmarsh with Ross Kemp

9.00pm ITV

DOCUMENTARY When it opened in 1991, HMP Belmarsh was the first prison for men to have been built in London for more than a century. A new breed of "supermax" jail, it was designed to take criminals considered a threat to national security, including IRA terrorists. For this two-part series, cameras follow Ross Kemp for six months as he sees how staff cope with high-profile inmates, extremists and common criminals living side by side.

Kemp witnesses the effect of drugs on prisoners, gets an insight into rehabilitation efforts and visits a special unit that has housed Soham killer Ian Huntley, hate preacher Anjem Choudary and black-cab rapist John Worboys. DAVID BUTCHER

Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

9.00pm 5 USA

DRAMA After Benson catches her son Noah endangering himself by climbing onto a kitchen worktop in search of cookies, she questions her parenting skills. And, soon enough, those worries are magnified when a six-year-old boy goes missing because his mum is too busy partying to notice what's happening to her own child.

This is a show that has traditionally prioritised professional over personal problems, so it's unusual for it now to be focusing so much on Benson's angst. Last week, we had her concerns about retirement; now it's her mother/son bond. But it's heartening to see SVU keeping things fresh – not an easy thing for a series in its 18th season. DAVID BROWN

The Deuce

10.00pm Sky Atlantic

DRAMA There's a reckoning coming for the likeable low-lives in this tale of New York in the mid-80s. It looks as if middling mafioso Rudy will soon be working for John Gotti and his crew: "They got no class," he grumbles. For Candy (Maggie Gyllenhaal, who also produces), it's the feeling that she may have outgrown the initially empowering buzz of directing porn: her dream of "erotic films with a feminist bent" looks shaky.

And several characters can feel the express train of Aids coming down the line. It remains to be seen which of them are caught on the rails. In the meantime, there's another issue: greed-is-good Wall Street yuppie types are on the march, moving in on their once-seedy patch. DAVID BUTCHER

Baby Chimp Rescue

DOCUMENTARY New series

Parts of this are like a more up-to-date PG Tips advert. Baby chimpanzees at a sanctuary in Liberia play, slide down banisters, fall flat on their faces and generally goof about. They're lovely, funny, appealing creatures who are easy to see as sort of hairy, long-armed toddlers: their rescuers, Jenny and Jimmy Desmond, often refer to them as the "little guys".

Although there is plenty of entertainment in this first of a three-part series, some sections are hard. Every one of the chimps has seen its mother shot by hunters and has then subsequently been rescued from the illegal pet trade. There's a moving scene where Jenny goes to rescue one young orphan, kept chained to a cement block. The way it hugs her and she instantly bonds with it and becomes its trusted adoptive mother is extraordinary. DAVID BUTCHER

The effects of "dark energy" – the force prompting the expansion of the universe to accelerate – were discovered in 1998, but physicists still don't actually know what it is. That it exists at all casts doubt on Albert Einstein's general theory of relativity, which remains a cornerstone of modern physics. Experiments on Earth and in space are generating data that might in time enable physicists to understand this phenomenon – meanwhile the field awaits the emergence of another Einstein, whose new theory would explain this mysterious, elusive force. The best of Sky, iPlayer, Netflix and beyond

The killer with my name

True Story ★★★ BBC iPlayer FREE TO VIEW

Leaving iPlayer at the end of this week, this fact-based tale stars Jonah Hill as a discredited New York Times journalist who is determined to find out why a murderer (James Franco) has been using his name while on the run. The pair become bound in mutual neediness: Hill needs a story, Franco needs an audience, and mind games and manipulation ensue. Hill, normally the comic buffoon of his movies, is nicely cast against type, while Franco is his usual slick self in a story that is grippingly told. DAVE ALDRIDGE

Second time around

Gloria Bell ★★★★★ Netflix

Director Sebastián Lelio's English-language "cover version" of his 2013 Chilean original stars Julianne Moore as a woman seeking a second shot at romance and hoping that the recently single John Turturro is Mr Right. But, while the divorcee is happy to let her children (Michael Cera and Caren Pistorius) live their own lives, gnawing guilt means that Turturro remains at the beck and call of his daughters and ex-wife. The byplay between Moore and Turturro is delightful, but the entire ensemble impresses. DAVID PARKINSON

An unlikely hero

FREE TO VIEW

In a twist to the usual genre conventions, this western allows a sidekick to become the hero. Bill Pullman gives one of the performances of his career as the good-natured Lefty, who sets out to find those responsible for the murder of his partner. You can stream it on C5's catch-up service until 14 Jan. STEPHEN CARTY

ON YOUR BIKE
Will and Geordie (Tom Brittney and Robson Green) are crimebusting in Cambridge

PICK OF THE DAY Grantchester 9.00pm ITV

DRAMA "What is the world coming to?" sighs Geordie (Robson Green) as another of his 1950s assumptions is trampled. He is sad to learn that even all-female Cambridge colleges have drinking societies. And at Newnham College one of these may be connected to the death of a student, found floating in the Cam the morning after a ball.

It's a storyline of the kind this drama, now in its fifth series, loves: an idyllic setting of lawns and quads, but with evil below the surface. Geordie and stolidly handsome vicar Will (Tom Brittney) apply themselves to the case with little help from a feminist college principal (Siobhan Redmond) and a sparky local newspaper reporter (Lauren Carse) who takes a shine to Will. But as Geordie keeps explaining, "He's celibate".

Meanwhile, Mrs Maguire seems to have forgiven curate Leonard for being gay, though he still resorts to an unlikely story to explain away his romantic getaway in Marrakesh: he says he got his tan in Bognor. DAVID BUTCHER

Monty Don's American Gardens

8.00pm BBC2 (N Ireland: Sat 11 Jan; Wales: 10pm)

GARDENING New series Put aside all memories of Monty's Italian and Paradise series with their structured and manicured gardens, because in America many gardens he visits are inspired by the wide open spaces of the prairies. These enormous swathes of wild planting seem to evolve organically, controlled by nature rather than the gardener.

But on his travels Monty does find other horticultural styles, such as a rooftop veg plot in Brooklyn, a glitzy, theatrical garden in Philadelphia, and a suburban garden with white picket fences and neatly mown lawn. Maybe American gardens can't be pigeon-holed after all. JANE RACKHAM

The Greek Islands with Julia Bradbury

8.00pm ITV (not N Ireland)

TRAVEL New series Last seen patching up a cottage in Portugal and visiting Australia, Julia Bradbury now turns to another sunny holiday destination. Her mother is Greek, but Julia herself doesn't know that much about the country. During this series she'll be exploring both popular and less visited Greek islands, and starts off on the biggest, Crete.

Away from the resorts, she heads into the rugged heart of the island to make cheese. She meets local artisans (she's particularly smitten by one – "He's a bit of a Greek god, isn't he?" she swoons), and learns the poignant story of the island of Spinalonga. It's the perfect response to dark days. GILL CRAWFORD

Jamie and Jimmy's Friday Night Feast

8.00pm C4

FOOD If there was any justice in the world, guests Ant and Dec would be made to eat camel tongue and lizard anus as a punishment for all those bushtucker trials on I'm a Celebrity. But they get off lightly when they join Jamie Oliver and Jimmy Doherty in that pier-end café at Southend because they're shown how to make – no, not that north-east favourite pan haggerty – but sushi.

They've always regretted not trying it when they toured Japan as PJ and Duncan, because now they absolutely love it, so a few maki rolls and nigiri should get those tummies ready to rumble. But if you're still a bit peckish, Jamie also knocks up an Italian steak and chips combo. JR

The Goes Wrong Show

8.30pm BBC1

COMEDY As the disaster-prone "Play of the Week" returns, the silliness dial is again turned up to 11, although in this show the dial would fall off, fuse the lights and start a small fire.

The Cornley Drama Society are attempting a classic legal drama, but a mistake with the stage measurements worthy of Spinal Tap means that the courtroom set and props are almost unusably small.

As the judge wields a tiny gavel and the jury bench squeezes in only three jurors, the cast persevere nobly, until a further mix-up means they start delivering each other's lines. Not all the gags work but mostly it's polished incompetence raised (or possibly lowered) to an art form. DAVID BUTCHER

When news broke that Tracy on Coronation Street (7.30pm, 8.30pm ITV) was set to have a one-night stand with Paula, fans on Twitter went potty. "I am disgusted and sad," seethed one. "I always thought Paula and Sophie were in love." Well, it looks as though this anger will be as nothing compared to Steve's, who discovers all tonight (right). Mind you, he's not exactly been a figure of moral probity during his time in Weatherfield. Pot, kettle, Mr McDonald? Doctors (1.45pm) is having some fun with guest star Frazer Hines's character. He plays Sonny Troughton, who comes to AI with news that he's set up a "Free Doctor Clay" website. Seeing as Jimmi hasn't yet been convicted, AI is worried this could do more harm than good. But I was more struck by the whole Troughton thing, seeing as Hines found fame thanks to his association with a very different kind of doctor: namely, the second incarnation of THE Doctor, as portrayed by Patrick Troughton. DAVID BROWN

King Gary

9.30pm BBC1 (Wales: 11.25pm)

SITCOM New series Gary is king of his cul de sac. Or at least, likes to think he is. No neighbourly quarrel is too petty, and every appearance has to be kept up in his nouveau riche corner of suburbia. In this first episode following 2018's successful pilot, building site owner Gary (Tom Davis, who is also the co-writer) must step up and into his dad's (Simon Day) shoes – and in true sitcom style, fails miserably.

Whereas Davis's previous vehicle (BBC3's Murder in Successville) was a tad off the wall, this couldn't be more on it; this is a broad comedy with big, brash characters. But it does have some enjoyable quips, and Laura Checkley as Gary's wife Terri is superb. FRANCES TAYLOR

Chris Packham: Forever Punk

9.30pm BBC4

DOCUMENTARY This isn't any old love letter to a musical genre. This is Chris Packham crediting punk rock with effectively saving his life. As articulate and sincere as he was in Asperger's and Me, the driven environmentalist this time reflects on being a depressed young man in 1977. Angry, and alienated from his peers, he was re-energised by punk's "ferocious determination".

Packham meets those who were similarly propelled by punk's DIY aesthetic and empowering vibe, including Communard turned priest Richard Coles and Clash drummer turned chiropractor Terry Chimes. It's a typically honest, passionate workout from Packham. MARK BRAXTON

The Graham Norton Show

10.35pm BBC1 (N Ireland: 11.05pm)

ENTERTAINMENT The last couple of times Daniel Radcliffe has appeared on the show, he's been confronted with photos of less-than-flattering lookalikes, but he clearly doesn't mind too much. He's back again, joined by Alan Cumming – the pair are both starring in the Old Vic's production of Samuel Beckett's bleak comedy, Endgame.

There should be a lot of hilarity on the sofa, though. Cumming is an entertaining raconteur, but so is Graham's other guest, Sharon Horgan – although some of us might prefer to forget her story about her experiences as a hotel chambermaid. She's promoting the feel-good film Military Wives, opening in March. JR

CRACKING UP
Life's no picnic for Tom (David Tennant) and Kate (Anna Madeley)

Deadwater Fell

9.00pm C4

DRAMA New series Kirkdarroch seems like the perfect place, a small, tightly knit Scottish country community where everyone takes to the streets to cheer a cycle race and later has fun at a ceilidh. It's the most idyllic place, where nothing bad can ever happen....

But the sunny certainties of village life are sundered by an appalling tragedy – flames light up the night sky and four people are found dead in a burning building. It's not an accident, it's murder and there is just one survivor.

Daisy Coulam's powerful, chilling drama (she also writes Grantchester) looks at the cracking fault lines that lie beneath Kirkdarroch and its inhabitants – decent local doctor Tom Kendrick (David Tennant) and his teacher wife Kate (Anna Madeley), police sergeant Steve (Matthew McNulty) and his wife Jess (Cush Jumbo). ALISON GRAHAM

Director Jordan Peele's follow-up to his Oscar-winning hit Get Out (see review, p40) could carry the tagline: "We are our own worst enemy." While on vacation in Santa Cruz, the middle-class Wilson family start being stalked and menaced by degraded doppelgangers of themselves. While the socio-political allegory feels a little clunky, the film still offers a weird and wild ride down the rabbit hole. A great cast play their dual roles with scary aplomb, not least the centrally important Lupita Nyong'o. ALAN JONES

Friday, I'm in love

Emma ★★★★★ BBC iPlayer FREE TO VIEW

Before she won an Oscar for Shakespeare in Love, Gwyneth Paltrow made her mark here as the quintessential Jane Austen heroine. Ever the matchmaker, Emma entangles her friend Harriet (Toni Collette) in hopeless passion while seeking her own soulmate. With a host of fine supporting performances (Jeremy Northam, Alan Cumming, Juliet Stevenson), this bright and breezy adaptation weaves a magical spell. A new screen version starring Anya Taylor-Joy in the lead is due in cinemas next month. ALAN JONES

The Devil's own

Hail Satan? ★★★ Netflix

This documentary about the Satanic Temple features plenty of absurdity and gasp-inducing provocation, but it also offers an insight into how American secularism was eroded in the postwar era. Lucien Greaves proves to be an articulate spokesman for the Temple, and a potted history of Satanism puts much in perspective.

All the greats

Good, bad or debauched... all are welcome on Great Lives, says Matthew Parris. But where are the women?

Great Lives

Tuesday 4.30pm Radio 4

TO BE ASKED to present Radio 4's Great Lives is to win the lottery of life. Yes, for a presenter it's even better than Desert Island Discs, where you have to be respectful; even better than In Our Time where the presenter is supposed to know all about the thing or person under discussion. Ignorance is a sin on Melvyn's show.

On mine – for the presenter anyway – it's virtually a prerequisite. My ignorance (as I mentioned last week to my series editor Miles Warde when he asked me if I actually knew who Kurt Vonnegut was) is fathomless. And on Great Lives I can revel in it. It's simple, you see – along with my Radio 4 audience, I'm finding out.

I do cheat a bit by Googling our subject beforehand to see if there are any questions that really ought to be asked, or gaffes to be avoided

'We're looking for a well-known atheist to propose Jesus'

(I was startled this year to discover that Richmal Crompton, author of Just William and nominated by Peter Osborne, was a woman; Shappi Khorsandi, my guest who had nominated Nelson's mistress, Emma Hamilton, had to put me right gently when I asked if the great admiral had done anything much after winning the Battle of Trafalgar). But essentially, our listeners are witness to a conversation between two experts and an airhead.

Seriously, though, it's terrific fun finding out. My job is to probe but not in most cases to debunk, though sometimes there are hard questions my guest needs to face.

A decade ago, Rachel de Thame from Gardeners' World had to admit that only as a ballerina was her choice, Margot Fonteyn, an angel. And in 2006 the late Christopher Hitchens actually walked out of our programme when both our expert and I felt the need to question whether Leon Trotsky was an all-round good egg. "You're a bleeding Tory," he snapped at me, departing. Then he walked back in and we carried on.

Later I mentioned the incident to his brother, the columnist Peter Hitchens. "Sorry," said Peter, perplexed, "did he say 'bleeding' Tory?" I confirmed this. "Ah," said Peter, resolving the mystery, "now I see. He never uses the word 'bleeding'. So he must have figured that 'bloody' (or worse) would have been cut by the BBC from an afternoon programme. My brother was putting on a display for a public broadcast."

Few guests, however, cut up rough; though when Lord Snowdon, the photographer and former husband of the late Princess Margaret, asked for a glass of wine during an afternoon recording (he was championing the designer of the original Mini, Sir Alec Issigonis), he found us unready with a drinks trolley. Antony Armstrong-Jones was not as forthcoming as most our guests, but I've found you never can tell who'll know a lot, and who won't – and sometimes sheer enthusiasm is as important as detailed information.

But there are surprises. Boris Johnson was breathtakingly erudite about his namesake, Dr Samuel Johnson, and Sir John Major knew as much (and was as passionate) about his choice (Rudyard Kipling) as our studio expert. George Osborne, meanwhile, is said to have asked his former history supervisor at Oxford for a private tutorial before he came into our studio to champion that king of penny-pinchers, Henry VII.

And some guests do arrive as though preparing for a difficult examination. I beg them to put their notes away. This is not University Challenge, and enthusiasm, not learning, is what we need from our principal guest. Our expert witness will supply any missing information. We have no wish to catch anyone out, and we pre-record, so we can edit.

GREAT LIVES...

People relax a bit when you tell them that.

There is no formula for a successful combination of guest and chosen Great Life. If the life is strong enough, the guest needn't be famous, and vice versa. Nor need a great man or woman be upright or personally admirable. In this week's episode, the retired Conservative politician Kenneth Clarke admits to our listeners that his choice, the jazz musician Charlie Parker, was a shocking degenerate.

SOME, THOUGH, I'D love to bring back from the dead to join us in the studio. One of our best programmes was when the journalist, economist and broadcaster, Dame Frances Cairncross, chose Ignaz Semmelweis, the obscure Hungarian doctor who in 1847 discovered the source of the infection that was killing millions of women and babies after childbirth, in an age when huge general hospitals were becoming the norm.

"Childbed fever", Semmelweis claimed, was being carried from woman to woman on the hands of doctors. Outraged, the Viennese medical profession shunned the poor doctor, who ended up in a mental asylum. It was years before he was proven right. His observations had been an early presentiment of the theory of germs.

If the guest is strong or famous enough, then whom they choose becomes interesting in itself. Prince Charles, are you listening? You could have literally anyone as your Great Life. They wouldn't even need to have existed. We have, after all, featured Tintin (I put it to my guest Nick Danziger that the young detective was gay, and there was outrage in the French and Belgian press as a result).

But here's a thing, a thing we're working hard to correct. Some time ago, surveying all the guests and lives since the programme started, we were surprised and ashamed to discover that, although female guests have picked male and female lives in roughly equal number, only a handful – literally a handful – of male guests had ever chosen a woman.

Let me end, though, on a positive note: an offer, if you like. We're looking for a well-known atheist to propose Jesus Christ, and a renowned cleric to propose the Devil.

Oh – and anyone at all to propose the amazing life of the Colombian drugs baron, Pablo Escobar: an invitation I suspect the Colombian ambassador in London will decline.

PICK OF THE WEEK

Heart and Soul: the Queen of Sheba
Sunday 9.30am BBC World Service

Heart and Soul is billed as a series of "personal approaches to spirituality around the world", which might deter some from giving The Queen of Sheba the time of day. But this investigation into the mythical, perhaps historical, ruler is the kind of quintessentially BBC programme that piques interest in a subject you may never before have stopped to think about.

Presenter Sarah Sands (on release from her job as editor of Radio 4's Today) sets out in her own regal pitch to question who the Queen of Sheba was, what she stood for and what she means to anyone today.

Sands warms to a task that takes her roaming far and wide. The Dean of Canterbury tells her about the depiction of the queen travelling to Jerusalem in the cathedral's 12th-century Bible Windows. She talks to the clergyman of a north London Ethiopian church and his congregation about the queen's legacy in their homeland. She discusses Sheba mythology with writer Marina Warner, and hears about female empowerment and pride from the cast of a play about contemporary black women called Queens of Sheba. It's a bit of a mystery tour. You don't know where you're going to end up, but the ride is worth taking.

AMBRIDGE DIARY

The Archers this week...

Long-time Archers fans will recall the howl of anguish that Kirsty gave in 2014 when she was jilted at the altar by Tom. It was certainly an Ambridge wedding to remember, but definitely for all the wrong reasons. So I'm braced for more emotional turmoil as Philip now wonders whether this might be an opportune time to propose to Kirsty. After such a rotten experience when it comes to her previous marriage attempt, what will her answer be?

Jizzer and Alistair are fretting about whether to be honest with Jim after last week's discovery. Following much debate, the two of them break the news to him, but will Jim react in the way they expect? DAVID BROWN

Who's shouting?

New pearls of wisdom from Barry Cryer

NEW YEAR, NEW home!" cooed Barry Cryer, back on the blower. "I've moved house," he divulged. "Location is everything – I'm midway between the chemist and the pub!" Barry often calls me to test out his jokes – he thinks I'm the only man who'll laugh. I adore Cryer, who along with Graeme Garden is rationing his appearances on I'm Sorry I Haven't a Clue. He's been around for such a long time that he's not only written for Morecambe and Wise – I'm sure he wrote for Queen Victoria, too.

Anyway, Cryer made his name writing golden material for the biggest stars of television and radio. And all that time, he's also been an obsessive listener. So when he closed his phone call with a pearl of wisdom, I knew I needed to pass it along here in RT: "TV shouts at you," he vented, "but the radio talks to you."

What a fabulous comparison. I don't think he means that radio is better than television – TV's going through a golden age. But you listen for hours doing the ironing, when suddenly something grabs your attention and won't let go. Whereas the TV's often left on in the corner, like a babbling toddler. And the entertainment hosts do SHOUT. We viewers are treated like a mass audience, we're "folks", "guys" or "ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls".

On radio, if someone shouts at you or makes loud noises, it's generally a mistake. It was certainly one of mine. Among my many errors was an item in which we tested different types of whistle. We produced one to summon a sheepdog and we nabbed an old policeman's "tooter". Of course, we also picked up the famous Acme Thunderer, with its dried pea hidden inside, which refereed all my childhood football matches.

As we demonstrated the various short sharp bursts, dogs and cats scampered for cover. Bats dropped from their roosts onto the wigs of country vicars. And then that most awesome of beasts – the human radio listener – got in touch.

"My kitten Daisy's scooted under the sofa and won't come out!" "My border collie Fred keeps rounding up my wife!" There was genuine alarm that someone would blow a whistle into the life of ordinary decent people whose only crime was to turn on the radio. So that's another lesson learnt. In 2020, I resolve not to shout or whistle, and I'll always prick up my ears when Barry Cryer calls. Happy New Year!

Paddy O'Connell hosts Broadcasting House on Sunday at 9am on Radio 4, and co-hosts the podcast Dogpod on to the side of the car's sliding windows. It cost £12 and I believe the radio will only fit in the very early Minis. As you can see, it's showing wear, but I tested it recently and it still works – unlike the car.

The Mini was fun to drive, though the ground clearance with the tiny wheels could be surprising. On one occasion, I even got stuck in a game reserve."

Paddy says: Your supersonic super-story makes you the Lion King! Do we have a reader in Zimbabwe with an old blue Mini?

Is radio ready for a revolution?

Over the past ten years, streaming has revolutionised television viewing. We, the audience, have shown ourselves prepared to put our hand in our pocket to pay for a small amount of our favourite content plus a whole lot of other content that we can take or leave. Hence the recent survey that says the average American will now spend 23 minutes a day flicking through the programme guide, looking for something they want to watch. That will add up to 1.3 years in the average lifetime.

Would you pay for more?

All this new revenue has resulted in a bonanza for TV writers, actors and filmmakers. The result is there are more watchable programmes being made than we could ever find time to watch. Could the same thing ever happen with audio entertainment? Would we be prepared to fork out enough dosh to enable the producers to come up with something significantly better than we can hear at the moment?

Best series of 2019

Before you answer that question, you might like to listen to The Sun King. This is an independently produced, Audible-financed, David Dimbleby-fronted exploration of the career of Rupert Murdoch (right) that happens to be the best thing I've heard all year. It's in six parts. A lot of it is about events that took place in the UK – the invention of Page Three, the Wapping pickets, Millie Dowler, "the humblest day of my life" etc – but the key event, which is the part played by Fox News in the presidency of Donald Trump, happened in the States, where it affects us all.

More like a book

The producers don't talk to everybody but they get near enough to make you feel you were in the room when all the fateful decisions were made. The thing that makes it work is the feeling that they have more good material than they know what to do with. It's this that gives the programme its texture. At the end you feel satisfied, as though you've read a short book on the subject rather than listened to a long radio programme. My favourite interviewee was the 92-year-old who designed The Sun logo and, like many, claims that Page Three was his idea. It was while listening to this man enthuse about bosoms, over the distant objections of his wife, that I first realised "even if they had the money, this could never be on the BBC". That's just one of the challenges they've got to face.

PADDY'S RADIO HEROES! No 9

"In 1960, I was living in Southern Rhodesia and, needing a car, I ordered one of the first Minis to come to central Africa," writes RT reader, Mr JL Slate from Portsmouth. "It didn't have a radio as the dashboard was far too small. However, a couple of months later, I heard of a small radio company in Bulawayo called Supersonic that was making a battery radio that would fit in a box built into the car door.

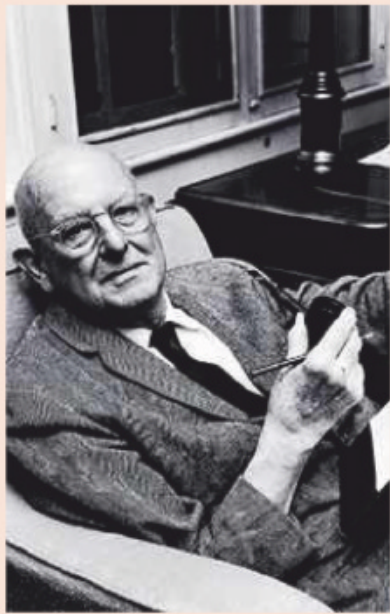

"It had a normal telescopic aerial, as well as an external aerial that clipped

Today's Choices

Gentileschi's Revenge

6.45pm Radio 3
Artemisia Gentileschi (1593–c1656) is the most famous female artist of the Renaissance. Many of her works – such as Judith Slaying Holofernes and the self-portrait above – are masterpieces of the Baroque canon. The vast majority of her oeuvre depicts dominant and sometimes savage women. Since at least the 19th century this has been interpreted as Gentileschi's response to being raped when she was 18. Painter Caroline Walker assesses her achievements as an artist and a feminist icon. Essential listening prior to the opening in April at the National Gallery of the first major exhibition of Gentileschi's work in the UK. DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

John Humphrys

3.00pm Classic FM
John Humphrys has wasted no time moving on from the Today programme. After a try-out in Classic FM's breakfast slot in late October, the presenter who once revelled in the cut-and-thrust of a big political interview seems to have developed a taste for gentler climes. In this new regular home, he'll be "sharing his own stories, and reflections on his favourite composers and their music". SIMON O'HAGAN

Today's Choices

Exile

10.45am/7.45pm Radio 4
This year marks the 400th anniversary of the first Puritans setting sail to the New World aboard the Mayflower. The notoriously difficult voyage from Plymouth to Massachusetts is ingrained in US lore, though this 10-part drama from Adrian Bean deals less with the myths surrounding Thanksgiving than seeking to ask why those early settlers were desperate enough to want to leave England in the first place. The first episode finds one such persecuted family take the plunge into the unknown, giving up everything for a ticket on the ship and a fresh start; an all too familiar story in our own globalised age. TOM GOULDING

State of the Nation

9.45am Radio 4
So Brexit is finally going to happen, Boris Johnson is set to be prime minister for five years, the Conservative majority in the House of Commons is huge, the Labour party is in crisis, and the country is divided. How to make sense of it all? Over to five leading writers, starting today with Howard Jacobson – Booker Prize-winning novelist, a regular on A Point of View, and a one-time columnist on The Independent. Nadifa Mohamed, Lionel Shriver, Jan Carson and James Meek are the other contributors.

The Documentary

1.30pm/11.05pm/2.30am

BBC World Service

Transgender man Fumino Sugiyama (above) is in a long-term relationship with his girlfriend, but both suffer the emotional pain of being unable to marry. Under draconian Japanese laws, those wanting to change gender must fulfil strict criteria: at the very least they have to be single, over 20 and childless. Incredibly, they must also agree to have their reproductive organs surgically removed. International outcry is vociferous at this profound violation of human rights. Sugiyama, who must remain single to achieve his "legal" male gender status, seeks to challenge the government, but you get a dismaying feeling it will be in vain. CHRIS GARDNER

In a welcome return, Jim Al-Khalili talks to forensic ecologist Pat Wiltshire who, after a circuitous career, now uses all her wealth of botanical experience to help put killers (including Soham's Ian Huntley) behind bars. ## Today's Choices

Joe Lycett's Obsessions

6.30pm Radio 4
Officially neither Arthur nor Martha ("I'm actually bisexual, which means you're all at risk"), Joe Lycett (above) is nevertheless shaping up as the next big camp comedian. His TV series Joe Lycett's Got Your Back, in which he stood up for consumer rights, played to his mischief-making strengths. So does this silly show, first heard in 2018. There's nothing much to it. Brave celebs come in to talk about their passions. Lycett is catty about them. You can imagine how he treats today's guest, Radio 1 DJ Clara Amfo, who is mad about trainers. Not everyone's humour but certainly mine.

DAVID MCGILLIVRAY

Radio 3 in Concert

7.30pm Radio 3
One of the world's great conductors, the Latvian-born, Russian-bred Mariss Jansons died in November aged 76. He's heard tonight in one of his last concerts with the Munich-based Bavarian Radio Symphony Orchestra, whose much-admired chief conductor he'd been since 2003. Closing with the magisterial, at times funereal, passacaglia that crowns Brahms's final symphony, the concert opens with four interludes from Richard Strauss's comically autobiographical opera about a famous conductor and his jealous wife. ### Today's Choices

Radio 3 in Concert

7.30pm Radio 3

With their combination of soaring serenity and visionary grandeur, Anton Bruckner's symphonies are routinely described as "cathedrals in sound". So St Bavo's Cathedral in Ghent should be the perfect setting for tonight's coupling of his Second Symphony and E minor Mass, presented by Georgia Mann (above) and performed by Belgian conductor Philippe Herreweghe with his own period-instrument orchestra and historically informed choir. Oddly, the Mass was actually designed to be performed not inside a cathedral, but outside one – hence the unusual scoring for an orchestra of just winds and brass, with no strings, organ or timps. MARK PAPPENHEIM

In Our Time

9.00am Radio 4

It was in 2009 that classicist Gail Trimble became a University Challenge sensation, scoring two thirds of her Corpus Christi, Oxford team's points on the way to the final. Since then, she's appeared on Only Connect but here, as a fully fledged Oxford academic, she offers up her Latin expertise in the more sober confines of In Our Time, which today is devoted to the subject of the Roman love poet Catullus. SIMON O'HAGAN

It turns out that millet and sorghum – which unlike maize are indigenous to the region – could hold the key. Charlotte Ashton reports, meeting the remarkable business people fighting to put these grains back on Zimbabwean plates. From persuading smallholder farmers that traditional crops are the way forward, to advertising the health benefits of small grains to busy parents, this is a campaign for hearts and minds as much as full bellies.

My Dad's Wardrobe

2.15pm Radio 4

After six years of writing for the stage, Frazer Flintham returns to radio with one of his most engrossing plays to date. My Dad's Wardrobe starts out like a time-honoured children's adventure, with 12-year-old Louie – played by Aaron Gelkoff, who last year was Adrian Mole in London's West End – going on a quest to retrieve his father's track suit, accidentally donated to a charity shop. But almost imperceptibly the play develops into something much more thoughtful and multi-layered. Enjoy Louie's journey (but remember to assume nothing). "The script is amazing", says young Aaron. And he's right.

The Verb

10.00pm Radio 3

A trio of literary lights join Ian McMillan for more high-brow late-night chat, this time on the topic of the poetry publishing industry. To us civilians, this may feel like a closed-off, rarefied world, but that's an out-of-date perception.

McMillan's guests are champions of poetry for all: Michael Schmidt is the founder of Carcanet Press, Peter Sansom is a tutor who works with Sheffield-based the Poetry Business, and Malachi McIntosh edits Wasafiri magazine, which showcases international writing and is now in its 35th year. #### Face behind the voice

James Hanson BBC Radio Bristol

Age 27

Current job Presents the Saturday morning show on BBC Radio Bristol (9am). Also a reporter on weekday breakfast show.

CV Born in Bristol, brought up in Nailsey, Somerset. Studied politics at the University of Leeds, where he did student radio. Went to BBC Somerset to do work experience after finishing uni – after two weeks he was reading the travel! Moved to BBC Radio Bristol in 2016 as a reporter, then Saturday lunchtime host in January 2018. Presenter of the Saturday morning show since August last year.

Best moment “A listener was trying to find a vintage Bedford Rascal van for her daughter’s wedding – her late father drove one. I eventually tracked one down (in Bedford!). Only local radio can have such a direct impact on people’s lives.”

Worst moment “I was roped in to do BBC Somerset’s pantomime in aid of Children in Need. I had to sing Ladies’ Night by Kool and the Gang, dressed as an ugly sister. It wasn’t quite how I’d envisaged my BBC career panning out!”

Off air “I live centrally in Bristol, I’m a cocktail enthusiast, and I love disco, funk and soul. I’m a big football fan, and also a politics geek – I got very excited when the general election was announced!”

First radio memory “As a kid, I vividly remember listening in the car to the Bush and Troy morning crew on GWR.”

Favourite broadcasters “Kenny Everett in the 70s – there won’t be anyone quite like him again, for creative content and production. A couple of years ago, I produced a compilation of clips from his Radio Bristol shows, made during the summer of 1971 after he’d been sacked from Radio 1. It’s still available on BBC Sounds – When Kenny Came to Bristol. Steve Wright on Radio 1 in the 80s was another creative radio pioneer. And Steve Allen on LBC – he has me in stitches!”

Ambition “To present a weekday show. I’d love to do talk radio, with phone-ins – and maybe a disco, funk and soul show on a Saturday night. Perhaps we could call it the Brexit and Boogie show?”

Dream job “I was that little boy, pretending to be a radio presenter in his bedroom! So I’ll be happy to always be on the radio, in some shape or form.”

Secret skills “I love James Bond movies, and can tell you the order/year they were released, which actor played Bond, etc... Also, the order/dates of all the UK prime ministers, US presidents, Formula One winners, Premier League title holders... It’s just how my mind works!” CAROLINE MEYER

BBC Local Radio

Face behind the voice

James Hanson BBC Radio Bristol

Age 27

Current job Presents the Saturday morning show on BBC Radio Bristol (9am). Also a reporter on weekday breakfast show.

CV Born in Bristol, brought up in Nailsey, Somerset. Studied politics at the University of Leeds, where he did student radio. Went to BBC Somerset to do work experience after finishing uni – after two weeks he was reading the travel! Moved to BBC Radio Bristol in 2016 as a reporter, then Saturday lunchtime host in January 2018. Presenter of the Saturday morning show since August last year.

Best moment “A listener was trying to find a vintage Bedford Rascal van for her daughter’s wedding – her late father drove one. I eventually tracked one down (in Bedford!). Only local radio can have such a direct impact on people’s lives.”

Worst moment “I was roped in to do BBC Somerset’s pantomime in aid of Children in Need. I had to sing Ladies’ Night by Kool and the Gang, dressed as an ugly sister. It wasn’t quite how I’d envisaged my BBC career panning out!

Off air “I live centrally in Bristol, I’m a cocktail enthusiast, and I love disco, funk and soul. I’m a big football fan, and also a politics geek – I got very excited when the general election was announced!”

First radio memory “As a kid, I vividly remember listening in the car to the Bush and Troy morning crew on GWR.”

Favourite broadcasters “Kenny Everett in the 70s – there won’t be anyone quite like him again, for creative content and production. A couple of years ago, I produced a compilation of clips from his Radio Bristol shows, made during the summer of 1971 after he’d been sacked from Radio 1. It’s still available on BBC Sounds – When Kenny Came to Bristol. Steve Wright on Radio 1 in the 80s was another creative radio pioneer. And Steve Allen on LBC – he has me in stitches!”

Ambition “To present a weekday show. I’d love to do talk radio, with phone-ins – and maybe a disco, funk and soul show on a Saturday night. Perhaps we could call it the Brexit and Boogie show?”

Dream job “I was that little boy, pretending to be a radio presenter in his bedroom! So I’ll be happy to always be on the radio, in some shape or form.”

Secret skills “I love James Bond movies, and can tell you the order/year they were released, which actor played Bond, etc... Also, the order/dates of all the UK prime ministers, US presidents, Formula One winners, Premier League title holders... It’s just how my mind works!” CAROLINE MEYER

BBC Local Radio

Face behind the voice

James Hanson BBC Radio Bristol

Age 27

Current job Presents the Saturday morning show on BBC Radio Bristol (9am). Also a reporter on weekday breakfast show.

CV Born in Bristol, brought up in Nailsey, Somerset. Studied politics at the University of Leeds, where he did student radio. Went to BBC Somerset to do work experience after finishing uni – after two weeks he was reading the travel! Moved to BBC Radio Bristol in 2016 as a reporter, then Saturday lunchtime host in January 2018. Presenter of the Saturday morning show since August last year.

Best moment “A listener was trying to find a vintage Bedford Rascal van for her daughter’s wedding – her late father drove one. I eventually tracked one down (in Bedford!). Only local radio can have such a direct impact on people’s lives.”

Worst moment “I was roped in to do BBC Somerset’s pantomime in aid of Children in Need. I had to sing Ladies’ Night by Kool and the Gang, dressed as an ugly sister. It wasn’t quite how I’d envisaged my BBC career panning out!

Off air “I live centrally in Bristol, I’m a cocktail enthusiast, and I love disco, funk and soul. I’m a big football fan, and also a politics geek – I got very excited when the general election was announced!”

First radio memory “As a kid, I vividly remember listening in the car to the Bush and Troy morning crew on GWR.”

Favourite broadcasters “Kenny Everett in the 70s – there won’t be anyone quite like him again, for creative content and production. A couple of years ago, I produced a compilation of clips from his Radio Bristol shows, made during the summer of 1971 after he’d been sacked from Radio 1. It’s still available on BBC Sounds – When Kenny Came to Bristol. Steve Wright on Radio 1 in the 80s was another creative radio pioneer. And Steve Allen on LBC – he has me in stitches!”

Ambition “To present a weekday show. I’d love to do talk radio, with phone-ins – and maybe a disco, funk and soul show on a Saturday night. Perhaps we could call it the Brexit and Boogie show?”

Dream job “I was that little boy, pretending to be a radio presenter in his bedroom! So I’ll be happy to always be on the radio, in some shape or form.”

Secret skills “I love James Bond movies, and can tell you the order/year they were released, which actor played Bond, etc... Also, the order/dates of all the UK prime ministers, US presidents, Formula One winners, Premier League title holders... It’s just how my mind works!”

BBC Radio Scotland

Face behind the voice

James Hanson BBC Radio Bristol

Age 27

Current job Presents the Saturday morning show on BBC Radio Bristol (9am). Also a reporter on weekday breakfast show.

CV Born in Bristol, brought up in Nailsey, Somerset. Studied politics at the University of Leeds, where he did student radio. Went to BBC Somerset to do work experience after finishing uni – after two weeks he was reading the travel! Moved to BBC Radio Bristol in 2016 as a reporter, then Saturday lunchtime host in January 2018. Presenter of the Saturday morning show since August last year.

Best moment “A listener was trying to find a vintage Bedford Rascal van for her daughter’s wedding – her late father drove one. I eventually tracked one down (in Bedford!). Only local radio can have such a direct impact on people’s lives.”

Worst moment “I was roped in to do BBC Somerset’s pantomime in aid of Children in Need. I had to sing Ladies’ Night by Kool and the Gang, dressed as an ugly sister. It wasn’t quite how I’d envisaged my BBC career panning out!

Off air “I live centrally in Bristol, I’m a cocktail enthusiast, and I love disco, funk and soul. I’m a big football fan, and also a politics geek – I got very excited when the general election was announced!”

First radio memory “As a kid, I vividly remember listening in the car to the Bush and Troy morning crew on GWR.”

Favourite broadcasters “Kenny Everett in the 70s – there won’t be anyone quite like him again, for creative content and production. A couple of years ago, I produced a compilation of clips from his Radio Bristol shows, made during the summer of 1971 after he’d been sacked from Radio 1. It’s still available on BBC Sounds – When Kenny Came to Bristol. Steve Wright on Radio 1 in the 80s was another creative radio pioneer. And Steve Allen on LBC – he has me in stitches!”

Ambition “To present a weekday show. I’d love to do talk radio, with phone-ins – and maybe a disco, funk and soul show on a Saturday night. Perhaps we could call it the Brexit and Boogie show?”

Dream job “I was that little boy, pretending to be a radio presenter in his bedroom! So I’ll be happy to always be on the radio, in some shape or form.”

Secret skills “I love James Bond movies, and can tell you the order/year they were released, which actor played Bond, etc... Also, the order/dates of all the UK prime ministers, US presidents, Formula One winners, Premier League title holders... It’s just how my mind works!” CAROLINE MEYER

BBC Radio Ulster

Face behind the voice

James Hanson BBC Radio Bristol

Age 27

Current job Presents the Saturday morning show on BBC Radio Bristol (9am). Also a reporter on weekday breakfast show.

CV Born in Bristol, brought up in Nailsey, Somerset. Studied politics at the University of Leeds, where he did student radio. Went to BBC Somerset to do work experience after finishing uni – after two weeks he was reading the travel! Moved to BBC Radio Bristol in 2016 as a reporter, then Saturday lunchtime host in January 2018. Presenter of the Saturday morning show since August last year.

Best moment “A listener was trying to find a vintage Bedford Rascal van for her daughter’s wedding – her late father drove one. I eventually tracked one down (in Bedford!). Only local radio can have such a direct impact on people’s lives.”

Worst moment “I was roped in to do BBC Somerset’s pantomime in aid of Children in Need. I had to sing Ladies’ Night by Kool and the Gang, dressed as an ugly sister. It wasn’t quite how I’d envisaged my BBC career panning out!”

Off air “I live centrally in Bristol, I’m a cocktail enthusiast, and I love disco, funk and soul. I’m a big football fan, and also a politics geek – I got very excited when the general election was announced!”

First radio memory “As a kid, I vividly remember listening in the car to the Bush and Troy morning crew on GWR.”

Favourite broadcasters “Kenny Everett in the 70s – there won’t be anyone quite like him again, for creative content and production. A couple of years ago, I produced a compilation of clips from his Radio Bristol shows, made during the summer of 1971 after he’d been sacked from Radio 1. It’s still available on BBC Sounds – When Kenny Came to Bristol. Steve Wright on Radio 1 in the 80s was another creative radio pioneer. And Steve Allen on LBC – he has me in stitches!”

Ambition “To present a weekday show. I’d love to do talk radio, with phone-ins – and maybe a disco, funk and soul show on a Saturday night. Perhaps we could call it the Brexit and Boogie show?”

Dream job “I was that little boy, pretending to be a radio presenter in his bedroom! So I’ll be happy to always be on the radio, in some shape or form.”

Secret skills “I love James Bond movies, and can tell you the order/year they were released, which actor played Bond, etc... Also, the order/dates of all the UK prime ministers, US presidents, Formula One winners, Premier League title holders... It’s just how my mind works!”

BBC Radio Wales

Face behind the voice

James Hanson BBC Radio Bristol

Age 27

Current job Presents the Saturday morning show on BBC Radio Bristol (9am). Also a reporter on weekday breakfast show.

CV Born in Bristol, brought up in Nailsey, Somerset. Studied politics at the University of Leeds, where he did student radio. Went to BBC Somerset to do work experience after finishing uni – after two weeks he was reading the travel! Moved to BBC Radio Bristol in 2016 as a reporter, then Saturday lunchtime host in January 2018. Presenter of the Saturday morning show since August last year.

Best moment “A listener was trying to find a vintage Bedford Rascal van for her daughter’s wedding – her late father drove one. I eventually tracked one down (in Bedford!). Only local radio can have such a direct impact on people’s lives.”

Worst moment “I was roped in to do BBC Somerset’s pantomime in aid of Children in Need. I had to sing Ladies’ Night by Kool and the Gang, dressed as an ugly sister. It wasn’t quite how I’d envisaged my BBC career panning out!

Off air “I live centrally in Bristol, I’m a cocktail enthusiast, and I love disco, funk and soul. I’m a big football fan, and also a politics geek – I got very excited when the general election was announced!”

First radio memory “As a kid, I vividly remember listening in the car to the Bush and Troy morning crew on GWR.”

Favourite broadcasters “Kenny Everett in the 70s – there won’t be anyone quite like him again, for creative content and production. A couple of years ago, I produced a compilation of clips from his Radio Bristol shows, made during the summer of 1971 after he’d been sacked from Radio 1. It’s still available on BBC Sounds – When Kenny Came to Bristol. Steve Wright on Radio 1 in the 80s was another creative radio pioneer. And Steve Allen on LBC – he has me in stitches!”

Ambition “To present a weekday show. I’d love to do talk radio, with phone-ins – and maybe a disco, funk and soul show on a Saturday night. Perhaps we could call it the Brexit and Boogie show?”

Dream job “I was that little boy, pretending to be a radio presenter in his bedroom! So I’ll be happy to always be on the radio, in some shape or form.”

Secret skills “I love James Bond movies, and can tell you the order/year they were released, which actor played Bond, etc... Also, the order/dates of all the UK prime ministers, US presidents, Formula One winners, Premier League title holders... It’s just how my mind works!” CAROLINE MEYER

Unlock tax-free cash from your home

If you're over 55, equity release could be a way of unlocking some of the tax-free cash that's tied up in your home, but the first thing to work out is whether equity release is actually right for you – if it isn't, we'll tell you...

If it is, our fully qualified, specialist equity release advisers take the time to understand your needs, ensuring they recommend the right plan for you. We'll search the product range we have expertly created, guided by Key's 20 years' experience as one of the market leaders and their unique insight from helping over 1 million people decide if Equity Release is right for them. You can be confident we'll find a plan that suits you – and we will never charge a fee for our advice.

Who can take out equity release?

There are no affordability checks to consider with equity release, so if you are over 55 and have a property worth over £70,000, you may be able to take out equity release.

Do I still own my own home?

Yes. With our plans you will always own your own home, plus all our plans are approved by the Equity Release Council and come with the no negative equity guarantee, meaning you'll never owe more than your home's worth.

Can we still leave our children an inheritance?

Yes. With some Key Equity Release plans you can guarantee a set percentage of your home's future value for you to pass on in your will.

What else should I consider?

You should always think carefully before securing a loan against your home.

Equity release will reduce the value of your estate and may affect your entitlement to means-tested benefits. Taking out an equity release plan is a big step, so Key Equity Release always encourages people to discuss plans with family. Key Equity Release plans involve a lifetime mortgage, the most popular form of equity release, this is a loan secured against your home.

Are there any monthly repayments?

No, with Key Equity Release plans there is no need to make monthly repayments, unless you want to, as the loan plus roll-up interest is repaid when you pass away or enter long-term care.

How could equity release help me?

- It can pay for home or garden improvements, readying your home for later life.
- Clear existing credit cards or debts or pay off an existing mortgage.
- Ease money worries, giving you a boost to your retirement finances.
- Help loved ones with a financial gift.
- Realise your dreams – from travel to new cars or other treats.

What our customers say

First class service

“ One phone call and a visit has given us the ability to pay off our existing mortgage along with extra cash to spend on home improvements and treats for ourselves. It's eased our outgoings and made life a little more comfortable. There was no pressure at all. Key arranged everything and took the stress away by making things clear and giving us the ability to make the right choice. ”

Angela B

Why choose Key?

- For over 20 years, Key's trusted, award-winning service has helped over 1 million people decide whether equity release is right for them.
- We'll always guide you through the options available to you and, if equity release isn't right for you, we'll tell you.
- There's no pressure to go ahead. Your adviser will give you all the information you need about equity release for you to make an informed decision, in your own time.
- All of our advice is completely free of charge.

Smart move? You decide...

Smart meters are getting smarter, so now could be the time to get one installed, says Paul Lewis

THE MOMENT MAY SOON be here to say “yes” to a smart energy meter. This device sends data to your supplier so it knows exactly how much electricity and gas you use every half hour. That means you can have bills that are accurate instead of estimated. Your usage is also displayed on a small device called an In Home Display (IHD), which shows in real time how much energy you are using and what it costs. The Government hopes it will encourage people to use less.

In future, smart meters will allow what are called time-of-use tariffs to allow suppliers to charge more at peak times and less when demand is low. That should make it cheaper, for example, to charge an electric car overnight. It could also mean that it is not possible to charge a car when demand is heavy. These tariffs could also mean that cooking breakfast before work will be more expensive than cooking it mid-morning.

Two developments have tipped the balance towards accepting a smart meter. First, the only meters that should now be fitted are second generation – called SMETS2. They can switch from one supplier to another without losing their smart functionality. The older SMETS1 meters did not allow this and the latest figures up to the end of September show that more than three million of those fitted have now gone “dumb”. In other words, they still have to be read manually by the householder or a meter reader. Upgrading them to allow switching is still in a trial phase. If you do decide to have a smart meter, check if it is SMETS2 and say no if it isn’t.

Secondly, many suppliers now offer their cheapest tariffs only to people who have a smart meter or cannot have one for technical reasons. They exclude those who refuse one. These exclusive smart meter tariffs are allowed by the regulator Ofgem.

Many people are still suspicious of smart meters and the claims made for them. I am one of them. The £13.5 billion programme will benefit energy suppliers and network operators more than customers and they may not pass the savings on.

Paul Lewis presents Money Box on Radio 4

LASTING POWERS OF ATTORNEY – ONLY £399* pp

There may come a time when you are unable to make decisions for yourself, maybe through illness or injury. If that were to happen, who would make decisions about your care or manage your finances? It’s important you make your wishes clear in a legal document known as a Lasting Power of Attorney (LPA).

There are two types of LPA – one that covers your health and welfare, and one that covers your property and financial affairs.

A health and welfare LPA deals with your medical care and can only be used once you become unable to make decisions for yourself.

A property and financial affairs LPA deals with financial matters, and can also be used while you still have full mental capacity, for example if you become frail or immobile.

If you’re married and your partner becomes unable to make decisions, marriage does not give you the authority to make decisions on their behalf – you will only be able to do this if you’re formally appointed as an attorney.

Running for Jo

Former politician Tom Watson was too unfit to take part in a fun run in memory of his friend, the murdered MP Jo Cox. Then he shed eight stone...

THE THIRD ANNUAL RunForJo – set up in memory of my friend and colleague, the late MP Jo Cox – took place on Sunday 23 June, 2019 at Oakwell Hall and Country Park, in her former constituency of Batley and Spennings in West Yorkshire. My lack of fitness had prevented me from taking part in the two previous events (I couldn't have even walked the 2.5-km family fun run, never mind jogged it) but, this time around, eight stone lighter than my 22 stone of two years earlier, I was delighted to enrol. It was a case of being more willing than ready, though. I had never tackled an organised run in my life, so had no idea how I'd fare. I would, however, have my very own running mate to spur me on.

"Dad, can I do the RunForJo with you?" Saoirse had asked a few weeks previously, keen to get involved in this worthy event.

"Of course you can," I replied. "You can be my pacemaker."

I had to really steel myself as I drove through Jo's home town of Batley that morning, with both Saoirse and Malachy in the car (my son had come along to offer moral support). In 2015 I'd campaigned with Jo on those very streets and doorsteps, when she was first running for Parliament. This constituency was by no means a nailed-on hold for Labour but, as we visited community centres and chatted with residents, I was convinced that this impressive young woman was the ideal candidate. Highly intelligent, compassionate and in possession of a sunny disposition, Jo attracted a string of admirers wherever she went.

"Jo will go far," I remember thinking as I watched her campaigning that day, winning over locals with her effortless charm. A natural-born parliamentarian...

In the ensuing general election, Labour held the Batley and Spennings seat, with Jo gaining an increased majority. It was nothing less than she deserved, I told her when I rang to offer my congratulations.

RUNNING WELL

Tom Watson with his daughter Saoirse in 2019, snapped in action by son Malachy

Just over a year later this wonderful human being was dead, murdered by a right-wing extremist during her constituency surgery in Birstall. It was the worst day of my political life.

Arriving at Oakwell Park that Sunday morning, I felt supercharged with emotion. The previous afternoon, on what would have been her 45th birthday, I'd organised a Great Get Together picnic at Dartmouth Park in West Bromwich, where a large group of us, including fellow MP Liam Byrne, celebrated Jo's life and work (hundreds of similar events in her name were taking place across the UK, too).

While it had been an inspiring, uplifting occasion, it made me realise how much Jo was missed, not just by her friends and family, but by the world of politics. In her maiden speech to Parliament, she’d maintained that “we have more in common than that which divides us”. Those words had become more powerful than ever before.

Experiencing the carnival atmosphere at the RunForJo event helped lift my spirits, though. Everywhere I turned people were beaming with happiness and the organisers laid on an array of street food and kids’ entertainers. Jo’s sister Kim, a personal trainer, even led a pre-race warm-up on the main field, encouraging us all to move our bodies to some cheesy 80s tunes. Malachy stood on the perimeter, pointing and laughing as he watched his dad and sister throwing some serious shapes.

The family run started at 11am. It wasn’t easy, by any stretch – the ground was boggy and much of the route was uphill – but any discomfort I felt was outweighed by a deep sense of pride. For the first time in my life I was taking part in a community run and buzzed from all the camaraderie. Best of all, I found myself jogging alongside my beloved daughter, sharing in that fun, fresh air and freedom that only outdoor activity could give you. I only wished I’d done this a decade earlier, of course – all those wasted years I’d spent slumped on the sofa slurping cola – but this was not the time for any lingering regret.

That was then, Tom, I thought to myself as I jogged past Oakwell Hall. This is now.

I was pleasantly surprised with my performance (no wheezes, no pit-stops) and, as Saoirse and I crossed the finishing line together, holding hands, I found myself overcome with emotion. I shed a tear or two, I’m not ashamed to admit it.

Within days, I’d printed and framed that snapshot, and put it on my House of Commons office desk, pride of place. The photo wasn’t just a memento of how far I’d come on my weight-loss journey, though. Taken by my son, and featuring my daughter, it was also a lasting reminder of why I’d embarked upon it in the first place.

Tom Watson is on BBC Breakfast (3 January BBC1) and talking to Jeremy Vine (New Year’s Eve Radio 2) and to Adrian Chiles (3 January Radio 5 Live)

Memento of Seven Worlds

Glorious images from the Attenborough series

SEVEN WORLDS, ONE PLANET JONNY KEELING, SCOTT ALEXANDER AND DAVID ATTENBOROUGH

The latest epic series from the BBC’s Natural History Unit had all the hallmarks of another classic: cutting-edge cinematography, David Attenborough’s reassuring narration, and a resounding message about humanity’s impact on the natural world. If you want to relive it all, you’re in luck: the show’s producers, Jonny Keeling and Scott Alexander, have collected the stories showcased in the series in a book of the same name (£22.50, incl p&p), with a foreword by David Attenborough, and hundreds of full stunning colour images.

SECRET SERVICE TOM BRADBY

ITV News at Ten’s Tom Bradby knows a little about leading a double life: he’s been a reporter and news anchor for the best part of 30 years, but he’s been a novelist for almost as long – his debut, Shadow Dancer, was published in 1998 (he also penned the script for the 2012 big-screen adaptation, starring Andrea Riseborough). Secret Service (pbk £7.99, plus £1.50 p&p) features a protagonist who has her own dual existence: unbeknown to her friends and family, Kate Henderson is an MI6 agent – and she’s unearthed a vital piece of intelligence that threatens to bring down the Government.

THE LIFE SCIENTIFIC: INVENTORS ANNA BUCKLEY
The Life Scientific
Tuesday 9am Radio 4

This is the second instalment of in-their-own-words profiles from the team behind Radio 4’s The Life Scientific, collated and edited by series producer Anna Buckley. The first was Explorers; now it’s the turn of Inventors (£17.50, incl p&p), whom Buckley describes as “the unsung heroes of contemporary Britain”. Alongside those whose work you may have heard of – Ian Wilmut, for example, who led the team behind Dolly the sheep, the world’s first cloned adult mammal – are some of those lesser-known creators, finally given their dues, such as Professor Wendy Hall, whose work helped create the World Wide Web. HANNAH SHADDOCK

DON'T LEAVE IT ANOTHER YEAR TO SECURE YOUR FUNERAL PLAN!

With costs rising over the years, 910,000 people have already made the decision to plan their funerals in advance with Dignity - will you?

It's no secret that in recent years funeral costs have risen with the average cost in 2018 at £4,045, up from £3,087 in 2012† and projected to rise to almost £5,757 by 2026††. That's an increase of 31% in just six years.

For this reason, many people are looking to plan ahead, putting some money aside to shield their loved ones from a financial burden at the worst time.

There are things to consider when choosing a funeral plan, of course. Not all plans offer the same benefits and certainly not all providers are the same, so make sure you check before you buy.

FACTORS YOU SHOULD CONSIDER WHEN CHOOSING THE RIGHT FUNERAL PLAN

- Check that the plan provider is registered with a professional body like the Funeral Planning Authority (FPA), who monitor the conduct of their registered providers. Check the list of registered FPA providers at: funeralplanningauthority.co.uk

- Check all guarantees. Find out what's covered – and what's not. When little is guaranteed, there is a real chance your loved ones might have to pay for a significant shortfall
- Ask providers specifically whether third party costs such as the cremation fee and the minister's fee are guaranteed, or if there is a contribution paid towards this, how much it is and whether it rises with inflation
- Ask the provider how your money will be looked after, and find out the financial health of any trust fund. Make sure if anything happens to your funeral plan provider, your money will be protected.

WHY DIGNITY?

Radio Times has partnered with Dignity to bring you a funeral plan that you can trust. With a Funeral Plan from Dignity, once paid for, you will never pay more for the services included in the plan. Furthermore, a Funeral Plan from Dignity can make all the difference to the way you and your loved ones are looked after when the times comes as your wishes will be respected and your loved ones will get all the support they need.

Word of the Week – apricity

Increase your word power with Countdown's lexicographer

If ever there was a word that needed rescuing from obscurity, it's this.

Apricity is simply the warmth of the sun on a chilly day. It is a sibling of the word "apricate", meaning to bask in the sun. Both probably come from the Latin aperire,

there is no shared history with

"apricot", which has a different Latin heritage in malum praecoquum, "early-ripening fruit".

The first experience of apricity on a winter's day is surely one to celebrate.

LETTER OF THE WEEK

My Slow TV escape

Robbie Cumming (far left) and Shanaz Gulzar

I'm grateful to BBC4 for two recent short series of slow television – Canal Boat Diaries with Robbie Cumming, and the four Yorkshire Walks with Shanaz Gulzar. I am now housebound and can no longer walk across a moor or travel the canals, and the glorious countryside views gave me so much pleasure. It's years since I walked on a beach, or even heard sheep, and 50 years since I went through the Harecastle Tunnel on the Trent and Mersey Canal.

Just the quietness of the Yorkshire moor, the birds, or the sound of a fast-flowing stream are things I can no longer experience for myself, so thank you, thank you, thank you.

NO ACTION REPLAYS?

Sports Personality of the Year (15 December BBC1) had a worthy overall winner in Ben Stokes and some great award winners and nominees, all of whom showed rather more humility than the presenters. But why, when we have two hours to review an entire sporting year, do we have to sit through songs by Lewis Capaldi and Emeli Sandé, a kids' dance routine and constant updates on a charity bike ride? Imagine if a major music awards event was interrupted by sports bulletins.

There was no footage, either, from the Champions League final, which featured two English clubs! Too much style and not enough substance, I'm afraid.

David Cuffley Norwich, Norfolk

FINALE
Giri/Haji's balletic conclusion

WORSLEY AT HER BEST

I was thrilled to see two things that I enjoy on TV: Lucy Worsley and insights into folk customs, in this case Christmas carols (in December BBC4).

She's a brilliant, entertaining and enthusiastic presenter, who really gets the story across and makes history accessible. She also isn't afraid to throw herself into things or look a bit dense. It was educational and fun to watch.

Jennifer Shelden Orpington, Kent

FEARLESS

WHAT A GREAT ENDING

When it's time to lavish every possible award for TV drama on the stupendous Giri/Haji (BBC2), may I ask that someone of taste allots a special award to the rooftop ballet in the last episode? For a few dreamlike minutes, we were swept up in a dance of characters caught up in love and loss, whirling to a lovely score [by Adrian Johnston], and ending with a resolution that had evaded all of them throughout this most original of series. Each time I watched them swirl in and out of their pain and happiness I was moved to tears. Writers, actors, choreographers, producers and directors brought something into our lives that will endure for years. Thank you, everyone.

Denis MacEoin Newcastle upon Tyne
The choreographer of the sequence was Liam Steel, who says: "The response has been astonishing. Huge credit must go to writer Joe Barton, for having the idea, and to

SPLENDOR OF GLENDA

Elizabeth Is Missing (15 December BBC1) marked the much-heralded return of Glenda Jackson to TV drama. It was heartbreaking to watch her character Maud as she struggled to cope with her dementia and her best friend's disappearance. There were touching moments throughout as well as laugh-out-loud scenes, such as when a condescending police officer offers to drive Maud home and she responds: "I wouldn't trust you to drive me home if you were Stirling Moss."

It was a real acting masterclass from Jackson. Her character was by turns whimsical, lovable, stubborn, irascible and funny.

Stephen McCarthy Glasgow

...Well, that's it, then. Winner of best performance in a TV drama goes to Glenda Jackson in Elizabeth Is Missing. What an acting tour de force and a lesson to aspiring performers from an actor at the top of her game. The nuances and subtleties of her portrayal of Maud were a delight to watch. She encapsulated the darkness of dementia and the moments of clarity so well.

Congratulations to all concerned with the production and commiseration to any other performers who might have had designs on the award. If Jackson doesn't win it, there's no justice.

John Fox Brierley Hill, West Midlands

...Glenda Jackson in Elizabeth Is Missing: wow! Utterly stunning, captivating, subtle, astonishing... in all honesty words fail me. I was so engaged, it kept me awake that night. Having read the book, I couldn't imagine it being adequately transferred to the small screen in a limited amount of time, but it was superb. Thank you so much. More of this calibre

TOUR DE FORCE

Glenda Jackson's triumphant return to TV drama

STRICTLY PERFECTION

The latest series of Strictly Come Dancing (BBC1) was better than ever. Apart from the competitors, the production team and hosts are amazing, as are Dave Arch and his band. If only the BBC would give the latter a slot on one occasion, instead of one of the celebrity singers, as they are so talented.

director Julian Farino, for creating a world in which the dance could sit comfortably while still being a surprise. Everyone knew it was a risk, but one worth taking – to be given the responsibility of bringing it to life was both a privilege and terrifying challenge. The only thing I had as a starting point was the script; I hadn't seen any filming or met any of the actors. I had no idea if they would go with what I was asking of them, but they embraced it. The overriding response has been how moving it was, which is down to the conviction and commitment of those actors.

"The fact that many of the people who responded so positively would never normally go to see dance, or would not have thought that they could be moved by it, is a tribute to all those who helped to create it. I am so proud to have been involved, and hope that it has opened doors for other writers and producers, to not underestimate what audiences will respond to."

We can only hope that the BBC keeps a firm grip on Strictly, which must not be allowed to go the same way as Bake Off. We can well do without the tedious commercials that plague so many other programmes these days!

Bob Kingsland Brownshill, Gloucestershire

...The BBC, by immediately including the Strictly final results in their news headlines, showed utter disregard for users of their iPlayer service who might want to catch up with the programme later.

Shame on you, BBC!
Ginny White Butlers Marston, Warwickshire

PURE SORCERY

Like a great many lovers of Gilbert & Sullivan, I was amused to see that the address of the new office block used for the candidates' interviews in The Apprentice (11 December BBC1) is 70 St Mary Axe – pronounced "Simmery Axe" locally. Number 70 of that thoroughfare is the address, in the G&S opera The Sorcerer, of the highly respectable family firm of sorcerers. ("Penny curses in great demand, especially on Saturday nights!") Perhaps that's why it was chosen for the hellish interviews the poor wee lambs go through!

ARDAL O'HANLON

'My kids love to scoff at me'

The Death in Paradise star likes watching football – on his phone...

What have you been watching?
I loved The Virtues, with Stephen Graham, I thought it was great. And I wanted The Capture to go on for ever, even though it's ludicrous.

Do you like ludicrous TV?
Everything I watch is ludicrous, even gritty dramas, because they're made up. Some people say Death in Paradise is too lightweight, too contrived – but everything is contrived! You could spend days analysing the plotoles in Line of Duty, but that doesn't diminish its entertainment value.

Where are you watching?
In our lovely, cosy but modest semidetached 1930s house, in south Dublin.

Are the walls festooned with souvenirs of your career?
I have one souvenir from Father Ted – a painting that hung on the wall at Craggy Island. I nicked it on the last day. In the downstairs loo there's a Radio Times cover I did. My wife stuck it there, she has a quirky taste in art and furniture. Lamps are one of her many specialities.

Are sofas one of her specialities?
Yes! Our sofa is old, it belonged to her dad, but she reupholstered it in purple and lime green. Though there are some darker patches – we have two golden retrievers.

Do the family pile on it together?
It's hard to get us all in front of the telly at the same time – my two daughters are students, so they're coming and going. The last thing that got us all together was Freaks and Geeks, on Netflix. It's a series set in a high school and it's brilliant. We also watch movies. Give me a spare moment and I'll watch a movie. I want to see everything that was ever made.

What's the best movie you've seen recently?
Not The Irishman.
I was hugely disappointed. It was a travesty, the CGI is so misguided – why didn't Martin Scorsese cast younger actors? Robert De Niro plays a young hitman; his face looks OK, but his body is aged. It just doesn't ring true. But Marriage Story, with Scarlett Johansson and Adam Driver, was brilliant. I found it incredibly moving and funny.

Did you watch it with your wife?
No – she doesn't like the entitled New York milieu, people whose lives are fabulous.

Do you have a giant TV set?
We don't. Sometimes I like to watch small on my phone. My favourite time of the weekend is watching Leeds United on my phone.

Can you watch your phone and a show on the TV at the same time?
I can't, but my son does that. He's 17 and watches seven devices at the same time, it's incredible. My admiration for teenagers is endless.

Do you watch things with him?
One night, we were watching Knocked Up with my son, who was about 15 at the time, and there was an incredibly graphic sex scene. My wife was crawling under the couch, going, "Do something!" and my son says, "Mum, don't be such a prude." Kids are much more comfortable with that sort of thing now.

Are your children comfortable seeing Dad on the television?
They do like to watch Death in Paradise, but it's more to scoff at me. They watch it just so they can humiliate me, laugh at the clothes I'm wearing. It's very grounding.

Are you sad to be leaving Death in Paradise?
It was hugely enjoyable, four summers in Guadeloupe and at least 24 murders – all of which I solved! I loved the island and the people. But it's a tough gig, that's why everyone stops eventually. All good things really do have to come to an end. MICHAEL HODGES

NEW YEAR, NEW HOLIDAY HOT SPOTS

DESTINATIONS FOR 2020

If you're looking for dazzling destinations to inspire your holiday plans, here are RT's travel expert Claire Webb's 20 for 2020

SOME 18 MILLION Brits visited Spain in 2017 and 2018, but many of us end up doing the same old thing in the same sort of place. If you're looking to expand your horizons in 2020, however, the following pages will provide plenty to inspire you – starting with the often-overlooked Spanish gem of Valencia.

We've included some under-the-radar cities and regions, such as delightful Gdansk ("Poland's Amsterdam") and Calabria, one of Italy's best-kept secrets.

There are also a few countries where tourists were a rare sight until recently, such as North Macedonia – one of the last unexplored corners of Europe – and Uzbekistan. When I visited Uzbekistan in 2017, it involved several trips to the embassy in west London. Now UK travellers don't need a visa and its spellbinding Silk Road cities are enjoying a renaissance thanks to the sudden influx of travellers.

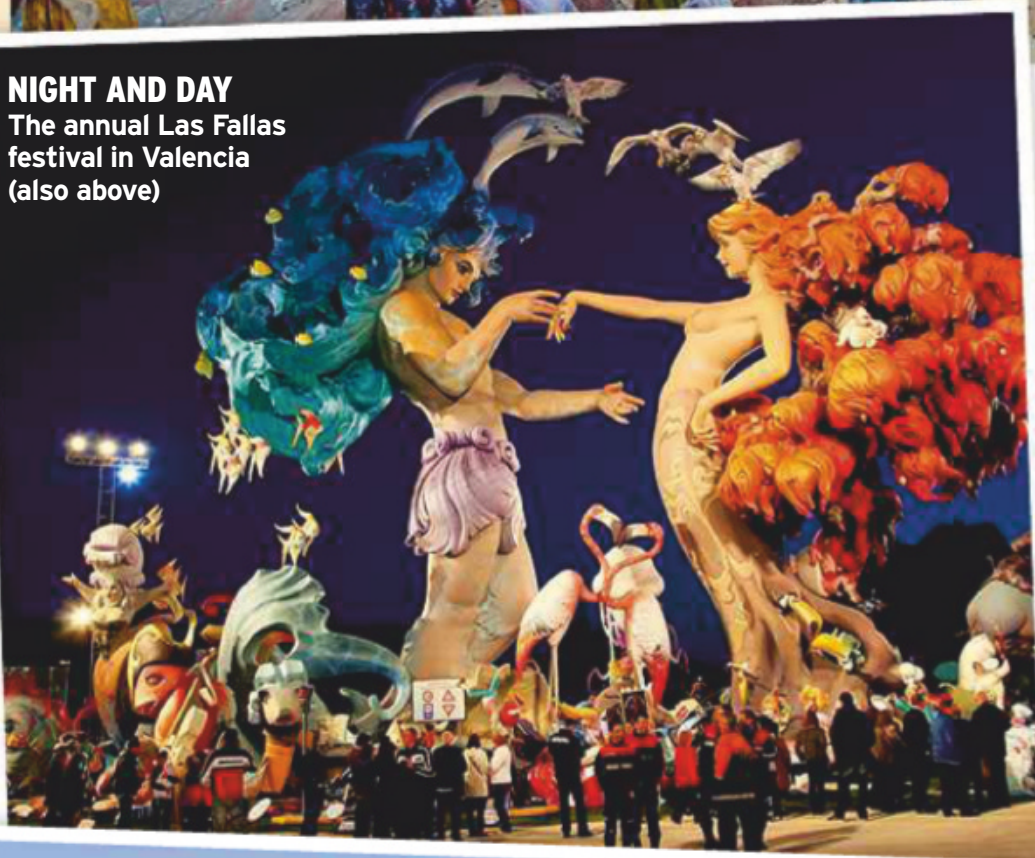

If that sounds a little adventurous, how about a cultural break? Galway and Marrakesh have both been crowned Capitals of Culture, while a new art gallery is opening in Paris's old stock exchange in April. For glorious scenery, head to Madeira or Germany's gorgeous Rhine Gorge.

Finally, you'll find a handful of far-flung bucket-list destinations, such as regal Rajasthan and laid-back Vancouver, which is regularly ranked as North America's most liveable city. Happy travels!

Come to the carnival in Spain

1 FIESTA FUN IN VALENCIA

Move over, Barcelona. Spain's third-biggest city ticks a lot of the same boxes as its Catalan cousin: a seductive old town, otherworldly architecture, a fabulous food market and great beaches. Its trump card? It only gets crowded once a year, during its riotous religious festival, Las Fallas.

Valencia's historic quarter, Barrio del Carmen, dates back 1,000 years and is still the city's coolest neighbourhood, with cobbled lanes packed with hip boutiques, stylish restaurants, bohemian cafés and cocktail bars. Its grandest medieval building is the Gothic Silk Exchange, which has twisting columns and impudent gargoyles, while the best view in town is from the top of the 13th-century Cathedral's tower. Down below, in its shadowy recesses, there's a demonic painting by Goya and a jewelled cup that's said to be the Holy Grail.

In mid-March, the square next to the cathedral is the stage for a unique ceremony: Valencians in traditional dress decorate a giant effigy of the Virgin Mary with thousands of flowers. It's part of Las Fallas, Valencia's answer to carnival – five days of fireworks, street parties and processions to celebrate the arrival of spring. Hundreds of satirical papier-mâché effigies are paraded through the streets and the fiesta ends with an all-nighter: all the puppets are burnt except for the best, which is preserved in the Fallas Museum.

Unesco has added Las Fallas to its "Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity" list, and Valencia is also set to be crowned World Design Capital in 2022. While it might not have Gaudí's fantastical creations, it has a futuristic cultural quarter courtesy of local boy Santiago Calatrava. The City of Arts and Sciences has a spaceship-like opera house, an Imax cinema resembling a giant eye, a science museum like a whale's skeleton and an aquarium that looks like a water lily.

There's plenty to satisfy foodies, as well. Valencia is the birthplace of paella, which is traditionally made with rabbit and chicken, and sometimes duck and snails. The central market is an art nouveau temple to food, where you can try horchata – a milky drink made with tiger nuts – and admire the region's bountiful produce. In 2020, the city is getting its first gourmet food hall, where hungry visitors will be able to sample Valencian and Mediterranean dishes.

Valencia sits on Spain's sunny east coast, gazing across the Balearic Sea to Ibiza, and its golden beaches are the place to be in the summer months. Cruise ships dock next to the marina, while restaurants line Las Arenas beach, including La Pepica, where Ernest Hemingway enjoyed paella.

2 MUSEUMS OF MARRAKESH

Morocco's Red City will be Africa's first Capital of Culture in 2020. The latest arty destination is the Museum of African Contemporary Art Al Maaden, which displays the work of Moroccan artists. Make time, too, for Marrakesh's 11th-century medina and Jemaa el-Fnaa square, where dancers and musicians gather at sunset.

3 BEAUTY OF GEORGIA

Russia's small southern neighbour has much to offer. Georgia is home to the highest mountain range in Europe and the scenic Georgian Military Highway. It claims to be the birthplace of wine and many vineyards still use traditional methods. Its cuisine blends Mediterranean, Persian and Turkish flavours. Marvel at cave monasteries and medieval castles, and explore the Old Town in the capital, Tbilisi.

4 THE PICTURE-PERFECT MALDIVES

Popular with honeymooners and Instagrammers, this Indian Ocean island nation now has more than 150 resorts, with 20 new hotels in 2019 alone. You can choose between big-name luxury brands and locally owned, family-friendly and adult-only venues. There are resorts where guests can sleep on nets hovering over the ocean, dine in a treetop restaurant or snorkel in a coral sculpture garden. Many also have interesting sustainable initiatives.

5 GOTHIC GDANSK

Poland's northern port is as picturesque as Krakow but attracts a fraction of the footfall. As well as gabled townhouses and a rainbow harbour, there's a gargantuan Gothic brick church, a superb Second World War museum and craft beer aplenty. The biggest event of the year is in the summer: 750-year-old St Dominic's Fair, one of Europe's largest markets. Thanks to its location on a Baltic bay, both winters and summers are gentler than in Poland's inland cities.

6 BASK IN BALMY MADEIRA

Portugal's Atlantic outpost was recently voted the best island destination in the world for the fifth consecutive year at the World Travel Awards, not bad for somewhere that doesn't have any natural golden beaches. There are a few black-sand beaches that you can sunbathe on, or you can hike over rugged peaks, explore its beautifully manicured gardens and mooch in the old lanes and museums of Funchal.

Vancouver rivals Los Angeles for film and TV locations – but that’s not the only reason to visit this sophisticated city

7 SPOT THE STARS IN VANCOUVER

When actor George Clooney (below) showed up unexpectedly at a Japanese restaurant in Vancouver’s Downtown area, he didn’t get special treatment. No tables were available, so he perched on a stool at the sushi bar with the other customers.

“Restaurants are very discreet, which is why celebrities love it here,” I’m told when I inquire about A-lister hotspots in the city. “And so are we – we don’t go all fangirl if we spot a celebrity.”

In the past decade, famous actors have become a common sight in Vancouver, thanks to its booming film and TV industry. More and more producers are being lured to “Hollywood North” by tax incentives, the pristine backdrops on its doorstep and its gentle climate. Thanks to its perch on the Pacific Coast, Vancouver enjoys mild, if wet, weather year-round.

JUST RELAX
George Clooney loves laidback Vancouver

In some ways, Vancouver has a lot in common with Los Angeles. It’s a city blessed with rugged good looks – mighty peaks dwarf the glittering skyscrapers – as well as a down-to-earth, outdoorsy disposition. At weekends, people like to run, bike, hike and ski. The dress code is strictly casual, whether you’re popping out for a doughnut or have reserved a table at a fashionable restaurant.

When I visit – a stopover en route to the Yukon, Canada’s wild northwest – I put this to the test. I show up at Clooney’s Japanese restaurant (Minami, in trendy Yaletown) in a plane-crumpled pair of jeans and trainers on a busy Friday night, and nobody bats an eyelid. In fact, I get star treatment: a friendly waitress finds me a spot at the sushi bar, so I, too, get to watch chefs blow-torching slivers of salmon and sculpting seaweed into edible works of art.

While the city’s food scene might not be as famous as LA’s, it’s quietly spectacular. Thanks to a diverse population – around a quarter are of East Asian descent – you’re particularly spoilt for choice when it comes to Asian restaurants. They say it has North America’s most authentic Chinese food, there are more than 650 sushi restaurants, and queues snake out of ramen

MADE IN VANCOUVER

FIFTY SHADES OF GREY

Vancouver doubled for Seattle in all the films based on EL James’s popular erotic novels.

IT'S A GAS
A traditional trolley bus in Gastown

CANADA'S FINEST
Great food, mountains, water – Vancouver has something for everyone

Dessert is a cloud-like doughnut, still piping hot from Lee's Donuts' fryer. While I try not to lick the icing off my fingers, Nadia explains that doughnuts are one of Vancouver's favourite treats and that the comic actor Seth Rogen is a loyal customer of Lee's. He recently brought US celebrity chef David Chang here for an episode of the Netflix series Breakfast, Lunch & Dinner.

While Vancouver's food scene comes a respectable second to LA's, the Canadian city has the edge on the traffic-choked City of Angels when it comes to being environmentally green. Back in 2011, the city council declared that Vancouver would be the world's most eco-friendly city by 2020. For visitors, the benefits of its green action plan are user-friendly public transport, a bike share scheme and a network of separated, interconnected bike lanes.

ON MY FINAL morning, I decide to explore by bike, beginning in Gastown, the city's oldest neighbourhood. Nowadays its Victorian brick buildings are home to boutiques, galleries, cocktail bars and restaurants. Next door is the sail-shaped cruise terminal Canada Place, where I join the Seaside Greenway – a 17-mile path that skirts the Downtown peninsula. Across the water, the North Shore's hulking peaks are wrapped in a scarf of fluffy cloud and high-rises glitter in the sun. It's a Sunday, so the greenway is awash with joggers, bikes and walkers savouring the bracing sea air and glorious vista.

Before long, I'm whizzing around Stanley Park, a thousand acres of thick forest that juts out from the Downtown peninsula. It's one of North America's biggest urban parks and the world's best, according to TripAdvisor users. Cycling around this evergreen oasis – with centuries'-old Douglas fir and Bigleaf maple trees and a weatherbeaten cliff on one side, and sparkling seascapes on the other – it's hard to believe I'm only ten minutes from the city centre.

When Kate Winslet filmed the thriller The Mountain between Us in Vancouver, she fell in love. "I was so happy to be there and so sad to leave," she gushed at the premiere. "Truly, I pine for it. I pine for Honey Doughnuts in Deep Cove. And the nature – its incredible, wild, wonderful nature." By the time I leave, I know exactly how she feels.

shops. The city's culinary mecca is the Public Market, which I get to via a tugboat that bobs from Downtown – Vancouver's Manhattan – to Granville Island. Originally an industrial area, Granville's warehouses now also house artisan shops, a microbrewery and craft distilleries.

I've signed up for a gourmet walking tour and the first stop is a deli-bistro where I try Vancouver-style fish and chips: battered Arctic char, apple and fennel slaw, fries with chilli salt, and a glass of pinot gris from Okanagan – British Columbia's Napa Valley. "It has notes of ripe pear, apricot and apple. Exactly what you look for in a good breakfast wine," says Nadia from Vancouver Foodie Tours. It's 10.30am and she's right – the wine slips down a treat.

DEADPOOL

Vancouver native Ryan Reynolds played the character from the X-Men series who ended up in his own film and its sequel, both filmed all over the city.

SONIC THE HEDGEHOG

In February the blue hedgehog will star alongside James Marsden and Jim Carrey in his first big-screen outing, which also sees the feisty creature driving across Vancouver Island – famous for its great surfing, whale-watching and thriving arts scene.

CHILLING ADVENTURES OF SABRINA

The city is home to teen dramas such as Nancy Drew, Riverdale and Sabrina, which returns to Netflix in February.

A BABYSITTER'S GUIDE TO MONSTER HUNTING

8 THE ANCIENT HITS OF THE TURQUOISE COAST

British holidaymakers are returning to Turkey in droves. Tourist numbers tumbled in 2016 following a spate of terrorist attacks and a failed coup, but they have steadily returned. In 2019, Turkey attracted 41 million overseas visitors from January to September, and was especially popular with Russians, Germans and Brits. Part of the appeal is the favourable exchange rate: the Turkish lira is one of the few currencies that has weakened against sterling in recent years, so you get a lot more bang for your buck than you do in France or Spain.

Thanks to a raft of sleek new hotels, 2020's hottest seaside destination will be the Turquoise Coast – western Turkey's long, craggy, forest-fringed coastline, which is lapped by the crystalline Aegean Sea. Its popularity is nothing new. This region was once the heart of the Aeolian, Ionian, Lydian and Carian civilisations and is littered with ancient ruins, so there's plenty to see if you find beaches a bore and watersports aren't for you.

The best preserved of its classical cities is Ephesus, which was once an important Greek seaport and the capital of the Roman province of Asia.

As well as temples, aqueducts and ancient loos, there's a solitary column of the Temple of Artemis – one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World. But the region's biggest attraction is at Pamukkale, where you can bathe in a sky-blue, mineral-rich thermal pool beside snow-white terraces, and explore the nearby Graeco-Roman spa city of Hierapolis.

Archaeological wonders are never far away in the Aegean and you'll have many sites to yourself. Among the most dramatic are the rock-cut tombs found in the mountains behind Fethiye, and in the ancient Carian city of Kaunos, near modern Dalyan.

There's plenty of history in its towns as well. Take Bodrum – formerly the Greek city of Halicarnassus and now the Aegean's answer to St Tropez. As well as a new batch of luxury hotels, it has a magnificent fourth-century theatre and a medieval castle built with stone from the tomb of Carian king Mausolus – another of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World.

Today the castle is home to the Museum of Underwater Archaeology, a true treasure trove.

9 PILGRIMAGE TO MALTA

This Mediterranean archipelago enjoys over 300 days of sunshine a year and is only a three-hour flight from the UK; no wonder it's a perennial favourite. Whether you're into prehistoric sites, Game of Thrones or diving, there's plenty to explore. Themed maps from the tourist board include a pilgrimage trail of ancient churches, while a gastronomy map reveals where to find the best cheese, pastries and seafood.

10 FIREWORKS IN GALWAY

Ireland's bohemian west coast city will be this year's European Capital of Culture (along with the Croatian city of Rijeka). The cultural programme starts in February with a week-long fiery ceremony from the team behind the 2012 London Olympics' opening extravaganza. Highlights include Connemara mountains being lit up by Finnish light artist Kari Kola on St Patrick's Day, a mirror pavilion in a 4,000-year-old bog and a reading of Homer's Odyssey on Galway's beaches.

11 PARIS BACK IN FASHION

Europe's fashion capital will host a Christian Louboutin retrospective at the Palais de la Porte Dorée from February, while fashion museum Palais Galliera will reopen in April after a facelift. Art lovers are in for a treat in June: French billionaire François Pinault will cut the ribbon on the Bourse de Commerce – the old stock exchange – being revamped by Japanese architect Tadao Ando at a cost of $170 million for Pinault to display his contemporary art collection.

BRIGHT SPOTS

12 UZBEKISTAN OPENS UP

Even the most well-travelled Westerners would probably struggle to pinpoint Uzbekistan on a map, but that is set to change. The country has thrown open its doors to tourists in the last couple of years, and British passport-holders can now stay for up to 30 days without a visa. Thanks to direct flights from Europe, a high-speed rail network and a clampdown on the currency black market, exploring this former Soviet Asian country has never been easier.

For most visitors, the main draw is the Silk Road cities of Samarkand, Bukhara and Khiva. During the Middle Ages, Uzbekistan's trio of Unesco-listed cities were pitstops on the network of trade routes connecting Europe and Asia, and important centres of learning. In the 1960s, the Soviets restored their sumptuous Islamic buildings and many look as if they were finished yesterday.

Samarkand's centrepiece is Registan Square: three enormous madrasas (Islamic schools) adorned with intricate mosaics, gleaming interiors and Islamic and Zoroastrian symbols. In the 13th century, Gengis Khan sacked Samarkand, but it was rebuilt by the 14th-century Turco-Mongol king Timur (known in English as Tamerlane), who made it the capital of an empire that stretched from modern-day Turkey to India. Timur's tomb is crowned with a glittering turquoise cupola, while the necropolis where his successors were laid to rest is even more jaw-dropping.

In Bukhara, you can stay in old madrasas or centuries-old merchant's mansions that have been converted into atmospheric boutique hotels. A royal fortress dates from the fifth century and was the residence of the pampered ruling emirs until the Red Army bombed it in 1920. The most photographed monument is a 47-metre-high minaret – it's said that Gengis Khan couldn't bring himself to destroy it. Five times a day, the streets echo with the muezzins' call, and there's still plenty of bartering in the domed trading halls where tourists now browse for ceramics and textiles.

Originally an oasis in the desert, Khiva was once notorious for its barbaric slave market and many of its victims were set to work building minarets, madrasas and mausoleums. Today its labyrinthine walled inner city is a living museum and it's especially magical at dawn and sunset, when its

13 BRANCH OUT IN NORTHERN GREECE

14 SOUTHERN ITALY'S SECRET

The toe of Italy's boot has over 500 miles of coastline, between the Tyrrhenian Sea's lush, craggy coves and the Ionian's swathes of sand. The riviera also boasts towns such as cliff-top Tropea (left), while Calabria's many mountains are sprinkled with pretty hilltop villages. This unsung region of southern Italy also boasts three national parks with waterfalls and serene lakes.

15 BE AMAZED BY MEXICO CITY

Mexico's megalopolis has always had amazing art and architecture, and its food and drink scene has exploded in the last decade. It's said to have the second-largest number of museums in the world after Paris, including an anthropology museo crammed with pre-Hispanic treasures and La Casa Azul, the former home of artist Frida Kahlo. And not forgetting the pyramids of Teotihuacan (right), which lie 30 miles northeast of the city.

16 SWEDEN MADE SIMPLE IN GOTHENBURG

Sweden's second city is a no-fuss, charming city break destination: vintage trams rattle down neoclassical boulevards, traditional Paddan boats float down 17th-century canals, wooden houses line cobbled streets. Like Stockholm, the city has no shortage of chic restaurants and snug cafés, as well as an excellent art museum and old-fashioned amusement park. You can also hop on a ferry to the string of islands on its doorstep.

17 REGAL RAJASTHAN

This part of northern India is awash with fortresses and palaces that once belonged to princes and Mughal emperors. The "Pink City" of Jaipur has salmon-hued royal residences (right), Jodhpur's maze of medieval lanes are painted sky blue, while the lakeside city of Udaipur is just as enchanting. The most popular itinerary is the Golden Triangle: Jaipur, Delhi and Agra, which is home to the Taj Mahal.

twisting alleyways are bathed in an orange glow and the minarets cast long shadows. Uzbekistan's modern, sprawling capital, Tashkent – the route in and out of the country for most travellers – is the biggest city in Central Asia. Its vast boulevards, ostentatious government buildings and dilapidated Brutalist-style concrete blocks are a world away from the dazzling Islamic architecture of the Silk Road. The elaborately decorated metro is a sort of subterranean Soviet museum – one station is a glass-columned pantheon dedicated to cosmonauts. Yet the heart of the city is still the bazaar, where Uzbeks haggle over sacks of spices and tuck into Uzbekistan's favourite dish – a lamb pilaf called plov.

A Balkan beauty

18 MEET THE NEW NORTH MACEDONIA

Last February, the former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia changed its name to North Macedonia, ending a 27-year dispute with neighbouring Greece, which has its own region called Macedonia. This often-overlooked Balkan country must also be hoping that its concise new moniker will raise its profile and entice more travellers to explore its mountains, lakes and time-weathered monasteries.

Bordering Kosovo, Serbia, Bulgaria, Greece and Albania, this landlocked state has a rich history, having belonged to the Greeks, the Romans and the Ottomans before it became part of Yugoslavia. The jewel in its crown is crystal-clear Lake Ohrid, which straddles the border with Albania and is one of Europe's deepest lakes. It's a Unesco World Heritage site together with its cobbled medieval town, which is known as "the Jerusalem of the Balkans" because of its many churches.

Over 70 per cent of the country is mountainous and its three national parks – Pelister, Mavrovo and Galicica – offer spectacular hiking and occasional glimpses of wild boar and bears. A recently launched 300-mile route, the High Scardus Trail, climbs jagged 2,746m-high Mount Korab before winding through Albania and Kosovo.

North Macedonia's capital, Skopje, has had a controversial facelift in recent years. The river is now flanked by faux-neoclassical facades and dozens of statues have popped up, including a whopping bronze of Alexander the Great. More charming are the old Ottoman bazaar's winding lanes, teahouses and artisan shops.

Macedonian cuisine is a taste of the country's heritage, blending Middle Eastern, Mediterranean and Balkan flavours: roast pepper relishes, mezzes, clay-pot stews and filo-pastry pies. Thanks to 250-plus days of sunshine a year, wine connoisseurs will enjoy its full-bodied local reds.

Several tour operators offer food, wine-tasting, walking and cycling itineraries, and some combine North Macedonia with Albania, Kosovo, Montenegro and Croatia.

19 THE MAJESTIC RHINE

The most scenic stretch of Germany's mightiest river is the Unesco-stamped Rhine Gorge, where it wends past looming cliffs, vineyard-carpeted hills, half-timbered houses and fairytale castles between Koblenz and Bingen am Rhein. The most popular way to see it is on a river cruise, but you could walk a stretch of the Rheinberg Weg and Rheinsteig footpaths, pootle along the Rhine Cycle Route, or hop on the West Rhine Railway.

20 RAVISHING CORSICA

France's "Isle of Beauty" is often overlooked by UK travellers in favour of its Italian neighbour Sardinia, which is a shame, because it lives up to its nickname. Its ravishing 600-mile coastline is lapped by sapphire sea while the interior of the island is lush and rugged. Towns (such as Corte, below) teeter on the edge of cliffs and historic sights include the home of Corsica's most famous son, Napoleon, in Ajaccio. There's even a vintage train – the narrow-gauge Trinicellu is a fun way to explore.
