

*ErratumHigh-spin structures observed in the ^{101}Tc fission fragment

F. Hoellinger¹, N. Schulz¹, S. Courtin¹, B.J.P. Gall¹, M.-G. Porquet², I. Deloncle², A. Wilson², T. Kutsarova³, A. Minkova⁴, J. Duprat⁵, H. Sergolle⁵, C. Gautherin⁶, R. Lucas⁶

¹ Institut de Recherches Subatomiques, UMR7500, CNRS-IN2P3 et Université Louis Pasteur, F-67037 Strasbourg, France

² CSNSM, CNRS-IN2P3, F-91405 Orsay, France

³ INRNE, BAS, BG-1784 Sofia, Bulgaria

⁴ University of Sofia, Faculty of Physics, BG-1126 Sofia, Bulgaria

⁵ IPN, CNRS-IN2P3, F-91406 Orsay, France

⁶ DAPNIA, CEA, Gif-sur-Yvette, France

Eur. Phys. J. A4, 319–321 (1999)

Owing to a mistake, Fig. 1 of this paper was printed defective. To rectify this unfortunate error, the correct Fig. 1 with its caption is reprinted below.

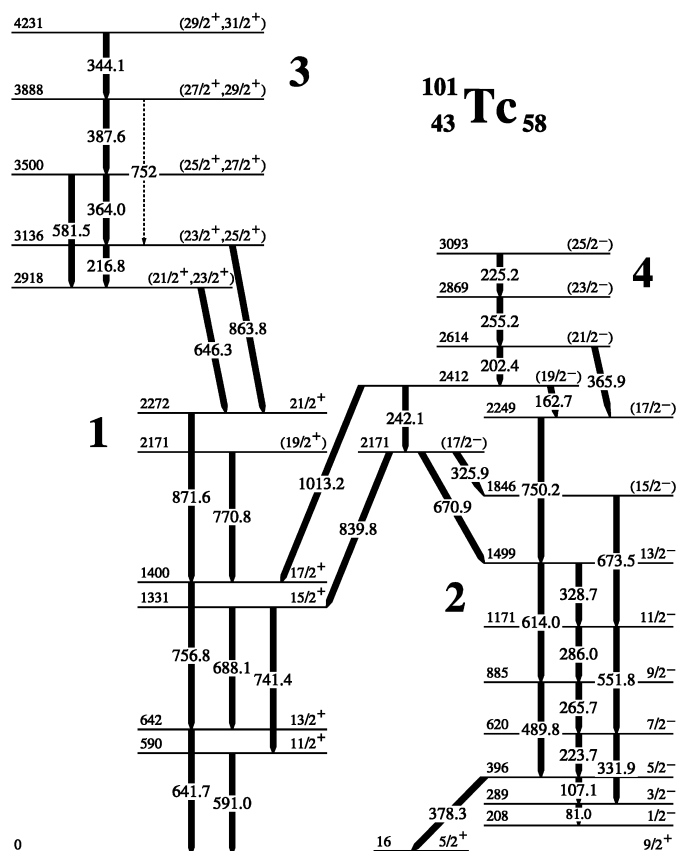

Fig. 1. Level scheme of ^{101}Tc obtained in the present work. Level and γ -ray energies are given in keV