

Online First publication

Published online: 5 February 2002

Springer-Verlag and the editors of Theoretical and Applied Genetics are pleased to announce a new service for our authors and readers: Online First, the quick online publication of all accepted papers shortly after receipt of the corrected proofs. The electronic version of an Theoretical and Applied Genetics issue used to appear at the same time as the print edition, but from now on the electronic version of all individual articles will be available to subscribers via the Internet weeks before the printed version appears. This means a considerable reduction in publication time: it will no longer be necessary for manuscripts to wait until the next available issue.

As each paper becomes ready for publication, it will be published on the Web with its own publication date: "Published online: 18-01-2002." Each article will receive a permanent, unique international identification code - the Digital Object Identifier (DOI), which is registered with the International DOI Foundation (<http://www.doi.org>), a joint enterprise of many international publishers.

Contributions published Online First but not yet available in print are citable by journal title and DOI only. Furthermore, the DOI forms part of the article's URL (Web address) and can be used to access the article before the print version has appeared. The DOI is never changed and can and will be used, for example, to create hyperlinks between Online First articles published in different journals, even by different publishers. The print version also includes the DOI and date of online publication.

Online First articles appear in their final form. Therefore, articles cannot be changed or withdrawn after electronic publication. Any corrections that might be necessary will be in the form of an Erratum, which will be hyperlinked to the article.

Each article will be announced in LINK Alert, which is a free alerting service (<http://link.springer.de/alert>).

A table of contents showing all papers that have been published electronically in Theoretical and Applied Genetics but not yet printed can be found at the journals's Web pages:
