

Large Nonlinear Optical Response in Carbon Nitride Nanotube

Rui Hua Xie

Max-Planck-Institut für Strömungsforschung,
D-37073 Göttingen

Reprint requests to Dr. R. H. X.;
Fax: +49 551 5176712; E-mail: rxie@gwdg.de

Z. Naturforsch. 54a, 348–350 (1999);
received March 19, 1999

The third-order optical nonlinearity of a nitrogen doped carbon nanotube is studied. It is found that carbon nitride nanotubes are potentially important in photonics owing to their large nonlinear optical response.

Key words: Fullerene; Carbon Nanotube; Hyperpolarizability; Doping Effect.