

ELECTRONIC DISTRIBUTION OF DOCTRINAL PUBLICATIONS

1. Purpose. To provide information on the electronic distribution of available doctrinal publications.
2. Information. In order to ensure rapid access and distribution of doctrinal publications and to increase the dialog between the producers and consumers of doctrine, MCCDC Doctrine Division provides electronic copies of current and draft doctrinal publications. While paper copy distribution of doctrinal pubs will continue to be the norm for the foreseeable future, the Doctrine Division Internet Web site has been developed to supplement and enhance the Marine Corps Publications Distribution System. Access to joint, multi-Service, and multinational pubs is also available through our Web sites and compact disk (CD).
3. Doctrine Division Internet Web Sites. Doctrine Division has developed a Non-Secure Internet Protocol Router Network (NIPRNET) Web site for unclassified doctrinal publications and a SECRET Internet Protocol Router Network (SIPRNET) site for classified doctrinal publications. The Web address for these sites are: <https://www.doctrine.usmc.mil> (NIPRNET) and <http://www.doctrine.mccdc.usmc.smil.mil> (SIPRNET).
  - a. The Doctrine Division Internet Web site provides access to approved Marine Corps doctrine, warfighting, and reference publications, as well as password-protected draft publications for review and comment. The site also includes current updates to the enclosures in this Bulletin and information on key doctrinal issues, developing doctrine, NATO standardization agreements (STANAG), Quadripartite Standardization Agreements (QSTAG), Naval Doctrinal Publications, and links to other doctrine-related military Internet sites.
  - b. Publications are in Portable Document Format (PDF) and may be viewed on line or saved on a local hard drive using Adobe Acrobat Reader. The Adobe Acrobat Reader is free and can be obtained from the Doctrine Division Web site or the Adobe Web site (<http://www.adobe.com>). Some draft publications are compressed into a ZIP file and may be downloaded to a local hard drive and decompressed using an UNZIP file application.
  - c. As new doctrinal publications are approved, they are posted on the Doctrine Division Web site. Older publications are being added as they are converted into the proper electronic format. Questions concerning the electronic distribution of doctrinal publications should be addressed to the Doctrine Division Information Systems Coordinator (ISC) at DSN 278-6231; Coml (703) 784-6231. The Doctrine Division ISC can also be contacted by e-mail through the Doctrine Division Web site.
4. Doctrine-Related Military Internet Sites
  - a. Joint Publications - <http://www.dtic.mil/doctrine/>
  - b. Air Land Sea Application Center Publication - <https://lad.dtic.mil/alsa/>
  - c. Air Force Publications - <http://www.e-publishing.af.mil>
  - d. Army Publications - <http://www.adtdl.army.mil>
  - e. Navy Publications - <http://www.nwdc.navy.mil/Library/Library.asp>