

(No Model.)

J. GYÖRGY.

COMBINED FUR COLLAR AND MUFF.

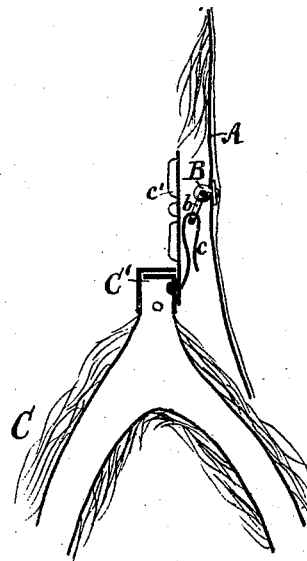

No. 345,632.

Patented July 13, 1886.

Fig. 1.

Fig. 2.

Witnesses:
Bern. J. Vetterlein
A. J. Lehman.

Inventor:
Joseph György
by his atty
H. J. Vetterlein

UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE.

JOSEPH GYÖRGY, OF NEW YORK, N. Y.

COMBINED FUR COLLAR AND MUFF.

SPECIFICATION forming part of Letters Patent No. 345,632, dated July 13, 1886.

Application filed June 25, 1885. Serial No. 169,719. (No model.)

To all whom it may concern:

Be it known that I, JOSEPH GYÖRGY, of the city, county, and State of New York, have invented certain new and useful Improvements in a Combined Fur Collar and Muff; and I do hereby declare that the following is a full and exact description thereof.

The objects of my improvements are, first, to construct a muff which will serve the double purpose of protecting the hands against cold and of affording a convenient and safe receptacle for the purse, handkerchief, and other articles of a lady's ordinary vade-mecum; second, to procure means, at once facile and ornate, of attaching and detaching such muff to and from the cape, tippet, or collar, thereby enabling the wearer to keep her hands free for any action, while the muff remains in its proper place, without danger of being mislaid or lost.

To this end my invention consists of a satchel-muff of novel construction, made attachable to a collar having corresponding means of connection, so that the two shall form, for the time being, but one piece, and, together with cuffs, constitute what is known by the trade as a "set of furs."

In the accompanying drawings, Figure 1 is a front, and Fig. 2 a sectional view, of my combined collar and satchel-muff.

A is a fur collar, with its ends a' a' of sufficient length to depend over the breast of the wearer. B B are eyes or rings, hidden from view by the fur, and firmly riveted to the leather near the extremities of said lappels A' A'.

C is the satchel-muff, slit longitudinally, and provided with a metallic portemonnaie-frame,

C', one shutting and opening in ordinary way, and leading into a deep, double leather-lined pocket that extends down and along the inside walls of the slit muff. This frame is properly riveted to the pelt of the fur, and at two equidistant points upon it there are constructed, correspondingly to the two lappel-rings, two metal hooks or clasps, c c, which again are masked or covered by ornate disks c' c', made in the shape of rose-leaves or other forms.

The purpose of covering the lappel-rings and ornately masking the muff-hooks is not æsthetical alone, but it is also technical, for it renders the separate use of the combined parts possible, without offending thereby the requirements of looks or appearance.

Having fully described my invention, what I desire to claim and secure by Letters Patent is—

In a combined collar and muff of the character herein described, having means, such as hooks and rings, for detachably connecting the muff and collar, the metallic disks c c, attached to the frame of the muff in front of the hooks, whereby the hooks are hid from view, both when the muff and collar are worn together and when the muff is worn separate from the collar, as set forth.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand, in the presence of two subscribing witnesses, this 1st day of June, 1885.

JOSEPH GYÖRGY.

Witnesses:

A. H. GENTNER,
B. T. VETTERLEIN.