10. Chinese Communist artillerymen in Korea to attend five-day course on "attack" tactics: A Chinese Communist rocket launcher regiment in east central Korea on 29 April informed its division headquarters: "The information came by telephone that present battle tactics and assignments are not adequate. It is requested that division promulgate a rigid five-day educational program on the subject of 'Army Functions in the Attack.' Is this satisfactory?" (SUEDE 501st Comm Recon Grp Korea, K-2608, 3 May 52)

Comment: The scheduling of such a course is not immediately indicative of enemy intentions to initiate offensive operations. It seems more likely that Chinese Communist artillery units, probably inadequately trained in division or higher maneuvers, are trying to improve their military efficiency.
