1. ~~(U)~~ The 1 July 1975 reorganization and redesignation of the US Army/Communications Command (USACC) - CONUS as the 7th Signal Command resulted in a realignment of target areas of the ICIP CANARY EFFORT (U) at Fort Ritchie, Maryland. Attached as inclosure 1 is a revised operations plan for CANARY EFFORT (U) which provides for continuation of the existing ICIP and reflects the changes brought about by this reorganization.
2. ~~(U)~~ The new 7th Signal Command reorganization has necessitated a change in the mission of the ICIP to provide increased coverage for the Alternate Joint Command Center (AJCC) and those activities designated by the Commander, 7th Signal Command, as listed in paragraph 4, below, and Annex A. There is no significant change in the objectives. The activities listed in Annex A will be considered Priority I for purposes of counterintelligence support. The Execution Phase of the revised OPLAN remains essentially unchanged except that an additional PCO will have a base of operations at Fort Detrick, MD, to assist in providing coverage for the East Coast Telecommunications Center (ECTC), which is located at Fort Detrick. The revised OPLAN provides that each source and individual involved in the conduct or control of the operation will be thoroughly briefed on the provisions and constraints of AR 380-13 and additionally will be required to sign a certificate stating that they have been briefed and understand the limits imposed by AR 380-13.
3. (U) Four organizational charts which show the former and present command and staff organization by line charts of the 7th Signal Command are attached as inclosure 2. These charts illustrate the principal internal changes occurring as a result of the 1 July 1975 reorganization.
