Andante tranquillo

Expressive style and singing tone-production are fundamental requisites for the proper interpretation of this solo. Requires a player of considerable emotional powers and absolute surety as to intonation.65

Quickly and with impetuous abandon

GUSTAV SAENGER

Outstanding brilliant character, originality of design, fascinating to a degree in point of its unconventional style, make this number a noteworthy addition to the modern solo repertoire of the violin. Calls for expert technical control of the instrument and for artistic interpretative understanding of a high order. 1.00

A brilliant and highly effective composition for capable concert violinists; its thematic material is derived from Hebrew songs and dances, cleverly combined, elaborated and developed to suit the needs of the solo instrument to best advantage. Calls for well-developed left-hand and capably advanced bowing ability. Provided with carefully prepared ossia parts for all the more difficult passages and serviceable finger and bowing indications. . . . 1.00

Minstrel Memories*

Violin

EDMUND SEVERN

Allegro quasi Allegretto (Tempo di Schottische)
a tempo
poco rit.
leggero e grazioso
mf

In this number, the composer has endeavored to express some of the grace and charm of the so-called "Song and Dance" of the palmy days of American minstrelsy. The number is not difficult, offers manifold opportunities for rhythmic bowing, singing tone production in single and double stops, and is of pleasing character throughout.60

Violin

CHARLES ROBERT VALDEZ

Andante, ma non troppo

This is a particularly fine concert solo, long since famous as one of Fritz Kreisler's most successful repertoire numbers. Its effective performance demands singing tone-production, graceful style and artistic taste and feeling for the lighter styles of bowing.90

Tempo di Minuetto

ARNOLD VOLPE

Tempo di Minuetto

calando

Melodious and pleasing in character and in style of the old-time Minuet, this solo should appeal to a very large class of concert players in search of material of lighter calibre. Contains manifold opportunities for the playing of energetic double stops and chords, staccato bowing and sustained melody playing.90
